COMMITTEES NAMED

For Supervised Playgrounds

For Grand Merchants' Week

LADIES AS WELL AS GENTLEMEN

Believe Quincy Would Be Benefitted and the Children Made Happy

Big Returns Expected From a Small Appropriation

Supervised playgrounds received a grand endorsement at City Hall on Thursday evening at a public meeting attended by representative ladies and gentlemen from all parts of the city. D. King was temporary chairman and E. G. Gay secretary.

At the request of Chairman King, the secretary reviewed the playground movement in Quincy, giving credit to the Women's Club; F. E. Parlin, the former superintendent of schools; the press, the Y. M. C. A., and the Civic League.

Chairman King reported a committee of one hundred and the selection was ratified.

Upon motion a committee on nomination of officers was selected,—J. A. Sedwick, A. N. Murray and W. F. Blake.

Christian Lantz, the supervisor of the famous playgrounds at Salem was introduced and told of the successful work there. Appropriations are now made unanimously each year by the city government. Thought $1,500 needed in Quincy to make a start and told why. Competent supervision was essential, both man and woman, also some equipment, and a bath. Where playgrounds had been established a changed relation was noticed between children and police. The friendship of police for children was of great value. Neighborhoods and even homes and citizens themselves were improved where playgrounds were established.

In reply to questions, he said Salem had six playgrounds and about 3,600 children. About 2,000 used the playgrounds. Salem appropriates $1,500 for supervision. Grounds were equipped before the city took charge. No limit as to ages or hours.

Dr. O. G. Smith ,supervisor of the physical department of the public schools of Quincy, was introduced. He told how a tough community in Cambridge had been improved by the establishment of a playground. There was less stealing from the railroad, fewer cases in court, less trouble on street cars, boys were more truthful and less troublesome. Good supervision was absolutely necessary.

Mr. Lantz thought a supervised playground most needed in Ward Three, but suggested that they be established both at Quincy Point and South Quincy.

Several other gentlemen spoke and endorsed the movement including Superintendent of Schools Barbour, Truant officer Charles H. Johnson, Judge A. E. Avery of the District court, Edward Southworth the master of a Boston school, H. G. Smith the general manager of the Fore River shipyard, T. B. Pollard master of the Washington school, former Park Commissioner George E. Pfaffmann, and others.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Clarence Burgin offered the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, on May 12, 1908, the Legislature of Massachusetts passed a law by which "Every city and town in the Commonwealth having a population of more than ten thousand accepting the provisions of this act shall, after the first day of July in the year nineteen hundred and ten, provide and maintain at least one public playground conveniently located and of suitable size and equipment, for the recreation and physical education of the minors of such city or town, and at least one other playground for every additional twenty-thousand of its population."

And whereas, on November 3, 1908, the provisions of this Act were accepted by the voters of Quincy with the decisive majority of 3002 "Yes" to 933 "No."

And whereas, on January 3, 1910, His Honor, Mayor William T. Shea in his Inaugural Address: "Our city should be liberal in providing Public Parks and Playgrounds in the different wards for the use of its children. Chapter 513 of the Acts of 1908, having been accepted by the City, it will be necessary for us this year to lay out and properly equip one or more playgrounds of the character contemplated by that act. I recommend that action be taken on this matter without unnecessary delay."

Now therefore, we, theQuincy Playground Committee of one hundred, and Citizens of Quincy in meeting assembled, respectfully petition and urge that a sum of not less than One Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($1,500.00) be appropriated by our City Government, to be expended by the Park Commission for the equipping of two public playgrounds, and for providing adequate supervision from July 1, 1910, to the following Labor Day.

The nominating committee reported these officers for the association, and the list was adopted:

Chairman—Delcevare King.

Vice Chairmen—James L. Rand, Mrs. William G. Shaw and Mrs. William Ward Whitcher.

Treasurer—Clarence Burgin.

Secretary—Ernest G. Gay.

Executive Committee—Mrs. George L. Badger, Albert L. Barbour, Henry M. Faxon, George E. Pfaffmann, Thomas B. Pollard, William G. Shaw, H. Gerrish Smith, Robert J. Teasdale and Miss Margaret L. Thomas.

A vote of thanks was extended to the Mayor and City Council for use of the Council chamber.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The pipes of peace in the House were loaded with giant powder.

The voters are the ultimate consumers of all this political trouble.

England has so many alliances that she can't lie fast enough to keep up.

If there were postal savings banks now, they would be good places in which to deposit political assets.

Popular interest finds that the Ballinger-Pinchot proceedings have been more or less "blanketed" of late.

Was there ever a Legislature like Maryland's that had so many whoppin' long letters written to it? What is the matter with the Annapolis Solons?

The Five Cent Savings Bank at Salem has hit upon the best idea yet to inspire confidence of its depositors, and at the same time to prevent bank officials from falsifying accounts and misappropriating funds. In the issue of the Salem Evening News of March 28 the bank published a complete list of depositors accounts, showing balances in the bank at the close of business Feb. 1, 1910, when the last semi-annual trial balance was made. Names were not used, but each book has a number ,and the number was substituted for the name. The method commands itself to us as the best one yet attained, in that it allows each depositor to verify his own account. The list included 31,097 accounts and aggregates $8,202,167.94, the average being about $264.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The Brockton Grand Army post has decided to introduce an innovation in the tender ceremonies of Memorial day by substituting baskets of growing pansies in the decoration of graves of soldiers and sailors, rather than with cut flowers. Where the latter speedily fade, the pansies will continue to grow and blossom. This fact stated, there is no occasion to dilate upon the reasoning which has prompted the organization in question to institute a new departure. The chances are promising that the example thus set ,although it can not be said to be entirely new or novel, will so far commend itself to Grand Army posts in general as to lead to an extensive use of the flower here favored.—Salem Evening News.

MRS. KELLEHER IS SANE

Alleged Murderer of Six by Poisoning Must Face Trial

Cambridge, Mass., April 1.—The lunacy commission appointed to examine Mrs. Mary Kelleher, who is charged with murder in the first degree on six counts by poisoning, made an oral report to Judges Stevens and Dana in the superior criminal court, declaring that Mrs. Kelleher is sane.

Attorney Bancroft announced that he intended to renew the motion that was overruled last January. This motion recites that Mary Kelleher is charged with separate murders on separate dates, which fact unduly prejudices against a fair trial. Bancroft asks the court to direct the district attorney to choose one count.

After a conference lasting four hours Stevens and Dana announced that they would take the motion of Bancroft under further advisement and would announce their decision next week.

The factories hold the key to the problem of congestion of population, he says. "We must induce the factories to move to outlying parts of the towns. Let the factories move, the people will follow.—Boston Transcript.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

PAYING HIGH FOR INTEREST

Few Cities Have Made Such Poor Bargains on Loans

Editor of Daily Ledger:

"Again this week Quincy has to pay high on a temporary loan of $100,000 in anticipation of taxes. It was awarded to Loring, Tolman & Tupper at 3.87 per cent discount. The same day afflicted Framingham borrowed at 3.70 per cent discount, and that was high.

To this statement might be added the fact that on the same day that the Quincy loan was made Lawrence borrowed $100,000 at 3.59 and $1.35 premium. In the open market Lawrence saves $281.35 over Quincy.

On Jan. 27 Quincy borrowed $65,000 at $3.84 and $3.25 premium and Middlesex County gets $100,000 at $3.64 and $3.85 premium. The treasurer of Middlesex County could chuckle that he had been favored to the extent of $125.60 over another borrower.

On Feb. 9 Essex county needed $300,000 and the loan was made at an average of $3,485 and an average premium of $2.25. The next day Quincy got $50,000 at $3.83. By the sequence of these transactions Quincy pays $174.75 more than does Essex county.

These examples of doings in the bond market are not exceptional ones, but are picked at random from the daily news, and are perhaps not the ones that show the extreme poverty of our resources when analyzed by the money lenders. From the bekinning of the new year but few cities or towns have made such poor bargains for temporary loans as has Quincy, and in the cases that are exceptions the city or town has been at war with itself because of some fault of administration.

Another matter which I think we may fairly touch upon, and that is the annual budget or more particularly the amounts appropriated for current expenses. By the return of the Assessors for 1909 the valuation of the city was $29,130,475 and upon this valuation the city can make appropriations this year for current expenses in the sum of $349,565.70. The Mayor in his inaugural stated that the valuation of the city was on Jan. 1, 1910, $31,307,967. The Assessors' return was made late in August and in four months someone found additional property to the extent of $1,277,492. It may be that the valuation of the city on Jan. 1, of this year was the larger figure, but the fact remains that the tax bills were made out on the August return.

If for the sake of argument we allow the latter sum as a basis for the appropriations, we find that the Council has exceeded the legal limit by $27,784.40, and if we take the Assessors' valuation we find that the limit has been exceeded by $53,914.30.

Now, the point here it, that if the city is bound by the $12 limit, the law should be respected. If those in authority feel that this city should be exempted from the general rule it seems that the right way would be to ask the Legislature for relief and not by the subterfuge of inflated valuation get freer hand for extravagance.

EXPLORATION IN ANTARCTIC

HERO OF FARTHEST SOUTH

Shackleton Tells What Was Accomplished In Trip Which Brought Explorers Almost Within Hundred Miles of Pole—Great Plain, Glacier, Active Volcano and Three Ranges of Mountains Discovered

Boston, April 1.—Sir Ernest H. Shackleton, leader of the British Antarctic expedition, which in January of 1909 reached the farthest south, being compelled to turn back when only 111 miles from the South Pole, is in Boston.

He does not intend to make another trial to reach the South Pole, he said, unless the two expeditions, one American and the other British, that are now preparing, fail to reach it. He hopes, however, to make an expedition for scientific purposes.

Antarctic exploration differs very much from Arctic work. "The two things that are most peculiar to the Antarctic continent, for the neighborhood of the South Pole is land and not water, are the total absence of all animal and vegetable life, and the strong wind that blows almost constantly from the direction of the Pole," said the explorer.

"The Antarctic region is cut off from habitable land by miles of stormy ocean and has probably been so cut off for ages. Thus there has been no opportunity for animal or vegetable life to reach it. There is a great plain, hundreds of miles in extent, immense mountains, with not a sign of life. Once, however, the land was warm, for there are coal beds and fossilized pine wood. These discoveries were among the most important of the expedition."

The expedition started on the southern trip on Oct. 28, 1908. There were four men, Lieutenant Shackleton, Frank Wild, Eric Marshall and James B. Adams, all trained surveyors. They had sledges weighing about sixty pounds each, made of hickory and ash, and capable of carrying a load of 650 pounds or more. The men wore woolen garments, fur boots and mittens and burberry outer garments.

Four Manchurian ponies, 14.1 high, were used to drag the sledges the first month, but three of them were shot when their food had been exhausted, and the fourth fell down a crevasse and was lost. After that the men dragged the sledges. The expedition was equipped with a motor car, but that was only useful in the preliminary work of establishing the base on the edge of the Antarctic continent.

For the first 300 miles the expedition proceeded over fairly smooth ice on a level plateau. Then they came to the mountains and found the great glacier 130 miles long and fifty miles wide and filled with crevasses. Up this they struggled to a plain about 10,050 feet above the sea level, and along this traveled until their food gave out. They planted the British union jack 111 miles fromt he Pole and turned backward. The homeward journey was a difficul task and for sixty hours the party was without food.

The journey resulted in the discovery of an active volcano, Mt. Erebus, and of three ranges of mountains. One of these ranges was named Dominion range, in honor of New Zealand, another Commonwealth range, in honor of Australia, and the third Alexandra range, in honor of the queen. The highest mountain discovered, 14,624 feet, was named Mt. Kirkpatrick, after one of the supporters of the expedition.

The expedition cost about $235,000. It was the first great polar expedition to be made without the loss of human life. It resulted in the discovery of the south magnetic pole and of a highly organized microscopic life frozen in the ice. These, with the coal fields, fossil pine wood and the active volcano, Lieutenant Shackleton considers the great results of the expedition outside its contribution to geography.

There was no danger of the Shackleton expedition coming back without sufficient data to prove its claims to farthest south. With the best-known instruments each member of the expedition took observations at frequent intervals each day. The calculations were made and the observations averaged. The highest volocity of the wind was about 80 miles an hour during a blizzard and the lowest temperature was 58 degrees below zero.

BIG LEDGER IN MAY

To Advertise the Advantages of Our City

The Daily Ledger is making great plans for a big "Prosperity Edition" in connection with Merchants' Week in May. Probably 25,000 Ledgers will be distributed in all the South Shore towns, including Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Scituate, Marshfield, Norwell, Braintree, Holbrook, Randolph and Milton. It will contain not only attractive announcements of our merchants, but "write ups" of the Quincy industries and also the advantages of Quincy as a place, to trade, to do business, to build a home, to enjoy the seashore, to educate children, etc. It will be illustrated.

WESTFIELD SANATORIUM OPEN.

February 16, Governor Draper issued a proclamation declaring that the Westfield State Sanatorium was open and ready to receive patients. This event marks the completion of the first stage of a very important piece of work being carried on by his State. In 1907, an act was passed appointing a commission known as the Commission on Hospitals for Consumptives, and appropriating $300,000 later raised to $315,000, for the purpose of building three hospitals for consumptives, in the northeast, southeast and western parts of the State respectively, each to hold 105 patients.

These institutions are now open and running at their full capacity. The commission has been fortunate in securing the services of three men to act as superintendents, each of whom has had long experience in executive medicine, and is fully familiar with the latest methods of treating tuberculosis patients. These men are Dr. Ernest B. Emerson, Superintendent of the North Reading State Sanatorium; Dr. Sumner Coolidge, Superintendent of the Lakeville State Sanatorium and Dr. Henry D. Chadwick, Superintendent of the Westfield State Sanatorium.

These three sanatoria, located in different parts of the State ,are built along somewhat different lines, best suited to the land, elevation and surroundings of each location. Consumptives in any stage of the disease—men, women and children—here receive open air sanatorium treatment according to the latest and best methods.

The commission has now taken over the administration of the Rutland State Sanatorium ,thus having at its disposal 800 beds. The cost of board at these institutions is $4.00 a week. This, where possible, is to be paid by the patient; in case the patient cannot pay, however ,the town in which he has a settlement is held responsible, or in case of no settlement, the State will pay.

Application blanks and all information in regard to these sanatoria will be gladly furnished by the office of the Commission at 3 Joy Street, Boston, to which all letters of inquiry should be addressed.

Although these new sanatoria will not give accommodation for all the consumptives needing treatment in Massachusetts, yet they will be of great assistance in furnishing help and removing from the mass of the population those most dangerous cases of consumption—the advanced cases.

Real estate is to be active in Quincy this spring . If you have anything to sell or want to buy ,now is the time to get busy with a little printer's ink. Try an ad in the Quincy Daily Ledger; nothing like it when you are in a hurry. A small expenditure and big returns.

ONCE MORE

We wish to further call your attention to the change in our business system, for without doubt it will be one of the most important changes that will take place in Quincy this year. Our new price lists will soon be ready and we have arranged them so that any one can easily see the difference between paying cash and charging prices. Now this change that we propose to make only proves that Johnson Bros. have taken another step onward in the progress of better conditions for Quincy.

The close buyer with large means, the close buyer with small means, will find it is to their advantage to trade at home and where can you find purer or better goods than at Johnson Bros., and the prices are surely going down. We think a community should all stand together and render all the assistance they can to each other. This is one of the methods we take. By lowering the prices of our goods and therefore doing our little mite toward lightening the burden of living expenses for the people of Quincy. We shall start the Cash System, Monday, April 4th, this being the first Monday in April. After that date, there will positively be no credit extended to any person, for with such low prices to be placed on our goods, every purchase must be made for cash: and highest quality and lowest prices will rule at Johnson Bros. after said date.

Respectfully yours,

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

First Schoolhouse Erected After Division of Town

(Historical Paper No. 12)

It was in 1792 that Quincy was set off from the mother town of Braintree, and April 11, 1793, the town voted to build a school-house on the training field, which embraced all the land where the first Church now stands, a part of Washington street and a large share of Temple street. This building was a plain, two-story house, and stood about one hundred feet north of the church.

Pattee's history says: This schoolhouse stood nearly opposite the Hancock House of today, on what then was called the training field. The school-room was about twenty by twenty-eight feet, and not very conveniently arranged for the accommodation of the scholars. The estimated cost of this school-house was ninety pounds. The writing desks and seats were long, and constructed for the use of from four to eight pupils. No paint, blackboards, maps or mottoes adorned its walls. The proclivity of the New England youth in the use of the jackknife was fully exemplified by the various carvings on its blackened walls.

Its heating apparatus was a fireplace, and a small box stove, in which wood, instead of coal was used for warming the room. In cold winter days the pupils would, on coming to school, burst into a furor of indignation because their ink was frozen, and they were obliged to stand around the fire half a day to thaw out their ink, and limber up their digital extremities so that they could write their exercises.

For some three months of the year the school was divided, and the advanced pupils were sent to the upper room, which was called the "ciphering school." About 1806, Alpheus Cary taught this school two years, and Mr. John Whitney three years; Mr. Josiah Brigham from 1811 to 1814, when he was succeeded by Mr. William Seaver, the veteran school-master of Quincy, who for twenty-eight years taught school in the centre and south parts of the town, and was instructor for its youth and adult pupils for a longer time than any other person. Mr. Eliot Valentine and Ibrahim Bartlett, also taught the "ciphering school."

All these teachers, with the exception of Mr. Alpheus Cary, were from Northboro', in Worcester county, of this state. The raw-hide securely locked in the master's desk was the great discipliner of that period. At this time Mrs. Bass, widow of Deacon Jonathan Bass, kept a dame school in a dwelling-house on Poverty street, so called, now Franklin, near the southerly junction of Pearl. Why the street was called Poverty, was on account of weed by that name growing in abundance in it, and not from the poverty of its residents. This weed has long since disappeared.

A horse-block was located on the training field. This relic of antiquity was on the southeasterly part of this field, nearly opposite Hotel Greenleaf of today. "It consisted of a granite block about seven feet long and three and one-half feet wide. It was supported at either end by small blocks, projecting beyond the upper blocks, so as to form steps. Its use was to enable persons who came to church, town meetings or for other purposes, to mount their horses with greater ease and convenience. At this period horse-back riding was very common, as carriages were expensive, and not generally in use.

The upper story was used as a Town Hall, and in the winter a "ciphering school" was kept in the same room; on the lower floor the Grammar school was taught. The first town meeting held in this hall was on Thursday, Dec. 8, 1796. This building was burnt Dec. 29, 1815, and until a new schoolhouse could be constructed, the school was kept in the hall of the house, near the easterly corner of Franklin and School streets, next building south of the Tiger engine-house.

After considerable contention upon selecting a site for the rebuilding of the town hall and school-house, it was finally decided to erect one on land contiguous to the southerly part of the Hancock Cemetery, and the building was constructed in 1817. It remained in this locality until 1841, when it was moved to near the site where the Coddington school-house now stands. After remaining there some fourteen years, it was moved again to nearly its old site where it was remodeled and additions made. It is later uesed as the District court-room.

A NATIONAL HEALTH BUREAU

INDORSED BY PRESIDENT TAFT

Value and Possibilities of a Scheme First Formulated by the Committee of American Association For Advancement of Science—How the Public Can Evince Its Interest.

By PAUL KENNADAY.

[Secretary of the subcommittee on publicity of the committee of one hundred of the American Association For the Advancement of Science on National Health.]

The death rate in America might be cut in two if we were to apply the existing knowledge of hygiene to our living conditions.

This is the statement of so competent an authority as Dr. William H. Welch of Johns Hopkins university and president of the American Association For the Advancement of Science.

And what are we going to do about it? The facts are cold and bare. One million five hundred thousand persons must die in the United States during the next twelve months; equivalent to 4,200,000 persons will be constantly sick; over 5,000,000 homes, consisting of 25,000,000 persons, will be made more or less wretched by mortality and morbidity. Of the people living today over 8,000,000 will die of tuberculosis, and the federal government does not raise a hand to help them.

It is not that the people of the United States, with the machinery they have established for their protection and government, are not able to help themselves. We can and do spend thousands of dollars to stamp out cholera from our pigs. But for the alleviation or cure of disease of our hearts or kidneys, which will carry off over 6,000,000 of us, not a thing do we do to call to our aid the mighty power of our government.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars are expended by the department of agriculture in saving the lives of elm trees from the attacks of beetles. But where is the department that will keep from our babies the parasitic growths that thrive in the milk they drink?

The department of agriculture warns our farmers over the whole land against the blights affecting potato plants. But that the farmers themselves and other human beings in the United States to the number of 8,000,000 will perish of pneumonia is accepted by us all with an oriental resignation that seems to say, "'Tis the will of Allah."

Vast Field Untouched.

Individual cities and separate states, it is true, are doing much more to protect the health and lives of their citizens than ever before. But there is a vast field untouched by any to which the national government should apply itself.

That the states have departments of agriculture of their own, agricultural colleges, cattle inspection and meat regulations is not considered cause for the abandonment of the federal department of agriculture. As President Taft said in his first annual message to congress:

The opportunities offered for useful research and the spread of useful information in regard to the cultivation of the soil and the breeding of stock and the solution of many of the intricate problems in progressive agriculture have demonstrated the wisdom of establishing the department of agriculture. Similar reasons of equal force can be given for the establishment of a bureau of health that shall not only exercise the police jurisdiction of the federal government respecting quarantine, but which shall also afford an opportunity for investigation and research by competent experts into questions of health affecting the whole country or important sections thereof, questions which in the absence of federal governmental work are not likely to be promptly solved.

Indorsed by Physicians.

Public health officers themselves are well nigh unanimous in the opinion that a national health bureau would be of great utility, and the medical profession has heartily and repeatedly indorsed the project.

Greater efficiency would at once result from merely the consolidation in one bureau of the present public health and marine hospital service, the divisions of foods and drugs of the bureau of chemistry and of all the other present functions of the several national executive departments engaged in work pertaining to human health and sanitation. These health agencies of the national government are often doing excellent work, but at every hand they encounter obstacles to their complete usefulness. It is as if the unified concentrated activities of the department of agriculture were scattered about among the treasury department, the department of the interior, the department of commerce and labor—wherever, in fact, chance or the mere stress of departmental business might suggest a resting place for now one, now another, branch of the government's extensive agricultural work.

Attracting Wide Attention.

The situation calls loud for a remedy, and it is attracting at last a wide attention. The committee of one hundred organized by the American Association For the Advancement of Science has taken up the subject with energy and hopes to secure the backing of every organization in the United States interested in public health.

Since the unqualified indorsement given by President Taft to the plan for a national bureau of health, first formulated by the committee, the members of the committee have been encouraged to believe that congress will this year establish their long desired bureau.

Only one thing stands in the way of this measure, full of possibilities for good to the American people—the failure of the people themselves to evince their genuine interest in the proposal. A few letters to members of congress from women's clubs, farmers' unions, business organizations and lodges would show that the public health is a matter of importance not only to the physician and the student of statistics. Any considerable quantity of personal letters from constituents urging their representatives to support a bill for the establishment of a public health bureau would give proof that this measure has the support not only of men whose business it is to keep us well, but of the public who wants to keep well in order to do its business—of a public awake at last to the fact that if "the death rate be cut in two" it is time to see about it.

PLAY OF MRS. MARKS.

Shakespeare Memorial Theater Prize Winner Tells About "The Piper."

Mrs. Lionel S. Marks of Cambridge, Mass., who writes under her maiden name of Josephine Preston Peabody, talked the other afternoon of the acceptance of her play by the Shakespeare Memorial Theater society in England for the prize offered for the best dramatic selection presented for production during the birthday festivities at Stratford-on-Avon, in England.

"Professor George P. Baker of Harvard," Mrs. Marks said, "gave me the stimulus and inspiration to write a piece like 'The Piper,' as he has inspired William Vaughn Moody, Percy Mackaye, Ridgeley Torrence and others who have been in close association with him and in sympathy with his purpose. Professor Baker is striving to make the American drama a thing to be respected and looked up to.

"He wishes people to feel the importance of it. His decided action where in the drama is concerned is being imitated now by every university of note.

"I would much rather let 'The Piper' do its own talking. Its production will be in capable hands. F. R. Benson will stage the drama and enact the piper himself. His wife will also have a prominent part in the production, and the rest of the characters will fall to the different players of Mr. Benson's company.

"I have treated the myth in an entirely new way. The piper is humanized. He is filled with a tender passion for all caged things and children. The axis on which the play revolves is 'I'll not have things in cages.' The drama stands for brother love, although mother love plays a prominent part in its development. 'The Piper' stands for humanity, and in its lines are contained many of the doctrines I have tried to have my poems teach.

"My first long drama, 'Marlowe,' was submitted to E. H. Sothern and to the late Richard Mansfield. Neither cared to employ it. Its tragic ending and the fact that it was written in verse undoubtedly retarded its acceptance. I will leave for England about the first week in April."

DOUBLE BACK SOMERSAULTS.

The rare feat of making a double back somersault, which was done for the first time only a short while ago by a circus man in Kansas City, was repeated the other evening by two high school boys in the Columbia gymnasium at New York. Gustav Bojus, the coach of the Columbia gymnasts, brought the two boys along with him when he came up to direct the collegians in their work.

The first boy to try the stunt was Albert Quinn, sixteen years old, who comes from the Jersey City high school. He is five feet tall and weighs 135 pounds. He put on a leather belt to which were attached ropes, held lightly for safety's sake, by Mr. Bojus and Samuel Melitzer, one of the Columbia team. Quinn did the trick two or three times from the floor and then performed it from a springboard.

The other boy, Edmund Mills of Pratt institute, in Brooklyn, then took a turn. He is eighteen years old. Mills did the trick more cleanly than Quinn, but he, too, made use of the belt and ropes. Later on he did it from the springboard.

Salem to Honor Hawthorne.

The memory of Nathaniel Hawthorne, whose writings aroused much antagonism toward him at Salem, Mass., generations ago, is to be honored by the citizens of Salem, the Civic league having planned to erect a bronze memorial. A statue of the author, designed by Bela L. Pratt of Boston, will probably be accepted by the committee. It will cost about $30,000, which is to be subscribed for publicly. An effort will also be made by the Civic league to purchase the birthplace of the noted writer.

Jugged Wallaby an English Dainty.

"Jugged wallaby" is the latest English dinner dish. Wallaby is a species of small kangaroo, being nearly twice as large as a hare. Although Australians have long regarded it as a pleasant, economical dish, its introduction in England has been delayed until recently. It has become popular, being found on club and hotel menus.

HALL PLACE M. E. CHURCH

Unusual Interest Shown at the Annual Meeting

The Hall Place M. E. church held its first annual supper and social in the vestry of the church on Thursday evening. The super was served to a large number at 7.15, and was in charge of the ladies of the church.

At 8 o'clock, Rev. C. H. Raupach, who was toastmaster of the evening, spoke briefly on the object of the gathering from a social standpoint, after which he introduced Miss Beryl A. Hannant the faithful organist of the church, and Miss Maud and Miss Catherine Hodgkinson, who have favored the church on several occasions with duets and who are faithful members of the choir, who lead the audience in singing "Blest be the tie that binds."

Mrs. Wm. A. McCormick was introduced as the president of the Ladies Aid, and in response to the pastor's words, said that the ladies were always glad and willing to help in any work for the church; that they had enjoyed the work of the past year and were ready to cooperate in the work for the coming year.

The pastor spoke in highest praise of the help given by the chorister of the church, Charles A. Goucher, who so kindly provided music for the services. Mr. Goucher favored the audience with a solo entitled The Holy City," and also one of "The Sailor Boy."

In the absence of the superintendent of the Sunday School who was to have spoken on this work the pastor made a few remarks on the work being done and the plans and hopes of the superintendent for this work.

Miss Hilda Francis was introduced and spoke on the work of the Epworth League, its results and opportunities.

Richard H. Moyle spoke on the spiritual side of the church, emphasizing especially the revival spirit its meaning and results, and wished that the true spirit of revivalism would again take hold of the hearts and minds of men and women, and build up God's kingdom and the church.

The pastor spoke of his personal appreciation as well as the appreciation and thanks of the rest of the church to Miss Margaret Shirley, who has been so faithful in her attendance and help to the choir. Miss Shirley was formerly of West Quincy but moved to Quincy Point some time ago, and since that time she has been as faithful an attendant as she was while in West Quincy, and this fact is appreciated by her many friends. Miss Shirley and Charles A. Goucher rendered a very pretty duet.

The pastor in introducing the next speaker spoke of his faithfulness and sincerity; as a "pillar of the church" and quoted a preacher who standing in a strange pulpit was so much embarrassed that he stopped during his discourse and said that though the pillar almost in front of him was causing him no little embarrassment, yet it was one of the best listeners he ever knew, in that it neither yawned nor took out its watch over and over again, to see if it wasn't almost time for the preacher to stop. He introduced John Pearce as one of the best listeners in his congregation in that he never yawned nor watched the time during the pastor's sermons, but was always attentive. Mr. Pearce spoke on the great exhibition of wax figures being exhibited in London.

Robert Newcomb, the church collector, was called upon and he gave a report of the financial standing of the church. The people were then given a chance to deposit their "experience" dollars with the treasurer. The pastor read several letters from friends, who, unable to be present, sent contributions to help in the church work.

The whole affair was a large success both from the social and financial point of view. The supper was in charge of the following committee: Mrs. William McCormick, Mrs. Geo. Hawes, Miss Maud Hodgkinson and Miss Hilda Francis ,with Mrs. H. Doble, Mrs. Raupach, Mrs. Charles Goucher, Mrs. Mary L. McCormick as assistants. The ladies were also assisted by members of the official board. The vestry was very prettily decorated in pink and green and white, the decorations being in charge of Miss Alice Clark.

Sunday will be the last Sunday in the present conference year, and an extra effort is being made to meet the financial problems for the year.

WATER LOAN PASSED.

A special meeting of the City Council was held Thursday evening, having been called by Mayor Shea to take action on the order changing the rate of interest on the $30,000 water bonds. The order as passed fixed the rate at three and one half per cent, but the City Treasurer found that he could not borrow the money at that rate.

At the meeting of the Council held March 21, the rate was changed to four per cent the order being adopted with one reading. This same procedure has been done before, but in this case the bankers desired that the order should have two readings. It was to give the order another reading that the special meeting was held.

The call for the meeting was read by President Hobbs, and also a communication from the Mayor in regard to the matter. The order was then given its second reading and passed to be ordained by roll call under suspension of the rules 16 voting yes and none no. The meeting adjourned at 7.44. The absent members were Councilman Bolster, Branch, Cherrinkton, Gardner, McDevitt, Moir, Sandberg. Several of these came in just as the meeting adjourned.

The Inventor of the Match.

The first match was the product of the ingenuity of John Frederick Komerer, who early in the nineteenth century was imprisoned in the penitentiary at Hohenasperg, in Germany. He invented the lucifer match while in his gloomy dungeon. The German government forbade the manufacture of matches on the ground of public policy because some children playing with them had caused a fire. Komerer was ruined by Viennese competition when he was released from prison and died a pauper. Up to 1862 the Vienna manufacturers controlled the match business of the entire world.

A Way Out.

"I have six doctors, and they can't agree on what ails me. Three think it's one thing and three think it's another. What would you advise me to do. Discharge them all?"

"No. Hire one more and give him the deciding vote."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Time's Changes.

"In ancient days," said the pedantic person, "the greatest triumph at the Olympian games was won by means of a four horse chariot."

"And now," said the thoroughly indignant athlete, "some of 'em are content to win with a one horse referee."—Washington Star.

Better Than Wealth.

Employ your time by improving yourself by other men's documents; so shall you come easily by what others have labored hard for. Prefer knowledge to wealth, for the one is transitory, the other perpetual.

A Brown Sweater.

One of the most fetching examples of the long sweater coat is of leather colored yarn made with cuffs and a turned down collar of rich green and ornamented with brass buttons.

These durable colors should appeal to the knitter whose desire it is to make a garment not so perishable as the delicate white sweater.

Painfully Frank.

"Mr. Coldcash, I have come to ask for the hand of your daughter."

"My daughter, sir?"

"Yes, I can't live without her."

"Well, sir, finish your sentence."

"Finish my sentence?"

"Yes, you were about to say you could not live without her income Let us be candid."

BRIEFS.

The fifth annual ball of Loyal Orange lodge will be held in Alpha hall next Wednesday evening.

The City Council Committee on Public Buildings held a meeting Thursday after the special Council meeting.

Mrs. Charles H. Penniman has been called to Brockton by the serious illness of her sister.

Rev. W. W. Dornan the first pastor of the United Presbyterian church, will preach at the church on Sunday at both the services.

The price of coal in Quincy dropped fifty cents per ton this morning. On some kinds of coal the drop is even more.

Ex-Councilman Chamberlin, who now resides in Winthrop, was in town Thursday trying a court case. After court, having a few minutes to wait for a train, he renewed acquaintances at City Hall.

A half dozen clerks with the City Auditor worked late Thursday night auditing the books of Tax Collector Timothy J. Carey, who went out of office this morning. It was a long tiresome job. The books and accounts were found correct.

There has been considerable complaint during the past week of parties unknown cutting the ropes of the awnings over the store windows on Hancock street. The cutting is done during the night and means considerable bother as well as expense to the owners to replace them.

The Assessors and assistant assessors started on their annual trip about the city assessing property. May 1 always has been the date but uder the new law they must begin work April 1. Tax bills however will probably be sent out about the usual time, possibly in August.

There was a much larger attendance at the second night of the dramatics at the parish house of Christ church Thursday evening under the auspices of the Galahad club. The same two plays, "Loan of a lover" and "The striped sweater" were presented. The two plays ran much smoother than on the first night.

When the new turnout of the street railway on Washington street is completed, it will enable the cars to make better time and the cars from East Weymouth to make the inward trains. As it is now the trains are frequently missed by cars being held up on the turnout at Grahams. The turnout will be completed in about ten days.

—The U. S. census bureau explains that a "dwelling house" need not be a house in the common meaning of the word, but may be, for example, a room in a factory, store, or office building, a loft over a stable, a canal boat, a tent, a wigwam, a hotel, boarding or lodging house, an institution or school building, and so on. Why not define it as "any old place"?—Boston Record.

300,000 MINERS STOP WORKING

Idleness In Soft Coal Fields In the West and South

NOT IN NATURE OF STRIKE

Result of Collapse of Negotiations Between United Mine Workers and Operators, the Agreement Between Them Expiring With Month of March—Deadlock Over Advance In Wages of Five Cents a Ton

Pittsburg, April 1.—Three hundred thousand organized miners in the bituminous coal fields of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas quit work last night.

The miners, members of the United Mine Workers of America, declare the walkout is not a strike, but merely a suspension of work pending an arrangement between themselves and the operators of a wage scale for another year, the old scale having expired with the month of March.

The men demand an increase of pay, in some instances of 5 cents a ton, and in some instances more, and certain changes in working conditions.

Confidence is expressed by the operators that there will be no general coal famine, large supplies of fuel having been secured in anticipation of the walkout.

While the miners predict the suspension will be cut short by a prompt signing of wage scales, some of the operators mantain the mines may be kept closed for a month or sixty days or longer.

Illinois—900 mines closed and 75,000 miners quit work; a joint conference on wages called for next Monday in Chicago; operators say men demand increase of 10 cents a ton, which would mean an annual increase in expenses in Illinois of $14,000,000; possibility of a four-months' shutdown; two mouths' supply of coal on hand; no immediate coal famine to Chicago industries.

Indiana—18,000 miners ordered to quit; conference arranged for next Wednesday at Terre Haute; miners say shutdown will be short-lived.

Pennsylvania—Approximately 40,000 men ordered to quit; temporary scale allowing a 5-cent run-of-mine a ton increase hoped to be reached by Saturday, settlement of the powder question to be held in abeyance.

Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, comprising the southwestern interstate fields—35,000 miners quit; early settlement hoped for, but miners assert they have fund of $400,000 to draw on.

Ohio—All miners ordered to quit state leader declaring it is not a strike, but merely a suspension; at Lorain, O., one steel plant shut down and threw out of work 4000 workmen, the managers announcing a shortage of coal.

The first victory by the men was contained in an announcement from Brazil, Ind., the center of the Indiana block coal district, where it was announced the men's demand for a 5-cent increase will be granted.

SCALPED BY MACHINE

Woman May Have New Skin Grafted If She Rallies From Shock

Lynn, Mass., April 1.—The hair of Mrs. Sarah Brown, aged 50, who works as a winder for the General Electric company, was caught in the machine at which she was working and before the power could be shut off her scalp was torn almost completely off.

She was removed immediately to a hospital, where she was placed on the dangerous list. There is a chance for her recovery if she rallies from the shock. New skin can be grafted successfully over the injured part of her head.

NO TAX WITHOUT VOTE

New Move by League of Illinois Women Who Want Suffrage

Chicago, April 1.—Letters have been mailed by the "No Vote, No Tax League" to the 5500 women of Cook county who pay personal taxes. The recipients are asked to unite with the league in a suit seeking to enjoin the authorities from collecting a personal tax from these women.

Membership in the league will be the only requirement for becoming a party to the suit under the plan outlined.

Big Catch of Bluefish

New York, April 1.—Schooner Edith M. Prior, Captain Ness, reached here with 30,000 two-pound bluefish, the first smack load of blues to arrive this spring. They were caught off Cape Hatteras.

No Stripes For "Gentlemen Convicts"

Pittsburg, April 1.—There are so many "gentlemen convicts" among the 700 prisoners of the western penitentiary that Warden Francies announced that the stripes will be abandoned at that institution.

IN LUXURIOUS EASE

Policeman Had Coachman and Footman at His Command

New York, April 1.—If the charges which Lieutenant Himmell has made against Policeman Daniel O'Connell are substantiated, that individual will be deprived of the luxury of a carriage, as well as as purple liveried attendants, to escort him back to post after a long snooze in an East Thirtieth street livery stable.

Lieutenant Himmell charges he missed O'Connell from post in Madison avenue. Back to an advantageous areaway opposite the stable went Himmell, when suddenly, he reports to Commissioner Baker, out drove a handsome equipage, with coachman and footman in livery and a high stepping horse.

As the rig left the stable, the lieutenant reported, he saw the glimmer of shining buttons on a uniform within the cab. He finally overhauled the vehicle, and in his charges asserts that O'Connell stepped from it and resumed sway over his post.

COLOR OF MAN'S SKIN

Not to Be Considered Before the Tribunal of Justice

New York, April 1.—George W. Griffin, a negro porter, was awarded $1000 damages for false arrest and imprisonment from Daniel M. Brady, a manufacturer, by a jury in the supreme court here.

The verdict derived interest from the fact that on a former trial of the case before Justice Dugro, the court, in setting aside the verdict of $2500 as excessive, laid down the dictum that a negro could not suffer shame to the same extent as a white man as the result of false arrest. In charging the jury in the present trial, Justice McCall said:

"The tribunal of justice has nothing to do with the color of a man's skin, therefore it is your duty to return a verdict on the evidence without considering in any way the race or color of this defendant."

AFRICAN ANIMALS FOR FOOD PURPOSES

Louisiana May Import Some For Breeding

New Orleans, April 1.—No more trips to Africa for the chase of the hippopotamus and eland, dikdik, wart hog and other animals will be necessary ten years from now, if the Louisiana legislature heeds the request of the state game commission.

The commission, after a conference with Congressman Broussard, decided to ask for an appropriation for the importation of big African game to Louisiana for breeding purposes.

Representative Broussard, who has introduced a bill in congress looking to the introduction of African mammals into the United States for food purposes, declared:

"I do not think this importation idea can be laughed down. It is merely a matter of education, and when the people see the value of the hippopotamus, coodoo, dikdik and a host of other varieties I might mention as meat producers at a time when a supply of meat is an economic necessity, there will be no objection."

NEW STEAMER LOST

Passengers and Crew Saved When She Goes Down Off Australia

London, April 1.—The big British liner Pericles was wrecked six miles south of Cape Leeuwin, the southwest point of Australia. The passengers and crew took to the small boats and all were landed safely at Cape Leeuwin. Soon after being abandoned the steamer disappeared beneath the waters.

The Pericles was a new boat, having been built at Belfast in 1908. The lost steamer registered 6898 tons net.

The Lloyds are heavily hit by the loss of the Pericles. The vessel was insured for $1,125,000 and her cargo for nearly as much more. She sailed from Melbourne for London last Saturday.

CAPTURED JEFF DAVIS

Army Record Saves Aged Man From Serving Time In Jail

Seattle, April 1.—Because his discharge from the army shows that he was one of the two men who captured Jefferson Davis in Georgia, forty-five years ago, John Wolen, aged 70 years, was released from the city jail on suspended sentence. He was convicted of "boot legging."

Suffrage Bill Knocked Out

Boston, April 1.—The hope of the supporters of Massachusetts suffragists was killed for another year when the bill providing for a constitutional amendment giving the ballot to women was defeated in the house by a vote of 148 to 47.

EXPULSION OR RESIGNATION

Preparations to Press Charges Against Accuser of Allds Unless He Voluntarily Retires—Judiciary Committee to Hear His Statement—Investigation of Specific Charges at Close of Legislative Session

Albany, April 1.—Evidences of hostility and threats that combinations will be formed to expel him from the body as a bribe giver, are said to have made Senator Conger, the accuser of Senator Allds, determine to resign, probably next Tuesday.

No action will be taken against him until after the meeting of the judiciary committee next Tuesday, when he will appear before it at his own request to make some sort of a statement. When the body met to consider Cobb's resolution providing for the filing of charges against Conger the latter asked for delay, saying that he would say something of importance to the committee when it meets again.

Following this statement rumors came from various sources that Conger will not be tolerated in the senate by a number of his former associates, some of whom have threatened to withdraw from committees and the deliberations of the house unless he is expelled or resigns.

Aside from being determined to take steps to expel Conger unless he resigns, the senate has now, tentatively at least, decided to prosecute a broader investigation by a joint legislative committee. They have agreed, tentatively also, to put through all the "reform" bills, with one exception, that known as the Hinman-Green direct nominations bill.

Members of the finance committee, who temporarily have the matter of a new investigation in charge, are preparing a resolution for recommendation to the senate which will provide for the naming of a committee of eight members to start, at the close of the legislative session, and to make an investigation of all specific charges that are laid before it. Generalities will not be considered.

There probably will be a fight in the senate before the program for a new inquiry is finally adopted. Senator Newcomb and some of the other so-called insurgents favor an immediate and sweeping inquiry by the entire senate, while some of the leaders oppose any general senate inquiry.

Governor Hughes has lost no time in calling a special election in Allds' district. He has issued a formal call, naming April 28 as the day. It is expected here that direct nominations will be the chief issue in the Chenango contest.

REFUSE TO RESIGN

Two Chelsea License Commissioners Are Therefore Dismissed

Chelsea, Mass., April 1.—The Chelsea board of control removed Herbert A. Norton and William Burns from the licensing commission and appointed in their places Raymond Alley, a Republican, as chairman of the commission, and Daniel J. McGivern, a Democrat.

Last Saturday Chairman Lawrence of the licensing commission requested the resignation of both the deposed members. They refused. Yesterday they were removed by a vote of 4 to 1.

For the first time in the history of Massachusetts men are removed from office against whom no charge is made and whose administration is acknowledged to be all that was desired.

CAR STRIKE MAY SOON END

Company Needs Experienced Men and Strikers Need the Money

Philadelphia, April 1.—Rumors of a settlement of the carmen's strike are current, although neither the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company nor the leaders of the strikers will admit of any change in the "stand pat" policy.

It is known, however, the company is in need of experienced motormen and conductors and that the strikers are in need of money, some of them even for the barest necessities of life.

DETECTIVE M'CAFFERTY

His Official Head Drops Into the Mayor's Basket

GAYNOR'S AXE FALLS

McCafferty, Head of New York Detective Bureau, Is Removed

New York, April 1.—The first move in the impending shake-up in the police department since Mayor Gaynor took over what is virtually a personal control of tha branch of the city government, came with the removal of Inspector James McCafferty from the head of the detective bureau, known as the central office, and the selection of Captain John H. Russell to succeed him. Russell has been made acting inspector.

Other changes were made in the department personnel, including the transferring of a number of captains. The shake-up follows Gaynor's order that the police shall make no excise arrests, and only obtain evidence which the mayor hopes will be the death blow to police blackmail. Meanwhile New York is trying to determine whether Gaynor's orders mean a "dry" town or not.

WILL BE NO DELAY IN WOLTER TRIAL

Counsel For Accused Slayer Asked For Further Time

New York, April 1.—Albert Wolter, the 19-year-old youth accused of luring Ruth Wheeler, a stenographer, to his flat and there strangling her and burning her body, began a fight for delay when arraigned on an indictment of murder in the first degree for the killing of the pretty 15-year-old girl.

He was only moderately successful, however, being given twenty-four hours' time through his attorney, Wallace R. Scott.

Wolter made no reply when asked what plea he wished to enter. His attorney spoke for him, representing that he had not had sufficient time to examine the indictment and asked ten days to interpose whatever plea or motion he might see fit.

"This is a very ordinary indictment, one that any person could understand in five minutes," Judge Mulqueen responded. "I will give you twenty-four hours to consider it."

GLOVER'S DYING STATEMENT

Court Says It Does Not Prove That Hattie Le Blanc Killed Him

Cambridge, Mass., April 1.—Judge McIntire, in the probate court, said that no clear testimony had yet been given in the Glover will contest that Hattie Le Blanc shot Clarence F. Glover.

"Yes," suggested Attorney Elmore, "but there is the dying statement from Glover that Hattie had shot him."

"But that doesn't make the fact that she did it," was the ruling of the court.

This official statement of Hattie's innocence, so far as testimony yet adduced goes, caused the greatest sensation the proponents of the will have yet met.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The phrase, "everything new in vaudeville starts at Keith's" is quoted country-wide and there never was a greater demonstration of this fact than last week when Mrs. La Salle Corbell Pickett, widow of the Confederate general, appeared at Mr. Keith's theatre in Boston and gave her description of Gettysburg. It was a daring thing, not only for Mr. Keith but for Mrs. Pickett, who was able to hold a vaudeville audience for 25 minutes with her wonderful description of the battle and now that Bostonians have heard it there has been a general demand for something more from this talented woman, and next week she will be heard in an entirely different line, possibly the famous Southern folk-lore stories, which are in a way even more interesting than her vivid description of Gettysburg. As usual there will be an exceptionally strong vaudeville bill headed by Mlle. Dazie, unquestionably America's greatest dancer and pantomimist. Mlle. Dazie, by the way, first produced her pantomime "L'Armour d' la Artist" at this house, and has just returned from one of the most successful tours any vaudeville star has ever undertaken, covering the entire country from coast to coast.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The author of "Brown of Harvard" has already demonstrated her skill at the writing of lively and entertaining plays. That comedy of college boys and college life has made a record for itself, and now "The Boys of Company B" promises to have an equally successful career at the Castle Square. It will be played by the John Craig Stock Company next week, and it will offer a variety of scenes that blend comedy with many sorts of boyish exploits that always take well on the stage. The singing of college songs, a set of boxing matches the drilling of an awkward squad, and other manifestations of youthful energy help to give the play an abundance of dash and zest. Moreover, it has a plot that is well worth the telling and it concerns the adventures of a young militia-man who is manly and brave with all the resources the lover should have except money. In the end he wins the young girl upon whom he has set his eyes, and play comes to a cheerful and sensible conclusion. One of the funniest episodes of the play in which the young soldier proposes to his sweet-heart through a speaking tube. Young Allen, the hero, will be acted in the Castle Square production by Mr. Craig, and Miss Young will play the part of his sweetheart heroine. Donald Meek will have a characteristically comic role, and there will be good parts also for George Hassell, Walter Walker, Bert and Wilfred Young, Al Roberts, Gertrude Binley and Mabel Colcord.

"THE YANKEE PRINCE."

"The Yankee Prince" by America's most famous author, actor, composer, and playwright, George M. Cohan, comes to the Boston Theatre Monday evening, April 2. Mr. Tom Lewis, well known for his wonderful success as the "Unknown" in Mr. Cohan's "Little Johnny Jones", is heading the cast which contains 75 singers and comedians and a chorus which is said to be the best drilled in the world. George M. Cohan has evolved a charming musical comedy in "The Yankee Prince" and it is small wonder the play has scored the success of this young man's meteoric career. Especially effective in the play is the work of Tom Lewis as Steve Daly, a trainer of prize fighters, who is on a visit to England with a letter of introduction to King Edward VII.

No play from Mr. Cohan's pen would be complete without music, and in "The Yankee Prince" there is said to be a riot of it interspersed with such an abundance of witty lines and bright repartee, that the average auditor is lost in amazement in contemplating the fact that the entire performance in lines, lyrics, and dialogue all emanated from Mr. Cohan's gifted pen.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

There are so many really high class acts on the bill at the American Music Hall this week that it is almost impossible to select any one for the headliner. As regards dramatic worth, however, "The Operator" a tense sketch full of thrilling situations will probably take first place. This sketch is melodramatic to an extent and deals with a lonely operator in a small Western town. The Operator makes a mistake in the signals with the result that there is eminent danger of two trains rushing together and causing a terrible wreck. Realizing his helplessness he calls his wife and child together and prepares to kill them both and himself when the accident takes place. There is however a possibility of one of the trains reaching the switch in time to steer clear of the other and if the whistle of this train is heard when the clock strikes eleven all is well. The terrible anxiety of the little family as the clock tolls off one stroke after another is communicated to the audience and there is genuine relief when the welcome whistle of the engine is heard before the fatal stroke of eleven.

Dedham, Mass., April 1.—Edward Tiffany, after receiving a shock of 13,000 volts through his body which badly burned both his hands and his left arm, staggered to his feet before doctors who had been summoned could arrive. It is said Tiffany has more than a fair chance of recovery.

TWO CIPHERS CUT OFF

Referee Herrick Must Be Satisfied With $90 Instead of $9000

New York, April 1.—D. C. Herrick's fee of $9000 for nine days' services as referee in the Eleventh avenue litigation between the city and the New York Central railroad was cut to $90 by Archibald Watson, the corporation counsel.

Herrick had already been paid by the railroad, which then sent a bill to the city. Watson thought the bill excessive and offered to compromise at $5000. The railroad refused, whereupon the corporation counsel cut the bill to the $10 a day allowed by the law.

PLAYGROUND IN WARD FOUR

Improvement Association Anxious to Furchase a Lot

There was a very large attendance Thursday evening at the regular meeting of the West Quincy Improvement association and a general discussion on matters pertaining to the welfare of this section of the city.

The subject of taking the triangular lot at the junction of Copeland, Common and West streets for a public playground was discussed at length an da committee appointed to look into the question of purchasing the lot by the association. The committee appointed were Joseph Walker, James H. Elcock, John Evans, Thomas Cahill and W. H. Teasdale.

The committee who attended the hearing at the State House on the bill which provides that no more work in the way of new streets should be done in the reservation made its report. While no report had as yet been made by the legislative committee it was believed that the committee would report against the bill.

The subject of a general celebration July 4 was taken up and discussed and it was voted that the association heartily endorse the movement and give it all the support possible to the end that the city might have one of the largest celebrations in its history.

A new form of application blank for membership was adopted. The blanks set forth more fully the objects of the association.

RECENT DEATHS.

Charles Taylor ,a long resident of Wollaston, died at his home 517 Hancock street this morning in his 85th year. Mr. Taylor ha sbeen ill for some time his ailment being largely due to advanced age. He leaves a widow.

Daniel Desmond, Jr., a son of Daniel Desmond, died at the home of his father of Quincy avenue this noon after an illness of some months' duration. Mr. Desmond was a horse shoer by trade and for some time carried on business in Dorchester. Last fall, however, he was obliged to give up business on account of ill health. He was in his 40th year and leaves a widow.

A Useful Reminder.

An M. P. who in his magisterial capacity periodically visited a private lunatic asylum told the story of a man of some position in the legal world who went to see a patient who had occasional lapses into sanity. The patient made a great impression on his visitor as a well informed, healthy minded gentleman and was assured that his case should be inquired into.

On leaving, the grateful patient courteously conducted his morning caller to the front door, affectionately pressing his hand at parting.

"You won't forget what I've told you," he pleaded, with tears in his voice.

"No," responded the visitor, turning round to descend the rather long flight of steps.

"I don't think you will," said the patient dreamily, "but lest you should you know"—

And, lifting up his foot, he gave the unsuspecting, defenseless visitor a kick behind that sent him spinning down the stairway and sprawling on the gravel.—Pearson's Weekly.

Points About a Good Horse.

There are some points which are valuable in horses of every description The head should be proportionately large and well set on. The lower jaw bones should be sufficiently far apart to enable the head to form an angle with the neck, which gives it free motion and a graceful carriage and prevents it bearing too heavily on the hand. The eye should be large, a little prominent, and the eyelids fine and thin. The ear should be small and erect and quick in motion. The lop ear indicates dullness and stubborn ness. When too far back there is a disposition to mischief.

NEW BASEBALL PHENOMENONS.

Training Camp Echoes Tell of Great Work by Youngsters.

BLACKBURNE A GOOD ONE.

Youngster Purchased by the Chicago Americans Last Fall Setting Diamond Afire—Brooklyn Has Two Good Ones In Daubert and Wheat.

By TOMMY CLARK.

If one can believe the reports that are emanating from the different major league baseball training camps the coming season will produce pocket editions of the famous diamond stars Hans Wagner, Ty Cobb, "Three Fingered" Brown, Christy Mathewson and Larry Lajoie. According to the many baseball correspondents, these phenoms are the greatest ever and are setting the diamond afire with their sensational batting, fielding and pitching stunts.

But, as has been the case in former years, a majority of these so called wonders explode as soon as the real season is a few weeks old. Of course there are exceptions, but the major portion of them go up like skyrockets before crowds on their respective home grounds.

From the New York Nationals' training camp in Marlin Springs, Tex., comes the reports that McGraw has the finest collection of youngsters in the country. Lush, Spencer, Zacher and Pitchers Evans, Dickens and Parsons have all shown major league caliber, according to the correspondents.

At the Chicago Americans' camp in Los Angeles, Cal., all eyes are centered on the sensational playing of the $10,000 beauty Russell Blackburne. Correspondents inform us that he is a second Wagner without doubt. Manager Hugh Duffy says this youngster will be the leading sensation of the 1910 American league season.

Bill Dahlen says he has two wonders in Zach Wheat and Jake Daubert. Wheat has been doing sensational stunts in the fielding and batting line. Dahlen says he is a future star par excellence. Fans who have seen Daubert perform say that Tim Jordan will have to go some to hold down first base this season for the "Infants." He has been pasting the ball all over the diamond and handling himself in grand style round the first sack.

Pittsburg has several phenoms at the training camp in Hot Springs. In fact, Fred Clarke is sure he will discover a first baseman that will fill the bill in first class shape.

St. Louis American ball tossers are high in praise of Kinsella, the young pitcher corralled by the Browns last fall. In the practice games this youngster has shown all the qualities of a veteran and is assured of a permanent berth on the team. In young Hendrick, Manager Jimmy McAleer of the Washington Americans is sure that he has another Walter Johnson. Hendrick has been showing remarkable control and a large assortment of curves in the practice games.

For the first time since he assumed the management of the New York Americans George Stallings is enthusiastic. It takes a lot to arouse the enthusiasm of the big chief. "Unless I greatly miss my guess," he gushed recently, "these young fellows will show you something before the season is over. I never saw a bunch of youngsters that so appealed to me. They are intelligent apparently from their conversation and actions, and brains go further in baseball than you would imagine.

"Now, there is that big fellow Upham. I brought him to the training camp at Athens to pitch to the batters. I wasn't figuring on him in any capacity. I had almost promised him to Ed Barrows of Montreal, but Ed hasn't a chance if the big kid keeps on showing the stuff that he has done in several games. It's tough on the manager, but I'm about as much up a tree as last year. It looks as if I'll have another big task in picking out the best. The trouble is they all look too good to turn loose."

TO FORCE VOTE ON LORDS

Prediction of General Election In England Within Six Weeks

London, April 1.—The government apparently has made up its mind to bring political matters to an issue early in May. In the house of commons Premier Asquith announced two guillotining motions, the first to be made on April 4, alloting a specific period for the discussion on the veto resolutions; and the second designating the time to be given to a consideration of the budget.

It is understood that the premier intends to allow only ten days or a fortnight for the debate on the former question and a week for a discussion of the latter.

The general opinion in the lobby is that this arrangement portends a general election within six weeks.

MASKED BURGLAR SHOOTS TWO WOMEN

He Escapes After Leaving One Dead and the Other Dying

Springfield, Mass., April 1.—Miss Martha B. Blackstone, aged 35, was shot and instantly killed and Miss Harriet Dow is dying following an encounter with a masked burglar in the home of Mrs. Sarah A. Dow shortly before 8 o'clock last night.

The scene of the shooting is in one of Springfield's fashionable sections. The man who did the shooting had evidently concealed himself in the house before supper.

Mrs. Dow, her daughters, Harriet and Lucy, had retired with Miss Blackstone to the sitting room, and were putting together jigsaw puzzles when the man sprang from behind a screen and, levelling a pistol at the four women, demanded money.

Mrs. Dow managed to gasp, "We have no money," and Miss Blackstone arose and ran screaming toward the reception room.

With this he whirled around and fired at Miss Dow. The bullet struck her on the left side of the head and she fell to the floor. The man then turned and disappeared through the front door. None of the women could give an accurate description of the burglar.

STRIKERS AT STEEL WORKS

May Hold up Delivery of Steel to Shipyard

It is possible that work on the new Argentine battleship at Quincy may be delayed by the strike of the steel workers in Pennsylvania. A Washington dispatch of Friday to a Boston paper says: Committees representing business interests of South Bethlehem, Pa., and the striking workmen of the South Bethlehem, Steel Works are in Washington.

The strikers have sent resolutions to the Navy Department, the Argentine Republic, Italy, Russia, Turkey, Austria-Hungary and diplomatic representatives in the United States of these countries, calling attention to the labor conditions at the steel plant and urging them not to relinquish any claims for idemnity they may have as a result of the non-fulfillment of contracts.

TORPEDO BOAT BIDS

Analysis Necessary to Ascertain Most Advantageous

On the face of the bids, the Lake torpedo boat company of Bridgeport, Conn., today submitted the lowest proposal for building four submarine boats for the U. S. navy.

This was for a type of boat of 450 tons displacement, and the price for four boats is fixed at $424,500 each, delivered on the Atlantic seaboard and to be constructed at the Newport News works. Altogether the Lake company submitted six bids, all based on a different type of boat, or upon the point of delivery. There was a differential of about 7 1-2 percent in favor of boats constructed on the Pacific coast at the Risden iron works at San Francisco.

The only other bidder was the Electric boat company, which offered to construct the boats at the Fore River works, Quincy, Mass., the Union iron works of San Francisco or Moran Bros., at Seattle, Wash. Its lowest bid was $453,500 each for Atlantic delivery, with a liberal increase for work on the Pacific side.

Congress authorized an expenditure of $2,000,000 for the construction of these four boats, so that the bids are within the limitation. It will require careful analysis to ascertain which is the most advantageous of the bids, owing to the great difference in the size of the boats projected, speed and other important factors exhibited in the bids submitted.

The navy department has insisted on the bidders regarding as confidential the speed requirements in the case of these boats, but it is understood that this will be in excess of 14 knots on the surface and 9 1-2 knots submerged, making them exceptionally speedy craft for boats of that type.

BRIEFS

A hearing on telephone rates will be given by the Highway Commission in Boston next Thursday morning.

Monday night is the last upon which the City Council will receive petitions for permits to transport liquor, and for licenses for the collection of junk.

The monthly whist prizes at the Granite City club for March have been awarded to George P. Mead, Henry F. Tilden and Shirley F. Nutting.

This afternoon at the yards of the Merrymount Granite Co., near the Quincy Adams station, there will be an exhibition of Taylor's generator grate and stoker, which claims economy in use of fuel.

The West Quincy Improvement Association was very prompt in putting itself on record as being in favor of a grand Fourth of July celebration in Quincy this year.

Commissioner Bainbridge is planning to do away with the street sprinkling car the coming summer. The present plan of the commissioner is to use oil on a number of streets so that the watering carts can readily take care of the other streets in the schedule that may be adopted. The amount called for in the budget for street watering this year is $8,000, an increase of $1,000 over the amount appropriated last year. Half of this amount is assessed upon the abutters of streets that are watered or oiled.

At a meeting of the Masters' Association of the 24th Masonic district held last evening at Paul Revere lodge rooms in Brockton, Hartley L. White, past master of Rural lodge of Quincy and district deputy grand master of the 24th district was elected president of the association. FORE RIVER MAN MISSING

Riley F. Charles, 69 years old, has been missing from his home, 3 Linden street, Allston, since Jan. 31, says the Boston Globe. Yesterday his relatives invoked the aid of the Brighton police in their search for the man.

According to the man's relatives, Mr. Charles left his home in Allston on Jan. 31 to go to his work in the shops of the Fore River shipbuilding company in Quincy. He has not been seen since.

Mr. Charles is described as being 5 ft. 6 in. in height, weighs 150 pounds. He has white hair and a gray mustache. When he disappeared he wore trousers of a mixed shade, dark brown coat and vest, a faded black overcoat, and blue have-lock cap. He carried a leather bag containing overalls and jumper. One of his thumbs is injured.

WELL WITHIN MARGIN

No Need of Special Legislation for Quincy

City Auditor Fairbanks has compiled figures which show that the city of Quincy is well within the limit as far as the borrowing capacity of the city is concerned, and that there is no need to go to the Legislature either this year or next year for authority to make special loans.

The auditor places the borrowing capacity on April 1, 1910, at $202,364.35, and gives the following figures:

1907 Net Valuation	$26,853,478

ONCE MORE

We wish to further call your attention to the change in our business system, for without doubt it will be one of the most important changes that will take place in Quincy this year. Our new price lists will soon be ready and we have arranged them so that any one can easily see the difference between paying cash and charging prices. Now this change that we propose to make only proves that Johnson Bros. have taken another step onward in the progress of better conditions for Quincy.

The close buyer with large means, the close buyer with small means, will find it is to their advantage to trade at home and where can you find purer or better goods than at Johnson Bros., and the prices are surely going down. We think a community should all stand together and render all the assistance they can to each other. This is one of the methods we take. By lowering the prices of our goods and therefore doing our little mite toward lightening the burden of living expenses for the people of Quincy. We shall start the Cash System, Monday, April 4th, this being the first Monday in April. After that date, there will positively be no credit extended to any person, for with such low prices to be placed on our goods, every purchase must be made for cash: and highest quality and lowest prices will rule at Johnson Bros. after said date.

Respectfully yours,

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Will the insurgents and Democrats select that committee according to insurgent or Democratic harmony rule?

Why not adopt that illuminating suggestion advanced by some patriot a few weeks ago, and elect Bwana Tumbo Speaker?

Now that Champ Clark has burst into a bumper crop of rainbows, look out for Bryan and his rainbow destroyers?

Mr. James J. Hill says we are living in "an age of financial delirium. Not a "tragedy," quite, nor yet a "comedy." Perhaps a "drama" more nearly fills the bill.

The business men of Weymouth propose to organize a Building Association to meet the demand for houses in that town. This should be an eye opener to Quincy, for it will draw employes of the shipyard in this city.

Quincy is enjoying a boom in real estate. There are people looking for houses in every section of the city and if there were several hundred new modern houses it looks as though they would all be occupied. The supply does not seem to be equal to the demond.

COUNTY CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

The annual Norfolk County Christian Endeavor Convention will be held this year at South Weymouth, April 19. There will be and afternoon session at 1.45, banquet at 5.45, and an evening session at 7.45.

The annual conventions have been increasing in popularity every year, and a large attendance is expected at South Weymouth. Exceptionally strong speakers have been secured, among them being Rev. J. T. Stocking of Newtonville, popular with the college men of New England; Rev. C. H. Moss of Malden, a former vice president of the State union and a prominent convention speaker; Mrs. C. W. Kincaid of Worcester, State superintendent of Junior C. E. work; and Mr. George W. Loggie of Somerville, formerly treasurer of the State C. E. union.

ARTISTIC ENTERTAINMENT. . .

Those having charge of Mrs. Kitson's Living Pictures entertainment, to be given April 29th, at Alpha hall, have departed from the usual manner of conducting such affairs. The Education committee of the Quincy Wome's club feel that they have an entertainment deserving of cordial support, purely on its merits, and that when a woman of Mrs. Kitson's attainments is willing to contribute her time and talent, because of interest in the purpose of the entertainment, namely the promoting of summer schools and gardening; and when a lot of young people are willing to give up an evening to sing the old-time favorite opera "The Chimes of Normandy," for the sake of helping a good cause, the people of Quincy ought and will respond with alacrity. There will be no list of patronesses, but any one who wishes to see gardens growing tended by children throughout the city, is invited to subscribe to this entertainment.

There is a great deal of debate among educators and parents in regard to the proper age to begin to send children to school. Some persons feel that five years is none too early, others feel that the child goes ahead more quickly if allowed to run free until the age of six years. Superintendent of Schools Barbour will have something to say upon this subject, when he speaks at the Mothers' Association meeting on Wednesday afternoon.

UNITED PRESBYTERIAN

Annual Meeting of Corporation shows Good Work

The annual meeting of the congregation of the First United Presbyterian church was held on Thursday evening. Malcolm McKenzie was moderator. The meeting was opened with prayer by the pastor. The secretary's report gave the income from all sources at $1984.29 for the year. The treasurer's report of the distribution of the same was given, and both reports were approved by the auditors report given by John Russell.

The pastor, gave a statement of the work of the session. Of the addition to and the subtraction from the roll of membership of the church for the year, and commended the result of the duplex envelopes, as far as tried.

John Russell and Robert McLean were appointed tellers for the evening. The following officers were elected: Malcolm McKenzie moderator John W. Kerr, clerk; John B. Sutherland, treasurer; John Russell and Alex Falconer, auditors.

Roderick McPherson, William Ross John McPhee, Frank Abbott were chosen trustees for two years, and Robert McLean for one year, to fill the place of Samuel Abbott who retired from the board, feeling that he could not attend.

It was recommended that a call for a special meeting to amend article 4 of section five of the by laws of the corporation, according to article 8 of the same section, take place at some future date within the present year. A standing vote of thanks was given to the board of trustees for the way they looked after the business of the church, heating the church through the winter, and attending to all the duties of a regular janitor, without any compensation. The meeting closed with prayer by the pastor at 8.45 P. M.

SUDDEN DEATH.

A very sad death occurred at the home of Angus McPherson, Liberty street. Thursday morning. Kenneth Russell, a young man, just 20 years of age, was stricken down with spinal menigitis on Tuesday and lived only two days. He was in church on Sunday evening last. Complained of not feeling well on Tuesday. The doctor was called in, but nothing could be done for him. He was born in Prince Edward Island; came to Quincy about two years ago; drove a team for Mr. McLennan; and was a young man much beloved by all who knew him. His father resides on the homestead at Prince Edward island. He has four sisters and one brother in Quincy. The mourning relatives have the sincere sympathy of a large circle of friends in their sad bereavement.

WITH LOSS OF PAY.

The employees at the various navy yards, and especially those at the navy yard at Brooklyn, are likely to lose the privilege of annual leave with pay. The news of this interpretation of the law will come as an unpleasant surprise to members of the civil force at various navy yards. It is understood that this rendered necessary by an opinion received by the Secretary of the Navy from the Attorney General on the subject of composition and disbursement of the naval supply fund.

SPECIAL SPRING SUITS

Last week our store was crowded to the doors, everyday, by women looking for up-to-date styles and materials.

In nearly every case, words of praise were heard about the goods and styles we were showing and rarely did any of them leave without placing an order with us.

We measured more women for elegant tailored suits than we ever had hopes of and feel we should be given an opportunity to make your spring suit if you have not ordered it.

This week we will continue to show these late styles that have captured Quincy women and ask you and your friends to call, examine them and see why we do the largest ladies' tailoring business in Norfolk County.

"Brighten up," is the headline of the new advertisement of Nathan Ames the hardware dealer which appears in today's Ledger. As this is the beginning of spring the suggestion is very timely. Spring is the season of the year when everybody tries to make their homes look a little brighter and there is nothing that will do it more effectually than a little paint. Nothing but the standard warranted lines of ready- mixed paints are carried in this store, and as for colors there is an almost endless variety. In fact the paint department of this store is a distinct feature and much valuable information in this line can be obtained by consulting the clerk in charge of this department as well as the numerous phamplets that are for free distribution. A little paint and varnish will go a long ways toward brightening up the home, automobile, carriage or bicycle.

The assistant assessors started out Friday morning bright and early, assessing the polls, etc. The assessors, however, will not start on their rounds of the city until next Monday, beginning their work in Ward Two.

The April meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery association will be held as usual at the Women's Club house of Tuesday at 2.30 P. M. This is an especially important meeting and a large attendance is desired. A revision of the by-laws of the association is to be considered. The nursery is growing so rapidly that the present constitution and by-laws seem inadequate for its best success.

HIGHER PRICES ARE EXPLAINED

Beef, Sugar, Milk, Shoes and Coal Are Discussed

PRODUCERS GIVE TESTIMONY

Retailer Responsible For Increased Price of Meat, According to Armours' Manager—Bay State Commission Learns Something About Other Necessites of Life Which Have Have Been Boosted to Top Notch

Boston, April 2.—The blame for the high price of beef was laid squarely upon the shoulders of the retail dealers by A. H. Van Pelt, New England and Boston manager for the Armours, who appeared before the commission appointed by Governor Draper to find out the reasons for the increased cost of living.

Dwight P. Thomas, head of the Revere sugar refinery, declared that the sugar trust held down the price of sugar. He said that the tariff of $1.68½ makes the price of sugar from 1 to 2 cents higher than it would otherwise be. The only people who benefit from the tariff are the consumers of beet sugar.

William A. Graustein, president of the Boston Dairy company, ascribed the high cost of milk to the number of cattle destroyed in Massachusetts because of the boards of health, the doctors, the magazine writers and scientists possessed of an idea of purifying milk. Thousands of cattle, he said, have been killed and not replaced.

"The retailer fixes the price of beef he gets according to competition," said Van Pelt. "There is no existing agreement between the house of Armour and the retail trade. The weather has a good deal to do with the market.

"There has been a great deal of agitation as to the price of meat and the cost of living that seems to me unwarranted. What used to be luxuries are now necessities. The laboring classes are asking for better cuts than they did a few years ago. There are less cattle in sight than there were a year ago.

"There isn't a retailer who cannot buy with perfect freedom from any packer. The matter of putting up the price 75 percent one one cut and 20 percent on another wholly refers to the retailer.

"There is no fixed value on beef. We receive from Chicago the price they expect to get for the beef. They ship by the carcass and our branch houses sell that beef on commission. It is not a minimum price because it happens sometimes that we have to sell it at a little under the price given us."

Charles H. Jones of the Commonwealth Shoe and Leather company said: "The shoe machinery trust is practically equal partners with us in our business. We have to pay the company in the way of royalties as much as we make ourselves on our shoes.

"We are face to face with the problem of holding our own. In the past because of the skill of the American workman and his fertility of invention we have been able to keep ahead of other countries in the production of shoes at low cost.

"Nowadays, with American inventive ability stifled by the trust and with machines of equal type the world over, the competition will reach us."

George E. Keith, the Brockton shoe manufacturer, had this to say: "In my factory the average workman expects to do about so much and no more. I have been told by my foremen that there are workmen who would like to do more if they were allowed to, but if a workman does more he is called down by his fellow workmen."

The situation regarding the price of coal was thus explained by Edward Hamlin of the Metropolitan Coal company: "There has been no agreement among coal dealers to raise the price of coal. There has been an increase of labor of from 40 to 50 percent. One great trouble is that the poor insist upon buying their coal in such small amounts that it costs them 30, 40 to 50 percent more."

Law Put Up to President

Washington, April 2.—By a vote of 132 to 123 the house adopted a provision amending the corporation tax law so as to provide for publicity of corporations returns upon the discretion of the president alone, instead of upon discretion of the president or upon the request of the senate or the house.

To Set Bloodhounds on Trail

Springfield, Mass., April 2.—Two bloodhounds from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., have been sent to this city at the request of the local police to assist in the search for the desperado who killed Miss Martha G. Blackstone and seriously wounded Miss Harriet Dow.

Drop In English Birth Rate

London, April 2.—England's birth rate last year was the lowest on record—25.58 per thousand of population. This is nearly 1.0 below the rate for 1908, which showed a slight increase over 1907, the first for many years.

KANSANS HONOR BREWER

Businss In Leavenworth Suspended During Funeral Services

Leavenworth, April 2.—Mayor Abernathy of Leavenworth issued a proclamation asking all business houses here to close for two hours this afternoon during the funeral of the late Justice Davis J. Brewer.

The special train bearing the body of Brewer was met at the station by the Greater Leavenworth club, a civic organization of 300 members. The club and the school children of Leavenworth marched behind the hearse to the First Congregational church, where the body laid in state until 12 o'clock, when the funeral services begun.

Rev. Brewer Eddy of Boston conducted the service. The father of Rev. Mr. Eddy was associated with Justice Brewer in the founding of the Congregational church here and named his son Brewer after the jurist.

SEVEN PERCENT RAISE

Boston and Albany Men Included In New York Central Increase

New York, April 2.—After a special meeting of the board of directors of the New York Central railroad a general order was issued increasing by 7 percent the pay of all employes on the New York Central lines, east of Buffalo, who now earn $200 a month or less. The order goes into effect immediately.

Vice President Daly said that the directors of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, the Michigan Central and the Big Four, would probably take similar action at an early date.

NOT GUILTY PLEA MADE BY WOLTER

Detectives Suspect Him of Luring Others to Death

New York, April 2.—Albert Wolter pleaded not guilty to the charge of murdering 15-year-old Ruth Wheeler. A motion to quash the indictment against him was overruled by Judge Mulqueen, and he was remanded to the Tombs. The motion was based on two grounds—one that the indictment was improperly drawn, the other that a stenographer was in the room at the time that it was voted.

Before arraignment Inspector Titus set his detectives investigating a startling report to the effect that at least two young girls who called at the apartment of Wolter, where Ruth Wheeler lost her life, have disappeared, leaving absolutely no trace as to their movements after going away from the building at 224 East Seventy-fifth street.

THE "SUBMERGED TENTH"

Carnegie Thinks Its Members Should Be Barred From Marriage

Pittsburg, April 2.—Andrew Carnegie, starting a four-days' visit to Pittsburg, caused a sensation in an interview in which he advocated the doctrine of allowing the "submerged tenth" to die a natural death by refusing marriage to its members.

"I do not believe much in what is called philanthrophy," said the ironmaster. "The 'submerged tenth' should be dealt with by the state, and the day is coming when that class will be taken over by state officials, housed, clothed, bathed and fed, but never allowed to marry. The physician will be called in first when a couple comes to marry and the minister afterwards."

KNOX IS PROMOTED

Young Eloper Takes Position In Detroit Automobile Factory

Detroit, April 2.—Having demonstrated his ability in knowledge of automobiles, Philander C. Knox, Jr., son of the secretary of state, has gone to work in this city in the factory of the automobile company for whom he worked in Providence.

Young Knox arrived in this city from Providence accompanied by his wife. It was at first reported after the young couple left Providence that the secretary of state had forgiven his son for having eloped and married Miss Bolles, but this is denied.

Women In Strike Riot

Louisville, April 2.—Rioting broke out in the strike against the American Tobacco company here. Six hundred men, women and girl stemmers who are seeking a wage increase attempted to start a stampede in the factory, but were driven back by the police. Several women were hurt by blows of clubs. There are now about 2500 on strike.

PROBE DURING NEXT SUMMER

BIG REPUTATIONS MAY FALL

Legislative Investigation of Affairs of Insurance Companies In Empire State Seems Assured by Action of Assembly Ways and Means Committee—Resolution Said to Have Endorsement of Governor

Albany, April 2.—Repetition of the life insurance inquiry of a few years ago, by which Charles E. Hughes became sufficiently famous to be elected governor of New York, is now practically assured in a sweeping investigation of the fire insurance business.

Recent developments have indicated to some statesmen here that just as flagrant corruption exists in the fire business as in the life end of the insurance and the proposed probe is expected to shatter just as many and big reputations as fell in the Hughes inquisition.

The sweeping investigation of the affairs of the fire insurance companies of the state by a legislative committee is practically assured by the action of the ways and means committee of the assembly.

This important committee reported favorably upon Assemblyman McInerny's resolution, calling for the appointment of a committee of five assemblymen and three senators to conduct an inquiry into fire insurance matters along the same lines followed in the life insurance investigation of five years ago.

The resolution will now go to the assembly, where it is practically assured of passage. From there it will go to the senate, and the prediction is made by Republicans that it will pass, and that the latter part of May will see the beginning of an inquiry which will take rank with the Hughes investigation of 1905.

It is provided in the resolution that the hearings must be held between legislative sessions outside of Albany. It is regarded as likely that they will be held in New York city. An appropriation of $25,000 is provided for, but members of the ways and means committee say that the committee, if it be named, will not be cramped for funds.

While Governor Hughes knew nothing concerning the McInerny resolution before it was presented in the assembly, it is the general belief in Albany that he is in sympathy with it and desires to see a full disclosure of the transactions of the fire insurance companies, with particular reference to their legislative connections.

BURGLAR SUSPECTS FLEE

Investigation of Magistrate Who Reduced Their Bail Is Sought

Boston, April 2.—District Attorney Pelletier of this city has requested a special investigation into the action of Police Court Magistrate Barlow of New York, who reduced the bail from $10,000 to $5000 of three notorious burglars wanted in Boston only to have them forfeit the bond when they were called for a hearing.

The men who fled after their bail was reduced are Jacob Goldberg, his brother Joseph, and Harry Rothstein, who are accused of sawing their way through the floor of the jewelry store conducted by Samuel E. Ullian. They cut a large hole in the safe and extracted jewelry valued at $12,000.

MAKES RAPID HEADWAY

Add This Fact to Your Store of Knowledge.

Kidney disease advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells, or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the urine is dark, foul-smelling, irregular and attended with pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

D. J. Garrity, 267 Granite street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I suffered so severely from kidney disease that I could hardly get about. I was restless at night and could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained a heavy sediment at times. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. After I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

SHUTDOWN IN ELEVEN STATES

Promises to Create General Famine In Bituminous Coal

TWO-THIRDS OF MINERS OUT

Railroads, Mills and Shipping May Be Forced to Use Anthracite, Resulting In Raising the Price to Householders—Strife May Be Prolonged Far Beyond the Present Indications

Chicago, April 2.—Although optimistic reports are being received from the soft coal regions throughout the middle west that the present shutdown will be of short duration, the fact remains that with the closing of the mines more than 300,000 soft coal men have gone on strike.

These represent more than two-thirds of the soft coal miners in the United States, and unless a settlement is reached speedily there is bound to be an immense shortage in the soft coal supply the coming summer.

If this forces the mills, railroads and shipping interests to switch to hard coal there is bond to be a greater demand than supply for anthracite, which, in turn, will force up the price and work severe hardship throughout the country when families seek to lay in their supply for household purposes next winter.

Neither the coal operators nor the United Mine Workers admit that the present trouble amounts to a strike. They prefer to term it a "suspension," but whatever name it goes under the production of coal has stopped in the districts affected and no one is able to say when it will be resumed.

Men familiar with coal conditions assert that the supply of coal in Chicago or in cars on the way to the city will be sufficient to meet all purposes for thirty days if fairly distributed. Coal men believe the railroads will come to the rescue of industrial plants if it should prove necessary, as the railroads have enough coal stored to last them two months.

In the eleven states affected by the suspension the shutdown is complete. In the Pittsburg district, employing about 40,000 men and producing 60,000,000 tons, all the union men have quit.

Internal strife of the United Mine Workers may prolong the suspension beyond present indications, according to those who are familiar with conditions. The situation is said to be most hopeless in western Pennsylvania and in the southwestern states. In the southwest it is believed that the mines will remain closed for months, or as long as the miners are able to hold out, for the operators have declared that they will not pay any increase in wages.

In the Pittsburg district the trouble is over the use of explosives. The mining laws of Pennsylvania require the use of certain kinds of explosives which are considered least dangerous. The permissible explosive shatters the coal much more than does black powder, and as the miners are paid for only screened coal they assert that the advance of 5 cents a ton offered by the operators is more than offset by the use of the permissible explosives. The miners want an advance sufficient to give them a clear increase of 5 cents a ton. The operators assert that the competition with the non-union mines of West Virginia makes such an increase impossible.

Fire Destroys Twenty-One Autos

Boston, April 2.—Twenty-one automobiles were destroyed, fifteen of them being new machines just delivered from the factory, and eleven others were damaged, in a $70,000 fire in the garage of the Lozier company. A new $6000 touring car exploded and started the fire, but in such a mysterious manner that no satisfactory explanation has yet been offered.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Canadian Minervas Throng Streets of Modern Athens—Hubbite Melomaniacs Harken Delighted to Twitterings of Rival Song Birds—Don't Wear Your Chantecler Hat Canoeing—Suffrage Revivals Will Awaken Bay State Cities—Only Twenty-three Per Cent. of Women Workers are Thrifty, but a New Thrift Era is Predicted.

Chantecler hats, gowns, veils, and so on we have had, but a chantecler sail is a new one, even among folk who clam to be in the swim. The canoeing sason is opening early this year. On Easter Sunday, owing to the mild temperature, hundreds of young Bostonians cut the waters of the Charles river with their slim paddles and a throng which is unprecedented for this season forecasted a busy summer at the boat houses. One young lady attempted disastrously to combine Easter finery with the river pastime. She was capsized for her indiscretion. Her chantecler hat was caught under its wide brim by a stiff breeze with the result that the canoe overturned. The young person got to shore safely. She will doubtless leave the hat at home hereafter, provided she isn't left at home herself.

Rah for reciprocity with the Dominion! Three hundred twenty-two fair visitors from Canada arrived in the Hub Easter week. They were school teachers from Toronto, and under the guidance of Mr. James L. Hughes, chief instructor of schools in that city, visited all the points of interest in the historic metropolis of New England. The heartiest of welcomes they received wherever they appeared, it is needless to say, and many a Boston beau admitted openly that if the northern provinces have "any more at home like them" they would be admirable settlers as well as visitors in Puritan land. The principle of value of seeing things works both ways. While Boston was filled with vivacious Canadians flocks of New England school children were enjoying the sights and scenes of the nation's Capitol. It is estimated that about 700 children from Boston and vicinity alone went to Washington, while delegations from the high schools of other cities brought the total up to over 2,000.

The music mania still holds Boston. Opera lovers have been distracted between the twitterings of two great companies of song birds. The opening night simultaneously of the Manhattan Opera Company in "Elektra" and the Metropolitan Opera Company in "Aida" found both the Boston Theatre and the Opera House crowded to the doors and long lines of eager "rushers" extending down the streets for blocks. Where critics had predicted at least one empty house every seat was taken. Costumes and jewelry were displayed in a profusion to have made the founders of the city start with fright. Both companies were given ovations which lasted many minutes and resolved into cries of "Brava" from thousands of throats. If anyone who has doubted that the Hub would support grand opera was present Monday evening in either house of the rival impresarios he speedily got another impression.

Thrift is unfashionable, says Mrs. Ellen H. Richards, Boston's leading authority on household economics. Yet there are many indications that while it undoubtedly has been unpopular these past thirty years or forty years the next generation will respect it and practice it as never before. Investigations made by the savings insurance committee of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, which has spent a year in a preliminary study of the field for savings bank life insurance among women, showed that of several thousand feminine wage earners whose circumstances were revealed on 23 per cent. had what might be called a satisfactory attitude toward thrift. The others must still be educated to saving habits by means of such thrift campaigns as it it planned to carry on in this state under the auspices of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League. These were mostly girls and unmarried women. Perhaps a similar result would appear if a group of married women were selected for investigation. Yet the keen interest housewives are showing today in schemes for cutting down their household expenses proves that a new spirit is abroad. Mr. Charles Barnard, he who conducts a model little "housekeeping experiment station" at Darien, on the Connecticut side of Long Island sound, knows from experience with an immense correspondence that American women are now in a very suggestible mood as regards the thrift propaganda. "Right living begins in the kitchen," he says, in explaining the purpose of his experiment station, "and this is the psychological moment for undertaking a general reform in American housekeeping methods. The number of letters of inquiry on my desk from every part of the country proves that. The call for our pamphlets such as the one on the use of the less expensive cuts of meat has been extraordinary. So has been the interest shown at my recent lectures at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, before future teachers of household economics, and before farmers' wives and others, at the agricultural school of Cornell University. The increasing sales of 'fireless cookers' tell the story. Practically everybody now recognizes that household management ought not to be a work of miserable drudgery and that people on fixed incomes should not have to forgo the finer pleasures of life or the future duties of providing for the future because of the unnecessary cost of nourishing food.

Good old fashioned revival methods are likely to strike each of the larger centres of Massachusetts this spring if the Springfield experiment, which starts April 4, proves to be as successful as is expected. The object of the revival, to be sure, is not just such a one as that with which Whitefield once swept New England. Not religion, but justice is its purpose, according to its promoters. The aim will be to arouse the conscience of the Puritan commonwealth to the injustice of not allowing women to vote. Incidentally it will be a picturesque demonstration. Whatever opinion the average citizen may have regarding the pros and cons of the suffrage movement, the gayety of each city will be greatly increased during revival week. At Springfield delegations from the Massachusetts and Boston suffrage associations will co-operate with the local suffragists, who are a strong and well organized group, in showing the community that, whatever attitude this year's legislature may have taken, a live issue is now before the state for consideration. A downtown store has been engaged for the week. Here lunch will be served, literature distributed, committees will meet and conferences will be held. Meetings are being arranged for in various parts of the city and the suburbs. These have been designed to reach people in all sorts of financial and economic situations—the rich, middle class and needy simultaneously. There will be a great outdoor mass meeting at which it is hoped Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo will be the presiding officer. Noonday conferences among employees of the big shops have been secured. Women's clubs, church clubs and teachers' associations and socialist organizations have been interested. Several ministers will either preach on equal suffrage or will extend the courtesies of their pulpits to visiting suffragists. The business men of the local board of trade at their monthly lunch will listen to the ladies and their arguments. Over other gatherings in the progressive city on the Connecticut, and in the streets, will float the yellow "votes for women" banners, a reminder to all the people that, whatever the logical and abstract merits of the cause, a very considerable number of able and effective women are now energetically but not violently calling for what they believe to be simple and democratic justice.

BRIEFS

Rather warm today.

Fair weather is predicted for Sunday.

An unusually large number of deaths have been reported in the city the past week.

Gideon B. Abbott, the young senator from the Dorchester district, died yesterday, after a brief illness.

The annual minstrel show of the Men's club of Christ church is scheduled for April 12.

The Easter music is to be repeated at Bethany church on Sunday with the exception of the violin parts.

Mrs. Aaron Hobart of Quincy, who underwent an operation at Homoeopathic hospital of Boston last Friday, is getting along nicely.

New awnings have been placed over the windows of the Granite City club in the Savings Bank building.

A whist party was held Thursday night by Gertrude A. Boyd Auxiliary to the Spanish War Veterans. Eighteen tables were in play, the highest score being 61. Nine participants received souvenirs.

The handsome new automobile delivery wagon of Johnson Bros. came out of the shop Friday and was immediately put into service. With such a wagon prompt deliveries are assured.

Dexter E. Wadsworth, who has been confined to his home with an attack of rheumatism, is reported as being on the rapid road to recovery. He will probably be able to be out next week.

Next week promises to be a busy one socially, as there are at least two grand balls announced, those of the Street Railway employes and of the Orangemen. Both will be held in Music hall.

A civil service examination for clerks, firemen and police will be held in Quincy on Tuesday, April 12. Applications for these examinations should be filed at least ten days before the date of the examination.

☞ Johnson Bros.' new auto delivery wagon has been flitting through the streets the past week preparatory to going into service on Monday when this firm starts its new cash system. The wagon should prove a great saver of time as well as of horses. It was furnished by Scammell & Sons who come in for considerable favorable comment for their good workmanship.

AMERICA MAY BUILD

Battleships for the Turkish Government

A Washington dispatch to the Transcript says: The published statement that the Turkish Government had awarded to British firms contracts for the construction of war vessels to cost approximately $25,000,000, is now said to have been premature. A telegram received at the State Department from Mr. James, the charge d'affaires of the United States at Constantinople, says that these Turkish orders have not yet been closed and that representatives of the Bethlehem Steel Company, the Cramps, and the New York Shipbuilding Company, who arrived there, expressed the hope that the United States would still be given the justice of an opportunity to compete for the construction of these warships.

Solo, Miss Emily B. Willson.
Address by the Rev. Rufus B. Tobey, Wollaston.
Hymn 820.
Offering.
Address by the Rev. Calvin Stebbins, Framingham.
Hymn 438.
Benediction.

FELL FROM ROOF.

John Chapman, a well known resident of Houghs Neck, had the misfortune this noon to fall from the roof of a building on which he was at work at Houghs Neck. Dr. Burke was called and found that he had sustained a broken hip. He was removed to the City Hospital in the police ambulance.

SUMMER HOMES LOOTED.

Three women of Scituate have been arrested charged with looting summer residences in that town. They are Mrs William Litchfield; her daughter, Mrs. Carrie McDonald: and a granddaughter Myra Bates. In a raid at the Litchfield home over 500 articles valued at $600 were recovered.

QUINCY CHAPTER, O. E. S.

A merry, but industrious party composed of members of Quincy Chapter, O. E. S. of Quincy, met at the home of Mrs. Flora S. Mathewson, South Braintree, on Thursday, March 31, for and all-day meeting of their sewing society. Eighteen members from Quincy and Wollaston, Mrs. Adelaide Call of South Braintree and Mrs. Katharine Hall of Marlboro were present. Much preparatory work was accomplished for the fair which they are to hold in the near future. It was the birthday of the hostess, but supposed to be unknown to the guests, until the first mail brought a congratulatory card from one of the number; and when the party arrived further evidence of their knowledge of the event was seen in the gift of beautiful tulips, and a number of pinks, as many as they conjectured might be her age. The day was enjoyed by all, and the pleasure was increased by the cheerful conversation and a reading by Mrs. Henry Furnald of Quincy.

FOR MAKING BOGUS DIMES

Three Boston Men Are Sentenced to Terms In Prison

Boston, April 2.—Judge Lowell in the United States court sentenced Robert E. Sample to three years and six months in the federal jail at Atlanta, Frederick A. Hartung to two years and six months at the same institution, and William Sample, brother of Robert Sample, to ten months in the federal jail at Greenfield, Mass., after all three had pleaded guilty of counterfeiting 10-cent pieces of the year 1908. It is claimed that they made about 2500 of them.

"You young men have been guilty of counterfeiting money," said Lowell in passing sentence, "and I want to impress upon your minds that it is a most serious crime. You are young in years and will have a good chance to live honest, upright and useful lives after you serve your sentences."

GOES SIXTY-SIX MILES

Miss Sears Then Collapses and Loses Her Wager of $200

San Francisco, April 2.—Eleanor A. Sears' endowment of health and beauty, re-enforced with plenty of pluck and grit, failed to enable the Boston heiress to win her wager of $200 with Miss Jennie Crocker and Mrs. Walter Martin that she could walk from Burlinghame to Delmonte, a distance of 108 miles, in fifty-five hours. The society girl's boots hit the hard, high road bravely for a distance of sixty-six miles, and then she collapsed.

Her walk of sixty-six miles in 20 hours 15 minutes is regarded as an athletic achievement at that, and there are few around here who care to dispute the eastern girl's right to call the men of Newport "sissies."

PLANS TO PUNISH COLEMAN FLEECERS

Being Worked Out by Boston and New York Authorities

Boston, April 2.—At a conference between United States District Attorney French of this city and United States District Attorney Wise of New York, which was held yesterday in New York, it is said that a plan was arranged whereby the faro bank swindlers that fleeced George W. Coleman will be prosecuted in New York, as the crime was committed in that city.

It has been pointed out that the New York penal code is very clear in the case of such a swindle as Coleman charges he was a victim of, and that Bank Receiver Bates of the Cambridge National City bank could proceed criminally against the faro men and also institute suits for the recovery of the money.

HAS PLANTS IN MANY STATES

Alleged Window Glass Trust Going Before Special Grand Jury

Pittsburg, April 2.—After investigation, federal officers are ready to present to a special grand jury here next Monday evidence to show that the Imperial Window Glass company is a trust in violation of the Sherman act. The corporation is said to control thirty-three large manufactories of window glass in eleven different states.

The government's investigation lasted three months. The company, which was formed under the laws of West Virginia, has factories and offices in Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Massachusetts, Michigan, North Carolina, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

CAR STRIKE CONTINUES

Attempts by Labor Leaders to Reach a Settlement Again Fail

Philadelphia, April 2.—Apparently having failed to settle the car strike in this city, John Mitchell, accompanied by Denis Hayes, fourth vice president of the American Federation of Labor, have gone to New York.

It is understood the leaders of the car strike insist that the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company restore the strikers to their old runs and, while the company is willing to re-employ all of the strikers, it is known it will not displace men employed since the beginning of the strike in favor of any of the old employes.

NOT GOING TO ALASKA

Taft to Spend the Greater Part of Summer at Beverly Home

Washington, April 2.—President Taft has abandoned the trip to Alaska, which he contemplated during the summer. Instead he will go to Beverly at the adjournment of congress and content himself with short trips until the fall, when he has promised to go to San Antonio, Tex., and also visit the ranch of Charles R. Taft at Gregory.

The probable late adjournment of congress, his recent extended trip through the west, and the fact that Mrs. Taft is not in the most robust health, and probably could not accompany him, have all operated to work the change in the president's plans.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

Broke any bats yet?

• • •

• • •

Hats off to Weymouth, the champions of the Old Colony Bowling league. The name "Old Colony" means much to Weymouth for they are champions of baseball and bowling. The Downs boys deserve all the credit that we can bestow upon them, for they made a great try for the top position only to lose out by a narrow margin.

• • •

I notice Clarence Hamilton, the well known roller skating champion who started his career in the Quincy Coliseum (now the Scenic) a few years ago, is making a big hit in Pittsburg. He recently set a new world's record in a mile race against a bicycle, doing the distance in 2m. 39s., winning the race by twenty-five yards.

• • •

The Quincy Old Colony league baseball club are getting down to business. A practice game is scheduled for April 16, a game with Boston U. S. league team for April 19 and a game with Pawtucket, R. I. nine in the U. S. league for April 30, at Pawtucket. The election of officers was not held Thursday evening being postponed until tomorrow afternoon.

• • •

Smith, the crack bowler on the Weymouth champion team, dropped in yesterday to inform me that plans have been completed for a match to be rolled at the Granite street alleys Friday evening next, April 8. The teams will be Kiley and Smith vs. Guinan and Lyons. If ever a bowling match could stir up the fans this one should for it is impossible to find better bowlers in this section than the above.

• • •

It is indeed pleasing to note that the sports for the Fourth of July celebration are in the hands of popular "Jim" Neary, Instructor of Apprentices at the Fore River. It is safe to say that plenty of sports will be seen and that they will be good, too.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS

TREMONT THEATRE, BOSTON.

The advent of Easter-tide at the Tremont theatre, Boston, finds Raymond Hitchcock in the fifth week of his success in George M. Cohan's "The Man Who Owns Broadway." As a play built purely for laugh producing properties Cohan has hit the nail square on the head, and with Mr. Hitchcock's clever work as an added and most important factor, it resolves itself into a veritable musical comedy knockout. Raymond Hitchcock, always a strong favorite in Boston, is entertaining his legion of old friends and adding to the list by hundreds of each successive presentation of this latest Cohan offering which was written expressly for the "fore-lock" comedian and he is ably assisted and abetted by a company of artists whose individual and collective work add not a little to the joy of witnessing a performance of "The Man Who Owns Broadway" with its accompaniment of terse witty lines and fascinating melodies. Tremont audiences seem never to tire of Mr. Hitchcock's screamingly funny curtain speech, annent the discovery of the North Pole. It invariably arouses gales of laughter and as delivered in Mr. Hitchcock's unique way is a veritable classic.

SUBWAY WORK TIED UP

Italian Laborers Dissatisfied With Working Hours and Wages

Cambridge, Mass., April 2.—All work on the new Cambridge subway is tied up hard and fast by the strike of 3000 Italian laborers, which started at Harvard square at noon, and had spread to the last gang on Main street by 5 o'clock.

Chances for a compromise that will return the men to work are slight. Harry Nawn of the H. Nawn Construction company, which employs the laborers, announced that the demands of the strikers positively will not be granted, and the Italians, although not formally organized, declare to a man that they will not work on the subway unless they are granted $2 for a nine-hour day, instead of $1.94 for a ten-hour day.

DR. EDWARD EVERETT HALE SERVICE AT WOLLASTON

Rev. Rufus B. Tobey and Rev. Calvin Stebbins the Speakers.

Held Under Auspices of Young People's Religious Union.

A service in memory of the late Dr. Edward Everett Hale was held under the auspices of the Young People's Religious Union in the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday afternoon. Many attended the service although members of the other Wollaston churches, the public being invited. Rev. Rufus B. Tobey of Wollaston and Rev. Calvin Stebbins of Framingham, both warm friends of the great man, were the speakers.

Rev. Mr. Tobey told of his first meeting with Dr. Hale at Williamstown in one of the college fraternities in which both were interested, and later in connection with the Lend-a-hand society of which the former was first a director and has for the last twelve years held the office of senor vice president.

"The close touch with Dr. Hale, and the inspiration of his life and example, will last through my life," said Mr. Tobey, "and has made me a better man. I owe more to him for inspiration then to any other man."

The Lend-a-hand work, with which the name of Dr. Hale has become synonomous, was spoken of in detail. The work, said Mr. Tobey, has finally become classified and can be said to be divided into three classes —the emergency, permanent and experimental. It first met demands for assistance at the time of the Kansas drought and later assisted the tidal wave sufferers in South Carolina. Nearly every call for public assistance, said the speaker, has received the attention of the Lend-a-hand. It is well drilled and has always responded with alacrity. Although the Lend-a-hand is known the world round, Dr. Hale was ever ready to cooperate with other organizations.

Proceeding to give a few reminiscences, Mr. Tobey referred to Dr. Hale as their beloved leader, and who was always by them called "chief."

Dr. Hale's motto was not "Boston —1915" but "Boston and the whole world—now." He believed with the poet in the words "Act! act in the living presence, heart within and God o'erhead."

Other examples were mentioned of the big-heartedness and help of this man who impressed all by the greatness of his simplicity. The children knew and loved him as a father, and even the crooked sticks could get just as near Dr. Hale as any other. Personal anecdotes followed, and Mr. Tobey's address closed with a look into the future of the Lend-a-hand society.

Edward Everett Hale, said Rev. Calvin Stebbins, was a Boston boy. What Athens was to the Greek and the Tiber's silver stream to the Roman, so was Boston to Dr. Hale. He loved 71 degrees west longitude and everytime he crossed the line in Boston harbor by Houghs Neck he felt like kissing it. He walked his horse over the Salem turnpike. He was a product of the American soil, and wrote for the American public. For a quarter of a century he had more readers than any other writer.

He had no faith in the carrying of the new Jerusalem by storm but believed that by progressive steps the hand might be laid upon the golden key that opens the stronghold of eternity. He took a hand in everything that made life more cheerful, and with less friction.

He was master of pathos but there was no sentimentality or mistaken pathos. His style was so realistic that some people thought him writing history when he was writing fiction.

Dr. Hale was an optimist in the best sense of the word, he was a firm believer that things could be made better. Herein was his optimism.

His infinite wisdom and goodness made to him sublime the reality. His principles were based upon the golden rule and the Lend-a-hand mottos,—faith, hope and love translated into action.

In closing he referred to his great influence among men, saying "he being dead yet speaketh."

On the pulpit was a portrait of Dr. Hale framed with entwining ferns. Two of his favorite hymns beginning "Oh God, Thy children gathered here" and "While Thee I seek protecting power."

The service was in charge of Rev. Carl G. Horst, pastor of the church. Miss Emily B. Willson of First church, Quincy, was the soloist, accompanied by William Weston.

AMERICAN MADE

Greek of this Country to Present Battleship to Greece

Quincy may also build a battleship for Greece, as the Greeks of America are thoroughly aroused and are raising funds. Twenty-five thousand dollars was the sum that Greeks of Boston, Lowell, Haverhill, Lawence, Peabody, Salem, Lynn, Worcester and Dover, N. H., Sunday afternoon deposited in a rowboat on the stage at Mechanics' Hall to be added to the fund of several million dollars that Spyros Matsukas, poet, laureate of Greece and a member of the federation for national defence, plans to raise in this country for the construction of an American-made battleship to be presented to Greece.

MOTOR CYCLE TAKES FIRE.

An unknown rider of a motor cycle came near coming to grief on Hancock street near the car barn Sunday night. As he was riding along his gasoline tank sprung a leak and before he realized what was doing the gasoline had ignited and the whole machine was on fine and blazing fiercely. Jumping off he tried to extinguish the fire with a cloth but was unsuccessful. Some of the street car men came to his assistance and succeeded in extinguishing the fire. The motor cycle was apparently but little damaged, but was rendered so that it could not be ridden for the present.

ESTATE OF MRS. CHASE.

The estate of the late Mrs. Salome Chase, the widow of Caleb Chase of Chase & Sanborn, and a sister of Mrs. James H. Stetson of this city, is valued at half a million dollars. After several bequests amounting to les than $50,000, residue of her estate real and personal, is created a trust fund, which is given as follows: Three-tenths to her niece, Emma Ingalls of Winnegance, Me., three-tenths to her secrtary, Frank C. Heney of Boston; two-tenths to her niece, Mary Peterson of Lynn; one-tenth to her sister, Mary Person of Zambrota, Minn., and one-tenth to her sister, Mrs. James H. Stetson of Quincy, or, if deceased at time of her death, to their heirs-at-law by blood.

Frank C. Heney of Boston, F. Warren Kimball of Chelsea and James H. Stetson of Quincy are named as the executors of the will, which was drawn Jan. 6, 1909.

Among the legatees are Mrs. Edwin Demrith of Quincy, $1,000; and May Willis Hatch of Quincy $500.

A WOMAN'S APPEAL.

Saturday evening a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Mary B. Lambert of 46 Winter street appeared at the police station and appealed for protection. She claims that up to four years ago she was a novelist, but since that time a band of conspirators led by a man named Austin have cast an evil spell over her, which robbed her of her powers as a writer so that she is now forced to do housework in order to get a living. She also said that she was the creator of valuable designs for two Boston firms, which they sold at a good profit and became rich, while she did not receive one cent. As the woman was apparently somewhat out of her mind the polite made an investigation and inspected some of her work with which they were not very favorably impressed. They also looked up the woman's physician who advised that she be taken to her home as soon as possible where she could be cared for which was done.

SMOKE CONSUMERS.

The much discussed question as to how to abate the smoke nuisance seems to have been solved by the invention just perfected of F. S. Saylor of Houghs Neck in his generator grate and automatic stoker for boilers, an exhibition of which was given Saturday afternoon in the blacksmith shop of the Merymount Granite Company. In Mr. Saylor's invention the coal is fed to the fire from underneath instead of on top as is usual. The coal is fed to a slowly revolving screw which forces it up through a fire box to the grate and fire above. By feeding the coal from the bottom the smoke if forced up through the fire which consumes it and generates into heat. But little draft is required so that instead of chimneys one hundred and fifty feet in height a chimney twenty-five feet high is sufficient. There is absolutely no smoke, that escapes from the chimney. In addition to consuming the smoke, the invention generates fifty per cent more heat, so that with his invention as much heat is obtained from half a ton of coal as ordinarily obtained from a ton of coal. He is preparing to fit up a boiler at South Quincy with his invention.

WOODWARD REUNION

Class of 1900 Have Had Many Changes in Ten Years

On Saturday evening, April 2, Miss Elinor P. Randall entertained the Class of 1900, Woodward Institute, at her home, 17 Marion street, Wollaston. Only eight members out of the class of 21, who were graduated ten years ago, were present, but their enthusiasm over their first reunion made up for the small numbers. Two of the class have died since June, June 1900, and several were too far away to come, but sent kind messages of good-will to their old school friends. Letters were read from Mrs. Paul L. Mueller of Minneapolis, Mrs. Frederic Leighton of Philadelphia, Mrs. John Flynn of Hampden, and Mrs. Curtis Pierce. The next thing on the program was a game of hearts, at which Miss Mary Keefe took the prize. After ices and cakes were served, a little fortune-telling was tried with interesting results. Seven of the members are married, and if all we hear is true, a new engagement is very soon to be announced. Those present, beside the hostess, were Miss Helen H. Baxter, Miss Janet F. Carr, Mrs. Frank P. Hill, Miss Mary Keefe, Miss Louise Mahoney, all of Quincy, Miss Tina M., King of Wollaston and Miss Mabel E. Pierce of Dover, N. H.

WIVES DESERTED

Unknown at New York Address Given

A New York dispatch of April 2 to the Boston Globe says: Two young married women from Quincy, Mass., are in an awkward situation in Brooklyn. Their husbands, Alexander Lindwall and Henry Milliner, each 24, failed in the tailoring business in Quincy, left that city on March 24 for Brooklyn, N. Y., to start a new business, promising to send for their wives.

On March 26 the women received a letter telling them to come to 722 43d street, Brooklyn. Two days later they arrived. Mrs. Lindwall with her 17-months-old baby. Their husbands were unknown at the address given and the unfortunate wives began a search among the tailor shops.

This afternoon Mrs. Milliner gave birth to a baby boy. Mrs. Lindwall applied at the 4th-avenue police station for assistance. The two women are 22 years old and each has been married about three years.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The Mayor and City Solicitor should make an effort tomorrow at the hearing before the Superior court to have the Metropolitan park assessments levied according to valuation of town. If the cities and towns of the district were annexed to Boston all taxes would be levied according to valuation.

The street car conductor is a much maligned individual and it is a pleasure to speak a word of praise for the conductors of the cars running through this city. They are alert and gentlemanly and are especially careful of children or the old and infirm who may be riding on their car. They are a class of men who do their allotted task well and are to be commended.

No more reliable sign of spring can be found than the fact that the soda fountains and ice cream parlors are running full blast. The many combinations in the way of frozen dainties that are now offered for sale are too bewildering to mention and very particular is he who can find nothing in this line to tickle his palate. The proper mixing of sodas, college ices and the like is an art in itself and in the city stores especially requires a separate department.

Many favorable compliments are being made on the appointment of Lester L. Clee as deputy probation officer, to look after delinquent children. Mr. Clee's work at the Quincy Y. M. C. A. as boys' work director make him well fitted for the duties of the postition to which he has been appointed.

It is the intention of the law that juveniles, or delinquents as they are now, called, shall not be brought into court if there is any way to avoid it ,and the duties of the new deputy will cause him to make a thorough investigation of all such cases. He will also visit the boys' perents, and be in general touch with the cases placed under his charge during the period of probation. By keeping children out of court it will have a tendency to keep them from having a criminal record and will keep them from becoming criminals when they reach the age of manhood.

The new Civic League seems to be starting out along good lines to secure a betterment of affairs in Quincy. Thus far efforts have been directed in only two directions, but it is better to have only a few and be successful than to have a lot of schemes and succeed in none.

President W. H. Hull's letter to members may interest others outside the League who should become members. He writes:

At a recent meeting of the Civic League two important matters were presented "The supervision of public playgrounds," and "A saner Fourth" —and were referred to committees, who are now active in an endeavor to bring about improved conditions on these matters.

At a meeting of the council of officers to be held this week it is desired to have suggestions from our members as to just what are the most important needs of our city, and we would be glad to have your ideas on any matter of civic interest which you believe should be bettered.

This request is not made with the intention of instituting any great reform movement, nor with the idea of uncovering a lot of personal "grouches," but solely for the purpose of bringing before the council matters upon which there is sufficient public sentiment to claim attempt at betterment.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Hereafter the county sheriffs will be nominated in convention once in five years, instead of three, giving the sheriff an extra two years of official life. The sheriff is the official court officer and custodian of valuable county property—strictly a business proposition—and the law makers were justified in extending his term of office. County sheriffs are usually men of high character and ability and their services should not be disturbed by a political upheaval every three years. In Norfolk county Sheriff Capen will be renominated next fall and elected for the full term of five years, and the county is to be congratulated on being able to retain his services.—Hyde Park Gazette.

A number of earnest men among the legislators have become interested in preserving the natural beauties of the Blue Hill Reservation. In the making of a park many of the finest trees and shrubs must come down for one purpose or another. Blue Hill has suffered from the progress of park making, as well as other places. One of the men interested says that he would rather see cow paths through this reservation than gravel paths, for the making of the latter causes the removing of much that is a distinct loss to the natural beauty of the woods. Any one is willing to admit that many cow paths are more practical, as well as more picturesque, than the average gravel walks. The Blue Hill Reservation, like Middlesex Fells, is a beauty spot of Greater Boston, where crowds come to enjoy the woodland scenes. The hills and the valleys, scarcely unchanged since the Indians of old roamed the woods, are finer in their natuarl beauty than if thinned out, or the wood paths reconstructed.—Dedham Transcript.

QUEEN VICTORIA OF SPAIN AND HER LATEST BABY.

THE young queen of Spain, contrary to many forecasts and forebodings at the time of her marriage to King Alfonso XIII., May 31, 1906, is said to be a happy, contented wife. She was one of the popular princesses of the younger British set, being known familiarly as Ena. Her full name was Victoria Eugenie Julia Ena Maria Christina.

The first child born to the royal couple is the little Prince of the Asturias, who, like his mother, has a list of names long enough to make a necklace if strung on a string. He is called Don Alfonso and was born May 10, 1907. Don Alfonso, of course, is heir apparent to the throne of Spain.

CONSOLATION PRIZE

English Shipbuilding Firm Get Concession in Argentine

A special from London to the Monitor says: Messrs. Vickers Sons & Maxim, the great English shipbuilding firm ,are busily occupied in constructing and fitting out naval construction works in Spain, and they have now entered into a contract with the Argentine government for concession for a dockyard on the Rio Santiago, La Plata. When concluded the scheme will constitute the largest shipbuilding enterprise undertaken in Argentina. A dry dock for vessels up to 14,000 tons is to be completed as soon as possible, in addition to which plant for the construction and repairing of ships and heavy machinery is also to be laid down.

It appears that the Argentine government has given the use of the land for 99 years, and has also granted free entry to all machinery and tools that are not produced in Argentina, as well as materials required for the building of the dockyard.

The consul states that the establishment will be free from all national taxes. He points out also that such a well-equipped repairing yard will undoubtedly be a financial success. Buenos Aires, he says, is now the twelfth in total tonnage of the great ports of the world, and he maintains that the inauguration of such an enterprise will do much to further the industry and commerce of the country.

It is not strange, he further points out, that the first Argentine shipyard and foundry of any size should be built by Englishmen, and with British capital, when it is considered what great shipping interests Great Britian has in Argentina, and when it is remembered what a large amount of British capital is invested in the country.

GAS FOR BRAINTREE.

It looks now as though the Plymouth County Gas Company really meant business. A large force of men and teams are at work getting the lot on Quincy avenue in condition for the buildings. The company has leased the building formerly occupied by John Kelley, as a marble and granite shop and also the next store also owned by Mr. Kelley and which was recently vacated by Miss Gallagher. They will install offices in the latter building.

The officers of the company say the plant is to be of the latest style and capable of furnishing heat, light and power to the residents of the towns in which they have locations for many years to come. They will lay 80 miles of mains, put in 5,000 meters and service pipes.

HUGE RAILWAY TERMINAL.

The tearing down of the Grand Central station at New York will begin within the next few weeks. In its place will rise the vast new Grand Central, which when all its appurtenances are complete will have cost over $100,000,000.

The new station, the train shed and network of trackage and switching leading into it will make this the biggest in the United States of the sort, according to New York Central officials, covering, as it will, over seventy-five acres.

One of its most interesting features will be the separation of its different services. Beneath the vast central train shed will be four different levels, on which trains will come in and go out above and below each other at the same time.

The top one will be a little above the street. Here baggage will be handled exclusively. On the level immediately below will be the express trains with forty-two tracks. The suburban train level will be about thirty feet below this, with twenty-five tracks. Perhaps the most interesting thing about the new station is the deeply sunk fourth level, which is forty-seven feet below the street.

—The swiftest arm of the Brockton fire department now is Squad A of the Central station that has come to be known as the Flying Squadron and the auto and its crew of eight have just passed through one of the busiest periods, having responded to 28 "still" alarms and eight bell alarms since March 1.

School Superintendent Denies That He Hugged and Kissed Teachers

Hamilton, Mass., April 4.—Andrew F. Thompson, for nine years superintendent of schools in the union district of Hamilton, Essex, Wenham and Middleton, who was given a hearing on charges preferred by women school teachers of Hamilton, was dropped from his position by a meeting of the union committee.

Representatives of but three of the four towns in the union district voted at the meeting. The town of Hamilton had previously withdrawn from the union and the resignation had been accepted.

The four towns had agreed to pay Thompson till the end of the school year. He received a salary of $1600 a year.

Schoolteachers alleged that Thompson had hugged and kissed them. Thompson made a general denial.

POKES FUN AT NEW ENGLAND

Foss Finds Protests Against Naval Plan Inconsistent With Conduct

Washington, April 4.—Representative Foss of Illinois, chairman of the committee on naval affairs, criticised the peace societies, clergymen, and other interests of New England who are protesting against the authorization of two battleships in the pending naval bill.

Mr. Foss read a long petition of protest from New England, and in contrast read a telegram from New Bedford, dated in 1898, in which the secretary of the navy was besought to protect the New England coast from the Spanish fleet which was supposed to be steaming in that direction.

"That is the way it goes," said Foss, "New England is now protesting against two battleships, but a dozen years ago she wanted a whole fleet along her coast."

CANCELS HIS VISIT TO HEAD OF CHURCH

Roosevelt Will Not Call Upon the Pope While In Rome

Rome, April 4.—The audience which it was believed ex-President Roosevelt would have with the pope tomorrow will not occur, owing to conditions which the Vatican has imposed, and which Roosevelt refuses to accept. Cardinal Merry del Val had warned the ex-president that he must limit his visit to Vatican circles.

Although the definite negotiations relative to the audience ended before Roosevelt left Egypt, the announcement was withheld until after Roosevelt reached Rome last night, at the solicitation of his Roman Catholic friends here, who believe that in the meantime the Vatican might change its attitude.

One of the former president's American friends who was with him in Egypt came to Rome Saturday, without, however, any authorization from Roosevelt, and interceded with Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary, in an endeavor to avoid a situation which, as it now stands, has caused a real sensation in Rome, although it was not entirely unexpected. But his efforts were unavailing.

Mr. Roosevelt particularly desires that the incident shall be regarded by his friends, both Catholic and Protestant, in America, as personal, and that it shall not give rise to an acrimonious controversy.

THEY MUST AVOID DEBT

Young Parsons Receive Solemn Injunction From Bishop Moore

Middletown, Conn., April 4.—To keep out of debt at all hazards was one of the injunctions of Bishop Moore to eight young ministers whom he received into full membership of the New York east conference of the Methodist church.

"In spite of small salaries and slow paying church treasurers," he said, "keep your bills paid, even if you have to eat two meals a day and wash your own collars. You have all taken a solemn promise not to smoke. Smoking itself is not a capital crime, but it becomes so when by doing it you violate your solemn promise."

Conspiracy indictments in which twenty-nine persons are named, five of them said to be millionaires, were returned by the federal grand jury of the District of Columbia.

PI ETA PLAY.

The Pi Eta society of Harvard University will present at Quincy Music hall, on April 12, their annual musical comedy "Inbad in Trinadad," a play that deals in complex and laughable situations in bull fights, in bombs and in revolutions. The play is full of bright lines and catchy music composed by Arthur Tilton '10 who wrote the score for last year's show. Jimmy Reynolds has had charge of the dancing, and has produced a pony ballet that will bear watching, eight of the most gentlemanly ladies in French heels that ever touched the boards. Our bull is the finest specie of his kind that can be found and promises not to charge off the stage.

The words and lyrics are composed by R. H. Weller, '11, and the play is coached ,staged and made up entirely by members of the society. It is a true college play and carries with it all the fun of seeing men take the parts of girls. The society for many years has devoted itself each spring to a play in order that their friends may enjoy some of the fun of college life with them, and that the men may learn to know each other in a way that they never will forget. It also shows our graduates that we are a live and active body keeping up the traditions that have been handed down for years. Come and enjoy the fun with us, the larger the audience the better we like it.

LEATHER SCHOOL.

F. B. Rice of this city is one of the advisory committee for the leather school to be opened in Boston, April 5, under the supervision of the School Committee. Instruction will be given in production and distribution of leather, tanning processes, leather manufacturing, comparative values of leather, the manufacture and classification of shoes, commercial arithmetic, commercial geography and commercial correspondence.

PLAYGROUNDS AT BROCKTON.

Alderman Bragdon appeared before the finance committee of the Brockton aldermen on Wednesday, to champion his order for an appropriation of $1,600 for playgrounds equipment and instructors, this to be in addition to the $1,000 for playgrounds provided in the annual budget. His idea was to establish four school playgrounds, one in the yard of the Huntington school, Campello; another in the yard of the Lincoln school, on the West Side; a third in the yard of the Sprague school ,for East Side children, and the fourth at the Howard school, Montello. These playgrounds would be equipped with swings and other apparatus, with a teacher at each from 3.30 to 5.30 on school days, and Saturday forenoons.

The appropriation would also provide for a supervisor to have control over the public baseball grounds. Last year the city rented nine of these. Since then the Albion street grounds have been sold, leaving out eight. Dr. Bragdon's contention was that a supervisor is very necessary to keep up the standard, and that the right man could also arrange for field sports, races, etc., for which no apparatus is necessary.

A Lincoln Story.

When Lincoln, a struggling lawyer, was doing circuit duty in Ohio he once visited a country town where the general storekeeper had the reputation of adulterating, even to the danger point, his cider. In the midst of a general condemnation of this storekeeper Lincoln rose one night from his seat by the hotel stove.

"Come on, boys," he said.

And he led a party of a half dozen lawyers and judges to the general store.

"Let me have a quart of cider," he said to the storekeeper.

"Yes, sir," was the cordial reply. "And which grade, sir—the ripe, at 3 cents; the mellow, at 2, or the new, at 1?"

"It doesn't matter which grade, mister," Lincoln drawled. "I only want to poison a dog."

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

HALL PLACE M. E.

The subect of the Sunday morning service at the Hall Place M. E. church was "Faithfulness rewarded" the text being taken from Heb. 6-10. "For God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love." The pastor said in speaking "of the divine commission" the most important event after the resurrection was probably the deliverance of the Divine commission to the disciples of Christ when he said, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature," and showed how down all through the history of the Christian church this Divine commission has influenced consecrated men and women to carry on to larger success the work committed to their care.

The subject for the evening service was "The relation of the Son of God to the promises of God," the text was found in 2nd Cor. 1-20—"For all the promises of God in Him are yea, and in Him, Amen."

Miss Hilda Francis lead the Epworth League Devotional meeting on the subject"The Sabbath rest and the week-day toil."

The regular monthly business meeting of the Epworth League will be held at the home of Miss Lillian Johnson Monday April 4th.

A meeting of the official board of the church will be held Tuesday evening in the vestry.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

Rev. Calvin Stebbins, of Framingham, occupied the pulpit of the Wollaston Unitarian church Sunday morning, in exchange with Rev. Carl G. Horst. Taking as his subject "The actual and the ideal," Rev. Mr. Stebbins in a most vivid and glowing discourse, showed that life, (man in his most material expressions) is the reaching up of the soul, consciously or unconsciously, for the ideal. All men, he said, are artizans; here in life man finds the material to work with and must interpenetrate it with his own ideal, bringing out of the conditions around him the beautiful materialization of his own visions. Protestantism has not saints—but better than saints are heroes of action, men brave enough and humble enough to work with God to make this world better. Sin is the violation of one's ideal and indifference to the uplift of the world, will eat out the vitals of a man's moral life. Every ideal is at its foundation an inspiration from heaven, and visions of great possibilities of helpfulness are from an infinite source.

A meeting commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of the Rev. James Freeman Clark, D. D., will be held in Arlington Street church, Boston, this evening at 7.45 o'clock. The Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham will preside and addresses will be made by the Rev. George A. Gordon, D. D., ex-President Charles W. Eliot, the Rev. Robert Collyer, Ll. D., the Rev. Prof. Francis G. Peabody, D. D., and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe.

The new lecturn, Bible and bookmarks, the gift of the Church-Helpers to the church, are greatly admired by the worshippers at our church.

At the Ladies' Aid Alliance meeting, Wednesday, April 6, at 2.30 o'clock, the Rev. William Channing Brown, field secretary of the American Unitarian Association for New England, will give an address upon "Chautauqua, education for the West and South."

An informal dancing party for children in Brasee hall will be held Friday, April 8, from 4 to 6, under the auspices of the Unitarian Church-Helpers. The patronesses are Mrs. William E. Roe, Mrs. Charles L. Monroe, Mrs. W. H. Boynton, Mrs. Carl G. Horst, and Mrs. M. O. Thompson. The committee in charge are Mrs. H. A. Stevens and Mrs. William A. Bense.

The Unitarian Church-Helpers will meet Thursday, April 7, at 2 .P M.

Remember the vesper service next Sunday afternoon, April 10, at 4.30.

WOLLASTON METHODIST.

The services at the Wollaston Methodist church were well attended Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Wesley Wiggin, preached at the morning service on the "Power of Christ." He said in part: "Attempts to overthrow truth have been frequent in every age. Good men are persecuted. Christ has been persecuted. But truth will make you free. The power of Christ has a world wide influence. The cross is the great attractive power of the world, for Christ says, 'And I if I be lifted up from the earth I will draw all men unto me.' This power is manifest in real life.. The world has gone after Him. He is manifest in the individual life. Christ came to preach the gospel to the poor, to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and the recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised. His power is effectual. They can imprison a Bunyon and Paul, yet Christ's kingdom extends more widely. We become like Him through this power. The world is after Christ. Christ is after the world."

The first lesson of the new quarter in the Sunday school was greatly enjoyed. Mr. Sedgwick, the superintendent, gave a very interesting review of the lesson.

The Junior League was in charge of Miss Sadie Teed and assisted by Mrs. Wesley Wiggin.

The Epworth League was in charge of the pastor with Herbert Cassidy directing the music. Miss Florence Bennett was pianist.

At the evening service, the pastor preached a fine sermon on "Men of large vision." He told of the larger vision of manhood; the larger vision of the church; the larger vision of opportunity; the larger vision of the Christ. This was followed by baptism and reception of members.

Rev. Mr. Wiggin started today for the New England conference at Westfield, which begins Wednesday, April 6. Bishop Wilson of Philadelphia will preside.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther, preached morning and evening on Sunday. Morning subject, "Wholly following the Lord." The service was an impressive one. It was made doubly so when at the close during the communion service, twenty-seven persons received the right hand of fellowship.

The evening subject was "Rest." Heb. 4:9—"There remaineth therefore a rest for the people of God." There are three kinds of rest spoken of in the Bible: "Bodily rest," "Sabbath rest" and "Soul rest." Sleep was mentioned as a gift from God and the preacher recommended that all go to God in prayer for sweet sleep rather than to powders. "Sabbath rest" was next emphasized. Mr. Walther said that some men of today are contending that the church is of no use. He also said that if no church, no Bible. If no church, no Sabbath. The church with all its imperfections and limitations is a great power in the world. "Soul rest" is resting from trying to save your self. It means eternal rest. Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, that they may rest from their labours.

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S.

At St. Chrysostom's church Sunday morning Rev. L. C. Manchester, D. D., took for his text St. John 20: 28-29—"And Thomas answered and said unto him, My Lord and my God. Jesus saith unto him Thomas, because thou has seen me, thou hast believed; blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed."

The incredulity and confession of Thomas was used to show that the scripture is sufficient to salvation and he dwelt on the Easter joys, of special interest at this season of the glorious resurrection of our blessed Lord: The Paschal Lamb, who was offered for us, to take away the sin of the world, who by his death hath destroyed death and by his rising to life again restored us to everlasting life.

—Many granite quarries throughout New England, long since abandoned, contain vast quantities of refuse stone, that has been unfit for use as a building material in the shape of cut stone, but which may yet be found valuable. A quarry of this kind in Brockton has recently been purchased by Boston parties, who have set up a stone crusher on the premises, by which the stone is crushed almost to dust, and is then used for making cement and various designs employed in architectural ornamentation in connection with cement or other forms of buniling construction. The supply of material available for such use is almost limitless, and this Brockton enterprise may lead the way to renewed activity in many a juarry where operations have long since been abandoned in the belief that nothing more of value could be taken from it. The rapid growth of cement and concrete construction during the past few years has given a new value to many a hitherto practically worthless property.—Milford Gazette.

EXPOSITION IN CHINA.

American Products Will Be Shown at Nanking In May.

Preparations are going forward rapidly at Nanking, China, for the opening of the Nanyang exposition, or National Industrial exposition, as it is called. It is to be opened May 9 and to continue for six months.

Hsi-Chen Hwang, director of works for the exposition, may be quoted as saying that there are to be sixteen large buildings, most of which are well on toward completion. Most of them are in English and French styles of architecture.

The exposition grounds cover an area of about 150 acres and are laid out artistically with ponds, lawns, trees, flowers of every Chinese variety, pavilions and graveled walks leading to the several entrances. Display lighting with electricity will be a feature of the decoration of the grounds. Among the amusements will be a hippodrome, Chinese theater and other shows, both Chinese and foreign. Music will be furnished by the new army military band. A miniature railroad on the grounds will be one of the attractions.

The exposition grounds are reached directly from the railroad by the Nanking city lines. Chinese capitalists have furnished the funds for suitable foreign hotels near the grounds. There will be accommodations for 1,000 guests at these hotels. It is expected that there will be 10,000 to 15,000 visitors daily to the grounds.

The total cost of the exposition is estimated at $700,000. Twenty-two provinces of China are to be represented in the exhibits, and 5,000 square feet each have been allotted to American, English, German and Japanese exhibits in the Chinese government building.

Patrick Henry's Fee.

It is said of Patrick Henry that during his practice of law in the Virginia courts and when he was familiarly addressed as "governor" a man who had been arrested for stealing a hog and who was out on bail went to the governor to have him defend him.

The governor said, "Did you walk away with that shoat?"

"I don't like to say."

"Out with it."

"Yes, sir."

"Have you got the carcass?"

"Yes, sir."

"You go home, you wretch, cut the pig lengthwise in half and hang as much of it in my smokehouse as you keep in yours."

At court the governor said, "Your honor, this man has no more of that stolen shoat than I have."

The man was cleared.—National Monthly.

Card Playing Dog.

Described as "a dog with a human brain," an intelligent performing terrier is exhibited on the variety stage in London. Several cards, each bearing a number, are placed on the floor, and the dog is asked to add up three given figures. It picks out the card representing the total with very little hesitation. Then it is shown a number of coins selected at random, and it correctly totals up the amount. In the same way it tells the number of a banknote and the time of day. Finally it takes part in a game of cards, picking up each card from the floor as required.

NEW WIRELESS APPARATUS.

Features of Selective System Invented by Oklahomans.

STEERING OF BOATS FROM LAND

Inventors Claim They Can Operate Any Number of Machines In Any Direction—Assert They Can Send Out Any Number of Torpedo Boats and Operate Them at Will.

Lee and Ray Clark, young men living near Mutual, Okla., have invented an electrical apparatus which is now being exhibited before officials of the war department at Washington which makes possible private communication by wireless telegram and enables the operator to propel, guide and control any boat, carriage or other vehicle driven by electricity, steam or gasoline. The system is known as the "wireless selection," and the inventors say it is destined to become as useful as and probably far more wonderful in the variety and extent of its powers than the wireless telegraph system.

Its Messages Are Private.

Under the Marconi system of wireless messages can be heard by any one with the proper instruments for receiving the waves, but with the Clark wireless the operator can select his receiver. He calls up any instrument desired and it records his message automatically, rendering the communication as private in nature as under the present telephone system, where the operator calls a certain number by means of certain wire connection. This is true also in the operation of any machine run by electricity, steam or gasoline. By this same "selective" power one or any number of machines can be operated in any direction or at any speed at will.

To demonstrate the powers of their machine the Clarks constructed in a little shop on their farm two small boats driven by propellers and guided by rudders. These boats were fitted out with electric lights, placed in a lake about a quarter of a mile away, but in view of the operators, and from that distance they were guided with ease in any direction desired. The electric lights were lighted and extinguished at will, the demonstration being made by moonlight.

A Farm Wagon Run by It.

A heavy farm wagon was fitted out with the new appliance, and the Clarks sat in their room and guided the wagon with the same precision as a man's hands are guided by the forces of his mind. An automobile was similarly handled, and many other demonstrations of like nature were made thoroughly establishing the success of the invention.

Aside from actual demonstrations made by the Clarks at their farm, they claim to be able to send out any given number of torpedo boats and operate them at will. These boats can be made to maneuver far out at sea and brought back one at a time or in any number desired. War balloons, airships and all other like craft can be governed in like manner. Distance will not serve to diminish the power or efficient operation of the machine any more than in wireless telegraphy.

A few weeks ago several friends of the Clarks were invited to the Clark farm to see the invention demonstrated. Responding to the invitation, several Mutual residents spent the greater part of a day observing the workings of the new invention, the patent for which had been applied for at that time, that being their first public exhibition. Responsible men of Mutual returned that night declaring that the invention was a perfect success.

Miniatures In Hatpins.

Never were hatpins so extravagant in size and costliness as now. The latest fancy of the smart Frenchwoman is to have beautifully painted miniatures set into gold or jeweled rims to serve as the heads of hatpins. These miniatures, which in other days would have been placed in a locket or worn as a pendant on a chain, are of excellent artistic merit, many of them being by well known miniature artists.

Canito, New Basketball Game.

The first game of a series of the game of canito was played recently at Caines college, in Boston. Canito is played with a basketball, which the players punch in an effort to force it across the opposing line to a goal.

Hens Across the Sea.

The Cochins and the Leghorns
That scratch beside the Rhine,
The plump and perky pullets
Beneath the Gallic vine,
The Dominiques that cackle
Along the banks of Dee,
Are doing double duty—
The hens across the sea.

They heard of how we hungered
For eggs that were not old,
For pearly treasures never Laid up in storage cold,
To make the golden omelets
To feed the brave and free,
And hastened to our rescue—
The hens across the sea.

The fresh and dainty hen fruit
For which the nation begs
They send to us—nine hundred
And sixty thousand eggs.
So here's a resolution
Of thanks from Liberty—
The stars and stripes salute you,
O hens across the sea!
—Minna Irving in New York Sun.

New Ball Park to Open July 1.

THE LATEST FAD IN FASHIONDOM IS THE SOCALLED TUNIC DRESS.

THE very latest fad in the fashion world is the tunic dress. The appellation is something of a misnomer, for the costume is really a fully equipped gown, generally of the lingerie type, over which is a coatlike effect, lately known as a tunic, falling over part of the bodice and skirt. The frock illustrated has a tunic drapery worn over a trailing costume of champagne chiffon cloth. This drapery is of black brussels net striped with tracings of jet. A band of jetted black velvet outlines the entire garment.

BRIEFS.

Only seven weeks to Merchants' Week.

The annual meeting of the Granite City club will be held Saturday evening.

Sunday was an ideal spring day. The air was a little cool but not enough so to make it uncomfortable to be without top coats.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hubert Baker of Weymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Hazel Humphrey, to Mr. Bourne Wood of Middleboro.

Where one carriage is seen for pleasure riding there are dozens of automobiles. At the present rate it will not be many years before the horse will be something of a curiosity.

The date of the Child Nurture club meeting has been changed from Tuesday to Wednesday of this week. The club will meet at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Herbert H. Albee, Highland avenue corner of Warren avenue.

The Assessors buckled on their armor this morning and started for the Quincy Point ward where they will begin their work of assessing. it will take at least six weeks or more to complete the field work. The assistant assessors who started out on April 1 will probably complete their work before the first of May.

—The increasing sentiment in favor of vocational education leads to that trite question a sto whether many of our present day methods really result in the best form of education. The orinary school of today rushes the pupil from one subject to another with the greatest possible rapidity and to many students the quick change becomes in the end simply bewiledring The fundamentals are neglected in order that young minds may be filled with a great variety of subjects the value of which in the actual pursuit of life and happiness is open to serious question. To be sure, as far as the opportunity for an education of a purely academic nature is concerned, we are quite up to date, but the whole trouble with the present system is that it is sadly lacking, once we apply common sense ideas, in the essentials of which an education should really consist. The modern system has become full of fads. Students are subjected to too many forms of experimentation, while what they really need is a training which will fit them to make their way in the cold materialistic world in which we live.—Banker and Tradesman.

RAILROAD MEN LISTEN TO TAFT

President Says He Believes In Labor Organizations

CONSIDERS THEM NECESSARY

But No Man Should Be Made to Join Them Unless He Chooses—Is Opposed to Boycott and Sympathetic Strike—Liability Act to Be Made Law—Taft Spends Busy Day In the Heart of the Bay State

Worcester, Mass., April 4.—President Taft put in a busy Sunday with a visit to "Aunt Delia" Torrey and the scenes of many boyhood reminiscences at Millbury and an address here before the joint meeting of the brotherhoods in train service—a mass meeting of nearly 2000 railroad employes—at Mechanics' hall.

The president declared that he believed in labor organizations.

But as chief magistrate of the nation he added he believed also in the right of every man to labor as he will, to earn the wages that he will and, if he chooses, to stay out of labor organizations.

The president's first assertion was greeted with a wild outburst of applause. His second statement received only a scattering response.

Later, however, the president again aroused the railroad men to enthusiasm by saying he believed their organizations were necessary to deal with organizations of capital and by detailing his deep interest in legislation looking to further requirements of safety appliances and the liability of the employer.

"If there is one thing I hate it is sham, hypocrisy and fraud in representing a virtue when it does not exist," said the president.

"I put labor organizations above everything, the right of every man to labor as he will, to earn the wages that he will and, if he chooses, to stay out of labor organizations.

"You do not believe, neither do I, in boycotting. You do not believe in the sympathetic strike, neither do I, because it is a blind movement that never accomplishes anything."

In his rather informal talk the president laid stress on the legislation now pending in congress for the protection of railroad men and impressed his hearers with the fact that what hurt the railroads hurt the men employed. He spoke for the passage of a statute that would so define the issue of injunctions as to assure no ill advised use of it in the future. His best assurance that it was a good law, he said, was that it was called unsatisfactory by his friend Gompers and vicious by Van Cleve for the capitalists.

While the president was speaking on the hope that the amendments to the employers' liability law would go through, a telegram was handed to him which said the bill had passed the senate and the house. He promised then and there to sign the bill.

The president left this city last night, his special car being attached to the 8:10 boat train for New London, whence he will continue on toward Washington. During the eleven hours he spent in this section he met many of his relatives and friends among the people of Millbury at his aunt's home, went to church in the morning and besides being the central figure in a monster parade in his honor talked for over an hour to the railroad men in convention assembled at Mechanics' hall.

Everything combined to make his stay an eventful one. A warm spring sun bathed his old homestead in its brightest colors. He was with his aunt, for whom he has great love, and as the nephew of the lovable aged New England woman he took part in the services in the church he had attended as a boy.

Again, the official part of the day went off without a single hitch. Millbury turned out to meet him, and with details of police, firemen, a delegation of Grand Army men and the local band, did all the town could to show its love and respect for its eminent guest.

When he was taken in hand by the committee of the train service men and began their part of the day the automobile parade which escorted him from Millbury to this city started on time and arrived promptly on schedule time at Mechanics' hall.

But not before the citizens of the entire countryside had cheered the president on his route time and again, and churches and organizations had made successful attempts to brighten the day by pleasing incidents. The climax of the day came in Mechanics' hall, when, after being presented with a jewel by his hosts, the president talked 'straight out," as he put it, to over 2000 of the railroad men. He said he had seized the opportunity to be present, and his eargerness and pleasure was reflected in his happy choice of subjects.

His almost every sentence was punctuated with applause. When he said that he would say many things which his hearers might not like, but would nevertheless say them, his hearers made the rafters ring with admiration of his manly spirit.

COLLECTOR FAILED TO PROCURE BOND

Thereupon Removed From Office by the Selectmen

Watertown, Mass., April 4.—Charles A. Raymond, for the past six years tax collector of Watertown, was removed from that toffice by the selectmen because he failed to provide a bond as required by the bylaws of the town.

Raymond was re-elected last month by a big majority. According to the bylaws he is required to furnish a satisfactory bond within ten days after his election. He failed to do this and the selectmen notified him that that they would extend the time for filing the bond for a week. This was on account of the bond being increased from $20,000 to $30,000 this year.

At the end of that time he failed to furnish the bond and the selectmen granted him an additional week. As he failed to provide the bond they notified him that they had declared the office vacant.

TO ASSUME THE OFFENSIVE

Taft and His Friends Will Take the Stump to Answer Critics

Washington, April 4.—The Taft administration is about to defend itself aggressively before the people of the United States. Convinced that the public mind has been impressed by attacks of various kinds upon the administration in many parts of the country and that the criticisms cannot be permitted to pass unanswered without injury to Republican prestige, the party leaders have decided to "carry the war into the enemy's country."

President Taft is now declared to be ready and anxious to assume the offensive. The opening guns will be fired next Saturday night in Washington by the president in person and in Chicago by Attorney General Wickersham.

Rumford, Falls, Me., April 4.—After an unsuccessful attempt to secure a hall in which to address the employes at the local plant of the International Paper company, J. T. Carey, president of the United Brotherhood of Paper Makers of America, called a strike at the paper plant.

President Carey took this acttion despite the fact that he had been unable to organize a union among the local paper makers. When the plant opened this morning a committtee was stationed at the gates to tell the operatives of the strike order.

PLUNGES INTO THE OCEAN

Big Balloon Breaks Away and Causes the Loss of Three Lives

Stetttin, Germany, April 4.—The German balloon Pommern, which made an ascension here Sunday afternoon, met with a series of accidents which ended in a disaster in the Baltic sea.

Delbrueck and another member of the party were drowned, a third occupant of the car was picked up unconscious and died from the injuries, while the fourth was rescued in a serious condition.

The Pommern carried Delbrueck, who was acting as pilot; a banker, Herr Semmelhardt; an architect, Herr Benduhm, and a man named Hein. The wind at the time was blowing a hurricane, and the Pommern broke away before she had been completely ballasted.

SPRINGFIELD MURDER CLUE

It Now Seems to Point In the Direction of Connecticut

Springfield, Mass., April 4.—There is a lull in the storm of search for the mysterious burglar who on Thursday evening murdered Miss Martha B. Blackstone and seriously wounded Miss Harriet P. Dow in the latter's home. The two bloodhounds which were imported here from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., have returned to their home kennels.

Their trailing accomplished all within their scenting powers, it is believed. Thus the route of the murderer is still unfinished at a white trolley car post in Longmeadow, where the dogs thrice stopped. Inquiry in continuance of this clue is now directed to Connecticut, to some point in which state it is believed the murderer took a trolley car at the indicated post stop.

The wireless people say that they were in constant communication with one of the vessels of the Woermann steamship line from the time that the steamer left Hamburg until, proceeding down the west coast of Africa, she reached the Cameroons. Neither the Alps nor the high Algerian plateaus interfered with the transmission.

The Artistic Japanese.

Artistic impulses govern even the ordinary artisan in Japan. This, from an article in the Craftsman by Mr. L. Wakeman Curtis, illustrates the fact: "In so commercial and nonartistic a porcelain district as Nagoya I saw a big room full of men working in clay, hastily copying in quantities pieces that were to go, in a shipload, to fill an order in England. I paused beside a man who was finishing soap dishes. On each cover, before it went to be baked, he was adding the knob by which it could be lifted. That on the European model before him was utterly without sentiment, less gracious of shape than a freshly digged onion or potato. With a few slight, quick touches, seemingly as unthinking as a machine, he was yet doing more than was required—he was causing each knob as it passed under his hands to take the look of a half opened bud, a faint hint of a leaf being also quickly modeled in the 'biscuit' beneath it."

WANTS RECORD LOOKED UP

President of Fidelity and Casualty Company, Who Implicated Senator In Alleged Deal to Secure $10,000 Graft, Was Charged With "High Crimes and Misdemeanors," but Proceedings Were Dropped

In a brief interview he countered on George F. Seward, president of the Fidelity and Casualty company, who testified recently in the investigation that a man named Brown, connected with the state prison at Sing Sing, summoned him there and demanded $10,000 in behalf of Sullivan for suppressing legislation hostile to the insurance interests.

Mr. Seward then testified that he replied to Brown: "Tell Mr. Sullivan for me to go to hell."

Senator Sulivan retorted, in addition to a repetition of his previous emphatic denials of the whole incident, "Let Mr. Hotchkiss look up report No. 134 of the Forty-Ninth congress, entitled 'Investigation of George W. Seward.'"

Mr. Seward is more than 70 years old and is a nephew of William H. Seward, secretary of state in Lincoln's cabinet, and was at one time United States minister to China.

The report contains the history of an investigation by the house committee on expenditures in the state department begun on Feb. 26, 1878.

A majority of the committee recommended that Seward be impeached "of high crimes and misdemeanors in office," saying he was "guilty of bribery in his official capacity of judge of consular court at Shanghai," an office he had held before he became minister.

The minority recommended his acquittal, and the proceedings were subsequently dropped.

Mr. Seward said in his office: "I had been instrumental in sending home several consular officials for misconduct and they made all sorts of charges against me in return. The prosecution failed."

TO SETTLE OPEN ISSUES

United States and Canada Will Soon Negotiate Binding Treaty

Washington, April 4.—Within two months, according to the present plans of the administration, there will be a gathering of representatives of the American and Canadian governments for the purpose of negotiating a reciprocity and trade treaty.

The felicitous exchanges between Secretary Knox and Minister Fielding of Canada, which concluded the recent tariff agreement, contained an implied promise that the effort would be made to reach an understanding on broad lines that might settle for all time the various open issues regarding the land and water boundaries, the fisheries, the preservation of the seals and finally the tariff relations.

ROCKEFELLER'S CLOSE CALL

Oil King Dragged by Son From Path of Speeding Automobile

New York, April 4.—John D. Rockefeller took a two hours' stroll Sunday and had a narrow escape from death or serious injury when he came within an inch of being run down by an automobile.

Just as he was in the act of stepping from the curbing at Fifty-seventh street and Ninth avenue, a big touring car swerved swiftly around the corner.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., caught his father by the arm and pulled him back just in time to keep him from being struck by the machine. The automobile carried a New Jersey license tag and the chauffeur was the only person riding in it.

CANNOT PROVE MURDER OF SIX

Detectives Vainly Sought Evidence Against Mrs. Kelleher

IS LIKELY TO BE SET FREE

Police Stumbled Upon What Appeared to Be Murder of Her Three Children, Husband, Sister and Sister-In-Law, While Hunting Evidence to Convict Her In Alleged Case of Arson—Many Months In Jail

Cambridge, Mass., April 4.—Mrs. Mary Kelleher, imprisoned for more than a year in jail here, charged with poisoning her three children, her husband, her sister and her sister-in-law, it is stated on what should be regarded as good authority, instead of going to trial today will be set free.

In the exhaustive investigation that has been made of this remarkable case, it is declared that the detectives have been unable to dig up sufficient evidence to justify an attempt to fasten the fearful crime with which she is charged, upon the woman.

District Attorney Higgins was under the impression that Mrs. Kelleher was mentally deranged. He clung to this even after Dr. Utley, the prison physician, had declared her sane. It was finally agreed that the best thing to do under the circumstances was to have a lunacy commission setttle that matter, and so that was done last week. The verdict was that Mrs. Kelleher is sane.

Then the real question of sifting with a discriminating mind the evidence in hand against the woman was taken up. There were consultations between District Attorney Higgins and Lawyers Bancroft and Stearns, the woman's attorneys, on this matter.

It was rumored as early as Friday afternoon that in all probability the district attorney would conclude to nol prosse the case. The rumor grew and as a result a number of newspaper men gathered at the East Cambridge court to learn the facts.

District Attorney Higgins appeared on the scene, looking for Lawyer Bancroft. The latter was not there. Higgins said that he expected to meet Bancroft, who was to prepare some kind of a statement about the Kelleher case. Bancroft later explained to the reporters over the telephone that the district attorney must have misunderstood him.

It was declared about the courthouse that this statement was to have been entered into by the district attorney and the lawyers for Mrs. Kelleher as to what was to be done in her case.

So far as could be learned, the program is to have the jury called in the case today and then, at the instance of the district attorney, the jury will be instructed to bring in a verdict of not guilty as to the murder indictments against the woman.

Then Mrs. Kelleher may go free or the police may decide to arrest her on the charge of arson, the complaint that was first lodged against her by the police. She had been arrested on the charge of trying to set fire to the house of her employer, and it was while the police were investigating this charge that they stumbled upon the mysterious deaths in her family that led to the murder charges.

It was charged that Mrs. Kelleher killed the members of her family in order to get the money for which they were insured. It is understood that satisfactory explanation of what became of this money has been made to the district attorney. She has always protested that she was innocent of the crime and declared that she was anxious for trial, when she felt sure of freedom and vindication.

COURT MARTIAL ORDERED

Paymaster of Ship From Which $3500 Was Stolen to Be Tried

Boston, April 4.—The secretary of the navy has appointed a court martial to meet at the Charlestown navy yard Thursday for the trial of Assistant Paymaster Lawrence G. Haughey of the U. S. S. Castine, from the safe of which $3500 was extracted.

Haughey on March 8 placed $3500 in the safe of the ship and went away on shore leave. When he returned, two days later, the doors were locked, as he had left them, but the money was missing. A search of the ship revealed no trace of the money, but the next day a mess attendant found $680 behind a bathtub.

Wedding on Roller Skates

MERCHANTS' WEEK

Big Things Planned for Quincy May 23-28

It is well to keep before the people of Quincy some of the big things proposed for Merchant's Week in May.

"The committee appointed by The Quincy Retail Merchants' Association to arange for "Merchants' Week" recommend:

"That the date of commencement be May 23.

"That every merchant in the city enter into the spirit of a broad, liberal, well advertised "Quincy Merchants' Week."

"That a large Merchants' Week paper be published and distributed in the following suburban towns: Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate, Holbrook, Randolph and Milton.

"That an advertising committee of three be appointed to attend to the publication of this paper, secure special rates of advertising from our local and suburban papers, and to attend to such other matters of publicity, such as display cards, etc., as may from time to time be decided on.

"That an advertising expert be employed to attend to the make-up of the paper.

"That every merchant in the city co-operate with the Merchants' Association and offer to the buying public staple goods from their stocks at manufacturers' prices, thereby offering an inducement to the buying public to purchase goods to commemorate this Merchants' Week sale, at prices that will demonstrate to the inhabitants of Quincy and surrounding towns that low suburban rents enable us to beat Boston's bombastic claims.

"That the Street Railway Company be requested to co-operate with the merchants by liberal advertising on the cars.

"That a special card be gotten up by the advertising man to display in the store windows and public places throughout the city and adjoining towns.

"That the merchants throughout the city decorate and illuminate their places of business, make strong window displays with specially priced goods and offer such additional inducements, individually, as would attract public attention.

"That the Street Commissioner be requested to see that the streets are cleaned and specially well watered during the week."

THE COMMITTEES.

Some changes may be made in the above plans, but they will probably broaden out and interest thousands of people.

Merchants' Week in May is sure to be a great time for Quincy with the energetic men who are named on the committees. There are more committees and larger committees than were suggested this week at meeting of the Quincy Retail Merchants' Association as it was deemed advisable to include the whole membership. Other sub-committees will be appointed later.

Hubert Le Blon Killed While Making Flight In Aeroplane

San Sebastian, Spain, April 4.—Hubert LeBlon, a noted automobilist, was killed while making a flight in an aeroplane here. He was circling the royal palace of Miramar at a height of 140 feet, when his motor broke down.

He attempted to glide back to the shed, but the machine turned over and swooped with terrific force against the rocks. The aviator was instantly killed.

Mme. LeBlon witnessed the accident, and when the body was recovered from the sea rushed shrieking toward the ambulance.

LeBlon beat the aeroplane record for five kilometres at the Cairo meeting last February, covering the distance in 4m. 2s. As an automobilist he was in the Vanderbilt cup race on Long Island in 1906, finishing sixth, and took part in many other big auto events, being usually well up at the finish.

Boston, April 4.—Rev. Raymond E. Walker, formerly pastor of the Graniteville (North Providence) Baptist church, who escaped from the Cranston (R. I.) insane hospital, was discovered in the Chardon street home for wayfarers in this city.

As an officer approached to take him into custody the demented clergyman rushed out of the home and through the streets and before he was run down by Patrolman Hurley managed to gulp down two corrosive sublimate tablets in an effort to take his life.

SCHOOL OF MATRIMONY.

A school of matrimony in which the prime essentials of wedded happiness are now being taught is the latest innovation among Boston's most modern training institutions.

In this school a group of girls, including those from many of the best families in Boston, are being trained five days a week in the arts which will equip them to become ideal wives, mothers and homemakers. The instruction is under the direction of some of the most distinguished educators in Boston and is strictly of a practical character.

The matrimonial course includes the following subjects, with which the student must be entirely familiar before she is accredited competent to be a homemaker: Literature, ethics, child study, household arts, house building, textiles and sewing, hand work and design, music in the home, literature for children, home economics, chemistry, biology, social economics, hygiene, dental hygiene, home nursing and the care of delinquent children.

A Bird's White Feathers.

The occurrence of white feathers in a bird's plumage is very common. It is, of course, due to lack of coloring matter and is liable to appear in both young and old birds. I have known of several old birds to exhibit this peculiarity (mostly in the wing feathers however), and it may be due to imperfect nutrition and circulation as the bird ages. I have also noticed it in young birds in a number of instances. The phenomenon thus cannot be said to occur simply as a result of old age, but is rather one of those slight changes in the bird's system the causes of which we do not know. There is this much more to be said, however—when a young bird starts out with a few white feathers they are usually retained throughout life, molting each time in a similar manner. Old birds may exhibit this loss of coloring at any time.—St. Nicholas

CONGRESSMAN FOSS.

Democrat Who Achieved a Remarkable Victory In Massachusetts.

In one of the greatest political landslides ever known in New England Eugene Noble Foss, Democrat, recently carried the Fourteenth congressional district, defeating his Republican opponent, William R. Buchanan of Brockton, Mass., by 5,640 plurality. He is a brother of Congressman George E. Foss of Illinois and has lived in Boston over twenty years. He was born on a farm in West Berkshire, Vt., Sept. 24, 1858, was educated in St. Albans, Vt., and in 1877 went to the University of Vermont at Burlington, where he remained two years, leaving college to begin a business career. For a time he was a traveling salesman. In 1882 while introducing a patent drying apparatus he impressed B. F. Sturtevant, a Boston millionaire manufacturer, with his ability and apparent executive capacity. He was employed by Mr. Sturtevant, rose rapidly and finally won the heart of Miss Sturtevant, his employer's daughter. Upon the death of Mr. Sturtevant some years ago the entire management of the Sturtevant Blower company fell to Mr. Foss. He is interested in gas and coke companies in the east and is a stockholder in the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and other railroads.

Congressman Foss is a manufacturer, banker and capitalist of Boston. He had been twice defeated for congress in the Eleventh district.

Mr. Foss is a man of great intellectual power, enormous energy and unlimited resources. The Foss brothers came originally from Vermont. Both left home early in life and went into business for themselves, Eugene in Massachusetts and George in Illinois. The one just elected became a manufacturer and amassed a fortune. He had always been a Republican, but left that party on the tariff and other issues.

"My brother's election is nothing less than a miracle," said Representative Foss. "But he is a great fighter, and I am not surprised. We are very fond of each other, but I suppose we will have some warm times when he comes to Washington and sits in the chamber opposite me."

Mr. Foss was elected to fill the unexpired term of the late William C. Lovering, who died recently.

Plan to Honor Memory of Virgil.

The royal Virgilian academy at Rome, Italy, has approved a proposal made by Professor Boni to convert the area between Mantua and Pietole into a woods sacred to the memory of Virgil, where specimens of all trees, plants and herbs mentioned in the bucolics and georgics will be represented. Arrangements are making to plant oaks, pines, firs, cypresses, planes, lindens, laurels, willows, myrtles, box trees, junipers, laburnums, apple trees, plums, olives, rosemary, thyme, crocuses, lilies and wild roses.

Outlook For the Baseball Season In the Two Big Leagues

By TOMMY CLARK.

WELL, we are about to usher in another baseball season. All ball seasons when about to start are the "greatest in the history of the game," but this worn worn prediction will not be made this year, just to add "local color" to baseball introductions. The 1910 season without doubt is going to be the greatest baseball has ever had. The intense interest displayed by the fans in the two sensational races of last season and the great struggle for the world's title has left a lasting impression on the baseball public. Coupled with this is the fact that many thousands of followers of the race track, which game is now practically dead, have now turned their attention toward baseball and have become dyed in the wool fans.

Judging from present indications two great struggles are looked for. Nearly every National and American league club has been strengthened to some extent by the addition of new players.

National League Outlook.

In the senior organization a good four cornered fight for the much coveted gonfalon among the Pittsburg, Chicago, New York and Cincinnati teams is expected.

The Pittsburg Pirates have an excellent chance to repeat their success with. Griffith now commands an excellent team of kids, and, barring accidents, his men will travel at a fast clip this year. He has a reliable infield and a pitching staff that looks much better than the 1909 corps. The Reds of 1910 look just about as the Orioles of 1893 looked—they are due to come and to come fast.

Brooklyn, St. Louis, Philadelphia and Boston cannot possibly do better than land in the second division, though all these four teams (on paper) look decidedly stronger than they did last spring.

American League Prospects.

A spirit of confidence is being manifested all along the line on Ban Johnson's circuit. Hugh Jennings does not see any team capable of preventing the Tigers from landing a fourth pennant. The astute manager of the Tigers has announced that he will stand pat on last year's team. He figures that the men will know one another better, and every man will have exact knowledge of the other's playing this season. There is much in that. Last year Jennings reconstructed his infield, and the season was well on its way before the men of last season. In the 1909 campaign the Pirates practically walked away with the pennant, getting out in front early in May and staying there. Early in August the championship was conceded to the Corsairs by even the frenzied fans of New York and Chicago. The Pirates were playing a steady article of ball and were not showing any signs of "blowing." Occasionally the team would lose a couple of games in succession, but there never was any sign of a big slump being due. The Pirates did not play ahead of their speed in 1909, but the Giants, minus Donlin, and the Cubs, without Kling, were much weaker than they had been in the preceding year.

Even without Vic Willis, their star pitcher, whom they sold to St. Louis, the perennial pennant pursuers of Pittsburg are just as strong as they were last year. In this year's campaign, however, the Buccaneers are going to meet stronger teams than they met in 1909. The New Yorks, provided Donlin joins them later and McGraw develops a couple of young players, will be in the pennant struggle, and so will the Chicago Cubs, who are a great set of ball players and who will make trouble for the leaders, even if Johnny Kling isn't with them.

The Cincinnati Reds, who possessed more speed than any other combination in the senior league last year, will without a doubt let the pace setters know they are to be reckoned worked together. Now that they know each other well enough, they will work together like a well oiled machine. But Detroit will not have things its own way this season. The Boston Red Sox will be in the thick of the fight from start to finish. Pat Donovan, the Red Sox new manager, because of his superior knowledge of the game, should be able to get even better results than did Lake, and the speed boys were within whispering distance of the leaders during the closing weeks of the last campaign.

Connie Mack of Philadelphia is another manager who has announced that he will stand pat. His team made a grand showing in the race and may repeat, but I hardly think so. There are too many veterans on the Athletics, in fact, to make the team as strong as it was last season.

Hughey Duffy's war cry, "Another flag for Chicago," already has echoed and re-echoed around the circuit, and if the mighty pitching staff travels true to form as in seasons gone by the white hose should saunter home with the prize, according to the newly ordained boss.

Cleveland, considered a dangerous contender for the pennant at the start of last season, again presents a strong front this year and can be counted on to set a dizzy pace.

Jack O'Conner will be a big improvement over McAleer as manager of the St. Louis Browns.

Of the other two teams, Washington and New York, the latter club is the best.

Duffy Praises Blackburne.

Manager Hugh Duffy of the Chicago Americans is highly elated over the form shown by Shortstop Blackburne in the spring practice games. Duffy recently said that the youngster would make all the stellar lights in the game look to their laurels before the season was over.

Vic Willis.

Vic Willis won a bigger percentage of games pitched last season than even the brilliant Reulbach, and yet Pittsburg let him go to St. Louis. Manager Bresnahan expects big things from him this season.

St. Louis Paid $3,500 For Abstein.

It has been stated that the St. Louis American club paid $3,500 to Pittsburg for Bill Abstein instead of the waiver price, $1,500, as was generally supposed. Bill is pleased with his new birth and says he will please the fans of St. Louis.

Lynch Doesn't Like Gingerly Coaching.

President Lynch doesn't like gingerly coaching. He says it puts the umpires in the air and is the cause of players who protest honestly being put out of the game. It looks now as if coaching is a lost art.

STABLE NOT WANTED

"Dublin" Residents Object to It Strenuously

Only one of the stable hearings advertized by the Board of Health for Monday evening was held, that on the application of Isaac Cutler of Winthrop park. A large number of the neighbors appeared in opposition.

Royal B. Young, represented the estate of William Hall, and appeared as guardian of Mr. Hall's children. He protested vigorously against granting the petition. Should board decide to grant, he requested that very careful restrictions be stipulated. He argued that a 40 foot lot was too narrow for a stable, that land was almost marshy and not suitable for stable; that stable was too close to houses and would breed flies and otherwise be unhealthy. A few weeks ago when Mr. Cutler purchased the estate it was attractive, but junk had since accumulated and it now looked like the devil.

Other remonstrants were E. H. McGillicuddy, Dennis Ford, John Gearing, Thomas B. Feeley, Miss Hill, David Dewey and T. J. Collins.

Mr. Cutler was represented by John D. Mackay, Esq., who asked each of the remonstrants a few questions.

Issac Cutler appeared personally in favor of the petition. Said he bought the estate two months ago for $3,550 and paid down $1,000. He had obtained from the Inspector of Buildings a permit to erect a stable which he thought was all that was required. Had stopped work when ordered so to do by Board of Health. Said he intended to keep one horse. Would not say whether he intended to keep junk. Had no junk today in cellar except newspapers.

Lawyer Mackay argued in favor of granting the application. If a nuisance was created the Board of Health had authority to abate. Believed it was the intention of his client to comply with law.

The Board of Health, Messrs. Callahan, Burke and Duggan, allowed the greatest latitude in presenting the case, and at 9.25 took petition under advisement.

LEG FRACTURED.

Ex-Councilman James M. Flaherty had the misfortune Monday afternoon to be thrown from his team on Copeland street and have his leg fractured. Mr. Flaherty was driving one of Doble's grain teams, and when near the Willard school, the horse became frightened at an electric car and jumped one side, striking a fence. Mr. Flaherty was thrown out and landed heavily on the ground. He was taken to the office of Dr. Reynolds, where it was found that he had sustained a fracture of his leg.

"I understand that the directors of The Stamford Hospital and the many who are interested in its work, realize that the needs of the institution have outgrown its present establishment, that the buildings are entirely inadequate, and that the location has become in many respects unsuitable. I am convinced that such is the case and am in cordial sympathy with the directors' intention to inaugurate a

The "Excess and Dificiency Fund" seems to provide for many special appropriations. It must, however, be nearly exhausted.

Supervised playgrounds also meet with favor in the City Council, and the progress of this movement since the meeting of the Civic League March 24 is almost surprising. The appropriation will pass at the next meeting of the City Council.

The only object for adopting water meters would be to decrease the Metropolitan assessment upon Quincy. The city should not be concerned as to the amount of water used unless it affects this item. The Daily Ledger has quoted figures which show that a large number of meters have been installed, but that the Metropolitan assessments have increased rather than decreased. Another objection to meters from a city standpoint is that they decrease the city receipts and add to taxation.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

One by one old and cherished ideas are giving way before the simple application of practical tests. Perhaps no other idea with reference to eating habits has been more widespread and more persistent than that it is injurious to drink water at meals. The old medical rule against eating before going to bed has been discountenanced by the medical profession itself for a long time now, and it has been repeatedly shown that a reasonable amount of food taken before retiring is beneficial to many nervous people and is not infrequently a cure for insomnia. The rule against drinking at meals has been more persistent, but it appears to be doomed, now that the professors in the physiological chemistry department of the University of Illinois have set about making experiments to prove the digestive value of copious draughts of water taken while eating. One quart of water at each meal was the prescription followed and it was found that the subject actually throve on it. The theory is that the water, diluting the saliva, "causes the digestive fluid to assume greater digestibe activity."

PHIL DALY, SQUARE GAMBLER

Phil Daly, who recently died at his home in Long Branch, N. J., was well known to the sporting world of a generation ago and for twenty-six years was manager of the famous Pennsylvania club at Long Branch, where gambling ran high for many years until the club fell under the ban of the authorities in 1898 and Daly retired.

Mr. Daly was born in Philadelphia seventy-five years ago. He took charge of the Pennsylvania club in 1876 and had full management until twelve years ago. He never allowed cheating or even sharp practice and would not permit minors to play at his tables.

"A square deal" was the motto of Phil Daly, and in his varied career from country boy to gambler he gave and expected square treatment. This and his pride in a reputation for strict honesty won for him a place at the top of his self chosen profession. Rich players trusted him implicitly, and vast sums were placed in his keeping with only his word for a receipt.

Phil Daly began life as a country boy. He simply drifted into gambling. He ran a gambling house in Philadelphia for many years. Daly's Pennsylvania club became noted for its equipment and cuisine and for the high play that went on there.

Daly always figured that it was better to have his patrons perfectly satisfied than to have them in the frame of mind where they might "knock" or do him harm some day. The principal games played at the Long Branch house were faro, roulette and English hazard. Some of the French games were also played, and there were poker games in which the house did not do any banking.

One night a newly admitted patron of the Pennsylvania club, as the house was called, wagered $100 from jack to deuce in faro. In some way his stake was shifted in the play to a point between the jack and queen, and the dealer refused to pay when the jack won. The dealer called Daly, however, and explained the situation, asking whether he should pay on the jack.

"If this gentleman says that in his mind he intended to play from the jack, that is all there is to it," said Daly. "We pay."

FOOTWORK IN POKER.

Indianapolis Police Found New Kind of Contrivance For Card Sharps.

Paul Wallace of Chicago and John French and Joseph Meisel of St. Louis were arrested in Indianapolis the other day on a tip from St. Louis which notified the police that the men are gamblers and win at cards by a peculiar device. When they were taken to the police station and searched the device was found in the shape of a little tin box which proved a great curiosity to the police.

The box was made something like a flat metal faro box and equipped with straps that fitted about the waistband so that the box could be held in position just below the edge of the poker table. A string attached extended to the floor and could be manipulated with the foot. By pushing the foot down on the string any card or cards that might be in the box would slide up and out of the box into the manipulator's hand without being noticed.

The shrewd manipulator could thus put in and take from the box any card he wished at will.

of the good work done in the Panama canal zone by clubs affiliated with the federation. Until a comparatively recent date there was much criticism of conditions in the zone, a good deal of which appears to have been well founded. The housing of the laborers, their insanitary environment and various other matters came in for a share of the criticism. The women's clubs undertook to remedy these matters and by hard work and persistent endeavors they have done much toward making the canal zone a fit place for the habitation of human beings. Not only has much of the general cleaning up been done at the suggestion of the clubwomen, but reading rooms and other public places of recreation and culture have been established mainly through their efforts. The wives of some of the officials connected with digging the canal are prominent clubwomen, and, though far removed from their native spheres of action, they do not propose to enjoy south sea siestas all the time, notwithstanding the fact that the climate of the canal strip induces to languor.

Facts Useful to Know.

To cool a hot dish in a hurry, place it in a vessel full of cold salt water.

If mixed with milk instead of water, mustard will not get dry, but will keep nice and fresh until it is all used up.

A little vinegar put in the water in which eggs are poached will keep them white and prevent them from spreading.

When using valuable vases for table decorations fill them with sand, for this makes them stand firmly and renders them far less liable to be knocked over and broken.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

DIFFICULT PROBLEM

How Many Express Permits Should Be Issued

Editors of Daily Ledger:

The recent hearing before the License Committee of the City Council on the question of limiting the number of permits to be issued for transportation of liquor into our city, developed the fact that the committee has rather a difficult problem to solve. While the hearing was decidedly one-sided ,in that only the representatives of churches and temperance organizations were heard, yet considerable difference of opinion was expressed. There were those who favored granting no permits, those who favored the granting of but one, and those who believed the right to transport liquor should be denied no legitimate express concern.

Those who favored the general issuance of permits were confident that if the word "legitimate" were correctly interpreted the number of permits would not exceed ten or twelve at the most. But that word legitimate is apparently as difficult of defining as is the whole problem of permits, for the claim is made that the work of the committee has been on this basis in past years.

It really does savor of monopoly to say that a certain few shall be granted this privilege, and the others denied; but this point seems to have been considered wholly from the expressman's viewpoint, and not from that of the people at large. The increase in the number of permits has not come about through demand of the people that their needs be taken care of, but has been built up by individuals seeking what is considered a lucrative business, and they seem to have so well established their rights that many would rather see the city and the public suffer than that these individuals should be disturbed in their business. In other words we have accepted as a necessary evil something that has been forced on us, and protest against its abatement out of a regard for the few.

There were many who came out boldly at the hearing and advocated that no permits be granted even though familiar with the law of the State requiring the issuance of one or more such permits. While this course would prove the simple solution between excess or favoritism, it would put the city in the undesirable position of disobeying the law.

In opposition to those advocating compliance with the law and the issuance of but one permit, came the claim that such action would constitute a monopoly ,and the statement was made that certain people would pay a fabulous sum to secure that one permit, and that the business would be conducted on even a larger scale than at present. Objections of this sort were brought forth and posed as realities, when as a matter of fact the real results of such a course would not become apparent until the matter had been tried out.

The general discontent over present conditions, and the great interest manifested at the hearing, would indicate that the time is ripe for some change of program. If the sentiment of Quincy is sincerely for No-License there is no excuse for the further wholesale issuance of these transportation permits. If the License Committee is seeking honestly to carry out the sentiment of the people, as expressed at the polls, and at the recent hearing ,they can do so by issuing this one permit to a responsible party—and surely the man who values it so highly is not the one to use it honestly—and then see that the holder of such permit complies with every requirement of the law—not for the first week in May only, but throughout the entire year.

We submit that the ideas here advanced are not too radical, but are merely logical suggestions for the betterment of present conditions.

WAR GAME ABANDONED

But One Regiment In Masaschusetts Recorded In Favor of It

Boston, April 5.—There will be no war game for the Massachusetts militia this year, according to a statement given out at the adjutant general's office at the state house. Of all the Massachusetts regiments the only one to favor the war game is the "Fighting Ninth."

"Already the state militia has had sufficient practice in the general line of great maneuvers. What the men need now is a drilling in the detail of the work and individual instruction. Why, there are men participating in the general maneuvers who know practically nothing of military courtesy, who don't know even how to salute an officer."

This is the reason as expressed by Captain Simonds, assistant to the adjutant general, for the decision in favor of regimental camps.

TAFT NOT WORRYING

Roosevelt Is Fully Posted on Political Events In Washington

Washington, April 4.—President Taft is in no doubt about the attitude of Theodore Roosevelt toward his administration.

It is known that Senator Root recently wrote to the former president at Khartoum a full story of political events during the time the hunter was in the African jungle. It also is known that William Loeb, Jr., has maintained communication with Roosevelt both by letter and cablegram.

These incidents, it is believed, have been largely responsible for the statement that President Taft regards with complacency the report from abroad that he has "lost Mr. Roosevelt's friendship," and that the former president would not be averse to having his name used as a candidate against Mr. Taft.

HUB CUSTOMS HOUSE WILL HAVE CHIMES

Senate Receives Bill Authorizing Acceptance of Gift

Washington, April 5.—Senator Lodge introduced a bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury to accept a gift to the United States of a chime of bells for the tower of the customs house at Boston and to grant the donor, Mrs. Sarah Cabot Wheelwright, a widow, the right to maintain and operate the bells without expense to the government. The bill will pass readily.

Mrs. Wheelwright has been at great pains to secure for her native city a set of chimes which shall be a notable contribution to the attractions of the place and has been in correspondence with noted European guilds of bell-ringers, that she may make suitable provision for having the bells rung properly.

An endowment will provide funds for the regular employment of an expert bell-ringer, thoroughly trained in this unique art.

WOULD ACCEPT AN HEIRESS

But Long-Named Count Is Not In America For That Purpose

New York, April 5.—Count Rechsgraf von Ausperg, Freiherr of Schenberg and Seissenberg, Erbland marshal and Erbland chamberlain of the Herzogtum Krain and of the Windischmark in Austria, and miscellaneous other things, arrived in this city on the Auguste Victoria, not to hunt an American heiress, but willing to take one if he finds the right girl.

The count is 28 years old, highly educated and wealthy. The count does not speak English, but through an interpreter he said he did not believe in titled foreigners coming here and taking our American heiresses.

SMART SET SHOCKED

Britishers Think It Just Horrid For Women to Ride Astride

London, April 5.—The exclusive set of the Essex Hunt is scandalized because Sir Claude Champion de Crespigny, as host of the day, introduced a woman's event in the steeplechase.

This was an innovation, but when the exclusives noted that four or five of the entrants intended to ride astride they raised a wild cry. The angry subscribers bombarded the committee with protests, and the event was struck from the program.

Then the women became furious, threatening the ringleaders with actions for libel.

Mad Mullah Slays Eight Hundred

Aden, Arabia, April 5.—The ferocious campaign of Mohammed Abdullah of Somaliland, "the Mad Mullah," against the sultanates under British protection, continues unchecked. Eight hundred of the tribesmen friendly to the Sultanates have been slaughtered, vast areas laid waste and towns razed.

Lineman Electrocuted

Boston, April 5.—Michael Glancy, aged 40, was electrocuted while at work on the top of a telegraph pole late yesterday. He had been in the employ of the Edison company for several years, and was an expert lineman.

ALBERT CRANE'S GIFT

plan for the erection of modern, sanitary hospital building upon a healthful and spacious site. I am sure that whenever such a plan shall take form it will appeal strongly to the generosity of the people of this community.

"For some time, I have purposed to make some public gift in Stamford, in honor of the memory of my father and mother, the late Thomas and Clarissa Starkey Crane. In 1859, my father came to Stamford, then a small but very attractive village, and made his home on the beautiful Strawberry Hill. This home became very dear to my father and mother, and ,with the growth of their love for it, they came to have a strong affection for Stamford and an interest in all that made for its welfare.

"I have inherited with the home their feeling toward this place, I think, therefore, that in token of their affection for Stamford, and in honor of their memory, I can make no more appropriate public benefaction than a gift of a site for the proposed new hospital. Both my father and mother were deeply interested in all measures for the relief of human suffering, and I feel that a gift which will forward the time when adequate hospital aid can be given to the sick of this community ,especially those who cannot afford to pay, would have seemed to them an acceptable memorial."

On March 22, the Advocate comments editorially as follows:

"A splendid advance in the status of the Stamford Hospital is convincingly indicated in the developments reported in this paper yesterday. A new and wholly suitable location, a new and adequate plant, to be constructed, from the foundation-stone, upon the most modern ideas of the needs of such an institution and finally, an exhibition of public spirit and benevolent liberality on he part of Stamford men of means—hese are things for sincere congratuation that may be shared by every well-meaning man and woman in the community. Mr. Crane's admirable letter announcing his gift of a site for the hospital is an inspiration ,a delight and an encouragement. It makes an episode in the permanent history of the town which will long be cherished and remembered."

In the same issue under the heading of "Mr. Crane's Philanthropy," the Advocate says the gift to the hospital is one of many acts of generosity and goes on to say:

Albert Crane's splendid gift to the Stamford Hospital corporation made public yesterday recalls other gifts made by Mr. Crane and his mother, Mrs. Clarissa Crane. A few years ago Crane gave $100,000 to Tufts' college, of which he is graduate as a memorial of his father. Several years ago, the Cranes provided the funds by which the Thomas Crane Public Library was erected at Quincy, Mass. In her will, Mrs. Crane established a $20,000 endowment fund for this library. Mrs. Crane also made specific bequests to charities, churches and relief work of $54,500 in her will. Besides this she directed that two-twelfths of one-half the residue of her estate go, on the death of her son Albert, to the Thomas Crane Library and two-twelfths to the Chapin Home for Aged and Infirm in New York.

Albert Crane is the only surviving member of the family. He is now at the Hotel Bon Air, Augusta, Ga., with his wife. He is expected in Stamford in a week or two.

Mr. Crane ,after he was graduated from Tufts College studied law, and was admitted to the bar in New York He is a member of the American Bar Association. For several years he has not engaged in active practice. He has traveled much.

His father, Thomas Crane, spent his early life in Quincy, Mass. He owned quarries, there, and was in the granite business. Previous and subsequent to taking residence in Stamford ,the elder Mr. Crane invested heavily in real estate in New York and Brooklyn His investments were good, and, when he died in 1875, he left a large estate to be divided between his widow and his sons, Albert, Benjamin F., and Thomas, Jr. He created a large trust consisting of $50,000 in bonds and stocks and valuable real estate in the Gowanus section of Brooklyn for his son, Thomas, Jr. The widow received one-third of the residue of the estate, and the sons, Albert and Benjamin, divided, the other two-thirds equally between them.

Albert Crane's mother, Clarissa I. Crane died in New York, April 22, 1895, leaving a will which contained many bequests of a public nature. She gave her onl ysurviving son Albert $100,000 outright ,and half the residue of the estate. She also directed that he have the income from the other half of the residue.

As has been her son, so was Mrs. Crane, a liberal giver to organizations of the Universalist church. She gave $5,000 to the New York Universalist Relief Fund, of which her husband was treasurer for years, $1,000 to the Connecticut Universalist Convention, $1,000 to the Woman's Centenary Association, a Universalist organization; $3,000 to the Universalist General Convention of New York; $1,000 to the Universalist church of Stamford, and $1,000 to Rev. E. M. Grant ,then pastor of the Stamford Universalist church. She also directed that her jewels be sold and the proceeds given the Five Points House of Industry in New York. Besides this she made a specific bequest of $1,000 to that institution.

She gave $10,000 to the Chapin Home for Aged and Infirm of New York; $20,000 to the Thomas Crane Public Library of Quincy, Mass.; $5,000 to the New York State Auxiliary of the Woman's National Relief Association; $1,000 each to the New York Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children, New York Society for Relief of Ruptured and Crippled, New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, New York Home for Incurables, New York Institution for the Blind; Children's Aid Society of New York, Woman's Prison Association and Home of New York, and $500 to the Prison Association of New York.

MANY GUESTS ENTERTAINED

Play Presented by the Quincy Catholic Club

The annual guest night of the Quincy Catholic club was held Monday evening at Colonial hall, and was attended by upwards of 225. The affair was under the direction of the entertainment committee, composed of Miss Mary R. Lyons, Miss Anna J. Walsh, Miss Emma Biganess, Miss Bertha Trepanier, Miss Agnes McGinty, Miss Helen H. Gavin, Miss Mary J. Dunn, Miss Gertrude Crowley and Miss Nonie O'Connor.

The entertainment provided included an amusing comedy entitled "His model wife." The stage was set to represent a studio with the artist busily at work painting from his model. The story of the comedy is that the artist is poor and struggling, but has a rich aunt who is interesting in missionary work. She very much desires that her nephew shall marry, but he is as usual in love with another girl.

His aunt goes away for a supposed long trip and to appease her he writes that he is married. Suddenly a letter is received that the aunt is coming home and our artist finds himself in a quandary as to what to do. He, however, succeeds in getting his model to pose as his wife.

The aunt is introduced, but as has been said, a lie will out, so the deception is exposed and then there is trouble. All ends well, however. All of the characters were impersonated by ladies of the club and all took their parts exceptionally well, especially the ladies who impersonated gentlemen parts. The cast of the comedy was as follows:

Arthur Everett	Anna J. Walsh
Robert Parks	Helen L. Galvin
Rep. John J. Potts	Mary R. Lyons
Miss Agnes McPherson	Nonie T. O'Connor
Mrs. Munford-Wells	Josephine Colligan
Miss Eleanor Perry	Julia B. Roche
Miss Bella Potts	Mary Dunn
Wilhemina-"Willy"	Emma Biganess
Patsy	Helen H. Gavin
Mary	Josephine McCarthy

In addition to the comedy there were selections by Miss Isabelle Murphy and guitar solos by Mrs. J. E. Neary.

After the entertainment the members and guests enjoyed refreshments of ice cream and cake, which was served by an efficient committee composed of Mrs. C. C. Hearn, Miss Mary E. Harkins, Miss Nellie Mundy, Miss Elizabeth Keating, Miss Lora Biganess, Mrs. J. E. Dunn, Mrs. J. J. McAnarney, Miss Elizabeth Walsh, Miss Ella Norris, Miss Charlotte Donovan, Miss Mary Coyle and Miss Annie Cahill.

The special guests of the evening were Mrs. H. J. Gurney, president of the Quincy Women's club; Miss Catherine Shea, president of St. Mary's guild; Mrs. R. J. Teasdale, vice president of St. Mary's guild; Mrs. T. A. Addison, president of the Quincy Charitable society; Mrs. R. A. Lynch, president of the Ladies' Aid of the Daly Industrial school; and Miss Julia Dolan, treasurer of the same society.

Previous to the entertainment there was a short business session, at which Miss May L. Galvin, the president of the club, presided. Miss Gavin briefly reviewed the work of the club during the past year addressing the guests that they might be informed of the work of the club. She also thanked the officers and members for the hearty support which they had given her. Hardly had Miss Gavin ceased speaking when Miss Agnes M. Deasey, in behalf of the members, presented Miss Gavin with a large and handsome bouquet of flowers. In presenting the bouquet, Miss Deasy spoke briefly of the high regard in which the club held its president, and how much it appreciated her efforts to make it a success.

Women's Hats Larger Than Ever.

The hats to be worn by women this summer are going to be wider and higher than ever before—wider in inches and higher in price. This edict was given out by Mme. M. S. Harris, president of the National Association of Retail Milliners, which recently met in annual convention at Chicago. Mme. Harris said she could not tell what minimum could be expected in this year's headgear. "In inches I think the low average will be about twenty," she said, "but in dollars I am unable to hold out much encouragement. Untrimmed crowns, I am afraid, will cost not less than $25."

CITY COUNCIL

18, on the petition of the Citizens' Gas Co. to lay gas mains. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing April 18, on petitions of the Telephone Co. for attachments and a location for poles. Adopted.

STREET SPRINKLING.

Councilman Moir offered the annual street watering or oiling order which was read and ordered to a second reading. The schedule is practically the same as last year.

WATER METERS.

Upon motion of Councilman Nowland the water meter order was taken from the table. The Committee, he said, had gone into this matter very carefully and were unanimous for metering the whole city.

Councilman Snow favored metering the whole city. In 1909 the items of cost for the department amounted to $92,674 and the income $80,628 which left a deficit of $12,046 and there were 302 unassessed services. If the city was metered the department would be paying.

Councilman Bryant said that he did not believe in going into the metering business on the wholesale proposition. As for unassessed services it did not make any difference. If the several departments were charged for water they would require just so much more money to run the department. It was simply a matter of bookkeeping. The question is where is this large leakage. He would like to see the Commissioner meter the city by sections and find out where the leaks were. We had better continue along the line we are going.

Councilman McDevitt believed that the working people would be better served by the passage of the $48,000 order. It was queer that Milton got their water so much cheaper than Quincy. He had offered an order last year reducing the water rates and the next week a meter was slid into his house.

In reply to a question by Councilman Cherrington, the Commissioner said that there were about 1,500 of the full plumbed houses metered.

Councilman Branch believed that the whole city should be metered. more than half the water furnished is wasted.

Councilman Whiton said we have got to meter sometime, but to do it all at once would create more of a deficit than we have now. To his mind it should be done gradually.

Councilman Richards favored the $48,000 order. In other cities where metering is more general than Quincy the water rates are lower. There was a discrimination in Quincy. To meter is the only equitable way.

The Commissioner, in reply to a question, said in his opinion it would be profitable for the city to meter all services at once.

Councilman Bryant said it was the duty of Councilmen, if they knew where water was leaking, or where it was being used contrary to the law, to report it. It is a fact that we are consuming seven percent less water now than five years ago and we have at least 1,500 more services. His judgment was against taking a desperate plunge.

Councilman Branch by the gentlemans argument it is shown that we are using seven per cent less water than five years ago. This is a good argument for meters as it was about five years ago that metering was commenced.

The question was on accepting the amendment offered by the Finance Committee, which was to make the amount $10,000. By a vote of 8 yes and 12 no the Council refused to accept the $10,000 proposition. The original order for $48,000 was then given a second reading.

Councilman Nowland moved to suspend the rules but the motion was lost 11 voting yes and 9 no.

HALF HOLIDAY.

Councilman Smith moved a suspension of the rules to admit an order. Voted. Councilman Bryant doubted the vote but on a rising vote the rules were suspended, 15 voting yes and 6 no.

Smith then offered an order providing that city laborers and mechanics shall be given a half holiday each week during the months of June, July and August.

Councilman Nowland moved to lay on the table, but later desired to withdraw the motion, but councilman Smith objected. The motion was put and lost.

Councilman Whiton moved reference to Finance Committee.

Councilman Smith objected.

Councilman Richards asked the City Solicitor what the difference was between the executive authorizing a half holiday for clerks at City Hall and a half holiday for laborers.

City Solicitor McAnarney said that clerks at City Hall were employed by the week and laborers by the day.

Councilman Bryant offered a substitute order, that the Mayor be requested to make such arrangements as necessary to grant a half holiday to such of the city laborers whose services can be dispenced with, the same to be as part compensation for their services. A little later he added the words "without loss of pay" after the word holiday.

After some discussion the substitution of Councilman Bryant was adopted by a vote of 13 yes and 8 no. The order as substituted was then adopted.

EXPRESS PERMITS.

Councilman Gardner offered an order revoking the liquor transportation permits of Samuel F. Barker, Boston & Quincy Epress, and Louis Luciano.

Councilman McDevitt moved to lay on the table.

Councilman Gardner said these men had been convicted in the lower court of violating the law and had appealed. The appeal was simply a trick. The minute a man is convicted in the lower court we should cut him off from doing any more business.

Councilman Bryant said with such a man as judge as Judge Avery he did not believe in waiting for the higher court. It would be a good lesson to others.

The motion to lay on the table was lost by a vote of 9 yes and 12 no.

The order revoking the licenses was then adopted.

Later Councilman Gardner offered an order revoking the liquor transportation permit of Abbott & Miller. In explanation he said that one of the conditions was that expressmen should report to the police station every day. This firm had not done so. Order laid on table.

STREET DRAINAGE.

Councilman Moir offered an order for $900 for draining Atlantic street. To Street Committee.

Councilman Moir offered an order for $800 for a drain on Madison and Old Colony streets. To Street Committee.

SIDEWALK ORDERS.

Councilman Smith, at the request of the West Quincy Improvement society, offered an order for a permanent sidewalk on Crescent street from the parkway to Willard street. To Street Committee.

Councilman Ericson offered an order requesting the Mayor to confer with the officials of the New York and New Haven railroad relative to planking that part of the Granite street bridge over the sidewalk. Adopted.

HEALTH ORDER.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order requesting the Mayor, City Solicitor, Commissioner of Public Works and Secretary of the Board of Health to investigate the sanitary conditions at the tuberculosis camp relative to the running of sewer pipes over the water pipes and report at the next meeting of the Council. Adopted.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order for $200 for building a drive from Rogers street to the West Quincy playground. To Street Committee.

LIGHT ORDERS.

Councilman Bryant offered an order for six lights on Fenno street. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Smith offered an order changing the light on Morton and Buckley street to an arc. To Executive.

ANNUAL APPROPRIATIONS.

The annual appropriation order took its second reading and the rules were suspended.

Councilman Bryant moved to amend by substituting the figures $25,109 for $23,851 after the words "pay permanent police." This was to take care of the two new permanent men added to the force at this meeting. The motion was voted.

The order was then unanimously passed to be ordained.

The itemized order was published in the Daily Ledger of March 22. It now appropriates $404,738.00 for "current expenses inside the $12 limit," $112,675.00 for maturing debt, $38,666.50 for interest, $81,500 for Water department and $45,780 for Sewer department. In addition it will be necessary to raise by taxation something toward the Water department and Sewer department; also for State and County taxes and Metropolitan assessments.

PROSPERITY BOOMS WAGES

Substantial Advances Reported From Nearly Every State

INCREASE IN COST OF LIVING

Combined With General Unrest, It Is Considered the Cause of Demands Being Granted—Increase Announced by Railroads Last Week Amounts to Over $32,000,000 a Year—Employes of Industrial Plants Also Benefited

New York, April 5.—Substantial increases in wages of workingmen, especially those on the railroads, in all parts of the United States are being granted. From nearly every state in the union reports are received specifying increases.

Only last week increases amounting to more than $32,000,000 a year were granted by the different railroads and virtually promised by the United States Steel corporation. The high cost of living and a feeling of general unrest among the laboring classes, because of differences in the purchasing capacity of a dollar today compared with that it had ten years ago are attributed as the causes for the increase. A wave of prosperity that has increased business all around and made profits greater have enabled the railroad managers and employers to make the increases.

An increase of 3 cents an hour has been granted to 12,000 workers of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and of the Switchmen's union in Chicago. Eight thousand painters in the same city have been accorded an increase of 5 cents an hour. The bill posters there will hereafter receive $21 a week, a raise of $3. Elevator conductors have been raised from $60 to $65 a month.

From Albany reports are received of a proposed increase of the wages of its employes by the Delaware and Hudson railroad. A number of factories and manufacturing firms have granted increases to their workers. Many of these have been voluntary.

In Boston 1800 painters have been accorded an increase of $1.96 a week, making a wage of $20 a week for painters and $22.22 for decorators for forty-four hours' work. The conductors and the trainmen of the New Haven railroad system have received advances in wages.

The Norcross Brothers, building contractors in Washington, have granted an increase of 50 cents a day to their marble setters and the marble setters' helpers. Consideration has been given by the firm to a demand for an increase by the carpenters. An increase of 3 percent has been granted engine drivers on the Southern railroad there.

Prosperity has settled on the great industrial population of Rhode Island. Some increases are noted there, but not many. A year ago substantial advances were made, and all the factories are working on full time and many on overtime.

Ten thousand employes of the Consolidated Coal company of Baltimore have been granted a voluntary increase of 3 percent. The Davis Coal and Coke company is reported to be working on a new wage schedule for the benefit of its employes.

Ten thousand employes of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad have been granted increases averaging 5 and 6 percent.

Five hundred men at the independent plant of Moorhead Brothers & Co., in Pittsburg, have received a voluntary increase of 10 percent.

The West Penn Railway and Lighting company of that city, employing more than 1000 men, has advanced wages of 1 cent an hour, and also has announced a policy of giving pensions to its men who are unable to work longer on account of old age, disability or other causes. All employes who have been in its service ten years or longer are to be given $500 in monthly payments of $8.50. The new policy grants the family of an employe $250 in case of natural and $500 for accidental death, with a sick benefit of from $8 to $10 a week.

FRIEND OF CHILDREN

Uncle Sam Will Allow Little Ones to Use Lots For Playgrounds

Washington, April 5.—The treasury department has demonstrated its sympathy with the movement to establish children's playgrounds by deciding to permit the use of unoccupied government building sites by the children.

This will be permitted under proper regulations by responsible associations or local officials.

Eight-Hour Bill Has Third Reading

Boston, April 5.—By a roll call vote of 122 to 85 the house of representatives ordered to a third reading the eight-hour bill vetoed by Governor Draper last year. The bill has one more debatable reading in the house. It will not reach the senate before next week.

HONEYMOON CURTAILED

Trouble Overtakes a Young Couple Immediately After Their Wedding

Fitchburg, Mass., April 5.—After taking oath that she was 18 years of age, Irene Cochlin, aged 16, was married by City Clerk Davis Saturday night to William Ledue, aged 18.

The groom secured the consent of his parents to the ceremony, but when the newly-married couple went to the bride's home the bridegroom was ordered out and the girl-wife was sent to bed.

The husband went to Chief of Police Thayer and wanted an officer detailed to take his wife from her parents and the latter went to the police and wanted protection from the young husband.

Now the girl has been induced to give back the wedding ring, the parents of both have decided to have the marriage annulled and legal action may be taken by the authorities, for making false entries on a marriage application.

SUFFRAGE FOR WOMEN

Conditions In England Quite Different From Those In America

New York, April 5.—Amelia Bingham, the actress, returned from England on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria. She was full of sympathy for the cause of votes for women in England, but not very strong for the cause in this country.

"If I had the vote," she said, "I doubt if I would use it. American women do not need it. They have the best of husbands, fathers and brothers to vote for them. But in England, where there is a law for the woman and a law for the man, the vote for women is needed. In England a man may sin a half dozen times and beat his wife almost to death and when she sues for divorce have her suit fail."

YANKEE OFFICERS ON DUTY IN CUBA

Drawing Salaries From Two Governments, It Is Charged

Washington, April 5.—The charge that commissioned officers of the United States army have been for months and are now serving as officers in the army of Cuba and receiving salaries from the Cuban government in violation of law, is contained in a resolution introduced in the house by Representative Slayden (Dem. Tex.), a member of the committee on military affairs.

The officers alleged to be connected with the Cuban army are: Captain Parker, Eleventh cavalry; Captain Gately, Third field artillery, and Captain Golderman, coast artillery corps. It is asserted that they are receiving from $150 to $200 a month each from the government of Cuba in addition to their regular pay, drawn as officers of the United States army.

Mr. Slayden's resolution calls on the secretary of war to furnish information in connection with these officers and also inquires if any other American officers are serving in the Cuban army. The resolution was referred to the rules committee.

SPREAD OF AUTO DEMAND

Farmers and Small Merchants In the Northwest Buying Cars

St. Paul, April 5.—Freight officials say that the demand for automobiles throughout the northwest is unprecedented. In small towns all through North and South Dakota, Montana and farther west, farmers and small merchants in increasing numbers are using motor cars for transportation.

Automobile dealers here and in Minneapolis say that nearly all orders are for high-priced cars. This is considered a demonstration of the ability of farmers and merchants in the country districts and small towns in the northwest to pay liberally for what serves them both for pleasure and work.

Circuit Court Decision In Government Suit Against Sugar Company

New York, April 5.—The American Sugar Refining company must produce in court its books in the government's suit against it, according to a ruling made by Judge Lacombe in the circuit court.

Judge Lacomb, however refused to hold and punish the American Sugar Refining company for contempt of court in refusing to obey a subpoena of the federal grand jury served on Secretary Heicke, ordering him to bring all the books and papers of the company into the grand jury room.

VICTOR EMMANUEL

WELCOMED BY ITALY'S RULER

Roosevelt the Guest of Victor Emmanuel on Two Occasions

LONG CHAT AT THE QUIRINAL

Ex-President and Family Later Attend Dinner In Their Honor In Royal Palace—Arrangements Personally Directed by Queen—Lunch With Leishman During the Day—Vatican Incident Closed

Rome, April 5.—Twice yesterday Theodore Roosevelt was the guest of King Victor Emmanuel. The king received the ex-president at the Quirinal with particular warmth, and they talked for nearly an hour.

Last evening there was a grand dinner at the palace given by the king and queen in honor of Colonel Roosevelt and his family. Great preparations have been going on for this event, and the queen herself directed all the arrangements, desiring that no detail should be neglected.

The ex-president and his party arrived at the entrance to the Quirinal palace at 8 p. m., where the door of his carriage was opened by the imposing figure of the royal keeper, magnificent in scarlet livery, with sword and baton and cocked hat, seemingly out of the middle ages. At the foot of the grand staircase, Count Tozzoni and Duke Cito, masters of ceremonies, and Count Guicciardini, gentleman-in-waiting to Queen Helena and a relative of the minister of foreign affairs, met the party and escorted them up the steps, decorated with palms and flowering shrubs.

In the great hall of the Swiss they were received by Count Gianotti, prefect of the palace, and Countess Guicciardini, lady-in-waiting to the queen, who took them through the great ball room to a reception room hung with priceless tapestry, where they were greeted by the sovereigns, surrounded by their military and civil households.

After a short conversation, all the guests adjourned to the private dining room of the king—a spacious hall hung with modern tapestry and decorated with immense plants and flowers. The dinner was enlivened by the military band in the gardens below.

Ambassador Leishman's lunch to Roosevelt included as guests many distinguished Italians, members of the American embassy and several Americans.

After luncheon Roosevelt received Dr. Cespales, the Cuban minister, who presented a message and greetings from the Cuban government. He also received Dr. Clark, head of the Methodist organization in Italy, and Rev. Dr. B. M. Tipple, pastor of the American Methodist church in Rome.

A number of Italian journalists called on the ex-president, but he declined to discuss the Vatican incident.

Comment was world-wide on the cancellation of Roosevelt's visit to the pope at the Vatican.

Members of the Catholic and Roman churches were of the same mind in regretting the incident and in claiming that both the ex-president of the United States and the pontiff of the Roman Catholic church had adopted the only reasonable and diplomatic course in eliminating an interview which would have been embarrassing.

Both Roosevelt and the Vatican authorities stated yesterday that the incident was absolutely closed.

HAPPY WOMEN

Plenty of Them in Quincy, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Quincy reader should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. George L. Nott, 93 North Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have every reason for holding a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled a great deal by headaches and dizzy spells which were so seaere at times that I had to grasp something for support to keep from falling. My sight was also affected, spots often appearing before me and my back ached intensely. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. I was helped from the first and after I had taken the contents of five boxes, I was cured. Other members of my family have used this remedy with equally good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

"NOT GUILTY" ON SIX COUNTS

Mary Kelleher Is at Last Free of Poison Charges

IN JAIL EIGHTEEN MONTHS

Jury Empanelled Simply In Order That It Might, by Direction of Court, Acquit Woman of Wholesale Murder of Relatives—Victim of Combination of Circumstances, According to Judge

Cambridge, Mass., April 5.—Mrs. Mary Kelleher, after having been in East Cambridge jail for one year and a half, awaiting trial on an indictment charging her with murdering six persons, all relatives, was freed by a jury's verdict rendered by order of Judges Stevens and Dana, and at the request of District Attorney Higgins, in the superior crimnal court here after Higgins had informed the court that there was not sufficient evidence to convict Mrs. Kelleher.

After Higgins ceased, Judge Stevens, who presided, said:

"The motion made by the district attorney meets with the approval of the court. The government never desires a verdict of guilty unless there is ample evidence to justify it.

"The defendant in this case appears to be a victim of an unusual combination of circumstances. The district attorney acted properly in the efforts he made in the case.

"Acting in good faith, the district attorney, in the judge's lobby, told the court just what evidence he had in the this case and desired some explanation or evidence concerning matters in which a grave doubt existed and matters very material to the case.

"Acting in good faith, counsel for the defendant made known just what evidence they had, presented the names of witnesses to substantiate their contention that the defendant was innocent. These witnesses were called in and their testimony listened to by the judges and the district attorney.

"As a result, the district attorney came to the wise conclusion—and a conclusion which met the approbation of the court, that the defendant should not be placed upon trial for her life, but instead should be allowed her liberty.

"District Attorney Higgins came to a wise conclusion and the decision in this case should meet with the approbation of everybody."

Turning to the jury, Stevens continued: "It gives me great pleasure to ask you to return a verdict of not guilty on all of the counts of this indictment against the defendant."

Clerk Ambrose asked Foreman Cash if the jury was agreed and Cash instantly responded that it had. Then, taking each count successively, the jury returned its verdict of "Not Guilty."

After the court had directed that Mrs. Kelleher be held merely in her own recognizance of $100 in the old arson charge, Ambrose formally pronounced these words, which set Mrs. Kelleher free:

"Mary Kelleher, the jury has brought in a verdict of not guilty. The court orders your discharge."

Mrs. Kelleher, with smiling face, heard the words which freed her of the murder charges. She was also under charge of arson, the original charge which led to the investigation of the alleged murders. It is not expected that the arson charge will be heard from again.

This unusual outcome of the case which has claimed the attention of a large part of the community for more than a year, was brought about by the explanation accepted by the district attorney and the court that the persons in whose bodies traces of arsenic had been found had slept on mattresses, the hair of which had been subjected to an arsenic bath, and had so assimilated the poison.

PUBLIC LIBRARY REPORT

Sixteen New Magazines Added to Subscription List

The year 1909 has been one of increasing activity and usefulness, with the largest yearly circulation since 1902. The total circulation of books and periodicals for home use exceeds that of the previous year by nearly 25,000. This excess is due partly, but not wholly, to the greater number of days in 1909 during which the library was accessible to the public. But the average circulation per day has increased from 249 issues, in 1908 to 266 issues. In the month of July and also in September more books were loaned than during any previous July or September in the thirty-eight years of the library's existence, the largest daily issue of the year from the main hall being Saturday, July 31. The porportion of fiction circulated from the main hall was 62 1-2 per cent.

Out of a total circulation of 81,355 the past year, 21,208 or more than one-quarter, have been issued from the children's room. Percentage of fiction from this room was 59.7 of the 880 new books purchased, 274 were for this department. More than one-half of the replacements of the year were books for this room, and over one-third of the rebinding was that of the children's books.

A registration during the year of 471 children, making a total of 1,108 registered, tells its own story, showing that a greater supply of books is most certainly needed.

Five story-hours have been held in the children's room with audiences of 50 children and over. More than 160 were present at the last one at Thanksgiving. The effort has been made in these to bring to the children's attention the books to which the stories belong, and, by invitations extended to the schools of the outlying districts, to attract those pupils to their own room of the public library.

With 1,708 new registrations, during the year we may fairly assume that the library is becoming better known to the residents of Quincy. But in a city whose population is increasing as fast as that of Quincy, the ideal of its library's usefulness to the fullest extent cannot be reached or even approached until some system is established by which all residents may get books from some point in their neighborhood. No doubt i must be some time before fully equipped branches can be maintained. In the meantime, if we might begin in a small way by the establishment of deposit stations in the various sections of the city, it would be a step toward that ideal. Since May, the Park and Downs section of Wollaston has been accommodated by a weekly delivery basket. In view of the fact that the delivery of books to West Quincy had to be discontinued about three years ago for the lack of a place where the basket could be sent, I sincerely hope that in the coming year a deposit station may be started in that vicinity, at least.

A small collection of books is now taken fortnightly by Mr. Clee for the boys of the Young Men's Christian Association. Their use of the library I hope will increase and be followed by others availing themselves of a similar privilege. In order to meet with any degree of satisfaction the various demands upon us, a constantly increasing supply of books will be necessary with a large expenditure for duplicates.

Early in the year, eight sets of stereoscopic views, comprising Italy, Trip around the world, Niagara Falls ,the Yellowstone, Washington, London, Paris, and Stratford-on-Avon, were purchased and these have been loaned with accompanying stereoscope. Their popularity justifies the purchase of other sets the coming year.

As any regular borrower may have practically any number of books and magazines, except fiction and the current periodicals, we have no students' or special cards, the policy being to limit the satisfying of a person's need only by the resources of the library, so long as his desire does not interfere with the rights of others. We do not find that this liberty is abused. Old restrictions having been removed and hours changed, a neat folder was issued in October, giving present day rules and information in regard to the use of the library.

We hope that the time spent in pasting into each new book and old ones as they are rebound, the notice of the state statute in regard to the defacing of library property will soon become time saved from that spent in erasing pencil marking, which has been of too frequent occurrence.

During the year, 1,574 volumes have been rebound and repaired by the binder ,against 2,621 the year before. The smaller number rebound is due to the fact that the whole collection of our books, except periodicals, has been examined and put in proper shape, and to the later good rebinding, which is showing results in longer wear. We have mended at the library this year 4,143 volumes and 258 unbound magazines.

Toward the close of the year, we tried red rope paper covers for some of the circulating magazines. While this makes more work, it saves the wear and tear, leaves them in better condition to bind, gives a neater appearance to the periodical cases, and the readers seem greatly pleased. Therefore undoubtedly more, if not all, will be covered. With the increasing use of the reading room, patrons should be able to find the current number of the popular magazines, and the call for these means more duplicates. For we cannot take away privileges once granted, and a circulation of 12,702 periodicals from this room shows that they are no less desired for home reading. Sixteen new magazines have been added to the subscription list for the coming year.

The opportunity given the librarian of attending the conference of the American Library Association at Bretton Woods, June 28-July 5, was appreciated. Some of the assistants have attended the meetings of the Massachusetts Library club. These occasions are most helpful and inspiring, and one returns with new ideas, a broader mind from the contact, thus keeping in touch with the library world outside one's own little province.

GLOVER HOME ROBBED

Young Invalid the Only Witness of Most Nervy Proceeding

Waltham, Mass., April 5.—A mysterious robber broke into the home of Mrs. Lillian M. Glover late yesterday afternoon, and escaped with his pockets crammed with booty.

Shrouded in a long, black overcoat, and with a black derby hat pulled down over his eyes, the robber extracted six letters from the mail box, tried two bunches of skeleton keys on the front door without effect, and finally raised a ladder to a side window on the second floor, jimmied open a window, and effected an entrance.

He remained in the house for half an hour. When he came out the pockets of his overcoat were bulging. He took a car for Boston.

This daring break was witnessed by only one person—a young boy, who lives in an adjoining house. The boy was ill. His parents were away, and he was alone in the house. His bed had been moved to the window.

The Glover house has been unoccupied since the Glover will case, brought about by the murder of Mrs. Glover's husband, has been under way.

Woman Dangles In Midair In a Daring Slide For Life

New York, April 5.—A big telephone cable proved a life line for Mrs. Charles Bruno, when she was trapped by fire on the fourth floor of her embroidery shop on Sixth avenue.

Her escape cut off by the stairs, Mrs. Bruno grasped the wire rope outside her window and dangled in midair as she slid swiftly along it to the second floor of the building next door.

Badly burned hands from the friction of the spectacular slide were her only injuries.

CAMBRIDGE SUBWAY STRIKE AT AN END

Men Went Out Like Sheep and Returned the Same Way

Cambridge, Mass., April 5.—The Cambridge subway strike has ended. Three thousand Italian laborers appeared in Harvard square, Central square and at the bridge and waited for each other to go to work. Several went back to work, and three hours later all the strikers were back at their old labors. The returned to work at the old rate of $1.94 for a ten-hour day.

"We expect no further trouble," said Superintendent McManus. "The strike has ended as it started, with no apparent reason. The strike was the unorganized scheme of some hare-brained fellow. The men went out like a flock of sheep, and they came back to work the same way, one following another."

MADE NO BIG HAULS

Robbers In Woonsocket and Vicinity Loot Three Mill Safes

Woonsocket, R. I., April 5.—The safes in the offices of three mills near here were blown open with dynamite. At the Forestdale mills, Forestdale, less than $100 was secured. At Mohegan the safe gave up $25, and at the Orrell mills office at Glendale, the burglars secured $100.

In each case blankets were stolen from the mill stables and these were used to deaden the sound of the explosion. The door of the safe in the Forestdale mill office was found on top of a desk, where it was thrown by the force of the explosion. The safe breakers came and went in an automobile.

SAMPLED GIRL COOKS' GRUB

It May Have Been One Reason For Keeping Carnegie From Banquet

Pittsburg, April 5.—Andrew Carnegie yesterday ate heartily and fearlessly of the experiment class of young girls in cooking at the Margaret Morrison school, which is a department of Carnegie's "Tech." Last night he excused himself from a banquet of the civic commission which he had promised to attend.

In a letter of apology to the commission he enclosed a check for $10,000 and explained that, having spent the entire day inspecting his technical schools and needing rest in preparation for a trip to New York, he felt too fatigued to speak at a fate banquet.

William C. Sarr of Quincy was fined $100 by Judge Kelley in the district court at Abington on Monday on a charge of operating a motorcycle while under the influence of liquor at Nantasket. He was arrested by Officer Reynolds of Hull. Sarr pleaded guilty and paid the fine.

TODAY'S COURT.

Lena Bonea was arraigned for assault at Quincy. Case continued until April 12.

BRIEFS

During March the three steam colliers built at Quincy—the Melrose, the Malden and the Everett—brought 85,904 tons of coal to Boston.

The new tungston lights which were installed in the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church last week are a great improvement over the old ones.

TO TRY NEW PENCIL WOODS.

Supply of Red Cedar Will Be Exhausted In Five Years.

With a view to replenishing the supply of woods adaptable to the manufacture of lead pencils the forest service at Washington has perfected plans for testing a number of the national forest woods in co-operation with several leading representatives of the pencil industry.

The department of agriculture recently held conferences with lead pencil manufacturers, and it was brought out, as stated at the forest bureau the other day, that the supply of red cedar, which furnished practically all the wood for the annual output for some 325,000,000 pencils, will be exhausted within five years.

In view of this situation a substitute must be found which has all the qualities of pencil wood and which grows in sufficient quantities to meet the manufacturers' demands. Among the woods in the national forests to be experimented with are rocky mountain red cedar, alligator juniper, western juniper, redwood, incense cedar, western cedar, Port Oxford cedar and Alaska cypress. The specimens collected will be sent to four leading manufacturers who have agreed to test them. They will keep a record of the tests and report to the forest service the results as well as their judgment as to the fitness of the individual woods.

FORE RIVER APPRENTICES

Great Base Ball Timber and Will Show Up in Track Events

(By Rube)

I recently took a trip to the Fore River shipyard to inquire about the doings of the Fore River "Apprentices" in various lines of sports and also to meet James E. Neary, of whom I have heard so much favorable comment. I was met upon my arrival by Mr. Neary and escorted to his office.

Here I inquired about the promising candidates out for the Fore River Apprentice baseball team, which is looked upon by many to be the most likely team to land the bunting in the newly formed Granite City league. This aroused the enthusiasm of Mr. Neary who informed me that not a few "look good" to him at this stage of the game.

Grethe, a crack right hand pitcher, with Malden High school for three years, will undoubtedly do bulk of twirling. Grethe is a youngster who has attracted attention of a few scouts, and he has been offered a tryout by Lynn New England league team. His advisers have been successful in keeping him away from professional baseball until he will have acquired the build to warrant his making good with the big fellows. He will probably be caught by Avery of Bigelow fame, who is well known as finished backstop with plenty of baseball brains. He can also hit well.

At the first wharf, Creswell again seems to have first call; at the pivot sack Fitzpatrick, who has played with Cushing Academy and Williams college nines, will be seen; Howley and Murley Cerr, of last season's team are fighting it out at the hot corner, while McCarty of the High school and Boyle last year's captain, are out for the short-field position.

In the outskirts, Clinton and "Dave" Newcomb seem sure of places. Among the other candidates for the nine are McGuerty, O'Rouke, Fitzgerald of the Atlantics, Hayden, Dahl and Williams. With this group of players it looks rosy for a fast nine.

Bjorkland took charge of the squad upon their appearance, and gave them some good baseball advice. The Fore River athletic field is being put into perfect condition by the use of a steam roller and workmen, and when the first home game is played June 4 with Adams A. A. the field promises to be one of best in this section.

Mr. Neary has arranged for several exhibition games among them being games with Makaria April 16, Dorchester Centers at Dorchester April 23, Norwood Press club of the Norfolk County league at Norwood, May 7.

Practically the same optimistic view can be taken in looking over the track team candidates, and we may all look forward to see some fine feats performed on the track by men under the direction of Mr. Neary.

Among the likely track men now at the yard are: Fox, high jumpers; Casey 100 yard dash; Clapp, broad jumper; McCarty, quarter miler; Chapman 12lb. shot; Johnson, miler; Norling, distance runner. Among the others who bear watching are Furgeson, winner of one-half mile in Boston 1915 games; Graham an English High crack; Prout of Quincy High; and Hackett, a brother of "Billy" of Marathon fame. A few of these have yet to enter the Apprentice department, but will do so soon. This forms the nucleus for a speedy track team. Great things are expected at the second annual field day to be held at Merrymount park at some future date.

In summing up the Apprentice idea, and bearing in mind the fact that sports were only added last year, I believe it is impossible to find the equal of such a record anywhere.

Last season the Apprentices met the Apprentices from the General Electric plant of West Lynn, and the locals took all the prizes in every event, whitewashing the "Shoe City" lads. During the season the Fore River Apprentices won cups, Medals and watches in track events valued at $850, which to my mind is making a fine showing and proving that they appreciate what is being done for them by the men "higher up."

HINGHAM BRIDGE

Quincy Objects to Large Assessment to Rebuild

Quincy will be represented on Friday at the hearing at the Federal building, Boston, on order of the United States government that the bridges over the Weymouth Back river, known as the Hingham bridge, be rebuilt. At present the expense of this bridge is borne by the city of Quincy and the towns of Weymouth and Hingham, but in view of the unusual demand of the government for an 80 foot draw, that vessels may reach the Naval magazine, Quincy believes that the government should contribute to the expense, also the State of Massachusetts, the Metropolitan Park Commission, Norfolk county and Plymouth county.

It is necessary to obtain legislation from Congress and the Legislature before entering upon the work, so that an effort will be made at the hearing to postpone the date of completion which is set for Dec. 31, 1910.

NEW PROOF OF THE FLOOD.

The discovery of a fragment of a cuneiform tablet believed to date back to 2100 B. C., bearing an account of the deluge described in the Bible and agreeing with the narrative in Genesis was reported at Philadelphia by Professor H. V. Hilprecht at a gathering of friends of the University of Pennsylvania at the home of Provost Harrison.

This fragment, which has just been deciphered, was one of several excavated from the lowest stratum of the oldest part of the ruins of the temple library of Nippur and was removed to Philadelphia by the fourth expedition sent out by the University of Pennsylvania in 1899. It is of unbaked clay and measures two and three-quarter inches at its greatest width and two and three-eighths inches at its greatest length.

As translated by Professor Hilprecht the narrative contained on the tablet is as follows:

"(I declare unto) thee that the confines of heaven I will loosen, a deluge I will make, and it shall sweep away all men together. But thou (the Babylonian Noah) seek life before the deluge cometh forth, for to all living beings, as many as there are, I will bring overthrow, destruction, annihilation. * * * Build a great ship and * * * total height shall be its structure. It shall be a houseboat, carrying what has been saved of life. * * * With a strong deck cover it. The ship which thou shalt make, into it bring the beasts of the fields, the birds of heaven and the creeping things, two of everything instead of a number * * * and the family * * *."

The Semitic dialect in the inscription and certain grammatical peculiarities of the text show, according to Professor Hilprecht, that it was written some time between 2137 and 2005 B. C. The oldest tablet heretofore known containing an account of the flood was the "Layard deluge tablet" in the British museum, but the latter dated from only 650 B. C.

The Layard tablet agreed with the details of the Biblical narrative in only a few particulars. It was a pagan story of a deluge brought about at a council of the gods, who decided to destroy mankind. One of the gods was moved to save his protege—the Noah of the story—and sent a dream of warning, on which this Noah acted. This god excused his betrayal of the secret to the other deities by the explanation that he had not told; he had only "whispered through the mat"—that is, through the wall of the house, on the other side of which his protege slept and to whom this dream was thus conveyed.

The writing was traced on the surface of the tablet in characters which greatly resemble the Chinese method of writing of the present day.

—The Curtis turbine steam engines have a decided advantage over reciprocating engines for electric work because the turbine can be made in such large single units, often of over twenty thousand horse-power.

THE O'BRIEN CASE NOW ON TRIAL

John M. O'Brien Sues City for $689 Under Civil Service Rules

Was Employed as Foreman under Former Administration

A case of much local interest went on trial Tuesday in the Superior court at Dedham before Judge Hitchcock. It is that of John M. O'Brien, who is suing the city for $689 as foreman of the Sewer department during the first year of Mayor Shea's administration.

The case is one of more or less politics. O'Brien was appointed under the civil service rules by Commissioner Thomas F. Burke as a foreman in the Sewer department in 1907. He was continued in that employment until February the following year, when work ceased, and he has not since been employed. In his claim he states that at that time he was told when he was wanted again he would be sent for. Sewer work he claims was carried on during the year 1908, but he was never sent for, although other foremen were appointed in the department. He reported for duty many days at City Hall, and held interviews with the Commissioner and Mayor, but no work was coming his way. His claim was that being a civil service appointee, and not legally dismissed, that when there was the need of a foreman on the sewer work the employment should have been given to him.

At one time, he testified that he called upon the Mayor to get information as to why he did not get work as he did the year before. To this the Mayor replied, according to the testimony of Mr. O'Brien, "You have not got any job about here." To which witness replied "I have rights, and I am going to demand them." The Mayor then said, the Commissioner is the man to see. He saw the Commissioner several times at each of which he was told there was no work for him. He also called upon the Civil Service Commissioners in Boston.

During the summer and fall of 1908 he worked at odd jobs, but was so situated that he could go to work for the city if he should be called upon. The call however never came. For these odd jobs he received $291, which amount he had deducted from the amount he claimed was due him from the city, so that his claim was that the city owed him $689, which was at a rate of $4 per day.

This amount was arrived at by the books of the sewer deparment showing the number of days that sewer work had been carried on.

Mr. Edwards, chief clerk in the office of the Civil Service Commissioners, testified to the correspondence with Commissioner Burke, who had made requisition for a foreman, and that the name of Mr. O'Brien had been certified, and that he had been appointed. No record had been received of his discharge from the employment. Other testimony was also introduced to show that one Burnes had, previously to O'Brien, been appointed as a foreman in the Sewer department.

Clara A. Penley, clerk in the Sewer department office with the books of the department, showed the number of days sewer work had been carried on in the year 1908, and who were employed as foremen on the jobs. This completed the testimony for the complainant.

The answer of the city was a general denial, and its side of the case went in this morning. The claim set up by the city was that the employment of O'Brien was illegal, as the job belonged to Mr. Burns who had been previously appointed under the civil service rules and had not been legally dismissed.

SUBMARINE OF INTEREST.

A Boston paper of Tuesday says: Visitors to the Charlestown Navy Yard today showed much interest in the three little warships undergoing repairs in the smaller drydock. They are submarines, set on the blocks in single file, and for one who has never before viewed one of these strangest of marine craft they are of great interest. At the head of the line is the Tarpon, next comes the Stingray and on the outer end is the Narwhal. All were built at Quincy and are of practically the same tpye, their lines suggesting a giant fish even to the fin and tail. The ships are in commission and each flies a commission whip from a stubby signal mast and an American flag from a staff at the stern. As soon as the submarines are painted and some minor changes made they will be floated out of the drydock.

Glenwood Ranges are the finest bakers. They make housekeeping easy. Prices $23. to $45. Henry L. Kincaide & Co. *

CLASS OF 1906 REUNION

Head Master Howlett and other Teachers as Guests

An enjoyable evening for recent graduates of the Quincy High school was the reunion of the Class of 1906 at Alpha hall on Tuesday evening, which was graced by the presence of James D. Howlett, headmaster of the school, who was a sub-master when the class entered the school; also Melvin T. Holbrook, Miss H. Anna Kennedy and Miss Clara Thompson, former teachers. About 35 members of the class responded and with the guests there was a party of fifty.

Music was furnished by Wilson's orchestra and dancing was enjoyed from 8 to 12. The Duchess and Virginia reel were popular dances, and the waltz German a pretty figure. The dance orders were tied with Yale blue, the class color. Punch was served between the dances.

The reunion was conducted by the "committee on future interests" of the class which includes the class officers and three other members. So enjoyable was the affair that another reunion will probably be held in the fall.

COUNCILMAN TAKES A WIFE

Reception Attended by Mayor and Members of City Council

Miss Ida M. Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood of Summer street, and William H. Flynn a member of the City Council, were quietly married on Tuesday evening at the parochial residence of St. Johns church by Rev. John J. Coan, the pastor.

The bride was attended by Miss Minnie G. Butters and the groom by Henry W. Mullane one of the assistant assessors.

Following ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Councilman and Mrs. Flynn were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Wood, parents of the bride, Miss Mary E. Flynn, a sister of the groom, and Mrs. George Wadsworth. The reception was attended by Mayor Shea and other members of the city government. A wedding supper was later served. The interior of the house was decorated with potted plants, ferns and cut flowers.

Councilman and Mrs. Flynn will make their home on Summer street, this city.

SCORE A GREAT HIT

Annual Entertainment of Wollaston Congregational Club

The annual entertainment of the Wollaston Congregational club opened in the vestries of the church on Tuesday evening. Eclipsing the "Country Store," which was so successfully presented last year the bill took a more ambitious form, and the manner in which it was carried out augurs well for future entertainments of the club.

An audience of over 250 attended, overflowing the seating capacity, and the many personal hits and sallies in evidence throughout the show were greatly appreciated by those present.

The renditions of the Anti-Symphony orchestra, although somewhat bearing out its name, were received with great eclat. The orchestra was composed of Messrs. Randall, Falconer, Hogue J. Merrill, E. Merrill, Lupton, Sayward, Lewis, Campbell and Claflin.

The first number on the program was a ludicrous sketch entitled "the Wollaston Warhoop," which showed a newspaper office and depicted the trials and tribulations of country editorialism. Subscribers called to pay subscriptions and enter kicks, forms were pied by the "Devil," and many other usual but exciting occurences were in order. The parts, which were all well-taken, were as follows:

Mr. Scissors, the editor C. F. West
Rollo, head pressman B. H. Bain
Jonas, the "Devil," Amos T. Leavitt
Miss Peggy Quincy, of the D. A. R. Dr. B. F. Bowles
John Short, subscriber E. S. Tenney
Dr. Bunyon, subscriber Dr. E. R. Johnson
Sandy McNabb, subscriber George Fleming

The curtain next rose upon a minstrel circle with Rufus B. Tobey as interlocutor and Messrs. Barker, Keyes, Moulton and Locke as end men. Gags, crossfires, local and personal knocks, songs and choruses followed in quick succession, bringing forth loud applause. C. J. Hogue and the chorus had their mouth full in singing that touching ballad, "She sells sea shell on the sea shore." The other soloists of the evening were Messrs. Murray and Brown augmented by a quartette composed of S. F. Howard, C. J. Hogue, C. A. Randall and James Falconer. They were accompanied by L. F. Besse and John Merrill.

"Black Magic" then took the stage with Professor Hermann the fake (C. N. Godfrey) and Unceda Bill, his assistant (R. B. Locke,) as two loyal coadjutors. The tricks and illusions" of these two gentlemen proved one of the hits of the evening, and would fill a colmun.

Last but not least on the program came the humorous and witty skit—"Wollaston 1950." This showed the interior of the "Masonic Temple," Wollaston, on New Years Eve, 1949. The play told of a new Wollaston which could hardly be recognized, many hits being interwoven. It is best described by the following cast of characters:

B. H. Bain Grocery Trust magnate
C. J. Hogue, to whom everything is concrete.
Dr. B. F. Bowles, a dentist of note.
C. N. Godfrey, designs churches and Music halls.
Amos T. Leavitt, president of the Y. M. C. A.
C. F. West, patriach of Wollaston.
Rufus B. Tobey patriach of Wollaston.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS

Seventeen Appointed for the City of Quincy

Charles F. Gettemy has made the following appointments to make the census of Quincy, beginning April 15, next week, Friday:

WARD ONE.
Charles K. Dunn
Anastasia Lavell
Leo P. Noonan
Herbert A. Cassidy

WARD TWO.
Alfred Boll
Albert Coffin, Jr.
Frank P. Prescott

WARD THREE.
Joseph H. Dunleavy
Percy E. Taber
Vincent Curley

WARD FOUR
Francis J. Howley
Joseph F. Goodhue

WARD FIVE.
Charles J. Martin
Justin L. Hill
Harold B. Bryant

WARD SIX.
James V. Martin
Albion R. McKay

Mr. Prescott has decided not to accept an appointment as enumerator, and today sent his resignation to Supervisor Gettemy, suggesting another applicant in his place.

There are 17 in the list, so it will be seen that some of the 12 voting precincts of the city will be divided.

It is expected that the census of Quincy will show a population of 34,000 so that each enumerator should secure about 2000 names.

The staff for the taking of the 13th decennial census in this commonwealth is practically completed, and will comprise six expert special agents, 32 inspectors of enumerators and 1928 enumerators. About 45 more special agents are already gathering the census of manufactures The combined work will show the total population and the industrial conditions of Massachusetts.

Constant personal inspection of the way the enumerators do their work has been regarded as impracticable save in the cities. Boston will have 10 inspectors to look after its 400 enumerators. In the main, they are said to have the advantage of experience in taking of former censuses. A few were chosen because of their conection with uplifting social work, which affords valuable knowledge of problems involved in the census.

Mr. Gettemy says he believes his staff of enumerators are possessed of a higher intelligence than any previous body of the same kind, and bases his opinion on the fact that for the first time applicants for the positions were this year obliged to submit to competitive examination.

He adds that of the 7000 original applicants in this state about one-half were eliminated when confronted with a blank such as the enumerators must fill out. Of 3514 who took the examination 1553 passed with the requisite rating. Many who technically failed to pass would no doubt have made good enumerators and a few were in fact accepted of necessity, while some enumerators of former censuses who declined to submit to the examination were also retained on account of their experience.

The enumerators in nearby towns will be:

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

One of the new battleships for France will be equipped with turbines. It should be a Curtis turbine built at Quincy.

The people who object to the location of a stable in near proximity to their dwellings do well to protest vigorously before permission is granted for its erection. Experience throughout the city shows that once a stable is built and established no matter how much of a nuisance and a menace to health it becomes, there seems to be no way of getting rid of it except by taking it to law which is expensive and often slow in its working. To be sure the Board of Health has authority to abate a nuisance but do they ever do it? Right in the thickly settled portions of Ward One are stables public and private that are undoubtedly nuisances and are complained of every little while, still they exist, the fumes polluting the air and continuing to breed swams of flies which, are acknowledged to be dangerous to health. The State Board of Health has started on a crusade to exterminate the fly. Some of the stables in Quincy would be good camping grounds for them to start in on. It is well to look at the stable problem squarely and not allow their promiscuous erection. There should be restrictions as to their nearness to adjoining property as well as proper sanitary restrictions inside and out.

SCHOOL CONCERT.

The Glee Club of the Adams and Cranch schools are to give an entertainment on Friday evening at Faxon hall, the proceeds to be used to purchase decorations for the interior of both buildings. The program will include vocal and instrumental music, recitations, dialogues and a Cantata "King Rene's Daughter." The soloists for the cantata will be Mrs. Slade, Miss Angela McCarthy and Miss Josephine McCarthy. The master of the school, Harry Brooks, has general supervision.

SHIPYARD ENLARGEMENT.

C. Frank Randall, who has had control of several estates at Quincy Point and who is agent for the Bay State Casualty Co., of Boston, has just closed with the Fore River Ship building Co., an important yet quiet sale of the Moynihan estate on Howard street. This gives the company all but one of a chain of estates from Howard avenue to Bent's creek. The company will start immediately to improve, as this comes directly next to the main office.

HAS PRELIMINARY TRIALS

Monster Aeroplane Invented by German Almost Ready For Business

Plau, Germany, April 6.—The biggest aeroplane yet constructed, the invention of Major Von Parseval, underwent successful preliminary trials on the surface of Lake Plau. No attempt at a flight was made, but the motor and propeller were tested and they worked very satisfactorily.

The new flier is a monoplane with a four-cylinder motor. It carries 170 pounds of benzine and, it is calculated, will remain in the air for three hours. The breadth of the planes is 45½ feet, and the length of the machine from back to front is 45 feet. It is provided with torpedo-like floats, for descending on the water, and with wings for land.

BLIND MAN GOES TO JAIL

Convicted of Attempting to Blackmail Millionaire Sugar Planter

Boston, April 6.—Henry W. Stratton, a blind man, was sentenced to Greenfield jail for eleven months on a charge of attempting to blackmail Edwin F. Atkins, a millionaire sugar planter of Cuba, residing in Belmont.

The sentence was made especially light because of the prisoner's blindness. He pleaded guilty to writing the letter, but failed to realize it was blackmail. The letter was written on a typewriter, on which Stratton is an expert.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

HAS BECOME A NUISANCE.

Editor Quincy Ledger:

Since there is a public dump in this city what possible excuse can people give for dumping their refuse on their neighbors property? Is it not both unexcusable and unprincipled? It is not only annoying to property owners to have their vacant lots used as dumping grounds, but it becomes a matter of considerable expense to remove the refuse dumped there and to keep such grounds in such order as befits a well-to-do neighborhood. This habit of every sort of dumping cart or cellar cleaner is an imposition which should be stopped. Among several such places, the lower lots on Russell park have, for some unknown reason, been specially selected by dumpers causing the owners constant expense to keep the Park up to the standard of an attractive neighborhood. Neither can signs forbidding trespassing or dumping, be kept standing on account of the lawlessness of boys. It is indeed quite time that strangers should come to our city to teach us "what to do to have a beautiful Quincy."

ROBBERS LIBERAL IN USE OF GUNS

Three Men Shot, One Fatally, While Bank Is Being Robbed

Pittsburg, April 6.—A bank robbery with wild west features was pulled off by four desperadoes in McKees Rocks last night. The robbers covered their escape with volleys of revolver shots, got safely away with at least $400 in cash from the offices of the Victor Banking company.

Samuel Friedman, general manager of the company, was killed; his assistant, Isaac Schwartz, was dangerously wounded in the head, and Robert King, a passerby, was seriously shot in the groin.

Friedman and Schwartz were alone in the bank, which does a foreign exchange business, counting the day's cash, which was spread upon the counter, when four men invaded the place with revolvers.

USED HAMMER ON STATUARY

Man Creates Sensation In Catholic Church In Boston

Boston, April 6.—Several women who were praying in St. James' Catholic church on Harrison avenue were almost panic-stricken when John B. Buckley smashed a group of figures at the side of the altar with a large hammer. He entered the church unnoticed and appeared to be praying. The hammer was concealed under his coat.

Buckley chose to destroy a group entitled "Mother of Sorrow" which was brought from Munich. The police were called and four officers arrested Buckley. He was examined by alienists who pronounced him demented.

DYNAMITE RESORTED TO

Necessary to Save Vermont Town From Destruction by Fire

North Adams, Mass., April 6.—Frank Eldridge, a clerk in the general store in North Pownal, Vt., a town of 500 inhabitants, is dying here from injuries received in a fire which threatened to wipe the town of North Pownal off the map.

The fire, which is believed to have been of incendiary origin, started in the general store of Mrs. F. I. Whipple. The flames leaped across the street and destroyed the Whipple homestead, the Congregational church, Masonic hall, Odd Fellows' hall, four dwelling houses and the Donaldson building.

Crops Ruined by Etna Lava

Catania, April 6.—Mt. Etna is exhibiting new activity. A stream of lava has turned toward Cisterna Regina and has almost reached that village. The crops in the vicinity of Borillo and Nicolosi have beeen ruined.

DID MUCH FOR MISSIONS

Sudden Death of Secretary Holt of Women's Foreign Missionary Board

Boston, April 6.—Miss Mary E. Holt, national secretary of the Women's Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal church, died suddenly of heart disease in the office of the Home Savings bank, where she had gone to deposit a sum of money. She died almost instantly.

Miss Holt was one of the eleven national secretaries of the Women's Board and had the control over the disbursement of more than $1,000,000 annually. She had been a national secretary for the past six years. Before that she was the treasurer of the New England branch of the same organization for twenty years.

Miss Holt was instrumental in building hospitals, schools and colleges in oriental countries, and a few moments before her death had gone over the plans for a new school for girls in Tai-An, China, at a cost of $20,000. She was born in Boston 63 years ago.

KILLS WIFE FOR BURGLAR

Farmer Heard Her Moving In Room and Used His Shotgun

He heard some one moving about in the dark in his room, and thinking that it was a burglar reached for his shotgun and fired as quickly as possible. He heard the body fall, and before he could get a light there came the cry of an infant from the place where the body lay.

The entire charge of shot had struck his wife in the head and she died instantly, still clasping her six months old baby in her arms. The child was not injured.

BEVERIDGE SCORES PAYNE-ALDRICH BILL

Expresses His Antagonism at Indiana Republican Convention

Indianapolis, April 6.—The Indiana Republican convention adopted a platform that ignores the Payne-Aldrich tariff law and declares for only a protective tariff that covers "the difference between the cost of production here and abroad, and the creation of a non-partisan tariff commission." The convention met to name a full slate except for governor and lieutenant governor.

When Senator Beveridge, in his speech as temporary chairman of the convention, declared his antagonism to the tariff law passed at the preceding session of congress, his remarks were received with storms of applause from the delegates and the crowded galleries.

Repeating as a text, "I could not stand for it then, and I cannot stand for it now," Beveridge made an impassioned defense of the counts upon which he had based his vote in the senate against the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. He declared that it is unjust to laborers and consumers, and that some of the reduced rates are only pretence.

JAIL FOR BUCKET SHOP MEN

Five Operators In Cincinnati Also Fined $200 and Costs Each

Cincinnati, April 6.—The sentences of five members of the defunct "bucket shop" firm of Odell & Co., who were convicted in the lower court on a charge of using the mails to defraud, and sentenced to six months in jail and fines of $200 and costs each, were affirmed by the United States circuit court of appeals.

John Gorman, the sixth member of the firm, and who was sentenced with the others, was granted a new trial. The defendants whose verdicts were affirmed are: F. W. Foster, J. H. Stott, Edward Heil, Walter Campbell and A. C. Baldwin.

GOT $20,000 FOR HIS VOTE

Pittsburg Councilman Tells of Receiving Money From Savings Bank

Pittsburg, April 6.—Morris Einstein, councilman from the Twenty-fifth ward, went before the grand jury investigating the graft cases and confessed that he received $20,000 from the Workingmen's Savings Bank and Trust company for his vote on the city depositories ordinance.

Einstein told from whom he received the money, and as a result information may be made, according to a report from the district attorney's office.

Agassiz Honored In France

Paris, April 6.—At a meeting of the academy of sciences President Picard warmly eulogized the memory of the late Professor Alexander Agassiz of Cambridge, Mass., who died recently at sea on his way home. Agassiz attended a meeting of the academy only a fortnight ago.

Transit Company Says Strike Is Ended

Philadelphia, April 6.—Declaring that it had in its employ more than 5000 of the 7000 men needed for the present operation of its cars, the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company announced that insofar as it is concerned the strike of its former employes is at an end.

IN FASHION'S REALM

There is an interesting month ahead of us in clothes. Rebellion on one side and aggressive fight on the other, and thousands of buyers in between that will finally decide the question as to style.

It is to be devoutly wished that neither side will win. Let both have a victory, then the public will have a wide choice of fashions and a chance to do as it pleases in the way of gowns.

The struggle is between tight frocks and full ones, one-piece frocks and two-piece ones, barbaric trimming and Grecian simplicity. This is the way that forces are lined up as well as the layman can judge. The expert sees a less well-defined alignment, for ideas are confused, experiments are not forced, and even the same designer brings out half a dozen of each kind.

There is rarely a consistent fight in the ateliers of the designers. They reckon with their customers. They know that in order to live they must suit many minds and many figures.

This is the reason that one sees such a wide divergence in French gowns that are sent to America after the first of March from the Americanized French models that come over in January and February.

America is far too prone to take a few leading experiments, calling them leading fashions, pronounce them as final, and multiply them by a hundred.

Maybe there is a sinister intent behind all this, but I do not think so. It is probable that the truth lies in the excuse given for the uniformity of the advanced Spring gowns. It is this:

Paris does not demand its Spring fashions until March and the Americans demand them at the New Year. The smart and fashionable set in Paris wants warm-weather clothes for its annual flight to the cote d'azur, but it rarely demands advanced fashions in these gowns. It wants individual effects, new fabrics, and above all new millinery.

But the vast army of American department stores pays out thousands of dollars for quantities of advance models to be delivered here in January. These are usually bought by the wholesale manufacturers who duplicate a model a hundred times or more, and sell it to shops from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

This is why you see certain models in every shop almost at the same time. True, the shops do not offer clothes by the dozen in every case, for they have many original designs made up in their own workrooms and they have their buyers abroad send over individual creations; but these are the exceptions. The great mass of gowns and suits is made alike after one model that has arrived in January, and you are apt to meet it face to face on Fifth Avenue or in Colorado Springs.

It is in most of these advance gowns and suits that we see the fight between full frocks and scanty ones. It looks as though the designers were playing up every style in order to see what would take before they begin their really expensive gowns for the summer.

It is for this reason that clothes are, as I said, interesting just now. Who will win out? The exponents of the full peasant gown or the exponents of the simple tight one? This is a question that cannot be answered by any one person. Everybody is in the guessing class. After the season has settled we shall find out, but the result will be an indication of fashions for the summer, not for the spring.

The balance of opportunity lies with the full peasant gown, for the simple reason that we have had the scanty one with us so long. It has been called Directoire, Empire, Moyen-age. By whatever name, it was always narrow and was designed to show every curve, or lack of them, in the figure. We have been through three seasons of a sharply cut silhouette which revealed the lines of our corsets rather than ourselves.

We have gone through two seasons of practical elimination of underwear, as we have been reduced by fashion to about two garments, and the rest of us corsets. Fluffy underwear, full of lace and ribbons, have been put away in the cedar chest and the tights and princess combination have constituted our clothing under the gown.

It may not have been pretty, but it was infinitely more comfortable and less expensive than the frills and furbelows. We have saved on laundry bills and put the extra money into foot wear, for the latter has reached its apex with American women in point of quality and quantity.

But all this is entirely beyond the question of full and scanty gowns.

From present indications it looks as thought we might see a woman with a skirt 30 inches wide at the hem against one that is 3 yards wide and shirred at the hips. Both of these are actually designed and are at the shops for sale.

They present a queer contrast, especially when one remembers that they are both projected at the same time.

This exceedingly narrow hem is seen in evening gowns and on cloth suits. One white satin dinner frock is barely 30 inches wide at the edge of the hem, but it slopes up to somewhat more fullness at the waist, and is shaped into a peasant blouse that has neither tucks nor plaits, is cut out egg-shaped across the shoulders and has short kimono sleeves cut in one with it.

Over this is draped a tunic of black Chantilly lace, beginning about two inches above the waist and ending at the knees. The belt is the barabaric touch. It is made of enormous cameos of coral, framed in pearls and set in dull silver. This combination is elongated into a stomacher when it reaches the front. There is a touch of coral satin at the neck. There is everywhere that touch of coral on the French gowns.

A street suit made with this narrow skirt is of snuff-colored homespun serge. It is rough, rather hairy, very light in weight, and has a slight twill through it.

The skirt is cut four inches from the ground and is only a yard and a

This will be next to the last meeting of the club this season. The final meeting will be Saturday, April 30, and members will be allowed to bring a gentleman guest.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

The season of active meetings of the Quincy Women's club is drawing to an end as but two more meetings will be held before the annual.

No committee has given more pleasure to club members than the Art and Literature, of which Mrs. Charles Bickford is chairman.

Through the winter this committee has had classes in Current Events which have been particularly interesting. They also have had two delightful evening affairs the Beatrice Herford monologues at First Church chapel and a Shakesperian evening at the clubhouse when Thomas A. Watson of Braintree, read "A Winter's Tale."

Now again they promise another fine entertainment the next meeting of the club on Tuesday, April 12, being in their charge. It will be a "Paul Laurence Dunbar" recital by Miss Mildred Sheldon Bass of Wollaston, assisted by the Turner Sisters, two Southern ladies who are to sing Negro melodies with banjo accompaniment. It is in memory of their old South that they are striving to perpetuate the genuine old-fashioned Negro melodies, many arranged by them and as yet unpublished, which, sung as they sing them, with their artistic conception and perfect dialect, have been applauded in two continents by many distinguished personages. This combination promises to make a unique and very enjoyable entertainment.

The Education committee, Mrs. John D. Mackay, chairman ,is another active committee and their activity continues all through the summer season when other club members are enjoying the vacation. To make the summer schools a financial success they are to supplement the annual children's festival with an entertainment on Friday evening, April 29, at Alpha hall which promises to attract a large attendance. Mrs. H. H. Kitson, Quincy's noted sculptor is to assist and the living pictures to be presented will be posed by her. Parts of the "Chimes of Normandy" will be given by the full chorus and there will also be music and fancy dancing.

Tickets are already out for the entertainment and can be procured of the committee; of most of the club members, and of Miss Annie L. Prescott.

A meeting of the Executive Board will be held at the clubhouse Thursday morning at ten o'clock.

The Women's exchange will continue to hold sales of home cooked food on Saturday afternons from two to six o'clock at W. G. Shaw's furniture store and sales will be held at the club house on club days as usual.

ADAMS CHAPTER D. R.

One of the most delightful of the season was held by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution ,on Monday afternoon at the birthplace of President John Adams. There was a good attendance of members and friends and happy cordiality seemed to be in the very air.

A short business session was held with the usual reports. A communication was received from Miss Annie Wild, a member living in Providence, R. I., enclosing circulars and application blanks of the Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims, a national patriotic society organized at Providence in 1908. She thought members of Adams Chapter might like to join.

Mrs. Chapman made announcement of an entertainment to be given by the Dorothy Q. chapter of Boston on Saturday afternoon, April 30, at hotel Vendome. It would be a historical lecture on the Revolution and what led up to it, and illustrated with beautiful lantern slides.

An invitation was received from Randolph members to hold the May meeting with Mrs. Charles H. Belcher.

A reception to be held at the Adams house in June was discussed informally and Miss Hattie B. Pierce was made chairman and to select a commitee.

A fine program arranged by the hostesses of the afternoon, Mrs. George T. Magee, Mrs. Osborne Rogers and Mrs. E. G. Pratt, followed the business meeting. There were guitar solos by Mrs. James Neary, monologues by Mrs. George H. Brown, and readings of poems by Mrs. George G. Saville. Each lady excelled in her part of the entertainment.

Mrs. Neary gave two guitar selections and kindly responded to an encore, Mrs. Brown was very clever in her monologues and was prevailed upon to give a third, Mrs. Saville read an original poem written by her for the Quincy Historical society a few seasons ago which dwelt with the Dorothy Q. who was the wife of John Hancock. The program closed with the reading of Dr. Holmes' poem "Dorothy Q" who was the first and original Dorothy Q.

HOSPITAL AID ASSOCIATION.

The March meeting of the Hospital Aid Association was held the last day of the month with Mrs. Harry L. Rice of Adams street, with a good attendance. Mrs. W. Ward Whitcher, second vice president was in the chair. Reports were given by the secretary and treasurer showing a good cash balance on hand, and interest in the work of the Hospital. Mrs. Harry L. Rice was elected president to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Charlotte Burgess.

An invitation was extended members of the Hospital Aid to visit the Hospital on Thursday afternoon, April 14, and inspect the new ward.

Hospital work was discussed informally, after which Mrs. Rice served tea and social chat was enjoyed.

The April meeting on Thursday the 28th will be with the treasurer Miss Prescott, at 41 Spear street.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

In submitting the second annual report of the Quincy Catholic club it is a pleasure to review the amount of good work which has been accomplished since its organization, April 1, 1908.

The members of the club have responded to all calls and the public have been generous in their patronage of the social affairs given. We are indebted to the Knights of Columbus giving the use of their rooms one evening in the month, making it possible for us to have the most enjoyable entertainments and social hours.

At the close of this, my second year as president, I wish to thank our Secretaries and Treasurer for their untiring efforts in overseeing the business matters of the club, our Board of Directors for the very prompt and efficient way all cases brought to their attention have been cared for, the committees who have left no stone unturned to make our socials attractive and successful and each and every member for their loyal support and confidence shown in the officers and committees.

Mary Louise Gavin, President.

Only 15 Cities Made Larger Gain at Last Census

Although by the last census there were 20 larger cities in Massachusetts than Quincy, only 15 of the 354 cities and towns made an actual larger gain in population than Quincy in the ten years from 1895 to 1905. The remarkable growth of Quincy is not therefore confined to the last few years, but for twenty years or more Quincy has been one of the most progressive cities of Massachusetts. The trouble is some people have been slow in finding it out.

Here are the figures showing in order the actual gains of the most progressive cities and towns; there are 36 which gained over 3000 in population in the ten years:

	Gain	Percent
Boston	98,460	19
Worcester	29,368	29
Springfield	22,018	42
New Bedford	19,111	34
Lawrence	17,886	34
Somerville	17,072	32
Fall River	16,559	18
Cambridge	15,791	19
Lynn	14,688	23
Brockton	14,629	44
Everett	10,538	56
Lowell	10,522	12
Holyoke	9,612	23
Newton	9,237	33
Malden	8,329	28
QUINCY	7,364	35
Brookline	7,272	44
Fitchburg	6,612	25
Chelsea	6,025	19
Waltham	5,486	55
Revere	5,236	70
Medford	5,212	36
Leominster	5,086	55
Adams	4,649	59
Pittsfield	4,540	22
Attleboro	4,414	53
Taunton	3,852	14
Chicopee	3,777	22
Watertown	3,470	44
Beverly	3,417	28
Northampton	3,211	19
Plymouth	3,162	39
Salem	3,154	9
Arlington	3,153	48
Northboro	3,146	35
North Adams	3,015	15

Only three of the cities larger than Quincy made a better percentage of gain than Quincy, viz: Everett, Brockton and Springfield.

The number of towns showing a loss in population in the ten years was 123, while 231 made gains. The percentage of gain for the State was 20 while that of Quincy was 35. Bostons gain of 19 was below the average of the State.

—Inventive minds have been trying for a long time to hit upon some process by which old newspapers could be reduced to pulp and the ink extracted, and the pulp made into printing paper again. But the extraction of the ink has hitherto been unaccomplished. From Germany, however, comes the news that the paper pulp is treated with alkaline solutions so as to cause a change in the greasy part of the ink so that it ceases to hold the lampblack or other pigments, and they are easily extracted from the fibre by making an emulsion of the pulp with gelatinous silica.

IS IDENTIFIED AS MURDERER

Police Certain They Have Slayer of Miss Blackstone

LOCKET PROVES HIS NEMESIS

Contains Picture of Bertram Spencer's Mother and Sister and Was Found Near Scene of Robbery Four Months Ago—Accused Man Perhaps Implicated In Series of Robberies—Damaging Evidence Against Him

Springfield, Mass., April 6.—Bertram G. Spencer of West Springfield, 28 years old, was arrested and has been formally charged with the murder of Miss Martha Blackstone at the home of Mrs. Sarah J. Dow at Round Hill last Thursday night.

Both Mrs. Dow and her daughter Lucy, who were present when Miss Blackstone was killed and Miss Harriet Dow severely wounded by the masked intruder, identified him as the man who did the shooting.

A search of Spencer's home resulted in the finding of two black silk masks, such as the burglar wore, several loaded revolvers and much jewelry. Mrs. Dow and her daughter picked out from the loot thus secured a green Indian head belt and a bearl brooch which they immediately recognized as having been stolen from their house the night the murder was committed.

The police say that they are certain that not only has the murderer of Miss Blackstone been captured, but the desperado who has created a reign of terror throughout the city by his operations during the past two years or more is now in their charge. Other persons have identified Spencer as being the man who held them up in their own homes and robbed them at the point of his pistol.

The clue that led to the arrest was furnished by A. E. Blair, whose house at 56 School street was entered by a burglar four months ago.

It consisted of a locket of gold containing the pictures of two women and bearing the initials "B. G. S.," which was picked up by Charles I. Simons, father-in-law of Mr. Blair, directly following the robbery.

Entrance to the Blair house was gained by the use of a ladder which reached to a second story window. While the burglar was at work he was discovered by Mrs. Blair, and before he could be interfered with darted down the ladder and got away. The next day Mr. Simons, in looking about where the ladder had been set, found the locket. When the present case came up the locket was recalled and it was turned over to the Pinkerton detectives who were at work on the murder under orders from the citizens' committee.

All the "S's" in the directory were given consideration, and suspicion fell upon Spencer. His home was watched and officers came upon him in an alleyway behind Handy's packing house. He put up a desperate resistance and tried to draw a revolver, but was overpowered and arrested.

Mrs. Pierce, with whom Spencer formerly boarded, identified the pictures in the locket as being Spencer's mother and his sister. His mother is Mrs. Wilbur L. L. Spencer of Lebanon, Conn., and his sister is Mrs. Norman Pulz of this city.

Spencer came to Springfield about ten years ago from Lebanon, Conn., where his father is highly respected and conducts a general store. He first obtained employment on the Boston and Maine railroad as a brakeman.

During his work on the railroad he became acquainted with a Miss Amburg and their marriage followed two years ago. The couple have an infant daughter.

After getting through with the road he was given a job with the H. L. Handy company, where his father-in-law, Mr. Amburg, is foreman.

Spencer has admitted that the locket found near the ladder at the Blair home belongs to him. He told the police that in the hue and cry that was raised the night of the burglar's visit to the Blair residence he had participated in the search for the robber, and in trying to get over a fence in order to follow after the patrol wagon, which had been summoned, he must have lost the locket.

It is known that the revolver used to kill Miss Blackstone, and seriously wound her friend, Miss Dow, was a blue-colored weapon. The loot recovered from Spencer's home embraced a 38-calibre, blue-barrelled weapon, two black masks, made from mufflers, five gold watches, gold chains, lockets, trinkets and other material.

When the police questioned him he said that his sister had a fad for keeping jewelry and that much of the stuff belonged to her. Spencer denied any connection with the Blacktone murder.

Inheritance Tax Bill Rejected

Boston, April 6.—By a vote of eight to seven the legislative committee on taxation voted to report "leave to withdraw" on a bill to include property owned outside the commonwealth by a resident under the inheritance tax law.

ON A HUMAN PYRAMID

Prisoner Makes His Way Through a Skylight to Freedom

Boston, April 6.—Eight of the sixteen prisoners locked up in the detention room at the landing of the Deer island boat formed a human step ladder for John J. Flanagan to mount and force his way to freedom through a skylight in the roof. None of the other prisoners took advantage of the avenue to liberty.

In pyramid form, with Flanagan standing on the shoulders of three men who supported him, while the trio balanced themselves on the shoulders of four below, he forced the galvanized grating in the skylight, climbed out upon the roof and lowered himself into the yard of the Quincy Cold Storage company and escaped.

Flanagan was on his way to serve a two years' sentence in the house of correction for larceny.

AN ALIBI FOR WOLTER

Attorney Says It Establishes Innocence of Accused Youth

New York, April 6.—The alibi by which Albert Wolter hopes to escape the electric chair in his trial on the charge of murdering 15-year-old Ruth Wheeler received material support in the statement of Delia A. Cook, 17 years old, a former classmate of the dead girl, who declared that just the time when the district attorney's evidence shows Ruth was at Wolter's apartment she was with Ruth on a Madison avenue car.

Wolter's attorney said: "Miss Cook's statement establishes our contention that somebody else killed Ruth Wheeler, if, indeed, it was her body that was found."

EVEN PURPLE ROBE SET WITH DIAMONDS

House Will Give Anything to Roosevelt, Says Murdock

Washington, April 6.—Following the threat of Representative Murdock (Kan.) that he would move to discharge the committee on post roads from further consideration of the bill to extend the franking privilege to Theodore Roosevelt the committee has decided to report favorably the bill and relieve Murdock of such responsibility.

It is understood that the bill will come out of committee the latter part of the week. It has been before the house postoffice committee for several days, but there seemed to be no haste to take action upon it. Murdock said that he would bring the matter to the attention of the house, and, following the threat of the insurgent, the committee capitulated.

Mr. Murdock was asked if a bill giving the former president free use of the mails could pass in the house. He replied:

"Pass? Of course it will pass. A bill to give Mr. Roosevelt a purple robe embroidered with diamonds wouldn't fail to get through the house at this particular time."

Social Democrats Sweep Milwaukee With a Record Plurality

Milwaukee, April 6.—Social Democrats, led by Emil Seidel, candidate for mayor, swept Milwaukee in the municipal election by approximately 8000 votes, the largest plurality of any party in a similar contest in the history of the city. The Social Democrats will control the common council.

V. J. Schoenecker, Jr., Democrat, who ran second, was about 8000 ahead of J. M. Beffel, Republican.

The platform of all three parties were similar. They advocated home rule, initiative and referendum and regulation of the liquor traffic.

Cleveland, April 6.—Three-cent street railway fares on the Cleveland Traction system have not only proved a paying venture, but, after a month's operation, promise to give a handsome surplus to the railway company.

The statement just issued by the company, covering its operations for the month of March, shows a probable profit of 66 cents over the average car mile expense, or $13,964.24 over and above operating expenses and the 66-cent return allowed the stockholders.

CONGER'S HOT VALEDICTORY

Members of New York Senate Wincing From His Castigation

ALLDS' ACCUSER GIVES UP SEAT

Declares In Melodramatic Farewell That He Could Not Be Expelled—Does Not Seek to Excuse His Own Part In 1901 Deals—Says His Colleagues Knew True Character of Their Unfit Leader

Albany, April 6.—Many members of the upper house of New York's legislature are wincing over the vitrolic denunciations with which Senator Conger, resigning from the senate, bombarded his colleagues, whose hostile action, following Conger's expose and the retirement of Jotham P. Allds, precipitated the Groton man's resignation.

Declaring that talk of charges against himself, ostensibly because of his part in the bribery deal of 1901, was in reality because he had exposed one of their number, Conger made the direct assertion that many of the senators, knowing full well the character of Allds, had without protest sat for years in the same chamber with him. Knowing this, and knowing, too, the workings of the regime of which Conger asserted Allds was a part, they had still voted to elevate him to the leadership of that body, Conger scornfully pointed out.

In pronouncing his melodramatic valedictory, Conger, insistent that under legislative precedents he could not be expelled, repeated former declarations that the legislators who held sway in 1901, the palmy days of the Black Horse cavalry, were the worst band that ever infested Albany or any other capital.

His farewell, read from carefully prepared manuscript, was listened to with close attention by a full membership of the senate. Many of the senators, smarting under the excoriation, are hotly denouncing Conger and the advisers who counselled him to his course of action.

Rehearsing briefly the history of his expose, and lashing verbally his half stunned colleagues, Conger declared he did not seek to excuse his own part in the 1901 deals and that the one wrong he regretted most was that he had not then and there exposed the bribery. He then continued:

"I have no desire to remain a member of this great legislative body if my presence is to give offense to any of its members. I realize, and from the beginning have fully realized, that with the feeling here as it is my usefulness to my district as a member of this legislature is at an end. I cannot afford the expense of a further hearing and another trial, and I feel that I ought not to impose the expense thereof on the state. Needed legislation ought not to be longer delayed, and so I am going voluntarily to surrender my office."

Members of the senate quite generally expressed satisfaction at the final ending of the sensational case. The judiciary committee granted Conger's request to appear before it and the appearance was to have been made today. Meantime a movement had been started formally to try Conger.

TOOTERS OF SILENT NOTES

They Will No Longer Draw Pay as Band Concert Musicians

New York, April 6.—Dummy musicians, dressed up in red uniforms, puffed their cheeks and blew volumes of air in tongueless instruments in bands that played in New York parks, then split ther pay with the bandmaster.

Park Commissioner Higgins and Comptroller Prendergast have taken measures to do away with this latest form of municipal graft and say that hereafter no pseudo-musicians will be allowed to sit with the players and toot their silent notes. Inspectors will now keep their eyes on the bands.

Standard Oil to Lay Dust

Boston, April 6.—A contract for 400,000 gallons of oil to be used in keeping down the dust on Boston streets during the coming summer was signed by the mayor. The contract was awarded to the Standard Oil company of New York.

New Battleships For France

Paris, April 6.—The senate voted $32,000,000 for the immediate construction of two 23,500-ton battleships. One of these ships is to be fitted with turbines.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and His Holiness, the Pope

UTTERANCE OF MINISTER

Leads Roosevelt to Cancel Reception to Americans

TIPPLE'S ATTACK ON VATICAN

Former President Resents It and Rebukes Pastor of American Methodist Church—Attitude Regarding Failure to Call on the Pope Endorsed by All Italian Newspapers, With Exception of Clerical Organs

Rome, April. 6.—Theodore Roosevelt has called off the reception to the members of the American colony which had been set for tonight. This action can be traced directly to the issuance of a statement by Rev. B. M. Tipple, pastor of the American Methodist church.

The reception was intended to emphasize religious toleration, and Tipple's statement, it is declared, made that impossible.

Mr. Roosevelt does not propose to be used by any one to the disparagement of anyone else. Tipple called upon Roosevelt and upon his departure made public a statement in which he lifted the Vatican episode out of the realm of the personal and gave it a world-wide significance.

"Mr. Roosevelt has struck a blow for twentieth century Christianity," said Tipple. "The representatives of two great republics have been the ones to put the Vatican where it belongs. The Vatican is incompatible with Republican principle. This is a bitter dose for patriotic Catholics in America to swallow. I wonder how many doses of this sort they will take before they revolt. Is Catholicism in America to be American or Romish? If Romish then every patriotic American should rise to crush it, for Roman Catholicism is the uncompromising foe of freedom. The world advances, but the Vatican never."

Mr. Leishman, the American ambassador had arranged the reception at the American embassy in order that Roosevelt might meet the Americans in Rome, regardless of their religious faith, upon the neutral grounds of the embassy. The appearance, however, of Tipple's statement displeased many American Catholics, who forthwith manifested an intention of abandoning their purpose to attend the reception if the Methodists of the organization represented by Tipple were to be present. The matter was carried to Roosevelt, who, after hearing both sides, promptly asked Leishman to cancel the whole affair. This was done.

The sensation caused by the determination of Roosevelt not to be received by the pope upon the terms made by Cardinal Merry del Val continues unabated. The press is filled with columns on the subject. The papers of all shades of political opinion, with the exception of the clerical organs, support Roosevelt's attitude. Some of the violent anti-clerical sheets intimate that the affair may result in the downfall of the papal secretary.

Under the heading "The Bankruptcy of the Vatican," the Messagero points out that the pope recently received Emperor William, King Edward, Prince von Bulow, as well as Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, all Protestants, without attempting to impose restrictions which "would certainly have been rejected by them with as much indignation as Mr. Roosevelt displayed." The paper expects that the incident will create great resentment in America, "where the national pride is so strong," and result in a diminution of Peter's Pence from that country.

Marseilles Shipping Tied Up

Marseilles, April 6.—Navigation is at a complete standstill as the result of the seamen's strike.

quarter wide. It has a six-inch hem, which is stitched at the top in groups of three rows. There is a slight fullness in the middle of the back, at the waist line ,evidently obtained by bias cutting, but the front is strictly narrow and fastened down the middle with carved pearl buttons in dull tan.

The coat is spade-shaped at the back, rather short in front, is single breasted and fastened with these quite ornamental buttons. It has a square ,short collar of the material, stitched at the edge and extra long-waisted side and back seams.

In contradistinction to these scanty frocks which have just been brought out by master models there is a gown of exquisitely flowered chiffon cloth. The body ,or foundation, is iridescent with tones of green, yellow and blue. It is sprinkled with large soft pink roses, with violet lights over the petals. It is dropped over a foundation slip of turquois green satin. It is gathered at the waist line and finished with a hem narrower than the widths of the skirt, but sufficiently full.

There is a folded green satin belt which is brought twice around the waist, ending in points in front that are finished with jade buttons. The bodice is quite full and gathered at the neck and waist. It is cut out into that new round shape brought about by the peasant fashion ,and has three-inch sleeves that are cut in with the material and extend to the waist line under the arm.

These are banded with a silver net, in which are worked opaque green stones this banding runs also to the waist. Under this sleeve is one exactly similar in shape made of a delicate French lace that extends further on the arms than the top one does. There is a band of this lace at the neck.

This type of gown is called new. It is the only one that is among the many styles of the season. It has a number of variations ,and is made on these lines in all kinds of fabrics and for every hour. But, although it is new, it is by no means the only one. The scanty ones have a stronger place and are offered by the greatest designers and made up for the most fashionable women.

So to quote a vulgarism, you pay your money and take your choice.

Although the plaited skirt arrived with the first models and was made of the newest fabrics it has not gained an inch in fashion or popularity against the plain skirt, which is narrow, straight in its lines, closely fitted over the hips, and carries its own belt. It may be because skirts will fasten down the front or sides instead of at the back, and the plain one does this better than the plaited one.

When the latter is chosen the plaits are quite shallow and used only in groups, and they are so heavily weighted that they hang plumb from the point of the hips. Therefore, the effect is that of a scanty skirt. There is no sign of flare at the hem and no evidence of fullness when the wearer is walking.

Lines cling to the body, escape the instep, and often the ankle, and are always stitched at the hem.

The return of the Godet skirt was rumored all through January, but it is not offered in sufficient quantities to make it a reliable fashion. Women who had put theirs aside for a while thinking that they could be worn in the near future will not feel quite confident over bringing them out again.

The really correct skirts do not flare at any part of the seam. If a woman feels that the material she has in such a skirt is good and the color fashionable, she might find it worth while to rip the lower part of each seam, cut off the bias part, and straighten it.

It is difficult to define just in what essentials the coat suits of today differ fro mthose of a few months ago. They look somewhat like the ultra-smart ones that were brought out before Christmas, but so few of these had short coats that this change in itself is conspicuous.

The iridescent materials which are used for some of the tailor suits make them look entirely different from anything that has gone before. It is not in good taste to use colorings for the business hour that draw attention to the iridescence. There are so many quiet and simple tones that can be chosen instead, such as purple, blue ,and black. Green, gray, and black make another good combination, and two or three tones of brown with violet and a dull yellow make up well.

These are distinctly new and are quite effective against the plain blues, browns, and purples that we have worn for so long.

They are one of the novelties that are worth while, but we should earnestly desire a fastidious taste in using them. If we see too much of this iridescence it will weary us to the extinction of the fabric, and if we do not buy it in good quality and of sparing coloring we will look as though our garments had been left out in the rain all night.

There is the original foulard and the poplin foulard for our choice this season.

The latter is a novelty and has a good deal of charm. It may be a little too warm for steady wear in the summer unless one is going to a cool resort, for it has a slight touch of wool. It is heavily bordered. The latter is the pretty feature of it, and one that is found on the regular foulards as well.

These borders are a conspicuous feature of most of the summer gowns and one will see them in muslins, organdies, printed chiffons, Irish dimities. At present they are a popular novelty on foulard.

With the purple, dark blue, Havana brown, and puce gray the border is often in the same coloring but in black and white designs it is often carried out in color. Therefore, the majority of model frocks in this fashionable fabric are made up with this attractive and ornamental selvedge as a trimming.

There is a white foulard with a black dot, the whole surface satin-like, and the border is copied from a cashmere shawl in the dull red, yellow and black tones. It is a two-piece frock, with bodice and skirt separated and hooked at the inside belt. The skirt is scanty and barely touches the floor. It is plain and untrimmed.

There is a tunic that drops far down over the knee at the right side and is plaited at the left hip. All its edges are finished with the brilliant border. The blouse is a peasant one, fastening on the shoulder, cut quite plain, and straight with square sleeves of the fabric.

The neck and sleeves are finished with the border and there is a three-inch flat band of lace down the shoulder and top of sleeve which shows under the loops of dull red silk and black velvet buttons.

GAINS FOR THE "WETS"

Few, If Any, Going to "Dry" Column In Illinois Elections

Chicago, April 6.—Returns from local option elctions held throughout Illinois show gains for the wets. Several small cities changed from dry to wet, while few, if any, towns have changed from wet to dry.

Out of fifty-five cities, towns and townships thus far reported twenty-eight voted dry, twenty-six wet and one was a tie.

Plan to Help Nation's Ex-Presidents Is Killed In Committee

Washington, April 6.—A bill designed originally to grant pensions of $10,000 a year to ex-presidents as retired commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and after being amended so as to deny the intended relief for ex-presidents, was reported favorably to the senate.

The provision for widows of ex-presidents was redrafted so as to make it apply specifically to Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Harrison.

METROPOLITAN BOSTON

Bill Reported in Legislature To Take in Quincy

The Committee on Metropolitan Affairs reported unanimously on Tuesday, the Bennett bill to create a Metropolitan Boston to consist of the cities and towns in the various Metropolitan districts.

This idea of establishing a Greater Boston has been advocated in the Legislature, as well as outside, for many years. Former Representative March G. Bennett of Boston has had a bill in the House several years, somewhat similar to the measure now reported by the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs.

It is provided in the bill now reported that the Metropolitan park district, sewer district and water district and other towns and municipalities may be united into a Metropolitan Boston. The mayors of the several cities and the chairmen of the boards of selectmen of the towns shall constitute a Metropolitan Boston Council, to serve without pay.

This council, it is provided, shall sit in City Hall in Boston.

QUARRY AGREEMENT.

A strike at the granite quarries at Bethel, Vt., which has been on since February 28, was formally ended Monday, says the Barre Times, when the bill was signed by the Woodbury Granite company and its employes. The same bill had been signed by the E. B. Ellis company late Saturday. Supt. Griffiths signed for the Woodbury people at noon Monday, and work there was resumed in a small way in the afternoon. Work was started on the Ellis quarry at ten o'clock Monday.

At the time of the strike, the two companies were employing 70 men, and each company will start out now with about 25 men. Negotiations were delayed somewhat by negotiations for settlement at Barre, but the best of feeling exists between the companies and their men. The new bill is to remain in force five years, and a provision is added that in case differences shall arise meanwhile there shall be neither strike nor lockout while arbitration is being effected, and the decision of the board shall be final.

The wages of the quarrymen are increased from 25 to 27 cents an hour the first year, to 28 for the next two years and 28 1-2 for the last two years. Head derrickmen get 29 the first year, 30 the next two and 30 1-8 for the last two. Channel-bar runners get 29, 30 and 30 1-8; engineers 28, 29 and 29 1-8; blacksmiths 37 1-2, and 38 the last four years. This is for minimum, rather than average wages.

When a man is discharged, he must be paid by a check, instead of a due bill. Overtime is to count as time and one-fourth; work on Sundays and holidays, of which latter there are five, to count as double, and work is to be optional with the men.

BANQUET TO CAPT. ATKINS

Wollaston Man Who is Popular at Tampa

The following taken from the Tampa (Florida) Times wi be interesting to Wolaston readers, the home of Captain Atkins, where he and his family have many friends:

Representative, congenial and altogether delightful was the benquet tendered Capt. E. D. Atkins of the schooner Elisha Atkins by Captain J. W. Morris, W. M. Fielder and T. J. Mitchell, Jr., at Manuel Garcia's on the evening of March 24. The banquet was commemorative of Captain Atkin's fiftieth voyage to this port, and the keynote of the whole affair was that he should make fifty times fifty more voyages here, where a full cargo and a warm welcome always await him.

Captain Morris officiated as toastmaster, and the selection was a happy one.

Remarks appropriate to the occasion were made by every guest about the board. There were present Capt. E. D. Atkins, of the schooner Elisha Atkins, Captain Rogers of the schooner Edward H. Cole, F. S. Bowyer of the board of trade, Capt. J. W. Morris, E. Lamar Sparkman, Hilton S. Hampton, John Bradley, Capt. John Savarese, "Mike" Crown, D. E. Freeman, W. M. Fielder, T. J. Mitchell, Jr., J. Mack Cathcart and George Blardone.

GET CONFIDENCE.

Fred B. Rice of Rice & Hutchins has been interviewed as a director of the new continuation school in Boston. He says:

"The main trouble with our young men in business today is that they are compelled to work along in routine channels. This school will give a splendid opportunity to get in touch with other phases of the work in which you are engaged. Mr. Thayer has told you that confidence was the secret of success. The first thing, however, is to get confidence in yourself. You get that by being well grounded in a knowledge of your business."

VALUE OF OLD GLASS.

Philadelphia Eye Specialists Find Virtues In Amethyst Tinted Lenses.

A discovery of great value to those whose sight has been impaired by working under artificial light has been made in Philadelphia. It was learned the other day that amethyst tinted lenses made from window pane glass taken from houses in Walnut street would cure blindness caused by working on bright metal and under artificial light. This glass is simply ordinary window panes that have been in use for more than seventy-five years. In that time it has been turned an amethyst tint by the direct rays of the sun.

Philadelphia eye specialists are optimistic in their contentions for the glass, which is termed by the oculists and opticians "the Philadelphia glass." Some of the most widely known physicians in Philadelphia are using it in their daily practice and say that it has proved wonderfully effective and that the eye disorders that it will relieve and cure are many.

SHIP AS EMMET MEMORIAL.

Boston Woman Plans "All Irish" Transatlantic Liner.

A memorial to Robert Emmet, to be created by the subscriptions of Americans of Irish birth or descent, is proposed by Miss Anna Gallegher of Boston, to take the form of a ship to bear the name of the Irish patriot and to ply between ports in Ireland and America.

Miss Gallegher and those who are associated with her intend that the Robert Emmet shall be distinctly Irish—built in an Irish shipyard by Irish workmen and the materials used in the vessel's construction shall be of Irish production or manufacture. The furnishings of the vessel are also to be of Irish make.

Anti-matrimony Club.

A Bachelors and Spinsters' club has been organized by the members of the Neighborhood club of the Bergen Point Baptist church, Bayonne, N. J. The object of the twenty-five members is to discourage matrimony. The rules are few and simple. No. 1 prohibits the marriage of members, No. 2 provides that members under twenty-five years who marry shall be fined $25 and No. 3 that members over twenty-five years who marry shall be fined $50. Suspension in such cases is automatic.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

Look out for that lame wing.

* * *

* * *

I understand the committee on sports for Merchants' Week are considering having a Marathon race sometime during the celebration. I believe such an event would be one of the best possible attractions if started down on the South Shore, for besides bringing the people along to see the finish, it would also be frequently mentioned in Boston papers.

* * *

"Pop" Mahar, the live wire manager of the Rockland club, is at present engaged in coaching the candidates out for the baseball team at Boston college.

* * *

Don't forget that bowling match to be held at the Granite street alleys Friday evening between Kiley and Smith of Weymouth and Guinan and Lyons of Norfolk Downs. This is causing great excitement all over this section, and I look to see the Quincy alleys filled to the doors.

* * *

John T. Hafford, the ball player, who was killed by a train at Somerville last Friday evening, played on the Taunton club in the Old Colony league last season. I was personally acquainted with "Jack," and can recall several long drives made by him when a member of the Braintree club. One I will always remember was made at Merrymount park in a game with the Merrymounts when he caught one of Kolson's shoots and sent it far far away. During that year he batted for 302 in 17 games, making 3 two-baggers, four 3 sackers and one homer. Not bad, eh!

* * *

The coming Hayseed Karnival, which will bt held in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Wednesday evening, April 13, is sure to attract a large number of "city folks." I understand Eli Kornfield and Deacon Cowslip are going to show the natives a few things that will cause them to open their mouths in "truly Rube style."

* * *

The first game of the season in Quincy will be played Saturday afternoon at the Fore River athletic field between Fore River Apprentices and the Mechanics. Better go down and see the starter.

NEW APPENDIX DISEASE.

Appendicular Gastralgia Suggested as Name—Causes Stomach Pains.

A fresh series of indictments was brought against the appendix as a cause of human suffering at a meeting of the Royal Society of Medicine in London the other day.

Twenty-four operation cases, in which the chief symptoms were stomach pains due to an unrecognized disease of the appendix, were described. In fifteen cases the operation was undertaken for a supposed ulcer, either in the stomach or in the adjoining intestine, only to find that these parts were normal, while the appendix was diseased.

Dr. Herbert J. Paterson, who read a paper on the subject, suggested the name appendicular gastralgia for the new disease on account of its most prominent symptom, a stomach pain due to a disease of the appendix.

MORE MONEY IN GOATS.

There will be no cows' milk shipped to New York city from Sullivan county, N. Y., after April 1 if a plan being considered seriously by farmers is carried out. On or before that date a demand for a flat rate of 4 cents a quart the year round will be made upon the New York milk dealers, and failure to receive such guarantee will result in the farmers selling their cows and replacing them with Angora goats.

Meetings were held every night recently during two weeks at the farm houses near Monticello, N. Y., where the milk question has been thoroughly thrashed out. John L. Pelton, president of the Sullivan County Agricultural society, is most enthusiastic over the proposed plan. Goats will thrive in this mountainous country, though in many cases a farm of 100 acres won't pasture a small dairy of cows. C. B. Ward of De Bruce, Sullivan county, who has 2,000 Angora goats, is making more money now than he did with a herd of cows.

—The mayor of Wilkes Barre, Pa., has joined with the people of that city in the efforts to make the city more beautiful and has just issued a proclamation calling upon the citizens in general to aid in the movement for a "clean-up" period the first week in May.

OARSMEN TO HAVE BIG YEAR.

Bright Outlook For Rowing In Leading Universities.

GEORGETOWN ON DECK.

Washington Institution Will Send a Crew to Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) Regatta In June—Badgers to Row University of Washington.

DATES FOR THE BIG COLLEGE REGATTAS.

April 23—Harvard versus Navy at Annapolis.
April 30—Princeton versus Navy at Annapolis.
May 7—Columbia versus Navy at Annapolis.
May 14—Georgetown versus Navy at Annapolis.
May 21—American Henley at Philadelphia.
May 21—Syracuse versus Navy at Annapolis.
May 30—Harvard versus Cornell at Boston.
June 4—Washington versus Wisconsin at Madison.
June 2—Intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie.

For the next few months rowing will share the center of the college athletic stage along with baseball and track athletics in the east. In fact, rowing will be the last of all the branches of collegiate athletic activity to pass from popular attention this year, for the reason that when the Harvard-Yale race at New London, the concluding event upon the varsity aquatic program, is rowed all of the other athletic teams will have been disbanded for the season. The Harvard-Yale race, by the way, comes late this season, being scheduled for June 30, but even so the windup of the college rowing season is a day or two earlier than in 1909.

Whatever may be the unfortunate condition of college rowing in the two rival universities of California, where college faculties for some reason turned down the request for a dual race and necessiated the formation of independent varsity boat clubs, in the east college rowing is enjoying a decided boom. There are evidences of this on almost every hand. In this connection one might cite the return of Princeton university into the intervarsity aquatic field after an absence of nearly threescore years. Then there is the resumption of varsity rowing at Georgetown and the announcement that Georgetown will again be seen at the Poughkeepsie regatta; also there is the proposed invasion of the University of Washington's crack varsity eight, which is going to Madison, Wis., early in June to meet the Badgers' crew prior to the latter's departure for the Hudson.

The only thing lacking to give college rowing in the east the widest possible scope this year is the fact that neither the Navy nor Princeton is to participate in the intercollegiate regatta. The Navy came into the big intercollegiate event and did finely a few years ago, but pressure of work and training trips on the part of the middies caused the Naval academy superintendent to refuse to sanction a journey to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., this year. With Georgetown back in the field again the presence of the naval cadets at Poughkeepsie, in addition to adding a picturesqueness to the scene, would have made the field in the varsity eight oared race number seven starters, a record number.

As for Princeton, it could hardly be expected that the Tiger oarsmen would try their hand in such fast company this year. They have the right idea in Princeton on the matter of crew development, although they are still lacking a professional coach, a luxury that all the other universities supporting intercollegiate rowing enjoy. Princeton men realize that a varsity eight is never the creation of a day or even of a year. To put what would be at best an inexperienced crew into the intercollegiate regatta would be like inviting defeat, and a defeat just at this time might dampen a present healthy and growing enthusiasm for aquatics in Tigertown. This enthusiasm is to have its only outlet this year in a race with the Navy on the waters of the Severn river. But it is only a question of time when the Tigers, with their beautiful Carnegie lake and their splendid rowing equipment, will come into the thick of the fight and secure their share of winning honors.

The crew candidates—for varsity and freshmen boats alike—at all nine of the universities, where rowing is a part of the college athletic curriculum, are now in various stages of development, according to the individual opinions of the different coaches having the work in charge. In no branch of intercollegiate sport do coaches' ideas differ quite so widely as in rowing. Some stick hard and fast to one system and rely upon it religiously year in and year out, in victory and in defeat. Others are prone to experiment, to try out new ideas. But in the main there is no body of coaches whose beliefs are more deeply imbedded or less likely to be changed by outside suggestion, influence or pressure than the Courtney-Wray-Ten Eyck-Kennedy-Ward combination.

George L. Baxter of 27 Warren avenue, Somerville, has come to the assistance of the Daily Ledger in its efforts to obtain a complete list of the pupils of the Quincy High school during the first year. It was in April 1852 that the school was opened in the building on High School avenue, and Mr. Baxter forwards the original of the following petition which was sent to the School Committee in October of that year, as will be seen by the date:

Quincy, Oct. 4, 1852.

To the Honorable School Committee of Quincy:

We the undersigned, members of the Quincy High school, humbly beg to present this petition, praying that, instead of the present arrangement of two sessions a day, one session be substituted, commencing at 9 o'clock, A. M., and closing at 3 o'clock P. M., also that the two recesses consisting of fifteen minutes each, be united in one, for the purpose of dining.

The petitioners beg humbly to present that such an alteration of the present arrangement would confer upon themselves a very great favor, inasmuch as many come from a considerable distance and are under the necessity of remaining at the house during intermission at noon; also that many of us are now unable to reach home before dark, owing to the lateness of the hour at which the school is dismissed. We humbly pray that the petition be granted and as in duty bound will ever pray.

ANNUAL BALL L. O. L. LODGE

Many Out of Town Friends Among the Guests

The fifth annual dance of Quincy L. O. L. lodge was held Wednesday evening at Alpha hall, and proved to be one of the most enjoyable of the many social events held by this lodge. There was a good attendance of members of the lodge and their ladies and quite a party of out of town friends. Wilson's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing, and from 8 to 9 o'clock gave a fine musical program the numbers rendered being as follows:

March, "The Fairest"	Losey
Overture, "Lustspiel"	Kala Bela
Concert Waltz, "Confidences"	Waldteufel
Cornet Solo, Selected	Mr. J. Crowley
Selection, "Marcelle"	Luders
Finale, "Friendship"	Salser

The grand march which opened the dancing commenced a few minutes after 9 o'clock and was led by Andrew Stewart, chairman of the committee of arrangements, and his daughter, Miss Mary Stewart. Then came the floor director John H. Anderson and lady, and the assistant floor director Peter N. Carlson and lady. They were followed by the officers of the lodge and upwards of fifty couples. As the marchers made their last turn they were handed programs by Miss Evelyn Stewart and Miss Elizabeth Rundle.

The march was very prettily executed and at its conclusion the dancing was general until near midnight when during a brief intermission refreshments were served in Union hall.

Reception committee: Thomas Hewson, Andrew Stewart, Thomas Ross.

FAIR PLAY FOR GAS COMPANY

But Nevertheless Want $1 Gas At Early Date.

A largely attended meeting of the Quincy Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening, President Eugene R. Stone presiding.

The banquet committee reported a slight deficiency, but when final settlement is made with the caterer the accounts will probably balance. There was some little discussion over the bill of the caterer at the banquet, and it was left to the committee to settle.

Two business men were admitted to membership.

Frank F. Crane proposed resolutions to endorse the deepening and improving the channel of the Weymouth Fore river. These resolutions were the same as adopted by the City Council at a recent meeting. They were adopted and the secretary instructed to forward copies to the New England members of Congress.

The subject of electrification of railroads in the Greater Boston district was taken from the table and the committee on legislative matters instructed to attend future hearings that may be held on the subject.

The question of lower rates for gas and electricity was taken from the table and William B. Nichols assistant manager of the Citizens Gas Light Co., who was present by request was invited to address the board.

Mr. Nichols in his remarks went into the history of the gas question in Quincy. The situation four years ago was that the company which then owned the plant had 15 miles of mains and 650 takers. The mains were mostly confined to the Ward One with spurs to South Quincy and Wollaston. The company gave no service and it was impossible to get them to do anything. The company declared no dividends and what revenue there was went for salaries.

The Gas Commissioners looking over the situation went to Henry M. Whitney, then of the Dorchester Gas Light Co., and asked him to take it over. He sent his engineers to look over the ground and then declined. A little later a delegation of business men of the city aproached Mr. Richards of the Massachusetts Gas Co. He sent his engineers to look over the situation and declined. However, after many interviews and at the earnest solicitation of the representative business men, he said that he would take the company over. He stated that it would cost $500,000 to bring the plant up to date in four or five years, instead of the amount having been spread over a period of 25 years as it should have been. In view of this he said he could not expect any return for several years.

The company has in the four years laid fifty miles on new mains and now has over 3,000 takers. The price was reduced to $1.50 when the company took hold of the plant. The company has lived up to every promise made. It has been a great benefit to Quincy and to the owners of real estate to have a company ready to spend money to give up-to-date service.

This company is as much a separate company as it was in 1906. In demonstrating its ability to get a return for the investment it has got to stand on its own bottom. The question has been raised, how it is that Milton gets 80 cent gas and Quincy $1.50. Milton was a part of the old Dorchester Gas Light Co., and when that company became a part of the Boston Gas Light Co., Milton received the same service as other towns supplied by this company. The responsibility is right here because conditions were allowed to exist when the old company should have been forced to sell out or extend its mains, and keep pace with the demand.

When the Quincy plant was taken over it was a question of expending $100,000 in the erection of a plant in Quincy which would have been a nuisance, or buying the gas of the Boston Gas Co.

In 1906 the Citizens Gas Light Co. paid $650 in taxes. Today the present company pays over $5,000, so that the city is deriving some benefit. The best thinkers today say public service corporations should not be taxed, but that amount should be used in giving the public cheaper service. We claim that today we are giving the citizens of Quincy as good service as any city in the greater Boston district. We are always there ready to meet the people and citizens. The company has now begun to show some earning capacity. July 1 last year there was a deficit of $25,000. March 1, a dividend of one per cent was declared. This shows that we are getting our head above water. Practically all of our large extensions are complete but we are ready and willing to make other extensions where needed by the citizens.

In reply to a number of questions by members, Mr. Nichols said that the owners of the company stand ready to reduce the price as soon as we show that the company is earning a four per cent return on the money invested. As a rule, when reductions are made, there has been a falling off in receipts for the first few months and then a gradual increase. The Quincy company is not in the Boston Consolidated company, but belongs to the Massachusetts Gas Co., who are the owners of several plants. The black eye of the old company was a handicap the present company has to contend with. As for street lighting his company had not gone into that much for the reason that the rate in Quincy for commercial lighting was very low. As a matter of fact the State is paying more for its lights on the parkwoy than the city is, although it has been stated otherwise.

Remarks on the gas question were also made by W. H. Teasdale, who while anxious for $1 gas appreciated the fact that the present company was doing all it could for the citizens and was ready to make extensions without asking what return the extension would bring.

John A. McDonnell thought there was no reason why Quincy should not get as cheap gas as Boston. If Quincy men owned the stock it would be a different thing. He believed this question should be treated in a business way.

At this point a recess of fifteen minutes was taken while refreshments were served.

The discussion of the gas situation was resumed after recess, but some of the members were afraid to see their views in print, and requested that names be eliminated in the newspaper report. Among those who took part in the debate were A. L. Whitman, A. N. LaBreque, Mr. Wilson, J. A. Sedgwick, John R. Richards, T. L. Williams, Jacob Peterson, Charles Foster, John A. McDonnell, W. H. Berry.

After Mr. Nichols retired, President Stone, J. A. Sedgwick, John R. Richards, A. L. Whitman, W. P. Thompson, W. H. Teasdale, F. F. Crane and others spoke

It was voted that the president appoint a committee to visit the Boston officials of the company and urge a reduction in the price of gas at an early date.

The discussion of electric lighting was laid on the table until the next meeting, when officials will be invited to attend.

It was voted to protest to the Legislature against the passage of House bill 503 which prohibits further improvement of the Blue Hills reservation by streets.

FOURTH OF JULY.

After discussion it was voted that the president, vice president and secretary be a committee of the Board of Trade to arrange for a mass meeting to be held in the Council chambers, at which all the organizations of the city be requested to send three delegates to arrange for a grand Fourth of July celebration. The president has a list of 65 organizations in the city whom he hopes to interest.

A public meeting of the Board of Trade was favored at an early date, probably April 27 at Colonial hall, to take steps to enlarge the membership of the board.

Merchants' Week was endorsed and suggestions made that the Board of Trade decorate and cooperate.

G. B. Bates read a lengthy letter attacking the administration at City Hall, which provoked some discussion.

It was nearly midnight when the meeting adjourned.

—An electric machine has been made to wash and purify the air in any room.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Commencing today cars will be run from Neponset to Franklin street via Dorchester avenue and Federal street, during the period of rush hours, morning and early evening, leaving Neponset at 6.15 A. M., and each 15 minutes to 8.30 A. M., 4 P. M. and each 15 minutes to 6.15 P. M. If through cars on this schedule could be run from Quincy all day our service with Boston would be much improved. At present the delays at Neponset on through cars is altogether too long, and seemingly unnecessary. There is an opportunity to make much better time to Boston than at present.

And this suggests that the Board of Trade and Civic League of Quincy should protest vigorously against the car service from the South terminal station, Boston, especially to the Back Bay section, Brighton, Brookline, Cambridge and beyond. There should be one or more lines which should pass the station on the Summer street side which would take passengers to the Back Bay without change. Why not through Federal, Kneeland and Elliot streets to Park square and thence to Boylston street and Huntington avenue or from Boylston to the subway.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The crusaders for cleaner thoroughfares in cities are meeting with success in putting through the Legislature a bill that makes it a punishable offense to throw rubbish into the street. In this respect there is a very general movement for town improvement in Massachusetts. Indeed, it may be said to reach throughout the country. So much has been printed on the subject that communities in almost every section have been stirred to action. A powerful factor has been the women's clubs. In Philadelphia the Civic Club, a large organization of women working for the public welfare, some time since petitioned the municipal authorities for the right to take charge of one city block, to keep it clean as an example of what could be done in the way of improvement.

The throwing of old newspapers and bits of waste wrapping paper into the streets does more, perhaps, than anything else to give an untidy appearance to towns and cities. Let any one take a single glance over any thoroughfare through which he passes and the truth of this assertion will be apparent. The nuisance should be abolished. In foreign cities the person who throws a scrap of paper on the street is arrested and prosecuted. The new law here will probably have a repressive effect. Yet it would seem that such a statute ought not to be necessary. The remedy for the trouble is so simple. The streets would be comparatively clean and could be easily kept so if people would only refrain from throwing papers and refuse into them. We clutter them up by a direct act and then regret that their appearance is disreputable. Why not stop casting anything at all into the streets? If only each one will do his part, the reform will be prompt and thorough.—Christian Science Monitor.

Locked In With a Maniac.

The writer was once closeted with a patient whom he had no suspicion of being mad until the latter got out of bed, turned the key of the door and preferred a mild request to the writer to have his throat cut, handing him at the same time an open pocketknife, which he produced from underneath his pillow. I objected to the knife as being too small for the purpose and begged to be allowed to go for my case of amputating knives, with which, I explained, the operation could be performed with greater neatness and dispatch. He unlocked the door at once, binding me over to secrecy and urging me to lose no time in returning. I drove home, reported the case to the authorities and came back with assistance. He was secured with great difficulty and sent to the asylum.—London Tit-Bits.

Suggestions For Decorating the Covers of Guest Books.

As a little addition to a well furnished guest room there is a book in which each visitor writes his or her name and the date of the visit. It is a pretty idea, and when decorated with designs or colors that harmonize with the room this booklet gives an air of completeness which is very gratifying to a guest.

Suggestions are here offered for decorating the covers of guest books. Paints or dyes will be found to give satisfactory color results, and the designs you will trace from the drawings.

If you decide to try the circular design transfer the drawing by means of carbon paper to the front cover of a plain linen backed blank book. Any shade of paint looks well. Of course it is best when it reflects the color scheme of the room. The conventional design is always in good taste. The letters look well in the same color or in black ink.

Yellow on gray linen or blue on tan is a charming combination. Black is always permissible for outlining or backgrounds.

A daisy design is very effective in white and pale green on any dark background—brown, for instance. It is simple and can be dashed off in a few minutes.

Pansies for thoughts of your guest furnish another form of easy decoration. In so many colors does this saucy flower come that it offers endless possibilities.

There are the yellow and white combinations for your yellow room and all shades of purple for the lavender guest room. Blue, too, can be made to color the petals, and brown and reds are also ready for your use.

Paint the stems with pale green. In spring or summer a guest book of this design is irresistible beside a bowl of the fragrant flowers.

HOW THEY COMPARE

The New Argentine Battleship and the Wyoming

Comparison will naturally be instituted between the Argentine vessels and our latest Dreadnoughts, the Wyoming and Oklahoma. They are fifty feet longer, have about 3 feet more beam, about a foot less draft, and their displacement is 1500 tons greater. The ships are as fully protected, and if expectations are fulfilled, they will have two knots greater speed, a result to which their greater length and finer lines will largely contribute.

The armor plan appears to be about the same, with the addition, however, of a certain amount of special protection against underwater attack. Because of the emplacement of the two central turrets diagonally, the end-on fire, both fore and aft, will be double that of our ships; the broadside fire will be about the same.

A study of the inboard profile reveals a symmetrical disposition both of the gun and motive-power weights and one is impressed with the fact that, with the exception of the aftermost pair of guns, the battery is carried high above the water upon a lofty unbroken spar deck extending some 450 feet throughout the length of the ship.

Another excellen feature is that the secondary battery is mounted entirely upon the main deck, or one deck higher than in our own Wyoming. Hence, these guns should be capable of service in practically any weather in which an action could be carried on. The main battery is mounted in two stepped turrets forward and a similar pair aft, and in the two turrets placed en echelon amidships.

The single military mast, built apparently of open steel trusswork, is placed exactly at the centre of the ship, and below it are the engine-room compartments containing the propelling turbines. Immediately fore and aft of the engine-room are the turret hoists and ammunition rooms for the central pair of turrets. Fore and aft of these are the two separate sets of boiler-room compartments; while fore and aft of these compartments, again, are the turret hoists and ammunition rooms for the forward and after pairs of turrets.

The separation of the one military mast from the neighborhood of the forward turrets is advantageous, inasmuch as it is thereby removed from the favorite aiming point of modern gunnery, which is a little forward of the base of the foremast.

The position of the six-inch battery, with a protection of eight inches of armor below and six inches in front of it, must be considered very satisfactory, although the protection is not equal to the nine inches afforded to the five-inch battery on our latest ships. Excellent also is the protection of the smokestack to a height of fifteen feet above the spar deck by a special steel plate 1 1-2 inch in thickness.

The following particulars are of interest:

	Argentina Ship Ft. In.	U. S. S. Wyoming Ft. In.
Length	604.00	554.00
Beam	96.00	93.2 1-2

LEE STATUE CONDEMNED

Yankee Veterans Want It Removed From National Hall of Fame

Boston, April 7.—At the Grand Army state encampment in this city there was a wild burst of enthusiasm over the drawing up and passing of resolutions demanding that Virginia withdraw the statue of Lee from the national hall of fame at Washington, and petitioning congress to order the removal of the statue if Virginia failed to act.

The entire body of delegates arose as one man, cheering wildly. A bugler leaped to his feet, sounded the first notes of "America," and the resolutions were passed with the enthusiastic singing of the national hymn.

After two hotly contested ballots, George A. Hosley, past commander of Post 11, Charlestown, was elected department junior vice commander, the only contested place.

HUB BUDGET PRUNED

Appropriation Bill $61,089 Less Than Figures Submitted by Mayor

Boston, April 7.—The city council committee on appropriations yesterday completed its work on this year's annual appropriation bill, finally deciding to cut in all $61,089 from the budget submitted by the mayor.

The committee cut the appropriations of ten departments and raised the appropriations of three. The budget as it will go into the council next Monday amounts to $18,788,366, which is $362,311 less than that submitted by last year's committee on appropriations; just $1,005,519 less than the department heads asked the mayor for, and $515,309.90 more than was actually spent by the various departments and for the sinking fund, etc., during the year 1909-10.

SAYS "EVIL GENIUS" COMMITTED MURDER

Wolter Declares He Will Be Saved When It Is Necessary

New York, April 7.—The strangest defense ever advanced in a murder case was presented when Albert Wolter declared in his cell in the Tombs that a man who had been his "evil genius" during the time he has been in New York killed 15-year-old Ruth Wheeler in the Wolter apartment.

"This man would stop at nothing," said Wolter. "He gained a strange control over me several years ago. He frightened me, browbeat me, blackmailed me. Yet he always professed to like me very much. I now have a letter from him in which he admits having killed Ruth Wheeler and says he will come forward and save me when it is necessary.

Bloodhounds Try to Locate Robbers Who Killed Two Bank Men

Pittsburg, April 7.—For fifty miles around the city and county detectives are searching for the band of four robbers who held up the Victor Banking company's offices in McKees Rocks and escaped after the murder of Banker Samuel Friedman and his assistant, I. Schwartz.

Bloodhounds were started on the trail, and an automobile load of officers armed with riot guns covered the road to Steubenville without finding the men.

NO WALKOVER FOR HULTMAN

Weymouth Man Says He is Sure of Senatorship

It is not believed that the boom for a third term for Senator Hultman of Quincy will make much progress in the light of what has happened in past senatorial contests in the First Norfolk district. Hultman made his fight on the third term argument when he defeated Senator, now Justice, Jenney of the superior court, a man whose ability was recognized by every voter in the district. Hultman's friends say that they want him returned because he will be in a better position to help Quincy get into a Republican congressional district than a new man would be.

Wherat the friends of Ex-Representative George L. Barnes of Weymouth arise to say that Mr. Barnes, who is regarded by them as the logical candidate for the place this fall, will be in just as good a position to help take Quincy out of the 10th congressional district and put it into the Weeks district as Senator Hultman.

Barnes' friends also assert that he is not only a candidate for the nomination, but that he is in to win, and nothig that Hultman or his friends can do will sidetrack him. Barnes' friends claim that if a man like Senator Jenney can't get away with a third term surely Hultman can't succeed in doing it. The Republicans of the district, say the Barnes men, are against third terms, and they mean to enforce the unwritten law of the district.

FORTUNE FOR A FRANS HALS.

Description of Painting For Which Otto Kahn Paid $500,000.

A magnificent "Family Group" painted by Frans Hals, the famous painter, for which Otto H. Kahn, the New York banker, recently paid $500,000, outbidding J. P. Morgan, and which has been lent to the Metropolitan museum, came from the collection of Colonel Warde of Westerham. It was bought by John Warde at the William Bristow sale held in Dover street, London, in 1759 and remained in the Warde family, unknown to the public, until 1906, when it was shown in the winter exhibition of old masters held at the Royal academy in 1906 and aroused the astonishment of the art critics that "in these days of connoisseurship and curiosity," as the London Times put it, "such a chef d'oeuvre of one of the greatest of portrait painters should have hung for all these years entirely unknown in an English country house."

The group is generally conceded to be much finer than the one now in the National gallery at London and fully equal to, if it does not surpass, any of the famous groups at Haarlem. The workmanship is free and vivid, and the period is assumed to be about 1640, when the painter was between fifty and sixty years of age and in the prime of his power. He married his second wife, Lysbeth Reniers, in 1617, and it is her intelligent face that is depicted with that subtle mingling of seriousness and humor in the expression which Hals knew so well how to interpret with his slashing and exact stroke.

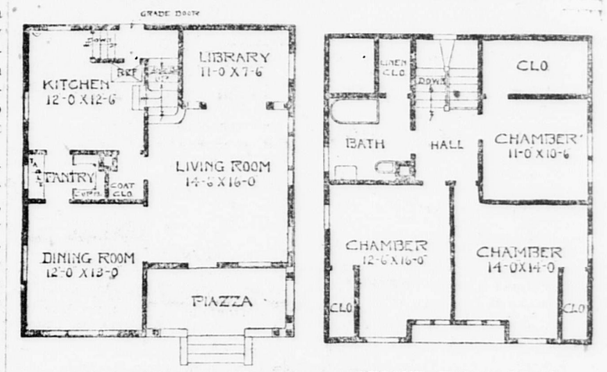
Design 844, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN. SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

A very popular house plan because it furnishes all the requirements of a complete home. A special feature is the arrangement of the stairs. A combination stairs leads from both the living room and kitchen. There is also a combination underneath, an entrance to the kitchen and cellar stairway. The living room is large, and adjoining is the library or den. The dining room is placed in the most pleasant part of the house, the front, where one can view the street. Access to the kitchen is through the butler's pantry. Size twenty-eight feet wide and thirty-two feet deep. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $2,400.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 844 for $16.

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

A good deal of interest and anticipation for the presentation of the play "The Amazons" by the Seniors is aroused. Saturday, May 7, will probably be the date. The "Deutsche Verein" held another very enjoyable meeting Friday afternoon. After the reading of the reports of the secretary and treasurer the quintet composed of Richard Favorite, Forrest Royal, Theodore Corey, Winthrop Safford and Chester Gurney sang "Der Papst." Later they gave "Robin Adair." Between these, all sang "Der Kaiserlied," "Deutschland uber Alles," and "Der Tannenbaum." Then a German play "Versalzen" was read parts being taken as follows: Arnold—Alfred Hanson; Hertha—Marion Hicks; Senerg—Enor Lundin; Trudchen—Nettie Pote; Vitkarl—Nathaniel Warshaw; Erlreicha—Dorothy Packard. This play was presented in a most creditable manner with all parts well taken. Especially well was that of Hertha. The success was very marked. The plot of the play deals with the efforts to cook of the young ladies who know very little about cooking but attempt to prepare a meal, and the complications that follow. The food is much oversalted, "Versalzen." Guests arrive near the mealtime. As may be judged, the interesting complications gave opportunity for clever acting. It is putting it mild to say that the audience enjoyed it. After this games were played, and then dancing was in order. The club had as guests four graduates of the school, Allison Marsh of Amherst college, Glover Howe and Harold Gore of Amhurst "Aggie," and Charles Hull.

There have been a number of visitors at school this past week. Monday over thirty Wellesley seniors who intend to become teachers visited the school to study methods. Among the other visitors was Master Wright of the English High, Boston, of the mathematics department. Miss Blanchard also visited at school Monday.

Tuesday there was a class meeting of the Seniors immediately after school in the hall. The members of the class party, reception and picture committees were elected. It was voted that the class party committee at Mr. Howlett's suggestion, confer with the English teachers in regard to the selection of class historian and class prophet.

It was voted to give a reception to the Juniors April 15, or a week from Friday night. The same committee which arranged for Mr. Cleveland's reception will act for this one. This committee is Miss Lillian Mead, Leon Brown, and Aaron Gould.

The other committees are:

Class Party—Bertha Given Lillian Mead, Reginald Sprague, Roy Sidelinger, Dorothy Frye, Richard Favorite and Mildred Dunham.

It was reported Wednesday that orchestral music at the High School graduating exercises has been abolished by the Somerville High School committee. The committee also voted that in presenting diplomas to the graduates it be done from their seats, rather than by the graduates walking across the platform and having them handed to them by the chairman of the school board. The hiring of carriages to convey the graduates to and from the place where the exercises are held was also condemned.

The senior class of the High school at Bridgewater and its chaperones arrived home early Saturday from their Washington trip. The class had a delightful time, leaving home a week ago Saturday night and taking the boat for New York. From New York they went to Philadelphia and from there to Washington, where they visited Mr. Vernon and several other historic spots and also shook hands with President Taft March 30.

A SANER FOURTH.

Only five of the fifteen appointed on the Saner Fourth committee met on Wednesday evening, and a majority of them were skeptical of the movement. All were in favor, however, of eliminating some of the objectionable features of the Fourth, such as the use of large explosive crackers, and the noise and deviltry of the "Night before."

Chief of Police Burrell is a member of the committee, and was requested to urge the Mayor to enforce the city ordinances relative to the use of fireworks.

It was voted to cooperate with the Board of Trade in an effort to celebrate the Fourth of July this year along sane lines.

George H. Brown was elected chairman of the committee and D. King secretary.

—What shall we do with our ex-Presidents is a question frequently discussed by the newspapers, and a proposition is now before Congress providing for a pension of $10,000 a year, on which, however, the Senate committee has recently voted adversely. As Mr. Roosevelt is our only living ex-President, and as he has abundantly demonstrated his ability to take care of himself, it may be well to defer action on the matter until some more fitting occasion. It would be a great stretch of imagination to picture Theodore Roosevelt in the role of a pensioner on the government.

A TALK ON COURTESY

At Mothers' Day of the Child Nurture Club

Mrs. Herbert H. Albee opened her beautiful new home on Highland avenue for a meeting of the Child Nurture club on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Robert E. Park, president, presided. Mrs. Percy L. Davidson, secretary, read the reports of the last meeting. Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham explained why it was thought advisable to change the name of the club, and it will be voted upon at the next meeting.

Mrs. Edward A. Chase, to whom it was a pleasure to listen, gave a delightful informal talk on "Courtesy." She said it is more than politeness. Sometimes one wonders if it is a thing of the past, but it is not. Mothers were responsible for developing it in their children. She gave illustrations of curtesy that has come into her own life; one in a Nova Scotia home, another in a store; and said it is a serious matter and makes one mighty thoughtful that the women must set a high standard of courtesy. Mrs. Chase also spoke of the habit of reverence, and paid a tribute to those who worship in Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches.

Mothers must expect things of their children. This hope and expection brings out the best in them.

It was "Mothers day" and several of them gave charming reminiscences of their childhood days. Refreshments of delicious punch, homemade cake and confectionery were served. The decorations were daffodills which filled several vases on the tables and mantles.

Representative W. R. Thomas of this city has been appointed on the committee of the House to arrange for a minstrel show to be held at the close of the Legislature in place of the usual mock session.

Another report was turned down in the Legislature on Wednesday, when the House substituted by a vote of 113 to 102 in favor of a bill providing for a trial by jury in cases of contempt of court committed not in the presence of the court. Representatives Thomas and Langelier were with the majority.

Mrs. Lars Anderson who is to christen the new torpedo boat to be launched Saturday at the Fore River shipyard has one of the most beautiful estates in Brookline. The torpedo boat is to be christened Perkins for Mrs. Anderson's father the late Commodore Perkins, U. S. N. The Andersons go abroad in May.

Our friends and neighbors who live here in the village are very anxious to know where all the live stock is going that is seen in our streets every day. The fact is that our good friends 'the farmers' are exercising them and gettting them accustomed to the cars, etc., so that they will not "cut up" when they take them out on the evening of the Big Karnival that is to be held at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening April 13.

GIVES INDIANA A WIDE BERTH

President Cancels His Proposed Visit to Indianapolis

HIS FRIENDS SEE A MISTAKE

Action of Republican Convention, Which Ignored Payne-Aldrich Tariff and Applauded Beveridge's Attack Upon It, Said to Have Angered Chief Executive—High Tariff Leaders In House Are Also Disturbed

Washington, April 7.—Announcement was made at the White House that President Taft will not visit Indianapolis on his forthcoming western trip. The announcement was not accompanied by much of an explanation. Secretary Carpenter simply said that in making up the itinerary it had been found advisable to omit Indianapolis.

In view of the fact that the chief executive several days ago definitely decided to spend the afternoon and evening of May 5 in the Indiana capital, the announcement has aroused much curiosity and prompted a great deal of comment. The general talk here is that the president is offended at the action of the Indiana Republican state convention.

In the platform adopted lavish praise was given Roosevelt while the president received scant notice. The Payne-Aldrich tariff was officially ignored by the convention, but bitterly denounced by Senator Beveridge in his opening speech, which was tumultuously applauded.

The itinerary for the coming trip was printed and sent to the railroad officials a day or two ago. It provided for a stop at Indianapolis from 2 o'clock in the afternoon of May 5 until midnight of that day.

Some of the president's closest friends, when they learned that he had ordered Indianapolis stricken from his itinerary, expressed deep regret and said frankly that they feared he had made a mistake. They were unwilling to believe that he had decided to avoid Indianapolis because of displeasure over the action of the Republicans of the state. The suggestion was made by some of his friends outside the White House that he might be persuaded to reconsider his determination not to make a stop at Indianapolis.

In view of the circumstances surrounding the convention of the Indiana Republicans it was said by other friends of the administration that if the president spoke at Indianapolis at all he would more than likely feel compelled to express again his well-known views regarding the Payne-Aldrich bill.

It was argued that if the president should do this it might be interpreted adversely to Senator Beveridge, and rather than be put in that attitude the president will give Indiana a wide berth in his forthcoming visit to the middle west.

No matter what Senator Beveridge's attitude toward the administration may be—and the president told several of his callers, it is said, that he had no doubt in his own mind on that subject—he did not care to be drawn into the Indiana fight in any way. The president is anxious for Republican success in Indiana and hopes that the Republicans under whatever leadership they choose may be able to turn the tide against the Democrats.

The platform adopted by the Indiana Republican state convention doesn't meet the approval of high tariff leaders of the house. Their views were expressed by Representative Dalzell, chairman of the committee on rules, and a member of the ways and means committee. "The Beveridge platform is not a Republican platform," said Dalzell. "From my point of view, I do not see how any self-respecting Republican can vote for the candidate on that platform."

NEGRO SOLDIERS GUILTY

Washington, April 7.—The military court of inquiry which during the last year has been investigating the shooting up of Brownsville, Tex., finds that the evidence clearly sustains the charge that the shooting was done by soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry, (negro). VAHEY IS DISPLEASED

Asked to Withdraw From Gubernatorial Race In Bay State

Boston, April 7.—A big political development yesterday was a meeting between James H. Vahey and Mayor Fitzgerald, at which the latter told the candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor that in his opinion he should withdraw from the contest.

Mayor Fitzgerald told Vahey that in his opinion Congressman-elect Foss, because of his victory in the Fourteenth district, was easily the most available man to nominate as the Democratic candidate for governor, and that there was no question in his mind but that he could defeat Governor Draper.

Mr. Vahey is said to have been very angry at the attitude taken by the mayor and to have practically told him that he had better mind his own business and stick to Boston politics.

OVER CLEVELAND'S GRAVE

YEARS OF STRIFE IN CUDAHYS' HOME

"Jack's" Wife Relates Some of Her Domestic Troubles

Kansas City, April 7.—Mrs. "Jack" Cudahy, whose husband recently slashed Jere F. Lillis, whom he found in the Cudahy home, has told her story of domestic troubles.

"You see," she said, "I do not consider I have owed any duty or allegiance to 'Jack' Cudahy for the last four years—I was so young when I married—I was only 19 and Mr. Cudahy only 23.

"And then my babies. They came and I grew old mentally. I demanded more intellectually than he could give. And for six years after we were married he never dined with me; he would go to his room and sleep until 2 and 3 in the morning and then would want to be served.

"For years I was awakened at that time to prepare a meal for him. If I remonstrated, he used the most violent language and demanded that the servants be kept up to await his orders. If I had callers they were not exempt from his insults."

"JEKYLL-HYDE" ADMITS GUILT

Miss Blackstone Was Slain by Bertram Spencer

HE MAKES FULL CONFESSION

Large Lot of Jewelry Found In His House Gathered While He Was Pitting His Skill Against Skill of Police Investigators—Personal Vanity and Love For the Melodramatic Kept Him on Career of Crime

Springfield, Mass., April 7.—The commission of a series of burglaries, culminating last Thursday night in the murder of Miss Martha B. Blackstone and the serious wounding of Miss Harriet P. Dow, was admitted by Bertram G. Spencer, the young clerk arrested at his home in West Springfield, in his confession to Captain Boyle, chief of the detective bureau of the Springfield police department.

In the confession, which the police say is an amazing one, personal vanity was given as the reason for most of the burglaries. The fascination of reading the newspaper accounts of his exploits, Spencer confessed, furnished the motive for continuing the burglaries, and he also experienced considerable delight in pitting his skill as a criminal against the skill of the police investigators of his crimes.

To him, his burglaries were a game, himself on one side and the police on the other, and the honors were with Spencer for two years, the police being baffled at every turn until Tuesday, when Spencer was arrested on the strength of a locket bearing his initials and the portraits of members of his family, which he had dropped outside of a house he had entered.

In his confession, Spencer said that he did not intend to kill Miss Blackstone or wound Miss Dow in the Dow house on Thursday night. He said that when he saw the women in the house he fired his revolver on the impulse rather than with any intention of injuring anyone. He said that he had never entered a house with the intention of shooting any persons who might interfere with his operations, but believed that he might intimidate persons with the weapon if he should be detected in his burglaries.

A fondness for good society is one of the characteristics of Spencer revealed by his arrest. He also had a love for the melodramatic, for time after time he suddenly appeared, masked and with drawn revolver, in the midst of a card party or other gathering, sternly commanding compliance with his orders under pain of death.

A review of his exploits shows that he seemed to enjoy the situations which he thus created, as much for the sensation experienced by those he surprised as for the loot which he took. There is nothing to indicate that he ever tried to dispose of his booty, for hidden in his home, where his wife had never seen them, were found ninety-nine pieces of jewelry and six watches.

What is considered proof that Spencer began his career of crime before he took his clerkship with the Handy company is offered by Dr. C. S. Pratt of Brattleboro, Vt. Dr. Pratt's home was burglarized on July 23, 1908, and from it was taken a gold ring. This ring was among the loot found at Spencer's home. On the date of the burglary Spencer was employed as a brakeman on a Boston and Maine train which ended its run at Brattleboro.

Spencer was arraigned in the Springfield municipal court. He was not allowed to plead to the charge of murder that had been preferred against him, and his case was continued until April 15.

KING EDWARD HAS THE GRIP

Is Compelled to Remain Indoors Greater Part of the Time

London, April 7.—The health of King Edward, who since he went to Biarritz has spent much of his time indoors because of the grip, induced by the aggravated inclement weather, does not, according to the Biarritz correspondent of The Daily News, justify the optimistic statements that have been semi-officially issued.

The correspondent says that the king has had a severe attack of influenza and has not yet recovered from its after-effects.

FRANK N. HOFFSTOT
Leading Business Man Now In Bribery Scandal

HOFFSTOT HIT BY GRAND JURY

Steel Millionaire Implicated In Pittsburg Graft

ALLEGED BRIBE OF $52,500

Paid to Stewart, It Is Charged, to Influence Votes of Councilmen to Choose Banks In Which Accused Was Interested to Become Depositories of City's Money—President Makes No Defense

Pittsburg, April 7.—The sensation predicted in the Pittsburg municipal corruption expose occurred when the grand jury returned a long presentment in which it recommended the indictment of Frank N. Hoffstot, president of the Pressed Steel Car company, and one of the most prominent business men in the country.

Simultaneously in open court Emil Winter, president of the Workingmen's Savings and Trust company, pleaded that he had no defense to make to the charge that he gave a $20,000 bribe to ex-Councilman Morris Einstein.

The following in abbreviated form are some of the most startling findings in the grand jury's presentment made public last night:

That Frank N. Hoffstot, president of the Pressed Steel Car company, and president of the German National bank of Allegheny, and prominently identified with other banks, paid to Charles Stewart, an ex-select councilman, the sum of $52,500.

That the money was a bribe to influence the votes of councilmen to pass an ordinance choosing three banks in which Hoffstot was interested as official depositories of the city's millions.

That the arrangement for the payment of the money to Stewart was made in the spring of 1908 and that the late James W. Friend, at that time an official of the Pressed Steel Car company, was involved in the transaction.

Frank N. Hoffstot, as president of the Pressed Steel Car company, recently figured prominently in the public eye while a strike was in progress at his plant at McKees Rocks. During the long months of suspension there were many riots and many persons killed, and the state troopers were called out.

A YOUTHFUL BOOZER

Fifteen-Year-Old Providence Lad Is Fined For Intoxication

Providence, April 7.—Benjamin Matthews, 15 years old, the youngest prisoner ever arrested in this city charged with drunkenness, was arraigned before Judge Metcalf, pleaded guilty and was fined $2 and costs.

Matthews reached home in such a state of intoxication and raised such a commotion that the police were called in.

The boy refused to tell the police where he got the liquor and became abusive when questioned.

Princess Louise Quits Toselli

Milan, April 7.—Mme. Toselli, formerly Crown Princess Louise of Saxony, has left her husband and gone to Switzerland with her child. Toselli has begun a suit for divorce. A deed of separation was signed by the couple on March 20.

Boy Finds Loot In Woods

Malden, Mass., April 7.—Three watches and several rings, chains and bracelets were found in a cloth bag in some woods here by a small boy, Robert Williams. It is thought that the jewelry is loot, hidden in the woods by thieves.

Another Turkish Revolt

Constantinople, April 7.—Fourteen battalions of Turkish troops here have been ordered to North Albania, where a revolution has broken out. The trouble is attributed to the resentment against the new taxes.

SAYS FORTUNE AWAITS HIM

Deserting Trooper Surrenders So That He May Get Property

Burlington, Vt., April 7.—The army officials at Fort Ethan Allen got a surprise when Wallace Rogers, a trooper who deserted some time ago, appeared at the post and surrendered, in order, as he put it, that he might be able to claim a fortune left by a relative at Chelsea, Mass.

The army authorities, having in mind the way that Seaman Hall at Portsmouth planted a mare's nest for the naval people there by claiming that he murdered a young woman at Rochester, N. Y., which proved to be untrue in every particular, are going slow in accepting anything that Rogers has to say concerning his fortune hunt and aspirations.

They put the man in the guard house, and have set members of the colored Tenth cavalry to see that he doesn't change his mind and wish to get away.

SUES HIS FATHER-IN-LAW

Boston Man Asks $50,000 For Alienation of His Wife's Affections

Boston, April 7.—Another chapter in the now famous "drugged marriage case" of last January was opened when attorneys for Arthur W. Foster filed papers suing his father-in-law, J. F. Howland, for $50,000 for alienation of his wife's affections.

The marriage which was the cause of all the trouble took place the second day of last January, after all the parties concerned had been celebrating the birth of the New Year in such a fashion that when Miss Florence D. Howland, the Commonwealth avenue belle, stood before Justice of the Peace Feyhl to be married, she did not know what was taking place, according to the papers filed, requesting an annulment of the marriage.

ROOSEVELT DINED BY CITY OF ROME

Mayor Confers Title of "Purifier" Upon Ex-President

Rome, April 7.—The series of events connected with the cancellation of Mr. Roosevelt's audience with the pope, and later his repudiation of the denunciatory statement issued by Pastor Tipple of the American Methodist church at Rome, added interest to the dinner given in Mr. Roosevelt's honor last night by the municipal authorities, over which Mayor Nathan presided. No reference, however, either directly or indirectly, was made to this subject.

Mayor Nathan, in proposing the health of the ex-president, referred to him as "one whose character and work had an effect upon the civil progress of humanity." He characterized Roosevelt as a "purifier," saying that he had hunted fiercer beasts than during his recent trip in Africa.

"Men of his calibre," said the mayor, "are beyond the limits of country. They belong by rights to civilization."

Mr. Roosevelt, in replying, spoke of political life, which, he said, was not so much a matter of genius as of the practical application of the very ordinary qualities of courage, honesty and common sense. The rarest of these, he added, is common sense.

FIVE THOUSAND BENEFIT

Advance In Wages In Various Plants of American Sugar Company

New York, April 7.—It is announced by the directors of the American Sugar Refining company that a resolution providing for an increase in wages of from 5 to 10 percent to the employes in all the refineries of the company of all classes has been passed.

One of the directors said that the advance would affect about 5000 employes at plants in Philadelphia, Boston, New Orleans, Jersey City and Brooklyn.

FAVORS NEW MILK BOARD

Action of Legislative Committee Considered Big Victory For Farmers

Boston, April 7.—Under a bill favorably reported in the senate by the legislative committee on public health, three members of the state board of health and three members of the dairy bureau are constituted a board to regulate the production, transportation and delivery of milk.

The committee's favorable report is considered a big victory for the farmers, who have protested against the railroad commission's failure to reduce the high railroad tariff on milk.

A Record Seal Catch

St. John's, April 7.—That the seal catch this season will be the largest ever known in this colony is assured by the news received from the sealing steamer Labrador that she has a catch of 15,000 seals. This will make a total catch for the season of 300,000 seals, a new record.

House Passes Free Mail Bill

Washington, April 7.—Ex-President Roosevelt and all other ex-presidents of the United States or their widows will be granted the franking privilege during their life time under the terms of a bill passed by the house by a vote of 120 to 76.

GUARD CAPITAL, HILL'S ADVICE

The Nation's Great Need, Says Railroad Magnate.

SCORES OUR WASTEFULNESS.

Declares We Live In an Age of Financial Delirium—Blames Extravagance For High Prices and Urges Economy. Every Dollar Unprofitably Spent Marks a Crime Against Posterity.

James J. Hill, the venerable railroad builder and magnate, who delivered an address at the Minnesota conservation convention in St. Paul the other day in which he advocated the conservation of capital, condemned extravagance as one of the causes of the increase in prices and told how the situation described by him might be remedied. Mr. Hill declared that "we are living in an age of worldwide financial delirium" and that "next after the conservation of the land, its area, use and fertility must come the conservation of national capital in the form of cash and credit." Mr. Hill said in part:

"In our cities modern extravagance finds its most untrammeled expression. The total debt of the states, including all minor civil divisions, increased $13,921,443, or 1.25 per cent, between 1880 and 1890. Between 1890 and 1902 it increased $727,778,393, or 64 per cent.

"Debt figures, however, do not begin to tell the story of our national extravagance. Only a small part of our expenditure is represented by debt tables. The rest is raised by increased taxation.

How National Expenses Have Grown.

"Although the great business expansion of this country began right after the civil war, the expenses for 1890 were but $4,000,000 greater than those of twenty years before. Since 1890 these expenditures have grown $20,000,000 a year, until now they are 121.4 per cent more than they were eighteen years ago. The answer to the charge of a billion dollar session of congress is that this has become a billion dollar country. The apology is neither relevant nor true. It is not necessary that expense should increase in the same ratio as growth.

"The following little table, exhibiting the whole situation, might be printed at the top of every letterhead used by any man in public office anywhere in the United States:

INCREASES.

	Per cent.
Wealth, 1870-90	116
Foreign trade, 1870-90	99
Value manufactured products, 1870-90	121
Net ordinary expenditures United States government, 1870-90	1.4
Expenditures 30 states, 1890-1909	201.6
Wealth, 1890-04	65
Foreign trade, 1890-08	85.4
Value manufactured products, 1890-05	58

"The phenomenal increase of public expenditure has already produced a plentiful crop of public ills. It is one of the causes of the increases in prices now disturbing the people. This increase follows in a suggestive way the inflation of national and local budgets. The average cost of the supplies that must be bought for practically every household increased about 50 per cent between 1896 and 1900. During the past year there has been a marked lifting of the price level. Foodstuffs cost from 10 to 70 per cent more than ten years ago.

"Something is due to enormous currency inflation. The tariff is another contributing cause. Combinations which are actually in restraint of trade, which have monopolized their field and are either controlled by a common secret management or a secret agreement to maintain exorbitant charges, are partly responsible.

Extravagance National Trait.

"Still more of the rise of prices is due to the decline of agricultural products as compared with the increase of population. Yet with due allowance for the effect of these forces that make for dearer living there still remains a large unexplained balance which must be credited to the lavish expenditure which has now grown to be a national trait.

"Waste, idleness and rising wages, all interrelated to one another, now as cause and now as effect, are, next to an overissue of irredeemable paper, the three most powerful forces in the world to raise prices.

Remedy Not Obscure.

"Perhaps the greatest factor of all in the price problem is the wage rate. Everybody knows that labor cost is the principal item in all forms of industry. The wage rate has been rising steadily in this country. Powerful forces are back of this movement. It has public sympathy. To resist is difficult and may be dangerous. As cost of production is chiefly labor cost, the price of the finished article must go up if the price of labor is raised. This is just as true of the farm as of the factory.

"The saving feature of our situation is that it is not complex and that the remedy is not obscure. Let the rule be that every dollar unprofitably spent marks a crime against posterity just as much as does the dissipation of material resources. Expenditures must be cut down all along the line."

WOMEN IN A ROLLER CLUB.

Plump Members Declare It Is the Best Thing For Reducing Flesh.

Muscogee, Okla., has a roller club. Its members are all young women, and they roll themselves to reduce their flesh. They belong to the best society of the town.

It all started this way: A pretty but overplump society matron astonished her friends by "losing" her hips. Then she explained that she did it by rolling, which was still more mystifying until she elucidated further. She said that she began by rolling over and over on the floor as a morning exercise, and she found that it reduced flesh rapidly. She kept at it until she was reduced to what she considered the ultra fashionable hipless form.

The result was the immediate organization of the Rollers' club, composed of society matrons and maids who are inclined to obesity. There are fourteen of them. Each morning these women may be seen scurrying to the home of one of their members. The members, in kimonos or other loose garments, lie down and roll over and over. One hundred rolls is a morning's work. One young woman uses a pajama costume to roll in because she finds it does not wrap around and bind the limbs.

NEW ANIMALS FOR AMERICA.

Proposed to Introduce African Game Into Our Wild Lands.

Captain Fritz Duquesne, former Boer soldier and hunter of big game in Asia and Africa, proposed that he be permitted to introduce into American wild lands the wart hog, wildebeest, hartebeest, varieties of gazelles, the smaller zebra found toward the African coasts, the impala and the oryx. Conditions in the southern and southwestern states, he says, are ideal for their propagation.

"All of them are fine game animals and excellent shooting, and several are splendid eating," he said. "As for the zebras, it's only a question of time before they are used as beasts of burden. The Germans have been most successful in breaking and training them. I have seen teams of zebras in German East Africa working under harness like so many donkeys."

A Matter of Habit.

"But why do you put your friend's things in the dining room?"

"Oh, he is so used to restaurants that he won't enjoy his dinner unless he can watch his hat and coat."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

NO REASON FOR IT

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Quincy citizen says:

James P. Daugherty, Hammond Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am glad to let other sufferers know what they have done for me. I was bothered a great deal by back ache and had but little strength or energy to do my day's work. I took many so-called kidney cures, but did not succeed in finding relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at the Cox Drug Store. I was surprised and gratified at the prompt way in which they relieved me. My back was soon strong and free from pain and I felt better generally. I would go to considerable trouble to induce anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills, as I have so much confidence in them."

SCHOOL PROBLEMS

Supt. Barbour Favors Manual Training

A largely attended meeting of the Mothers' Association was held Wednesday afternoon.

A. L. Barbour, superintendent of schools, addressed the association on "The school problem of today." He said in part:

"Manual training then, as we are endeavoring to embody it in our school system, is not a fad, but a substitute for some of that education which home conditions formerly supplied, and which is an absolutely essential part of a child's training if he is to be given deftness of hand, ingenuity of mind in handling material things, and steadiness of will. Manual training is mental training in every sense of the word, but it is a sort of mental training that books can never give, and for which no adequate equivalent can ever be found."

Passing on to physical education, Mr. Barbour stated that the call for this education was one phase of the present general movement for the conservation of resources.

"We are beginning to appreciate that the best resources of this country are its children, that it is a serious mistake to allow children to grow up under a physical handicap which it is within our power to remove. The world is realizing that it can not afford to consider this an individual's own concern but on the contrary it is the public business to see that the child goes to school under sanitary conditions, that it be examined occasionally to see that normal growth is taking place and that it be instructed in such play, games and physical exercises as will insure a healthy physical growth."

At the close of the address, many questions were asked, and a long discussion and explanation took place regarding many features of school work. Mr. Barbour during this discussion called attention to the relatively low position that Quincy held among the cities of the state in the matter of money expended on its schools. He brought out the fact the Quincy teachers were paid much lower salaries than the teachers of other cities, that the High school was insufficiently provided with teachers, and industrial courses, and that in many lines an insufficient per capita expenditure was made to secure the best results.

BRIEFS

The battleships Vermont, Rhode Island and New Jersey ,all built at Quincy will be in the U. S. fleet of fifteen ships to be sent to the Mediterranean sea next fall. Possibly the North Dakota ,another Quincy ship, may go also.

LOYAL LEGION.

The Faxon Loyal Temperance Legion presented Wednesday evening at Colonial hall a progam of much interest. Miss Emma Cocoran opened the entertainment with a piano solo, which reflected credit on the youthful performer. Miss Margaret Heaney read most pleasingly, and those who had the pleasure of hearing her at this her first appearance in public were enthusiastic in their praise and predict a bright future for her. Miss Helen Rodgers sang very cutely especially the lullaby, "Sing me to Sleep." Kenneth Johnson and Leslie McCommack gave a reading in a most acceptable manner, and Miss Ruth Packard pleased with her singing and easy stage manner.

The farce, "Dr. McBeaton," was laughingly well interpreted by Everett Clark, Wallace Kemp, Albert Robertson, Walter Morrison, and James Mathewson.

After this there was a candy sale and and all agreed it was a happy evening. This Legion is one of the most earnest and prosperous about here, and everyone should wish them great success; they are not only learning the best in temperance but health and hygiene also.

FIRST CITY SOLICITOR

W. G. A. Pattee Passes Away This Morning

William Greenleaf Appleton Pattee, one of Quincy's most able lawyers and the first city Solicitor of Quincy, passed away this morning, at his residence on School street. Since Nov. 1 he has been confined to the house with heart trouble.

Lawyer Pattee was born in Quincy August 28, 1854, and was the son of Dr. William G. Pattee and Mary E. Appleton Pattee. He received his early education in the public schools of his native town and then entered the Chauncy Hall school, Boston. He studied law at the Harvard Law school, and at the office of Augustus Russ, Esq.

In 1879 Mr. Pattee opened an office in Quincy, where he has built up a lucrative practice, which since 1882 has required his entire time and attention. He was attorney for the town before its incorporation as a city, and was city solicitor the first two years it was under municipal government. He had a large corporation practice, being attorney for the Quincy & Boston Street Railway Company and other street railway companies; and was for several years president of the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company, of which he was one of the organizers; and he was also one of the organizers and for some years a director, of the Quincy Street Railway company. He has also been actively identified with other public enterprises, being a charter member of the City Hospital, and a prime mover in the organization of the Quincy Historical society, of which he was one of the curators. He was a member of the Harvard Law School Association.

Mr. Pattee was one of the leading members of the Democratic party, having been one of the promoters of the Young Men's Democratic club of Massachusetts, and chairman of the committee on elections since its formation several years, having also done valuable work on the stump. He often served as moderator at town meetings, and he presided at the town meeting which accepted the city charter, which he assisted in framing. He also suggested the design of the seal of the city of Quincy, which with the addition of the inscription, was unanimously adopted. In 1883 and 1884 he represented the town in the State legislature, serving both years on the Judiciary committee, and being chairman of the Democratic organization in the House.

He was married at Newton, Feb. 16, 1887 to Miss Laura Saltonstall of Newton. Two children have been born, who with the widow and aged mother survive him.

The funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 P. M. at Christ church.

WOLLASTON 1950.

More successful than the first night was the second night of the second annual entertainment of the Wollaston Congregational club. The clever sketch "Wollaston 1950," from the pen of R. B. Locke, one of the club members, proved one of the hits of the evening. This showed the 2000th meeting of the Wollaston schoolhouse committee which was supposed to have failed to agree on all particulars concerning the schoolhouse. In the sketch were introduced such novel inventions as the see-o-graph, to be lines, wireless telephones and the like. With such favor have the entertainments of the club been met that already great things are being anticipated for next season's show.

LIBRARY EXHIBIT.

The present exhibit of the Library Art club in the gallery at the Thomas Crane Public Library consists of a collection of thirty-nine beautiful photographs of Mount Shasta and Lake Tahoe. Mt. Shasta, a colossal cone, next to Mt. Whitney the highest peak in the United States, is in the northern part of California, 350 miles from San Francisco. Lake Tahoe is about 140 miles north-east of San Francisco. It is 22 miels long, 10 miles wide and 6,216 feet above the sea. South of it are numerous other beautiful lakes, and around all are the mountain peaks of the Sierras. The pictures will remain until April 11. A list of new books will be found in the Patriot and Ledger of Saturday.

—Telephone communication will soon be completed between Paris and Vienna.

COST CUT IN HALF

Five Per Cent Instead of Ten for Grade Crossings.

The House took action on Wednesday which would mean much to Quincy if incorporated into law. It substituted on roll-call, 126 to 72, for the adverse report of the railroad committee a bill to relieve cities and towns of the cost of abolition of grade crossings. The big vote for the bill was a general surprise.

The present law puts 10 per cent of the cost of abolition of grade crossings on the city or town, 25 per cent on the state and the remainder on the railroads (unless a street railway is also involved, in which case that also must bear a proportionate share.)

The bill substituted cuts down the share to be borne by the city or town to 5 percent if it petitions for the abolition and relieves it entirely if the railroad petitions for the abolition.

A similar bill was substituted in the house last year, but killed in the senate.

O'BRIEN VS. CITY.

The hearing in the case of John H. O'Brien against the city, for wages due for services as foreman of the Sewer department, was practically completed Wednesday before Judge Hitchcock in the jury waived session at Dedham. But little additional testimony was brought out Wednesday.

Mrs. Penley, clerk in the sewer office, was again on the witness stand and testified as to the amount of work done during the summer of 1908. She also testified that during that year Mr. Burns frequently called to see if there was work for him to do, but that he did not receive any.

Mr. Blackmur, representing Mr. O'Brien, then offered the city charter to show that the sole appointing power of administrative officials was with the Mayor.

Mr. O'Brien, recalled, testified that he never at any time received any written notice that he had been suspended or discharged, or lowered in compensation.

Walter McKenzie, general foreman of the Sewer department, testified as to work done, during the year 1908.

This concluded the testimony of the day, and it was agreed that the case would be argued Thursday. Before arguments, however, the city put Mr. Burns on the witness stand. Mr. Burns is at the present time laid up with rheumatism, but he was taken to Dedham in an automobile.

Success.

The flower of true success may be gathered only by discerning persons who want it more than they want any other thing and who seek it through all the days of all the years. It has no imitation, is of but one variety and may not be pressed and dried between the leaves of any book, even the Bible. Its name is character. It is not a rare flower, accessible to only the few, but it is modest, of quiet mien and hue and is often hidden by the foliage and gorgeous blossoms of more spectaclar plants, so that the merely casual eyes of those who hurry along the life path seem to miss it altogether. It grows indoors and out, in all seasons and weathers, and may be plucked by the black hands of the miner as well as by the hands of those whose time is given to less rugged and daintier tasks. The man who gathers character gathers success, no matter how he may be rated by the commercial agencies.—Richard Wightman in Metropolitan Magazine.

Engagement Bangle a British Fad.

Notwithstanding the strong feminist movement in England among a certain smart set of girls it is now considered the proper thing doubly to advertise one's engagement by a wrist bangle as well as an engagement ring, and sometimes even an ankle bracelet is included among the golden manacles proclaiming engagement bondage. The stronger minded Englishwomen are indignant at this latest fad on the part of their weaker sisters.

—The Brockton Merchant's Association is getting ready for its second annual big Merchant's week Carnival which has been set down this year for June. It is to be bigger, better and busier if possible than that of last year, which is a move in the right direction. Sometime we hope Stoughton merchants will wake up to this idea and have a trading Carnival of their own and reap a harvest of trade for themselves as they ought to do. If Stoughton should conclude to do so it could make such an event a great big success artistically and financially. It only needs the right kind of effort to push it on and it would mean dollars to all.—Stoughton Sentinel.

OLD COLONY BOWLING

Weymouth Team Wins the Championship

The Old Colony bowling tournament ended Wednesday night with hotly contested games at the Quincy alleys. Braintree as usual did not appear at Norfolk Downs.

The final standing:

QUINCY GAME.

The champion Weymouth bowling quintet came to Quincy Wednesday evening and closed the Old Colony league season in a blaze of glory on the Granite street alleys. Manager Grant had three new faces on his team, and the new quintet made a fine showing getting a total of 1307, only to lose three out of four points. Dahl was high single man with 108, Grant was but one pin behind with 107, then came Guertin with 106 and Burrell with 104.

The scores:

WEYMOUTH.

Guertin	106	94	84	284

Burrell	104	78	75	257

Grant	83	107	88	278

DOWNS' GAME.

Braintree was scheduled to close the season at Norfolk Downs, Wednesday evening, but owing to the fact that the "cellar champs" long ago lost interest they did not appear to try conclusions in the wind-up.

WHIST TOURNAMENT.

James H. Penniman was high man at the weekly whist tournament at the rooms of the Granite City club Wednesday evening. Second honors were a tie between Albert Bruff and George W. Meade. The latter, however, carried home the spoon. Ice cream and cake were served after the tournament.

If you have a nice house to rent and want it occupied by nice people, advertise it in the Quincy Daily Ledger, the paper that is read by people who would be desirable tenants.

"Like the Rope of Ocnus."

Few persons who use the phrase "like the rope of Ocnus" to denote profitless labor know the significance of the expression or its great antiquity. "The Rope of Ocnus" was the name of a picture painted by Polygnotus, a distinguished Greek, who died in the fifth century B. C. He is reputed first to have given life, character and expression to painting. According to Pliny, he opened the mouth and showed the teeth of his figures, and he was the first to paint women figures with transparent draperies. Ocnus was a poor but industrious Greek, whose extravagant wife spent money as fast as he could earn it, and he related his troubles to his friend the painter. Polygnotus thereupon painted the picture of a man weaving a rope of straw, while behind him stood a donkey, eating the rope as fast as it was woven. It is pleasant to relate that the silent lesson had the desired effect upon the wife of Ocnus and that it was through her subsequent frugality and thrift that Ocnus ultimately rose to a position of great prosperity.—Minneapolis Journal.

DEATH OF A LEADING MERCHANT

Dexter E. Wadsworth, the Dry Goods Dealer, Passes Away

Member of School Committe and Park Commission

DEXTER E. WADSWORTH.

Dexter Emerson Wadsworth, one of Quincy's prominent business men, passed away shortly after 9 o'clock Thursday evening at his home on Munroe road, aged 44 years.

Mr. Wadsworth was taken ill two weeks ago with rheumatism but his illness was not thought at that time to be particularly serious, although he was confined to his bed several days. Last week he was able to be up and about and expected to return to business the first of the present week. Later in the week his illness took a more serious turn, however, and all this week he has been hovering between life and death. But little hopes were held out by the attending physicians, but every known remedy was used to aid him. For several days he has been in a semi- conscious state and the end came about 9.30 Thursday night, with his loving wife and mother at his bedside.

Mr. Wadsworth was born in Milton, and was the son of Capt. E. D. Wadsworth, a prominent citizen and town official and for several years a Norfolk County commissioner, and received his early education in the schools of his native place, graduating with high honors from the Milton High school. He entered the Bryant & Stratton business college from which he graduated in 1882. Two years later he entered the dry goods house of Brown, Durrell & Co., in Boston, where he remained for some years. He began business in Quincy in 1889, opening a dry goods store in the Adams building. He also at one time had a branch store in East Milton. This however he soon gave up in order to give his whole attention to his Quincy store, which was the largest in the city at that time. From the Adams building he removed to the Greenleaf block where he has since caried on business, enlarging it from time to time.

During his residence in Milton he took an active interest in town affairs and served the town for several years on its appropriation committee. He also took an active interest in county affairs. Coming to Quincy he immediately identified himself with local political affairs and for a number of years was elected a delegate to the Norfolk County conventions.

He has always been deeply interested in the growth of Quincy, and when any project arose for the furthering of any movement that would tend to promote the social and business interests of the city he was always sure to be found taking an active part.

In 1898 he married Miss Kate S., daughter of Col. Edward Anderson, the marriage being solemnized in Chicago, and since that time both Mr. and Mrs. Wadsworth have been very prominent in social affairs. They recently erected a beautiful home on President's hill.

When Mayor Shea assumed the office of mayor he appointed Mr. Wadsworth a member of the Board of Park Commissioners, which office he held at the time of his death. He was also a member of the School Committee on which he was serving his second term of three years.

He was prominent in Masonic circles, being a past Master of Macedonian lodge of Milton; a member of St. Paul's chapter, Royal Arch Masons; Boston council Select Masons, and Boston Commandery Knights Templar. He was a member of Damon lodge, Knights of Phythias of Boston, the Society of Colonial Wars, The Quincy Yacht club and a past president of the Granite City club.

To the mother who resides at the Wadsworth homestead in Milton is also extended much sympathy as she is left alone, her husband and only daughter being called home a few years ago. Her loving care centered in the son who was ever thoughtful and devoted to his mother.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday at 3 P. M. at the Bethany Congregational church.

JOLLY PARTY.

There was a jolly party at the home of Hugh MacDonald on Warwick street, Norfolk Downs, Wednesday evening. Miss Minnie Hilderbrand rendered piano solos, Leavitt Donahue violin solos, Misses Jessie and Grace MacDonald executed several pleasing fancy dances, after which dancing was enjoyed. Refreshments of ice cream, cake and candy were served.

Others present were: Miss Alice Boyd, Celeste Levange of Milton, Ethel Wright Gertrude Keenan, Daisy Holland, Elizabeth Ryan, Alice Griffern of Dorchester, Ruth Hilderbrand, Ruth Myers, Emma Walker, Bessie Lavery, Bertha Ray, Ruth Thomas of Norfolk Downs, Isabel Cain, Anna Cain of Wollaston, Cornelious Collins, William Brooks, John Daly, Daniel Wall, Henry Ryan Warren Curry, Raymond Simpson, Arthur Gorton, John Stanton of Roxbury, Albert Fuller, Arthur Axburg, Donald Walsh, Frank Doring, Albert Lavery, Peter Flahive of Norfolk Downs.

—A bill ordering wireless telegraphy for all vessels has been introduced into Congress.

PLANS FOR LAUNCHING

The U. S. Destroyer Perkins Goes Over Tomorrow

The U. S. Torpedo Boat Destroyer Perkins will be launched at the Fore River shipyard about 10.30 A. M., Saturday. She will be christened by Mrs. Larz Anderson of Brookline, the daughter of Commodore Perkins, for whom the vessel is named.

A special train for the accommodation of the company's guests will leave the South Terminal Station in Boston at 9.00 A. M., direct to the shipyard, and will return immediately after the luncheon following the launch. The luncheon will be served in the mould loft at 11.30 A. M.

The vessel is flush decked all fore and aft with a topgallant forecastle, giving a high platform for the forward gun with good height for conning tower and steering stations while contributing to the seagoing qualities of the ship.

The captain's and officers' staterooms, wardroom and conveniences are arranged in the forecastle while on berth deck immediately below these are quarters for part of the petty officers and crew, the remainder being berthed aft.

The machinery spaces occupy the amidship portion of the destroyer, the installation consisting of Fore River yarrow water tube boilers. The vessel is fitted with two Curtis reversible marine turbines, 6 ft. in diameter, and capable of developing 6000 h. p. each, at about 600 revolutions per minute, which will give the vessel a speed of 29 1-2 knots per hour. It is expected that this speed will be very considerably exceeded.

The Perkins and her sisters are notable in being the pioneers of a new enlarged type of ocean going destroyer capable of keeping the sea with the battle fleet, and it is interesting to note that since these vessels were designed the first class naval powers have followed suit in laying down vessels of similar type.

The principal dimensions of the Perkins are:

Length between perps	289 ft. 0 in.
Length overall	293 ft. 10 1-2 in.
Breadth moulded	26 ft. 4 1-2 in.
Trial displacement	742 tons
Trial draft	8ft. 4 in.

Battery five 3 in. guns; three 45 c m torpedo tubes on dk; and two .30 calibre automatic guns.

The contract was signed on October 1, 1908, and calls for delivery on September 1, 1910.

FOR RIVER CHANNEL

Senate Bill Provides for a Survey Only

The Herald bureau at Washington reports that the Senate commerce committee has completed the rivers and harbors bill, which will probably be reported to the Senate Monday. It now contains several New England items, added by way of amendment since the bill left the House.

Senator Lodge's amendment for an appropriation for Fall River is adopted, as is also his original amendment providing for a survey for Weymouth Fore river near the Fore River shipyard. It is understood that the committee has not recommended an appropriation, however, as it was urged to do.

A bill was introduced in the House today by Representative O'Connell of Boston appropriating $150,000 for the deepening and widening of Weymouth river from the shops of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company to Quincy bay. The bill is based on resolutions adopted by the the City Council of Quincy.

AN APPRECIATION.

It has seemed wise in the providence of God to remove from our midst, suddenly, a man who has been known for sterling character and honorable worth for years, Frederick H. Parsons of 26 Verchild street. A man who always had high ideals and strove to live up to them. A man, did we say? Nay, a friend, for such he proved to all needing help or sympathy. To those who knew him best, he was a father and brother, and these knew his great worth. The better he was known, the more was he appreciated and beloved. As a friend he always had the cheering word and encouraging smile. He was truly self-disinterested, thinking of the pleasure and welfare of others. His great delight was in nature. How he loved the flowers and the trees, and it pained him to see these ruthlessly treated. He loved children and leighted in their pleasure and stories. He loved men and because he was of such an honorable character it helped others to be better. We mourn his loss. The whole city as well as his immediate community will miss him.

The Unitarian Church-Helpers met with Mrs. Fred R. Snow of Marlboro street on Thursday afternoon. Plans have been made for an informal dancing party this afternoon of which Mrs. W. A. Bense and Mrs. H. A. Stevens are in charge. The patronesses are Mrs. W. E. Rowe, Mrs. C. E. Munroe, Mrs. H. A. Boynton, Mrs. Carl G. Horst and Mrs. M. O. Thompson.

DATE CHANGED FOR MERCHANTS' WEEK

Big Daily Ledger Endorsed as Best Means of Publicity

Prize to be Offered for the Best Slogan

Merchants' Week was the principal topic discussed at the regular meeting of the Quincy Retail Merchants' Association at its regular meeting in Union hall on Thursday evening. The opening date was changed to June 4 and Merchants' Week will include two Saturdays—the 4th and the 11th.

Another letter was received from the Citizens' Gas Light Co. submitting an estimate of the cost of a systematic lighting of City Square. The company estimate that 45 two-mantle gas lamps could be installed 75 feet apart from Music hall to Saville street at $25 each, a total of $1125; that these would replace 7 arc lights which now cost $70 each, or $490; so that the extra cost would be $635. It was voted that the company be requested to make a demonstration in front of the old Hancock cemetery.

George W. Jones was elected treasurer pro tem, and sympathy was extended to the family of Dexter E. Wadsworth.

The advertising committee on Merchants' Week reported and introduced Henry P. Dowst, of a well known Boston advertising house. Mr. Dowst considered the various phases of publicity which had been suggested to him, and introduced several new ones, and impressed all that he understood advertising all right.

He regarded a book as inexpedient, because of the expense. Features were necessary besides advertising to make it of any value. There should be good reading and some illustrations. A newspaper would be better than a book, and would lift the burden from the shoulders of the association. There should be an edition of 20,000 papers, of 16, 24 or 32 pages, which should be distributed in all the South Shore towns from Boston to Plymouth. The make up should be left to the publishers, but they should be given some assistance. Good material should be furnished them. He believed good terms could be made with the local newspapers, and that their cooperation was necessary to make Merchants' Week a success.

Mr. Dowst also considered big posters, window cards, banners, town days, free car fares, the use of travellers as in department stores, the adoption of a slogan, the importance of interesting the real estate men, the granite dealers, the banks, the professional men and everybody.

He spoke of Merchants' Week being in line with the movement to boom New England, and the need of boosters. At some future time an allustrated pamphlet setting forth Quincy industrially and as a home town would be an excellent idea. Benefits are not always immediate and direct, but they come.

Mr. Dowst referred to the Pilgrim Publicity Association and the work it was doing. He said they were prepared to send speakers throughout New England telling the people the advantages of advertising towns, industries, etc., and how it could be

How would this do for a slogan for Quincy? "A square deal—Quincy Unanimously Invites New Comers, Yell-it everyone." A prize of $10 will soon be offered by the Retail Merchants' Association for the best slogan.

Again today it is our sad duty to record the passing out from this life of another of Quincy's prominent men, Dexter E. Wadsworth. Although not a life long resident as was W. G. A. Pattee, since coming to Quincy from the neighboring town of Milton some twenty-five years ago, he has been closely identified with the city's interests. It would be hard to find a man more universally popular than Mr. Wadsworth. In his home, in business and wherever duty or pleasure called him he made friends. In business he was especially thoughtful and considerate of his employes and his death is a great shock to those who have been in daily contact with him. "Dec" Wadsworth as he was familiarly known will be missed and sincerely mourned.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Long ago, when the country along the Pacific coastline was primitive, and picturesque and religious, its Spanish owners had a pretty ceremony when they took possession of a new house. The priest or the minister came and blessed it. William H. Crocker ,the San Francisco millionaire moved into his magnificent residence recently, and, following the fine old custom ,the opening of the new home was marked by a relious ceremony. The Bishop of California wa sthe celebrant.

With many society people, jaded with the usual affairs of life, constantly seeking the novel for their pleasure or their self-advertisement, it may be that this is merely another phase of the great unrest of the times. But it is kindlier to see in the revival of the ceremony a resurrection of the old idea of the dignity and sanctity of the home. It can be charged against us all that the modern conditions and our meek moulding to them have bereft the home of much of its beauty. Most of us have houses and the rich have hotels. We have roofs to cover our heads and rooms to sleep and dine in. But the home is no longer the centre of our lives as it used to be and the frequent focus of the interests of our friends. When we entertain many of us take our friends to the theatre or the club. Society has grown to be very much of a business and parties are given to pay indebtedness, and not always out of the largeness of affection. We make the biggest club our cleaning house and invite all who are on the wrong side of our social ledger.

The interests of the family do not spring as much as of old from the home and centre in it. Father often goes to his club and mother to hers —whist or the cultivation of her mind, as fancies dictate. The children have their pleasures largely outside of the home and the sanctity of it. The practical usefulness in making happiness for ourselves, spreading sunshine for others and building up character all along the line has in a measure disappeared. What wealthy people do, lesser people copy.

It may be that this move by Multimillionaire Crocker may become a fad. And then the wise, which means merely those that are simple in taste and warm in affection, may carry the beautiful symbolism into daily life. —Salem Gazette.

"Write home to your mother" sounds a little more human, more Christian and more sensible than "ninety days in jail." It was the sentence that Judge Galvin of Denver gave the other day to a youth who had taken a few steps in sin.

The boy, under the law, was a vagrant. The judge made him a human being, with a chance for usefulness.

Few boys who keep in touch with a mother's love go far astray. The youth was but one of hundreds who leave the family fireside for the world struggle. He, as have other boys before and will many others to come, forgot that gray haired woman whose heart will always contain the vision of the prattling babe, of the cute tricks of his babyhood, of his first pair of pants, when she shed her silent tears because he was "growing up."

Instead of the memories of the humble home, with its rag carpet, its oil covering for the table, its decent economies and above all its mother heart which filled it with love and turned it from a rude habitation to a real home, the boy found the bright lights ,the clang of the mechanical piano, the rough comrades of other and older men who had also forgotten their mothers.

He did as hundreds do. He didn't have time to write home.

If he thought at all of the lonely evenings in that humble home, with a woman remembering his young pranks and with a heart aching with a longing for some word, the thought was brushed aside by the fast growing appetite for these new city habits.

The young man that takes time to keep the close sympathy of the little boy with his mother, won't find time to get into trouble. Better than that the very memory of her sacrifices and love will protect him from going to more glittering and dangerous paths of occupying his time.

"Write to your mother" is about the wisest sentence we have heard from a criminal court for a long time.

It has its authority in a greater law than that which any legislature has ever framed—the law of love, which holds and protects when other human barriers against unwise conduct fail.—Beverly Times.

GOSPEL OF HEALTH.

Approval of the movement for a national tuberculosis Sunday on April 24, recently inaugurated by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, is given in a statement by The Right Reverend Richard H. Nelson Bishop Coadjutor of Albany, N. Y., for the Protestant Episcopal church, issued today.

Bishop Nelson says: "I think well of the proposal that all the churches should unite on April twenty-fourth in presenting the truth concerning tuberculosis and stimulating public interest in the campaign for its prevention and cure.

"The campaign has entered upon its second stage. Having labored with some success to point out the danger, we are now concerned with the cure, and this depends upon improvement in conditions of personal and social life. Whatever the churches may be able to do along this line, will be a double contribution to physical and spiritual betterment and I should think that all would wish to have a share in such an enterprise."

Reports from all parts of the United States indicate that the Sunday set apart will be generally observed, by the preaching of sermons on tuberculosis and by the distribution of special literature.

The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis declares that the campaign against tuberculosis is a warfare against ignorance, and that as soon as the people of the United States know that tuberculosis can be prevented and cured, they will demand that the needless waste of 200,000 lives annually be stopped.

BURSTING OF BOILER TUBES

Responsible For Killing of Man on Board Cruiser Maryland

Washington, April 8.—W. Ambersen of Kansas City was the victim of the accident on the armored cruiser Maryland off the California coast. The navy department advices are that four tubes in one of the boilers burst and two men were slightly injured, but a later dispatch announced the death of Ambersen.

The day after the accident two of the lower tubes in one of the Colorado's boilers also burst, but nobody was hurt. The Colorado was cruising with the Maryland.

New York, April 8.—The statement of a man on trial for his life that he was tortured by the police "third degree" into making a confession to murder caused a sensation in the court of general sessions.

Stephen Boehm, who is charged with killing Jacob Velz, admitted signing a confession presented by the prosecution, but said he did so to escape abuse.

LURED TO PART WITH $10,000

PATRIARCHAL SUSPECT CAUGHT

White Straw Hat Which He Wears Attracts Attention of Man Who Was Fleeced and He Loses No Time In Causing Arrest—Story of Amazing Swindle With a Most Elaborate Staging

New York, April 8.—Inspector Russell, the new detective chief, looked over the police records of twenty-nine years in the life of John Brown, a 65-year-old man of patriarchal beard and hair who was arrested in the subway on a charge of swindling Henry Wagner of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., out of $10,000.

Wagner, who is president of the H. Wagner & Adler company, manufacturers of billiard tables, pressed the complaint, while asserting that he would rather give $100,000 than have it known that he had been swindled.

The scheme, as he detailed it to Magistrate Corrigan, was one of elaborate staging and included quite a cast of actors posing as multi-millionaires. Patrick J. Farley furnished the $1500 bail.

It was because Brown wore a snowy white straw hat so early in the season on a night when the rain was drizzling that he was brought to the gaze of Wagner and the police. Although Wagner said later he was willing to pay $100,000 rather than have his gullibility known, he lost no time in grappling with the straw hatted man and the story came out. His story tells of losing $10,000 at Jacksonville, Fla., on April 2.

He was persuaded to go to Florida in a private car in the congenial company of Brown and four men who were introduced by Brown to Wagner as "multi-millionaires." He says the $10,000 was in a draft and was drawn by him to be used to get an option on coal lands in Pennsylvania, which lands were later to be sold to the "multi-millionaires."

Arriving in Florida, there was a great deal of mystery injected into the proceedings by Brown and the "multi-millionaires," and the first thing Wagner knew he was stakeholder of $125,000 bet on a horse race. At least $10,000—Wagner's $10,000—of the $125,000 was in real money. The money was in a satchel and during the horse race on a country road near Jacksonville Wagner held the satchel.

He was surrounded by "multi-millionaires," and the fact that he had seen one of his new friends give each of the two jockeys in the race $200 made him think that Finance would beat Dan M. Maybe this would have happened had not Dan M. fallen and thrown his jockey.

The jockey was so badly shaken up that Brown and the "multi-millionaires" acted as if they were in a panic. They advised immediate flight lest the authorities corral them all.

"I'll take this," said one of the multi-millionaires, and he reached for the satchel Wagner held.

He got it and jumped with it into an automobile which was driven away in violation of all the speed laws in Florida.

TO HIRE NO MORE WOMEN

Railroad Company Thinks Men Better Fitted to Handle Its Work

Pittsburg, April 8.—The Baltimore and Ohio railroad has decided to hire no more women for railroad work in any capacity. It has been decided that duties in a railroad office can be handled better by men and boys.

The women who are already on the payrolls of the company will not be discharged at once, it is stated.

It has been roughly estimated that 30 percent more work can be gotten from the average young man stenographer than from a girl in the same position, and that the work is more carefully handled. The same thing applies to other departments.

STARLINGS ARE BARRED

Treasury Department Rules That They Are Among the Undesirables

Washington, April 8.—Neither its poetical name or its beauty of shape and plumage will save the European starling, a destructive grain-eating bird, from the list of undesirable immigrants to this country.

Along with the mongoose, the English sparrow and fruit-eating bats, the starling is to be refused admission at American ports, and the treasury department has just issued an order to that effect to all customs inspectors.

CENSUS SCHEDULE

Each Family to Receive a Blank Next Week

Each head of a family in Quincy will receive, a few days prior to April 15, when the United States Census begins ,an "advance population schedule," containing all the questions which appear in the official population schedule to be carried by the census takers.

These advance schedules are to be filled in by the heads of families, or, in their absence, by other members of their families, and the schedules will be taken up by the enumerators during the progress of the actual enumeration.

This action on the part of the Census Bureau is a complete innovation and an important advance in American census methods of obtaining a count of the population, and the bureau authorities expect it to prove of great practical and scientific value.

It insures greater accuracy and completeness in the returns, as the heads of the families, who are generally the most reliable sources of information are themselves given sufficient opportuity in advance of the enumeration to examine deliberately and to answer exactly the census questions. In past censuses it was the case usually that the head of the family was absent at work when the enumerator called and reliance had to be placed on other members of the family, frequently servants or children, or on neighbors, none of whom can be classed as dependable informants.

The advance schedule will also undoubtedly prove of great assistance to the enumerators. It will enable them to perform their work more expeditiously and agreeably, and will lessen the number of cases involving repeated calls by them.

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

The coming week will see the inaugural of the spring season of popular prices at the Boston Opera House, where the Aborn English Grand Oepra company will give an elaborate staging of "Aida," one of the later works of Verdi, and by many critics considered his greatest, for their opening week. Two sopranos and two tenors will divide with each other the eight performances of the week, each appearing at four presentations. The title part will thus be shared by Estelle Wentworth and Lois Ewell ,and the tenor role by Joseph Sheehan and Alfred Shaw. Others of the First week's cast will be Louise Le Baron, contralto, as Anneris, H. L. Watrous, basso, as Ramfis, Ottley Cranston, baritone, as Amonasro, George W. Dunstan, baritone, as the King, and John De Pillis as the Messenger. Verdi's "Aida" while partaking of the more pompous modern school, is as rich in beautiful melodies as any of his earlier works, its score is full of Oriental color, and it is altogether one of the most popular operas of the present day repertory. The scenes, laid alternately at Memphis and Thebes during the regime of the Pharaohs, are accompanied by typically Egytian music, for in the painting of musical pictures, Verdi always excelled, and this splendid opera is one of the most striking examples of his genius in this direction. It admits of most spectacular staging with its parading military hosts, imperial pageants and scenes of the ancient glory of Egypt. The Aborn staging, it is promised, will be quite as elaborate and artistic as any production of grand opera ever given at popular prices, with adequate choral and orchestral volume.

SCHOOLHOUSE CONTRACT

Awarded to Builder of the New Coddington

This morning Mayor Shea signed the contract for the erection of a four-room brick school building at Houghs Neck to be known as the Atherton Hough school. The building will be erected according to the plans and specifications of Cooper & Bailey. The contract for the building was awarded to Dennis F. Crowley, the lowest bidder, who was also the builder of the Coddington school and the addition to the Lincoln school. Mr. Crowley's bid for the building was $17,000.

The contract for the heating of the building was awarded to Eugene R. Stone, the lowest bidder, whose bid was $2,198.

Mr. Crowley stated to a representative of the Ledger that he should break ground for the building Monday morning, and that it would be completed Sept. 1.

TO SAIL SUNDAY.

Owing to some additional work that was required on the battleship North Dakota she did not leave the Fore River this morning as was expected. It was given out at the office of the Fore River Co. that she would leave the works Sunday morning about 10 o'clock. She will go direct to the Charlestown navy yard and be turned over to the government.

THE O'BRIEN CASE.

The case of John H. O'Brien against the city is still on trial at Dedham. Thursday it was after 4 o'clock before the case was reached, and Michael Burns went on the stand for the city. He testified that he was employed as a foreman in the department up to 1907, and that summer he applied several times at the office of the department at City Hall for employment, but was given none. As for his physical fitness for the work at that time he said that his health was such that he could perform the work. When court adjourned at 5 o'clock he was still on the stand. His testimony was completed this morning.

OUTRAGES ON AMERICANS

Guatemala Will Be Called Upon to Give Explanation to Uncle Sam

Washington, April 8.—Two American negroes on March 26 last were assaulted and wounded by the commanding officer at Panzos, Guatemala, while he was intoxicated, and later they were thrown into prison, and their friends were refused permission to dress their wounds.

The United States minister at Guatemala City has been instructed to insist upon prompt and adequate redress. The consular agent at Livingston will attend the trial.

This is one of a number of irritating cases which have occurred in Guatemala within the past few months in which Americans were the victims.

Attention also is to be called to the delay in the punishment of the parties guilty of the murder of an American negro which took place about a year ago.

REBELS CAPTURE TROOPS

Disarm Them and Hold Turkish Governor as Hostage

Constantinople, April 8.—The Albanian revolutionists in a sharp fight defeated and captured the Turkish troops sent to punish them, according to dispatches received here.

The revolt is growing and the Turkish government is worried. It has been decided to rush further reinforcements to the scene of trouble. The Turkish troops were surrounded by the insurgents and, after being forced to surrender, were disarmed. Their arms and ammunition were distributed among the rebels, whose position is now much stronger.

They have captured the governor of Prizriend and are holding him hostage, it is reported.

—"War is hell," declares President Taft, quoting General Sherman's pithy apothegm, but he insists that the way to keep the peace is to prepare for war. It is on this line of reasoning that cowards justify the hip-pocket pistol. The cost of great armaments on land and sea is now getting to be such a heavy drain on the productive industries that some wise statesmen are debating whether war be not the preferable alternative to peace obtained on such cruel terms.—Philadelphia Record.

STABLE HEARING.

The Board of Health gave a hearing Thursday evening on the granting of a permit to Herman G. Bryan to erect a stable for four horses on Madison street, Atlantic, in the rear of the Hose house. Bryan, who runs a wet wash laundry, first applied for a permit for a stable on Newbury avenue under the laundry. The abutters, objected however, and the Board of Health refused to grant the permit. Then he obtained a permit for a stable on Madison street from the inspector of buildings. This permit states that the building is to be 25 by 25 feet square. It is to be one story high. This permit also states that the floor is to be of concrete with patent waters and feeders, and two galvanized iron manure tanks in the basement. It is also to be connected with the public sewer. This permit was issued March 24, and the kick came when he applied to the Board of Health for the permit to occupy the building as a stable.

Mr. Bryan was not present at the hearing Thursday evening, but there were a number present to oppose the granting of the permit. These included John Ramsdell,, representing the Sylvia E. Ramsdell estate; Lizzie Lucia, of 68 Madison street; Hannah Voyer, of 115 Newbury avenue; H. D. Gearwar of 70 Madison street; Henry and Joseph Granahan, of 54 Madison street; T. J. Smith of 60 Madison street; John Langley, of 68 Madison street Ernest E. Lodergren, of 42 Madison street, and Councilman Woodward of Billings street.

Ex-Councilman Gearwar did most of the talking for the remonstrants. He claimed that Mr. Bryant showed an utter disregard for public opinion. That he was an alien, living at Dorchester, and that he would have no interest in doing what he said he would. A stable would attract flies, and would smell bad. It would be impossible to take care of the drainage. There were other locations but this was chosen, and he had made his boast that he would carry it through. People in that vicinity bought their property in good faith and should be protected. This man has already built a galvanized iron laundry building and painted it a freight car red, and this has done great damage to property, and now he proposes to build a stable that will further injure property. I have already applied to the assessors for a reduction of $1,000 in the valuation of my property and if the stable is erected I shall apply for a further reduction of another $1,000. His house was within thirty feet of the proposed stable and the laundry had deprived him of letting a part of it. Once a permit was granted it was a hard thing to get it revoked.

Mrs. Voyer said that people would feel pretty bad if they had a home and see such buildings erected there near them. One of her sons worked nights and slept during the day, and the noise, smell and flies from the stable would be very annoying.

Mrs. Lucia also had a word to say about the condition of Teel pond. She would like to see the Board of Health there and show them about. The stable would be a greater nuisance than the laundry was.

John Ramsdell, Mr. Longley, Mr. Granahan and Mr. Lodergren also objected on practically the same grounds as Mr. Gearwar who it was said had covered the ground thoroughly.

Dr. Burke of the Board of Health stated that he had received a letter from Mr. Bryan who was unable to be present, and that it was no more than fair that he should be heard. The Board of Health therefore said that the hearing would be postponed until May 15. There would be no more continuances after that time.

African Snakes.

The African cobra is regarded somewhat reverently by the natives of that country, who once a year kill a cobra de capello and hang its skin to the branch of a tree, tail downward. Then all the children born during the last year are brought out and made to touch the skin. This, the parents think, puts them under the serpent's protection. The cobra de capello divides with the horned viper of Africa the questionable honor of being the "worm of the Nile," to whose venomous tooth Cleopatra's death was due. The Kaffirs use the venom of this snake's cousin, the puff adder, to poison their arrows, and when they have any small quantity left they swallow it, having a theory that it will protect them from the bad effects of future bites. The Snake tribe of the Punjab say that the bites of snakes do not hurt them, and if they find a dead serpent they dress it in clothes and give it a superb funeral.

Sarcastic.

ROBERT ANDERSON MAKES CONFESSION

Was Author of "Parnellism and Crime" Articles In 1887

London, April 8.—In an autobiographical article in Blackwood's Magazine Sir Robert Anderson admits authorship of the famous "Parnellism and Crime" series of articles published in The Times in 1887, which culminated in the publication of the Pigott forgery. Anderson was then adviser to the home office, and later, during the proceedings of the Parnell commission, became head of the investigation division of Scotland Yard.

In 1886 Mr. Gladstone formed a parliamentary alliance with Parnell, and proposed a home rule bill, which secured the support of all the Irish members, but caused a split in the Liberal party and restored Lord Salisbury to power. Toward the close of the parliamentary session of 1887 The Times sought to discredit home rule before the country by publishing a series of articles entitled "Parnellism and Crime," in which it tried to assassinate Parnell politically by connecting him with the Phoenix Park murders and other assassinations.

In support of its allegation it published letters alleged to have been written by Parnell, which were proved before a committee appointed by parliament to investigate the charges to have been forged by Pigott.

Workmen Buried by Falling Wall

Saybrook, Conn., April 8.—Premature removal of supports for a concrete wall, which had not thoroughly hardened, caused the wall to collapse, letting down a section of the roof which it supported, caused the death of Jeremiah Cohane, the foreman, and the injuring of nine workmen who were caught under the debris.

INVALID FOR FORTY YEARS

Somerville Woman Leaves More Than $800,000 In Public Bequests

Somerville, Mass., April 8.—More than $800,000 is bequeathed to charitable, educational and religious institutions and societies by the will of Miss Martha R. Hunt of this city, which has been filed at the Middlesex probate court in Cambridge. Miss Hunt also gave to relatives and friends nearly $100,000.

One of the most interesting features of her will is the fact that it shows that, although she was an invalid and confined to her home for more than forty years, the testatrix, by careful management and good business ability, increased the $250,000 or so left by her father, Reuben Hunt, who died in 1866, to nearly four times that amount.

This was accomplished despite the fact that she quietly gave away many thousands of dollars during life to many worthy causes.

MRS. GLOVER IS SCORED

Lawyer Scott Accuses Her as Accessory of Husband's Murder

Cambridge, Mass., April 8.—"If Hattie Le Blanc participated in this crime, then Mrs. Lillian M. Glover shielded the murderer of the man she called husband. She secreted her for three days in her home. Under the laws of this commonwealth she is an accessory after the fact and guilty of murder in the first degree."

These were the closing sentences in the arraignment Attorney Scott made of Mrs. Lillian M. Glover in his argument in the Glover will contest.

"Treacherous fiend," "defamer of the dead," "an unmitigated liar," "possessor of a guilty conscience," were some of the phrases the attorney used in his characterization of Mrs. Glover.

MASKED MEN BLOW UP BANK BUILDING

Three of Them Captured After Being Peppered With Shot

Chicago, April 8.—Five masked bandits escaping with $7000 stolen from the Bank of Coal City, at Coal City, Ills., exchanged shots with a posse, three of the robbers being wounded and captured. The entire population was aroused by the explosion in the bank and the ensuing pursuit.

The marauders began operations by tying Barney Ghetto, the night watchman, and Washington Frye, the night engineer of the electric plant. They blew up the bank building and shattered the safe with a great charge of nitro-glycerine, and, after securing the contents of the safe, leaped on a freight train with their plunder. Three hours later three men suffering from wounds inflicted by small shot were arrested at Morris, Ills.

The wounds were received, it is reported, when a posse, formed along the line of the railroad, came up with the fugitives.

FIND COUNTERFEITERS' DEN

New Haven Police Stumble Upon a Well-Equipped Plant

New Haven, April 8.—Following the arrest here of George M. Haller, for the displaying of objectionable pictures, a search of his rooms disclosed one of the most complete counterfeiting plants ever found in the city.

There were molds and dies of excellent workmanship for 10-cent pieces and quarters and a quantity of sheet silver and plates for $1, $2 and $5 bills, and silk threads similar to those used by the government. Also there were several cameras with expensive lenses.

The city has been flooded with counterfeit dimes and quarters lately.

ALCOHOLISM NOT A HABIT

Disease Which Can Be Cured, According to a Boston Doctor

Philadelphia, April 8.—Dr. C. J. Douglas of Boston, in an address before the American Society for the Study of Alcohol, told of the discovery of a new remedy for alcoholism which will produce instantaneous sleep.

He said alcoholism is not a habit as some suppose, but is a disease, and can be entirely cured by sanatorium treatment.

Bat Nelson a "Notorious Character"

FOSS RECEIVES BIG OVATION

Prolonged Applause as He Takes Oath as Congressman

BROTHER ACTS AS HIS ESCORT

New Member Will Be In Company of Republicans, as His Seat Is Located In "Cherokee Strip"—Uncle Joe Has Gracious Words For Mother of Two "Boys" and Asks "Which Is Which"

Washington, April 8.—Eugene N. Foss, erstwhile Republican and now a full-fledged Democrat, elected to the house to succeed the late Representative William C. Lovering from the Fourteenth Massachusetts district, took the oath of office amid prolonged applause on the Democratic side of the house, in which most of the Republican insurgents joined heartily.

After the journal had been read and approved, Speaker Cannon presented to the house the certificate of Foss' election, signed by Governor Draper of Massachusetts. Representative George E. Foss, a brother of the new member and chairman of the house committee on naval affairs, announced that the member-elect was present and ready to take the oath of office.

As he stepped to his brother's side and escorted him down the centre aisle the Democrats broke into applause, which continued until the speaker indicated that he was ready to administer the oath. After the speaker finished reading the Democrats again broke into applause, and the two brothers, one a Democrat and the other a Republican, walked up the centre aisle arm in arm.

Although elected a Democrat, Foss will find himself in the company of Republican members each day. His desk is in that section of the house known as the "Cherokee Strip," on the Democratic side, but used for the overflow of Republican members. It happens that most of the members in the "Strip" are insurgents, prominent among them being Representative Norris of Nebraska. The only Democrat in addition to Foss who is located there is Representative Roddenberry of Georgia.

Speaker Cannon has long been a personal friend of Foss and in fact, has been his guest at his home in Cohasset. Just before the house assembled, the representative-elect, escorted by his brother, called at the speaker's room, accompanied by the mother and wife of the Massachusetts man, whom they happened to meet outside the door. "Uncle Joe" was the soul of graciousness and did his prettiest to show his visitors that they were welcome.

"You are responsible for these two boys," said the speaker to the mother of the two statesmen. Then, placing a hand on the shoulder of each "boy" he said, "to quote the Bible, righteousness and peace, which, madame, is which?" The lady laughed, but declined to commit herself.

Mr. Foss declined to make any statement to the press, saying simply that he had come to Washington to do his duty, like any other congressman, and desired to learn what would be required of him. He will probably speak in St. Paul, April 13, and Auburn, N. Y., April 15. This is the district where George W. Aldridge, the local Republican boss, has seized the nomination to succeed the late James Breck Perkins. He is being violently opposed by the progressive element. The Democrats have nominated Havens, a partner of Perkins, and are hopeful, with the assistance of the Republicans, of electing him as a rebuke to the methods of the Republican machine.

CZARINA IN GOOD HEALTH

Social Life In Russian Court, Long Suspended, Resumed In Full Vigor

St. Petersubrg, April 8.—Empress Alexandra furnished the best possible refutation of the recent reports that she was in serious ill health when she received American Ambassador W. W. Rockhill. If one may judge from appearances, she has fully recovered her normal condition.

The audience marked the resumption of the social life of the court in full vigor, which had been suspended, practically, since the war with Japan.

Hetty Green Appears Weak

New York, April 8.—Uotwithstanding assurance that Mrs. Hetty Green is in her usual health, she leaned heavily on her son's arm at one side and her daughter's arm at the other, when she alighted from a taxicab to visit her office for the first time in a week.

Income Tax Knocked Out

Boston, April 8.—The income tax amendment to the federal constitution was voted down in the committee on federal relations, the vote being 11 to 4. The report will be fought in the legislature.

Tax Collector Indicted

Dedham, Mass., April 8.—Clarence H. Dadman, tax collector of Wellesley, was indicted by the Norfolk county grand jury on thirty counts for larceny. He was arrested Jan. 27 for stealing $7200.

REV. B. M. TIPPLE
His Attack on Vatican Angered Mr. Roosevelt

VATICAN'S NOTE MODERATE

Why the Last Dispatch to Roosevelt Was Not Made Public

Rome, April 8.—Several American newspapers have accused Mr. Roosevelt of failing to give out all the correspondence that passed between the Vatican and himself, in that he did not supply the newspaper men with the Vatican's last dispatch. It appears this is not Roosevelt's fault.

The Tribuna states that Mr. Leishman did not think the dispatch of sufficient interest to Roosevelt to communicate the entire text. He simply advised Roosevelt, then in Egypt, that the Vatican insisted that an audience would be impossible unless the conditions imposed were agreed to. It now appears that the Vatican's answer was really couched in the most moderate terms in order to permit negotiations to continue.

Mr. Roosevelt, being unaware of this, and thinking that all chance of an audience was lost, communicated the correspondence he had to the press. It was then too late for the affair to be straightened out.

ANOTHER QUEER ACT RELATED BY SPENCER

Sympathized With and Became Chum of Man He Robbed

Springfield, Mass., April 8.—Shooting and robbing a man, then reappearing in a few minutes with appearance changed to sympathize with his victim, was one of the strange acts of Bertram G. Spencer, the self-confessed murderer of Miss Blackstone, in a further confession made by him.

Not only did he sympathize with the victim, who was Michael Gilhooley, a motorman who was held up and robbed in August, 1908, but afterward became fast friends with him. Gilhooley was one of the most surprised men in Springfield when Spencer confessed.

AFTER THREE YEARS OF LIFE

New England Investment Company In Receivers' Hands

NEW HAMPSHIRE COURT ACTS

Bills In Equity Already Pending In Two Other States—Concern Holds Securities In Many Industries, Stock In Which Is Held by About Three Thousand Persons—Enormous Valuation of Putty Formula

Concord, N. H., April 8.—Upon the representation of many stockholders residing in Manchester that the company was insolvent, that its shares of stock had been sold at varying prices and that its capital stock was being used to pay dividends of 20 and 30 percent, receivers were appointed by Judge Aldrich in the United States court here for the New England Investment company, a concern chartered in Rhode Island.

Bills in equity are already pending against the company in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, while a temporary injunction has been allowed to prevent the payment of certain claims in the latter state.

The receivers for New Hampshire were named as Judge Bingham of the supreme court of Manchester and Burns P. Hodgman, clerk of the United States court, of Concord. The petition for receivers was brought by James A. Broderick of Manchester, in the name of the stockholders who were possessed of 2100 shares.

The New England Investment company was started in Rhode Island some three years ago, as a holding company, the founder and president being Joseph De Champlain of Manchester, N. H., who is still at the head of the concern. The capital stock named in the charter was $500,000, and shares were sold all over New England and in Canada, at prices, it is claimed, of from 50 cents to $3, which, it is claimed, brought $623,000 into the company, the number of stockholders approaching 3000, mostly of the laboring class.

The investment company by various deals took over a number of subsidiary companies representing coal, wood, ice, hosiery, putty, pickling, granite and lumber industries and extended its influence into the farming communities of the New England states and Canada.

Dissatisfaction with the affairs of the company became current with the report a few months ago of Auditor Greet, who presented a statement in which he claimed the dividends were unearned, and were being paid out of the capital stock.

In his statement it was stated that a valuation of $99,975 was put upon the formula for making putty in the statement of assets of the American Kaoline Putty company of Salem, Mass., and that the good will of the Dunstable (Mass.) Granite company was given as $49,975. The total assets of the investment company were given as $932,677.15.

In the petition filed here it is claimed that the property of the company is worth but $279,000, and that the claims against the company and depreciation will show that the company is in fact insolvent.

Westerly, R. I., April 8.—An investigation which may uncover a double murder has been begun by the police into the deaths, under similar suspicious circumstances, of Charles R. Hood and his wife had lived with Mr. and Mrs. Larrow here for several years. Hood was a teamster.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

COLONIAL THEATRE.

No play presented in Boston in recent years scored a more emphatic success than was registered by "The Third Degree" when that remarkable drama was presented there for the first time a trifle more than a year ago. During an engagement at the Hollis Street theatre—an engagement originally intended for two weeks, but lengthened by popular demand into six-theatregoers gave such unusual manifestations of approval that the future of the play was instantly established. A New York hearing followed the Boston verdict was ratified, and "The Third Degree" remained at the Hudson theatre for one entire season. Since that time practically every city in the country has seen Charles Klein's remarkable drama and it is therefore of interest to note that the piece is to return to Boston, the date being April 11 and the place the Colonial theatre. Boston playgoers were the first to acclaim "The Third Degree" a success and they probably will show great interest in welcoming it back at the height of its universal popularity. For the engagement at the Colonial Mr. Harris is sending the New York cast and production. Few if any of those who attended the opening performances of this play have forgotten the remarkable character portrayal of Miss Helen Ware in the role of Annie Jeffries. Her work was instantly stamped as exceedingly remarkable and it is doubtful if during the life of "The Third Degree" the American stage has seen such an apealing bit of acting as Miss Ware presents in her delineation of the part of the young wife of a millionaire's son, who has been cast off by his family for marrying a waitress while a student at college. Miss Ware continues in this role and her acting has lost none of its charm or artistic value. Ralph Delmore will be seen again as the criminal dogging police captain of hypnotic powers and the remainder of the cast includes James Seeley for several seasons a popular member of the Castle Square stock company, Frazer Coulter and Malcolm Duncan, remembered for their prominence in "The Lion and the Mouse."

PARK THEATRE.

The engagement of William Hodge in "The Man from Home" at the Park theatre, Boston, is one of the most remarkable in the history of theatricals in this section. Ever since the opening performance fourteen weeks ago, capacity business has been the rule and people are turned away nightly. "The Man from Home" is nearing its 150th performance and there is no indications of any let-up in the attendance. On the night of April 15th, Miss Ida Vernon, who plays the part of Lady Creech, will celebrate her 54th year on the stage. Miss Vernon made her debut at the Boston theatre April 15th, 1856, as one of the Little Blossom Fairies in "A Midsummer Night's Dream." "The Man from Home" is one of those cleverly constructed plays which appeals to all classes clean, wholesome and invigorating and presented by a cast the equal of which has not been seen on a Boston stage for years. Mr. Hodge is such a fine actor and has such a unique and attractive personality that half the honor of the absorbing enticements of the play are due to his delightful acting and fortunately he is never out of the heart of the story or the stage center for two minutes after he climbs into it. He opens up with a rapid fire of Americanisms, which are kindled by the Hodge humor and temperament. "The Man from Home "will not be seen in any other city in New England. The Park theatre management announce that they make a specialty in giving mail orders careful attention. An extra matinee will be given on Patriots day, Tuesday, April 19th.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"Raffles" will be the play at the Castle Square next week, having been postponed in order to give "The Marriage of Kitty" a chance to complete its run. As a drama of exciting incident in which the theft of a diamond necklace of great value plays a prominent part, "Raffles "has aroused widespread attention both in England and in America. It has been given by the eminent English actor, Kyrle Bellew, with great success ,and its popularity duplicated that of the well known detective stories by E. W. Horrung upon which it is founded. The scenes are laid at the country house of Lord Amersteth and at the chambers of Raffles in London, and the chase for the gentleman burglar who has stolen the gems is alert from almost the beginning to the very end of the play. In the Castle Square production, the title role of Raffles will be acted by John Craig with his customary skill, and the romantic love passages will be cleverly interpreted by Mary Young as the heroine, Gwendolen Conron.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

It would appear that vaudeville has reached the limit in the production Gertrude Hoffmann will put on at Keith's next week. As a matter of fact, it is a series of productions embracing about everything of importance which has appeared in the past year in vaudeville, musical comedy or on the legitimate stage. It is nothing short of a Ziegfeld revue, for although Miss Hoffmann does all the impersonations herself and a half a dozen burlesques, she is supported by a company of 25 people and there is constant change of scene, some of the settings being of the most elaborate character. This is particularly true when she burlesques Annette Kellermann, the "Diving Venus," in this the entire company appears, no less than 12 girls in Kellermann costumes going into the tank one after another. In her imitation of Isadora Duncan she has 12 dancers do the "Blue Danube." Again as Ruth St. Denis she has a troupe of East Indians who sing and dance and so on through all the impersonations, including Harry Lauder, Eddie Leonard, Eva Tanguay, Eddie Foy, Valeska Surratt, Anna Held, Alice Lloyd and a score of others. This production has been one of the sensations of the year in New York, and as it comes to Boston for only one week crowded houses are assured. The entire bill will be of equal interest in character.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Miss Anna Held, who it will be remembered, made such a distinct hit in Boston earlier in the season at the Colonial theatre, comes to the Boston theatre for a single week's engagement beginning Monday, April 11th, in F. Ziegfeld, Jr.'s musical production "Miss Innocence." Harry B. Smith is responsible for the book and lyrics of "Miss Innocence, "and Ludwig Englander composed the music. It is staged by Julian Mitchell. The plot is not divulged, but in the play, according to all announcements, there is an endless number of up-to-date novelties and startling features. The work is in two acts and eight big scenes ,the first of which is a girls' seminary, located on the Isle of Innocence, the second is a railway train running between Marseilles and Paris; the third, an exact production of the famous Abbaye Restaurant in Paris, showing the Moulin Rouge by night in the distance. This scene, which is one of the important features of the production ,is said to eclipse anything that has so far been attempted in the realm of musical comedy stagedom. The other pictures include a ballet school in Vienna an aeroplane in action, a famous art studio in Paris, and the land of Peach Blossoms in the south of France. The original New York Theatre Company and chorus will be seen here. The large cast is made up of such important musical comedy players headed by Lawrence D'Orsay. Miss Held will wear her famous dress with 3,000 diamonds. The dress complete is said to represent an outlay of $30,000. This engagement will mark Miss Held's first and only appearance in Boston at Boston theatre prices.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

On the bill which has been arranged for the American Music hall this coming week are at least seven features that have long since been recognized as vaudeville headliners, so that the difficulty of selecting any one for the top position may be imagined. Considerable interest will center in the return of Europe's bathing sensation, the Divine Myrma. There is no longer any secret as to the identity of this beautiful mermaid. She is none other than Miss Ethel MacDonough at one time the popular drummer of the Boston Fadettes. Her perfect form, her beauty of face and her remarkable ability as a swimmer and diver have placed her in the first rank of diving acts. She does everything that a diver before the public does and a great deal more. Another pleasing feature will be Collins and Hart, two strongmen. This is an act that is ludicrously funny from start to finish. It was at one time the big feature of "Little Nemo." The inducements held out by vaudeville compelled both Mr. Collins and Mr. Hart to forsake the legitimate. John C. Rice and Sally Cohen always welcome to Boston will be seen in their latest one act farce "Our Honeymoon." The balance of the bill will include The Orlicks, whirlwind Russian dancers from the Imperial Russian Ballet and Mlle. Berthe a high class violinist and others.

Nine Hundred People Have Cause to Be Thankful to Wireless

London, April 8.—Nine hundred passengers were transferred from the burning steamer Cairnrona to the Kanawha in the English channel.

ETNA'S CRATER COLLAPSES

Incandescent Streams of Lava Are Several Miles In Length

Catania, Sicily, April 8.—Mount Etna is again busy. Parts of the central crater collapsed yesterday. Lava is pouring down in immense furrows on all sides, illuminating the cone at night.

The incandescent streams are several miles in length. The lava is spreading new destruction in the neighborhood of Cysterna.

High-Toned Cafe Goes Under

New York, April 8.—Too much time between order and the dinner, the result of too much distance between the kitchen and the dining room, brought about an assignment of the Cafe de l'Opera, with liabilities of $600,000. The restaurant was opened last fall at a cost of $1,500,000, with a chef at $50,000 a year and a manager at $100,000.

—Two and a half million will be spent to develop electric power from the River Sure in Belgium to produce power for the city of Luxemburg.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL LEAGUE

New Diamonds Laid Out at Merrymount Park

Dr. J. G. Smith, athletic instructor in the Quincy public schools, has arranged for a grammar school base ball league, and the schedule of games as arranged by him will be found below.

Dr. Smith has laid out three diamonds on the lower field in Merrymount park and here the coming baseball stars of the country will hold full sway after the school hours during the remainder of the school term.

Every game will start promptly at 4.15 P. M. and if a nine does not put in an appearance at 4.30 P. M. a forfeiture is allowed. The umpires will be carefully selected that the game may be as good as possible from all standpoints. The games will be of five innings each, for a growing boy should not be allowed to go nine innings, and it is believed by the instructors and principals that more interest will be shown in short contests.

Summing up this, it looks like a glorious idea, for besides giving the youths plenty of open air exercise, it teachers them to taste victory and defeat and last but not least, develop the ones that have the ability to become fine players in seasons to come.

The schedule:

April 11—Coddington vs. Washington. Gridley Bryant vs. Willard.

—The span of human life is no doubt increasing, but the statistics that are compiled to prove it are often delusive. For instance, the death-rate per thousand is affected by the great mortality among old people and children under five years of age. If in any community one or both of these classes is absent ,there will be a fictitious evidence of increasing longevity not warranted by the facts. In France if fewer children are born than old people die, there will be a lowering of the death-rate per thousand, giving France an apparent advantage over another country where more people die because more babies are born to die early. The only safe rule is to count the number of deaths at every age from birth to death. By this method it is proved that human life is lengthening. More people die at eighty, ninety ,and one hundred than ever before. This is evidence that, on the whole, conditions of health and longevity are improving.—Christian Register.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

Baseball is here for a stay.

* * *

We'll soon get in line for a daily dip.

* * *

How did the wind-up in the Old Colony bowling league suit you? It looks as though Weymouth was too strong for the others.

* * *

Dn't forget the first baseball game of the season will be played tomorrow afternoon at the Fore Fiver athletic field. The Fore River Apprentices meet the Mechanics and a battle royal is promised.

* * *

All roads will lead to the Granite street alleys tonight when Guinan and Lyons of Norfolk Downs and Kiley and Smith of Weymouth meet to settle many a dispute as to which is the stronger two-man team. Great rivalry existe between these teams and a large delegation will accompany their favorites to cheer them on to victory. Quincy enthusiasts are divided over picking the winner, many believing that the teams are evenly matched.

* * *

I am in receipt of a letter from Bjorkland and he wants every ball player in Quincy and surrounding towns, who believes he can make good ,to appear at the Water street grounds Saturday afternoon, April 16. If there are enough present a game will be arranged, and Bjorkland will watch how the men handle themselves. Will Michael, Elcock, Kelley, Armstrong, Fay, Curtis, Trop, Hoyt, Fallon, Saunders, Rogers and others avail themselves of this opportunity to make good? I hope so for familiar faces are welcome on any team.

* * *

There are at least three men, prominent in city affairs, who are looking forward to the opening of the baseball season. I refer to Chief of the Fire Department Williams, City Treasurer Curtis and Chief of Police Burrell. I noticed Chief Williams at all Old Colony league games last season. Chief Burrell and City Treasurer Curtis were both crack players in their younger days, the former being a catcher and the latter a star in the short field position.

Rube.

—Strange things are done sometimes in the name of humanity. An illustration is afforded in the action of a woman resident of the millionaire colony at Plainfield, N. J., who could not bear to sell her "blue ribbon coach horses," now that she is devoted to the automobile, and so had them shot, lest they should not be well treated if sold. Why, in the name of common sense, did not this person care for her horses until death claimed them, She has plenty of money, but seems to have lacked sense. Those horses regarded life as worth living.—Milford Gazette.

Wart Superstitions.

Wart lore is voluminous. It is said that a wart will leave a person if a lock of his hair is cut from the nape of his neck without his knowing it; that a wart will result if a frog spit on one; that warts may be cured by rubbing them over with a black snail, which must afterward be impaled on a hawthorn; that if a bag containing as many pebbles as one has warts be tossed over the left shoulder it will transfer the warts to the person who picks up the bag; that if one take a piece of twine, make as many knots on it as there are warts, touch each wart with the corresponding knot and bury the twine in a moist place, saying, "There is none to redeem it beside thee," the warts will disappear, and so on ad infinitum.

Died In Place of a Younger Man.

A charge was made at a wall lined with French infantry. Sergeant McQuade of an English regiment saw two Frenchmen level their muskets on rests against a gap in a bank awaiting the appearance of an enemy. Sir George Brown, then a lad of sixteen, started to ascend at the fatal point. "You are too young, sir, to be killed," said McQuade, pulling him back and stepping into his place. He fell dead pierced with both bullets.

Beards In England.

It was about 1855 that the beard movement took hold of the English people. The Crimean war had much to do with it. The soldiers were permitted to forego the use of the razor, as the hair on the face protected them from the cold and attacks of neuralgia. About this period only one civilian of position in England had the hardihood to wear a mustache. This was George F. Muntz, member of parliament for Birmingham. The enlightened electors, however, did not take kindly to the bearded politician. An officer candidate on one occasion received an intimation from the leader of his party that his mustache might prejudice him in the eyes of the rural population. The candidate replied that he was "determined to face it out."—Westminster Gazette.

Circular Talk.

The judge's son had just finished his course in law and came home triumphantly with his sheepskin in a fine frame. The old judge turned to his son with some wholesome advice. "My son, when you have a case in court and your opponent has the law on his side, you must talk facts, and when he has the facts on his side you must talk law." The young man sat and pondered awhile and then asked, "Father, what must a fellow do when his opponent has both the law and the facts on his side?" The judge looked wise and replied, "Just talk around and around, my son."—Success Magazine.

U. S. DESTROYER PERKINS SUCCESSFULLY LAUNCHED

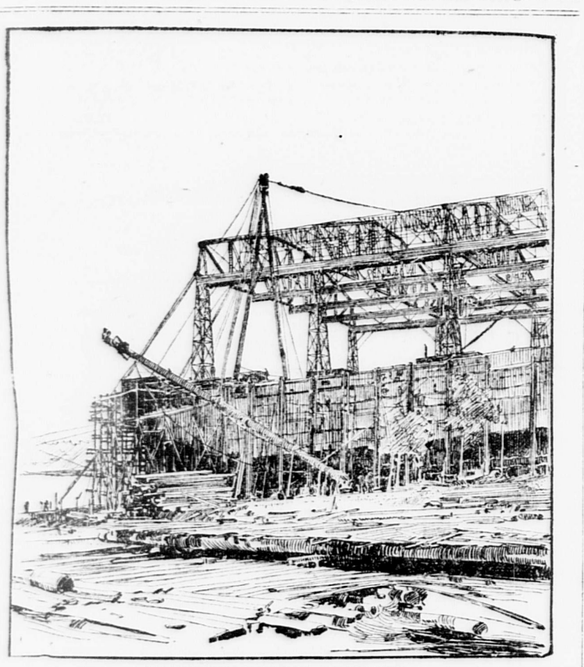
Also Members of Naval Commission From Argentina.

It was an unusually distinguished party that gathered at the works of the Fore River Ship Building Co., at Quincy this morning, to witness the launching of the U. S. Torpedo Destroyer Perkins, one of three similar vessels being built at the Fore River for the United States navy. The Perkins is named for the late Commander George H. Perkins, U. S. N., and was given her name by Mrs. Lars Anderson of Boston and Washington, a daughter of Commodore Perkins.



A SCENE AT THE SHIPYARD

Mrs. Anderson was accompanied by Mr. Anderson and a large party of friends, and in addition to these the launch was witnessed by a quartette of naval officers of the Argentine Republic, for whom the Fore River Co. is to build a dreadnaught, the keel of which will be laid at an early date. This quartette included Lieut. M. Bianchi and Mrs. Bianchi, Lieut. Comd. C. M. Vanadares, Electrical Engineer D. Casanova and Naval Architect Valerio Marjoan.

The United States navy was represented by Rear Admiral Chester N. Colby and Mrs. Colby, Rear Admiral Silas W. Terry and Mrs. Terry, Naval Constructor H. G. Gillmour, Lieut. Owen Hill, Capt. Charles H. Manning, Capt. Gow, and Mrs. Gow. Other notables present were President Bowles and Mrs. Bowles, Gen. Stephen Weld and Mrs. Weld, Col. Crosby Schuyler, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. H. L. Kincaide, Mayor William T. Shea of Quincy, and the members of the citizens committee of Quincy, who had charge of the banquet recently tendered to Admiral Bowles on his return from Europe with the Argentine contract.

Mrs. Anderson and the Boston party arrived at the yards on a special train which left Boston at 9 A. M., and which was run over the company's private track from Braintree, landing the party near the launching stand, which had been erected about the bow of the destroyer. As the party left the cars they were received by President Bowles, who presented Mrs. Anderson with a magnificent boquet of roses. She was immediately escorted to the launching stand which was gaily bedecked with bunting of the national colors. The Perkins was also decorated for the occasion, the flags of the international code being suspended along her deck, while the United States, the naval and Fore River private flag were also conspicuous.

Preparations for the launch were commenced as the party mounted the steps leading to the launching stand. While this was in progress a small army of photographers were busy photographing the sponsor who graciously posed for them. Meanwhile there was heard the merry tap of a hundred or more hammers as they drove in the wedges which lifted the boat from her keel blocks and allowed her to rest on the cradle. Then came the knocking away of the shores and the splitting out of the keel blocks.

All was now in readiness for the sawing of the soul piece, the two-inch planks which held the vessel in check. Suspended from the bow was a streamer of red, white and blue, at the end of which was a bottle of Mumm's extra dry, encased in a silver mesh, with which the destroyer was to be christened. Mrs. Anderson took a firm grasp on the bottle and President Bowles after a hasty glance to see that all was in readiness nodded his head. Then came the sound of the two saws as they worked their way through the planks.

This was the work of but a second, and the vessel was seen to be moving toward the water. As she started a hundred voices shouted, "there she goes." The next instant Mrs. Anderson hit the steel bow a smash with the bottle, and as the sparkling wine ran down her bow, said, "I christen thee, Perkins." The vessel gathered headway rapidly and was soon clear of the ways and floating gracefully in the river.

As she slid down the ways the whistles at the yards and on the craft in the river shrieked out their welcome, which was taken up by the thousands that lined the shores of Weymouth Fore river, and who were gathered about the launching stand. As soon as she was in the water, tugs conveyed her to the fitting out dock near the North Dakota, where she will be completed in time for delivery on September 1, of the present year.

Among the guests at the launching were:

It was 10.15 when President Bowles gave the signal to saw away the soul piece, and this was the work of but a few seconds. Usually the minute this piece is sawed through the boat begins to move. The Perkins was so light, however, that she was slow to start and it was necessary to boost her a little with wedges. It was just 10.20 when she began to move, and her course down the ways was slow and smooth.

After the first excitement of the launch was over President Bowles proposed three cheers for Mrs. Anderson which were given with a will. The launching party were then escorted about the yard, being given an opportunity to view the battleship North Dakota which leaves Sunday morning, as well as the yacht Aloha built for Commodore James of the New York Yacht club and which was launched a few weeks ago. By 11 o'clock all of the guests assembled in the mold loft, where the lunch was served. Two long tables were arranged across the loft while at the head of the room was a smaller table for Mrs. Andersons party.

The tables looked unusually attractive. In the centre of each was a huge mound of sweet peas that on one table being pink in color and on the other white. On the head table in addition to the mound of sweet peas was a basket of lilies. Trailing along the table from these mounds were Jack roses and ferns, the whole, as noted above, making a pretty effect.

During the progress o fthe lunch President Bowles rapped for order, and with a few words in regard to the Perkins and Commodore Perkins for whom she was named, he called upon Mayor Shea, to extend the welcome of the city. Mayor Shea spoke briefly assuring the guests that he was more than pleased to welcome such a distinguished party to the city, as well as to do honor to Mrs. Anderson, whose father was an officer with Admiral Faragutt. He then propcsed a toast to Mrs. Anderson to which all united.

Mrs. Anderson responded briefly thanking the Fore River for the honor of being chosen to be sponsor of a vessel named for her father and in his name and memory she thanked the officials of the Fore River Co. and the Mayor for his welcome.

This concluded the speaking and shortly after noon it was announced that the special train was in waiting to take the party back to Boston.

As a whole it was one of the most successful launchings that the Fore River has ever had, and it was particularly pleasing to citizens of Quincy who were largely represented.

STREET RAILWAY BALL

All the Neighboring Towns Largely Represented

The eighth annual ball of local 253 of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America was held last night at Music hall, and was the occasion for a large gathering of street railway employees of Quincy and surounding towns and their ladies. The attendance was fully as large as on previous occasion and the affair was a social success.

While the larger part of those present took an active part in the festivities, there were many who from choice watched the gay scene being enacted on the floor of the hall from the balcony. These included Supt. Thomas Gammons of the Quincy division, and Mrs. Gammons, Richard Childs, cashier at Quincy; Russell Sullivan and Daniel Driscoll of the office force at Quincy; Starters Charles Austin and Arthur Brady, Mayor William T. Shea, City Messenger Harry W. Tirrell; Michael Coughlin, foreman of the Quincy barn; John Noonan, foreman of the South Braintree barn; Timothy Donahue, foreman of the East Weymouth barn; Walter Howley, assistant foreman at the same barn and William W. Walsh, a former president of the local.

The decorations of the hall were in charge of Derringer, the well known florist, and he did his work well. The entire front of the platform was a mass of potted plants, and ferns, in the centre of which was a large shield representing the button worn by the members of the local. This shield was a work of art and very handsome. It was composed of galax leaves, pinks, and roses. Around the edge were the letters A. of S. and E. R. E. of A., local 253, the letters being formed by immortelles. In the centre was an electric car, the outline being of white pinks while on a yellow panel was the word "Quincy."

Wilson's orchestra furnished the music and from 8 to 9 o'clock gave a fine concert, the program being as follows:

March, "Cordial Greeting" Koenig
Overture, F. von Suppe
"Morning, Noon and Night in Vienna"
Concert Waltz, "Violets" E. Waldteufel
Duet, "The Butterflies" Theo. Bendix
Flute and Clarinet
Medley Overture Gus Edward's
"My Cousin Caruso"
Xylophone Solo, "Electric" Sellenik
Gerald A. Sullivan
Finale, "Friendship" H. J. Repp

Promptly at 9 o'clock the signal was given for the grand march which was to open the ball. This was one of the features of the evening and was participated in by ninety couples. It was a sort of innovation, for instead of being nearly an hour long as most grand marches are, it occupied but a few minutes.

The march was led by John Faircloth, the president of the association, and Miss Elizabeth O'Neil, who wore a handsome gown of pink with spangles and carried a large bouquet of pink roses. Following was His Honor Mayor Shea and Miss Rose Coughlin then came Thomas Joyce, the floor director, and Mrs. Joyce; the Assistant floor directors Frank Sampson and Mrs. Sampson; William Coyle and Miss Jane Dillon; Richard Little, chairman of the committee of arrangements and Miss Marie Little; Lewis R. Dunham, secretary of the committee of arrangements, and Mrs. Dunham, and Walter Blake of the same committee and Miss Sadie Holbrook.

At the end of the line of marchers were two little girls, both dressed in pink. These were Miss Marion Austin and Miss Beryl Brayshaw.

The march over, general dancing was in order until midnight at which time supper was served in the annex by C. C. Whittemore. Dancing was then continued until 2 o'clock when special cars were found in waiting to take the tired but happy dancers to their homes.

Funeral services for the late Horatio Bingley French were held Friday afternoon at the home of his sister Mrs. Charles L. Badger. Rev. Dr. Hardy of Bethany church conducted the services and spoke feelingly of the deceased. Henry Turner of Dorchester sang "One sweetly solemn thought" and "He is waiting. The floral tributes were many and beautiful and testified to the love and esteem in which he was held.

Everyone reads about George Little Nap and Mutt and Jeff everyday in the newspapers. Some of these sketches will be staged with Song hits and the classy Rosetta Parasol Chorus at Men's Club Vaudeville Show and Dance, Quincy Music Hall April 15.

HINGHAM BRIDGE HEARING

Quincy, Weymouth and Others Object Because of Cost

Quincy, Weymouth and Hingham put up good arguments on Friday at a hearing held in the Federal Building, Boston, before Lieutenant Colonel Edward Burr of the United States Engineers, with reference to alterations in the highway and street railway bridge over Weymouth Back river on Lincoln street, Hingham, proposed to be required by the War Department to render navigation through these bridges reasonably free, easy and unobstructed. The Government has acquired property beyond the bridge for a naval magazine, and is desirous that a draw fifty feet wide be constructed to allow the passage of supply lighters.

Opposition to the alterations was made by counsel for Quincy, Weymouth and Hingham, who claimed that there is no need of the changes, because of the slight use made of the present draw. Albert Worthen appeared for Weymouth and traced the history of the bridge. He stated that the expense to Quincy, Weymouth and Hingham will be great, if the fifty-foot draw is constructed, as it will necessitate an entirely new bridge.

The town of Hingham was represented by Joseph Burdett and Quincy by John W. McAnarney. The Old Colony Street Railway Company was represented by S. H. Pillsbury. He said that outside of a small sloop with sand the use of that part of the river is confined to pleasure craft.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Have you been up before the sun any of these fine mornings to get a view of the comet, or do you intend to wait until it becomes visible in the evening sky?

Evidently men are not to have the monopoly of base ball as a team has been organized at Wellesly college. Wonder if they will challenge the men for a game?

We have heard of nearly every kind of a strike but our neighbor Weymouth has a rather novel one, the choir of the First Baptist church having refused to sing. When Parson Carey announced the closing hymn the choir kept their seats. Parson Carey said "For some unknown reason the choir refuses to sing so I ask the congregation to sing the hymn."

An annual clean-up day or week as inaugurated in many towns and cities is a move in the right direction and must arouse considerable interest and civic pride. The improvement society of Wakefield has asked the towns people to designate Patriot's day as cleaning up day and everyone is to get out with brooms, shovels and rakes. By night it should be a "spotless town."

Last spring Commissioner Bainbridge created an interest in the individual cleaning-up of back yards by having the city teams cart off yard rubbish. It worked so well it is hoped he will repeat the experiment.

The beautiful weather of the past few weeks and the bursting buds and green grass have seemed harbingers of an early spring, although the weather wise say that the weather is deceiving and that a freeze is to be feared. The wild geese have begun to fly north and the frogs are piping in the meadows and the whole aspect of nature seems to proclaim the fact that spring has come. There may be some set backs in the way of adverse weather conditions, but we feel sure that nature makes no mistakes and that the seasons are governed by Him who doeth all things well.

The city of Malden is to establish a nursery at the city farm where several varieties of trees are to be raised under the direction of an experienced nursery-man and used along the public streets to replace those which have for various reasons been removed. Several varieties of fir trees, maples, elms, oaks and chestnuts will be started at once in the nursery and will probably be ready for distribution within three years. The Malden idea is what Commissioner Bainbridge has had in mind for Quincy ever since he came into office. It is the right idea and should be encouraged, for nothing contributes more to the attractiveness of a town than rows of shade trees.

Millions of dollars are spent in this country annually in the fight against insect pests. Sprayers and parasites work overtime, but the bugs still seem to have the best of the battle. Some day people will wake up to the fact that this is all due to the ruthless slaughter of the insect eating birds of the country. Last month in a certain town in Tennessee robins were sold for ten cents a dozen. It is said that more than one hundred and fifty thousand were killed in that vicinity. These same birds alive are worth far more to the community than ten cents a dozen. It is a veritable slaughter of the innocents, and some day people will realize that they have killed their strongest allies in the war against the insects. A dozen live hungry birds are worth more than gallons of spraying compound or a bushel of parasites. One of the best presentations of this subject may be found in Longfellow's poem "The Birds of Killingworth."

VAHEY WILL BE CANDIDATE

That Is Unless There Is Strong Demand For Someone Else

Boston, April 9.—James H. Vahey will not be withdrawn from the contest for the Democratic nomination for governor unless it can be pointed out to him that there is a greater demand for another candidate. This is practically the attitude that he takes in a formal statement on his position.

Mr. Vahey states that it is not his purpose to wreck the Democratic party by holding out against Congressman Foss or any other candidate. He proposes to make it plain, however, that in his opinion no other candidate nominated by the party can possibly win except with his support.

Burglars Aided by Fire

New York, April 9.—Burglars, that they might rob the apartments in the confusion following, started a fire that caused fifteen families in the double apartment house at 398 Sutter avenue, Brooklyn, to flee to the street in their night clothes in a panic. The men secured jewelry wirth $300.

TRICK IS TURNED ON ANOTHER VICTIM

Tarboro Man Fleeced Out of $4300 In Fake Race Game

New York, April 9.—Word has been wired to the New York police from Jacksonville, Fla., that a part of the band of swindlers that duped Henry Wagner had victimized another man in the same way that Wagner was robbed of $10,000. The New York authorities are asked to watch for the swindlers.

Simon Jacobson of Tarboro, N. C., told the Jacksonville police that several men had swindled him out of $4300 on a fake horse race in St. Augustine. He met the men on a train and consented to go to St. Augustine with them to act as stakeholder. He said the men entrusted him with "hundreds of thousands" of dollars that they were to bet on the race, and he put his own money in the satchel. The horse the swindlers bet on fell. The jockey was supposedly killed. A fusillade of shots rang out. Jacobson was told to run for his life. He ran.

"We'll meet you in Washington," the swindlers shouted.

Two blocks away Jacobson woke up. He thought the thing queer and returned to see his friends, but they had disappeared.

NOTHING BIZARRE ALLOWED

Bathing Suits on Chicago Beaches Are Subject to Censorship

Chicago, April 9.—Police censorship of bathing costumes has been established in Chicago with the adoption of new rules for swimming beaches. The rules governing costumes laid down by Chief of Police Steward follow:

Extremely bizarre costumes must not be worn.

Women who wear costumes that they do not care to get wet will have to have them made of modest design, or they will be ordered off the sands.

Men who appear on the sands merely to pose as athletes will be ordered away.

Bloomers without skirts will not be tolerated.

AMERICANS DO NOT STICK

Crews of Our Vessels Composed Almost Entirely of Foreigners

Washington, April 9.—The waning of the glamour of the sea is keeping the American boy off the crew lists of American steamers and sailing craft more and more, according to witnesses before the house committee on merchant marine.

The committee was considering the bill to amend the laws relative to American seamen to prevent undermanning and unskilled manning of American vessels and to encourage the training of boys in the American merchant marine.

Officials of the coastwise and inland steamship lines testified they would welcome Americanization of their crews if the Americans would stick to the work, but that now they had to use Greeks, Spaniards and other aliens.

Pittsburg, April 9.—A true bill charging Max G. Leslie, collector of delinquent taxes in Allegheny county, with bribery, was returned by the grand jury. Leslie is charged with receiving $25,000 from the Columbia National bank of Pittsburg on June 3, 1908.

A sweeping presentment was also handed down with general charges that many of the 125 witnesses which the grand jury has had before it during the graft investigations thus far have wilfully withheld facts as to municipal corruption and a certain few have practically been guilty of perjury.

—The Washington Post says that "imagination is the richest and at the same time the most perilous of all the gifts. It rarely brings happiness, it often engenders sorrow, but he that has it lives the life that the other only glides through." What a multitude of gliders there are in this good world of ours. Imagination is a divine gift, but it can be cultivated like any other talent. To such as are thus gifted and who make the most of it this life is well worth the living.

"JEKYLL-HYDE" SLAYER
Bertram Spencer Had a Most Remarkable Career

INSANITY AS HIS DEFENSE

Said to Have Run In the Blood of Bertram Spencer

WOUND INFLICTED BY FATHER

Criminal Instincts May Be Traced to It, Says Mother of Springfield "Raffles"—Happiness of His Home Was Never Broken—Family and Friends Had No Inkling of His Dual Character

Springfield, Mass., April 9.—Bertram Spencer's mother says her son's criminal instincts may possibly be traced to a wound on the head he received at the age of 9 during a beating administered by his father.

Or, she claimed in an interview, the confessed murderer of Miss Blackstone may inherit insanity, as his grandfather, William L. Spencer, died in the Middletown (Conn.) insane hospital, and Helen Dale, a daughter of this man's first wife, was confined in an insane asylum four years.

Mrs. Spencer spent some time with her son in his cell in the Hampton county jail yesterday. Her allegations regarding his mental irresponsibility is considered to indicate that the defense of the confessed murderer and robber will be insanity.

Bertram G. Spencer is very tall, and his physique is excellent. His shoulders are square and broad. His features are regular and pleasant and his complexion is good. His hair is a soft brown. His eyes are light blue.

He has been a model son and husband. Two years ago he married an 18-year-old girl. To his home he took his mother. The happiness of the home was never broken, even for an instant. Family spats were unknown. Spencer came home every night. He never drank. He never smoked. He seldom swore, and none of his companions ever heard him tell an off-color story. He loved singing. His only absences from his home occurred when he dropped out to sing with a few of his friends, to do an errand for his wife, or to get a breath of fresh air. One child was born into the Spencer family a year ago. Another is expected in a week.

"A week ago I asked for some candy," said Mrs. Spencer. "Bert jumped up immediately, got his hat, and said he would get it for me. Half an hour later he returned. He had the candy.

"But in that half hour he had murdered one person, attempted to kill another and had committed a robbery.

"And all the time I never suspected. In the two years we have been married I have never for one moment suspected that he got money in any way that was not perfectly legitimate. But I know it is not his fault. It is the insane streak which has been in his family for generations."

During the entire time that he was at work, and his work has not been limited to Springfield, Spencer has never once fallen under suspicion.

For the past year Spencer has worked as a clerk in Handy's wholesale pork house. After each robbery, and after the murder of Miss Martha Blackstone, Spencer discussed the matters freely with his fellow workmen.

BODY DANGLES IN MIDAIR

Telephone Lineman Meets Instant Death Without Emitting a Sound

Boston, April 9.—The body of Peter Mullen, the life taken out of the form through an electric current of 2400 volts, hung by one leg, swaying back and forth on a cable high above the street fronting the hose house at East Milton last evening.

Then came action by the firemen of the district, who put up a ladder, wound a rope about the body of Mullen and lowered the remains to the street that it might be given over to the charge of an undertaken, for physicians announced that death had been instantaneous.

The deadly high tension eletric wire that had its place upon the pole along with the telephone cable was the cause of the electrocution. Mullen, who was 30 years old, had gone up the pole to repair the telephone cable. One hand was placed upon the high tension wire, and he died without emitting a sound.

Mullen was employed by the New England Telephone and Telegraph company and was regarded as an expert.

SUGAR TRUST FINED $500

In Contempt For Not Producing Its Books For Federal Grand Jury

New York, April 9.—Judge Lacombe of the United States circuit court adjudged the American Sugar Refining company in contempt of court and fined the corporation $500.

The contempt consisted in the failure to respond to the subpoena calling for the production of two books of accounts before the federal grand jury.

The company based its refusal to respond to the subpoena on the ground that there were legal and constitutional questions involved, and that it proposed to appeal from the order of the court directing the submission of the books.

TAFT STILL IN DOUBT ABOUT INDIANA VISIT

Indications That He Will Not Go to Indianapolis

Washington, April 9.—President Taft has said that he would go to Indianapolis; that he would not; that he would, and then again he would consider the matter, according to equally trustworthy stories told by various public men here.

After promising several public men that he would restore Indianapolis to the central west itinerary, the president received a good deal of advice to the effect that he had better stick to his determination not to visit the city. He has had much advice on each side of the question. Unquestionably he is hard put to know what to do under the circumstances.

While most of the old-time leaders in congress have advised him to go into the state and say anything that is on his mind, some of the members of his cabinet and private citizens in whom he places reliance have said to him that the best way out of the whole unfortunate affair is to adhere to his decision of Wednesday to stay away from Indiana.

TWO GIANT WARSHIPS

House Passes Naval Bill Authorizing Their Construction

Washington, April 9.—Two new battleships of the most modern type, to cost approximately $11,000,000 each, were authorized by the house of representatives.

There was a sharp fight, led by Representative Tawney (Minn.), chairman of he appropriation committee, to limit the authorization to one. The test came on a motion to recommit the naval bill with instructions to the naval committee to report such an amendment.

This was defeated, 109 to 160. The naval bill was then passed without division. The action of the house on the president's battleship program practically assures its ultimate success.

The message adds that "this will bless countless generations, proving an eternal monument to Mr. Rockefeller's beneficence in Persia."

"ROUGH STUFF" IS HANDED OUT

Legislators Are Well "Panned" by Albany Writers

PROMINENT POLITICIANS HIT

"Deacon Moe" Peddles Envelopes to Governor Hughes and Other Prominent Guests—"Roosevelt" Appears and Halts Burial of Woodruff, Saying He's Been Dead So Long It Would Be a Waste of Time

Albany, April 9.—Around the state capitol every one of an official capacity is wreathed in smiles as the various "pannings" handed out to the more prominent legislators at the annual dinner of the Legislative Correspondents' league are discussed and told over and over again.

Many officials of national prominence were roughly handled. There were songs, jibes and jests dealing with events at the capital that might have rubbed some one the wrong way if every one had not fallen into the spirit of the occasion and joined in the music with a right good will.

Governor Hughes, Lieutenant Governor White, Speaker Wadsworth, Timothy L. Woodruff, William J. Conners and scores of state officers, legislators and men prominent in public life throughout the state were there to enjoy the shafts of quip and jest which flashed across the banquet board.

While the members were assembling in the lobby of the Ten Eyck a member of the association dressed to represent Deacon "Hi" Moe of Groton, in an Inverness coat, square topped derby hat and carrying a large carpet bag, with the inscription "H. G. M., Groton, N. Y.," circulated among them. He approached Governor Hughes and other prominent guests, handing to each an envelope labelled: "Don't get mine mixed with anybody else's."

The banquet hall was elaborately decorated with American flags, palms and flowers. One end of the long room was reserved as a memorial to the "Old Guard." There was not a touch of red, white and blue on the wall. Instead it was hung with an immense black flag, having in the center a skull and crossbones. Under the flag was the inscription: "'It's better to nail the black flag to the masthead than to run up the white flag of surrender.'—Bill Barnes." Near this were two other inscriptions: "The old guard dies, but never surrenders," and "Don't cheer, boys."

A Democratic class was called beginning with "Willie" Gaynor, but another member said that "Willie" Gaynor wouldn't come because he heard the White House calling.

While the diners were trying to pay attention to some of the eatables the lights went out and there was a loud blare of horns, crashing of drums and rolls of thunder.

Then in the blaze of a spotlight appeared "Bwana Tumbo" in African costume, with a gun strapped across his shoulder. He announced emphatically that he would not have "A Return from Elba." "They tell me Root is trying to bury 'Tim' Woodruff," said he. "That is absurd, ridiculous! Woodruff has been dead so long that it is a waste of time."

The spotlight was turned off and when the lights of the dining room blazed forth again Mr. Roosevelt had disappeared.

RESIGNATION STORY DENIED

Rumor Said Knox and MacVeagh Were to Quit Cabinet

DISAGREEMENT ON THE TARIFF

Secretary of Treasury Not In Accord With Views of Aldrich and Other Leaders, but They Hold Him in Highest Personal Esteem—Stories of Premier's "Friction" With President Dismissed as Untrue

Washington, April 9.—President Taft and two of his cabinet, Secretary of State Knox and Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, have denied the story which went out from Washington that the two secretaries contemplate resigning. The denials of Taft and Knox were made informally but emphatically and MacVeagh promptly issued a little bulletin in which he said:

"I have no thought of retiring from the cabinet. I do not know where these stories that are continually being printed in the newspapers originate, but I know that they are entirely unfounded."

The stories to which MacVeagh refers have trickled out from time to time from various correspondents, but never upon any authority more substantial than a guess. MacVeagh is not a rugged man and on many days this winter he has transacted official business in his home instead of his office, but he has been in his office every day of late and has assured all callers that he is as "fit as a fiddle" to perform the duties of his position. The secretary has disagreed with Senator Aldrich and some other leaders on points of policy, notably the issue of bonds and the tariff, but the serenity with which he has discussed these differences is wholly at variance with the suggestion that the secretary feels uncomfortable in his position.

Mr. MacVeagh is perhaps the most likeable man in the cabinet, and even the men whose spirits he has ruffled by his low tariff utterances hold him in the highest personal regard. With the assistance of his new assistant secretaries, Norton, Hilles and Curtis, he has practically reorganized the treasury department.

Denials mean nothing in such cases as that of Knox, for they could be expected, as a matter of traditional diplomacy, up to the moment the resignation was handed in, if that action really were contemplated. The most that the senatorial intimates of Knox will say on the matter is that in all their many and confidential talks with him he never has so much as intimated that he intended to leave the cabinet.

Regarding the suggestion that Knox has been neglectfully treated by President Taft and never permitted to reach the full and promised measure of "premier" of the Taft administration, it is pointed out by the friends of Knox that he has been backed up by the president in every official act, even in the Charles R. Crane case.

Stories of "friction" with the president are dismissed as untrue, but it is not denied that the state department has resented the prominence of the tariff board, and that the treasury department has regarded the state department as superfluous machinery, except for the formalities, in negotiating the trade agreements with foreign countries, notably Canada, under the tariff law.

RAILWAY IS TRANSFERRED

New Haven Road Turns the Hartford Over to Connecticut Company

Hartford, April 9.—Control of the Hartford Street Railway company, which was acquired by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company several years ago, has been transferred to the Connecticut company.

Heretofore the Connecticut company has been the operating agency for the New Haven road's electric properties in Connecticut, but now it is becoming a holding corporation as well. This step is in accordance with the New Haven road's policy of a more complete segregation of the different classes of its properties.

Divorce For Divorce Lawyer

Dedham, Mass., April 9.—Richard E. Jeffrey, himself a divorce lawyer, was granted a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Blanche E. Jeffrey. Judge Hitchcock granted a decree nisi. The libel was filed by Jeffrey on the grounds of desertion. The decree was uncontested.

Eddy Birthplace Is Burned

Bow, N. H., April 9.—The farmhouse in which Mrs. Eddy, the founder and leader of the Christian Science denomination, was born on July 16, 1821, was destroyed by fire. The house had been occupied lately by Walter Perrigo and his family.

English Mills Cut Wages

Manchester, Eng., April 9.—The Master Cotton Spinners' Federation voted in favor of a 5 percent reduction in the wages of operatives, and has called a joint meeting of employers and operatives to discuss the matter.

PRIZE FIGHT FATALITY

Solar Plexus Blow Results In Death of Passaic Schoolboy

Passaic, N. J., April 9.—Gilbert Trebou died here last night from a solar plexus blow received in a boys' prize fight last Tuesday.

With brief intermissions, he had been unconscious since he was lifted out of the ring and carried to a hospital. Frank Keizer, who is named in a warrant as the other principal, is missing, and the police hear he has fled to Canada.

Henry Knackstedt, said to have acted as referee, who is superintendent of a Presbyterian Sunday school here, was arrested and released in $500 bail.

Trehou and Keiser were both 19 years old, both pupils of the Passaic high school. Reports of their quarrel differ, but the story pieced together by the police is that there had been bad blood between them for some time.

END TRIP SUDDENLY

Roosevelt and His Wife Embarrassed by Too Much Attention

Genoa, April 9.—The sentimental pilgrimage of Theodore Roosevelt and his wife, in which it was their intention to retrace by easy stages their honeymoon trip from Spezia to Genoa, ended abruptly here, twenty-four hours ahead of the schedule which had been planned.

The change in plans was made to avoid the constantly increasing demonstrations Roosevelt and his wife were encountering along the road.

As an instance of the demonstrations that were being accorded them, 600 persons, many of them Americans, acclaimed the Roosevelts with vivas and hurrahs as they left Rapello, where they had luncheon. This was the climax of their embarrassment, and Roosevelt gave orders to be driven to Genoa.

BALLINGER ASKED TO PRODUCE PAPERS

Secretary Does Not Appear to Be Inclined to Comply

Washington, April 9.—The Ballinger-Pinchot investigation committee adopted a motion calling on Secretary Ballinger to supply immediately all the papers and documents that the committee might call for.

When the investigating committee resumed its inquiry Attorney Brandeis took up the issue raised by Ballinger protesting against the production of further papers in the case by the interior department. In a letter to the committee Ballinger had declared that the demands made by the attorney for the production of papers and documents were "an oblique attempt to control the manner in which the evidence should be presented" and "a mere fishing process."

Mr. Brandeis called attention to the fact that Ballinger in his first letter to the committee had said that he desired the fullest investigation; again he had declared that he did not wish to be represented by counsel, but now he appeared with a scheme which Brandeis characterized as "an attempt to withhold evidence."

Replying, Attorney Vertrees defended the course of Ballinger. He said all documents had been presented which had any bearing on the case, and he now thought time to call a halt on what Ballinger had termed the "fishing process."

TUNNEL IN SLAVE DEN

Long Prison Terms For Two Traffickers In New Haven

New Haven, April 9.—Charles Ross and his wife, Mary, who pleaded guilty to keeping a disorderly house, were sentenced to five years each in state prison, the maximum penalty for the crime.

Ross and his wife, the police allege, are the heads of the white slave traffic in this city, and their arrest was brought about by the attempt of an Italian to poison an inmate of the Ross house.

An examination of the house disclosed a trap door and an underground passage leading out into a rear yard. This passage, an inmate of the house testified, had been used when raids had been made on the place.

WALKER GOES TO ASYLUM

Minister Was Charged With Forging and Uttering a Bad Check

Providence, April 9.—Rev. Raymond E. Walker, who escaped from the state hospital for the insane and who was later found in Boston and returned to the Rhode Island authorities, was arraigned in court here under an indictment charging him with forging and uttering a bad check.

Because of his mental condition Walker was returned to the Rhode Island state hospital for the insane.

Grand Trunk Bill Passed

Providence, April 9.—By a unanimous vote the senate passed the act incorporating the Southern Railroad company, an auxiliary branch of the Grand Trunk Railway company. The bill gives the Grand Trunk a direct line through Rhode Island, with Providence as a seaport outlet.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

LaFemme at Fenway Court—Hub Office Boys and their Ailing Relatives—A Nova Scotian Who Admits He Can Run—A Permanent Commission to Help Grow Old Gracefully—Why Not an Aquarium in the World's Second Fishing Port?

The corporation president has a new spring in his rubber heels, the office manager is mentally laying bets of two to one, the bookkeeper steals surreptitious glances at the sporting page of the morning paper, and the office boy dreamily reckons up his list of ailing relatives—baseball is due the 14th.

Boston's most wonderful human treasure, the venerable and beloved Julia Ward Howe, read an original poem written for the occasion at the memorial exercises held in connection with the 100th anniversary of the birth of the Rev. James Freeman Clarke. The rare appearances of Mrs. Howe in public never fail to stir her audiences to the depths and as she read her poem in a clear, firm tone, those present in the Arlington Street Church hardly drew breath. Following the spirited applause came sighs of satisfaction once more to have heard this gifted survivor of a great past.

Fresh raspberries and strawberries all winter long listens well to the Bostonian who generally have to wait until May and June before indulging in the delicious fruits of the spring. It sounds like a fairy tale, but one hears that successful experiments in a Chicago cold storage plant have demonstrated that not only these favorite fruits but cherries, tomatoes, celery, peaches, oranges and lemons may be stored in rooms maintained at a steady temperature several degrees below freezing and after a number of months come out as fresh and with as fine a flavor as when they were put away. Strawberries and cherries have for some time been kept through the winter by means of cold storage, and hotel keepers and ice cream manufacturers have been able to supply real cherry pie and strawberry ice cream throughout the seasons. But the advent of the more delicate fruits during the severe cold spells of the winter will be hailed with delight. The furnishing of fresh berries in the winter to private homes will, however, probably not become common for some time, owing to the careful handling which is demanded when they are taken from storage. When taken out they are spread out and sugared so they can thaw without crushing. After this they will keep for two or three days.

Great doings afoot to interest the Boston maid who follows athletics, even if she is no Eleanora Sears. Here is a Nova Scotian lad threatening to carry off the honors of the great Boston Athletic Association Marathon run in the Hub on April 19, whose finish will cause a feminine flutter. The first competitors to arrive in the city in preparation for the event appeared this week. Fred Cameron of Amherst, N. S., one of the stars of the provinces, believes that he has more than even chance to win. He has been beaten but once since he began running. The local competitor, who looks good to many people is Bob Fowler of Cambridge who came in second to Longboat in 1907, and who is in the pink of condition. The long course from Ashland to Exeter street is being tried out daily by ambitious aspirants who hope to bring down Longboat's record of 2 hours, 24 minutes and 24 seconds.

Since, trite as it is to say so, the only way to escape growing old is to die young, Bay State men and women must be pleased at the prospect that a permanent old age pension commission may have charge of important educational work such as instructing the general public in the best and most economical ways of laying by sums to maintain themselves in the years when the average individual's earning capacity becomes impaired. That is what Chairman Magnus W. Alexander, of the special pension commission whose report has just been published, is urging the legislature to establish—a body of public spirited men and women who without bias or prejudice will keep the citizens informed regarding their opportunities for meeting the inevitable contingencies of life. The new volume which the commission now ending its labors has produced, with its recommendations of the teaching of thrift in the schools and the utilization of such agencies as savings banks insurance, is certain to become a classic in the economic history of America. It contains an incentive to continuation of the efforts to solve the old age problem in a truly American way.

Is it art or la femme that fills Fenway Court? Mrs. "Jack" Gardner has consented to admit the eager-eyed sightseers to her Italian palace in the Fenway for an extra week, owing to the pressure of applications for tickets The tickets for "Harvard Day" were snapped up as avidly as the best football seats. The limit—200 people—was reached every day. Can you blame them? The central court, garlanded with exotics and redolent with associations of Italy made the New England visitor forget the installment house furniture and the six cent wall paper at home. The cloistered paths about the courtyard conveyed never a suggestion of the ash heaps and billy goats outside the palace. The treasures of the galleries contained not one that has ever been printed as a colored Sunday supplement. And hovering everywhere was the woman herself, a personality as subtly artistic as the environment she has created in the heart of a reedy swamp.

The Boston girl, on a recent trip to New York, was more than every impressed with the necessity of a city of reasonable size having an aquarium and zoological gardens. Visits to these two institutions in the metropolis were a source not alone of pleasure but of much educational value. In the Aquarium, whose doors gave free admittance to over 3,000,000 people in 1909, one never tires of looking at the tiny inhabitants of the hatchery pools, varying in size from microscopical specks to queer-looking specimens about an inch long. These "wrigglers" of which there are sometimes millions in one big glass jar, contrast oddly with the great, swishing, rushing sealion, around whose pool the jars are clustered. While the public gazes in admiration and wonder at the marvellously colored and formed "butterfly" fish of the Bermudan seas, the immense creatures of the ocean depths, or the favorite trout of the mountain stream, equally if not more interesting things are to be viewed behind the scenes. Here are gathered pupils from the city schools in a special laboratory fitted up with species of the lower class of water inhabitants, the children receiving much valuable instruction from a director specially assigned for what purpose. Here, also one sees the working out of the problems of properly lighting the tanks of fish and the bewildering array of engines, boilers and pumps which require the attention of several men night and day to keep the various kinds of fish supplied with water at just the right temperature from fresh water reservoirs, filtered salt water or unfiltered salt water tanks, and scores of other equally stupendous tasks. Equally enlightening and educational is the great collection of animals, birds and reptiles at the splendid Zoological park in the Bronx, a situation not unlike our Middlesex Fells. What was ten years ago a big unused tract of wooded land which had never been touched by an improving hand is now a vast expanse of beautifully laid out grounds, wildly natural forest dells, sheep and goat pastures, bear, wolf, and fox dens, ponds for wild fowl, buffalo and deer parks, and architecturally attractive buildings in which are housed lions, raptiles, monkeys, birds and other features of zoological import. The Boston girl viewed these exhibits with deep regret that her home town is devoid of similar attractions, and particularly as Marine Park, South Boston, and Middlesex Fells offer such opportunities for institutions equal to those in New York. OVERTAXED

The kidneys are overtaxed;

Have too much to do.

They tell about it in many aches and pains—

Backache, sideache, headache.

Early symptoms of kidney ills.

Urinary troubles, diabetes, Bright's disease follow.

A Quincy citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.

Mrs. George McDonald, 133 1-2 Quincy Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have more faith in Doan's Kidney Pills than in any other remedy I have ever known of and it gives me great pleasure to publicly recommend them. For at least six months I was feeling all out of sorts as the result of kidney trouble. I became tired easily and had but little strength or energy to do my housework. Pains through the small of my back annoyed me a great deal. A friend, knowing of my condition, advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug store. A short time after beginning their use, I was helped and I now feel like a different person."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

WEYMOUTH MEN WIN

Great Two-Men Match for Bowling Championship

(By Rube.)

I attended that great bowling match at the Granite street alleys last evening, and to say that it was a great match is putting it mild.

"Pat" Kiley and "Herb" Smith of Weymouth were pitted against "Phil" Guiman and "Tobey" Lyons of Norfolk Downs, and of all the enthusiastic rooters that ever attended a bowling match I believe those last night could cop the honors. These two-men teams, and the rooters, did not let a minute slip by without something doing.

The Weymouth duet got going at the start, and pulled down the curtain raiser by eleven pins. They went after the second one, and landed that with four pins leeway. Then they began to come thick and fast, and before the Downs lads realized it, they had lost eight straight strings, being 106 pins in the rear.

Guinan and Lyons let out a notch in the last two strings and managed to nose out on the large end in both. This let the Weymouths take the match and the title of champions of Norfolk county by a margin of 78 pins.

The bowling of the veteran Kiley was a revelation to me, and the Weymouth supporters made the timbers rattle when he rolled 120 in the fifth string of the match. Kiley walked away from Guinan, having a lead of 81 pins, while Lyons beat out Smith by 3 pins. The scores:

Seniors	Sophomores
Miss Samuelson c.,	Miss Beal, c.
Miss Baker c.g.,	Miss Williams, c.g.
Miss Bean r.f.,	Miss Dasha, r.f.
Miss Moorehouse l.f.,	Miss Mead, l.f.

NO VERDICT RENDERED.

The case of John M. O'Brien against the city was completed Friday. Michael Burns, was the only witness the city put on and the only evidence in rebuttal was that of Mr. O'Brien who was again on the witness stand for a few minutes. The arguments were then made after which Judge Hitchcock took the matter under advisement and will render his finding later.

NEW CUP FOR CAPE CATS

The Donor Unknown but His Gift Is Appreciated

An elegant cup was presented to the Cape Cat Boat Association at its annual dinner held at the Boston Yacht club station, Rowe's wharf, last evening, to be raced for on the point system and to be known as the Iris Trophy of the Cape cat class, season of 1910. The donor is unknown.

Guests at the dinner were W. J. Rooks, captain of the Cape cat Ina of Providence, and his brother, W. B. Rooks, the main sheet man. The Ina sailed by the Rooks brother won the Barnegat Bay races of 1909.

Other guests were: Capt. Bonnie, Bangs Nickerson of Brewster, who is well known to the Quincy Yachtsmen by winning so many races here with the Cleopartra. C. C. Hanley the famous boat builder and W. H. Porter of Boston.

Wenfield M. Thompson presented the cup of the unknown donor in a neat and characteristic speech. A committee of three,—Com. H. W. Robbins, F. F. Carpenter and W. W. Arnold, were chosen to devise a method of selections for the two boats to go to Providence this summer, and races for the Thomas Fleming Day cup.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

April 14 continues to come.

* * *

I pity the readers of the daily newspapers who rely upon newsboys for their papers on and after Monday. Why? Because the grammar school league season starts.

* * *

"Pat" Kiley, the crack Weymouth bowler who was bowling when Noah emerged from the Ark certainly is a "cooler" under fire. His every move in last nights match showed that he had great confidence in his ability to "bring home the bacon." He also inspired his team-mate Smith to go after them and any team that trims this pair can't let the grass grow under their feet.

* * *

I have been asked if the Quincy Old Colony league baseball team lost all their games to the Deweys last season. I will say, upon looking it up, I find Quincy won one out of the four games with the "champs." Stoughton and Rockland likewise took three of the four; we spilt even with Taunton and took two out of three from Randolph, never playing off the game of June 5 which was called off on account of rain. If we could call the protested Rockland game a victory we would have two victories. There were three ten, two eleven, one fourteen, one fifteen and one eighteen inning games in this league last year. Not so bad for semi-professionals.

* * *

Tupper, the Y. M. C. A. crack athlete, was very much in the limelight at Thursdays meet. He took first place in three broad jumps, and second in the high jump and high dive.

* * *

"Ken" Nash,, the crack short-stop of the champion Deweys of the Old Colony league, is doing some fine work at Brown university under the watchful eye of Dr. Sexton ,the man who knows how to develop ball players. Snell of Brockton is doing the catching for the same nine, and I look to see him in the Dewey line-up the coming season.

* * *

I notice that Vincent Sheehy of East Weymouth has been appointed head coach of the Tufts fotball team. I have followed Sheehy for several seasons and recall some of the long runs he made while on Weymouth High school football team in the back field, and also when captain of Tufts varsity. He also made quite a name as a runner in mile runs and many a man who saw him play centre on the Weymouth A. A. basket ball team will say they never saw his equal. He certainly is a great athlete.

* * *

I have received from the Quincy Old Colong league baseball club, fine seats for their coming drama, "Uncle Silas," which will be presented in Quincy Music hall, Monday evening, April 18. This live club always do big things and I look to see this large hall filled to overflowing.

NORTH DAKOTA IN COMMISSION

Triumphal Trip to the Navy Yard at Boston.

Both shores of the Fore river were lined with people Sunday morning to see Quincy's pride, the dreadnought North Dakota as she steamed up the river to be commissioned on the morrow as United Sam's most redoubtable defender.

One hundred or more ladies and gentlemen were guests of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company and took the trip from the shipyard to the Boston navy yard on the big battleship. Most of the gentlemen were connected with different departments of the shipyard.

Four powerful tugs the Charles T. Gallagher, the Orion, the Charles Nunn and the James Wovley—were on hand early in the morning to lend their assistance at the start. Capt. Evans was in command of the battleship on this occasion and with him on the bridges was Capt. Smith.

At 9.40 the preliminary whistle was given on the North Dakota to get in readiness, but it was not until just 10, that the scene of activity commenced. The first two tugs steamed up the creek to the bow of the ship while the other two were at the stern. At 10.10 the starboard engine was started slow and the big ship began to move astern slowly. Then she turned slowly as though going to back up stream. When in midstream, however, the order was given to go ahead and she pointed for the middle of the big opening in the draw of the Quincy Point bridge.

It was about 10.15 when work opening the draw was started. At that time the bridge on both sides was crowded with people, and hundreds were at the coal wharves of C. Patch & Son, J. F. Sheppard & Son and the Old Colony street railway, also at North Weymouth and Germantown.

Majestically at 10.25 the North Dakota steamed through the draw which was but a few inches wider than the ship. The whistle on the lower station saluted and handkerchiefs were waved by the passengers and by those on the shore. Before 10.35 the draw was closed for travel.

Those on board, and those who watched the ship, realized more fully the need of a straighter channel, for it was necessary to take several sharp turns before leaving the river. Again near Channel rock work is necessary. The North Dakota is so long that in making the turns of the channel it overhangs and at some points stirred up the mud.

But the North Dakota met with no mishaps. It was interesting to watch Capt. Evans who was always alert and knew the course perfectly. It looked at one time as though a small row boat would be run down but one of the tugs quickly rescued the passengers and took the boat in tow. Some of the gun salutes on shore sounded like ordinary fire crackers.

About 11.10 the ship passed through Hull gut, and headed out around Fort Warren. Proudly at a speed of eight knots the ship entered Boston harbor. As she neared the navyyard the cruiser Salem (also built at Quincy) was just ahead, having arived from the South. Never we believe, was a ship docked in such fine shape as the North Dakota. Capt. Evans took his bearings as he did when he headed for the opening in the Quincy Point bridge, and judged the momentum of the big battleship accurately. It simply came to a stop at the exact spot, almost an hour before the cruser Salem.

For awhile the whistle of the North Dakota joyfully announced that the ship had arived and was ready to do its duty for the government, and also to reflect credit on the Fore River Shipbuilding Company and its mechanics.

The cadets at the navy yard who assisted in docking the battleship were quick to rush aboard to inspect the ship, and President Bowles was also there to welcome the product of his well equipped shipyard. Many who took the trip were back in Quincy at 1.45.

IN COMMISSION.

The ship is expected to remain at the Boston yard until the middle of June, says the Herald, during her stay gunsights and wireless apparatus will be installed, repairs and improvements made, and the full crew of officers, 900 seamen, and a company of marines, 50 men, secured. She will be manned by only 200 seamen when placed in commission.

Her temporary commander will be Commander Charles Peshall Plunkett, U. S. N., of Governor road, Jamaica Plain, who, for the bureau of equipment, inspected the construction of the ship. He entered the service Oct. 3, 1879, from the District of Columbia, and has had 15 years' sea service Other commissioned and petty officers who report for duty on the ship are:

Lieutenant-Commander Orin Gould Murfin, U. S. N., entered service Sept. 6, 1893, from Ohio, nine years' sea service; Lieutenant-Commander Edward Hale Campbell, U. S. N., entered service Sept. 6, 1889, from Indiana, 10 years' sea service; Lieut. Clarence Lamont Arnold, U. S. N., entered service Sept. 5, 1896, from Indiana; Lieut. Ivan Ernest Bass, U. S. N., entered service May 20, 1897, from Mississippi; Lieut. Ralston Smith Holmes, U. S. N., entered service Sept. 21, 1899, from New York.

Maj. Laurence Harry Moses, U. S. M. C.; entered service July 1, 1892, from New York; will command marine company. Ensigh G. O. Carter, Passed Assistant Surgeon J. P. Traynor, Chief Boatswain Percy Herbert, Chief Machinists J. H. Busch, E. W. Andrews; Machinists, J. H. MacDonough, W. D. Sullivan; Gunners William T. Baxter, John Sperle and Carpenters B. W. Wilson and W. E. Fitzgerald.

Promptly at 10.30 this morning officers and crew were assembled on the quarterdeck, where the ceremonial of commission took place. The ship placed in commission by Lieutenant Commander Nathan Cook Twining, U. S. N., aide to Capt. John C. Fremont, U. S. N., commandant of the yard.

With officers and men standing at "attention," Lieutenant Commander Twining read the orders of the secretary of the navy, George von L. Meyer, placing the battleship in commission and assigning Commander Plunkett to temporary command. Next, Lieut. Twining gave the signal for the hoisting of the national ensign from the stern staff, and the commander's, or commission, pennant at the main truck. The yard band played "The Star Spangled Banner," the crew saluted the ensign, after which Lieut. Twining formally turned the ship over to Commander Plunkett, who at once gave his first order, "Set the watch."

The crew cheered the flag, ship and commander and then went to quarters.

The North Dakota is the most modern embodiment of the all big-gun principle. From an artistic viewpoint there is probably no prettier ship in any navy of the world. Not a line in her seems out of place; she is reputed to be the finest creation of the naval constructor. She is 510 feel long and her breadth on the load waterline is 85 ft. 2 1-8 in.

Driven by the Curtis American turbine engines, which on trial developed 31,400 horse power, she broke the speed record for battleships by making a measured mile at the rate of 22.25 knots an hour.

She carries ten 12-inch rifles in five turrets, fourteen 5-inch rapid fire guns, and a secondary battery of 12 guns of the one and three-pounder types. The 12-inch guns throw projectiles weighing 870 pounds each, 340 pounds of powder being required for the purpose. The guns can throw these shells a distance of 12 miles and force them through steel plate 11 inches thick at a distance of five miles.

The cost of one broadside fire is $17,000.

NOTABLE GATHERING

At the Funeral Services For Dexter E. Wadsworth

Although the Bethany Congregational church is one of the largest churches of the city, it was not large enough on Sunday to accommodate those who desired to attend the funeral services of the late Dexter E. Wadsworth, to pay their last tribute to him who had for so long been prominent in all movements for the uplifting of the city of his adoption. The services in accordance with an expressed wish of the family were simple and were conducted by Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy the pastor of the church.

Over one hundred floral pieces were banked about the altar surrounding the casket containing all that remained of the deceased, and their fragrance sought out every nook and crevice of the church. Occasionally during the exercises the afternoon sun would creep in through the stained glass windows throwing its rays over the grief stricken congregation.

Almost the entire centre of the church was reserved for the representatives of the different bodies with which Mr. Wadsworth was affilliated and the immediate family and friends. On the left of the centre aisle was Macedonian lodge of Masons of Milton and representatives from the several Masonic bodies. Then there was a delagation from Kingsley Post, G. A. R., of which he was an honorary member, the school Committee, Park Commissioners, Knights of Pythias and Granite City club. Each of the organizations sent floral tributes besides which there were many from business friends and personal acquaintances.

The services opened with a solo by Mrs. Emma S. Moore, "He giveth his beloved sleep," by A. B. T. This was followed by the reading of "I am the resurrection and the Life," and scriptures by Dr. Hardy solo by Mrs. Moore "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" by Fearis; and reading of the poem, "Crossing the Bar." In the prayer Dr. Hardy referred to the esteem in which Mr. Wadsworth was generally held, his friendliness with all and his activity in the business world and the city, and hoped that his business integrity would be an example. Mrs. Moore sang in closing Herbert Johnsons's "The Homeland."

After the family had retired to the chapel, and the Masonic lodge had filed out, the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Hardy.

An opportunity was then offered the congregation to view the body, the people coming down the centre aisle, and passing out through the chapel door.

The family then returned to the church. The body was later taken to Forest Hills for cremation, and the ashes were buried in the family lot at Milton cemetery.

PRESENTATION.

At the regular meeting of G. L. Gill Rebekah lodge on Thursday evening about seventy-five, were in attendance. After the close of the business of the lodge, Mrs. Florence Coy, nee Flowers who was recently married, was escorted to the head of the hall, and presented with a cut glass orange dish and cut glass fern dish from the members, and from Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Deforest and family a silver berry ladle. It was a coplete surprise to Mrs. Coy, who for a while, was unable to speak but after recovering thanked all for their kindness and beautiful gifts, and invited all to come and see her in her new home. At the close all retired to the banquet hall where a collation and a social hour was enjoyed.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGED

Conductor Arraigned in Court This Morning

Rosco Hunt, aged about 50 years, of 508 Main street, Brockton, employed as a painter in the Campello car barns of the Old Colony street railway, died at the police station Saturday night from the effects of a fractured skull received by a heavy fall in City Square at 4.30.

Hunt and a companion, who it is said was also employed as a painter at the Campello car barns, came to Quincy on the Neponset car that arrived at 4.25. The car was in charge of Conductor Robert J. Egan. It is claimed by Eagan that all the way to Quincy the two men created a disturbance which he was unable to quell, and that at one time Hunt threatened to throw him off of the car.

When the car reached Quincy the two men got off, and the conductor promptly reported the affair to Charles Austin, the starter in City Square. Austin asked Eagan to point out the two men and they went around the car to where they stood. Eagan then pointed them out. As he did so Hunt it is alleged approached him and made a savage kick at Eagan's abdomen. Eagan dodged and quick as a flash drew off and it is alleged struck Hunt a blow on the jaw that knocked him down.

As Hunt fell he struck on the back of his head, and as he did not rise he was picked up and carried in a dazed condition to the corridor of the Hancock House. He was examined by Dr. Garey who found a slight cut on the back of the man's head, but did not consider it important enough to need attention. In the meantime a call was sent for the patrol wagon, and the man was taken to the police station and placed in a cell.

Nothing more was thought of the occurance until about 8 o'clock when Officer Holleran, hearing groans in the cell room, made an investigation, and found Hunt unconscious and groaning. He notified Sergt. Barry who sent in a hurry call for Dr. Jones and City Physician Hallowell. The officers tried to restore the man, but were unable to do so, and when the doctors arrived he was dead. Dr. Jones ordered his removal to Hall's undertaking rooms where he later performed an autopsy, which showed that the man had died from a fracture of the skull at the base of the brain, and a severe internal hemorrhage.

Not long after Conductor Eagan heard of the death of the man and going to the police station gave himself up. He was unable to obtain bail Saturday night but was bailed out in $1,000 Sunday morning.

The Brockton police were notified of the death of the man, and they in turn notified his family. He has a wife and five children. One of his daughters had received word of his arrest and had come to Quincy to see him, when she learned of his death. She said that her father had but recently come from a hospital where he had been undergoing treatment, and that her mother and another sister were sick.

Much sympathy is expressed for Conductor Eagan and the unfortunate ending of the affair. He has been in the employ of the road for a number of years, and up to a few months ago was one of the starters stationed in City Square, but at his own request he was transferred to a car. He is married and has a wife and children who reside at 15 Grant street. He was arraigned in court.

BAR LARGELY REPRESENTED

At Funeral of William G. A. Pattee, Esq.,

The funeral of William Greenleaf Appleton Pattee, Quincy's first City Solicitor and a prominent citizen and member of the bar, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from Christ church. The services were of a simple nature in conformity with the ritual of the Episcopal church, and were conducted by the Rev. Richard Armstrong, rector of the church. During the services the vested choir sang three hymns, "Hark, hark my soul," "Abide with me," and "The Strife is O'er."

The front of the chancel rail was one mass of beautiful flowers sent by relatives and friends and the services were attended by many men prominent in the profession of which the deceased was associated. These included U. S. District Attorney Asa P. French, Judge Everett C. Bumpus, Judge Albert E. Avery, Judge Oscar O. Marden of Stoughton, John P. S. HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Three kings will meet Teddy in Vienna. Well, three kings is a good hand to draw to.

Mr. Armour says he regrets that the price of meat is so high. This surely must make it unanimous then.

The new King of Belgium was once a newspaper man. This should fit him uniquely for the business of running the government.

The most obtuse of the reactionaries in Congress have begun at last to perceive the direction in which the political wind is blowing.

Mr. Taft did well to decline a controversy with Chancellor Day, if for no other reason than that the chancellor would insist on doing all the talking.

There is great rejoicing at Brockton because the Douglas Company is to double its capacity which means the employment of 1500 additional operatives. Good for the shoe city. Prosperity is surely on the road.

This summer the Federal court for the Alaska Territory will hold its sessions on a revenue cutter during a cruise of 2,000 miles. There is reason for the step, but it seems a shame to put justice afloat.

The launching of the U. S. destroyer Perkins at the Fore River on Saturday was prominently illustrated in the Sunday papers, but none of the papers were ahead of the Daily Ledger in reporting the launching at length.

Every one is familiar with "Under the spreading chestnut tree" but how many knew that the blacksmith was a living personality? Longfellow's "Village Blacksmith" Thaddeus W. Tyler died last week at his home in Lynn. Longfellow used to visit him at his forge in Cambridge.

It was on April 21 1789, that John Adams of Quincy was inaugurated as the first Vice President of these United States. Quincy should not allow the 21st of April to go by unnoticed in any year. Next week Thursday will be the 121st anniversary.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

No man has any right to make a fire in the woods, or even to light a pipe, without taking the utmost precaution to obliterate the smallest lingering trace of sparks or embers afterward, for if a cloud no bigger than a man's hand may give birth to a storm, "behold how great a fire a little matter kindleth." The wind is prompt to fan the smouldering ember into an active blaze, and presently a brisk bonfire becomes a roaring conflagration, involving the destruction of many acres or even square miles of valuable standing timber. The destruction of the trees means more than the loss of the timber, it means that the hillside reservoirs that are the sources of the streams dry up until the soil is a blackened desolation in place of the former verdant fertility. If those who travel or camp out in the woods during the spring and the summer would only take a few reasonable precautions, millions of dollars' worth of timber would be saved each year from annihilation.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

VIGOROUS FIGHT ON SOCIALISM

Clergyman to Organize National Campaign Against It.

CALLS ITS DOCTRINES ANARCHY

Rev. J. Wesley Hill of New York Claims American Institutions Could Not Tolerate Principles of Socialism, Which He Terms Atheistic—Will Not Lead a "Pussy Footed" Attack.

For several weeks the Rev. J. Wesley Hill has been flaying the Socialists before his congregations at the Metropolitan temple, in New York city, which is given over to the work of the Methodist Social union, and now his flock have come to the conclusion that the flaying ought to be extended from a civic to a national basis. As a consequence they have passed a resolution authorizing their spiritual leader to call a national anti-socialistic convention.

The Rev. Mr. Hill says he is glad they did this and that henceforth the work will engage his whole attention. He hopes to bring together in his proposed convention representatives of universities, seminaries, Sunday schools, trades unions, organized religion and sociologists.

To Be Fought Aggressively.

Sitting in his study the other day, the Rev. Mr. Hill discussed the considerations that move him to devote his next few years to leading a vigorous assault upon socialism.

"We are going after socialism and are going after it aggressively. There are some very foolish ministers of the gospel in this country. They have the hardihood to speak of 'Christian socialism,' and some of them even have adopted it as such. I want them to know—and they must learn it—that socialism attacks the very fundamental principles of Christian religion. As well talk of Christian free love or Christian atheism as of Christian socialism. Rather class socialism where it of right belongs—with anarchism, with Mormonism and with atheism."

It was suggested to the prime mover in the proposed crusade that some folks were having rather a considerable problem of fixing upon an exact definition of socialism.

What Socialism Really Is.

"I'll tell you exactly what it is," he answered. "It is an irreconcilable enemy of the existing civic and social order. Its program is confiscation—that is, the municipalization or nationalization of all capital. It wants to break abruptly with history. It denies the fundamental truths of evolution. It sees in revolution its chief and, in fact, its only practicable weapon. I don't want to lead a pussy footed attack on such an institution, for its very spirit is misanthropic and pessimistic. It goes to the poor and unfortunate, the unadapted and discontented, and strives to make them still more discontented than they are.

"The socialistic movement is permeated with discontent and class hatred. The leaders present a disheartening picture of life to the toiler, striving to poison his mind against the employer by picturing him as a vampire feeding upon the lifeblood of his helpless victims. As it is there are Socialist Sunday schools being organized where the spirit of revolution is instilled into the minds of children. In this movement there is a subtle attack on our schools.

"And then take the propaganda fundamentally. It wants to place a sort of paternalism above the heads of all men, making them subservient to it. As if man wasn't here before his institutions, he creating them and not they creating him, they overlook this fundamental fact of God's law of creation, and they attack the primary element of progress—the preservation of individual initiative.

"And the Christian ministers may well be aroused at this time, for socialism is preaching everywhere that the churches are paid servants of capitalism. In fact, the destruction of the churches is one of the prime objects of socialism.

"The hope of the proposed conference is that it shall be able to unfurl a danger signal against fostering this propaganda, saturated as it is in the philosophy of confiscation. We shall organize branches in every state and shall center our work at first in an extensive press and publicity bureau."

No Socialism For America.

The Rev. Mr. Hill's attention was called to the fact that in Europe Samuel Gompers was styled a Socialist during his visit there last summer, while here he is known as a trades unionist.

"And the reason for that is very clear," he suggested. "Socialism is not indigenous to the soil of America. It was not born to fight our institutions, but those in dark, tyrannical countries where the freedom of man can be attained in no other way. On our city's east side, for instance, the immigrants are often recruited from Russia, where to be a Socialist means to oppose the tyrannical czar. An American Socialist, meeting these new immigrants, comes well indorsed. He finds it easy to weave about them his subtle web of just such opposition to our democratic government and our flag as the crusader with the same name, but a different purpose, was able to weave about them in their native land."

REVIVED "DEAD" HORSE

Brooklyn Man Hitches Equine Up and Lands In Court

New York, April 11.—Because he was driving a horse that had been officially declared dead, Michael Febig was arraigned in Brooklyn, and was held in $100 bail for further examination.

A scow loaded with dead horses arrived at Barren island, ready for cremation. In looking over the animals Febig found one that showed signs of life. He took it to a stable, revived it, and put the horse on a diet of hay and oats. The animal recovered and Febig decided to make use of it.

While driving along Bedford avenue Febig was accosted by an officer for the S. P. C. A.

"That horse looks dilapitated," exclaimed the officer.

"It's worse than that," replied the driver. "He's dead."

The officer then arrested Febig.

AFFIRMS HIS CANDIDACY

Vahey Will Fight For Nomination For Governor If Necessary

Boston, April 11.—In a statement issued by James H. Vahey concerning the political situation in the state he made the definite announcement that he is a candidate for a third Democratic gubernatorial nomination this fall.

"Whether I shall occupy a place at the heaad of this army or as a private in the ranks, I leave necessarily to the great toiling masses of the commonwealth for whom I have struggled and fought," declares Vahey in his statement.

"If they want me to be the candidate of the Democratic party for governor of Massachusetts this year I will make the fight.

"Until the next Democratic convention announces its choice I will be a candidate for its nomination for governor of Massachusetts."

WANTS BIG SHARE OF BALDWIN ESTATE

Girl Claims to Be a Daughter of "Lucky" Baldwin

Boston, April 11.—Beatrice Anita Baldwin Turnbull of Brookline has begun action to establish her claim as the daughter of Elias J. Baldwin, better known as "Lucky" Baldwin, the millionaire turfman of California, who died about a year ago.

The 17-year-old girl, through her attorneys, has entered a plea for one-third of the $20,000,000 estate left by the deceased.

A lively contest is expected to result, as there are already several other claims entered against the estate. The young woman is now the adopted daughter of Dr. William B. Turnbull, who married her mother, Lillian A. Ashley.

PAYS ALIMONY TO HUSBAND

Divorced Baroness Must Support Former Hubby and Their Children

Vienna, April 11.—When an Austrian noblewoman obtains a divorce she usually agrees to pay her ex-husband alimony for the proper maintaining of himself and their children, just as Duchess Sagan must pay alimony to Boni's papa and mamma as long as they live.

Baroness Mathilda von Kielsmansegg agreed to pay her husband $100 a month for life, when she obtained a divorce from him, for himself and their two daughters, but the baron, it seems, used all the money for himself, neglecting the children. Accordingly, the girls sued their mother for support and she allowed them $25 a month a head.

The girls say this is not enough now that they are young ladies, and want more. The matter is in the courts.

HIGH DIVE OF AIRSHIP

Brings It on Top of Touring Car, but Nobody Is Badly Hurt

Memphis, April 11.—Losing control of a Curtiss biplane, which he was operating at a height of seventy-five feet, J. C. Mars plunged downward with great speed into the infield of the aviation course here, alighting on top of a seven-passenger touring car, in which were seated three women and two children.

The canopy top over the touring car saved the lives of its occupants, only one of whom was slightly injured.

The biplane was smashed to bits and Mars was caught under the wreckage but escaped with no injury worse than a severely bruised and wrenched knee and a slight cut on the chin.

Long-Lost Body Recovered

Portsmouth, N. H., April 11.—The body of Mrs. Rena Carbonneau, aged 19, who met death in the Taylor river at Hampton on New Year's day, was picked up on the marshes Sunday. Mrs. Carbonneau with Merle Flanders, aged 16, attempted to cross the river on a cake of ice to get a boat, and both were drowned. Flanders' body was recovered on Jan. 23. Much suspicion was attached to the case at the time.

An Aeroplane Elopement

A Story of 1935

By JASON JUDSON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

It was the old story with a variation only to occur in these days when our wealthier classes have money. Miss Anita Beriton loved a poor man, and her father desired that she should wed a rich one. Young Van Damm Follansbee had but a beggarly ten million, while the old widower Plankinham Porkenpaker possessed a cool billion. Follansbee should have seen the impropriety of asking for a girl he could not support in the style to which she had been accustomed, but he came of an old Dutch family on his mother's side, and the Dutchmen who settled New York were proverbially obstinate and stupid.

One would suppose that the Beritons, who owned a railroad starting from New York, running to New Orleans and thence around the Pacific coast and back through Canada, might afford to let their daughter marry a poor man. But a panic at the time of the courtship had reduced their dividends to 20 per cent, and they felt unusually poor. Mrs. Beriton, who had married her husband when he was a brakeman on one of the railroads which he afterward united in the circular coast line system and became that system's owner, sympathized with her daughter, but Beriton swore a round oath that he would have no beggars in his family.

On the morning of June 10, 1935, Miss Anita Beriton was sitting with her mother and a younger sister in the spacious roof garden of her father's residence occupying the four blocks between Five Hundred and Tenth and Five Hundred and Fourteenth streets and avenues D and H, New York, when Mrs. Beriton proposed a ride. One of the family aeroplanes was called and in a few minutes lit upon the roof garden. Mr. Beriton, fearing that his daughter Anita might in some of these rides elope with Follansbee, had given orders that August Spindleton, a driver of his own choosing, should at all times conduct the machine, and on this occasion Spindleton was in his accustomed seat.

Mrs. Beriton and her two daughters entered the machine, which rose, lightly circling upward for a thousand feet, when Spindleton was directed to proceed southward along the coast for a brief trip to Annapolis. They were moving at a moderate pace of some sixty miles an hour, when Spindleton cast a glance to the right and, seeing a machine coming toward the party, clapped on double speed.

Mr. Beriton's fears had proved to be well grounded. Mr. Van Damm Follansbee was out in a machine of a new pattern and was bearing down upon them. It was evident that Follansbee was intending to get into communication with Mrs. Anita Beriton.

Spindleton was true to his employer. He drove his machine at its best speed, passing over cities, bays and rivers, but his aeroplane was gradually gained upon by Follansbee. Hovering over Philadelphia, Spindleton endeavored to descend, but Follansbee glanced down like a bird and reached a plane beneath him. Spindleton then rose and made a bee line for Baltimore. But Follansbee, evidently with the determination to drive him out to sea, got to the west of him and forced him over Chesapeake bay. In a few minutes more the pursuer had the party over Fortress Monroe, flying due east.

The race was won. Spindleton was not prepared to cross the ocean, and there was no way for him to get back except by encountering Follansbee. Spindleton slowed down, and Follansbee glided up beside the Beriton aeroplane. A conference took place, after which Mrs. Beriton and her two daughters stepped from their own aeroplane into that of Mr. Follansbee.

Meanwhile Mr. Beriton had left the roof of his office building downtown in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, intending to go home. Soon after rising he saw in the direction of his mansion an aeroplane starting, and, seizing a glass he always carried in the smoking room of his capacious bird-car, brought it to bear on the one just setting out. Discovering that its occupants were his wife and daughters with his own aviator in control, he was about to lay aside his glass when he saw another aeroplane hovering near his home. Bringing his glass to bear on this machine, he saw Follansbee alone in it and just starting for the one occupied by the Beritons.

Mr. Beriton noticed that Follansbee's aeroplane was of a kind he had not seen before. It was of the bird type, and on its prow was a sharp ram. The merchant was at once filled with apprehension. It was plain that Follansbee was bent on some course connected with the Beriton family, but it was impossible to imagine what that course would be. It was not to be expected that he would run down the Beriton car and thereby precipitate the girl he loved to a distance of some 500 feet. Nevertheless he was soon in full chase. Mr. Beriton directed his aviator to follow the two aeroplanes.

Unfortunately for Mr. Beriton's success in overtaking the others, his car was equipped with several apartments fitted up luxuriously and carrying a large supply of food and drinkables. Though furnished with the latest pattern of engines, it was not to be expected that this machine could compete for speed with the lighter machines. However, he followed close on their heels, getting near them at Trenton, losing them over Wilmington, again coming in sight of them at Baltimore. While passing over Virginia his aviator slowed up to tighten a loose nut, and after this the fugitives were lost to him entirely.

After Spindleton's surrender he was permitted to go where he liked. Making a bee line for Richmond, he met his employer over the peninsula. The two drew up side by side, and while hovering the aviator gave Mr. Beriton an account of what had happened.

"What are the best points of your machine?" asked the latter.

"Quick rising and an ability to fly in thin air."

"Good! To fight this pauper we must get above him. To bring him to terms we must have bombs to drop on him."

"But the bombs will annihilate your own wife and daughter as well as Mr. Follansbee."

"He cannot sacrifice them to his own covetousness. Our success depends on our obtaining a commanding position."

Stepping into the Spindleton machine, he permitted the one he left to go where it liked—to the moon if it chose—and he and Spindleton started for the nearest city, Richmond. There they procured bombs and, rising, started in the direction Spindleton had left Follansbee and the Beritons.

There was a hubbub in Follansbee's aeroplane as soon as Spindleton left. Mrs. Beriton, sympathizing with Miss Anita, would have been glad to give her consent that the party should swoop down for a clergyman that the lovers might be married, but she feared her husband's displeasure. The younger Miss Beriton was indifferent. The lovers finally prevailed over the elder lady's caution, and it was decided that the marriage should take place.

Being a couple of hundred miles out at sea, not a likely place to find a clergyman, Follansbee turned his machine toward the land. But time had been spent in coming to a decision, and he was too late. When fifty miles off Norfolk the machine bearing Mr. Beriton, driven by Spindleton, appeared over Virginia beach, like a seagull, standing northeast.

A great deal of power had been used in his machine since starting, and he knew it had not the capacity for a long quick run with the coming aeroplane. It was to supply this very defect—in other words, to be ready to turn and fight—that he had provided his bird with a ram. If the worst came he would smash the pursuing flier and drop its owner into the waves below. But he hoped this would not be necessary. However, in order that the contest should take place over water he made a pretense of flight.

When Mr. Beriton reached a point some two miles distant from Follansbee the latter saw his machine suddenly rise in a spiral. He divined the upshot of the maneuver in a moment. Bombs had been so long used that it was evident the enemy had procured them and, getting on a higher plane, would command the situation. The Beriton car climbed a thousand feet; then Spindleton, who was a splendid aviator, made for a point directly over Follansbee.

The lover knew his enemy's determined nature and that he would place him in a position to be bombed or to yield. He therefore put on all speed, but, of course, moved slowly, losing ground because it was essential that he move on a rising incline.

Notwithstanding the power of Follansbee's aeroplane to rise in this gradual fashion, Mr. Beriton maintained a position above him. Mrs. Beriton begged Follansbee to give up the flight, but the young man was contending for a half billion dollar bride and was not to be discouraged. When Mr. Beriton was a mile away and 500 feet above him Follansbee lighted a fuse, threw the end over the car and waited. The other end of the fuse was attached to a rocket-like firework, fixed to the bottom of the car, which in a few moment was ignited, and, blowing off a great quantity of burning powder, the aeroplane shot rapidly upward.

When this sudden ascent ceased Follansbee was on a level with his enemy and but fifty yards away.

"I'm about to ram you, sir!" cried Follansbee.

"Don't!" pleaded Mrs. Beriton.

There was a pause. Mr. Beriton saw that the game was lost.

"What's your terms?" he asked.

"Consent to my marriage with your daughter."

"Very well," replied the merchant. "I will consent, but positively refuse to give her a dowry of more than a hundred millions."

The terms were accepted, and both aeroplanes started for the Beriton residence, where the past was forgotten and Beriton expressed his admiration of his future son-in-law's ability to beat him in the game of aerial ships. The wedding took place with great brilliancy, another $100,000,000 being added to the settlement in order to enable the young couple to maintain their position in the highest circles.

It was determined to celebrate the nuptials by an aeroplane cruise consisting of the vast concourse of machines owned by the first circles of New York society. On a bright afternoon a thousand aeroplanes rose from various points in the city, hovered for awhile, then, led by the motor of the bridal couple, started westward across the continent. After a trip of a week, during which all the principal points of interest in the United States, Canada and Mexico were visited, the wedding party returned to New York.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Another Society Dedicates a New Edifice

Sunday was a grand day for the Swedish Seventh Day Adventists who on that day dedicated their new edifice on School street with services at 10.30, 3.30 and 7 o'clock. Out of town clergymen assisted in the services. This makes 31 churches in the city, and some societies worship in halls.

WOLLASTON M. E.

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. Wesley Wiggin, who is attending the New England conference at westfield, Rev. Alfred Noon occupied the pulpit. At the morning service he spoke on "The creed of Martha," from the text John 11-27. He said there was no need to hide one's self from the world to be a Christian. Martha was burdened with her domestic toil, yet she believed that Christ was the Son of God.

The Sunday school was in charge of the assistant superintendent, F. G. Bennett. The Junior League was conducted by Miss Sadie Teed, assisted by Miss Nettie Crittenden. The subject of Epworth League service was "The Christian's sacrifice—Praise," led by Mr. S. A. Kay.

At the evening service Mr. Noon took for his subject, "Life through the Gospel." He said in part: "The Christians of old were persecuted, and burned at the stake, while their persecutors were looking on. But today the Christian faith is advancing. In the last 100 years christianity has increased 130 per cent., and now includes 440,000,000 of the people of the world. If christianity increases as much in the next 100 years it will include more than one-half of the world's inhabitants. The life of the whole world is through Christ.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The preaching Sunday morning and evening was by the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther. Morning subject: "Offended at God" Luke 7.23—"Blessed is he whosoever shall not be offended in me." After referring to the finest tribute ever paid to man by Christ, (There is not a greater profit than John the Baptist,) Mr. Walther applied his text to present day conditions. Some are offended because God takes dear ones from the home. They go back on God and the church, but when men will not come to Him, He has to go to men. Some are offended because they have fewer talents than others. The more talents we have the greater the responsibility. Let us do our best with what we have and we will receive a glorious reward. David was not privileged to build the temple but was not offended. Sometimes trouble comes to us just after we are converted and we are offended, but all things work together for good. We shall see that all God's plans were right. We cannot see our dross till God purifies the gold in us. Let us say "Though He slay me yet will I trust Him."

Evening subject: "On the wing and under the wing" Isa. 40:31. The pastor referred to God's care for the fowls of the air and the greater care for His children. Sparrows do not fall to the ground without the Fathers notice. Ye are of more value than many sparrows. They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength. They shall mount up with wings as eagles they shall run and not be weary, they shall walk and not faint. As the mother bird teaches her young to fly, so God teaches us to test our strength and learn to use it in His service. Under the wing suggests protection, warmth and fellowship. Mr. Walther said in a most tender and sympathetic way that there were inmates of twenty different homes in Wollaston whose hearts are crushed because of sorrow and trouble and expressed his joy in having the privilege of telling them of the great wings of God that would cover them. In closing the pastor asked all to not only rest under the wing, but to be on the wing for Jesus.

The subject of the C. E. meeting was, "God is here." Leader, Seldom H. Nickerson. Miss Florence Newcomb of Brookline rendered two solos in a very pleasing manner.

The pastor will lead the cottage prayer meeting at Mrs. Dicey's, Montclair Tuesday evening, at 7.45.

Friday evening at 6.30 the annual supper and business meeting of the church will be held in the chapel.

DR. GILSON A CANDIDATE.

The vacancy in the school board caused by the death of Dexter E. Wadsworth, will under the charter be filled at a joint meeting of the City Council and School Committee, probably next Monday evening at the regular meeting of the City Council. Up to the present time the only candidate for the office is ex-Councilman Alfred H. Gilson who announced his candidacy this morning. Mr. Gilson has always taken a deep interest in school matters and for a number of years has been the secretary of several school associations.

KAFFIRS AS SERVANTS.

An American Woman's Housekeeping Experiences In South Africa.

"I never shall forget the names my Kaffir boys took," said a woman who kept house several years in South Africa, where her husband was manager of a mine. "When the Kaffir boys come from the kraals no one ever uses their native names. As soon as they are brought in contact with the whites they take a white name.

"This produces results which are not lacking in humor. Among the house boys Knife, Fork and Spoon were common names. Table, Chair, Watch, Carriage and Matchbox were other names that I had in the house at various times. My butler rejoiced in the stately appellation of New One. It was when the slang phrase 'That's a new one on me' was going about.

"One of my house boys took the utilitarian name of Ham and Eggs. The Kaffirs are very fond of rice when they learn to eat it among the whites, and our stable boy thought he had found the nicest name in the world in Rice. But the Kaffirs have the same difficulty as the Chinese in pronouncing the letter R, so poor Rice always called himself Lice.

"One day the wife of one of the carpenters sent down to the compound for a new kitchen boy. The boy had heard one expression in frequent use at the mine. It struck him as euphonious and pleasing, and when she asked him what his name was he calmly replied, 'Dam Fool.'

"'Why, I can't call you that,' said she, horrified. 'I'll call you Joseph.'

"The boy flew into a rage. He said Dam Fool was a 'mmochlie gun,' a nice name, and if he could not have that name he would not work for her. He was so stubborn about it that she had either to use the name or to send him back to the compound. Eventually she kept him, and she told me that it was a relief to her feelings sometimes to have a kitchen boy answering to just that name.

"The Kaffirs are very imitative and will cook a dish exactly as they have been taught. But I never could quite bring myself to eat Kaffir cooking. It is apt to be weird.

"I had an English housekeeper who did the cooking. Once she went down to Johannesburg for a week's vacation, and her head assistant, Candle, was promoted to the position of chef. One night for dinner he brought in a dessert of baked custard. It looked perfectly conventional, but when I tasted it I thought for a moment that I was in the clutches of a nightmare.

"It seems that Candle had flavored the pudding with worcestershire sauce instead of vanilla. Poor Candle was quite crestfallen at our reception of the dish."

A Blessing In Bamboo.

Some ho[illegible] are closer than brothers, and su[illegible]ban people frequently miss the exclusive life they have been accustomed to in their "broader acres" or even in the narrower limits of a town house.

The privacy of home is something to be mourned, for it is almost a thing of earlier farm life and of the past. Nothing that can be done to call back the smallest fragment of it should be objected to by our good neighbors, to whom personally there may not be the least objection.

One way to accomplish the desired privacy is the free use of the bamboo screen upon all porches. If it be tactfully rolled at times it may never make itself felt as a too complete barrier to even the sensitive neighbor, and, indeed, it may be welcomed by him also as a merciful protection.

It is a most excellent plan to put up screens before the next and later comer arrives, when that is possible, or to do it "with the flowers"—with the early gardening—as if it were a necessary part of all the outdoor work and not a thrust at the overintimate neighbor after the unsolicited friendship has grown to be a burden.

Mayor and Others Turn Sods for Houghs Neck School

It lacked just two minutes of 11 o'clock this morning when Mayor Shea seized the two handles of a plow and Patrick McCaren said "get up" to a pair of horses which set the machinery in motion for the turning of the first sod, on the Cavanagh lot for the cellar of the new four-room school building to be erected. It was a happy day for the residents of Houghs Neck who saw in the turning of this sod the beginning which should give them a school building for their children.

The ceremony was witnessed by a large number of residents of that section of the city, which included D. J. Maloney, the president of the Houghs Neck associates; Capt. Fosdick, who as chairman of the committee on the school which worked so hard for the building; and Capt. Woodbury, who served on the committee with him, as well as many ladies.

The city was represented by Mayor Shea, Commissioner Bainbridge, City Treasurer Curtis, City Engineer Sargent, Inspector of Buildings Parker, City Messenger Tirrell, Councilman Smith of the Public Buildings committee, George T. Magee, Clerk of Council; and Messrs. Miller, Hunting, Burke, and O'Hara of the School Committee. There were also several citizens from Quincy.

One of the first acts on the arrival of the official party was the presentation to Mayor Shea of a boutonnier of violets by Mrs. O. A. Frye. When all was in readiness Mayor Shea seized the handles of the plow and said, "ladies and gentlemen we will now turn the first sod, and in doing so I desire to call attention to the statement of President Maloney, that in three years there would be enough children so that it would be necessary to build an addition to the school." The horses then started and the Mayor turned a sod across the lot. Dr. Hunting who was the chairman of the School board when the lot was selected, turned the second furrow; and John L. Miller, the present chairman of the School Committee, the third sod. Mr. Miller bore so hard on the handles that he broke the plow, otherwise several other officials would have shown how little they knew about handling a plow.

A tip cart was then backed up and shovels passed among the ladies who throwing back their wraps, began to throw the loam into the cart until it was filled. It was hard work but they never faltered and the cart was soon full. The ladies who had the honor of filling the first cart were: Mrs. D. J. Maloney, Miss Margaret Kalliher, Mrs. Frank Leonard, Mrs. Lillian Stackpole, Mrs. O. A. Frye, Mrs. Elsie Murray, Mrs. W. P. Taylor, Mrs. Alice Slaunwright, Mrs. Jesse McEwan, Mrs. Edith Ring, Mrs. Carrie Darrow and Mrs. A. C. Medros.

As soon as this was over, Capt. Fosdick said: "In behalf of the mothers and fathers I wish to thank you Mr. Mayor and members of the City Council for giving us this building. It is with much pleasure that we see the beginning of this building for which we have so long waited. I also want to say that we are now coming to you in a body and ask for a playground.

"Mayor Shea said that he was glad that this section of the city was to have a schoolhouse, and it was up to you people at Houghs Neck to fill it."

John L. Miller, chairman of the school board, said that he was glad that Houghs Neck was to have a school building which would be opened in the fall. It would be a good thing for the parents to have their children attend school right at home. While there was not much doubt but what the building would have to be added to, he hoped that it would not come for six or seven years.

Then there were three cheers for the Mayor, the ladies, and for Capt. Fosdick, and Dan Maloney, the president of the associates, and the ceremony was over.

It was on April 11, 1793, that Quincy after its separation from Braintree, voted to build its first schoolhouse, so that Houghs Neck today celebrated the 117th anniversary of an important date in our school history.

The Sitting Room Hall.

The hall seen in the illustration is a charming example of what may be done in artistic furnishings. There is nothing symmetrical about the arrangement, and this in itself is a great relief. Then the simple way in which the floor and walls are treated gives a feeling of repose that is very grateful. Possibly the greatest change in house furnishings in the early twentieth century was the revival of the sitting room hall, which is steadily growing in favor.

—Grave fears are entertained in England for the health of King Edward, whose recent years have filled a large place in the affairs of the world. Despite denials by authority of the rumors that the soverign is seriously ill, the impression has been unmistakably conveyed in the English and continental press that the king's absence from the United Kingdom at the present grave phase of parliamentary affairs is caused by some more important reason than his desire to spend the closing weeks of the dreary season amid the pleasant conditions of Biarritz. The fact that King Edward in his retirement is not taking part in the relaxations to which he has been accustomed heretofore has given rise to the theory that the King is in reality in poor health—how poor, it remains to be seen in the near future.—Christian Register.

Patriots' day a week from tomorrow.

The superior court at Dedham came in this morning and several Quincy officers are in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Miller have returned from their trip to Philadelphia and Washington.

A May sale and entertainment is announced by Dorothy Q. lodge, U. O. of I. O. L., at Odd Fellows hall, Wollaston, Monday evening, May 2.

The Herbert J. Gurneys have not bought the Bailey estate on Warren avenue, Wollaston, although it is to be their home. The purchaser is Mrs. S. E. Robson.

Dr. Francis Abele, Jr., and family are enjoying their new auto. Dr. Abele also finds it most useful in making his professional calls, which are often into adjoining towns.

The weather this morning was a decided change from what it was the first of last week, and is a reminder that the time has not yet arrived when winter garments may be laid aside.

An enjoyable program is to be presented tomorrow afternoon at the regular meeting of the Quincy Women's club, when Mildred Sheldon Bass will read from the writings of Paul Laurence Dunbar and two southern ladies will sing Negro melodies. The afternoon is in charge of the Art and Literature committee.

Recently there has been added to Quincy's long list of merchants a young man who, although not a stranger, is entering upon his first experience of being in business for himself. This popular young man is John Heffernan, who has purchased the J. W. Ellis shoe store, located at 1375 Hancock street, City square, next door to Berry Bros. Mr. Heffernan on assuming charge saw several ideas that could be worked out to the advantage of the buying public and in a short time Quincy people will be able to purchase shoes from a young merchant who is out to give the biggest values for money received. This store is centrally located, and Mr. Heffernan would be pleased to have his friends and acquaintances call and see him in his new surroundings.

TAFT IS AFTER SOFT COAL MEN

Prosecutions Already Started by the Administration

WICKERSHAM AS MOUTHPIECE

Cabinet Official Says His Chief Has Done All Within His Power to Fulfill Every Pledge—Defends Tariff and Reads Insurgents Out of Republican Party—Hare and Hounds Game Over

Chicago, April 11.—The first intimation that the Taft administration intended to try to break up the trust which controls the output of bituminous coal became known here in a speech made by Attorney General Wickersham, who declared that the combination was "reprehensible in its character and obnoxious in its effect."

"These organizations," said Wickersham at the Appomatox celebration of the Hamilton club, "present the most obnoxious form where they control subjects of such vital importance to the entire country as the production and marketing of coal, and the department of justice has recently argued and submitted to the circuit court of the United States at Philadelphia a proceeding brought to break up a combination under which the great anthracite production of Pennsylvania is controlled by an intercorporate organization of railroad and coal mining companies, and the department has now under preparation a proceeding against a similar combination affecting bituminous coal, believed to be equally reprehensible in its character and obnoxious in its effect."

Mr. Wickersham flayed the detractors of President Taft and smote the insurgents in terms unmistakably hostile. He reviewed the first year of the administration and declared that every pledge made in the platform of 1908 had been fulfilled to the limit of executive action.

It was the general feeling that the attorney general was speaking for his chief, as he recalled the campaign pledges one by one and pointed to the executive's action upon them after taking office.

The administration's determination to enforce the Sherman law against trusts and monopolies, he reiterated; the tariff he defended and declared that as a revenue producer it had no equal, while its maximum and minimum provisions provided a powerful weapon for the protection of American commerce.

Every Republican must choose, Wickersham declared, whether or not he was with the Republican party and the president.

"He that hath no stomach for the fight, let him depart," quoted Wickersham in a shout which emphasized the sentiment. "The time for running with the hares and the hounds is over. Treason has ever consisted in giving aid and comfort to the enemy. If any one wishes to join the Democratic party, let him do so; but let him not claim to be a Republican and work in and out of season to defeat Republican measures and to subvert the influence of the Republican president."

How Taft Discussed Insurgents

Washington, April 11.—While Attorney General Wickersham was uttering the administration's official defense in Chicago President Taft, before the League of Republican clubs of the District of Columbia, spoke with diplomatic reserve on the question of insurgency in the Republican ranks, declaring he would read no man out of the party, but that it was possible for a man to read himself out of the party.

The view generally taken of his speech was that he did not want the impression to go out to the country that he or his administration was reading anybody out of the party, but that he believed the responsibility for deserting the party rested upon the insurgents themselves.

It is believed in Washington that the keynote of the administration was sounded by Wickersham in his Chicago speech, which, it is known, the president had gone over carefully.

Government Receipts Exceed Expenses

Washington, April 11.—For the first time since the Payne-Aldrich tariff act went into effect, Aug. 5, 1909, the net ordinary receipts of the government showed a surplus over the net ordinary expenditures, amounting to $122,000, of which $100,000 came from the new corporation tax.

Portland, Me., April 11.—All Maine lakes except the Rangeley lake chain and Moosehead lake are free of ice and spring fishing for trout and salmon is flourishing.

HIBBARD MADE COLLECTOR

Mayor of Boston Gives Fat Job to His Recent Opponent

Boston, April 11.—Mayor Fitzgerald has appointed ex-Mayor Hibbard to the position of city collector for a term of four years at $5000 a year, and sent a notice of the same to the civil service commission for the approval of that body.

When the news of the appointment was made public the supporters of James J. Storrow revived the old charge which they made in the recent city campaign, namely, that Fitzgerald and Hibbard had a "deal" on between them to defeat Storrow.

The Storrowites claimed that Hibbard remained in the mayoralty race solely to encompass the election of Fitzgerald. The Storrowites since the election have claimed that Hibbard's presence in the fight was responsible for Fitzgerald's election, and this has been generally conceded as true.

WORK OF FIREBUGS

Two Miles of Buildings at Old Morris Park Are Destroyed

New York, April 11.—There occurred Sunday the most extensive fire—in point of area covered—which New York city has ever known. Two miles of buildings were burned, and yet with only a nominal loss.

The destroyed structures were the stables in the old Morris park race track, in the Bronx. That the fire was incendiary is evident from the fact that flames broke out simultaneously on the northeast and south sides of the track.

Flying embers were carried on the wind to the village of Westchester, just outside the race track enclosure, and they set on fire a hundred houses there. These, however, were saved from material damage by bucket brigades formed by the townspeople. One of the churches in the village lost its steeple, however.

PINCHOT TAKEN OFF UNCLE SAM'S MAP

Idaho Postoffice Will In Future Be Known as Avery

Washington, April 11.—The powers that be have ordered the name of Pinchot effaced from the permanent records of the postoffice department. The postoffice of Pinchot, Ida., has been changed to Avery.

It seems that in the days of his popularity, when he was conserving with success and Mr. Roosevelt was president, Chief Forester Pinchot was honored by having a postoffice in Idaho given his name.

There was no thought of a change until Secretary Ballinger started after Pinchot's top tuft and Senator Heyburn joined in the chase.

A petition by the people receiving their mail at Pinchot that the name was distasteful, a recommendation that a change be made by Heyburn, the don't careness of President Taft and the willingness of Postmaster General Hitchcock to drop a brick on the head of an old enemy and the deed was done. It will hereafter be Avery.

"REDDY" GALLAGHER DEAD

Notorious Burglar Knocked Out With Club In Hands of Householder

New York, April 11.—James, alias "Reddy" Gallagher, a notorious burglar with a long prison record, was killed with a club after a desperate struggle by a householder whose home he attempted to enter.

Samuel Zeanquenian was awakened by his wife, who said a man was trying to get into a neighboring house. Zeanquenian, hastily dressing himself, went down cellar and picked up a heavy club used as a lever in a wine press.

The burglar ran to the street, followed by Zeanquenian, who struck him with such force that he was thrown against a lamp post and smashed the lamp. He suffered a fractured skull and was removed to a hospital by the police, dying shortly after being admitted to the institution.

DEATHS AFTER WHISKY DOSES

Nine Persons Believed to Have Been Killed by Poison

AUTHORITIES INVESTIGATING

Not Yet Settled Whether Delibgrate Attempt Was Made at Wholesale Slaughter or Whether Powerful Toxic Poison Was In Liquor Before It Reached Person Who Sold It to Victims—What Autopsies Revealed

Providence, April 11.—Nine sudden deaths, believed to be due to drinking poisoned whisky, are under investigation at Westerly and Stonington, and the towns are excitedly awaiting the outcome. Following the sudden deaths of Charles R. Hood and his father-in-law, Henry Larrow, on Thursday, it became known that there had been other deaths under similar circumstances.

Though heart disease was given as the cause of death on the death certificates in a number of cases, many physicians are of the opinion that all, or nearly all of the deaths were caused by drinking poisoned whisky. Some go as far as to hold that the liquor was purchased from a certain place, and that in some unknown way it was mixed with poison unbeknown to the seller or buyer.

Mrs. Larrow, wife of Edward Larrow, who died Thursday, is seriously ill. It is the belief of many that she is another victim of poisoned whisky.

On Tuesday Mrs. Ellen Murry of Westerly, Mrs. Ella Tucker of Westerly and Joseph Blevin of Pawcatuck, died suddenly, and on Friday Miss Lena Blanchard of Avondale, Cornelius W. Hazzard of Westerly, and Joseph Bent of the same place died suddenly.

The latest death reported is that of William D. Perrin of Ashaway, four miles from Westerly. Perrin became ill Friday night after he had taken some whisky and he developed symptoms similar to those observed in the other cases. He died Saturday afternoon.

The police of Stonington and Westerly are working in conjunction in the case, but it is not believed that any arrests will follow.

Various theories in explanation of the wholesale poisoning have been considered by the authorities. Whether there was a deliberate purpose on the part of some one to poison drinkers of the whisky because of a grudge against the seller, or the liquor was poisoned in some way before it reached the dealer in question, are matters that the police have not decided.

No evidence indicating knowledge on the part of this man of the poisonous quality of the whisky has been found, and the police are at a loss for a motive which could have prompted the indiscriminate slaughter of so many people.

Autopsies have been held on the bodies of Larrow and Hood and a greenish liquid was found in the stomach of each. The liquid and organs have been sent to the state chemist. The findings in each case indicate that the deaths were due to the presence of a powerful toxic poison in the whisky used by the victims.

BIGAMIST NOT INDICTED

Grand Judy Admired the Courage of an Ohio Man

Steubenville, O., April 11.—The Jefferson county grand jury failed to indict Charles Spoonholtz of Warren township, who has been living with two wives for twenty-six years, on the ground that he had done a manly duty in supporting the wives and their children.

The case is one of the strangest in the history of Ohio. Spoonholtz married both young women about the same time, then told them what he had done. He promised to take care of both of them if they would be friendly with each other, and not ask embarrassing questions.

The wives lived in harmony twenty-six years before jealousy cropped out.

Prayers of thanksgiving over the capture of Spencer and the end of the two years' reign of terror which he caused were made in practically all the Springfield churches yesterday.

Pasadena, Cal., April 11.—Miss Anna Morgan, daughter of J. P. Morgan, created some excitement when she appeared in front of the Raymond hotel clad in long trousers, over which she wore a skirt of medium length.

She mounted a wiry little mustang and started down the winding path from the hotel, accompanied by a guide from the livery stable. She rode about the foothills surrounding Pasadena for three hours.

On returning to the hotel she rushed to her apartments, only to appear in a few moments in street dress, ready to join a friend who was waiting in a large touring car.

FARMER RELIEVED OF CASH AND TEAM

Confronted by Bold Young Highwayman With a Gun

Barrington, N. H., April 11.—The authorities of two counties are on the watch for a young highwayman who flashed a gun in the face of an aged farmer here, robbed him of a big sum of money and made off with his horse and wagon.

The victim of the holdup was James Quinn, aged 80, who conducts a big farm in Barrington and is looked upon as its wealthiest resident. He was driving along the road toward Dover when the robber jumped out from a thick growth, drew a revolver and commanded him to pull up and produce his money.

Quinn complied and passed over a big roll of bills which he had in his hip pocket. The man then jumped upon the seat, and putting the gun up to Quinn's right ear ordered him off the team. Thus rid of his victim the highwayman whipped up the horse and drove rapidly away.

MUST REDUCE RATES

Pullman Company Gets Orders From Interstate Commerce Commission

Washington, April 11.—The interstate commerce commission holds it to be "unjust and unreasonable" for the Pullman company to charge equally for the upper and lower berths in its sleeping cars. Differential charges are ordered in several instances, and Pullman rates from Chicago to the Pacific are ordered reduced.

While this ruling of the commission orders reductions in rates which were specifically and formally complained of, it is recognized as the opening wedge for a readjustment of sleeping car rates wherever they exceed the average which the commission has found to be just and reasonable in these instances.

The Pullman company, it is stated, will carry the decision to the courts.

WILSON IS DYING

Middy Has Long Suffered From Injuries Received In Football Game

Annapolis, Md., April 11.—Midshipman Earl D. Wilson, the quarterback of the naval academy football team, who has been a helpless paralytic at the naval hospital here for nearly six months as the result of injuries sustained in a football game with Villa Nova college, is reported as sinking rapidly.

The attending surgeons cannot see how he can possibly survive more than a day or two. Wilson is practically a skeleton and so grave is his condition that the surgeons are able to feel scarcely any pulse.

Bishop Doane Has a Fall

Troy, N. Y., April 11.—Bishop Doane of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Albany was seized with a fainting spell while administering communion in St. John's church here and in falling he struck his head on the stone floor of the chancel and was quite severely cut. His condition is not serious.

Cold Kills 60,000 Goats

San Antonio, Tex., April 11.—It is estimated that 80,000 goats perished in the Fric and Nueces valleys as a result of the recent heavy rains which were accompanied by cold winds.

MODES IN NEW YORK.

While the greatest variety of styles are being worn there are a few dominant types, that, as usual stand out prominently from the melange that are worth special notice by clever women who like to make the most of their dress allowance.

SKIRTS SHORT AND STRAIGHT.

Skirts are shorter than for years even for dressy toilets if they are intended for street wear, and though many pleated and "Peasant" models fulled into the waist, and often fulled into a band of silk or satin at the bottom of the skirt, are worn, as well as draped styles of many varieties, the lines on the whole are kept straight and the close fitting appearance of the preceding seasons remains a characteristic of the fashionable outline.

MIXED MATERIALS.

A mixture of materials in the costume is the rule rather than the exception, and trimmings of satin and changeable silks, and foulards are used on nine out of ten dressy suits and gowns. Cloths, voiles, marquisetes and poplins are all so trimmed and very attractive results are to be had in this way at a minimum of expense, while such modes afford unusual opportunities for gowns that need to be remodelled.

SILK AND WOOL POPLINS.

Silk and wool poplins are among the leading fabrices for handsome gowns, worn at Spring weddings and other fashionable functions. The "Coleens," "Vourneens" and others of similar Irish names, come in nearly a hundred different shades, in all the fashionable colorings. They have a beautifully lustrous silk surface, and a soft wool filling, which gives them their unequalled clinging and draping qualities, so desirable for present modes, and at the same time prevents the wrinkling, so distressingly apparent in many draped styles. Coleen is double fold and sells for $1.75 per yard and Vourneen single width with more silk in the weave at $1.35.

FASHIONABLE SLEEVE.

Sleeves are of all lengths, but for handsome dresses and waists are apt to end well above the elbows with a lower cuff of lace reaching half way to the wrist, or quite there if the longer length is liked. Tailored waists of linen or cotton shirtings are about the only sort where the long sleeve is the rule, but even in these the 3-4 length is often preferred and finished with a turn back ruffled cuff, and a collarless neck with the same ruffle now called the "Chantecler" or "Pierrot."

COLLARLESS WAISTS.

Collarless waists, coats and blouses are the rule, though these are only becoming when the neck is fresh and young and most women are having or making a number of small guimps with a high collar, to be worn with such low cut garments. These guimps are made of nets, all over embroidery, or fancy collars, and are very simple in style. The main thing is to have them well cut and finished so that they launder easily. Waists of colored linen, silk and figured cottons are all made attractive with washable accessories. Guimps, side ruffles and turned down collars, "Pierrots," "Grannys" and "Peter Pans," which are small sailor collars. Colored hems and embroideries are much used.

ACCESSORIES.

With the prevailing short skirts footwear is prominent and the selection of these important accessories should be carefully made. A vamp that is as long as the shape of the foot allows and a rather low heel is the correct style for street wear, high heels and short vamps are suited only to indoor use, or evening wear. Bright colored hose with black or white shoes promises to be very much worn. It is pretty to have the hose match the silk petticoat.

Lucy Carter.

New York, April 3, 1910.

—What earthly purpose are those political scientists serving who are proclaiming from the housetops that a great panic is going to hit us in 1912 or 1913? We doubt if these forecasters of calamity are doing any good. It may, indeed, be true that the watched pot never boils and it may be equally true that the predicted panic never comes. But a panic is largely a state of emotion. Whether a panic comes at any time or whether it doesn't depends mainly on the frame of the public mind. If everybody should insist that a panic was going to break loose tomorrow, a panic would break loose tomorrow. When men of influence are shouting from the highways and hedges that a panic is due three or four years hence they are merely putting the collective mind into a condition to believe that a panic is bound to come. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof: likewise the panic thereof. —Hartford Times.

WOULD DIE FOR CHRISTIANITY

Words of Mission Worker Prove to Be Prophetic

SHOT DOWN IN THE STREET

Instantly Killed Just After Leaving Church by a Madman Who Had Listened to Sermon of Editor—Crowd of Followers Skurry to Shelter as Assassin Lets Bullets Fly—Fellow Worker Also Shot

Pittsburg, April 11.—A sermon on martyrdom, in which Frank Skala, an editor and prominent mission worker, had declared himself willing to lay down his life for the Christian cause, was followed by his assassination in a highly sensational manner and the shooting down also of a fellow church leader, John Gay.

Arm in arm the two men were leaving the Congregational church in Wood's Run, a suburb, at the head of more than a hundred foreigners. A ragged and collarless man worked his way through the crowd as it reached the corner of Eckert street and McClue avenue and when he was but a step behind the leaders pressed the muzzle of a revolver against Skala's head and fired twice.

The bullets took effect in the jaw and temple and in the midst of his followers Skala fell dead. Gay, who threw up his hand as if to ward off the weapon, was struck by a bullet on the thumb and then a second bullet buried itself in his head. He fell unconscious across the lifeless body of his colleague.

For a moment—for several moments—the assassin stood over his prey flourishing his revolver while the panic-stricken crowd fled to shelter behind posts and doorways.

The madman was Jan Radowitch, a character known to most of the mission for his radical opinions. Shortly before the shooting he meekly read from juvenile leaflets in the Sunday school led by Skala; previously he had sat in a back pew of the church during the regular sermon; and at the commencement of the services Skala had haken his hand in greeting. During all this time Radowitch had given no warning of his homicidal intent.

There were no police in sight when the shooting was done, the church people were too frightened to grab the assassin, and after wildly flourishing his weapon, stamping his foot on the bodies, he made off down the avenue to the Fort Wayne railroad tracks and was soon lost to view. A large armed posse of police detectives and church people were soon in pursuit, but they found no trace of him.

SUES FOR HER PROPERTY

Hattie Le Blanc Says She Needs Effects In Preparing Defense

Cambridge, Mass., April 11.—A petition signed by Hattie A. Le Blanc, under indictment for the murder of Clarence F. Glover at Waltham, and by her counsel, was filed at the courthouse here, asking that Mrs. Clarence Glover and her counsel, Samuel D. Elmore, be compelled to restore clothing, letters and documents belonging to the chief petitioner.

There is a long list of articles, said to belong to Hattie Le Blanc, now in the possession of Mrs. Glover or her counsel, and are needed by Hattie in her defense at the coming trial.

The petition states that Elmore has been asked to return the property in question to Miss Le Blanc or her counsel, but has twice refused to do so. The petitioners also ask for costs in the case.

HITS "RAGTIME" PREACHING

Bishop McIntyre Gives Advice to Young Methodist Clergymen

Saratoga, N. Y., April 11.—"Ragtime preaching" from pulpits with poetry, politics, literature and travel as themes, was condemned by Bishop McIntyre of St. Paul, in an address before the class of candidates seeking admission to Troy Methodist conference.

Bishop McIntyre told the young men they would attain success by not following the custom of clergymen who "serve religion cold" to their congregations, "but by ardently preaching the great truths of the church." He also counselled them to be content with small salaries and not to be continually seeking for better clerical appointments.

Rockefeller Helps a Church

New York, April 11.—In twenty-eight minutes the congregation of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church subscribed $324,000 yesterday to build a new edifice. Of this sum John D. Rockefeller gave half, having promised to duplicate dollar for dollar up to $250,000, when $500,000 will have been reached.

Danger Removed From Hatpin

Kansas City, April 11.—Here it is at last—a safety hatpin; no more gouged eyes. A boy of 18, Moad Lamarr, has patented a safety catch that covers the sharp end of the pin with an ornament that adds to the hat's appearance.

BRIEFS

J. H. Curley of the Governor's Council gave an address before St. Mary's C. T. A. society Sunday afternoon on "The human side of politics." The address was listened to by a large audience.

One of the most enjoyable and successful dancing parties of the season was given Saturday evening at Colonial hall, arranged by Wallace Carr and Harold Davenport. The matrons were Mrs. Joseph Evans and Mrs. Thomas Davenport.

The pony ballet of the Pi Eta play tomorow evening will be one o fthe hits. It includes eight "lovely girls." There are other "girls" in the play and some good music. If the boys are given an enthusiastic greeting in Quincy they are sure to present a great show.

SCHOOL REUNION.

The second annual reunion was held in Wollaston hall on Saturday evening by the classes of 1904 and 1905 of the Massachusetts Fields school which was a success both socially and financially. A goodly number of the classes were present, some of the members coming from Framingham, Brookline, Roslindale and other towns in order to attend. The teachers of the school were represented by Miss Lillian Waterhouse ,others sending their regrets.

The festivities were somewhat saddened by the death during the past year of Clarence Tobin and Edna Pritchard both of the class of 1905.

In charge of the reunion were a committee composed of Ralph P. Green, Guy V. Sass, Fred Croucher, Fred Davis, Miss Gertrude Sass, Hazel Jones and Eva Weymouth.

The two classes are most congenial and many pleasant reunions are looked for in the future. Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour to the music of Estes orchestra.

Among those present were A. M. Chisholm, Hadley G. Polk, Herbert A. Lavery, Charles W. Staples, Harry F. Hendricks, Harry R. Earl, Lewis E. Coombs, Carl Schroeder, Franz R. Marceau, Edwin A. Poland, Guy V. Sass, Ralph P. Greene, Fred P. Davis, Fred P. Sass, Clarence Pendleton, Ernest Pletsch.

SOME STUNTS PROMISED

Uncle Hiram Quakeroates was in town Sunday attending church, and in conversation with one of our leading citizens regarding sickness in the village and what was best to take as a spring tonic, he said, he thought most people stayed at home to much and mentioned that the Y. M. C. A. was planning a big time Wednesday night in their gymnasium, and if the towns people went over there and had a good laugh it would do more good then most of the medicine that is taken nowadays.

Some of our older citizens can remember Hiram Quakeroates in his younger days, and some time refer to him as a regular "Cut up." So you may be sure of some fun, as he tells us he is going to lit out and do some stunts he did when a boy on Wednesday night at the Hayseed Karnival.

A LINE ON THE APPRENTICES

Trial Game on Saturday With a Picked Team

(By Rube)

I took a trip down to the Fore River athletic field Saturday afternoon to get a look at the Fore River Apprentice baseball team in action against a team composed of "Mechanics." It was anything but an ideal day for baseball, but the players were anxious to get going, and despite the frequent April showers went to their positions in a confident manner.

The Mechanics presented a misfit team, borrowing O'Rouke from their opponents, and securing Mahoney and Costello of the Bigelows and Duggan from the Atlantic professionals.

"Chet" Foster was on the slab and Barry did the backstop work.

The Apprentice nine started off with Fitzpatrick on the mound, Avery back of the bat, Creswell at the landing sack, Captain Grethe at the pivot cusion, and Howley and Fitzgerald at short, and the hot corner position. In the outfield Clinton, Kerr and Newcomb took care of the bingles and chased the long drives.

The Mechanics drew first blood bunching hits and sending two scores over, in the third. The Apprentices followed suit, allowing Treasurer Sedgwick of the company to use his iron lungs in "truly fan style."

Duggan at third for the Mechanics proved a tower of strength, as did Creswell at the initial corner. This Creswell is a comer. He handles wide heaves and low throws in perfect style and if he can display such form as he showed so early in the season I fail to see why he cannot be a star in the league season. He banged out two two baggers which at the start for the season look as big as the North Dakota alongside of the yacht which could be seen in the distance.

Toward the end of the game Avery retired and Newcomb went behind the willow, and McGuerty took his position. Grethe went onto the rubber and tossed them over. This boy is going to prove the sensation this year. He is a natural ball player and leader and by his antics of Saturday I believe he knows the game from A to Z.

Neither team would exert themselves and the final score was 8 to 3 in favor of the "Mechanics." The Apprentices are a lively looking group and not a few were loud in their praise of the players as they appeared in their first appearance.

TRIAL TRIP OF ALOHA

Out in Harbor Today for Steaming Test

About 8.30 this morning Commodore James' bark rigged auxiliary yacht Aloha II, built at Fore River, got under way and left for an eight-hours' steaming trial in the harbor. The owner, designer and guests will be aboard the yacht during the trial, which will occupy all day, sails and power being given exhaustive tests.

It is expected that the Aloha will leave Quincy for New York, her home port, within ten days. The Aloha II will be the first large yacht under power this spring, though covers are being removed from some of the larger craft at Lawley's and other storage yards. The Aloha II. may not go to the Mediterranean, as was planned a year ago, and will probably cruise this season along the Atlantic coast.

FIVE TO THREE BOTH GAMES

The Y. M. C. A. Baseball League Open Season

The Y. M. C. A. team and the South Quincys won the opening games in the Y. M. C. A. league on Saturday and the standing is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.	PerCent.
Y. M. C. A.	1	0	100
South Quincys	1	0	100
Wollastons	0	1	00
Atlantics	0	1	00

The Y. M. C. A. and Wollastons met on the lower field at Merrymount park and the score was 5 to 3 in favor of the former.

The other game was on the Ward Six playground, and the South Quincys defeated the Atlantics 5 to 3.

Two more games will be played on Wednesday both on the lower field at Merrymount park, when Wollaston will meet South Quincy, and Atlantic will try to lower the colors of the Y. M. C. A.

NOON ALARM.

The alarm from Box 61 at 11.48 this noon was for a chimney fire in the house of Catherine Driscoll at the corner of Hancock street and Glover avenue. The fire burnt some in one of the rooms but was extinguished with a chemical stream. The less will not exceed $10.

OFFICER MURRAY BETTER.

There were several rumors about City Square this morning that the illness of Officer Murray had taken a serious turn. The rumor was a false one, however, for Mrs. Murray told those at the breaking ground for the new school house that he was considerably better this morning.

SPORTING NOTES.

Two games in the Grammar school league will be played this afternoon at Merrymount park on teh lower field.

At Lynn on Saturday the Fore River soccer team of Quincy defeated the Lynn City team 3 to 2. Robertson scored two goals and Wilson one.

Arabian Coffee.

The Arabian coffee maker, having prepared his fire of charcoal and placed near it a huge pot containing water, takes a few handfuls of green coffee berries, carefully culls out all imperfect berries and foreign substances and then places the best of the berries in an iron ladle held over the fire. The berries are permitted to roast until they begin to smoke and are then, while still uncharred, placed in a small mortar and carefully brayed with a pestle closely fitting the cup of the mortar. The berries are not, however, reduced to a dust. While this process has been going on a small pot has been half filled with tepid water from the large pot and placed over the fire. When the water in the small pot has begun to boil the broken coffee berries are thrown in, and the boiling is permitted to go on for a short time, the decoction being stirred with a spoon when it shows signs of boiling over. The coffee is then served in small cups without cream or sugar.

July 4—Fort Wayne, Ind.	$20,000
July 11—Terre Haute, Ind.	25,000
July 18—Grand Rapids, Mich.	31,000
July 25—Kalamazoo, Mich.	40,000
Aug. 2—Detroit, Mich.	55,000
Aug. 9—Cleveland, O.	30,000
Aug. 16—Peoria, Ill.	15,000
Aug. 23—Galesburg, Ill.	20,000
Aug. 30—Joliet, Ill.	15,000
Sept. 5—Hamline, Minn.	31,000
Sept. 12—Milwaukee, Wis.	25,000
Sept. 19—Columbus, O.	100,000
Oct. 3—Springfield, Ill.	20,000
Oct. 10—Oklahoma City.	20,000
Oct. 15—Dallas, Tex.	35,000
Nov. 1—El Paso, Tex.	15,000
Nov. 9—Phoenix, Ariz.	27,000

Despite the fact that the grand and great western circuits come together at Columbus, the directors of the meeting there are likely to feel some opposition as a result of the vote of the directors of the Michigan state fair recently, which voted to have a week's racing of grand circuit proportions the week of Sept. 19. It will be recalled that when the grand circuit stewards met Detroit wanted two dates, but was unsuccessful in its application for a September sanction. Now, however, the state fair folks have decided to go it alone.

This second Detroit meeting will follow the grand circuit meeting at Syracuse, N. Y., which makes a rather favorable shipment possible, while the story runs that some of the purses will be of sufficient size to make them worth while for any horseman to win. The racing at Detroit state fair will be along practically the same lines as have made trotting one of the features of the state fairs at Hamline and Milwaukee. There are to be two $5,000 early closing stakes, and altogether something over $25,000 in purse money is to be hung up.

The great majority of driving associations controlling a half mile track thoroughly believe at heart that the hopples should be abolished and feel that the gradual manner in which they are to disappear under the rule just adopted will not work much of hardship in the way of costing entries. The pity is that with hopples now limited in their career matinee organizations do not come out unanimously against their use in club and interclub races instead of permitting the hoppled sidewheeler to compete on equal terms with the free legged pacer.

The first $500,000 racing circuit in the history of the light harness horse was organized at Chicago recently, when the stewards of the great western circuit got together for their much belated annual meeting. They made up for lost time, however, in mapping out a circuit that not only for the richness of the prizes offered, but for duration and territory covered, is far more pretentious than anything ever before attempted.

Just how far—if at all—the great western circuit will hurt some of the grand circuit tracks remains to be seen. It is a certainty, however, that in the case of Kalamazoo, Detroit, Cleveland and Columbus the circuit will be a benefit, as all of these tracks made application for and received the same dates in the great western circuit as they now hold in the grand circuit. Some may construe that action as an indication of weakness on the part of the grand circuit tracks, but in any event it assures larger fields for the grand circuit meetings during those weeks in which the purses are of top notch proportions. Indeed, it is the $150,000 that those four grand circuit tracks will hang up that sends the total of great western stakes and purses up beyond the half million figures.

The great western circuit under its new makeup will open on July 4 at Fort Wayne, Ind., with weeks following at Terre Haute, Ind., and Grand Rapids, Mich., before joining forces with the grand circuit for the Kalamazoo (Mich.), Detroit and Cleveland meetings that follow upon consecutive weeks. The great western then jumps to Peoria, Galesburg, Joliet, Ill., and the state fairs at Hamline, Minn., and Milwaukee before swinging in with Columbus for the meeting the last two weeks of September.

Then comes Springfield, Ill., for the first week in October, followed by a long jump into the far southwest, with Oklahoma City the first stopping point, followed by a week's session each at Dallas, El Paso, Tex., and Phoenix, Ariz., where the circuit ends the week of Nov. 9. But of course nobody expects that any of the horses that start in at Fort Wayne will be in at the finish at Phoenix. It is possible, of course, as was the case with Margin and a few others last season, but not altogether probable.

NOT THE MISSING SON

Decision Against the Alleged Daniel Blake Russell

After a trial that was begun at Cambridge Sept. 20, 1909, and continued 122 days, Judge Lawton handed down a decision this morning in the Daniel Blake Russell case. His finding is that Daniel Blake Russell is not what he claimed to be, namely the son of Daniel Blake Russell late of Melrose and an heir to the estate of $500,000.

The case has been looked upon as one of the most famous ever tried. During the trial 295 witnesses have been heard, and the stenographic report comprises about 3,420,000 words at a cost of nearly $14,000. It is expected that the end is not yet and that the case will be carried to the supreme court.

Under the will left by the original Russell, it was provided that should the second son who had been missing since 1885 return half the estate should be turned over to him.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT

Quincy Learns of the Progress Made In Chelsea

The monthly banquet of the Men's Club of Bethany church was held Monday evening with the usual large attendance. The supper committee was assisted by Barnard, the baker, and served a good menu. Edward Southworth, the president, was in the chair, and Alton E. Briggs, one of resident members of the Chelsea board of control, was the speaker of the evening. His subject was "The Municipal Problem," and he reviewed the work of the commission appointed after the conflagration, just two years ago—April 12, 1908.

At the outset he said Chelsea was no longer dead; in fact never was dead. Because of the fact that the people did not have confidence in the city government at the time of the fire a commission form of government was favored, and the State gave its approval. It would continue until 1912, and perhaps longer, but the crisis would come in that year.

Mr. Briggs said the city was handicapped not only by fire, but by the large funded debt of Chelsea before the fire, and the fact that it had not been within the $12 limit. He told how the tax rate had been kept down; how the city had adopted the policy of paying as it goes; how it had borrowed a million dollars for improvements at a very low rate and obtained a premium; how the premium had been put at interest; how the tax rate was itemized; how the schools were burdensome, and the possibility of doubling up in the use of school buildings. He told of the public buildings erected; of the newly framed building laws; of the low rate of municipal insurance obtained, etc.

One of the greatest problems of cities, especially in the Metropolitan district, was the rapidly increasing State assessments. Again the cities generally are badly governed, as the taxpayers do not obtain dollar for dollar. It was surprising the large capital invested in the rag business, and the difficulty in regulating it. In closing he said no private business could exist long on lines that most cities are governed. (Applause.)

A vote of thanks was extended to the speaker. It was announced that Rev. O. P. Gifford would be the speaker on "Ladies' Night" Monday, May 16.

Henry P. Hayward was called to the chair, and George H. Brown was introduced to explain the work of the new Civic League.

Rev. Dr. Hardy suggested a federation of the Men's clubs of the churches, and it was voted that a committee of three be appointed to take steps.

W. G. Shaw endorsed federation, and said it had been contemplated by the Civic League.

REVIEW OF CHELSEA.

In less than two years since the commission assumed management of the city two new school buildings have been erected. They are the Williams school on the west side and the Shurtleff building on the east of Broadway.

The new public library is completed and nearly ready to be opened at the corner of Broadway and Library street. The sum of $57,500 for this structure was given by Andrew Carnegie.

The board has erected two new fire stations in Fay square, at the junction of Washington avenue and Chestnut street, and at the junction of Everett avenue and 4th street. The latter is an entirely new location for fire apparatus in Chelsea, and in it is located the largest and newest steamer of the fire department, with hose carriage attached. In addition to this the board is now engaged in making repairs on the quarters of engine 2 on Forsyth street and engine 3 on Broadway, near Webster avenue.

The first new buildings erected by the governing body were the city stables on the lower end of 5th street, said to be one of the finest groups o fthe kind in the state. The new city hall is now in the process of building, and by next fall will be ready for occupancy.

Diagonally across the street will be the new postoffice building, for which congress has appropriated $125,000, and close at hand the new Y. M. C. A. structure, several churches and private business establishments.

A large number of new churches have been erected in the two years since the fire and this feature of the rebuilding has been a stimulus for greater and consistent effort on the part of the citizens. The new state armory on Broadway on the site of the old building was one of the first of the new and magnificent places to be reconstructed.

A great many trees were lost in the fire. In order that this feature of the rebuilding may be attended to City Engineer James A. O'Brien is anxious for a large planting of trees on the last Saturday of April, Arbor day. The board of control will supply trees free of charge to all residents who desire to plant, in order that the beauty of public highways as well as private property may be restored.

The streets of the city are still in a bad condition because of the fire; this is to be one of the features of the board of control's work the coming year.

NEW PARK COMMISSIONER

Civic League Council Suggest A Candidate

The new Civic League has a "council," similar to an executive committee in other organizations, and this council is very much interested in its work and holding conferences frequently. It is gratified at the success of the playground movement, but seizes every opportunity to strengthen it. At suggestion of members several organizations have already endorsed it.

At a meeting Monday evening, the council took steps to inaugurate a municipal cleaning day when the city should cooperate with individuals in a grand spring cleaning.

The council also voted to endorse Delcevare King as a candidate for Park Commissioner, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Dexter E. Wadsworth. It was voted to send a letter and also a committee to Mayor Shea.

Another meeting of the Civic League will be held early in May.

Arrangements were made to have some member of the council present the work of the Civic League at meetings of all other organizations, and as far as possible work to secure a large membership. This has already been done of late at meetings of the Merchants' Association, Men's clubs and other organizations.

MAKARIA FRATERNITY

Farce Enjoyed and Also an Electrical Wizard

One of the best and most varied programs ever presented by the Makaria class was set before an interested audience of more than one hundred and fifty at the Bethany chapel Monday evening. Due to the untiring efforts of M. Nicol and H. Eggleton, who managed the affair, it was one of the greatest successes both in a financial and social way, of any of the events the class has ever held.

That most popular of amateur plays, "A rank deception," which has already been presented before two church audiences this past winter, was the main attraction in the entertaining line, and there was a candy sale before and after the program. The evening's fun began at 7.30 and for an hour and a half a musical program and the two-act farce took up the attention of an appreciative and interested audience.

Another of the big features of the evening was some stunts performed by the electrical wizard of Germantown, George Thomas. His performance was a mystery and delighted everybody, and his wonderful control of the electric currents dazzled and mystified them all.

There were also piano duets by Miss Marion Nicoll and Miss Jennie Boutilier and a piano-violin duet by William Balfour and Miss Elizabeth Balfour.

The farce "A rank deception" was never better performed by the youthful players, Robert Mitchell and Miss Viola Hayden showing up especially strong in their parts.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Secretary Wilson has ruled that bleached flour is—bleached flour.

Roosevelt will hardly know Congress when he gets back, if that body keeps on reforming itself.

Speaker Cannon is the only man we know of who can be both down and out and right on the job at the same time.

One of the latest uses for concrete is to concrete the bottom of the "Frog Pond." It has been rather of a mud hole for some time.

Roosevelt admits that he missed the newspapers. And we violate no confidence in extending the assurance that the newspapers missed Roosevelt.

If Attorney General Wickersham had held all the corporation jobs attributed to him by his political enemies, he wouldn't be able to look a trust-buster in the face.

"Sunshine sermon" and why not, surely that is what people need in these days. The series of sunshine sermons to be preached by that well known Brockton pastor Rev. Alan Hudson should prove popular.

Boyish pranks often go beyond the joke limit as a Brockton judge was quick to discover when several boys were brought before him for stretching a rope one evening across a sidewalk over which a woman fell. Although the boys thought it sport at the time the judge's sentence of $15 each proved no joke.

Girl pupils in the Lynn Classical High school have solved the problem of a simple inexperience graduation. The plan is to have all girls in the graduating class wear a uniform dress at the exercises. The material will be inexpensive muslin and enough will be bought for all the dresses. No lace or trimming will be allowed. As all the girls are unanimous for the uniform it looks as though the closing days of school would not be marred by thoughts of dress.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The approach of Memorial Day has reopened the question of how the flag shall fly on the 30th of May. Army regulations put the flag at half staff from sunrise to noon, and then to the peak. President Harrison held that the flag should fly from the top of the staff all day. Authorities thus differing, the discussion is renewed year by year. The new State commander of the G. A. R. favors the Harrison plan, and so does the head of the Sons of Veterans. The man most mentioned as the commander-in chief of the G. A. R., follows the army regulations. The principal thing is to have the flags flying on that day. Those who believe it should be a day of mourning will stand for the half staff, while those who regard the memorial anniversary as a day of rejoicing over the victory attained by the men who are honored, will raise their flags to the peak. To those who love uniformity, some way of deciding the position is desirable, while those who like diversity in the expression of approval of the memorial sentiment will feel better to have the flag question decided by the owners of the emblem. And that is about the way the matter will be finally settled. —Lynn Item.

One member of the Massachusetts house of representatives, declaiming against the woman suffrage bill, declared that he was a bachelor for the reason that he had never found a woman who was his equal. To this rather surprising exhibition of self-satisfied and self-bestowed superiority could probably be opposed the conviction of more than one woman that this boastful representative of American manhood was most decidedly not her equal. Surely enough, there are women by the thousands who are more than his equal in tactfulness.—New Bedford Standard.

The fireworks manufacturers of New York say that Mayor Gaynor's edict regarding the use of fireworks in that city will "kill the trade." It seems to us that it is far better to kill the trade than to kill the children. And how about the property destroyed?—Waltham Free Press.

It is gratifying to observe the growth of a wholesome sentiment east of the Mississippi river in favor of adequately protecting the birds of the north in a section which hitherto has been almost guiltless of efforts to preserve one of the best friends of man. E. C. Cook, formerly a Maine farmer, but now the owner of vast tracts of timber lands in South America, has started a movement which promises to spread into every state and may result in the passage of laws which may be enforced for the protection of bird life. He has advanced a curious theory which is bound to attract attention and possibly will be given pretense among those interested in the supply of good fruit. "Twenty years ago," he said, "we had plenty of good apples and cherries. Today we have neither plenty of good apples nor plenty of cherries. Twenty years ago we had 30 times the number of birds we now have." The conclusion is obvious and it is surprising that the secretary of agriculture has not long ago taken up the bird question and seen its significance.—Haverhill Gazette.

The board of street commissioners of Fitchburg is so well satisfied with the results accomplished by the use of oil emulsion for laying dust on macadam streets last summer, that they are going to extend the service to other streets this year. The claim is made that they can save in team hire more than the cost of the oil for the oil emulsion does not require to be applied more than twice or three times a month, whereas water must be applied several times a day. The commissioners will experiment with oil on gravel streets also.

SMITH REUNION.

Members of the Smith family in Washington, Idaho, Utah, northern California, Oregon, Montana, Colorado, the Dakotas and the provinces of British Columbia and Alberta have been invited to the Smith Day celebration in Spokane on April 19, when John Smith and Mary Smith, both of this city, will be married in the state armory. Attendants, flower girls and the ring bearer have been chosen from the house of Smith, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Robert A. Smith, pastor of Bethel Presbyterian church. "Philadelphia Tom" Smith, 73 years of age, a scion of Delaware Indian stock, will lead the grand march over a broad path, strewn with spring blossoms and evergreen.

"We expect to have not less than 3,000 Smiths at the celebration and we will give them the time of their lives," said Tom Smith, who has been appointed master of ceremonies of the festive occasion. "As this is to be the first genuine Smith Day celebration in the Northwest, we hope to make a showing of forces, so that April 19 will go down in the annals as an epoch-making event.

"It is not unlikely there will be three or four other weddings among the Smiths on that day. W. P. Edris, postmaster of Spokane, whose forebears were Smiths, who has been named chairman of the general committee of the festival, advises me that it is likely the states of Montana, Idaho and Oregon will have candidates and we are also looking forward to an announcement from Canada.

"Some one with a liking for statistics has made a compilation showing more than 50,000 Smiths in the Northwest, including the Canadian provinces, and that of these not less than 2,000 are residents of Spokane. At that rate there should be about a million of them on the continent, or one for every 100 inhabitants."

TO URGE NATIONS TO SAVE BIRDS

Worldwide Conservation Movement Started by U. S.

OF VALUE TO CROPS AND HEALTH

Action to Restrain Poachers Who Supply the Great Millinery Markets Will Be Advocated at the International Ornithological Congress to Be Held at Berlin In May.

To urge the world powers to unite in checking the commercial butchery that is known to be exterminating rapidly the most valuable bird species from the face of the globe a conservation movement of international scope was organized recently in New York city.

At the fifth quinquennial convention of the international ornithological congress, which will be held in Berlin on May 30, an American representative from the National Association of Audubon Societies has been instructed to present for the consideration of the nations a plan for uniform protection against the army of poachers who scour the earth to supply its great millinery markets with the plumage of billions of the birds on whose natural activities the human race must depend for agricultural prosperity and sanitary safety.

To enlist Mexico in a tripartite agreement with the United States and Canada in the interest of the migratory birds of the North American continent a representative from the United States also is preparing to appear before the Mexican congress.

Campaign In All Lands.

Headed by the National Association of Fish and Game Commissioners, the North American Fish and Game Protective association and the American Ornithologists' union, as well as the National Association of Audubon Societies, this campaign of protest against the rapid destruction of the feathered resources of every land will be carried from the United States to all civilized nations.

Testimony from the foremost agricultural and hygienic scientists, showing the great part played by the insect eaters in checking crop pests and by the sea birds in averting pestilence, is now being prepared as proof of the immediate need of their international protection.

Until the authorities of every nation join to check the illegal raids of the scouts for the millinery markets who are scouring the earth each year, the ornithologists declare, no hope can be held out against quick and final extinction of the most useful bird species that inhabit every land.

Japanese Raid an Issue.

Details of the raid of Japanese poachers upon the bird reserves of the United States about Hawaii a short time ago have been received at New York and will be laid before the coming international conference with the growing demand for reciprocal bird protection among the nations.

Ten tons of the feathers of valuable Pacific-American species, with the skins and wings of more than 259,000 birds, have been found in the booty that the revenue cutter Thetis brought back with twenty-five subjects of Japan who had been landed on American soil to put in a year at killing and mutilating the tame flocks on these remote islands. While the value of these bloody trophies to the wholesale millinery market is estimated at $100,000, the bird life that the Japanese destroyed in taking them is calculated to be worth to the people of the United States at least $1,000,000.

"As long as billions of the most valuable birds of the earth may be destroyed in some countries and shipped to the millinery centers in others it will be impossible to prevent their ultimate extinction," said William Dutcher, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, at its headquarters in New York city. "For instance, the bird of paradise, one of the most striking and beautiful of nature's creations, is now on the verge of extinction. The sale of its plumage cannot be checked until the nations co-operate to this end.

"This trade in feathers is the chief cause of the world's alarming loss of its bird resources, which are essential to the health and prosperity of the human race everywhere. Migratory birds know no geographical lines, and we do not believe their existence should be menaced any longer by the lack of the uniform protective laws we propose to advocate to the world powers."

"HAD TASTE OF LIFE"

Minister's Wife Thereafter Found That Home Was Too Prosy

Pittsburg, April 12.—Rev. Dr. Arthur Bowers, pastor of the exclusive Protestant Episcopal church of Franklin, has applied for a divorce because his wife "cannot stand the dry, humdrum life of a minister's wife."

Dr. Bowers and his wife were married in 1885. They were happy until 1907, when the minister was forced to take a trip for his health, leaving Mrs. Bowers at home. Upon his return he found her manner toward him had changed. She informed him she had a "taste of life while he was away and she meant to keep going."

Dr. Bowers says he can't stand the pace and wants a divorce. The judge has failed to find sufficient grounds to grant the desired remedy, although Mrs. Bowers is not defending the suit.

COMPROMISE REFUSED

Trainmen on New York Central Adhere to Their Original Demands

New York, April 12.—A second offer by the New York Central and Hudson River railroad to increase the wages of conductors and trainmen was refused by the men at the meeting of their representatives held in New York last night.

The company will be so informed today and if an agreement is not reached them, the employes will adhere to their strike vote as recently taken, in which 97 percent of the men between this city and Buffalo decided on a strike unless their original demands for wage increase are granted.

An increase ranging from 8 to 64 percent is what the men are holding out for. The company offered a compromise of increases from 8 to 25 percent and it was upon this proposal that the strike vote was taken.

LAWYER EXPLAINS GLOVER "ROBBERY"

Was For Purpose of Securing Hattie Le Blanc's Belongings

Cambridge, Mass., April 12.—A big sensation was sprung in the Glover murder mystery when it was learned that the man who broke into the Glover house in Waltham two weeks ago, took from it the clothing and letters belonging to Hattie Le Blanc, was William White (Le Blanc), a brother of Mrs. Lillian M. Glover.

It also came out that District Attorney Higgins has demanded the articles, and that they are now held by Lawyer Elmore, awaiting a call for them by a representative of the district attorney's office.

The facts in the case were made public in a letter written by Elmore to Melvin M. Johnson, of counsel for Hattie Le Blanc, who brought a court action to get possession of Hattie Le Blanc's goods.

Elmore admitted that he had sent Mrs. Glover's brother to the Waltham residence to get the goods. He said that he gave the man a key, but that the key wouldn't work. Asked where Mrs. Glover is now he declined to tell.

Lodge's Cost of Living Probers to Have $65,000 to Work Withh

Washington, April 12.—Senator Lodge will be given $65,000 from the contingent fund of the senate with which to ascertain present prices and wages in various parts of the country in accordance with his resolution from the committee on wages and prices, to which the senate agreed without debate.

While the committee are knee-deep in statistics several years old, they have none showing what wages and food prices are today. The resolution contains no authority for the employment of outsiders, but the government is well supplied with specialists who can be put into the field.

COUPLE INSTANTLY KILLED

Train Crashes Into Automobile In Which They Were Riding

Hadley, Mass., April 12.—Thomas E. Gerry and his wife of this town were instantly killed when the automobile in which they were riding, with Gerry at the wheel, was struck by a passenger train at the Middle street grade crossing in this town and demolished.

The train hurled the auto into the air. When the machine crashed down at one side of the track it was a tangled mass of wreckage, with its occupants crushed beneath it.

Student Kills Himself

Boston, April 12.—Ernest A. Hanford, aged 20, a student, was found dead in bed at his home in this city by his mother. Beside him was a thirty-two calibre revolver, and with this he had shot himself in the right temple. It is thought that overstudy was the cause of his act.

Earthquake In California

San Diego, Cal., April 12.—A slight earthquake was felt here. The shock was of about ten seconds' duration. Two distinct shocks were also felt at San Bernardino, Cal. No damage was done.

CLUB TO GIVE OPERETTA.

The Music committee of the Quincy Women's club is to present Gilbert and Sullivan's old time favorite operetta, "H. M. S. Pinafore," at an early date in May. There is unusual musical talent in the club, and the cast, both principals and chorus, is composed of club members, thirty in number.

The chorus has held rehearsals since February under the efficient direction of Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and Mrs. John G. Worster. Last week the committee was most fortunate in securing the services, as coach of J. R. Pitman, late stage director of the old Boston Museum and the Castle Square theatre and the operetta, will be given under his personal supervision.

The object of the production is to provide funds, toward building the first sleeping shack of the new Tuberculosis Fresh Air camp of Quincy and the committee anticipate a large patronage.

GOOD FOR TWELVE KNOTS

Auxilary Yacht Aloha Made Good Showing Yesterday

The flagship Aloha which went out Monday morning for a steaming trial of eight hours did not return until this morning. The trial was very satisfactory, but rather than take the chance of returning to the shipyard at low water, as the yacht draws 18 feet, anchor was cast off the Quincy Yacht clubhouse at Houghs Neck.

For the trial the yacht was in charge of Capt. Ben Genzanson, with Capt. L. A. Spinney of the yacht Wakiva as pilot. On board were Commodore Curtis James of the New York Yacht club, the owner, Chester H. Crane, the designer and F. O. Wellington and R. L. Lovell representing the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.

The yacht was headed for Provincetown for the trial spin, and the conditions were favorable. The vessel is bark rigged, but she was propelled entirely by power and made 11 3-4 knots per hour for the entire run, the machinery having developed 475-horsepower. The boat was guaranteed 400-horsepower. Under forced draught the Aloha would easily make 12 knots per hour. There was no guarantee of speed in the contract with the builders.

The boat is not yet fully rigged, the sail plan having been made by others apart from the Fore River people. The finishing touches will be made in the next few days, and about April 20 the Aloha will go to New York where her sails will be tested.

Most of those who made the trial trip on Monday returned to the shipyard by tug, but Chief Engineer Page and Assistant Manager F. O. Wellington staid aboard the Aloha all night.

A HANDY BOOK.

Absent-minded persons who write a name and street address on a letter and put it in the mail without hint of the town, city or even State to which it is intended to go cost the postoffice department a lot of trouble and money each year. Many of the partially-addressed reached their destination with little delay, the deficiency being supplied by a mail clerk.

It looks like the cleverest kind of work when an envelope addressed to "Samuel Stratton, 405 Colyton street" goes straight to Mr. Stratton at his home in Los Angeles, but a peek behind the postal scenes shows that it is easy after all. The department has just issued a 900-page book in which are listed the street names in all of the 1200 or so cities and towns in which a carrier service is maintained. A glance in this volume shows that the only Colyton street known is in Los Angeles.

Another letter may be addressed to "John Jones, Woodward Ave., bet Grand River Ave. & State." More than 30 towns or cities have a Woodward avenue, but the only city in which all three of the streets are found is in Detroit, Mich. The book shows it and the letter goes on its way.

In the same way a letter addressed to St. Paul when the writer meant St. Louis eventually finds its way to the right address through the use of the index.

It is not so easy, however. The book fills out a deficiency only when the name of the street is unusual. A letter to "John Brown, 200 Main street" will end up in the dead letter office because of the 1200 cities listed about 900 boast of a Main street.

Chestnut street and High street are also common, there being 400 or more of each listed. There are more than 500 Washington streets. Union and High streets occur about 400 times, and Maple and Water are found in about 350 communities. There are 300 Broadways.

Thirty-seven cities have Roosevelt street, 21 bear Bryan's name, and eight Taft streets are found, although there is no proof that they were named after the Presidents and the candidate. Names of prominent Americans of former days occur frequently, but those of the present day are less frequent. Carnegie street is found in only three towns, and but two streets bear the name of Rockefeller.—New York Sun.

BUILDING PERMITS

Large Number of New Houses In the List

Business in the building line this spring is starting in brisk, judging from the number of permits issued by Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker. The total number of permits issued from January 1 to date is 198. The recent permits for new buildings are as follows:

Albert Nelson five dwelling houses on Clarendon street, Bigelow park.

F. Lula Deane, cottage on Hooper street.

Charles P. Nowe, cottage on Winthrop street.

John Splaine, cottage on Brighton street.

PASTOR RYDSTROM RETURNED.

At the request of the St. Paul's Swedish M. E. church, and the conference, Bishop Thomas B. Neely, D. D., L. L. D., has returned Rev. Carl E. Rydstrom as pastor for another year. Pastor Rydstrom tells the Daily Ledger he was very glad to come back to continue his work among his countrymen in this city. He will preach on Sunday at the regular services at 10.30 A. M. and 7.30 P. M., and extends a general invitation to all.

EVENT OF THE SEASON.

The West End club will hold their fourth annual Poverty Ball in St. Mary's hall Friday evening, April 22, 1910. There will be ten dollars in prizes given to those wearing the most appropriate costumes. President Hobbs has been asked to select members of the Council to act as judges. Charles McCue who will be a candidate for representative from the 6th district next fall will lead the grand march.

Butcher—"Yes, madam."

TWO MORE POLICEMEN

All Wards of City Will Have a Day Officer

The order calling for two additional men for the permanent police force, passed at the last meeting of the City Council, has been approved by the Mayor and has been advertised so that it has now become a law. The two additional men were recommended by the Mayor in his inaugural address. It is the intention of Chief Burrell when the new men are appointed to detail a day man for Wollaston and one for South Quincy. Wollaston is practically the only section of the city that did not have a day patrolman, and there has long been a demand on the part of the citizens for such an officer. It is pointed out that Wollaston is largely a residential section and that during the day time there are but few men about, as a majority of the male portion of the inhabitants are employed in Boston. The ladies therefore will have more of a feeling of security knowing that a uniformed officer is on duty.

At South Quincy, the officer from West Quincy covers a section of the ward at the present time, but his beat is so long that he can be in that section but little during the day. This is a business section and there is fully as much need of a day officer as in the Wollaston ward.

The two new men who are appointed will not be the ones assigned to the two new day beats for to be given a day route is a promotion. The four men longest in service from whom the new day men will be picked are Officers Crooker, Donovan, Curtin and Broberg. The selection will be made from their standing as to percent at the time of their appointment.

STREET SPRINKLING

City Will Expend $1000 More This Year

The order for street watering offered at the last meeting of the City Council by Councilman Moir calls for $8,000, one-half of which is to be assessed on abutters on streets which are watered or oiled, the order providing that either may be done. This amount was appropriated in the annual appropriation order, and is $1,000 larger than last year.

Although the sum is larger, it does not mean that more streets are to be watered, but that the commissioner will use more oil than last year, and by doing this the Commissioner hopes to do away with the watering car. Streets that are to be watered will be taken care of by carts.

Oil seems to be the coming method of laying the dust, and while on the first application there is some odor, there is less mud. Washington street in particular has always been a bad street in summer time, for it has either been very dusty or very muddy, so that it has been disagreeable all of the time. This year the abutters petitioned to have the street oiled, and this will probably be done. The schedule of streets called for in the order is practically the same as last year. Some streets objected to by abutters have been cut out, and new ones have taken their place. Among the new streets are Sumner street, which was rebuilt last year, and Brooks avenue from Centre street to Liberty street, also that part of Whitwell street between Granite street and Deldorf street.

HONOR FOR AN INDIAN HEROINE

Monument In Memory of Sakajawea Will Be Erected.

LEWIS AND CLARK'S GUIDE.

Design by Leonard Crunelle Is of Heroic Size—Bronze Statue Will Rest on a Granite Pedestal and Face Missouri River—Funds Raised by Clubwomen and School Children.

The women of North Dakota are about to erect a monument in front of the capitol building at Bismarck in honor of Sakajawea (bird woman), the Shoshone guide of Lewis and Clark across the Rocky mountains in 1804. There is already a beautiful statue of this heroine in the park at Portland, Ore., made by a Chicago woman artist with funds raised through the efforts of Mrs. Eva Emery Dye and others at the time of the Portland exposition, but Sakajawea is entitled to all the honors that can be paid her.

The new statue for Bismarck was designed by Leonard Crunelle, and the clay model, which is in Chicago, is of heroic size, nine feet tall, and depicts an Indian woman muffled in a blanket, with a papoose upon her back, and her right arm extended as if pointing out the way. Mr. Crunelle visited the Indian reservation at Elbow Woods, N. D., two years ago to study and sketch Indian figures and costumes and has had the advice of Spotted Weasel and James Holding Eagle, who have visited Chicago to inspect and criticise the statue. The bronze will be cast next June or July and will be then shipped to its destination. The legislature of North Dakota has appropriated money for a granite pedestal, which will be placed about half a mile from the Missouri river so that the figure will face that stream. It is expected that the statue will be in place ready for unveiling in October.

Reasons For Erecting the Statue.

The money to pay for the statue was raised by the Federation of Women's Clubs in North Dakota and by the school children of that state. The reasons why the women and children should erect a statue to Sakajawea are given in laconic terms in a little circular published by the women's federation:

First.—Sakajawea was the first North Dakotan whose name was enrolled on the pages of history.

Second.—It is proper that we mark historic spots in our young and rising commonwealth.

Third.—Sakajawea was the only woman to accompany the Lewis and Clark expedition.

Fourth.—She was their guide and interpreter.

Fifth.—She protected them when threatened by hostile Indians.

Sixth.—She procured for them food and horses when they were destitute of both.

Tenth.—She welcomed with intelligent appreciation the civilization of the white race and was the first Indian west of the Missouri river known to embrace Christianity.

Eleventh.—She was the first pioneer mother to cross the Rocky mountains and carry her baby into the Oregon country.

Claimed by North Dakota.

The women of North Dakota have good historical ground for claiming Sakajawea as a fellow citizen, because, although she was a Shoshone by birth and that tribe lived farther west in the mountains of Wyoming, she was captured by the Gros Ventre Indians of North Dakota when she was eleven years old, was brought up by them, wore their costume and the name they bestowed upon her—Tsaka-ka-wi-ash, which means "bird woman." The name is often spelled Saka-ka (bird) Wia-a (woman). After the return of Lewis and Clark to the east she went to her own tribe, whose headquarters were near the present City of Lander, Wyo., and there lived until her death in 1884 at the supposed age of 125 years. She is buried in the Episcopal cemetery near the agency. Several of her descendents are now living on the Shoshone reservation, and her son, known as "Old Brazil," has been quite prominent in tribal affairs.—William E. Curtis in Chicago Record-Herald.

Pet Gander a Life Saver.

After acting as "nurse" to the children of Abner Stilton of Montville, N. J., for ten years Pete, a gander, became a martyr the other day. Agnes, two years old, was in the way of an auto, and while Pete pushed her out of harm's way the car killed him.

Easter Layout and Outlay.

Let's analyze an Easter bonnet
To ascertain just what's upon it
And reckon up the real cost
When it's embellished and embossed.

One frame of wire all bent askew,	$0.50
Two yards of silk of rainbow hue,	2.00
Two plumes that like a fan expand,	4.00
A bunch of posies made by hand,	50
An oblong buckle, big and bright,	25
Three pins to hold the hat on tight,	75
The total cost to build that bonnet,	$8.00

But when it in the shop appears,
With label "Made In Paris," here's
The price the milliner puts on it: $50.00

REGULARS HOLD SENATE

How They Lined Up In Test Vote on Taft's Railroad Measure

Washington, April 12.—The regulars under Senator Aldrich won on the first test vote on the railroad bill, 40 to 25. The question was on the adoption of amendment of Senator Clapp, an insurgent, intended to restrict the jurisdiction of the proposed court of commerce.

Republicans voting for the amendment were Beveridge, Borah, Bourne, Bristow, Clapp, Crawford, Cummins, Dolliver and Nelson. Near insurgents voting with the regulars against the amendment were Brown, Burkett and Gamble. Democrats voting with the regulars were Foster, Johnson, Money, Percy, Simmons and Tayler.

The amendment was not a vital one, but the vote about reflects the permanent line-up which is roughly that upon the tariff bill. By this action the passage of the bill in the form approved by President Taft is foreshadowed.

CLOSE TO ELECTROCUTION

Over Two Thousand Volts Pass Through a Man, but He Recovers

Newton, Mass., April 12.—Daniel Kensela, an electrician, who was doing repair work on a large illuminating sign outside a drug store, hung for three minutes, with his arms wrapped around an iron rod, while the electric current, estimated at 2200 volts, passed through his body.

Arthur Hudson, a druggist, heard the shouts of the crowd and, running to the basement of the store, threw the switch which shut off the current.

Someone went up the ladder on which Kensela was working and caught him just as the current was shut off. The electrician was taken into the pharmacy and to the astonishment of everyone soon recovered.

TAWNEY HAS A HARD FIGHT ON HIS HANDS

Democratic Opponent Will Make Tariff the Chief Issue

St. Paul, April 12.—James A. Tawney, chairman of the appropriations committee of the house of representatives, faces his most difficult political campaign in the First congressional district of Minnesota. He was the only Minnesota congressman who did not turn insurgent when the tariff bill was pending, and it was in the hope of "saving his face" at home that President Taft journeyed to Winona, Tawney's home town, and spoke in his behalf.

The contest in Tawney's district, which already has begun, centres about the tariff. The congressman's Democratic opponent is Judge Henry L. Buck, who lives in Tawney's home town, Winona. Buck declares that the campaign will be waged on the Democratic side on "the broad platform of honest, downward revision of the tariff." He says that the tariff schedules have become complicated with so many jokers that they should be simplified. This view apparently coincides with the general Minnesota view.

RUSSELL CASE ENDS

"Dakota Dan's" Friends Think Decision Will Be In His Favor

Cambridge, Mass., April 12.—The famous Russell will case came to an end yesterday afternoon. It was the longest will fight in the history of the courts of the world, and when Judge Lawton calmly remarked that he would announce his decision as to whether Daniel B. Russell of North Dakota is the rightful claimant to half the disputed fortune today in open court, there was a hubbub of surprised excitement.

While none of the lawyers in the contest would presume to forecast Lawton's conclusion as to the issues, it was plain to see that the adherents of "Dakota Dan" were buoyant with hope. Many of the first claimant's friends declared openly that they believed that Lawton had already made up his mind that the man from the northwest is the brother of William C. Russell.

Boston Police Fear That Tong Battle May Occur In Chinatown

Boston, April 12.—To prevent any possibility of an uprising among the tongs in view of the bitter feuds in New York and Philadelphia between the members of the Four Brothers company and the On Leong tong, Chinatown is now guarded by a strong force of plain clothes men, while the South station is being closely watched to prevent entrance of strange Chinamen here.

The five killings in New York and Philadelphia are the uppermost topics of discussion in the Chinese colony, and the fear and unrest among some of the merchants resulted in an appeal for additional police protection in the district.

Hyde Is Being Tried For the Killing of Colonel Swope

OTHER CHARGES AGAINST HIM

Accused Man Alleged to Have Caused Death of Aged Millionaire, With Object of Obtaining Wealth, by Administering Strychnine In a Capsule While He Was Attending Him In Official Capacity

Kansas City, April 12.—Thirteen men were accepted Monday in the criminal court to be of the forty-seven men from whom the trial jury will be finally selected to try the case of Dr. B. C. Hyde, charged with the murder of Colonel Thomas S. Swope by the alleged administration of strychnine on Oct. 3 of last year.

The thirteen were chosen from three squads of twelve men each, after an arduous afternoon's work by attorneys and Judge Latshaw. It is probable that it will be Thursday before the trial jury is selected.

Judge Latshaw last night remanded more than fifty veniremen who have not been examined to the custody of the county marshal, and instructed them not to discuss the case or read newspaper articles relating to it.

Colonel Swope died Oct. 3 last. The death certificate indicated apoplexy. Dr. Hyde was in attendance.

The state charges that the physician poisoned the millionaire by administering strychnine to him in a capsule. The motive, says the state, was to obtain wealth.

By the terms of Swope's will Mrs. Hyde was to receive a share of her uncle's property. Desiring to hasten the settlement of the estate, and also to prevent certain changes which the colonel had planned from being made in the will, Hyde, the state will attempt to prove, killed the aged capitalist.

The indictment upon which Hyde is being tried is for first degree murder. It was voted against him on March 5. At the same time ten other indictments were returned against the physician. One charges first degree murder of Chrisman Swope, a nephew of Colonel Swope, by administering poison to him. An indictment for manslaughter was voted, accusing Hyde of negligently killing James Hunton, a cousin of Colonel Swope, by bleeding him.

The remaining indictments charge the physician with attempting to poison Misses Lucy Lee Swope, Mildred Fox, Sarah Swope, Georgia Compton, Nora Bell Dickson, Stella Swope, Margaret Swope and Leonora Copridge. All of these people were attacked by typhoid fever when it was prevalent in the Swope home and it is averred Hyde caused their illness by inoculating them with typhoid germs.

No indictment but the one relating to the death of Colonel Swope enters into the case now on trial.

UNCLE JOE'S AUTO STARTS NEW FIGHT

Speaker Says He Will Keep His Job Until Next March

Washington, April 12.—Refusal by the house to give Speaker Cannon $2500 a year for the maintenance of the automobile given him at the last session brought from the speaker the declaration that he would remain speaker of the house until the fourth of March next unless the insurgents had the courage to join the Democrats and depose him.

Conference report on the legislative, judicial and executive appropriation bill carried $2500 for the maintenance of the speaker's automobile, and by a vote of 111 to 132 the house refused to accept it. After this action had been taken and Representatives Mann and Clark had made political speeches, Cannon left the chair and took the floor to make a speech.

"I want to notify you," he said, "that during this and the next session, unless the Republicans on this side who do not approve of me personally as speaker have the courage to join the minority, I will remain as speaker until March 4. I do not ask to have, never asked for, an appropriation for transportation, but if you vote it I will use it. If you see proper not to do so from the standpoint of economy or personal dislike I care not."

TEMPERANCE TOWN BOOZE

Believed to Have Been Responsible For Several Deaths

Westerly, R. I., April 12.—The deaths of nearly a dozen persons in Westerly, Ashaway, Stonington and vicinity, who had been poisoned by wood alcohol contained in a mixture labeled "whisky," have stirred the authorities of Rhode Island and Connecticut.

The concoction is said to have come from a Westerly drug store. Westerly is a temperance town.

Thus far eleven persons in two states have died suddenly within the past week and it is known that at least nine had partaken of the poisoning potion.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Quincy People Know How to Save It.

Many Quincy people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Quincy citizen's recommendation.

Nicholas Albanese, 16 Gilmore street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I was annoyed by attacks of backache for some time, often while at work sharp, shooting pains darted through my loins, causing me great misery. I also had dizzy spells and my sight seemed to be affected. I tried many remedies, but did not receive relief and as a last resort, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and in a short time after using them, I was helped. I have no hesitation in giving Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for my cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

WASHINGTON IS WONDERING

Over Sudden Divergence of Opinions In Notable Speeches

SIGNALS WERE PERHAPS MIXED

Joint Rap at Insurgents Said to Have Been Planned by Taft and Wickersham, but President Is Believed to Have Been Seized With Fear at Last Moment That Intended Language Was Too Drastic

Washington, April 12.—"Did President Taft lose his nerve at the last moment, or did Mr. Wickersham make a mistake in the signals?" is the question prominent statesmen are asking each other in Washington because of the exactly opposite opinions expressed by the president and the attorney general in their speeches on Saturday night, respectively in Washington and Chicago.

Before Wickersham departed for the west, where he appeared at a great banquet of the Hamilton club, he was closeted with Mr. Taft several times, during which they were both supposed to be framing a startling answer to the administration's detractors and, according to rumor, the plan was to set off the "bombs" simultaneously here and in the west.

But now it is said that after Wickersham had departed the president was seized with fear that perhaps his speech, as planned, was too drastic a denunciation of the "insurgents," so that at the last moment he switched in his attitude and, instead of coming out like Wickersham and demanding that they be "fired" from Republican councils, he declared that there was no intention whatever of "reading any one out of the party."

It is being strongly hinted that some of the cooler heads among the regulars in congress got the president's ear at the last minute and persuaded him to deal more easily with the insurgents than he may have intended.

Be that as it may, the president, though he spoke with great earnestness, said nothing that even hurt the tenderest insurgent's feelings. They are all praising it. On the other hand, Wickersham rubbed them the wrong way from start to finish.

Senator Cummins of Iowa, who opposed the Payne-Aldrich tariff and refuses to recognize the "regular" leaders of the party, said:

"Mr. Wickersham may have made many mistakes in his life—he probably has—but he never made a greater one than his Saturday night's performance. The blunder was a natural one, however, for until he took position as a cabinet officer he had litttle to do with the Republican party and was ignorant of its make-up, its spirit or its purpose. He never fought its battles, sat in its councils or defended its doctrines. With this meagre acquaintance with the party, it is not to be wondered that he looks upon the cabinet table as the whole thing."

A Democratic view of the two speeches was given by Representative Cox of Ohio, who said:

"Both speeches show that there is an appreciation in high station of what will happen at the coming election. No sign is more certain of this very situation than the present disposition on the part of the administration to cast the blame on what the president designates as the insurgent forces, while the attorney general, with less diplomacy, brands them traitors.

The whole situation is anomalous in this respect—in political disasters the blame ordinarily is placed and the recriminations are made after the smash. In the present instance things are just reversed."

A REMARKABLE SUICIDE

Man Drops More Than a Hundred Feet Down a Smokestack

Ansonia, Conn., April 12.—In the discovery of the body of Frederick H. Smith under a pile of soot in the bottom of the 102-foot smokestack of a local shop, the authorities believe is revealed probably a most remarkable suicide.

Both legs were broken and the police express the belief that Smith climbed to the top of the stack and jumped down it.

Smith was last seen alive during the week following last Christmas, when he appeared at the boiler room of the shop and asked to be allowed to warm himself by the fire.

Providence, April 12.—Dr. Thomas C. Clarkson, a Pawtucket physician, was arraigned in court following the sudden death of Miss Maud J. Brazo of this city. Clarkson pleaded not guilty to the charge of performing an illegal operation. He was held in default of $5000 bail for a hearing.

Comet a Sleep-Producer

Evansville, Ind., April 12.—Scores of people in this community complain that they are unable to get enough sleep; in fact, in several instances, people sleep for fifteen or twenty-four hours and then are still sleepy. They attribute this inclination to sleep to Halley's comet.

THOMAS F. WALSH, THE MINING KING.

Life Story of the Man Who Took Many Millions Out of a Rocky Mountain Peak In Colorado

How He Became a King's Side Partner—Features of His Lavish Entertainments In Europe

By WALTON WILLIAMS.

THOMAS F. WALSH, the multimillionaire mine owner and mining engineer of Colorado, who recently returned to his home in Washington from San Antonio, Tex., where he went for his health, became interested in mining schemes soon after his emigration to the United States and amassed a fortune with his own hands which has been estimated at from $10,000,000 to $50,000,000.

The story of Mr. Walsh's life is another of those "Arabian Nights" tales which is on record and true. He was born in Tipperary county, Ireland, was educated in the public schools, reached Worcester, Mass., as a millwright at the age of nineteen, tried his hand at sewer contracts and made money, went to the Black Hills after Custer's gold report in 1873, made $100,000 there and hastened to Leadville when the discovery of carbonate silver created a panic of joy through the west.

While at Deadwood and other places in the Black Hills, Mr. Walsh began the practice of grubstaking miners, which led to his fortune. When a prospector ran out of provisions he gave him the necessary supplies, taking a share of the mines for his pay. In this way he was almost sure to find himself part owner of now and then a valuable property at the end of the season.

Reaching Leadville with considerable ready money, he opened the Grand Central hotel. It proved a bonanza and enabled him to get control of good mines. In a few years he was rich and happy. He had invested in important properties and become an authority on mining and particularly on the new ores being discovered from time to time.

THOMAS F. WALSH, MRS. EDWARD B. M'LEAN, HIS DAUGHTER, AND THE $100,000,000 BABY HEIR.

Master Stroke of His Ventures.

Then came his master stroke in mining ventures. Going outside the Leadville district to the lofty mountain region of San Juan, where the canyons are stupendous, the peaks of Alpine proportions and avalanches working havoc with mines every year, he made the town of Ouray, nestling in the heart of the Rockies, his headquarters for the San Juan district.

Seeing some ores from mines at an altitude of 12,000 feet, he was greatly impressed with their richness. Experts warned him that practical mining could not be done on the mountain tops; that already fortunes had been squandered on similar projects, and, besides, avalanches, or snowslides, as they are called there, would eventually sweep away houses and machinery and fill up shafts and mines.

So much snow was then massed over the old mines that it was a year or two in melting. Finally he got into the mines and was shown where the richest samples came from, but he insisted on looking around for himself, and in a discarded portion of a mine he saw on the neighboring wall evidences of rich ore which the experts declared worthless. He was struck with its peculiar appearance—dark spots and markings on white rock.

Selecting samples, he had them assayed and found a bonanza in prospect. He bought adjoining properties and kept his men busy prospecting and buying until he had a large mining territory absolutely his own.

For years it had been his ambition to be the only owner of a group of mines. Now he was master of the situation. He ordered expensive machinery on a large scale, erected smelters for reducing ores and proceeded systematically to develop his mines. Such was the beginning of Camp Bird mine, which paid Mr. Walsh $1,000,000 a year in profits for many years and was sold some years ago to an English syndicate for nearly $10,000,000.

After Wealth Came Fame.

Mr. Walsh became a famous man of the world in this way: He was appointed commissioner from Colorado to the Paris exposition in 1899. There he began a series of entertainments that were the talk of Europe. He chartered a steamboat on the river Seine, turned it into a floating palace and gave a $40,000 dinner with distinguished men as his guests. His wines could not be surpassed. The music was furnished by artists from the grand opera. After this extraordinary feast, at which Americans were entertained in a manner unheard of, Mr. Walsh, with his family and friends, chartered a train of five palace cars, luxuriously fitted up with the silks and decorations used on the steamer for the banquet, and began a tour of France and Belgium.

The late King Leopold of Belgium met Mr. Walsh at Ostend, and they had a grand dinner at the Hotel Ritz, at which the czar's band played and the great singers of Paris were heard. In the course of this entertainment the conversation turned to finance. The king said he was making only about 3 per cent on his investments. Mr Walsh in an easy, graceful manner said he was always sure of 10 per cent on his investments. From 100 to 200 per cent was more accurate. He probably did not want to paralyze the king at one sitting and so put his profits at 10 per cent.

King Leopold was the generous monarch who encouraged Stanley to extend his discoveries on the Kongo. The result was a lot of Belgium colonies and investments in that country, the king having much at stake. It was his mines down there that he was anxious to have Mr. Walsh investigate and develop in good American style. While Mr. Walsh did not go there himself, he entered into a business arrangement with the king and sent trusted experts to "size up" the mines and their value. So it was that a European monarch became a side partner of the Colorado millionaire.

It may interest men who work to hear that before he began entertaining royalty Mr. Walsh was an appreciative and generous employer. He built a big hotel for his miners and superintendents, gave them luxury with first class meals, good sleeping rooms with porcelain lined baths and everything up to date as you would find it in a hotel and not a mining camp. It was all a gift, so to speak, to the miners, costing them no more than at a mining camp boarding house, where the pies kill at forty rods and the prunes and coffee would strangle a dog.

His Generosity to a Waiter.

In 1900 Mr. Walsh earned some fame in the east by making a traveling companion of a waiter in the cafe of the Fifth Avenue hotel, in New York city. Mr. Walsh always stopped there and always sat at a certain table. The waiter pleased him, and one day he told the humble servant to throw off his apron and dickey and go with him to Europe. The waiter obeyed with bewildering alacrity, and for several weeks he and the wealthy Mr. Walsh traveled about Europe, seeing everything and having the best.

Mrs. Edward B. McLean, Mr. Walsh's daughter, who was with her father in San Antonio, is the mother of the baby who has been called "the $100,000,000 baby," as he is the heir to the fortunes of two very wealthy grandfathers—Thomas F. Walsh and John R. McLean.

Decision of Supreme Court In Oil and Tobacco Cases

GOVERNMENT IS DISAPPOINTED

Uncertainty as to Lawful Organization and Methods of Big Corporations Is Prolonged—Inferred That Serious Division Existed In Court—Standard Company Prosecuted as Monopoly, While Tobacco Was Not

Washington, April 12.—The decision of the United States supreme court to order a rehearing in the suits brought under the Sherman anti-trust law against the American Tobacco and Standard Oil companies postpones for many months the program of prosecution which President Taft had mapped out against other offenders, provided the decision favored the government. This means that the president will probably nominate at once a man to fill the place of the late Justice Brown.

The decision of the court in these two cases—the most important to come before that tribunal in many years, is a keen disappointment to the government. A victory in both cases had been expected by the attorney general and his assistants.

No date at which the cases can be reheard can be suggested at present. The department of justice is as much surprised by the order of the court as any other party in interest. None of the counsel in the suits appear to be in town. Attorney General Wickersham stated that the procedure would be to consult with counsel and agree upon a date for a rehearing and then apply to the court to fix date. The present term will close May 31, hence if arrangements are not made quickly the cases may go over to the fall term, which opens at the pleasure of the court usually in October.

The decision in the tobacco case is awaited with the greatest interest by the industrial world, as the most important point involved therein is the legality of trade agreements. Without these, most corporation lawyers agree, modern business cannot be conducted successfully, owing to the destructive character of modern competition in the absence, for example, of agreements not to sell below cost. In the tobacco case it is not alleged that prices were excessive or the organization a monopoly. The Standard Oil company, on the other hand, is being prosecuted as a monopoly pure and simple.

The postponement of the cases inevitably will operate to prolong the uncertainty as to the lawful organization and methods of many of the greatest corporations doing business in the country.

An inference from the action of the court is that a serious division, under the circumstances, was found to exist when the court reached the cases in secret session. That is to say, it is fair to infer that had a vote been taken and five members been found to agree upon a decision one way or the other a rehearing would have been unnecessary, as five would constitute a majority of the full court.

The laconic announcement of Chief Justice Fuller gave no basis for speculation, however. The general opinion around the court is that the arguments will not take place until Justice Brewer's successor is appointed. If his successor is appointed soon the new arguments may be heard at this term of the court.

GUILD FOR SENATOR

Former Governor Could Beat Lodge, According to Democratic Prophet

Boston, April 12.—"If Curtis Guild announces himself as a candidate for the United States senate against Senator Lodge, the Republicans will flock to him quicker than they flocked to Eugene N. Foss in the Fourteenth district congressional contest."

This statement was made by George Fred Williams in discussing the political situation in the state. It was the first time that the Democratic leader has broken his silence of months on the political situation, and it is regarded as significant that he should launch the boom for ex-Governor Guild for United States senator.

FIRE AT BAKER BASIN

Conflagration Threatened for a Few Minutes

The alarm from Box 273 at 10.18 this morning was for a fire in a large kettle of tar at the Baker Yacht Basin. The kettle was in the yard near a dry wooden building and when it took fire it sent a sheet of flame twenty-five feet in the air threatening to set fire to the building. For this reason the alarm was sent in. A chemical stream from Hose 4 put the fire out of business.

$80,000 FOR COURT HOUSE

Representative Thomas Secures Favorable Report

The Committee of the Legislature reported a bill on Monday appropriating $80,000 for a Norfolk County courthouse at Quincy.

REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS.

The report was made on the petition of the Quincy Board of Trade which was presented by Representative W. R. Thomas who has actively interested in securing a favorable report. For a long time it hung in the balance, and diffrent sums were suggested. It is thought the sum will be sufficient to erect a commodious building to house the District court and Probate court.

A Courtier In Blue Flannel.

A fine yacht lay at anchor awaiting a favorable breeze for her mission of pleasure. The crew idled about the deck, and a happy group of guests was aft conversing pleasantly. In the group was a handsome mother. Her romping boy of five years broke from her hand, clambered to the rail, rolled over it and was whirled down the tide. The mother's shrieks roused a dozing, lounging sailor, who at once comprehended the situation and plunged after the child. Others promptly manned a boat and soon overhauled the sailor, who was now swimming with the little fellow in his grasp. As soon as they returned to the yacht's deck the mother, with streaming eyes, threw her arms around the neck of the dripping rescuer and fervently exclaimed: "Oh, oh, sir, how, how can I ever repay you? Name your own reward for giving back my son and saving me from a broken heart!"

Then she pressed a half score of kisses on the tar's weather bronzed cheeks.

"Lady," answered he as she released him, "let the youngster go overboard again!"

The Test of a Wedding Ceremony.

A certain young pastor was planning with a young couple the steps in a marriage ceremony when the bride suddenly remarked, "Don't you make me promise to obey him."

"You ought to have some head to your family," replied the minister.

Then, turning to the groom, he asked, "Will you promise to obey her?"

"Not much, I won't!"

"What then? Do you expect me to tie you two together and leave you to fight it out afterward?"

"Isn't that the way they generally do?"

After a moment's thought the clergyman answered: "I will tell you what I will do. I will use the same ceremony that was used at my wedding. Neither party promises to obey the other in that, and it has worked well in our case."

"I don't know," said the young man, doubtfully gazing at the top of the minister's head, already becoming bald. "If it is going to work on my head as it has on yours I don't believe that I want to try it."

The Woman In Russia.

"Love your wife like your soul and beat her like your carpet." This is a Russian proverb. Another of the same spirit, "Not long hurt the bumps from a loved one's thumps." Wives have undoubtedly been subjected to much ill treatment in Russia, where most husbands have always held to the opinion that "liberty spoils a good wife." Some Russian proverbs are cynical as to the delights of matrimony, and most married men know how to say, "Wed once, wail always."

Wollaston is to be congratulated upon numbering among its prominent citizens Arthur S. Kendall musical composer. Mr. Kendall devotes his time to composition. The Glee club are to sing one of his charming songs at their concert Wednesday evening.

SENTENCED FOR TWO YEARS

James H. Bowlen Found Guilty Of Assault

In the superior court at Dedham on Monday, James H. Bowlin, aged 43 years, a teamster residing at 1 Bryant street, was sentenced to two years in the house of correction, having been found guilty of an assault with a dangerous weapon on Charles J. Brooks, aged 59 years, also a teamster residing at the same place. The assault took place Sunday, Feb. 27. On the day in question, the two men with Thomas Carroll were in the basement of the house drinking. A dispute arose, during which Bowlin lost his temper and seized a short handled stone mason's hammer and struck Brooks a savage blow which felled him. While down, it was alleged that Bowlin kicked the prostrate man in a savage manner. Carroll, thinking Brooks had been killed, notified the police. It was found that besides a bad cut on the back of his head that Brooks' shoulder had been dislocated. Fortunately Brooks had a tough skull and was able to appear in court the next morning to tell the events that led up to the assault. He suffered no ill effects from the blow on the head and he has recovered from his dislocated shoulder.

The first complaint against Bowlin was for assault with intent to kill, but this was changed to assault with a dangerous weapon upon which he was sentenced.

PICKPOCKETS GUILTY

Clever Work of Officers Mc Kay and Larkin Recalled

Edward Howard and James Grant, the two pickpockets arrested by Inspector McKay and Officer Larkin on the day of the launching of the yacht Aloha, pleaded guilty Monday in the Superior court. They have not been sentenced as yet.

TODAY'S COURT.

Craward E. Fisher of Boston was fined $15 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

FOR A SANER FOURTH.

In the Massachusetts senate Monday the committee on mercantile affairs reported a bill to make it unlawful for any person to sell or keep for sale any blank cartridge, toy pistol, toy gun or toy cannon that can be used to explode a blank cartridge, or to fire any firecracker exceeding two inches in length; fireworks between 7 P. M. and 12 midnight are exempted.

A Luckless Word.

Superstition dies hard, at least in the north of England. On Tyneside it is reckoned highly unlucky to hear or mention the word "pig," and evil consequences can only be averted by touching cold iron. If that material is not at hand its name must be uttered aloud as the next best thing.

It is no uncommon thing to see a group of sailors or workmen suddenly scatter to lay hold of iron railings, lampposts, etc., when by chance "pig" has slipped into their conversation.

A stranger to the district was not long ago puzzled to see four little shoeblacks, squatted at a game of cards on their blacking box, suddenly scramble to their feet, run to some iron posts several yards away, touch them and then return and resume their game quite unconcernedly. When he obtained an explanation his amusement equaled his astonishment. The origin of the superstition seems to be unknown.—London Scraps.

Motor Anaesthesia.

Novice—It must be a dreadful sensation to run over a man! Chauffeur—Not nearly so dreadful as to run over a cow, and it doesn't injure the machine so much.—Judge.

A Hard Jolt.

The Granite City baseball league held a meeting last evening and adopted a set of by-laws for the league season. The league also elected Peter M. Sullivan, T. J. Collins and Frank E. The last named is no other than the author of this column, and I am indeed pleased to be able to help such a movement, and also to know that they have confidence enough in me to elect me to such a responsible position.

I understand Guinan and Lyons of Norfolk Downs are satisfied that Kiley and Smith of Weymouth are in a class by themselves when it comes to bowling on alleys in this section. By the way, Guinan and Kiley have got to split the highest single string prize offered by the Old Colony league, for each have a string of 117 to their credit.

With the advent of the baseball season and the many closely contested games we are expecting to view, I find a great many in our midst who recall the old timers and some fiercely fought games of the past. The Actives once were very much in the lime-light, and they were followed by the Quincy Brown Stocking. This team was rated with the best that ever trotted onto a field, once practically owned this city. I find upon inquiry there are a few residents who were members of this fast team. They are George Clapp, Webster Newcomb, City Treasurer Curtis, Frank Hobart, Chief of Police Burrell and Henry Emerson. The players who have dropped out of sight are Goodridge the star first basemen, Morris Bresnahan who went to Louisville to play, Edward Fennell, "Bill" Rudderham and a few faces who have passed to the higher life.

This team would frequently clash with the Pioneers of West Quincy and if you want to hear anything about these warm arguments simply stir up an old timer. If he can't make you believe the games then were as fast as we see today I'll miss my guess.

PI ETA SOCIETY MAKE A GREAT HIT

Quincy's 400 Attend Production of Comedy "Inbad in Trinidad"

"Lovely Girls" Seen In Songs and Dances.

A large and enthusiastic audience greeted the artists of the Pi Eta Society of Harvard University at Quincy Music hall on Tuesday evening, and enjoyed the production of the musical comedy, "Inbad in Trinidad" which was staged in grand style. The cast of characters was taken entirely by men, but five of the twelve impersonated women. N. F. Coburn, '11, as Majorie McGovern, the consul's daughter, was unquestionably the most realistic and unconcerned. H. R. Morse, '12, as Tina, the cigarette girl, and P. C. Squire, '11, as Senorita Pepita, were well got up for their characters. R. P. Morse '11 and J. G. B. Perkins '11 as the twins, Jane and Jean, added much to the amusement of the audience. G. S. Squibb, '11, as Inbad was the most clever actor of the bunch, his facial expressions and poses being original. All the others were well impersonated: L. H. Baker, '11, as the Senor; T. L. Small '10, as the General; P. W. Dunbar, '12, as the Consul; H. N. Curtis '11, as Reporter; and H. F. Boynton '11 as Drummer.

Great hits were also made by the eight men who composed the pony ballet, and eight others who appeared as show girls, and still, eight more men who took various parts.

The following musical numbers were introduced and each one was a winner:

Opening chorus
Looking for the girl	Bob
O, what a sight the world will be	Bob and General
Davy Jones' locker	Inbad
Cigarette girl	Tina
Land of to-morrow	Pepita and Marjorie
Gringo man	Alonzo
Under the Southern Moon	Tina and Inbad
Finale
Opening chorus
Back to the pie belt
Consul, Reporter, Jane and Jean
Senorita, charming Pepita	Bob
Find a fiancee	Marjorie
Tambo girl	Tina
Pay day	General
Finale

The opening chorus which introduced the ballet was so vivacious and good that it was frequently applauded and at the outset the success of the show was assured. Without exception all the numbers were encored and some two or three times. Each soloist was well supported by a chorus in appropriate costume, and all were so good that one forgot he was listening to college boys, as the production would have made a great hit in any theatre of Boston. It was intimated that the Senorita might after her marriage settle at Houghs Neck. One of the girls in the show was compared with students of the Quincy Mansion school. Colored lights thrown from the balcony added much to the effectiveness of the scenes.

It was 10.40 when the curtain rang down on the grand finale, in which the pony ballet brought forth a storm of applause and all the artists were at their best. Come again Pi Etas, the hall should be crowded next time.

PERMANENT POLICE

Officers Phillips and Duane Promoted by Mayor

Mayor Shea this morning announced the appointment of the two new permanent policemen as authorized by the order passed at the last meeting of the City Council, the appointment to take effect at roll call next Saturday night. The appointments were made by promotion from the reserve list, the two men appointed being George F. Phillips and John J. Duane.

Officer Phillips is the commander of Col. A. B. Packard camp, Sons of Veterans, and a son of Commander George L. Phillips of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R. He is a machinist by trade, and was first appointed a special policeman June 13, 1905.

On June 22, 1906 he was apointed to the reserve police under the civil service rules, and has been on duty the most of the time since then.

Officer Duane has also been constantly on duty for some years. He was appointed a special policeman May 28, 1907, and promoted to the reserve force under the civil service rules Feb. 17, 1908. Both men have proved themselves to be efficient officers. The vacancies in the reserve police caused by these promotions have not been filled.

BLOW TO THE FORE RIVER COMPANY

Eight-Hour Day to be Required on Contract for New Battleships.

Shipyards of Country May Refuse to Submit Bids.

The appropriation bill now before Congress for two new battleships, contains a provision that contracts shall be awarded only to firms which work an eight-hour day. This is regarded as a blow to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company which has taken a large contract from Argentina on a nine-four basis and cannot change over.

It is said the shipyards of the country will refuse to bid if the provision is enacted into the bill. It looks like a scheme to throw all work into the navy yards, which would add twelve per cent or more to the cost.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It is a nip tuck between Albany and Pittsburg in the race for the graft medal.

Whenever a public utilities commission has been tried, those whom it affects have been sorry they didn't have one before.

The Philadelphia North American discusses somewhat at length, "the complexion of the next Congress." Perhaps a little "bloom of youth" would help its complexion some.

Besides, what good would it do to Champ Clark to be Speaker, if he could not do in his way and according to his lights the mighty works old Joe Cannon has wrought? A Speakership shorn of its power would not be worth having.

There is nothing very dead about a city that shows the life that Chelsea does. Two years ago nearly wiped out of existence by fire and now being rapidly rebuilt on broader and better lines. Good for plucky Chelsea, may she grow and prosper.

The North Dakota recently turned over to the government by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., seems to have much smoother sailing than "Dakota Dan," whom Judge Lawton on Tuesday pronounced bogus. The Russell case has been long drawn out and interesting.

Kentucky women should be sustained in their protest against housewives being classed as idlers in the forthcoming census. They are satisfied to be just housewives and that is a term that means much. A mother of a family or a wife with household duties cannot fairly be called an idler.

Cincinnati does not want more light and has repealed the ordinance passed last year whereby the clocks were to be put ahead two hours from May until October so that workers might have more daylight. Evidently the city could not make its people believe that it was right to get up at five o'clock when they preferred seven no matter how the clocks were changed.

New Haven, Conn., is having its third annual "clean-up week." In its first year 5000 loads of ashes and rubbish were carted from back yards. This year the city departments are cooperating with the Civic Federation and the work is carried on systematically. The police take note of the back yards needing attention and report to the Civic Federation. New Haven believes a clean city is an asset and will attract new comers and increase the prosperity of the city.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

When President Roosevelt discharged the 25th infantry because of the shooting up of Brownville, there were those who blamed him for what he did, some because they doubted the guilt of the colored soldiers, and some because they considered it an arbitrary use of authority. There have been several investigations, and the last one has finally reached a conclusion. It is final because that was the decree of Congress when the investigation was ordered. It was conducted by army officers who were supposed to be unprejudiced and the report justifies their appointment. They find that the shooting was done by the colored troops, but they cannot say that any particular individual was guilty of the crime. The nearest they come to it is to declare that 14 soldiers, out of the whole ,are eligible to reenlist, an opportunity that was denied them by the terms of Roosevelt's order of discharge. That the regiment deserved the discharge without honor can hardly be denied, because although the guilty ones must have been known to some of their comrades, no one would turn State's evidence. There was no other courses open to the President. The action of the commission of army officers in selecting those who could prove their innocence is all right at this distance from the outrage, but it was impossible at the time of the shooting. Now the Brownville incident may be considered closed.—Lynn Item.

Beverly's live Board of Trade is still doing its best to Boost Beverly. Every year has seen this progressive organization do something that has been for the betterment of Beverly as a home and industrial center. It is clear to those who pay any attention to the affairs of other cities that those municipalities in which there are active boards of trade or similar organizations gain most rapidly in the improvements which all of them desire, and in new manufacturing plants. Competition in the latter is keen, and the cities which interest themselves most in it are the ones that add to their industrial equipment with a resultant diversification of industries that is a guarantee of their prosperity. In addition to this phase of its work every such organization has the opportunity to do a vast amount in regard to various improvements and plans which the city government cannot undertake. All of them include such matters within the field of their operations and many of them have done work which has been of lasting benefit to the communities they represent.

To enable a board of trade to successfully carry on its work, it must have the support of the city in which it is located. The citizens must be interested in it. They must give time, thought and work to it.

It is a good investment of all these. Such work brings returns to all citizens in the added opportunity for employment and the increased value of property. Nor should it be forgotten that an organization of this kind tends to increase the interest in the affairs of the city and local patriotism in regard to them that are necessary to every community. —Beverly Times.

TROUT SEASON.

While the trout season is booked to start off well as the result of a warm March unless April brings more rain than March month has the brooks will be in poor shape for fishing long before the usual time for low water. The brook water now is not very cold, the streams are comparatively very low for this time of the year ,the trout are upstream well as an inquisitive fisherman can learn by looking under any bridge over a brook, and for these reasons the first fishing should be better than April fishing usually is. But with the brooks now only at the stage they are usually in May the later fishing is likely to be poor.—Boston Courier.

FIRST OF ITS KIND

New Naval Flyer Paulding Will Use Nothing but Oil For Fuel

Bath, Me., April 13.—Distinguished as the first of the torpedo boat destroyer fleet to be equipped with burners for burning oil exclusively, the Paulding was launched by the Bath Iron Works. No coal will be carried, except for galley purposes.

The Paulding has practically the same lines as her sister destroyers, the Reid and Flusser, which last week broke all American records by maintaining a speed of at least thirty-five miles an hour for four hours.

The fuel oil will be carried in tanks corresponding to the coal bunkers on her sister ships, with a total capacity of about 60,000 gallons. The Paulding is 294 feet over all, and has an extreme beam of 26 feet 4½ inches, a mean trial displacement of 742 tons and a mean trial draft of 18 feet 4 inches.

Freight Depot For Portland

Portland, Me., April 13.—An immense freight terminal, at which will be handled the entire freight business of all divisions of the Boston and Maine and Maine Central roads entering this city and the transfer freight of the Grand Trunk railway, will be built in this city. This announcement was made at the Maine Central offices.

Canines and Felines Cremated

New York, April 13.—Forty dogs and three cats were burned to death in the street here when a special automobile truck of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals caught fire and was destroyed.

CLAIMANT IS CALLED FRAUD

"Dakota Dan" Impersonated Daniel Blake Russell

DECISION OF JUDGE LAWTON

All the Petitions Brought Before Court by Man Who Claimed to Be an Heir to $500,000 Estate Are Dismissed—Court Believes William Russell Told Truth In Denying Petitioner as His Brother—Rioting In Melrose

Cambridge, Mass., April 13.—"Dakota Dan," so-called, has lost his case. Judge Lawton decided in the Middlesex probate court that he is not Daniel Blake Russell.

This momentous decision, in one of the most famous cases that ever came before a Massachusetts court, was given after Judge Lawton had rehearsed some of the chief features which have figured in the contest over the $500,000 estate of Daniel Russell of Melrose.

"I find," declared the judge at the conclusion of his decision, "that the petitions now before the court were not brought or presented by Daniel Blake Russell, but by one who attempted to impersonate him and defraud the estate. Accordingly they will all be dismissed."

Along with the dismissal of the petitioner's claim there also was dismissed the three petitions originally made by he claimant; for an account of the estate of the estate of Daniel Russell of Melrose; for a distribution of the estate and for the appointment of a new bondsman.

Nearly two hours were taken by Lawton in summing up the case before he definitely gave his decision, but from the start there was hardly the slightest doubt as to what his finding would be. There was none at all when he said: "William C. Russell has said that the claimant is not his brother, and I believe that he knew, and has told the truth."

Judge Lawton read from typewritten copy a history of the case. He said: "On June 5, 1885, Daniel Blake Russell of Melrose disappeared, as his father expressed it, 'as if the earth had opened and swallowed him up.' Early in 1909 this petitioner appeared and asserted that he was Daniel Blake Russell. There were no near relatives living except William C. Russell, who pronounced the petitioner an imposter."

Judge Lawton gave some of the features of the long trial, commenting on the evidence offered by each side, especially the charges of conspiracy made by the counsel for the claimant. He said that if the petitioner was Daniel Blake Russell, he was entitled to be heard as a claimant to part of the estate of Daniel Russell. He commented on the witnesses who testified either for or against the petitioner, and spoke of the witnesses who came forward for the respondents and who maintained that the petitioner was James D. Ruseau.

Judge Lawton considered that the possession by the Ruseau family of photographs of the claimant and letters alleged to have been written by him was good circumstantial evidence. He dwelt upon the alleged over-writing and bogus cancellation stamps, as brought out by experts for the claimant, and said that while no doubt these experts were sincere, he thought that they were mistaken.

The court stated that he considered the manipulation of postoffice stamps almost incredible. "This conspiracy would include too many conspirators," said the court. "It would include the co-operation of the Ruseau family, of Pinkerton detectives, counsel for the respondents and, in fact, one of the respondents himself. It is hard to believe that this lawyer who has practised for twenty-five years at the Massachusetts bar participated in the alleged conspiracy which involved any such scheme."

When the court's decision had been given and the crowd had surged into the street there was pandemonium. As a central figure, "Dakota Dan" was to be seen, waving his arms and, with tears coursing down his cheeks, shouting: "I am Dan; the only Dan." From the crowd which surrounded him came answering cries, such as "we know you are;" and the man whose claim was dismissed by the court was cheered to the echo.

Russell Hanged In Effigy

Melrose, Mass., April 13.—Women, men and boys, a thousand strong, hanged William C. Russell in effigy here last night, chased ex-Mayor Gould, who was a witness against "Dakota Dan," into an electric car, knocked down and trampled upon James M. Axford and caused more excitement in Melrose than the city has ever known.

The police force and the Pinkerton detectives guarding the home of William C. Russell were powerless. Cheers for "Dakota Dan" were interspersed with hisses, hoots and catcalls whenever the names of William C. Russell and others opposed to the claims of "Dakota Dan" were mentioned. Women were always in the forefront of the crowd.

SUICIDE IN STATE PRISON

Young Convict Whose Relatives Are Unknown Hangs Himself

Boston, April 13.—James Hains, 23 years old, serving a three to five year sentence at the state prison for breaking and entering, committed suicide at the institution by hanging himself to the cell door in the sick room, where he had been confined for the past two weeks.

Hains tore the sheet of his bed into long strips, attached one part to the top of the door, made a noose about half way down, through which he stuck his head, then threw his body forward, his knees touching the cell floor, and practically strangled himself to death.

Hains was sentenced from Springfield one year ago last January. He had always been considered a model prisoner, but his past, so far as the officers at the prison knew, was a closed book.

Warden Bridges made several attempts to learn from the young man who his relatives were, but was unsuccessful.

HOUSEWIVES NOT "IDLERS"

Classification In Census Books Is Resented by Kentucky Women

Lexington, Ky., April 13.—Women of central Kentucky have united in a protest to E. D. Durand, director of the census, against what they term is the classification of housewives in the forthcoming census as "idlers."

A telegram was sent to Durand, objecting to the form of the blanks on which the census enumeration is to be made, and in which housewives, according to the telegram, are classified as "having no occupation." Signers of the telegram urge that the word "housewife" be inserted by the enumerators in the census blank.

BALL IS HELD FOR FELLOWS MURDER

Arrest Just Made For Crime Committed Last November

Concord, N. H., April 13.—Albert S. Ball, employed at the local railroad shops, was arrested, charged with the murder of Charles H. Fellows on the night of Nov. 22, 1909.

Fellows was driving to his home in Bow from his grocery store in this city and was attacked and killed just as he was entering his dooryard.

Prior to the murder Ball had been a frequent visitor at the Fellows home in the absence of Fellows, and stories of differences between Fellows and his wife because of Ball put the authorities on the track, which resulted in the arrest yesterday. He is 40 years old and has a wife and one child.

CANNOT DODGE CREDITORS

Referee In Bankruptcy Declares That Thaw Is Not Insane

Pittsburg, April 13.—That Harry K. Thaw was sane at the time his petition in bankruptcy was filed in this city, and is sane at the present time, is the decision of William R. Blair, referee in bankruptcy of this district, before whom Thaw's petition was heard.

Referee Blair has filed his decision recommending that Thaw be discharged from bankruptcy, and attorneys for some of the creditors filed exceptions to the report, claiming that Thaw was insane and therefore had no legal standing.

The recommendation for the discharge in bankruptcy is looked upon as the dying hope ever to get Thaw away from the New York authorities by any legal methods.

The state literature committee believes that the training of the dramatic instinct is a most important part of education and states that as the rendering of good plays enters largely into college life, so, too, this dramatic spirit has become a part of the life of women's clubs. The chairman of the committee is Martha E. G. Woodward, 106 Summer street, Fitchburg, Mass. INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION

Commissioner Snedden Addresses Unitarian Club

The Wollaston Unitarian club held its last meeting of the season in the Unitarian vestry on Tuesday evening. Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and accepted. The following officers were elected:

President—Charles H. Brigham.
Vice President—Charles S. Adams.
Secretary—John E. Simmons.
Treasurer—Charles P. Loring.
Executive Committee—Otto Hayward and Frederick W. Plummer.

David Snedden, commissioner of education, delivered a vital address upon the subject, "The present situation as regards industrial education."

It is already very apparent said the speaker, that education in its broad sense is by no means at the present time in a state of stability, but in a state of unrest or movement. This is but the symptom of a deep social movement. While the nineteenth century was dynamic along industrial scientific and economic lines, the twentieth century must face the question of social construction.

Mr. Snedden declared the need of two different systems of education in training the youth of today. One type consists of liberal education which is a product of the invention of printing, and aims to open up the world of intelligence by the use of books and exercises. This is the type received in the common schools and high schools of today.

On the other hand in discussing industrial education we must not forget that there must always be vocational education or training. People have to be taught to work as well as read. The home has always been an effective agency in developing the workmanship quality, but only recently have we seen schools, devoted to giving instruction in vocational training. As years go on, the home, farm and shops are growing less and less effective. This is due to the change in social conditions and industrial methods.

The characteristics of vocational education are to remedy this condition. It is a great mistake to assume that this can be taught by the same system as liberal education—that is on a basis of books or exercises. There must be more of the practical element. The student must learn by doing. There is too much imitation and too little principle. In vocational education the teacher must be primarily a shop man a producer, one who knows how and secondly a teacher.

Mr. Snedden mentioned an experiment being tried out in Fitchburg where the boys work alternate weeks in the school and shop. He also spoke of the excelling of the German methods along this line of training.

"From the standpoint of social economy," said the speaker in closing, "the developement of vocational education is essentially necessary.

The many inquiries at the close of the address testified to the interest of the club in the matter and a rising vote of thanks was tendered Commissioner Snedden.

An excellent supper of roast beef, mashed potato, peas, celery, rolls, coffee, strawberries and ice cream was served in an efficient manner by the young men.

TO SETTLE DISPUTE BY ARBITRATION

Will Be No Strike on the New York Central Railroad

New York, April 13.—The wage dispute between the trainmen and conductors of the New York Central railroad and the officials of the company is to be settled by arbitration. All points of difference will be arbitrated by E. E. Clark, member of the interstate commerce commission, and P. H. Morrissey, president of the Railway Employes and Investors' association. They will appoint a third arbiter if necessary.

The agreement to arbitrate affects about 5800 employes of the New York Central system on the lines east of Buffalo, comprising the New York Central railroad proper, the West Shore and the Boston and Albany.

President Brown of the New York Central, in a statement, recounted the agreement to appoint arbitrators, and added:

"The question to be submitted to them is whether any increase in rates of pay shall be made, and, if the arbitrators find that an increase is justified, they are to name the amount of such increase and also to decide upon such change in conditions of service as in their judgment should be made."

REBUKE FROM THE VATICAN

"Pope Will Not Be Bracketed With Those Roosevelt Has Hunted"

Rome, April 13.—The Vatican has authorized a statement with reference to a call made by Abbot Janssens, one of the most learned Benedictines and secretary of the congregation of affairs of religion, on ex-President Roosevelt on the evening of the latter's departure from Rome.

"The holy father," says the Vatican statement, "has highly disapproved of Father Janssens' initiative toward Mr. Roosevelt, as this act of his evidently lends itself to an interpretation offensive to the holy father. Father Janssens acted through his own impulse, without any authorization from any one whatever."

The statement further emphasizes the Vatican policy, which, to use its own words, was that "it did not wish Mr. Roosevelt to bracket the pope with other more or less royal personages he will boast of having hunted in Europe after his African hunt."

TO WAIVE EXAMINATION

Will Be No Police Court Hearing In the Spencer Case

Springfield, Mass., April 13.—Bertram G. Spencer, charged with the murder of Miss Martha B. Blackstone, has decided to waive examination when his case is called in the police court next Friday morning. There will, therefore, be no hearing and the case will go directly to the grand jury.

This disposition of the case in the lower court will postpone the giving of testimony relating to Spencer's confession, covering the murder and the long series of burglaries, until the case comes before the superior court.

WOULD WIPE OUT SALOONS

Sweeping Piece of Temperance Legislation Introduced In Nova Scotia

Halifax, April 13.—There was introduced in the Provincial parliament a bill providing for prohibition all over Nova Scotia, with the exception of the city of Halifax, where licenses for the sale of intoxicants may be granted whenever a majority of the taxpayers vote in favor of them.

Under that bill the licenses in this city are reduced from ninety to seventy in number, and after the census of 1911 only one license may be granted for every 1000 of population.

ON FACE OF CLIFF

Face and Figure of "Silver King" Walsh May Be Carved

Denver, April 13.—Plans to have the face and figure of the late Thomas F. Walsh, the Colorado "silver king," carved in heroic size on the face of an immense cliff, which overlooks the famous Camp Bird mine at Ouray, have been broached by admirers of Walsh and may result in what would probably be the most unique monument on record.

The Camp Bird mine laid the foundation of the Walsh fortune.

CANNON WILL BE DEPOSED

Insurgents Plan to Declare Vacancy In the Speakership

AROUSED BY BOLD CHALLENGE

Policy Is to Wait Until President's Legislative Program Is Carried Out and Then Declare Speaker's Chair Vacant—Men Charged With Cowardice Will Not Play Into the Hands of Their Accuser

Washington, April 13.—The feeling of resentment among the Republican insurgents in the house against Speaker Cannon is so intense that it has been definitely decided to accept the speaker's challenge of defiance. At a conference held by several of the insurgents it was agreed that the speaker has placed them in a position which they regard as untenable and they will take the first possible opportunity to remove him from office.

At the psychological moment, when the regulars are not looking for it, one of the insurgents will offer a resolution to declare the speaker's chair vacant. Representative Murdock of Kansas says such a resolution will carry and that a Republican will be elected to succeed Cannon.

When Speaker Cannon branded as cowards these insurgents who voted against the Burleson resolution declaring the speaker's chair vacant, immediately after the rules were amended several weeks ago, there was a disposition to allow the incident to pass unnoticed on the ground that the speaker was still suffering from the humiliation of being rebuked by removal from the committee on rules.

In addition to this the insurgents who voted against the Burleson resolution were not willing to risk throwing the house into confusion which would almost have certainly followed the removal of Cannon as speaker. The performance of the speaker Monday, however, has served to make the feeling against him more bitter than it has been since the insurgent movement began to make headway more than a year ago.

There is considerable criticism on both sides. It is pointed out in behalf of the speaker that the insurgents went out of their way to deliver a blow at Cannon by joining the Democrats and refusing him an appropriation of $2500 for the maintenance of the automobile which was purchased for him out of the public funds a year ago.

On the other hand, even the speaker's friends admit that it was ill advised and tactless of him to leave the chair and go on the floor to harangue the insurgents and to defy them to join the minority to depose him before his term of office expires on March 4, 1911.

More than one of the insurgents expressed the belief that the speaker realizes the probability of a Democratic house in 1911 and that he would like nothing better than to charge it up to the insurgents. They assert that he is endeavoring to antagonize them and irritate them so that they will lose their heads and attempt to depose him.

Even the most radical of the insurgents assert that if this is the speaker's motive he will be unsuccessful. The insurgents, however, are smarting under the charges of cowardice made by the speaker. Their present plan is to demonstrate to the country that the charge is unjustified.

It has been tentatively agreed among the insurgents that they will depose the speaker at the first available opportunity. So far as can be seen now the opportunity will not present itself until May. At the conference among the insurgent leaders it was agreed that it would be foolhardy, and perhaps would tend to play into the hands of the speaker, to take drastic action until all the measures of importance have been sent over to the senate.

LA FOLLETTE GOES ON THE WARPATH

Scores Wickersham For Allowing Railroad Merger

Washington, April 13.—The most sweeping attack on the administration railroad bill yet heard in the senate was made by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. Not only did La Follette hotly assail the bill, but he went after Attorney General Wickersham with heavy guns. He scored Wickersham for allowing the merger of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and the Boston and Maine to exist in defiance of law and for dropping the proceedings to annul that merger that were begun under the last administration.

In language not to be misunderstood La Follette paid his respects to the attorney general for his recent attempt at Chicago to read the insurgents out of the party. Nor was it difficult to perceive in the language he used that the Wisconsin senator was aiming a part of his criticism at the administration itself.

Senator La Follette used the case of the New Haven merger to illustrate to the senate the danger to the public in putting through Section 12 of the railroad bill, which is alleged to open wide the door to railroad mergers and combinations.

CHARTER BILL A LAW

Grand Trunk Railroad Given Direct Line Through Rhode Island

Providence, April 13.—The Grand Trunk charter bill was made a law when Governor Pothier affixed his signature to the document. The bill gives the Southern New England Railway company, an auxiliary branch of the Grand Trunk railway, a direct line through Rhode Island, with a seaport outlet at Providence.

It is planned to extend the Grand Trunk line from Palmer, Mass., to Woonsocket, thence through Central Falls and Pawtucket to Providence. The Grand Trunk now passes through Palmer by means of its subsidiary, the Central Vermont railway.

Fairbanks Expedition Reports Having Met With Success

NO TRACE OF COOK'S RECORDS

Story of Brooklyn Explorer Not Verified In Any Particular—Four Camps Established During Ascent, Which Proved Less Serious Than Had Been Expected—Rock Peak Reached a Month After Leaving the Base

Fairbanks, Alaska, April 13.—The Fairbanks expedition to Mount McKinley, the tallest peak in North America, reached the summit April 3, after a climb of one month from the base, it is announced. No traces of Dr. Frederick A. Cook's alleged ascent were found.

The results of the expedition were told by its leader, Thomas Lloyd, who has just arrived here. He reached the summit with W. R. Taylor, Daniel Paterson and Charles McGonigle, the other members of the party. August Peterson and William McPhee financed the expedition, which left Fairbanks on Dec. 15. At that time the dispute over Cook's claim to having reached the top of North America's tallest peak was at its height.

The party planned to wait on the mountain, as near the top as possible, till possibly the middle of May, and then attempt the final dash. The hardships and difficulties of the trip, however, proved less serious than had been expected, and with favorable weather conditions the party advanced rapidly. They blazed a trail to the top of the mountain, making four camps on the ascent.

For 4000 feet they were compelled to fight their way over steep ice fields, beginning at the 12,000-foot levels. Up to that level the going was not extremely difficult. At 16,000 feet a camp was established, from which the final dash was made.

On one of the twin peaks of the mountain—the Rock Peak—the party left an American flag on a pile of stones. In the trip up the mountain, according to the leader, it was impossible to verify any part of Cook's story of his alleged ascent.

Dr. Cook claimed to have ascended Mt. McKinley and to have reached the summit. He said that he had left at the top of the mountain proofs that he had been there.

Professor Herschel C. Parker of Columbia university was a member of the expedition that Cook led to the mountain and he later disputed Cook's assertion that he reached the summit after the professor and other companions had turned back.

Recently Parker organized an expedition to attempt the ascent of the mountain and it was planned that this party should leave New York about April 25 next. They intended to go to Seattle and thence by steamship to Cook Inlet on the Alaskan coast. From that point they planned to travel by motor boat to the Chulnita Glacier, where a permanent base would be established.

Mt. McKinley is the assumed culminating point of the North American continent and is in the Alaskan range, latitude 63 degrees, 4 minutes north, longitude 151 degrees west. Its height is given as 20,461 feet. It is extensively glaciated and has always been regarded as most difficult of ascent.

Boston, April 13.—Judge Robert O. Harris has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for congress in the Fourteenth district.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

session was up it was voted to extend the time that the question of joining the National Federation might be discussed. Two years ago after a spirited debate it was voted not to join. This year's debate was equally interesting. Among the speakers were Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Mrs. Royal, Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Blanchard, Mrs. Worster, Mrs. Sanborn, Mrs. Witcher, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Morton. Good points were made for and against.

Here again the question of money came up for there would be dues to pay. Mrs. George W. Morton, a former president and charter member of the club, one who has always shown her interest in a substantial way, giving the club a piano, and contributing to worthy causes maintained by the club, again came to the rescue. Her announcement of a contribution of $100 toward the $300 needed for the tuberculosis shack was received with loud applause. The club was not slow in showing its appreciation of Mrs. Morton's gift and looks upon her as one of the club's best friends and benefactors.

Mrs. Morton's gift solved the money difficulty and after more discussion the question of joining the National Federation was put and carried 90 to 40.

The afternoon's program was arranged by the Art and Literature committee and Mrs. Charles Bickford, chairman announced the program and introduced Miss Mildred Sheldon Bass who would give readings from Paul Laurence Dunbar and the Misses Turner who would sing Negro melodies.

It proved a most delightful program, much enjoyed as was attested by the frequent applause accorded the entertainers.

Miss Bass although living in Wollaston was known personally to but few of the club although her name as a reader has of late become well known. Her brief history of the life of Paul Laurence Dunbar, the Negro poet, who in his short life became so widely known, was interestingly told and her interpretation of his poems were pleasing. The delightful humor and tender delicate pathos of the poet was feelingly interpreted by Miss Bass leaving a pleasant memory with her listeners.

The Carter Sisters added the finish to a most harmonious program. Their singing of Negro melodies with banjo accompaniment was a delight. They came from Georgia and the home land atmosphere was in all their songs. The life and swing of the melodies was given an interpretation that elicited appreciative applause.

HOME GARDENING.

The people of Quincy will be pleased to know that already more than seven hundred children have bought seeds and are planning to have vegetable and flower gardens. It is expected that after the May Festival many more than a thousand gardens will be underway. This means that there will be more than a thousand homes where the families will have a good healthy interest for all the spare minutes during the spring and summer, that these children will be learning to be thrifty and industrious;; that the household expenses ought to be greatly reduced by the addition of plenty of fresh string beans, peas, lettuce, radishes, cucumbers, summer squash, corn, etc. The flowers blooming about the homes cannot fail to have a refining influence upon the entire family and the children should be better morally and physically for this home garden work.

Who is starting this home garden work? The Education Committee of the Quincy Women's club. Perhaps the word expanding would more exactly describe what the above mentioned committee is attempting to do. For some years past there have been about one hundred gardens in this city which children have cared for under the supervision of some ladies, who called themselves a Garden Committee, and who gave their time to the supervision of the work for the sake of interesting the children in gardening. To insure the success of the thousand gardens there must be paid inspection and there must be money to pay the inspectors. In order to raise this money the Education Committee is to give an entertainment on Friday evening, April 29th, at Alpha hall. The proceeds from this and the annual May festival will be used for the home garden work, also to pay a young woman to teach swimming to girls and women and give physical instruction to the Girls' club and women employed during the day time. The classes for working women may be held on Saturday afternoons.

The Friday evening entertainment promises to be intensely interesting and instructive. Mrs. Kitson, the famous sculptor, assisted by Miss Georgiana Lane, is arranging to show some living pictures which will represent different historical periods. This will be very instructive as well as entertaining, because the details of costume will be displayed with historical correctness. Besides the pictures there will be some dancing by pupils of the Sargent's gymnasium, fencing by well known gentlemen of our city, and the singing of portions of "The Chimes of Normandy."

If the people of Quincy give their support to the ladies o fthis committee the garden work will go on with a bound.

PASTOR RETURNED

Rejoicing at the Hall Place Methodist Church

Rev. C. H. Raupach, for the last two years and a half pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church, was returned to West Quincy for another year, at the 114th session of the New England Methodist conference held at Westfield during the past week.

REV. C. H. RAUPACH.

Mr. Raupach came to West Quincy in October, 1907, from Fort Fairfield, Maine where he had been pastor for four years, being a member of try, twelve years, being a member of the East Maine conference having held different pastorates in that conference. At the session of the New England conference held at Westfield this week he was admitted to New England conference and given a cordial welcome.

At the time Mr. Raupach came to West Quincy, the church was laboring under difficutlies, having been without a regular pastor for three months. Mr. Raupach has been a faithful, untiring worker, and as a result he has built this work up so that the church is now in a good condition. Number of improvements have been made on the church property. During the first year a new lighting system was installed throughout the church, and art glass windows were placed in the church auditorium, while last year the belfry and clock were repaired and the church thoroughly painted on the outside. During the past month an extra effort has been made by the church members and community at large to clear all expenses, and this aim has nearly been reached in that they have raised almost enough to cover all expenses, and hope in the near future to raise the entire amount. Great hopes are entertained by both pastor and epople for the work of the coming year, and the people are glad that they have such an efficient leader and helpful pastor in the work of this church.

—The European cities, which are well governed, have for the most part a single council of which the mayor is a member. And the cities can do anything which is not forbidden by the fundamental laws. In our favored land, we have a hydra-headed monster, in which either mayor or aldermen or council can block the others. And a city can only do the things which are expressly permitted. How wonderfully we have advanced over the old world.—Newburyport News.

HOLIDAY RACES.

The matinee racing of the Old Colony Driving Club will open on Tuesday, April 19, at 1.00 P. M. It is the intention to put on a very attractive card of races. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged, but ladies and children free.

The regular matinees will be started at 2.30 P. M., on Saturdays, with the same racing rules as in the previous year. The racing committee are to endeavor to make this the most successful year, from a racing standpoint, in the club's history, and earnestly ask co-operation in all matters. They are now repairing the track at an expense of $600, and expect it to be as fast as any half-mile track in New England.

The First Great Bank.

The first great bank in the world was the bank of Venice, established in 1157 when the queen city of the Adriatic was the head of the commerce of the western world. At that time the great current of the trade between Europe and Asia passed through the Persian gulf and the Red sea to Alexandria, Egypt, and was carried in ships across the Mediterranean sea and through the Adriatic to Venice, where it was distributed to various parts of Europe. Venice was a sort of autocratic republic, founded and supported by its merchants, who were famed throughout the world for their wealth and reliability. They founded their bank, which was guaranteed by the government and was held in high credit in all the great cities on the routes of trade. The word "bank" was derived from the Italian word "banco," a bench or counter over which the business was transacted.—Argonaut.

A Giant Among Dwarfs.

The intellect and genius of Franklin were perhaps never more manifest than when, as the colonial agent of Pennsylvania, he appeared before the British house of commons in order to undergo an inquisition into the taxation questions which were brewing the trouble which subsequently resulted in American freedom. Not fewer than 300 questions were propounded to him by some of the acutest legal and political minds of the old country. To each and every one of them he replied in a masterful manner. Edmund Burke in commenting on the matter said that Franklin reminded him of "a man being examined by a parcel of schoolboys," while Charles James Fox remarked that his inquisitors were "dwarfs in the hand of a giant."

The Unknown World.

Notwithstanding the rapid advance of exploration in various parts of the globe it is estimated that about 20,000,000 square miles of the earth's surface remain yet unexplored. The largest unexplored area is in Africa, 6,500,000 miles, but even North America contains 1,500,000 square miles of virgin territory. Most persons will be surprised to learn that there is three times as much land awaiting the foot of the pioneer in North America as in South America.—Chicago Tribune.

One Gleam of Joy.

Johnny had two presents at the same time—one a diary, which is kept very carefully, and the other a pea shooting popgun, which he fires indiscriminately on all occasions. One day his mother found the following terse record in his diary: "Mondy cold and sloppy. Toosdy cold and sloppy. Wensdy cold and sloppy shot granma." — Youth's Companion.

In Legal Terms.

She (after a tiff)—You will admit you were wrong?

He (a young lawyer)—No, but I'll admit that an unintentional error might have unknowingly crept into my assertion.

Not the Only One.

"Sir, I heard you using the word 'jackass.' Did you apply it to me?"

"No, sir. Do you think you're the only jackass in the world?"—Cleveland Leader.

Medford, Mass., April 13.—Tufts college will cease to be a co-educational institution at the close of the college year.

This decision was arrived at by vote of its trustees, and at the beginning of the fall term the Jackson college for women will have been established to care for the young women students at Tufts who do not graduate this year, and care as well for the incoming feminine portion who seek educational advantages on College hill.

At the present time there are 450 students in the under-graduate department at Tufts, of whom a third are women. The freshmen had a celebration on the hill last night in honor of the verdict of the trustees.

MYSTERY IN BELL'S DEATH

New York Police Investigating Taking Off of English Actor

New York, April 13.—Mystery surrounds the death in Flower hospital of Charles J. Bell, an English actor, and physicians there thought the case so suspicious that they notified the coroner.

Bell was found in his room unconscious and the police declare he had taken poison. The diagnosis at the hospital, however, disclosed indication of a fracture of the skull.

Mrs. Maybrick's Mother Dead

Paris, April 13.—Baroness de Roques, mother of Mrs. Maybrick, who spent many years in a British prison under a life sentence, died in Paris in the utmost poverty, it is said, and was buried at the expense of strangers.

Actors Are Divorced

London, April 13.—The divorce court has granted a decree to the actress, Madge McIntosh, divorcing her from her husband, William G. Browne. The divorce was granted on evidence secured while Browne was playing in "Israel" in New York.

A Chemist's Happy Thought.

The guests at a ball given at the Tuileries, Paris, were once distressed by something in the air which irritated everybody. The most famous chemist of the day was consulted as to the mysterious cause. His son-in-law, Dumas, had the happy thought that perhaps the irritating particles in the air came from the wax candles. He found on analysis that these candles had been bleached by chlorine. Immediately they were lighted a compound was added to the air that irritated throats and noses. This chance discovery led Dumas to study the whole effect of chlorine, with farreaching results in chemistry.

Renovating Furniture.

To remove a dent from a table or cabinet cover it with four thicknesses of paper that has been wet and then set a very hot iron on the surface for only a minute. The steam will raise the compressed wood layers. To remove scratches an excellent furniture polish is made of equal parts of alcohol, olive oil and pure cider vinegar. Faded spots in wood caused by heat or light can be taken out by rubbing with linseed oil or sweet oil mixed with an eighth part of alcohol. Old linen or flannel rags are best to use for this purpose.

—Boston is to have a new, novel weekly newspaper, to be called "The Boston Common," and the manager will be E. H. Clements, formerly editor of the Boston Transcript. It will be devoted to educational, industrial, civic and social work and politics and New England will be covered in these lines. Many novel plans have been prepared. The paper will receive its first publication on April 30. The executive committee are such well known men as Ralph Albertson, William E. Butler, Robert Treat Paine and Alexander Wilson.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

A little too cold for baseball.

* * *

Don't plan to view an Old Colony league bowling match tonight. The season closed a week ago.

* * *

The Y. M. C. A. or Eli Kornfield's old red barn, as it is known today, should prove a mecca for parties looking for a chance to spend an enjoyable evening tonight. I have a program of the Hayseed Karnival, and if it does not surpass anything in the novelty 'ine ever held at the Y. M. C. A. I am no judge of a good time. By the way, C. M. Gifford wrote the entire plot.

* * *

I notice many Old Colony league baseball players are trying out on several teams in various leagues. In the New England league, "Charlie" Giroux of the Deweys is with Haverhill; "Arbie" Dam is with Lynn; Thompson of the Deweys is with Lowell; Foster, Courteny, "Tommy" Gilroy who were with Quincy last year, Orcutt of the Deweys and "Buck" O'Brien a former Taunton star are out for the Brockton team. Cooney, a former Dewey star is with the Boston Nationals and making good.

* * *

The local baseball players must not forget to be present at the Old Colony league grounds Saturday afternoon for a try-out. If they do not come out the talk of giving local players a chance will be sidetracked for all time.

* * *

I have not heard anything about Quincy runners entering the B. A. A. Marathon. I hope to see a local lad enter and cop the cup in this, the best known long distance race in America, next Tuesday, April 19.

* * *

Randolph club in the Old Colony league is getting in line for a hard season. They play at Stoughton on afternoon of Patriot's day and at Plymouth May 21. About 25 players will be given a try-out.

* * *

The question of a local muster at the annual fair of the Weymouth Agricultural society in the fall is being discussed. This should be a big drawing card for a contest between Braintree, Weymouth and Hingham tubs would undoubtedly bring many followers of this sport to the fair. There are many lovers of this sport in Quincy and I fail to see why we cannot fix up the "Granite," enter the contest and renew this pastime which has been dead in Quincy for years.

* * *

The Royal White Sox baseball club of Braintree have sent me a ticket to their dancing party which will be held in Braintree Town hall tomorrow evening. The Royals are rivals of the Makarias and many a hard fought game has resulted when these teams clashed. I understand there are many Quincyites who are going up, for a good time is guaranteed all who attend.

CAPTAIN OF WORLD'S CHAMPIONS

A GRAND MENU AND RICH ENTERTAINMENT

At Annual Banquet of the Granite City Club Last Night.

The Most Enjoyable of Long List of Good Times.

The annual banquet and entertainment of the Granite City club was held Wednesday evening at Colonial hall and the unanimous verdict was, that it was the most successful and most enjoyable evening of the many held under the auspices of the club. The affair was attended by nearly one hundred members and their friends.

Assembling in the club room, the signal was given at 7 o'clock to fall in line for the banquet hall. President Henry F. Tilden with Mayor Shea led the way, followed by Vice President Eben W. Sheppard and James T. Penniman, the club veteran member. Then came Senator Hultman and Representative Thomas, City Solicitor J. W. McAnarney, Collector Mitchell and Treasurer Cudworth, and past presidents James H. Penniman, Dr. C. W. Garey and Dr. F. E. Jones. These occupied the head table.

The tables were very prettily arranged and looked very attractive. At the head table was a large basket of carnations sent by Derringer, the florist, while at each plate was a large double carnation for the button hole.

Before beginning the festivities, President Tilden stated since the last annual gathering of the club, three of its members had been called to the great beyond, William Walter Ewell, James Thompson and Dexter E. Wadsworth. With bowed heads the members gave a silent toast to their memory.

On the platform was Morris' orchestra, and during the banquet they played all the popular airs, in every case the party joining in singing the chorus. The dinner itself was fine and well served, the caterer being C. C. Whittemore. The menu of the dinner was as follows:

Grape Fruit Cocktail
Roast Turkey Cranberry Sauce
Mashed Potatoes
Escalloped Oysters
Banana Fritters Wine Sauce
Salads
Lobster Chicken
Fancy Creams
Vanilla Strawberry Chocolate
Sultana Roll Frozen Pudding
Claret Sauce Strawberry Mousse
Sherbert
Lemon Orange Raspberry
Cake
Almond Pound Frosted
Macaroons Lady Fingers Kisses
Rolls and Coffee

The dinner over and chairs wheeled so as to face the stage and the members with one of John Johnson's "Peggy J." between their lips, prepared to enjoy what the entertainment committee had provided for their amusement. This part of the program was given by W. C. B. Fox of Cadet theatrical fame, better known as Chick Fox. It opened with a piano solo by Joe Daley, and was followed by Chick with a character song that convulsed his hearers. Other numbers on the program included Miss Alice Chouland, soprano solos; Joe Booth, German dialect comedian; Miss May Rozella, soloist and monologist; E. Stanley Nichols, Irish Character songs; and Miss Marie Ford in songs. The program closed with an Irish character song by Messrs Fox, Booth and Nichols. One of their selections was that well known song called "Harrigan." Probably every one present had heard this song hundreds of times, but never as it was rendered by this trio. It brought down the house and three encores were demanded before the end came.

The entertainment over, an adjournment was made to the club rooms on the upper floor where the evening close with a social hour.

COURT OFFICERS HERE.

The members of the Massachusetts Court Officers association held their Spring meeting in Quincy, Wednesday afternoon. The principal object of the gathering was a visit of inspection to the works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy Point, through the courtesy of President Francis T. Bowles of the company. Owing to the fact that the business in the courts at this time is very heavy, only a small number were able to avail themselves of the opportunity. At a business meeting held at the District court house after the visit to the works the association extended a vote of thanks to President Bowles for his courtesy in affording the members a chance to inspect the plant, and all expressed themselves as highly pleased for the privilege granted them.

Those present were: William M. Marden, president, Quincy; William L. Drohan, secretary, South Boston; Chief of Police Richard Vanston of Stoughton; George H. Nason of Roxbury, George V. Hildreth of Waltham, Warren E. Rhoads of Norwood, Martin C. Laffie of Newton, Cornelius Flynn of Marlboro, Charles H. Colby of Lynn, James M. Burke of Greenfield. The association had as guests ex-Representative Griswold of Greenfield and Special Justice E. Granville Pratt of Quincy.

The association is planning to have the July meeting a ladies' day at some popular summer resort.

PEOPLE FROM MILES AROUND

Attracted to Hayseed Karnival of the Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnasium certainly resembled a farm barn on Wednesday evening at the "Hayseed Karnival." There were the hay mows full of hay, a horse and pony in their stalls, a pen of Rhode Island Reds, wheel-barrows, grindstones, harness, forks, rakes, hoes, vegetables and posters about, also a hospitable farmer with his large family and numerous guests.

Some idea of what was doing may be obtained from the following program:

Gossip and guests arrive
Wood sawing match
Some of the hired hands
Quartet The Village Warblers
Stove wood drill
Neighbors Youngsters
Selection Village Band
Cornet solo O. U. Soucer
Planter's drill Some of the Hayseeds
Mandolin club Traveling Minstrals

West p now to breath and talk of crops.

Parallel bar performance
Hayseeds and City Folks
Quartet The Village Warblers
Indian club drill Our City Friends
Bare back riding Village Youngsters
Indian clubs, fancy swinging
Just a Rube
Tumbling and other things All of Us
Grand wind up—usual way
Virginia Reel

Physical Director Gifford made a capital old-time farmer and host, and led in the farm talk and gossip, which was a feature of the evening. The wood sawing contest was close and exciting. The village warblers were simply excruciating. The youngsters in their drill were very clever. What shall we say of the Village Band? It certainly made a noise, and thereby fulfilled its mission.

Where O. U. Soucer could have obtained so much proficiency on the cornet was a mystery to the folks for miles around. The planters drill with new hoes was not so bad, but the traveling minstrals were a little out of tune.

The leaders squad from the Brockton Y. M. C. A. contributed to the program. They were known as the city folks and their stunts on the parallel bars and with the Indian clubs and in tumbling were frequently applauded. The Hayseeds joined in some of these feats to the amusement of all. The village youngsters were at home on the gym horse, but did not dare to bring forth the pony as planned for bare back riding. The Virginia Reel capped the climax.

ELECTRICITY CHEAPER

Electric Light Company Announce a Reduction

The large increase in volume of business the past year makes it possible for the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company to make a voluntary reduction in the price of electricity, the same to go into effect the first of next month. The maximum net rate of the company, which has been 17 cents per kilowatt hour, will be reduced to 15 cents. Although it is a problem to handle the rapidly increasing business; and the new prices will further increase it, the company feel that the people of Quincy are entitled to share in the success of the enterprise. As in the past, the best possible service will be rendered, and the company will endeavor to cooperate with merchants and individuals in obtaining the best results in lighting. It is satisfied customers that the Quincy Electric Light Company want, and as the volume of business increases there may be further reduction in prices.

EXTENDS SYMPATHY.

The members of the Puddingstone Club, in meeting assembled, extend to Mrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth, Mrs. E. D. Wadsworth, and General Edward Anderson, their most profound sympathy. We share the loss with you.

The out-pouring of the people of Quincy, his friends and associates, to pay him a fully deserved honor, entitles him to a place of unusual mark in the history of greater Boston. No one as ever received a higher recognition.

He was a man; a still small voice with an eternal echo; a noble example to all men, well deserving a front-rank place in the business hall of fame.

We miss him because we honored him and loved him, and because he represented the superlative of business honesty and strict personal integrity.

GLEE CLUB CONCERT AT WOLLASTON

Violinist and Reader Assist in Program.

Music lovers and friends from all over the city gathered in the Wollaston Congregational church on Wednesday evening to witness the most successful concert in the history of the Wollaston Glee club. The appreciative and enthusiastic audience of over 300 which overflowed the regular seating capacity of the church, was well paid for its attendance by the excellency of the program rendered. Under the direction of John A. Crowley, who for the past years has conducted the club, the men have reached a remarkable degree of efficiency, and today hold an enviable place in musical circles.

With the performance of Wednesday evening as a criterion, it would be difficult for a most captious critic to find anything but praise for the club. Especially noteworthy was the baritone solo of A. L. Hayden, "The lost chord" with the violin obligato of Miss Ellis, the organ accompainment of Mr. Weston and culminating in the hearty and inspiring chorus of the entire club.

A feature of the program was the rendition by the club of a lullaby to the tenor obligato of Edward E. Bullock. This was composed by Arthur S. Kendall a member of the club, the Wollaston Glee club being among the first of organized clubs in producing the gem.

The dexterous fingering of Miss Mary T. Ellis in her violin solos was greatly apreciated, while the duet of E. E. Bullock and A. C. Steele pleased all by its pure tones and perfect harmony.

Miss Dorothy Berry Carpenter in her humorous readings held one's attention by her magnetic personality. As an accompanist William E. Weston excelled, as usual, presiding over the piano and organ most capably.

With its productions the club made a most favorable impression not soon to be forgotten, and the future concerts will be looked upon with even greater interest than before.

The program follows:

Song of the Dare-Alls, Scott
Chorus
Canzonetta D'Ambrosio
Gypsy Dance Nachez
Miss Ellis.
Reveries Storch
Chorus
Duet—Sollnne in Quest'ora
Messrs. Bullock and Steele

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The Legislature ceases from troubling and the people are at rest.

Just now the "Back from Elba" movement is giving Speaker Cannon less concern than is the Back to Danville movement.

Apparently, nearly 40 per cent of the corporations haven't filed their reports in Washington and are liable to huge fines. Possibly these fines will be so great that the government will be willing to omit the tax.

A New York taxicab driver's wife is an applicant for divorce, alleging, among other things, that her husband makes from $75 to $100 per week. Now here is evidently a chauffeur who divides liberally with the company, anyway.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Friday the work of enumerating the people in the United States will begin. It is a big job, and should be well paid, at least as well as similar work in other lines requirin gthe same degree of intelligence and efficiency. Uncle Sam wants to know at the end of each decade how many people there are in the States and how much property he has on hand. It is the decennial taking of stock, and of as much importance to the government as such a process is to the merchant or manufacturer. The State enumerator is having trouble in securing competent assistants, and were he given a larger appropriation he would experience less difficulty. It does not pay to be niggardly in this direction, but it cannot be helped just now. But a word to the people who will be interrogated by the enumerators will not be amiss. To some the questions may be annoying, and to them they may seem unnecessary, but the law gives the enumerator the right to ask, and provides a penalty for refusal or neglect to answer. The best way therefore, is to answer the questions that are asked and help the enumerator as much as possible in the performance of his difficult task. In that way the people interrogated can aid the government in its effort to secure correct information, and making the census complete and valuable. By so doing they will avoid any unpleasant consequences to themselves, which is worth considering. Meet the enumerators courteously, and give all the information you are asked to impart, and thus demonstrate good citizenship.—Lynn Item.

PROVE GOOD SHEPHERDS

Angora Goats Can Battle With Eagles as Well as With Dogs

Stockbridge, Mass., April 14.—Charles and Mrs. Mellen and Mellen's friend, "Diamond Jim" Brady of New York, are staying a few days at the railroad president's Council Grove estate.

They were inspecting Mellen's flock of 600 sheep, which are now protected by a dozen Angora goats, when an immense eagle swooped from the sky and dropped on a lamb.

Instantly the leader of the goats, an enormous "Billy" with big horns, made a dive for the eagle, which was scared away, and the lamb was saved.

Mellen refused on the spot an offer of $1000 from Brady for the prize Angora. The goats drove off three dogs yesterday, and their usefulness is already assured.

Half an Hour Tacked On

Washington, April 14.—In view of the accumulation of work in the department of justice, Attorney General Wickersham has issued an order extending the work hours of the clerks and other employes from 4:30 to 5 daily. The order went into effect today.

Keep up your furniture, we reupholster and repair it to look like new first class work at prices that are fair to pay. H. L. Kincaide & Co.

RECOGNIZES "FRESNO DAN"

William Russell Says He Is His Long Lost Brother

Boston, April 14.—The Post says: William C. Russell last night informed The Post that he had formally recognized "Fresno Dan" as his only brother, Daniel Blake Russell.

Mr. Russell described his first meeting with the stranger from Fresno, who he said he confidently believed at the time was another impostor; how his suspicions, he said, gave way under the irresistible call of the same blood coursing through their veins, and at the last he looked into the other's eyes and knew he was "Danny," the younger brother, who had been mourned as dead for many years. He says "Fresno Dan" was asked questions which his brother should have known and no one else could have known. He answered without hesitation.

Mr. Russell said that he is eagerly and anxiously awaiting the moment when the legal formalities have been complied with and he may have the pleasure of making over voluntarily to his brother half of their father's fortune.

POISONED HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Newbert May Spend Rest of Her Life In State Prison

Rockland, Me., April 14.—Guilty of the murder of her invalid husband, Fremont Newbert, who died Nov. 15 from the effects of strychnine poisoning, according to medical testimony, was the verdict found by the jury in the supreme court against Mrs. Sadie F. Newbert, the middle-aged Thomaston woman, who for fifteen years had been the victim's sole support. This decision was reached after the jury had deliberated 4½ hours.

Mrs. Newbert made no demonstration. The penalty in this state for murder is life imprisonment in the state prison. The defense contended that the poison was self-administered.

SEEKING FACTS IN DEATHS BY POISON

Authorities Are After Samples of Rhode Island "Whisky"

Providence, April 14.—The state pure food commission of Rhode Island has entered into the investigation of the alleged cases of whisky poisoning, which is believed to have caused nine deaths in the towns of Westerly, Ashaway and Stonington, Conn. The commission has taken steps to secure samples of the whisky which has been sold, not only in the towns where the poisoning cases have occurred, but throughout the whole state.

It has also been intimated that the United States pure food commission may enter the investigation of the cases where interstate authority would be needed.

Attorney General Greenough announces that he will do nothing further in regard to exhuming the bodies of the four Westerly persons who died suddenly last week until he hears from the analysis of the stomach of one of the victims, William D. Perrin of Ashaway. The stomach was sent to the Harvard medical school for analysis.

SUGAR PROBE CHECKED

Inquiry Inadvisable Because of Suits Instituted by Government

Washington, April 14.—There will be no congressional investigation of the sugar trust. This was decided at a conference between President Taft and Representative Hill (Conn.), chairman of the house committee on expenditures in the treasury department.

This committee has had under consideration for several weeks a resolution asking the president to inform the house what facts exist which make inexpedient a thorough examination by the house of the customs frauds, commonly known as the sugar frauds.

It is understood that the president and Hill agreed that it would be inadvisable to undertake a congressional investigation at this time in view of the suits instituted by the government.

GETS $40,000 DAMAGES

Big Award to Woman In Undefended Breach of Promise Suit

New York, April 14.—Miss Alma Broderick was awarded $40,000 damages by a jury in an undefended breach of promise suit for $50,000 brought by her against Jerome Probst, a lawyer of this city.

Miss Broderick alleges that when she met Probst in Chicago in 1905 he called himself James Banning and said he lived at the Chicago Athletic club.

Falling Floor Kills Two Men

Boston, April 14.—While remodelling a building at 25-27 Temple street Joseph Karinsky, 60 years of age, and Max Cohen, 36 years old, were pinned beneath a falling floor and killed. Karinsky was a building contractor and Cohen a carpenter.

Big Batch of Lunatics Set Free

Perth, April 14.—Two hundred and eighty lunatics have just been released from the public asylums in Bohemia, owing to financial considerations.

IMPORTANCE OF A FULL CENSUS

Quincy Should Show Its Biggest Gain If Everyone in City is Counted

Great Rivalry Among Wards and Precincts

Quincy's last census in 1905 showed a gain of 4,168 in the five years, about a 1,000 more than in the five years from 1895 to 1900, but at the same time 413 less than the gain from 1885 to1890, during which period Quincy became a city. There was a feeling when the figures for 1905 were announced that the enumerators had not done their duty carefully; that the gain actually was several hundred larer. But there had been a labor trouble shortly before the census, and it is probably that many had sought work elsewhere temporarily.

It means considerable to Quincy that the census of 1910 shall be taken correctly, and that everyone shall be counted. It is not easy to enumerate everyone, as it is not merely a count. The census takers must obtain considerable information about each resident, and if they have much trouble in so doing they may be tempted to pass them by, but Quincy hopes they will make great effort to record everybody and that the citizens generally will assist them.

The population of the city by precincts in 1905 was as follows:

	Pre. 1	Pre. 2	Total
Ward One,	1966	2828	4794
Ward Two,	2100	2410	4510
Ward Three,	2595	3222	5817
Ward Four	2525	3038	5563
Ward Six	1822	1534	3356

Ward Three was leading in population with Ward Four second. The Wollaston ward had not been divided into precincts; otherwise the largest precincts were in Wards Three and Four. The census of 1910 will probably show changes in the rank of the wards, and a grand shake up among the precincts. The Daily Ledger predicts that Ward One will have the largest population, and that precinct two of Ward One will be the largest precinct. Wards Five and Six will also show large gains, and the other wards have done well.

At the last census there were more males than females in Wards One, Two, Three and Four, but the females led in Wards Five and Six.

The increase in population for ten years from 1895 to 1905 is shown by this summary, the largest gain being in Ward Two:

	1905	1895	Gain
Ward One	4793	3562	1231
Ward Two	4509	2741	1768
Ward Three	5817	4696	1121
Ward Four	5564	4964	600
Ward Five	4031	2669	1362
Ward Six	3353	2080	1273
	28,067	20,712	7,355

The figures at each census will be of interest and are as follows:

	Population	Gain
Census 1800	1,081
Census 1810	1,281	200
Census 1820	1623	442
Census 1830	2201	578
Census 1840	3486	1283
Census 1850	5017	1531
Census 1855 (State)	5921	904
Census 1860	6,778	857
Census 1865 (State)	6,718	*60
Census 1870	7442	*724
Census 1875 (State)	9155	1713
Census 1880	10,570	1415
Census 1885 (State)	12,145	1575
Census 1890	16,726	4581
Census 1895 (State)	20,712	3986
Census 1900	23,899	3187
Census 1905 (State)	28,067	4168

A gain of 1000 a year will give Quincy a population today of 33,067. The Daily Ledger expects the total will go over that mark, and serves notice on Everett, Taunton, Fitchburg and Chelsea.

POPULAR NOVELS.

The following from the pen of Librarian Sam Walter Foss of the Somerville Public Library, is an answer to a complaint made against most public libraries by the people woh think that enough copies of new novels should be purchased to at once supply the demand. The computation makes interesting reading and is respectfully submitted to such of four patrons as may wonder why, with due allowance for bad luck, they do not get the newest books.

"Come now and let us reason together. Perhaps the most persistent complaint that is made against the modern public library is the charge that it is almost impossible to secure a current novel. There is something in this charge; but it is very difficult for a library to remedy the existing condition of affairs. Sometimes as many as fifteen (15) copies of a current novel are purchased by a library no larger than the Somerville Public Library; but this number very inadequately supplies the demand. It is probable that a novel which becomes a great current craze would be called for, at least, fifty (50) times a day. If this novel was taken out by readers and each reader kept it for a week there would be three hundred (300) calls a week. IIn order to supply the demand then a purchase of three hundred (300) separate volumes would be necessary. This would cost, at least, three hundred (300) dollars.

"Supposing there are twenty (20) novels during the season that attain a wide popularity and are called for to an equal extent, three hundred (300) copies of each of these novels then would be purchased. This would take nearly al lthe money that the library has to expend for books; but we would have enlarged our collection by only twenty (20) different titles. This amount would, by no means, purchase all teh novels of the day and undoubtedly there would be a tremendous popular clamor for these other novels which we would not have the money to purchase.

"No books on Pholosophy, Religion, Sociology, Fine Arts, Useful Arts, Literature, History, or general works of any kind could be purchased. All that we would have to show would be at best twenty (20) popular novels duplicated fifty-fold. I ntwo years the majority of these novels would not be called for and would be useless lumber upon the library shelves. So it can be seen that this problem is not so simple a one as it is sometimes imagined to be.

"It is a matter of regret ,of course, that the current novels of a high order cannot be supplied to the public at the time the public wants them; but theer are very excellent novels which are not current. Novels that have been sifted out by time, whose excellence is generally recognized, whose renown is secure. These great novls can usually be found upon the shelves whenever the yare called for. On the whole they are much better than the current novels, because they have stood the test of time. If they had been poor novels they would have long ago been forgotten. People can get the books they want from the public library if they will only want the books that are in, and the books that are nearly always in are frequently very good books."

TO BUILD CHURCH.

At a meeting of the Park and Downs Congregational church people on April 8, it was decided to build next spring. The land has already been purchased and paid for. The society has a large sum in the bank in addition to the building fund of $5,000, subscribed last week with the condition that it be covered with $5,000 new money. The building movement is proceeding rapidly and there is no doubt but what it will be an accomplished fact in the spring of 1911. A new building is imperative owing to the increased attendance, the old building proving entirely inadequate.

A STILL HUNT.

Agent Phelps, who is supervising census enumerators in Quincy, wants newspaper men to give him a wide birth, and he will not be at home to callers of the fraternity. This is not because he does not like newspaper men, btu because they publish information which he says is read by people, who are dreading the visit of the census taker. He says it may hinder in the work. Otherwise than this he is always glad to meet newspaper men.

BASE BALL SCHEDULE

Several New Games and Changes in Revised List

The baseball squad is now much reduced. About twenty have been retained for the teams and substitutes, although as yet the first team has not been picked. The men who are to report every day for practice at 3.30 are:

R. Allen, outfield
J. Anderson, outfield
L. Arthur, first base
A. Barry, catcher
R. Bates, third base
W. Bechtel, outfield
H. Chapman, catcher
M. Chapman, pitcher
H. Hill, shortstop
G. Holteen, pitcher
W. Manning, second base
P. Markham, outfield
H. Murphy, third base
W. Murphy, first base
W. Northrop, outfield
J. O'Connor, outfield
P. Rice, pitcher
M. Scanlon, first base
T. Veale, outfield

The positions given are the ones the men are trying for on the first team. The season will probably begin April 19 with a game with South Boston High.

* * *

Manager Veale has arranged an attractive schedule for this spring. Nearly all the games are at home, and with different teams as will be seen:

April 19—South Boston High at Quincy.
April 22, Rockland at Quincy.
April 26, Arlington at Quincy.
April 28, Weymouth at Quincy.
April 30, Plymouth at Quincy.
May 2, Revere at Quincy.
May 6, Brockton at Quincy.
May 10, Abington at Quincy.
May 12, Melrose at Quincy.
May 14, Medford at Medford.
May 18, Dedham at Quincy.

June 1, Everett at Everett.
June 3, Lynn at Quincy.
June 6, Rockland at Rockland.
June 10, Hingham at Hingham.
June 15, Waltham at Waltham.

There have been a number of additions and alterations recently. Although there will be only a few of last year's team available for this year, Capt. Bates has a lot of promising material to fill the places of those lost, through graduation. The live interest in baseball will give it added impetus. Here's hope for a successful season.

* * *

Manager Paul Blackmur of the football team has been busy and is progressing finely in his schedule. About six games are already booked for next season.

* * *

Stanley Sherman, Allison Marsh, Harold Gore, Ralph Blake, Glover Howe, and other graduates who are at college, have returned after their vacations.

* * *

Miss Elsie Foss who was visiting Miss Mildred Dunham, '10, was at school on Monday.

* * *

The Juniors will be given a reception by the Seniors on Friday evening beginning at 7.30. All members of either class are invited. The committee on Mr. Cleveland's reception, Miss Lillian Mead, Leon Brown, and Aaron Gould are busily engaged in making arrangements.

* * *

The posters for the Senior dramatics are displayed. The printing was carefully done by Artenus Dingwell '11, while each one contains one of William Northrop's '10 clever drawings of some part in the play.

* * *

Some of the boys held what they termed a "Sock day" on Wednesday, when vari-colored hose was in order. At recess a number formed a procession which marched along the walks and sidewalk within bounds, Indian file.

* * *

The editors of the Goldenrod are planning to have the next issue the "best yet," although the standard of the first two editions has been high and the pace set would seem to be difficult to excel. At the meeting Tuesday they decided to offer three prizes, one of two dollars for the best story, another of like amount for the best poem, and one of one dollar for the next best story. Then, as has been the custom previously, a picture of the staff will be presented.

* * *

It is said that possibly Richard Favorite, Alfred Hanson, Grace DeWolfe, and Mary Cleveland will be the speakers from the Senior class at graduation.

* * *

A cafe has been maintained in the Lynn High school for ten years.

* * *

A notice of the twenty-fifth annual interscholastic track meet of the Harvard Athletic association, to be held in its Stadium on Soldiers Field, May 21, has been posted. The events include, 100 yd., 220 yd. and 440 yd. dash; 880 yd. and mile run; 120-yd. high hurdles, and 220 yd. low hurdles 16 lb. shot put, and twelve pound hammer throw running high, and running broad; and a pole vault. The entries are limited to four men in each event from each school.

* * *

The alumni association of the Bridgewater High school are to present the cantata "Fair Ellen" on Friday evening of next week.

* * *

That the young women members of the Lynn English high school senior class propose to wear on graduation day anything in the dress line that pleases them, was settled at a meeting of the class held after the regular school session Tuesday afternoon says the Globe, when the "simple" gown proposition was defeated by a vote of 34 to 12. The proposal of Miss Esther Harney, major of the girls' battalion, that the senior girls adopt simple white gowns with no expensive trimmings this year, because it has proven a hardship in some cases in years past for parents to provide elaborate graduation dresses, was discussed at some length and finally voted down. Some of the senior boys declared that if the girls are to appear in simple white gowns they propose to wear pink pajamas.

Dr. William H. Burnham of Clark University, Worcester, addressed a large audience of teachers and others at Brookline, recently on "Work and fatigue in the schools." He declared that from one-third to one-half of the children in the schools are chronically diseased or otherwise defective, consequently hygiene is tremendously important if children are to be kept out of the sanatariums and insane asylums. The first great requisite for proper mental activity, he claimed was oxygen. Temperature was almost as important. The compulsory regulation of a temperature at sixty-eight degrees, in most of the schools in New York, he said, was evidence of a great advance in the right direction. The study period and recess took up an important part of his attention. They should vary according to the age and capacity of the pupils. The study period for children of six to nine years should be not over fifteen minutes; from nine to twelve years, twenty-five to thirty minutes; twelve to fourteen years, from thirty-five to forty minutes, and for older pupils, from forty to forty-five minutes. Following each of the study periods recesses varying from five to fifteen minutes should be allowed ,with one of them, at least, to be out of doors.

Statistics and scientific experiment have proved, Dr. Burnham said, that short periods of intense study followed by proper periods of relaxation, produced the highest mental action. And he could not entirely agree with the theory sometimes advanced that hard work was the best cure for fatigue, at least to the point to which it had been carried by a certain German professor whose ideal of rest was to sit with his feet in a pan of cold water, with an eye bandaged to rest it while he read with the other.

CHURCH PERIODICAL CLUB.

Miss Marion De C. Ward of Beacon street, Boston, gave a talk Wednesday afternoon which greatly interested members of the Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's church. Miss Ward has been connected with the C. P. C. several years, and showed a thorough knowledge of her subject—"The church periodical club." She told in a comprehensive way what it is, what it does, and what it needs.

She said she was glad to be there and tell how the work had grown and developed since her last visit; of the need of sending regularly magazines and books to those of the clergy and lastly those unable to procure good literature in any other way. The club has 38 traveling libraries of 60 books and sends Christmas and Easter cards, Bibles, prayer books and hymnals to schools, reading rooms and prisons. She said one could scarcely imagine how these people appreciate this work. Each year C. P. C. is becoming better known to those they want to help. The work is of interest to all—individual and general, religious and secular, educational and amusing, to old, young, rich and poor, all over the world. A clergyman, in Kansas wrote that the magazine sent to him passed through sixty families every month. As one is told of such instances it does seem a trifling matter to wrap, address and pay the postage each month on a magazine to those who get such pleasure and instruction themselves and then pass them on. She told of several dressmakers in isolated places to whom magazines on dressmaking help to earn their living, and of a young ambitious carpenter who is anxious to study architecture, the C. P. C. sends a builders' magazine. Miss Ward read extracts of several letters, including Hawaii and Alaska, and one from Cuba which told of a little girl who had read "Rebecca" and was anxious for the sequel.

After the meeting a contribution of dimes, given by members of the Guild, made it possible to gratify her wish, and Mrs. Hight of Atlantic will send the longed for book at once. Several magazines are sent regularly from members in the parish, and it is hoped the number will be increased this year. The librarian is Mrs. Ama K. Lee, 23 Prospect avenue, who will be glad to tell any how they can help in the work, which seems to be endless in the good that can be accomplished.

COLONEL COOPER GRANTED PARDON

Slayer of Carmack Had Been Refused New Trial

Nashville, April 14.—Governor Pattison has pardoned Colonel Duncan D. Cooper, who was sentenced by a jury to twenty years' imprisonment for the murder of former Senator Edward W. Carmack on Nov. 8, 1908.

The pardon by the governor followed the refusal of the supreme court to grant a new trial to the man who killed his political enemy because of a slight personal quarrel.

The appeal of the two Coopers, father and son, went to the supreme court together. Each had been sentenced to twenty years. The court ordered a new trial for Robin Cooper, the son, who was sentenced for complicity in the crime, but refused it to the father.

SIX DEATHS IN NEW HAVEN FIRE

Firemen Perish While Fighting Flames In County Jail

OTHERS ARE BADLY BURNED

Survivor Tells How Unfortunate Men Were Trapped by Doors Slamming Behind Them When Back-Draft Was Created by Explosion of Tank of Gasolene—Troops Look After Prisoners While Blaze Is In Progress

New Haven, April 14.—Trapped by metal doors and barred windows, six firemen who were fighting flames in a workshop were caught by a back draft and burned to death during the partial destruction of the New Haven county jail.

Three of their comrades were saved through the heroism of other firemen who were outside. The bodies of the six men were found after the debris cooled. Many other firemen were fearfully burned, but remained at work.

The dead are: Captain C. L. Chapman of Truck 1; Lieutenant William J. Doherty of Truck 1, Ladderman John Buckley of Truck 1, Hosemen James T. Cullen, James Mortell and Thomas McGrath of Engine 4.

Six men from Truck 1 were fighting their way through the cell room of the jail into the workshop when an explosion of a gasolene tank caused a back-draft and slammed behind them the iron doors separating the two buildings.

Three of the men were hemmed in a corner and burned to death, while the other three made their way to a barred window, to which they clung with streams of water playing on them from the outside. Soon after reaching the window the roof fell in and ladders were put up from the outside and down the inside and the men taken out. The other dead firemen were caught by the same back-draft, as they were working at the other end of the building, and were carried down by the roof when it fell in.

Cornelius Shugrue, who was found lying at the foot of the wall of the workshop, told how Doherty, Cullen and Mortell met their death. When they found themselves hemmed in by the closing of the doors they made for the cellar in search of air. The flames already licking their clothing, they reached the cellar and searched for a place to get out, but there was none.

"It's up to the roof, boys," said one of the men, and the four men crawled up the stairs again. By this time the building was a mass of flames. Shugrue was the first to reach the roof, and, holding his head in his coat, reached down to Doherty to pull him up to the roof. He got hold of the lieutenant's wrist, but the others, too exhausted by their efforts to reach the upper stories, were unable to help, and Shugrue held on as long as he could and then let go, Doherty dropping into the flames.

The other two he could not see. Shugrue crawled to the edge of the roof and jumped, landing at the foot of the building, where he was found two hours later. Ladderman Vaugh, who was caught in the building, was rescued by James Cronogue, who crawled into the building and put his helmet over Vaugh's face and then pulled him out.

The fire was discovered by a prisoner, and the 175 men in the workshop were sent to their cells. When it was seen that there was danger of the fire spreading to the main building the 246 male and 42 female inmates were taken to the police stations and the Foot Guard armory. Under authority of Governor Weeks three companies of the Second regiment, Connecticut National Guard, were sent to the fire and took charge of the jail grounds and patrolled the surrounding streets.

Last night the prisoners, under military escort, were returned to the jail.

SCHOOL CONFERENCE

Enlargement of Child Nurture Club Is Suggested

The meeting held at the Wollaston Grammar school Monday afternoon a conference of parents and teachers—demonstrate the fact that there is great need of an assembly hall in the new school building. The subject discussed was "Mutual helpfulness between parents and teachers."

Interesting points from the mother's standpoint of mutual helpfulness were brought out by Mrs. Willard E. Keyes and Mrs. Robert E. Park, and showed that they thought the teachers' problem was the mothers' from another point of view. Mrs. Park gave several illustrations of how teachers influence the children and the impression it leaves.

Miss Thayer of the first grade spoke from her experience of twenty years as a teacher and said, it is the opinion of the leading educators that for the welfare of the children it is a mistake to send them to school at five years and they are permanently injured by the premature training. The three great enemies of a child are indigestion, malnutrition and retarded development. If children under school age could be examined and parents learn their true condition ,and be instructed in proper treatment, many minor defects and abnormalties could be corrected during the period of infancy, and much suffering avoided. Little five-year children can do nothing without the constant guidance of the teacher. No matter how faithfully she may labor their little undeveloped brains cannot take it in, and it seems cruel to force them to attend school. From personal experience children who had received a kindergarten training are better equipped to carry on first grade work.

Miss Thayer spoke about regular attendance as with only half a session it was almost impossible to accomplish results, when children are so irregular. Under the present system of reading, interest lags when they are not wholly familiar with the previous lesson. Mothers sometimes do not appreciate the importance of good habits which are formed in the lower grades. It is of the utmost importance that the foundation be thoroughly laid, for it will prevent much trouble in later years. The moral point of regular attendance was also brought out and under the topic of tonsils, adenoids, eyes and teeth, she brought out the great need of prompt and careful attention to the matters. Under physical characteristics she told how the parents could help to a more favorable adjustment of school work by giving the teacher information about the child's health, habits and tendencies, and when parents think their children are not doing in school as well as they ought, they should personally investigate. Both parents and teachers are working for one end, the heart culture of the child, and teachers need the help and encouragement that comes from parents, to accomplish the full measure of success, and they always welcome friendly visits and suggestions.

Before closing the meeting Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham chairman said that the Child Nurture club although a small club, was nevertheless a club which had done a great deal of work. However, some of its members felt that a larger organization could do more. It was therefore suggested by some that a parent and teachers' association might be formed which should work for the progress of education in Quincy along every line and for the betterment of the Wollaston grammar school in particular. If parents and teachers could get together in a large body they might do great things and their social intercourse would lead to a better mutual understanding and more friendly relationship. Several spoke in favor of this plan.

In her remarks Miss Fisher masters' assistant and teacher of grade 8, first called attention to notes for absence, for tardiness and for dismissal. She said in part: "When a pupil is absent the teacher has a right to know the reason. If it has been illness it is very important that she knew. In any case, however, the teacher ought to feel sure that the absence is with the consent of the parent. Some children never return after absence without their written excuse. This is a great help. The teacher is not kept wondering. So in cases of dismissal and in cases where tardiness is not the fault of the child, a note explaining the circumstances should be sent. A note of this kind is merely a matter of courtesy. It is asked for the mutual benefit of parent and teacher and should be cheerfully given.

My second point makes me think of the fact that not many generations ago the home and the school constituted the life of the child. Beyond these he thought little, in fact he knew little. How different today! The master, society, whom you and I serve, demands that our children attend the day school, that they go to dancing school, that they go to parties, the theatre, sociables, concerts ,that they have their little clubs ,that they skate, ride, dance, that they give some thought to appropriate dress for these occasions, and that they help to entertain our friends in our homes. You and I feel the stress of life. The children feel it. Our energy is taxed and is it unreasonable to suppose that their energy is taxed? My boys and girls frequently come in their day's work without having been sufficiently rested. The mind cannot be active in a weary body."

After giving illustrations the speaker said, Fortunate indeed is the teacher when the minds of her scholars are rested and their bodies active. You can help us parents for it is you who regulate these hours of sleep.

Another thing about which it would be helpful to have a clearer understanding is homework. First let me say that in only one grade do we regularly require all members of a class to prepare a home lesson. That is grade 8,—history."

The speaker called attention to the fact that other home work was voluntary and that children in upper grades were encouraged to give a short time each day at home to subjects in which they had a condition. Not more than 30 minutes ought to be given unless it was the wish of the parent who knows better than the teacher the demands made upon the child's time.

Report cards should receive careful consideration. If rank is below "E." the parent has right to know reason.

BAR AND BOTTLE BILL

It Is Passed by Lower Branch of Massachusetts Legislature

Boston, April 14.—The bar and bottle bill, which provides that liquor dealers with bars may not sell bottled goods, passed the house to be engrossed by a voice vote. Just before this final action in the house on the bill an amendment to have it take effect thirty days after its passage, instead of immediately, was defeated by a vote of 132 to 56.

It now goes to the senate for enactment and then to the governor for his signature or veto.

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

Earlier Appropriations for Schools Seem Small

(Historical Paper No. 13.)

Continuing the history of schools and schoolhouses of Quincy of years ago (from March 19, 24 and April 1) the writer finds in Pattee's history that the first recorded appropriations for the establishment of the primary departments, in the various local neighborhoods, was in 1800. That year there were appropriated $400 for the several school districts, and the man's school in the centre of the town, which were divided as follows:—The man's school, $270.00; Farms district, $27.50; Squantum district, $14.00; Hough's Neck district, $22.50; Old Field's district, $11.00 Penn's Hill district, $22.50; Wood's district, $22.50; North district, $14.00.

Thinking it may be of use to those who are interested in the progress of the schools of the town, we give the town appropriations for the public schools, for every fifth year up to 1855. Since that period they can be found in the published reports of the committees.—

1805.—Man's school at the schoolhouse, $400; woman's school at the school-house, $40; North district, $40; Farms district, $40; Wood's district, $40; Hough's Neck and Germantown district, $40; Old Field's district, $40; Squantum, $16.

1835.—At this period, the town made a general appropriation, and the committee divided the money according to the wants of the several districts. The amount to be raised this year by taxation for the schools was $2,000.

1840.—The amount to be assessed for schools was $2,450.

1845.—There was assessed and collected at this time for schools $3,100. The town increased their appropriations nine hundred for the year 1850, making the amount $4,000. In 1855, the appropriation was increased to nearly double what it was the year previous, or thirty-five hundred dollars, making the whole amount $7,500. The whole number of children between the ages of five and fifteen for the year 1855, were 1,159.

For further investigations, see School Committees' reports, the first publication in pamphlet form, was in 1851.

The meets and bounds of the districts above referred to were:

Hough's Neck and Germantown ,to include all the easterly of the causeway near Half Moon, so called, to be one district.

Old Field's district, or what is now called the Point, to begin at and include Nedebiah Bent's, Jr.; also, to begin at and include Edward Miller's Esq., and to include all easterly of said place. (East of Elm street.)

Penn's Hill, to begin at Braintree line and extend northerly as far as the church. (This church was the Episcopal, then located at the corner of School and what is now Phipps streets.) Also, to include Deacon Veazie's Mill (now Fort square.)

Wood's district, to begin at and include the house occupied by Benjamin Pray, deceased, and also to include Richard Dexter's house, and all southerly of said place to Braintree line.

North district, to begin at and include Capt. Benjamin Beal's dwell-ing house, and run to Milton line, and southerly as far as to include Neddy Curtis's farm. The school-house for this district was located near the junction of Common and Adams streets. This district was afterwards organized as the West School district which included at that time the greater part of the West Quincy village, it being principally settled on or towards Adams street.

Squantum district embraced all the the families on said place which appertain to this town.

Farms district began at and included the widow Mariah Ann Beal's house and extended to Dorchester and Milton line; also, as far as, and included, Mr. John Billing's farm.

Centre district included all not within the bounds of the aforementioned districts. The bounds were run April 3, 1809.

In 1810, the name of the Penn's Hill district was changed to the South. In 1820, the man's or ciphering school, became so crowded that a great number of the pupils had to stand, or wait for seats until the recitations of the classes were going on. The school, at this time, was comprised of two hundred and four scholars, and the committee was of an opinion that an assistant teacher was necessary, as mending pens and setting written copies in their writing books, besides attending to the recitations, were more than one person could faithfully attend to. About 1816 the first man's school was established at the Farms district.

TAFT SPEECH INDORSEMENT

Backs the Democratic Proposition of 1896

IT IS THUS VIEWED BY BRYAN

Jeffersonian Letter Read In Washington Stirs Up Friends of Nebraskap, Who Revives Free Silver Ghost by Asserting That President's Utterances of Feb. 12 Constitute a Reversal of Republican Claims

Washington, April 14.—William Jennings Bryan's letter, written from Brazil, read last night before the Democrats who attended the Jefferson day banquet here and those at a similar function in Indianapolis—the letter which caused a commotion among the local banquet committeemen because of what some of them termed its unorthodox doctrine—is as follows:

"I thank you for the invitation to the Jefferson day banquet. While I shall not return to the United States in time to attend, I can join with you in spirit the more heartily because of what I have learned by visiting other countries. I have seen everywhere the influence exerted by his teachings. In the nation in which I am just now sojourning I find illustrations of his ideas of conquest.

"But in our own country as well as abroad his principles are triumphing. He taught that the art of government is the art of being honest, and each new investigation proves the folly of those who refuse to learn of him. He was the foe of monopoly in every form and his name is the one which can with most propriety be invoked when the trusts are attacked.

"I am so far away from home that I am not fully informed as to the recent events, but I have just read of one Jeffersonian victory, namely, the selection of an investigation committee by the house instead of the speaker, and, better still, each party selected its members of the committee.

"But there is another item of news which has just come to my attention. President Taft, in his Lincoln speech at New York, Feb. 12, attributes present high prices mainly to the increase in production of gold and the consequent enlargement of the volume of money. This unexpected endorsement of our party's proposition in 1896, when we demanded more money as the only remedy for falling prices, is very gratifying.

"How valuable that admission would have been to us if it had been made during the campaign of that year, when the Republican leaders were denying that the volume of money had any influence on prices and asserting that it did not matter whether we had much money or little, provided it was all good.

"The time is ripe for a return to Jeffersonian principles, and I trust the representatives of our party will make a record which will secure us a majority at the coming congressional election. With that advantage gained the Democrats will have an opportunity to outline a program, and with a program in harmony with Jeffrsonian ideas the Democracy will enter the presidential campaign with promise of success."

Prominent Democratic senators who hold important roles in the councils of the party are loath to comment upon the letter of Bryan. When approached for statements several Democrats said they did not agree with Bryan on the money question, but that they thought the chances for Democratic success were too bright to be jeopardized now by taking issue with the three-times standard bearer of Democracy.

DEAN OF LAW SCHOOL

Ezra Thayer, Noted as a Lecturer, Is Called to Harvard

Cambridge, Mass., April 14.—The deanship of the Harvard law school, one of the highest honors that can come to a man in the world of law, has been conferred upon Ezra R. Thayer, Harvard '88, of this city. With this honor was also conferred the Dane professorship of law. In each of these positions, the incumbent succeeds the late James B. Ames.

For several years Thayer has been a lecturer at the law school on "Massachusetts Practice" and "Relation of the Medical Profession to the Law and to the Courts."

The new dean is 43 years old and the son of James B. Thayer, for many years Weld professor of law in the Harvard law school, who died in 1902.

Twenty Thousand on Strike

Marseilles, April 14.—Riots and fighting between strikers and gendarmes have filled the hospitals with wounded. Clashes are frequent, in spite of the presence of military reinforcements. Retail trade is crippled. Strike leaders declare that 20,000 workers are out.

Francis Joseph Welcomes Kerens

Vienna, April 14.—Emperor Francis Joseph gave a cordial welcome to Ambassador Richard C. Kerens, who presented his credentials as ambassador to Austria-Hungary in succession to Charles S. Francis.

NEW POLICE CHIEF LIFTS ST. LOUIS LID

Even Raids on Fan-Tan Players Are Now Discontinued

St. Louis, April 14.—The lid on euchre parties, boxing matches, kite flying and fan-tan, ordered by ex-Chief of Police Crecy, has been removed in the first official announcement of the new chief, William Young.

Under the new ruling women may play euchre as long as they wish and for whatever prizes they may desire just as long as they do not hire a hall. Boys may play baseball on vacant lots and in alleys whenever they please and fly kites to their hearts' content, pleasures denied to them by Young's predecessor.

Boxing and sparring matches will be permitted before regularly organized clubs, and there will be no interference as long as the affairs do not become slugging matches. Chinese residents will be permitted to play fan-tan, and the fruitful raids of the past few months will not be repeated.

MISS LE BLANC'S GOODS

Mrs. Glover and Her Counsel Restrained From Disposing of Them

Cambridge, Mass. April 14—Mrs. Lillian M. Glover and her attorney, Samuel D. Elmore, are restrained by an injunction issued by Judge Richardson in the equity session of the superior court from disposing of the clothing, letters, papers or other documents of Hattie Le Blanc, who is under indictment for the murder of Clarence Glover.

The injunction was issued on a bill brought by Miss Le Blanc against Mrs. Glover and her counsel. Elmore has admitted having part of the effects of the young woman, but refused to deliver the property to her because he was directed not to do so by District Attorney Higgins of Middlesex county.

"IN A BAD WAY"

Many a Quincy Reader Will Feel Grateful for This Information.

When your back gives out;
Becomes lame, weak or aching;
When urinary troubles set in,
Your kidneys are "in a bad way."
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.

Here is local evidence to prove it:

Mrs. F. Olsen, 197 Whitwell Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time my back was weak and gave me a great deal of trouble. I could not sit up in a chair for more than a few minutes at a time without having severe pains in my back. I was also subject to headaches and dizzy spells and at times was very nervous. I was becoming discouraged when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and through their use received immediate relief. I did not expect to be speedily cured, as my condition was so serious, but I can say that the results could not have been more satisfactory. In a few weeks I was restored to good health. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly have my highest endorsement."

SERIOUSLY BURNED

Clothing of Little Girl Takes Fire at Home

Mary Louise, the 7 year old daughter of James S. Mellen, of 773 Washington street, a boiler maker employed at the Fore River, was seriously if not fatally burned this noon.

Just how the little girl's clothing took fire is not just clear. Mrs. O'Neil, who lives next door, says that she saw the little girl in the yard picking up pieces of shingles and then saw her enter the house with an arm full. A few minutes later her attention was attracted by cries of the girl, and looking out she saw her run out of the house with her clothing all ablaze.

Mrs. O'Neil rushed to the little girl's aid, and J. White Hayden, who had also heard the cries, came to Mrs. O'Neil's assistance. By hard work they succeeded in extinguishing the fire, but not until Mr. Hayden's hands were so badly burned that he had to have medical assistance.

The police ambulance was called and the little girl was rushed to the City Hospital. She is so badly burned, however, that the physicians have but little hope of saving her life.

Investigation showed that the little girl was at home all alone at the time, and it is supposed that she attempted to build a fire in the kitchen stove, when her clothing became ignited.

WOOLWORTH'S OPENING.

There appears in another section of this paper, an advertisement announcing the opening of Woolworth's new 5 and 10 cent store in the Adams Building, City Square.

Many months have elapsed since Quincy first heard that this well known firm had decided to locate here and at no time have these Quincy people forgotten it. It has been the talk of the city, many believing it to be one of the best drawing cards to attract outside buyers that could possibly locate here.

One thing that impressed business men was the fact that Quincy contractors and help were given the preference in alterations, etc.

There has been installed in this "light as day" store 4000 watts of tungsten lights and the public will be surprised at the brilliancy as they enter to inspect.

Friday afternoon at two o'clock the store will be thrown open for inspection and an orchestra has been engaged to give a concert during the afternoon and evening.

The policy of this far-famed firm is to sell the same goods at the small stores as their largest ones offer and when it is taken into consideration they operate 250 stores in England and America, it can be seen that a fine opportunity is offered local residents.

This store is without doubt the best lighted store in Norfolk county and it will not be long before it will also be known as the busiest if one can judge by the interest shown on all sides.

Local saleswomen have been secured and all that remains is to wait until Friday afternoon when the store will doubtless be filled to overflowing with future patrons.

—In investigating the relative cost of various kinds of amusements in Boston, a club there has found out that Boston has a greater number of the cheaper class of attractions than any city of its size in the country, the moving picture and vaudeville shows comprising an undue percentage of the popular amusements. And this is the wail that comes from the intellectual Hub of the nation. —Framingham News.

NEIGHBORHOOD MEETING.

Wednesday was a special day with Quincy Alliance, for it was the day when neighboring Alliances were their guests for the day. This gathering is one that is looked forward to with pleasant anticipation each year and that of Wednesday, held in First church chapel, proved no exception. An innovation was the holding of an all-day meeting instead of the usual afternoon session.

The chapel looked very attractive when the session opened at 11 o'clock. Bouquets of spring flowers, white gowns worn by the hostesses, and attractive spring costumes of the visitors, all presented an attractive and animated scene. A conference was held in the morning, when interesting reports were given of Alliance work, followed by papers on the "Cheerful Letter Work" and "Post Office Missions" read by Mrs. William B. Nichols of Quincy and Mrs. Cobb of Milton. Miss Harriet Johnson of Boston spoke on "Sunday School Work."

Members of the various Alliances were arriving all the morning, and through the noon hour, during which a lunch was served in the lower rooms of the chapel, which was one of the pleasant and enjoyable features of the day and participated in by 150. Mrs. Wilson Tisdale was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Helen Bass, Mrs. George G. Saville, Mrs. George T. Magee, Mrs. Osborne Rogers, Mrs. Henry M. Wright, Mrs. G. Walter Flint, Miss Lucy Spear, Miss Mary Holden, Mrs. Ralph L. Lovell, Mrs. Horace G. Crocker, Mrs. William F. Hodgkinson, Mrs. Thomas Bixby, Mrs. Isabelle Davis, Mrs. John L. Gow and Miss Flora Underwood. Members of the Junior Alliance to assist were: Miss Irma Tilton, Miss Mollie Harris, Miss Muriel Rogers and Miss Harriet Waldron.

Mrs. Edward B. Mash, president of the Quincy Alliance, again presided at the afternoon session, and called the meeting to order at two o'clock. It was a large gathering. The regular Alliance program was caried out and the business of the morning finished, after which an entertaining program was given. Mrs. Evans contributed piano solos, Mrs. Mary Hastings Slade sang two groups of songs accompanied at the piano by Mrs. George E. Pfaffmann. One group of Scotch songs by Mrs. Slade sung in compliment to Rev. Daniel Munro Wilson, speaker of the afternoon, was particularly pleasing.

Mr. Wilson's paper was on "Race Influence in Religion," and he received marked attention throughout as well as many pleasant greetings at the close of the session.

All in all it was one of the pleasantest "neighborhood meetings" ever held by Quincy Alliance, and the committee of twenty having charge of the arrangements may well feel pleased at the pleasant culmination of their plans.

TODAY'S COURT.

CANNON LIKELY TO STICK

Will Not Heed Advice to Spike Guns of the Insurgents

Washington, April 14.—Those who know the dispositton and character of Speaker Cannon are little inclined to credit the report that Cannon will anticipate his own deposition by announcing just before that time that he is not to seek re-election as speaker.

Pacific political advisers, it is said, urge the speaker that if he will, toward the close of the present session, announce his unwillingness to be speaker of the house again he will steal the thunder of the insurgents, remove the issue of Cannonism and please the peace-loving president. Some of the insurgents seem to believe that Cannon will do this, but it is not likely.

The speaker, say his intimates, would rather sacrifice his party than his pride and intends to charge the inevitable disruption of the Republican party this fall to the insurgent movement.

"HOUNDED BY SPIRITS"

French Workman Says He Was Urged to Kill Premier Briand

Saint-Etienne, France, April 14.—A workman named Duplanil, who was armed with a brace of revolvers and a knife and declared that he wished to kill Premier Bdiand, was arrested as he attempted to force his way into the hotel where the premier is stopping.

Duplanil is believed to have been crazed by drink. Following his detentfon he said that he was hounded by spirits which urged him to slay Briand.

The premier is continuing in this district the electoral campaign which he opened at St. Chamond Sunday, when he encountered unfriendly demonstrations by anarchists and revolutionary groups. Duplanil, it was learned, has been following Briand since Sunday, when he mingled with the manifestants at St. Chamond.

HARTRIDGE LOSES CASE

Claimed Balance of $92,000 Was Due Him as Counsel For Thaw

New York, April 14.—Clifford W. Hartridge, one of the attorneys who defended Harry Thaw in his first trial for the murder of Stanford White, failed in his effort to collect from Mrs. Mary Thaw, the prisoner's mother, a balance of $92,000 for counsel fees and disbursements which he claimed to be due him.

More than that, Judge Holt, of the United States circuit court, in denying Hartridge's motion to set aside the sealed verdice of the jury which had heard Hartridge's suit against Mrs. Thaw, said that an inquiry was called for regarding the professional conduct of Hartridge and to determine whether ground existed for a perjury prosecution.

Hartridge had already been paid $32,000. His suit for $92,000 and interest which he claimed to be due as a balance has been on trial for several days.

It is rumored around the yard that Haughey has been found not guilty of the embezzlement charge and guilty, with extenuating circumstances, of the negligence charge.

—In 1882 some 425 per 1,000 of the population of Germany were engaged in agricultural pursuits. Now 286 per 1000 are agriculturalists, while 562 are following other lines. These figures explain Germany's fiercely determined pursuit of foreign trade in the last decade or two. Her people increasingly concentrating on industrial enterprise, she must have foreign markets for their output.—Boston Record.

CREDITS TALE OF ALASKANS

Comment of Professor Parker on Ascent of M'Kinley

NO EFFECT ON COOK'S CLAIM

Brooklyn Man Claimed to Have Climbed Mountain From South, of Which No Proof Is Yet Forthcoming —Columbia Professor Will Not Change Plans For His Expedition Which Is Soon to Start

New York, April 14.—A small party of explorers, all members of the Explorers' club, met in a restaurant here to give a farewell dinner for Professor Herschel C. Parker of Columbia university and Belmore Browne and Professor John H. Cuntz of Stevens Institute, who will leave the city on April 27 to climb Mount McKinley from its southern side.

Professor Parker and Browne were members of Dr. Cook's expedition, and it is one of their main objects to prove or disprove Cook's claim to having reached the mountain's summit after he had left them many miles from its base.

Neither hesitated to say that he believed the Alaskan party had reached the summit, since its report was so definite as to remove the claim from the realm of controversy. Either they would find the cairn the Alaskans say they built at the peak and prove their claim, they declared, or they would not find it and disprove it—that is, if they reached the top themselves.

Professor Parker contended, however, that the success of the Alaskans had neither proved nor disproved Cook's claim, since the latter's data was so vague and indefinite as to make a complete topographical report and a full set of photographs necessary, either in substantiation or disproof. Furthermore, the scientist said, Cook essayed the mountain from the southern side, and the Alaskans scaled it from the north. The southern side, he added, presented much greater difficulties, no white man ever having gone within fifteen miles of the mountain's base from that quarter, unless Cook actually accomplished what he says he did.

"We would have liked to made the first ascent," he told the explorers. "But as far as Mr. Browne and I can judge the report of its achievement seems authentic and accurate. The southern side, however, remains unexplored, and our plans remain unchanged. I hope the Alaskans have cleared up the northern side, as they had a surveyor with them. We are to reach the summit, if possible, from the southern side and explore scientifically the southern and southeastern approaches to the mountain. If as much has been done for the northern side then we won't have to return another year to complete the circuit."

Professor Parker is inclined to doubt that Mt. McKinley is the "top of the continent." That is another main object of the expedition, to measure accurately the height of the mountain. Measurement by triangulation, he said, was inclined to be faulty because of atmospheric refraction. Absolute accuracy could only be obtained, he explained, by barometric observations taken at different altitudes.

If Mount McKinley is found to be 20,000 or more feet high it is the "top." If, however, it falls short of 20,000 feet, then several peaks over the Canadian border are higher. Its altitude is given at present as 20,300 feet. Government surveyors reached this figure by triangulation.

The Parker party is to consist of six members. Besides the three named, Waldemar Grassi of Columbia university and H. L. Tucker of the Appalachian club will be included. When Seattle is reached they hope to get an engineer to run the moter boat in which they will proceed from Cook inlet to as near the base of the mountain as conditions will allow. The easiest and most reasonable method of approaching the mountain, Parker said, was in winter, from the northern side by dog sledges, as the Alaskans had done. Conditions for the climb, too, he considered were much more favorable in winter. But to adopt such a course, he pointed out, would make necessary spending the entire winter in Alaska.

NAVAL ORDERS.

Washington news of Thursday reports these orders:

Lieut. F. V. McNair to command of submarine Cuttlefish built at Quincy.

QUARRY FATALITY.

Eleven men, were crushed to death in the stone quarry of the Nazareth portland cement company near Nazareth, Penn., on Wednesday. A premature explosion tore loose 5000 tons of stone, covering the victims. The men were scattered in all directions, some being hurled many feet into the air. The entire side of the mountain of rock was torn loose, and the unfortunate laborers were covered with earth and stone. In the work of rescue some bowlders were encountered that had to be blasted before they could be removed.

STILL ALARM.

The Central station apparatus was called to the Adams building in City Square at 7.50 Thursday night by a telephone call for a fire in a waste paper can on the first floor. The can which had a cover to it, sat in the corner near the stairway leading to the photographers rooms, and started from some unknown cause. It created considerable smoke filling the upper rooms. Lawyer Teasdale, who has an office on the first floor, rushed out to sound an alarm from Box 26. He met Chief of Police Burrell on the street who sent him back to telephone the fire station. Meanwhile Chief Burrell rushed up stairs, and taking the can in his arms rushed down stairs with it and dumped the contents in the street, where it was extinguished by the firemen with a chemical. The fire did not get outside of the can, and aside from filling the rooms with smoke no damage was done.

SLOGAN ADOPTED

By Ward Four Improvement Association

A largely attended meeting of the West Quincy Improvement Association was held Thursday evening. The first matter taken up was that of the city taking the triangular plot of land bounded by Copeland, West and Common streets for a public playground. After some discussion it was voted to petition the City Council to purchase the lot.

The question of care of the clock on the Methodist church on Hall place was next considered. It was argued that the clock was of great convenience to all residents of West Quincy, and that it was therefore very desirable that it should be kept correct. No definite action was taken, however.

Seats on the parkway were also touched upon, and the Park Commissioners will be interviewed.

The question on which most of the discussion came, was on the trolley freight. This petition was discussed pro and con for nearly two hours. Some argued that it would be a good thing, while others were against it. The general sentiment, however, seemed to be for a limited franchise.

It was voted that the Association record itself as being against a perpetual franchise, but would favor a franchise for twenty years, provided that the local company had a right to enter the City of Boston.

A committee consisting of W. H. Teasdale, Joseph Walker, James F. Burke, John Evans and Stephen B. Little were appointed to attend the hearing before the City Council on Monday evening and express the sentiment of the association.

The new membership card adopted by the association has the following slogan on the reverse side:

"Ward Four Improvement Association needs your help and your hearty assistance in every possible way, in order to be prosperous and aggressive.

"Attend the meetings—Push the work of the Association—Talk up West Quincy—Bring forward new ideas.

"Work for Ward Four."

LONG MINISTRY.

At the New England Methodist Episcopal conference held at Westfield this week, Rev. William J. Heath of the Atlantic M. E. church was given superannuated relations with the conference, and he will retire this week after 53 years' service in the ministry including six years at Wollaston and one year at Atlantic.

His pastorate at the Atlantic church will be taken by Rev. H. A. Fishel, who is now completing a course at the Boston university, who begins his pastorate next Sunday.

The following year he was appointed pastor at Peru, and while there had differences with some of the church officers, owing to their views concerning the Civil war. Rev. Mr. Heath was an ardent Union sympathizer, and some of the officers of the church were advocates of the confederacy.

After leaving Peru, Rev. Mr. Heath filled pastorates at Glens Falls, Schuylerville, Canajoharie, Harts Falls, Amsterdam, Schenectady, Albany, Cohoes and Cambridge, N. Y. and Burlington, Vt.

In 1903 he came to Quincy after having filled several pastorates in Massachusetts, and he has been a resident of this city ever since. He was married Feb. 16, 1858, to Miss Angelica Gallup, and she, four daughters and one son are living. In February, 1908, Rev. and Mrs. Heath observed their golden wedding.

COMMISSION NAMED

Will Determine the Basis of Park Assessments

The counsel for the cities and towns of the Metropolitan Park district, who responded at the hearin glast week before the Supreme court relative to park assessments, and were requested to agree upon a commission, reported this morning to the Attorney General.

The gentlemen selected were: Ernest Vaughn, City Solicitor of Worcester; Fred L. Hall of Taunton and Charles G. Bancroft of Natick.

These apointments were presented by the Attorney General to the Supreme court at 10 o'clock and were confirmed.

RESERVE POLICE.

Mayor Shea this morning appointed Henry Hathorn and William J. Hebert as members of the reserve police force to fill the vacancies caused by the promotion of Officers Phillips and Duane to the regular force. Both appointments were made under the civil service rules. Officer Hathorn is a street railway conductor and has been a special officer for several years. Officer Hebert is employed in the freight department of the New Haven railroad at the West Quincy depot. The appointments take effect Saturday.

CLOSED WITH RECEPTION.

The current events class which has met once a month during the season at the Quincy Women's club has proved one of the enjoyable features of club life. Mrs. May Alden Ward has been the lecturer and the class has been under the auspices of the Art and Literature committee of which Mrs. Charles Bickford is chairman.

Thursday afternoon the closing lecture was given and being the last was made an especially attractive one. Mrs. Ward spoke entirely of events in our own country, touching upon Roosevelt in Italy. She explained in detail the position of Congress and Speaker Cannon. Mrs. Ward was given close attention throughout her talk and at the close an informal reception was given her, those present being glad to meet her personally.

During the reception the committee served coffee and cake, the pourers being Mrs. Edward Russell and Mrs. H. B. Bailey and the assistants were members of the committee.

Mrs. Bickford announced that there would probably be another class next winter which would meet oftener, if enough subscribed to make it feasible.

ANOTHER LOT IS NOW DESIRED

If a Twelve-Room School Building Is to be Erected at Wollaston

Some Question About Proceeds from Present Lot

A special meeting of the School Committee was held Thursday evening to take action on the question of a site for a school lot at Wollaston. The special committee appointed to investigate sites reported that it would be inadvisable to build a twelve-room school building on the present school lot, as it is not large enough.

The committee voted to recommend the purchase of a new lot, on the corner of Beale and Taylor streets, diagonally across from the present lot. It is understood that the lot can be purchased for the sum that could be realized by the sale of the present lot.

There has been some question if the proceeds of the sale of the present lot could be used for the purchase of a new site.

The deed provides that if the lot is sold the money shall be used for educational purposes. Another clause provides that the income of the sum received for the sale of the lot shall be used for educational purposes. Legal opinion rendered to the committe, however, is that the proceeds for the sale of the present lot could be used to purchase the proposed lot.

ESCAPED PRISONER

Arrested in New Hampshire for Quincy Officers

Word was received by the police late Thursday night that Albert Gordon, who made his escape from the police station March 29, had been arrested in Fitzwilliam, N. H., where he is being held for the Quincy police.

Gordon was arrested for breaking and entering at Quincy and when arraigned in court had his case continued for a few days. In the meantime, unable to secure bonds, he was confined at the police station. He was allowed the freedom of the cell room and securing a piece of iron pipe he succeeded in prying out the iron bar frame of one of the windows. An hour or two later the police discovered that their bird had flown.

The case was brought to the attention of the grand jury last week and Gordon was indicted. Thursday Lieut. McKay learned that Gordon was in Fitzwilliam, N. H. He communicated with the sheriff at that place with the result that Gordon was arrested. Lieut. McKay will go after him.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Some day the hens may strike at the way the ages of their eggs are questioned.

Reno, Nev., won't divorce its divorce colony. It would have to surrender too much alimony.

Wonder if those twelve deaths from whiskey with poison at Westerly will cause a general boycott of the saloons.

In two years Melrose school children have saved $5,475 by the stamp saving system which seems to encourage thrift. Suppose it had all gone into candy?

The census of 1905 showed that Quincy had doubled in population since 1885, and the census of 1910 will show that the city has doubled since 1890, a period of twenty years.

"Eighty-cent gas has proved enormously profitable to the producing company in New York," says the Pittsburg Dispatch. However, we do not expect the company of its own accord further to reduce the price, even to 79 cents.

Charles W. Morse's excuse that he ought to be unjailed because he only did what plenty other high financiers did and got away with, doesn't seem to make a hit. It merely causes the country to wonder why the others are not put in stripes with him.

Ida Vernon the well known actress who celebrates tonight the fifty-fourth anniversary of her first appearance on the stage, at the Park Theatre, where she is appearing as Lady Creech in "The Man From Home," is a living refutation of the claim that it is injurious for children to go upon the stage. She commenced at the age of twelve at the Boston Theatre, and has not missed a season since. Her best friends will not believe that she is sixty-six years old, but that is what it adds up to.

"Back to the farm" idea seems to have caught the children. Here in Quincy there will be 1000 vegetable and flower gardens prepared and cared for entirely by children. This with the intermixture of summer sports bids fare to keep the youngster so busy they will have no time to get into mischief. The example of the children could be well followed by many parents. Think what an inspiration it would be to a boy if his father entered into competition with him with a garden and what a benefit to the father. "Back to the farm" is a good slogan.

What is the aim of the advocates of water meters for Quincy? The Councilmen should remember that they are expected to protect the interests of Quincy, which may be distinct from those of the water takers.

Are they endeavoring to obtain water at their houses cheaper? If so, ask the Mayor to reduce the rates; it would not decrease the revenue any more than would the cost of meters, even when distributed over 30 years.

Are they seeking to increase the revenue of the city? The installation of meters will decrease the revenue.

Are they anxious to reduce the consumption of water? That is something that need not concern the people of Quincy to any great extent.

Are they trying to reduce the Metropolitan assessments? Then work for a change in the basis of apportionment. The basis should be on the valuation (not on the city's consumption of water) because the first cost is still the big item in the assessment. The amount of water used is an extremely small factor. If all the cities of the district were a part of Boston the cost would be levied in taxes upon the valuation.

Are they anxious to pay more for water in their tax bills? That is what large appropriations for water meters will do.

Are they trying "to get square" with the other fellow who they think pays less or is allowed to use more water? This seems to be the real motive. But is it worth while if it increases Quincy's burden? It certainly will increase Quincy's debt; also the maturing debt, and the annual interest account, and operate to retard a reduction in water rates. In many cases the city will never get back from individuals the cost of installing meters at their houses. Therefore it is a poor investment on the part of the city.

If the aim is to render justice to taxpayers and water takers alike, the city should first of all, sell all water at a profit. When it sells for less than 15 cents per 1,000 gallons, as it does now to the shipyard and others, the city loses money, for it does not take into consideration the large leakage from mains and all the items of expense, viz: maintenance, interest, maturing debt and Metropolitan assessment.

The Daily Ledger has already presented figures which show that the consumption of water has been reduced in Quincy. The daily average was 121,100 gallons less in 1909 than in 1905, a total of 47,851,500 gallons less for the year. One would naturally expect such a large decrease in consumption would decrease the Metropolitan assessment, but what has been the result? The assessments have increased from $35,832.50 in 1905 to $51,230.04 in 1909. There has been some increase in income from water, but it has been wholly from new services. In 1905 there were 5,827 services, while in 1909 there were 6,814.

The city has already expended a large sum in installing meters, which cost on an average about $10 each. To meter the whole city will cost $70,000, entailing an annual cost of over $5,000—made up of $2800 for interest, $2333 the annual payment on debt, and a large sum for inspection and repairs. To this cost should be added a loss of perhaps $5,000 or $10,000 per year in revenue to the city.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

It is 45 years ago since the news of the assassination of President Lincoln carried sorrow into every true American heart. He had carried the country through four years of terrible war, and seen the Union cause triumph. With the cup of victory still at his lips he was stricken down by an assassin, and became the first martyr President. The act, ostensibly for the benefit of the South, was really a very severe blow to that section which had continued the long but hopeless struggle from April 12, 1861, to April 9, 1865. Abraham Lincoln was the best friend the South had in the country, and long ago the leading minds of that section have come to realize and acknowledge it. The North, glad that the end of strife had come, looking upon Lincoln as the deliverer from the hardships of the four years preceding his death, was overwhelmed with grief as the sad news was spread over the land. Lincoln did not live to enjoy the fruits of his labors, but his memory is held dear and his name will always be reverenced.

A trade-unionist who believes in the open shop is so rare a phenomenon that people will rub their eyes twice bfore they start in on the account given in the Times of a speech delivered last night by the Secretary of the American Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Mr. Stone said that he did not believe in driving men into the unions by force. Of his belief in organized labor he left no doubt; to the unions he gave credit for great improvements in the standards of living and conditions of employment. Mr. Stone is evidently one of those men of whom there are altogether too few in this world, who do not believe that because a thing is good in their eyes it must therefore be forced down evrybody's throat. It is a degree of charity we are not accustomed to find in our labor leaders, and as such deserves to be signalized. —New York Evening Post.

RESTRICTION FOR FOURTH

Sale of Blank Cartridges, Toy Pistols, Etc.

A drastic restriction of the sale and use of fire-crackers and other explosives which for years have formed a part of the celebration of the "Glorious Fourth" in Massachusetts is contained in a bill reported to the Legislature this week, by the committee on mercantile affairs. It reads as follows:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, to sell or keep for sale any blank cartridge, toy pistol, toy gun or toy cannon that can be used to fire a blank cartridge, or to sell or keep for sale, or to fire, explode or cause to explode any blank cartridge or bomb; or to sell or keep for sale, or to set off, explode or cause to explode any firecracker containing chlorate of potash or any other explosive substance more powerful than black gun powder, or any fireworks containing any picric acid or pierates, or any fire crackers exceeding two inches in length and three-eighths of an inch in diameter; provided that this section shall not apply to illuminating fireworks set off between the hours of 7 o'clock P. M., and 12 o'clock P. M., excepting those containing picric acid or picrates, or to the sale of any article herein named to be shipped directly out of the State, or to the sale or use of explosives to be used in the firing of salutes by official authorities, or to the sale and use of blank cartridges for a duly licensed show or theatre, for signal purposes in athletic sports, for experimenting at an explosive manufactory, or for the firing of salutes with cannon on shore or on boats where a permit has been secured from the chief of the district police or from some official designated by him for that purpose, or to the sale for use, or use by the militia, or any organization of war veterans, or in teaching the use of firearms by experts, but the last provision shall not apply on a holiday.

Section 2. No building shall be used in any city or town for the manufacture of fireworks or firecrackers, without a license from the mayor and aldermen or selectmen, respectively, and a permit from the chief of the district police. Cities and towns respectively may by ordinances and by-laws prohibit the sale or use of fireworks or firecrackers within such city or town, or may limit the time within which firecrackers and torpedoes may be used.

Section 3. The detective and fire inspection department of the district police may adopt and prescribe regulations for the keeping, storage, transportation, manufacture, sale or use of fireworks and firecrackers not inconsistence with the first and secod sections of this act.

Section 4. The chief of the district police may designate some official of each city and town who shall, when so designated, grant the permits not otherwise provided for that may be required by the regulations provided for in the preceding section, in accordance with such regulations and keep a record of the same. A fee of 50 cents may be charged for each of such permits. Said chief may revoke any permit granted under the authority of this act, or a permit may be revoked for cause by any official who granted the same.

Section 5. Whoever violates any provision of this act or any regulation, ordinance or by-laws made under authority thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $100, or imprisonment for not more than 30 days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Section 6. So much of any act as is inconsistent herewith is hereby repealed.

—The increasingly wide observance of Holy Week is a practical contradiction of the frequent plaint that religion is on the decline among us. The fear that such observance would be construed as an alignment with "papacy and prelacy," which tortured certain denominations in earlier times, has totally vanished, and the significance of this special season is now broadly accepted with all its beautiful and solemnizing symbolism. This is drawing professing Christians nearer together. It is minimizing denominational difference and creating a broader fellowship. Moreover it affords a more definite measure of the strength of religious forces ,which now operate through many organizations besides the churches.—Boston Transcript.

ARE AGAIN AWAITING END OF THE WORLD

Holy Rollers Certain That It Will Come on June 21

Duxbury, Mass., April 15.—The end of the world is coming again, according to another vision of Eva Brown of Pawtucket, and hundreds of Triune Immersionists began a convention here to prepare for the expected event. This coming end of the world is to be "without fail."

June 21 is the date set by Miss Eva's vision for the world's finish. Eva announces that "something terrible is to happen on June 21."

The Triune Immersionists have been called Holy Rollers and "End of the World Leaders." But the first of these names is the one which they use themselves. It comes from the triple form of immersion, which is conducted at the conventions. Hundreds were immersed last year.

At that time many gave away their earthly goods and chattels and waited confidently for the termination of this earth. When the expected failed to happen the immersionists went over their calculations and ascertained that a mistake had occurred.

CAR STRIKERS RETURN

Primary Cause of Trouble In Philadelphia Is to Be Arbitrated

Philadelphia, April 15.—The committee of nineteen, composed of representatives of striking motormen and conductors from each of the barns of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company, met last night and voted in favor of accepting a settlement offered by the company through representatives of the American Federation of Labor.

The terms of the settlement have not yet been made public, but it is said they include many of the features of the proposal made on March 20, when the company agreed to take back all the strikers and to guarantee them $2 a day until regular runs could be secured for them. The cases of the 174 men whose discharge precipitated the strike on Feb. 19 will be submitted to arbitration.

COSTA RICA MENACED

Earthquake Shocks Have Done Much Damage and Still Continue

San Jose, C. R., April 15.—A series of earthquakes, varying in intensity, visited Costa Rica, doing vast damage, the extent of which can only now be estimated at more than $1,000,000. So far, there has been no report of loss of life, but the people in the cities are panic stricken and are abandoning their homes for the hillsides.

In all there have been over thirty shocks. Property in San Jose to the value of several hundred thousand dollars has been destroyed, but it is feared that it will total far more than this, for the vibrations of the earth have not yet ceased.

MORE POISON VICTIMS

Deaths of Persons Who Drank Bad Whisky Now Number Twelve

Westerly, R. I., April 15.—With a death roll numbering twelve, of which three names were added since Wednesday, interest in the alleged wholesale whisky poisonings in Westerly and adjacent towns took a new turn. The police are now working on a theory that the poisoned whisky is "moonshine" made in some back kitchen and doctored with drugs to make it palatable.

These drugs ignorantly used have made the concoction a deadly poison. Three raids have already been made in the Italian quarter and, although a large amount of whisky and other intoxicants was found, nowhere was any evidence of "moonshining" found.

Chief of Police Bransfield says that summonses to appear in the superior court at Kingston Monday have been served uopn seven persons believed to possess valuable information in connection with the dozen mysterious deaths.

NEW ENGLAND WOULD BENEFIT

By Establishment of New Steamship Lines

Those who favor the ocean mail bill now before Congress declare that it is not a ship subsidy bill, as it merely provides compensation for service performed; that the measure does not make any increase in the tonnage tax, or contain any provision except for the establishment of new contract mail service, and that it does not add one dollar to the pay of existing lines, as the increased rates of compensation apply only to specified routes.

It is claimed that Boston should be in a position to secure some of the contemplated steamship lines, inasmuch as the ocean mail law requires that contracts shall be "equitably distributed" among the Atlantic and other ports. Moreover, it is stated that such a service would bring Boston within 17 days of Buenos Ayres, shortening by at least one-half the present time between the two ports by the slow steamship of foreign register.

A fast and regular steamship service between Boston and Argentina would afford valuable facilities for New England manufacturers and merchants in importing hides and wool, and would also afford an outlet into an important foreign market for the manufactured products of New England. It is also believed that New England would profit by stimulation of American shipbuilding, it being estimated that the bill would cause the building of from 20 to 40 steamships of from 8000 to 15,000 tons register for the South American and oriental routes.

The directors of the Boston Chamber of Commerce have endorsed the ocean mail bill, and will submit the question to the chamber for action next Wednesday.

PATRIOT'S DAY TRAIN SERVICE.

For the convenience of those who seek summer cottages, and those who have already chosen their summer abiding place and desire to make arrangements for the opening of their homes, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has arranged special train service on Patriot's day, April 19.

There will be special trains for Cape Cod points to Hyannis and Chatham; to Buzzards Bay resorts; to Nantasket Beach; to the South Shore summering places and Plymouth.

Announcement is also made by the passenger department of the New Haven road of a special arrangement of suburban trains on Patriots' day. Many trains will be discontinued on this day and regular trains will perform extra service to take care of the holiday travel.

FOUR CANDIDATES.

John Adams Commandry, K. of M., enjoyed one of the best convocations of the season on Thursday evening, being attended by almost the full membership. The third degree was conferred on four companions, after which the instructions were given by Deputy Grand Commander J. A. Bamford, who afterwards installed the captain general who was absent at the time of the regular installation. After a mass of regular business the Malta degree team rehearsed in preparation for the working of that degee on a number of novices. The commandry was highly complimented by the deputy on the efficiency of the degree teams and good condition of the commandry in general.

MAKING ROOM FOR HOSEA.

Dr. Edward Everett Hale was a foe to long sermons. He used to tell a story of a long-winded preacher and the minor prophets.

"This preacher," so Dr. Hale would begin, "once preached over an hour on the four greater prophets, and then, when his exhausted congregation thought he was through, he took a long breath, turned a fresh page, and, leaning over the pulpit, said:

"'We now come to the more complex question of the minor prophets. First let us assign to them their proper order. Where, brethern, shall we place Hosea.'

"An irascible old gentleman in a back pew, rose, took his hat and stick, and said as he departed:

"'Place him here if you want to. I'm going.'"—Washington Star.

PRESIDENT BOWLES

Entertains Argentina Commission at His Home

The naval commission from Argentina, who are in this country to inspect the work on the battleship contracts awarded to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, found Boston and Massachusetts hospitable on Thursday evening, and are enthusiastic over the reception given them at the residence of President and Mrs.

GOVERNOR DRAPER.

Francis Tiffany Bowles, at 148 Marlboro street, Boston. The reception was given in honor of Admiral Domecq Garcia and he was accompanied by the nine members of the commission who are in this country, viz:

Capt. Aquirrie.
Commander Storni.
Commander Espindola.
Lieut. Commander Sernauder.
Lieut. Commander C. M. Valladares
Lieut. Senesi.
Lieut. Valerio Masjoan.
Lieut. M. Bianchi.
Lieut. Casanova.

The reception was attended by prominent officials and ex-officials including Governor S. Draper, ex-Governor John D. Long, ex-Governor Curtis Guild, Charles Schwab, the Pennsylvania steel magnate, and over 200 others. The reception was at 9 o'clock, and the rooms were crowded for a couple of hours. An orchestra of five pieces furnished music and refreshments were served in the dinning room all the evening. Mrs. Bowles in a rich black silk gown with gold beaded trimming was assisted in receiving by a dozen of the new debutante of this season. Plants and ferns added to the attractiveness of the scene. It was a brilliant affair.

—The Chicago public schools have introduced in their system a course teaching humane treatment of animals. This is a move in the right direction. Much cruelty in the world comes from thoughtlessness, and children especially are given to ill-treating animals because they do not realize the pain which they inflict. The effect of such an educational course in humanity will prove more than useful along other lines than mere consideration for animals. The principles of kindness and justice instilled will bear fruit in higher standards of citizenship.—Framingham News.

(Historical Paper No. 14.)

The year 1910 is not the only year when three schoolhouses were demanded, for the writer finds in Pattee's History of Quincy that it became imperative on the town in 1829 to construct three new schoolhouses for the better accommodation of the school children—one each at the Point, the Farms, and the South districts. The cost of these schoolhouses was as follows:

FOINT DISTRICT.

Isaac Riddle, for deed of land, $40; Joel P. Deadman, for the erection of the house, $448 James Newcomb, for underpinning $35; total cost, $523. Trees were set in the school-yard in 1840. In 1843 the district was presented with a library for the use of the school. The first small primary school-house erected in this district was sold about the time this one was built and moved to the corner of Washington and South streets, where we believe it now stands. In 1858, the present Washington school-house was constructed, and the one on the same site sold and removed a short distance south, where it was converted into a dwelling. Mr. Linus Belcher's contract for the carpenter work on the new school-house was $5,060. The total cost when completed for use was $7,634.05. In 1874, this house was found too small to accommodate the scholars of this district, and an appropriation was made by the town for its enlargement. The building was raised and a story placed under it, at a cost of $3,374.38. At the time Braintree Neck was annexed to Quincy, in 1856, this territory was added to the Point District, with the school-house then belonging to that part of the town. After the enlargement of the Point school-house, this school was discontinued and the scholars sent to the Point or Washington school.

FARMS DISTRICT.

The first school-house in the Farms District, that we have any account of, was erected in 1794, at a cost of $75.34. This house was built on or near the estate of the late John J. Glover, nearly opposite the residence of Mr. Horace Jenkins, on Hancock street. It was sold in 1829, to Mr. Lemuel Billings, and is now attached to his residence. The second was built in compliance with the vote of the town, near the same site. The deed of this land given by Mr. Ezra Glover, was for $50.00. Mr. William Hinckley received for its construction $315; Silas Leonard, for underpinning, $40; R. & C. Lane, for painting, $13.64. This house was occupied for a school-room until 1850, when it was sold and removed to Marsh street, and made into a dwellinghouse. The land upon which it stood was sold, and a more commodius lot was purchased nearly opposite, on the corner of Hancock and Squantum streets, upon which a larger and better-adapted schoolhouse was constructed, at a cost of $1600, and dedicated with appropriate services, Oct. 9th, 1850. This part of Quincy, being nearer Boston, has increased very rapidly so much so was this the case, that in 1873, within the limits of the old Farms Districts, two large school-houses were erected. A site was procured for the Quincy School a little north of the former one, and upon it was built a large and well-arranged school-house, completed at a cost of $18,256.63. Mr. William Parker's contract for the carpenter work was $15,112. The old house was sold and altered into a dwelling-house and is still standing on its old site. This school was named, in 1863, the Quincy School, in honor of this old and renowned family, who, for over two centuries, has resided within its limits. Among the many teachers who have taught in this district was the late Rev. Theodore Parker, in 1830-1.

SOUTH DISTRICT.

The South District stone schoolhouse was built in 1829. Mr. Joseph Brackett gave a deed of the land for $150; Mr. William Wood was paid for stone and masonary work, $439.05; Mr. George Veazie, for carpenter work, $540; R. & C. Lane, for painting, $13.64. This building was built but one story high at the time. In 1841, an additional story was added to it at a cost of $900. Beside this building, in the same yard, was moved the old Primary school-house that formerly stood on Franklin street, opposite the old Adams mansions, which was built by private means. It was in this Primary school-house that on the 12th of March, 1834, Adaline Dickerman, child of Lewis Hayden's wife, who formerly married a Mr. Dickerman, came to her sad and untimely death by being burnt, during the noon intermission of the school, her clothes having caught fire; from some cause or other, from the stove. She was six years of age at the time of her decease. In 1855, it was found that the schools in the South District had become so crowded that a new and larger house was needed for their accommodation. A site for the building, of about a half an acre of land was purchased on Phipps street, for its location. Upon this land a schoolhouse was erected at a cost, when completed, of litle over $7,000. Mr. C. Fisher's contract for carpenter work was $4,652.

LETTER CARRIERS' BALL.

Arrangements are already well under way for the annual concert, reunion and dance of Letter Carriers' union and dance of the Letter Carries' Mutual Benefit Association, which this year promises to eclipse anything yet attempted by Uncle Sam's boys in gray. This year's ball will be held on Thursday, May 5th, in Mechanics Building, which will be transformed into a bower of beauty for the occasion, with artistic electrical effects. The Letter Carriers' band, of forty pieces, is preparing new features, and the committees are devising new schemes of entertainment for the big crowd that always looks forward to this terpsicherean event with pleasing anticipation.

Invitations have been sent to Governor Draper, Lieutenant Governor Frothingham, Mayor Fitzgerald, Postmaster Mansfield and many other City and State officials. Quincy is to be represented as many of our local carriers are enthusiastic members and are looking forward to showing their friends and patrons that they are good entertainers many invited guests will go from our city including Mayor William T. Shea, the superintendent of the Quincy Post Office, Charles L. Hammond, Superintendent MacDougal of Wollaston and Miss Nellie Geary superintendent of Atlantic. From Braintree Selectmen Storm, Woodsum and Drinkwater, Supt. Minchin of Braintree office and Supt. Torrey of South Braintree and the editors of the local papers.

AN UNGRATEFUL SUBSCRIBER.

Among the summer residents of Bushby there was one who was decidedly unpopular with the country people, although liked by her own friends. "What is the reason you all speak so coldly of Mrs. Watson?" a newcomer, whose forbears were Bushby people, asked the postmaster one day.

"Seeing you're one of us, through your folk," said the postmaster, "I'd just as lief tell ye. We don't like her ways, that's all. She come here, an' we done our best for her, same as usu'l with city folks ,but she wa'n't appreciative."

"I'm surprised at that," said the inquirer.

"Well, she wa'n't," reiterated the postmaster. "She had a telephone put in, and one day, soon after, she called up central—that's Jed Dagget 'at the druggists', you know—and she asked for thirty-seven, ring three. And Jed he says to her, 'If it's Miss Annie you want, to talk over that lawn-party they're all speaking of, she's over to Miss Goldsmiths now, for I saw her go. Shall I get her for you there—forty-one, ring two—or will you take Miss Emma? She's home, I know, going out to ride with her young man in half an hour.'

"Well, now, perhaps it was'n't exactly official for Jed to tell her, but she'd ought to've taken it in the spirit the rest of 'em do ,and thanked him; but 'stead o' that she spoke up sharp.

"Jed shut right up, and gave her thirty-seven, ring three as she'd asked, and let her get on as best she could. But since then he don't take any real live int'rest in her, nor the rest of us don't."—Youth's Companion.

A BAD MEMORY.

Complications That Brought About a Wedding.

By THERESA C. HOLT.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"Mr. Rucker," said the pretty widow, Mrs. Taylor, "why will you be so uncomplimentary as to forget me, to pass me by as if you did not know me when we meet on the street?"

"I think it must be something in my eyesight," said Mr. Rucker apologetically.

"Eyesight! Nonsense!"

"You know perfectly well that I consider you one of my most valued friends."

"So valued that you can't remember you have ever met me before on seeing me after a week's separation."

"My memory for faces is execrable."

"You shall not treat me so slightingly again, I promise you. I will make you remember me."

"I beg you to do so. Then I shall be happy at receiving your smile that I don't get when I pass you without recognizing you. But suppose you forget me when you pass, what will come of that?"

"I'll bet you what you like I won't."

"What I like?"

"Yes."

"Very well. Let it be a kiss."

"A kiss?"

"Yes, a kiss against a dozen pairs of gloves."

"You mean, I presume, that if I fail to recognize you the next time we meet

"GOODNESS GRACIOUS!" EXCLAIMED THE LADY.

I am to give you a kiss. If I do recognize you, you give me a dozen pairs of gloves."

"That's right."

"It wouldn't be a fair bet. I am sure to recognize you."

"I dare say you will, and I shall have a good excuse for making up with the gloves for my forgetfulness."

Several weeks passed, when one day the widow, seeing what she believed to be the figure of Mr. Rucker on the street before her, hastened her steps. "I told him I would make him remember me, and I will," she muttered. Coming up behind the figure, she raised her parasol and gave the gentleman a vigorous poke in the back. He turned angrily; but, seeing a pretty woman smiling at him, he smiled, too, raising his hat at the same time. Nevertheless he looked puzzled.

"I told you I would make you remember me," she said laughingly.

"Ah!"

"And I'll take the gloves—I wear 5¾, usually four buttons."

"Eh?"

"How killing!" laughed the lady. "You've forgotten the bet."

"The bet?"

"I wonder if you really have forgotten it or are trying to get out of it."

"Not I," said the gentleman gallantly, by this time gathering his wits "How many pairs have I lost?"

"Another lapse of memory—one dozen pairs, 5¾."

"Oh, yes; but would you mind telling me the terms of the bet? You know what an abominable memory I have."

The gentleman was walking with her and evidently enjoying her society.

"Oh, no," she said, "the last time I met you I bet you one dozen pairs of gloves against"— She hesitated. "It was the other way, wasn't it?"

"Your memory gone too?"

"Not a bit! Since you've lost there can be no harm in saying what it is—a kiss."

The gentleman opened his eyes and puckered up his lips. Then he smacked them as if he relished an imaginary kiss.

"Well, go on," he said.

"The bet was that I would know you the next time I met you."

"H'm!" said the gentleman.

"Of course I wouldn't have made such a bet if I hadn't been certain I'd remember you. I'd known you from your twin brother."

"Would you?"

"Yes; of course."

They came to a corner, and the lady said:

"I go down this street to my home. Good day."

"I'll go with you."

He walked to her door, and it was agreed that he should call the next evening to settle the bet. As soon as the door closed behind him he made a note of the number.

The man who made the bet with the widow was Mr. Ned Rucker. The man whom she met on the street was his twin brother, Mr. Fred Rucker. The latter had just returned from a long residence abroad. The two were bachelors and were in rooms together. Fred Rucker, after his meeting with the widow, went home and, finding his brother there, told of his adventure.

"Well, well," exclaimed Mr. Ned Rucker, "if that isn't the best thing I ever struck!"

"You ever struck!"

"Yes—I. Don't you see I've won a kiss?"

"Well, I like that. I propose to call on the lady tomorrow evening and receive payment. You've got nothing to do with this meeting. She didn't meet you and not know you."

Ned subsided. He pondered awhile and then said: "I tell you what we can do. You can go and get your kiss (if she'll pay it). Then I'll pass her and pretend I'm you. That'll give me a kiss."

"It wouldn't be fair."

"It isn't fair for you to claim a kiss either. She didn't make the bet with you. She made it with me."

"Do you object to my having what fun out of it I like?"

"No."

"Then I'll see it out."

The next evening Mr. Fred Rucker, armed with a dozen pairs of kid gloves, called on the widow. She came down pleased at having won the gloves.

"How nice of you," she said. "I wonder you remembered to bring them or your appointment this evening."

"I'm very forgetful," he said mournfully.

"Very."

"Still, this meeting today was no test. How would you like to bet a kiss against another dozen pairs of gloves that you won't know me next time we meet."

"Oh, I don't wish to win any more gloves from you."

"But I wish to win the kiss."

"You can never do that."

However, he pleaded so hard that she made the bet. He entered a memorandum of it in his book, and they both signed it. It read:

We bet that Mrs. Taylor doesn't know me, Mr. Rucker, when we meet again on the street—a kiss against a dozen pairs of gloves.

During the call Mr. Rucker appeared as interested in her as before he had appeared indifferent. When he had gone she was quite astonished to note that instead of the hour being 10 o'clock, as she had supposed, the hands of the clock stood at 11:30. Indeed, she experienced quite a pleasurable sensation for the rest of the evening.

Mrs. Taylor was somewhat excited over the bet she had made and felt the necessity for watching very closely for Mr. Rucker on the street, fearing that if she passed him unnoticed he would claim payment of the bet. This kept her thinking of him most of the time. During his visit he had appeared very different from what he had ever appeared before—more vivacious, brighter; indeed, she had found him clever and entertaining. She was not averse to marrying and wondered why she had not thought of him before as a possible husband.

When Mrs. Taylor met Mr. Rucker again she was paralyzed with astonishment. He was doubled. The double's two right arms went up to his two hats, and there was a smile on his two faces.

"Goodness gracious!" exclaimed the lady.

One of the Mr. Ruckers said: "You have a bet with one of us that you would know him when you met him on the street. One of us is a stranger to you. Therefore you can't know him, because a lady can't know a man to whom she has never been introduced. Please tell us which you have bowed to."

Mrs. Taylor was flustered. She tried to make out the one she had known, but failed.

"That's not fair," she said.

"Why not?" asked one of the twins.

Mrs. Taylor was not in a condition of mind to point out just why it wasn't fair. Had she been cool she might have thought of a way out of the dilemma. She made choice between the two and named the wrong man. Both men burst into a laugh.

"I've won," said Mr. Fred Rucker.

Mrs. Taylor colored to the roots of her hair.

"So long," said Ned Rucker, and he passed on.

"Of course, as a gentleman," said the lady to the remaining Rucker, "you'll not ask me to pay the bet."

"Not now," he replied, "I'll pay it myself. I'll call this evening with a dozen pairs of gloves."

"What do you mean by 'not now.'"

"I'll give you a sort of ticket of leave based on your good behavior."

That evening Mr. Fred Rucker called on Mrs. Taylor not only with a dozen pairs of gloves, but with a plentiful supply of flowers.

"How good of you," she said, "to win a bet and not only pay it, but bring these lovely flowers."

She sniffed the perfume with her beautiful nose, then continued:

"What did you mean by a 'ticket of leave' and all that?"

"The ticket may be exchanged for a full discharge this very evening if you prefer it."

"Explain."

"Mine is a case of love at first sight. Will you marry me?"

"What has that to do with it?" asked the widow in a low tone and with averted head.

"This: There is no harm in a kiss between an engaged couple."

Before Mr. Rucker left the bet was paid and the matter settled.

BRIEFS

A holiday next Tuesday.

Next week the sun will rise before 5 o'clock.

The City Council Committee on Finance met Thursday evening.

Vaudeville tonight at Quincy Music hall by the Men's club of Christ church.

The streets about city Square were treated to a coat of oil dust preventative early this morning.

The Old Colony Laundry is using some clever cuts in their advertisements. Have you noticed them?

Robert T. Johnson is building a cement auto house on his estate on Maple street to house his auto delivery wagon.

Mr. and Mrs. Priestman have rented the Simpson Kay home on Beale street during their absence in the west.

Contractor Crowley has a large gang of men at work digging the cellar for the new Houghs Neck school building.

Crowds stand on the sidewalk in front of the new five and ten-cent store most of the time admiring the many bargains exhibited in the show windows.

The speed at which some of the automobiles pass through City Square is a caution. With the square full of people, as it usually is, the wonder is that some one does not get knocked down and injured.

PETER C. HAINES, JR.

Army Officer Shot and Killed William E. Annis

WANTS TO KEEP ARMY JOB

Captain Hains to Appeal His Case and Ask For New Trial

New York, April 15.—Captain Peter C. Hains, now serving a nine-years' sentence in Sing Sing for the murder of William E. Annis, has served notice of appeal and an application for a new trial and asks the proper authorities to withhold the bill pending in congress for the dismissal from the army of a man convicted of a crime until the appeal has been argued.

Eugene N. L. Young prepared the appeal for Hains. The decision to appeal was reached at a conference in which General Peter C. Hains, father of the convicted captain, was present. The appeal was hastened by the action of the senate in passing the bill relating to the dismissal of army men convicted of crime.

NEW YORK SENATE ORDERS AN INQUIRY

Ample Funds Provided For Investigation of Lobbying

Albany, April 15.—Without a dissenting vote the senate adopted a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of three senators and five assemblymen to investigate and report to the legislature on or before March 1, 1911, what laws should be enacted by the legislature "to prevent corrupt practices to influence the course of legislation within the state of New York."

The committee is authorized to take up the disclosures of the Allds-Conger bribery investigation and the fire insurance investigation undertaken by Superintendent Hotchkiss, and any specific charges duly verified, and to investigate any other matters pertaining to the legislature or the state departments which in the opinion of the committee warrant investigation, The sum of $50,000 is provided for expenses.

It is a complete victory for Governor Hughes and his reform program. The bosses who have been fighting him are routed completely.

"TWAIN" IN BAD CONDITION

Health of Humorist Appears to Be Almost Completely Shattered

New York, April 15.—Samuel L. Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, returned from Bermuda on the steamship Oceana in a serious condition. He had suffered several acute heart attacks lately, and even after the ship docked he was twice stricken by severe attacks of the same malady. He remained in his stateroom for several hours and was carried in a chair to a carriage and hurried to the Grand Central station, where he took a train for his home at Redding, Conn.

When Clemens reached the railroad station he tried to assist himself as attendants took him in a wheeled chair to a Pullman car. His strength seemed to have left him entirely, however, and he was practically helpless.

RIOTERS WRECK MISSION

British Gunboats Hastening to Scene of Disturbance In China

Shanghai, April 15.—The Wesleyan China inland mission at Changsha, the capital of the province of Hunan, was destroyed by rioters. The missionaries took refuge in the yamen, which the rioters subsequently attacked. There was no loss of life.

Two British gunboats are hurrying up the Siang-Kiang for the purpose of quelling the disturbance. The outbreak is attributed to the indignation of the natives at the action of the Chinese officials in cornering and exporting rice.

Sardines Fight Shy of Eastport

Eastport, Me., April 15.—The open season for canning American sardines opened today. Everybody is ready but the sardines, which so far have not visited the shores near Eastport. This unwonted shyness on the part of sardines has forced the price the packers will pay the fishermen up to about double what it was last year.

RUSSELL'S LONG LOST BROTHER

Melrose Ex-Recluse Recognizes Him In "Fresno Dan"

STATEMENT TO BOSTON PRESS

Takes the Public Into His Confidence to Extent of Forty-Three Words—Man Accepted as Prodigal Declared by "Dakota Dan" and His Partisans to Be a "Plant"—Judge Lawton Officially Denies Petitions

Boston, April 15.—The expected happened when William C. Russell, the ex-recluse of Melrose, issued a statement to the press of Boston acknowledging that the second claimant for a portion of the $500,000 Melrose estate, of which he is an heir and executor, "Fresno Dan," as his long lost brother, Daniel Blake Russell.

The statement consisted of but forty-three words and was as follows:

"I desire to state publicly at this time that I am convinced and satisfied that Daniel Blake Russell, who has recently come to Boston from Fresno, California, is the son of my father, Daniel Russell, late of Melrose, and is my own brother."

The anticipated statement did not fail to create a sensation, however, for public feeling runs high. When the statement was issuel W. C. Russell was at the Hotel Bellevue. The statement emanated from the office of Nason & Proctor. Within almost a stone's throw, at the Hotel Commonwealth, was "Dakota Dan," the first Russell claimant, who has been fighting as the long lost heir in the Cambridge probate court since Sept. 20, 1909, and who was branded an impostor by Judge Lawton Tuesday.

The Dakota man and his frenzied partisans still maintain that the man who is accepted as the prodigal is a "plant." They say this second claimant, who has been living under the name of Johnson as a fruit picker in California, is engaged to defeat claimant No. 1 for what he says is the battle for his rights.

William C. Russell has issued no statement as to whether he intends to share his fortune with the new comer, but those on the inside track say Daniel Blake Russell will be welcomed with open arms on Russell's hill, Melrose, and that he will get a portion of the Daniel Russell fortune. William seems happy in finding his brother, his only living near relative.

Late yesterday afternoon Judge Lawton filed with Register Harris of the Middlesex probate court his decree on the petitions of the first claimant in the Russell case, who is known popularly as "Dakota Dan."

The decree of the court finds against the claimant on his petitions for a new bondsman with sureties to take charge of the Russell property; for an accounting to the court; for a distribution of the estate; and for the dissolution of the receivership of the estate of Daniel Blake Russell, absentee.

Judge Lawton did not file the long written review of the case which he read in court Tuesday, and he says that review will not be spread on the records.

TO TAKE BREWER'S PLACE

Names of Two Men of Iowa Supreme Court Are Suggested

Washington, April 15.—Senator Dolliver of Iowa will present to the president the name of Emlin McClain, judge of the Iowa supreme court, for the vacancy in the United States supreme court. For years he was chancellor of the law department of the Iowa state university, and he is the author if various text books on law, including one on "The Constitutional Law of the United States," which has won him a high place among lawyers and students of law.

Some months ago a group of Iowans called on the president to recommend Judge Horace Deemer, a member of the same court as McClain, for any vacancy on the supreme bench. Both are regarded as very able men, but unless one retires from the field it is improbable that either will be chosen.

Senate Passes Militia Bill

Washington, April 15.—The senate passed the house bill authorizing the use of joint maneuvers by the states of a portion of their militia allotment from the federal treasury. The comptroller of the treasury has held such use contrary to the present law, to the great annoyance of the state military authorities.

Balloon Can Carry Enormous Load

Paris, April 15.—The great dirigible balloon Clement-Bayard II, which is soon to start from Paris to London, is intended to carry twenty passengers, two pilots, two mechanics, 790 pounds of petrol and 440 pounds of ballast. The number of passengers can be increased to thirty-five.

Break In Wheat Market

Chicago, April 15.—The wheat market broke sharply here, May selling down to 100, off 1¾; July, 102½; September, 99⅞, off ⅞. Very promising conditions for the new crop and large amounts of old wheat still in farmers' hands accounted for the crop.

MANY PERSONS INJURED

Boston and Neighboring Cities Are Visited by Serious Fires

Boston, April 15.—Fires in Salem, Boston and Cambridge yesterday brought about thrilling scenes and injury to at least ten persons.

At Salem, nine firemen went down with the walls of a storage building when the structure collapsed, and of this number seven are suffering from severe injuries, the condition of one man being regarded as critical.

In the gutting of the six-story building occupied by John Holman & Co. in Boston, one woman was overcome by smoke, a second received severe burns and one fireman was slightly injured. The Charlestown district was the scene of a three-alarm fire which caused a loss of $25,000 in the Raymond skate factory.

In Cambridge twelve families were driven from their homes by fire in a nest of tenement structures on Western avenue. One young woman carried out her invalid mother, and a police officer rescued several children. The cause of this fire is believed to have been incendiary.

BIG FAMILIES A DISGRACE

Lareine Baker Not In Accord With Ideas of Colonel Roosevelt

Washington, April 15.—"Ten years hence to be the father of ten or twelve children will be as much of a disgrace as being a confirmed drunkard is at present," declares Mrs. Lareine H. Baker of Spokane, Wash., a suffragist, who will be heard at the convention of the National American Woman Suffrage association, which opened in this city.

Her studies of children all over the world, she said, had convinced her that "not more than 10 percent of them are children of love, and that the other 90 percent are not wanted."

"Roosevelt, poor, ignorant man," she continued, "urges large families, but I tell you it is quality we want in children, not quantity. Woman suffrage will better children, for it will produce better thinking. It is the mental, not the physical, that rules progressive action today and teaches us that the greatest crime of the age is too many children."

SUFFRAGISTS LISTEN TO TAFT

Stirred Up When He Disapproves Votes For Women

CHORUS OF FEMININE HISSES

Delegates to Convention Are Rebuked With Reminder That They Show Lack of Restraint Necessary For Those Who Participate In Government Affairs—Makes "Confession" That He Once Advocated Suffrage

Washington, April 15.—The President of the United States, the first chief executive of the nation ever to greet a convention of woman suffragists, braved the danger last night of facing an army of women who want the ballot, had the courage to confess his opinion and was hissed.

President Taft had frankly told them that he was not altogether in sympathy with the suffragist movement and was explaining why he could not subscribe fully to its principles. He said he thought one of the dangers of suffrage for women was that women as a whole were not interested in it, and that the power of the ballot, as far as woman was concerned, would be controlled by the "less desirable class."

When these words fell from the president's lips the walls of the convention hall echoed a chorus of feminine hisses. It was no feeble demonstration of protest. The combined hisses sounded as if a valve on a steam engine had broken.

President Taft stood unmoved on the platform during the demonstration of hostility and then, smilingly, answered the unfavorable greeting with this retort:

"Now, my dear ladies, you must show yourselves capable of suffrage by exercising that degree of restraint which is necessary in the conduct of government affairs by not hissing."

The women who had hissed were rebuked. The president's reply apparently took instant effect. There were no more hisses while the president continued his address, which he characterized as 'my confession," on the woman suffrage question. At the conclusion of his talk he was enthusiastically applauded.

"When I was 16 years old and was graduated from the Woodward high school in Cincinnati, I took for my graduation subject 'Woman Suffrage,' and at that time I was as strong an advocate of woman suffrage as any delegate to this convention. I had read much on woman suffrage and my father was a suffragist."

The women cheered the president at this point in his address. The hall was a mass of waving handkerchiefs, but the waving ceased abruptly when the president, resuming, said with emphasis:

"So, at that time I was orthodox (accenting 'that time') but the actual experience which I have had have modified my views of this subject somewhat. In the first place the proper Republican government we approve and support because, on the whole, every intelligent class—that is, every set of individuals similarly situated in a community, intelligent enough to know what their interests are—is better qualified to determine how those interests shall be cared for and preserved than any other class, however altruistic.

"But I call attention to two qualifications in that statement. The first is that the class must be intelligent enough to know their own interests. The theory that the Hottentot or any uneducated class is fitted for self-government wholly dissent from. But that is not applicable to this situation tonight."

This utterance injected into the concourse of feminine delegates a feeling of good nature, soon to be dispelled. They laughed heartily.

PROFESSOR AGASSIZ' WILL

Harvard University Is Generously Remembered by the Scientist

Newport, R. I., April 15.—The will of Professor Alexander Agassiz was filed for probate here. To Harvard university Agassiz left all of his scientific equipment, and besides $200,000 is left for the Harvard museum of comparative zoology. The zoology museum will also receive other money from the Agassiz estate.

Elizabeth H. Clarke, Agassiz' secretary, receives a gift of $25,000 and $5000 for life, while in a codicil made Dec. 3, 1909, she is given another life annuity of $5000.

After providing generously for other employes, all of the rest and residue of the estate is left to Agassiz' three sons.

Water Carriers Are Exempt

Washington, April 15.—The senate adopted an amendment to the administration railroad bill, withholding from the interstate commerce commission authority over transportation wholly by water.

Vote to Curb Lords' Power

London, April 15.—The government's veto resolution, curbing the power of the house of lords, was carried in the house of commons, 351 to 246.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE.

The opening week of the Aborn English Grand Opera Company at the Boston Opera House has proved successful to the fullest expectations, and the enthusiasm shown by music lovers who are attracted by popular prices has confirmed the wisdom of this marked innovation—for the scale of prices is such as has never been tried, even as an experiment, in an opera house of this class. The second week, starting Monday night, will be devoted to Verdi's "Il Trovatore." It was announced before the opening of the Aborn engagement that they would confine their series to the popular classics, and the selection of "Il Trovatore" for the second week is entirely in keeping with this declared intention for it is not the only one of the most familiar works of the great Italian master, but is a favorite the world over. "Il Trovatore" does not attract the musical pedant, but has a wider appeal through its mellifluous score, with its many beautiful gems, and the strongly dramatic story. These endear it to those ears that turn to music for pure enjoyment rather than for mathematical problems, and the general public refuse to allow it to be replaced by more modern works; for the fact that a work of art is old is not a sufficient reason to them why it should be shelved, while the fact that it is also beautiful is ample reason why it should be perpetuated. Consequently "Il Trovatore" remains a strong card in the modern repertory, and never fails to attract large audiences.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

A week of romantic drama begins at the Castle Square on Monday. "The Prisoner of Zenda," famous both as a play and as a novel, will be produced by the John Craig Stock Company. Everybody will remember the sensation made by this story when it first appeared, and its equal success when it was made into a play and transferred to the stage. It brought Anthony Hope both fame and fortune, and the acting of its leading character did not a little to enhance the reputation of E. H. Sothern. The stage settings will be both beautiful and picturesque, and as the marvellous adventures of Rudolf Rassendyll and his resemblance to the heir to the throne of the principality of Zenda are unfolded, the audience will listen to and watch one of the most entertaining and exciting plays ever written. Mr. Craig will act the dual roles of Rudolf the Fifth and Rudolf Rassendyll and the Castle Square theatre-goers will never have a better opportunity to see what a versatile actor he is. Mary Young will appear as the Princess Flavia, and the long cast will include the entire membership of the John Craig Stock Company.

TREMONT THEATRE.

Lora Lieb in George M. Cohan's "The Man who owns Broadway," at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, the play in which the favorite actor Raymond Hitchcock is scoring another big success.

BOSTON THEATER.

With the biggest cast of stars that has ever been seen in one production, the latest Ziegfeld Revue, "Follies of 1909" will play an engagement here for one week only beginning Monday night, April 18. Miss Eva Tanguay, the highest salaried comedienne in this country, heads the list and is said to have the best songs of her career, which include her famous "I Don't Care," specialty. Other prominent artists are Bessie Clayton, who is one of America's best dancers and a great New York favorite; Arthur Deagon, the robust singing comedian who has several different characters to portray; Billie Reeves, the original inebriated swell whose specialty this year is said to be even funnier than the famous prize fight of last year's revue; Josephine Whittele, who has another new creation, the "Beautiful Brinkley Bathing Girl," in which she is assisted by the famous Ziegfeld Beauty Girls; Rosie Green, another dancer of exceptional ability; William Schrode and Evelyn Carleton; William Bonelli, Helen McMahon, Vera Maxwell, Gertie Moyer and Will Philbrick whose travesty on the Roosevelt Hunting Expedition in the African Jungles is said to be one of the funniest skits in the show.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Of all the sensational features which have been presented at Keith's during this season, probably there has been not one that will create more talk than Le Compte, who comes next week. This man, who is now making his first appearance in the East, has been the marvel of scientists everywhere, but no one has been able to explain his wonderful feats. He seems to be, and is, impervious to fire and heat. Le Compte takes two carbons at a white heat and bites off the ends of them with his teeth. He explodes gunpowder with his bare hands, and chews heated sealing wax, and drinks molten lead and solder, like water. He does all these things in full view of the audience and they have been done in private for medical men, and others who doubted him, and thought there was some trickery involved. Le Comte himself refuses to explain, if he can, how he does these marvelous feats. He will be a feature of an exceptionally strong bill, which will include "The Vital Question," a sketch that has an important bearing on the trust question and politics, similar to "The Man of the Hour;" Countess Rossi and Monsieur Paulo, in their singing sketch entitled "During the Performance;" Cunningham and Marion in an acrobatic comedy, the Three Leightons in a sketch called "A One Night Stand in Minstrelsy;" Charles Lovenberg's "Petite Revue;" one of the most ambitious sing productions ever staged, employing a dozen people, and other big features yet to be announced.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

Theatre patrons who have laughed themselves tired at the extremely funny monologue of famous Hebrew character artist Joe Welch, will undoubtedly welcome the announcement that he is to be at the American Music Hall this coming week in a mammoth production called "At Ellis Island." In this piece Mr. Welch portrays an Italian immigrant and no end of fun is caused by his inability to understand the customs of the country. He will be surrounded by a company of fifty people and an enjoyable half hour is sure to result. Rene Davies will be another pleasing number on the big bill. She is a beautiful woman and wears gowns that are the envy of other women and the admiration of men. Miss Davies is an accomplished singer and her songs have the merit of being strictly up-to-date. Eddie Girard and Jessie Gardner are too well known as vaudeville fun makers to require any comment. They will present a new sketch which promises a laugh every second.

—The saving grace of business of life in this competitive age is recreation, daily, weekly monthly, or yearly in the form of vacations. The rest time is the safety valve which prevents explosions. It prevents premature death, keeps the madhouses from being filled with "prominent business men." The golf links, the tennis courts, the fishing country, the north woods, the automobile and the flowing road, the European journey are all outlets by which the superfluous steam is let off. It may be only a month or a fortnight, it may even be but a week-end trip now and again, but it relieves the strain and serves to slough off business cares. The man who cannot take a vacation might as well send for his attorney and make his will. —Chicago Tribune.

KOSHER FOOD DEALERS ACT

1900 BUTCHER SHOPS CLOSE

Cost of Beef Declared to Be Prohibitive—Compromise Offer to Last Through Passover Is Rejected—Committees Appointed at New York Mass Meeting to Make Boycott Effective and Work For Reductions

New York, April 15.—Unanimously declaring they would keep their shops closed until the price of kosher meat was reduced and refusing all offers of a compromise, 700 butchers marched in a solid body through the streets of Williamsburg and over the Williamsburg bridge to Manhattan to emphasize their displeasure with the beef trust.

This parade of butchers was composed of all the meat dealers throughout Williamsburg and the Brownsville district, as well as Greenpoint and East New York.

In sympathy with the marchers from across the river, 1200 butchers from the East Side in Manhattan held a mass meeting in a hall at First avenue and Forty-third street, with the result that practically every one of the butchers decided to close their shops until the prices were reduced.

Earlier in the day a compromise had been received from the meat trust providing for beef to be furnished for 10 cents a pound during the Passover, which begins on April 24, and though it was considered by the butchers, it was finally voted down, because no provision was made in the offer for the future. As a result about 1900 butcher shops are now closed.

Determined to carry on their boycott more vigorously than ever against the meat trust, it was voted at the meeting which was held at 313 Grand street to appoint a chairman for each tenement on the East Side, whose duty it will be to see that no meat is purchased there until prices are reduced.

For the first time in many years disapproval was expressed by a large body of butchers of the course adopted in the Kohillah, a body of men representing the leading Jewish societies in the city, who tried to effect a compromise with the butchers. These representative men believed it their duty to make an effort to avert the danger of a meat famine during the observance of the Passover, but their offer was rejected, and every butcher on the East Side and over in Williamsburg closed his doors and declared he would keep closed until kosher meat comes down from what they call famine prices.

Stop Cough

Those hard night coughs of the children! What shall you give them? Just what your mother gave you, and just what her mother gave her! In some families, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been the only cough medicine for seventy years. Once in the family, it stays. Keep it on hand.

Ask your doctor if he endorses Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for the coughs and colds of children. Do as he says. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

SHIPYARD EMPLOYEES

Urged to Act Against Eight-Hour Clause

Nearly three thousand of the workmen at the Fore River Shipbuilding Company assembled at the machine shop this noon and listened to a talk by President Bowles on the bill now before Congress, which among other things provides that the work on new battleships shall be done on an eight-hour day schedule.

President Bowles pointed out to the men that should the bill pass with that clause it would mean that no private shipbuilding company could build the ships, and that they would have to be constructed at navy yards. This would mean that many workmen would be thrown out of employment, thus entailing the loss of thousands of dollars in wages. If continued in future contracts all shipbuilding plants like the Fore River would have to give up building battleships.

He pointed out the fact that all large plants, like the Fore River depended largely upon the government for large contracts. Should the government work be taken away from them by the eight-hour clause it was easy to see what would happen. The plants would be crippled.

President Bowles' remarks were greeted with a hearty round of applause, and the men dispersed.

It is understood that petitions to the senators, asking that the eight-hour clause be eliminated, will be circulated among the workmen of the yard. When all have been given an oportunity to register their protest against the clause, a committee of the men will take the petition to Washington to present to the senators in person.

WHO FOR CONGRESSMAN?

Senator O'Connor will be a candidate for congress in the 10th district, says the Boston Advertiser unless there is a change in the conditions within the next six weeks, which he does not expect. He says that Curley cannot possibly carry South Boston and that O'Connell can neither carry South Boston nor Curley's ward, so that the South Boston candidate will have the best chance. Representative O'Brien of ward 16, however, was first in the field.

AT THE STATE HOUSE.

The "peaceful picketing bill was defeated in the Senate on Thursday 14 to 19, Senator Hultman voting with the majority.

The so-called "conspiracy" bill was also defeated 17 to 20.

The Tinkham bill was substituted 23 to 13 relative to conspiracy and injunctions.

The bill relative to strike advertising was ordered to a third reading 23 to 13.

The bill for labelling evaporated milk was lost.

The bill for direct nominations was under debate at adjournment.

MEMORIAL CHURCH.

Wednesday afternoon the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Memorial church held its last meeting in the old church, before the destruction of the building occurs. The present church is to be torn down and the timbers removed preparatory to the erection of the new edifice. During the summer months services will be held in Atlantic Music hall and different arrangements will be made for the music. An adult chorus will replace the quartet and a male quartet will assist the pastor in the evening.

CONDUCTOR'S WIFE DEAD.

Mrs. Warren R. Page, of Crescent avenue, South Braintree, died at the Boothby hospital, Boston, this morning. Mrs. Page underwent an operation about a week ago and the circumstances seemed favorable for recovery, and her death was a great shock to her many friends. Mrs. Page was a past grand of Amana Rebekah lodge and secretary of the auxiliary to the railroad conductors and prominent in church and fraternity work. Mr. Page is a popular conductor on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

Lawson—"Is he rich?"

Dawson—"Fabulously. Why, he stayed three days once at a Florida hotel."

MEN'S CLUB GIVE SUPPER

To Campaign Committee of Memorial Church

The final meeting of the Men's club was held at the Memorial Congregational church Thursday night, and proved a delightful affair. The club members tendered the dinner to the campaign committee in recognition of their recent successful work. The tempting dinner was prepared by several of the ladies of the parish the menu being: Grape-fruit, cold ham, mashed potatoes, radishes, olives, rolls, escalloped fish, tomato salad, cake, cream and coffee. A social hour followed the dinner.

GREAT AEROPLANE DROPS INTO LAKE

Turns Turtle After Having Been Caught In a Gusty Wind

Plau, Germany, April 15.—Major Von Parseval's new aeroplane, the largest yet constructed, and which underwent successful preliminary trials here, was caught in a violent and gusty wind while flying over Lake Plau and, turning turtle, fell into the waters.

Engineers Blochmann and Hoff escaped uninjured. They dropped with the machine, but succeeded in freeing themselves from the wreckage, and were picked up by a passing craft.

Major Von Parseval's invention is a monoplane with a four-cylinder motor of 120 horse power. It carries 170 pounds of benzine and was expected to remain in the air three hours. The breadth of the plane is 45½ feet and the length of the machine is 45 feet. It is provided with torpedo-like floats for descending on water and with wheels for a descent on land.

HAIR CAUGHT IN SHAFT

Woman's Scalp Almost Torn From Her Head In Waltham Watch Shop

Waltham, Mass., April 15.—Miss Margaret Potts, aged 23, employed in the mainspring department of the Waltham Watch company's works, just escaped death last night when her hair became entangled about a swiftly revolving shaft in the factory.

Had it not been for the presence of mind of Charles Whitten, who shut off the power as soon as he saw the young woman's plight, it is believed she would have been killed. As it was her scalp was nearly torn from her head and her long braids of hair were so firmly wound about the shafting that it was necessary to cut them away with a knife before she could be released.

STRIKE HAS BEEN COSTLY

Paper Mills May Be Running Regularly by Middle of May

Glens Falls, N. Y., April 15.—Officers of the International Paper company mills at South Glens Falls, Fort Edward, Ticonderoga and Corinth, where a strike has been in progress for the past two months, say that they will be running regularly by May 15.

It is estimated that the 7000 striking employes have lost $69,000 a week in wages and that the strike has cost the company nearly $500,000.

TODAY'S COURT.

Lewis Mahon was fined $10 and $15, for larceny from the street railway, appealed.

Thomas Gaffney was held in $1,000 for the grand jury for breaking and entering at Weymouth.

John Decelle was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

—"What shall I do with my money?" was the question put to a broker this week by a new investor who had saved $500 and wanted to get into the wheat market and make some easy money. "Do you see that bank over there?" answered the broker, pointing across the street; "You take your money and deposit it there in the savings department, where you get 3 per cent a year. Give your bank-book to your wife, and go back to your work." This advise was given to an investor ignorant of speculative deals in grain and could not afford to lose. It is merely an incident; still, it shows that some brokers look upon the moral as well as the business side of the speculative game.—Milford (N. H.) Cabinet.

HOLIDAY TROTS.

Arrangements for the opening meet of the season at the South Weymouth fair grounds April 19 were made at a meeting of the Old Colony Driving club at Weymouth, Monday evening. Matinees will be held every Saturday until late in the fall. The club has taken a lease of the track for the season, with the privilege of renewing it for three years. Five hundred dollars was voted recently for re-loaming the course, and the work will be completed for the opening meet.

Nearly all of last year's favorites and a number of new speeders will be seen on the track this season. J. J. Linehan's Budweiser, an old-time favorite, is already at the stables and will be handled by George Barnard. The gelding which has a record of 2.18, raced at Dorchester last season. Frank Fay has added to his string a fast stepper purchased of Frank Brown of Brockton, and it is expected that Bradford Wilder of Hingham and Geo. French will bring out new talent. Members of the club are negotiating with Mr. Washburn of Middleboro for the purchase of Redondale, and the fast stepper may make its headquarters at the track this season. Redondale has the distinction, three years ago, of breaking the local track record twice in one race.

Several of last year's prize winners will not appear this season. Nina, owned by Bradford Wilder, has been sold to Herbert Tanner of North Abington, who will keep the mare for driving purposes. Thomas Green of Rockland has disposed of Wareham Boy to a Boston party.

LOCAL SPORTS.

The officers of the Forbes Athletic Co., of Wollaston are: President—Arthur Dwesnap; secretary— Clarence Cassidy; treasurer, Storer Wiggins; Manager— Herbert Cassidy; Base ball captain—Herbert Sutermiester; advisory boards, Rev. W. Wiggin, A. N. Murray and J. A. Sedgwick.

The Y. M. C. A. 440 yard run which is run as the wind up of the championship meet, and the only out-of-door event, will as usual, be held on Patriots' day, April 19. There are many entries and when the start is made next Tuesday morning at the Adams street bridge there should be many interested spectators present. The time set for the start is 9 o'clock.

—It is not long since Col. Roosevelt emerged from the Jungle, but already things have begun to hum. Egypt is in a turmoil as the result of one of his speeches, and many Englishmen are objecting to his intrusion into the field of Egyptian politics. This, however, will not, probably have any effect on our strenuous fellow citizen, and nobody can foretell what will happen as he goes on through Europe. It is undeniable that there has been a great change in the feeling among the people of the United States regarding the former President since he departed for Africa. What the end of it all will be it is difficult to forecast. That Col. Roosevelt will refrain from talking is not to be expected and when he does talk, he generally says something. The events of the next few months are likely to be interesting.—Banker and Tradesman.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

The Quincy Old Colony league baseball club promises to be very much in the limelight for the next few days, as they are rapidly getting in line for a strenuous season. Tomorrow afternoon John B. Bjorkland, the manager, will arrive to take charge of the men he hopes to land the bunting with. He expects to have them line up in a practice match, and will keep his eyes glued on the most promising candidates.

* * *

There is a fine chance now for the local players to get a try-out, for Bjorkland informed me long ago that he proposed playing local talent if he found any capable of making good. I believe there are many players here who can go out and hold their own with some who were given a chance last season and nothing would bring the attendance up better than have a few familiar faces on a speedy outfit.

* * *

On Sunday the local league club will be represented at Brockton at the meeting by President John Faircloth. On the following evening they will stage a four-act play entitled "Uncle Silas" which will be presented by the well known Sans Souci Dramatic club. This play will be held in Quincy Music hall, and by the advance sale of tickets reported the affair will be a grand success financially as well as socially, this club having long since proven their worth.

* * *

On the following day, Tuesday, April 19, Manager Bjorkland will clash with O'Connor's Boston United States league nine. "Andy" O'Connor who was the idol of Randolph two seasons ago, and who has pitched for the New York Americans has been secured to twirl this game for us, and I predict, (if the elements do not interfere) that all roads will lead to the Water street grounds on this day.

* * *

By the way, the local league grounds are now in fine condition and we may expect to see some fine contests this season for the management will profit by their mistake of last year and of course avoid them this season. I am loud in my praise of the men at the helm here. They are tried and true and a more successful hard working lot of directors could not be found anywhere.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING

Ty Cobb of Detroit led the major leagues in batting last season with a percentage of .377.

Mordecai Brown, the Chicago Nationals' three fingered pitching wonder, lost the digit on his right hand in a feed chopper when seven years old.

Cy Young, the veteran Cleveland pitcher, celebrated his forty-third birthday on March 29 last. This is his twentieth year in the major league.

Wagner is the most remarkable and consistent of ball players. He has been in the league for thirteen years, seven of which he has led in batting, including the past three seasons.

Pitcher Christy Mathewson has been ten years in the National league. He joined the New York Nationals in July, 1900. In the ten years he has won 237 games and lost 109 for the New Yorks. Last year he had his second best season, when he won twenty-five games and lost six. In 1904 he won thirty-five and lost eight.

Some Tiger Players Are Aged.

With the exception of Manager Hugh Jennings, who is thirty-nine, Bill Donovan and Tom Jones, thirty-two, are the oldest members of the Detroit Tigers. Bush, twenty-one, is the youngest. Cobb is twenty-three, Crawford thirty; Mullin, Schmidt, Delehanty, D. Jones and McIntyre are twenty-nine.

Evers and Plank Are Stickers.

Johnny Evers, like Eddie Plank, has never played on but one big league club. Eddie started in 1901 with Mack, while Evers played his first game with the Cubs in 1902.

Uses Animals Make of Their Tails

Horses, cows and other creatures use their tails as fly flappers. Cats, squirrels and many more twist them around their necks for comforters. The rat has raised the use of the tail to a fine art, for by its means it guides the blind and steals jelly, oil and cream out of jars and bottles. The macaco plays as merrily with its tail as a kitten does, and the marmoset while it sleeps uses its tail as a sort of blanket. The raccoon catches crabs with its tail. Every one knows how the monkeys journey through pathless forests by swinging from tree to tree, while the fishes steer their way through the water by their tail fins. The ant eater puts up its big bushy tail for an umbrella. The vanity of the peacock is fed by the beauty of its tail.—Dumb Animals.

QUINCY PASSING OTHER CITIES

Five Larger in 1880 Have Now Less Population Than City of Presidents.

May Pass Chelsea and Taunton at 1910 Census.

Several of the cities and towns which were larger than Quincy in 1880 have been left behind in the Population race. Among these are Gloucester, Newburyport, Pittsfield, Northampton, Chicopee, and Waltham.

The only town to pass Quincy in the period was Everett, which at the census of 1905 was leading by 1,014. The Daily Ledger has some doubt about Everett maintaining this lead, but it is making rapid gains.

The cities are arranged in the order of the 1905 census, and a glance at the 1880 column shows readily by comparison which have gained the fastest. Malden which heads the list was in 1880 number 11, while Everett was at the foot. Quincy which stood number 15, in 1880 is now number 9, and so on.

VAUDEVILLE BY MEN'S CLUB

Interesting Program with Many Original Features

The annual vaudeville show of the Men's club of Christ church was given last evening at Music hall before a good sized audience. The show was under the personal direction of Henry W. French and the applause that was accorded the various numbers showed that the audience appreciated and enjoyed them. There were eleven numbers on the program which were designated by letters which were displayed on easels on either side of the platform.

The program opened with an overture by the Men's club orchestra, R. D. Smith director and F. Wrigley special accompanist.

The first number were clips from the daily press, consisting of impersonations of some of the standard cartoons run daily as a funny feature in the Boston press. This number also introduced the rosetta parasol chorus.

Then came Little Joe Beal in an original Dutch character sketch during which he introduced a number of stories.

Andrew Dinegan and Ernest Godfry two men well known in Quincy minstrels sang and talked closing with a clog dance.

"A sealed verdict," a one-act play was presented by the dramatic club and was a special feature. The scene was laid in the jury room when twelve men good and true were trying to reach a verdict. The jury stood 11 to 1 for conviction in a murder case. The one man was John Sterling impersonated by Merton A. Turner. After a long tiresome wait, Sterling receives word of the death of his wife. He then addresses his fellow jurymen and tells them a heartbreaking story of how, maddened by insults to his now dead wife, he had killed the old miser. As he completes his story he faints and the jury as one man declare that the secrets of the jury room shall never be revealed. In the cast were Thomas E. Furnald as court officer, Arthur L. Thomas as foreman of jury, and Merton A. Turner as John Sterling. The jurymen were: James Smith, Walter I. Holmes, Herbert G. Johnson, Edward Haslett, Allen W. Walker, William H. Carter, Euward J. Townsend, Albert Smith, Robert Chapple and Edward Farmer.

Thomas N. Saufelt the favorite of greater Boston contributed two solos. He has a rich baritone voice and his numbers were a treat.

George C. Beal presented an original sketch entitled "A change of heart," and Carleton De C. Beal gave a fifteen-minute musical comedy.

The closing number was a novelty of song and dance entitled "Zulu Gaelic Fantasy" in which the whole company appeared. It was presented by Andy Dinegan and Dick Hussey, and the scene was laid during Teddy's African trips, and introduced a Zulu army. It was a very funny thing and kept the audience convulsed in laughter. A feature of this number was an artistic and graceful solo dance by Miss Marion Mitchell. She was accorded an ovation by the audience and responded to the encore.

Those in the army were: Messrs. Hultman, Farmer, Chappel, Turner, Townsend, Oxford, Thomas and Tarbox.

In the King's household were: Miss King, Miss Young, Miss R. Prout, Miss H. Boutiliere, Miss E. Prout, Miss Spargo, Miss Warmington and Miss Frances Boutiliere.

The guests were Mildred Smith, Lizzie Ross, Olive Barnicoat, Annie Denton, Ruth Farmer Elizabeth Furnald, Cora Barnicoat, Jennie Boutiliere, Mary McDonald, Isabelle Walker.

The program closed with a selection by the orchestra. Dancing was then in order until 2 A. M.

NEW WARD AT HOSPITAL

Inspected by the Hospital Aid Association

The new ward at the Quincy City Hospital, made possible through the generosity of the late William B. Rice which is now completed and ready to be put into service as soon as the furnishings are in position, was thrown open Friday afternoon for the inspection of the ladies of the Hospital Aid society. The inspection was from 3 to 5 o'clock and during those hours the new ward was visited by a large number of ladies all of whom were very enthuiastic over the well appointed arrangements.

The ladies were received by Mrs. Harry L. Rice and Miss Blanche Thayer, the superintendent of the hospital, who escorted them through the rooms. It certainly is beautifully arranged and as one lady expressed it, she was almost tempted to be sick in order that she might enjoy the quietness of the rooms. The walls are tinted in delicate soft tints and the warm afternoon sun creeping in through the windows made everything seem home-like.

The only decorations were in the main ward room, and these were confined to carnations and jonquils. Here a lunch was served the visitors by the hostesses, who were assisted by several of the nurses at the hospital.

The new ward is on the southeast corner of the main hospital, and is of brick and granite. Its dimensions are including the sun room on the southwest side, 85 feet 10 inches by 36 feet

REMONSTRATING OVER NAVAL BILL

Employees of Fore River Shipyard Signing Letters to Senators Lodge and Crane

Impossible to Get Supplies from Eight-Hour Firms

Even if the Fore River Shipbuilding Company should inaugurate an 8-hour day at the Quincy shipyard, it could not under the provisions of the naval appropriation bill receive a contract for the proposed battleships, because sub contracts would also be required of 8-hour concerns. The Fore River must depend on the United States Steel Corporation, the General Electric Company, and others for the bulk of the supplies, and these corporations work nine or ten hours per day. The Fore River Company today has a 9-hour day where other shipyards which have built battleships have a 9-hour or 10-hour day.

The Fore River Company having taken the big Argentine contract on a 9-hour basis could not for two or three years go on an 8-hour basis, so if the 8-hour clause remains in the bill, it will submit no bids for the proposed United States battleships. It will probably be impossible to get a bid from any private shipyard.

Should the government decide to build the battleships at navy yards it would find it impossible to get supplies from corporations working an 8-hour day, and could not complete the dreadnought within the appropriation.

It is reported that about 800 employees of the shipyard have signed the following letter:

Quincy, Mass., April 15, 1910.

"Senators H. C. Lodge and W. M. Crane, United State Senate, Washington, D. C.

"Gentlemen:—I, as a workman, in the employ of the Fore River shipbuilding Co., believe the labor clause, relative to the building of battleships in the Naval Appropriation bill is an injustice to the private shipbuilding firms of this country, and would tend to create business confusion and labor troubles throughout the country, thereby delaying the completion of these vessels. We recognize the purpose of the movement, but, owing to the lack of interest in the creation of a proper Merchant Marine service, and the dependence of private firms on these government contracts, the insertion of proviso would be against the interest of thousands who are employed in shipbuilding and would also take away the means of livelihood of many who are not yet full citizens of the country."

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

The office of the Daily Ledger will be closed on Patriot's day, Tuesday, April 19, which is a legal holiday. The numerous attractions of the day will be reported in the Daily Ledger of Wednesday.

Save your old almanacs for if you save them long enough they may mean a small fortune for your grandchildren. Tuesday at the auction of the library of the late Amos L. Hollingsworth of Milton a Bryrenbury's almanac sold for $385. It was printed by the Daye Press of Cambridge, established by Samuel Green in 1667.

Bostonians should be much gratified that a New Yorker has admitted that there are two things they know. For years it has been conceded that they knew beans and now eggs are added to the list. Bostonians insist on brown shelled eggs which have richer yolks, while it is said a New Yorker doesn't know a good egg from a poor one.

Have you raked up the yard yet and given your attention to the many little details which go to make or mar the general appearance of your estate? This is the season of the year when the winter's accumulation of rubbish is so apparent and when there is so much to be done to make the premises look tidy and respectable for the summer season.

Patriots' day is nearly here and we presume that the "patriots" are the ones who observe the day and take a day off from business. It is a legal holiday observed as many others are in this state by some, while a great number are obliged to work whether they so desire or not. it is the first holiday of the spring season and should be made a holiday and not a do as you please sort of a day. We don't have too many leisure day and when one comes the people should be given a chance to enjoy it.

The plans of Reading and Wakefield should extend to Quincy and other municipalities. A Wakefield news item in the Monitor says: This town will observe Patriots' day, April 19, with a big spring cleaning campaign which has been started through the efforts of the Wakefield Improvement Association. Some 10,000 or 12,000 residents, old and young, will scour with any available tools their own premises AND THOSE ADJOINING if necessary, clearing up all refuse and waste and burning or disposing of it in a way that will not imperil property.

The association is also urging the citizens not only to clean up their yards, remove piles of ashes, cover up unsightly dumping places, but try to beautify their grounds by setting out trees and shrubbery and plants. The plan is quite similar to that which was tried with great success in the neighboring town of Reading a year ago, except that it will not be necessary for private individuals to pay attention to the streets (except possibly in the outlying districts) as the patrol of the streets is provided for by the town in its highways appropriation. The appeal to the townspeople which the association is circulating this week reads: "Do as much as you may to extend and beautify the town's parks. You can never expect to make the town attractive to outsiders and prospective residents as long as its streets, parks and vacant lots are allowed to remain in an untidy condition."

The school authorities are cooperating with the improvement association.

Annual reports of the City Hospital for the year 1909 are being distributed. It hardly seems possible as we look back over the years that the Hospital is so old but on the front cover it says "Twentieth annual report of the trustees." In the twenty years what a great factor it has been in the community and what a blessing. So necessary has the Hospital become that the only wonder now is how we ever got along without it.

William B. Rice, who made it possible by generously giving land and building has the past year been called to the heavenly home. During his illness a new ward was started and his benefaction continued after death.

Of the six who petitioned to incorporate only two are living, Dr. Gordon and Hon. Charles H. Porter, the four who have passed on are Herbert M. Federhen, William L. Faxon, William B. Rice and W. G. A. Pattee.

In the twenty years there have been many changes, familar faces dropping from sight when the death angel beckoned them to come up higher. Those who have answered to the call are Drs. Donovan, Gilbert and Sheahan, but their memory is still cherished. The remaining nine of the original staff are, Drs. Gordon, Welch, Hallowell, Hunting, Gary, Davis, Record, McClellan and Rice. Of this nine Dr. George B. Rice is not now a resident of our city.

This staff of comparitively young men in the profession, can now after twenty years almost be classed as veterans and younger men have entered the ranks and are assisting in the work of mercy on the bill. May the good work go on and prosper and grow in the future as it has in the past.

WHEN TO PLANT.

The first flower seeds to sow after the ground is reasonably dry are pansies, daisies, sweet peas, nasturtiums. Really the pansies should have been started some weeks earlier in the house, or better still good plants may be bought at the florists later on and set out. It is to be noted that little pansy plants are the best. They will grow better and bloom better and longer than the big fat ones which have been carried over since last fall.

A week or ten days after planting the first seed, if the weather holds good, the wrinkled peas, beets, and other seeds may be planted. Again, a week after these, a planting of early sweet corn may be tried. By May 20, most seeds can be planted and most bedding plants can be set out. Corn melons, cucumbers, geraniums, asters, lobelia, and all except the most tender things are reasonably safe.

Coleus and very tender plants should not be set out until early June and while bush beans may be planted in late May, the limas should not be put in the ground until June 1. For the extreme northern states these dates are too early.

THE TREES OF THE CTY.

The note sounded by Governor Draper in his Arbor day proclamation is one that may be heeded by every citizen of the state. Not every man can plant a tree, but every man can help in teh furtherance of the idea for which Arbor day is annually celebrated. It is one of the greatest charms of New England that her cities and towns have splendid trees; and while so much stress is publicly laid on the large problems of conservation of the country's forests, there is opportunity for the individual in the local problems of trees in their own communities. Those who cannot plant trees on Arbor day, or on other days, can on all days assist in the better preservation and protection of the trees that are common property of all, in the streets and in the parks. Such individual encouragement can be both positive, in actively helping against moth pests and other injuries to trees ,and negative by refraining from any act which may harm trees. The problem of the great forests is the nation's problem, or the state's problem. The trees of a city present the individual's opportunity.—Boston Advertiser.

PHILERGIANS BRAINTREE.

The Philergians will meet in Cochato hall, Wednesday, April 20, at 2.30 o'clock. Mr. H. R. Williams, principal of Noah Torrey school will talk on the "School City, or Training for Citizenship." Music will be furished by the club quartette.

Attention is called to the next meeting of the Philergians on Wednesday, April 20, instead of the usual day, Tuesday, that being Patriots' day, April 19.

The annual meeting of the Philergians will be May 3d, when the yearly reports and election of officers will take place.

Horace G. Hewes has kindly given the Philergians the privilege of visiting his studio in post office building the afternoon of April 23, at 2.30. It is hoped that many club members will take advantage of this opportunity given by Mr. Hewes of viewing by daylight the many beautiful and interesting pictures on exhibition.

LONG-IGNORED LAW REVIVED

Chippewa Treaty of 1855 to Be Enforced In Minnesota

LIQUOR DEALERS HARD HIT

Chief Special Officer of Federal Indian Service Issues Order Which Means Closing of Saloons In Seventy Towns—"Pussyfoot" Johnson Not at All Disturbed by Opposition of Open Violators of the Law

St. Paul, April 16.—In all prohibition organizations and churches in Minnesota "Pussyfoot" Johnson is being acclaimed as friend and ally in the fight against liquor. Johnson—William E., it is—has given the liquor traffic a hard blow. He has ordered the saloons in seventy Minnesota towns to close before May 10. And he is going to see that they do close, for he has the authority of the United States government back of him.

Johnson is the chief special officer of the federal Indian service. This sweeping closing order, just issued, is for the protection of the Indians, who have been debauched and impoverished by the saloonkeepers and blindpiggers in their neighborhoods.

The authorization of it was found in a long-forgotten, or long-ignored, section of the Chippewa treaty in 1855, in which the introduction and sale of "spirituous liquors" in the Indian country was prohibited.

When Johnson went first into this Indian country, in the northern part of the state, he found that the liquor men had infested and were doing a big business in almost every nook and corner of it. Nobody seemed to know just what "the Indian country" was or how far it extended.

Johnson has cleared up all this uncertainty by his latest order, a supplementary one, in which he named all of Becker county, all of Hubbard county, all of Hahnomen county, and specified parts of nine other counties —a vast territory containing the seventy towns which will have to go "dry."

There was great excitement among saloon men and drinkers in the affected district when copies of the order of the government agent were received.

The orders sent out refer to article 7 of the treaty with the Chippewa Indians, act of congress Feb. 22, 1855, which reads: "The laws which have been or may be enacted by congress, regulating trade and intercourse with the Indian tribes to continue and be in force within the several reservations provided for herein; and those portions of said laws which prohibit the introduction, manufacture, use of and traffic in ardent spirits, wines or other liquors, in the Indian country, shall continue and be in force, within the entire boundaries of the country herein ceded to the United States until otherwise provided by congress."

There has been no legislation providing otherwise, and Johnson is determined to enforce the law which long has been laughed at as a "dead letter." When Johnson first took up the campaign against the liquor traffic in the Indian country the saloon men defied him and he had to give them a lesson by violently raiding their places and doing some shooting. He had had long experience searching out and bringing to justice long-deflant moonshiners in the Tennessee mountains and other parts of the south, and he wasn't at all deterred by the opposition shown by the Minnesotans who had been openly breaking the laws.

It is not expected that he will meet any defiance when he makes his tour of inspection on May 10 with several deputies to make sure that his order has been complied with.

Suffragists Regret the Hissing Incident at Their Convention

Washington, April 16.—President Taft continues to be the centre of agitation within the ranks of the National American Woman Suffrage association, and as an aftermath to the meeting Thursday night, at which the president was hissed for his expressions regarding woman suffrage, the convention sent a formal resolution of apology to Mr. Taft, expressing the regret of officers and delegates because of the occurrence.

But Two Negative Votes

Boston, April 16.—The Walker-Cushing direct nomination bill was ordered to a third reading in the house on a roll call by a vote of 187 to 2 after all amendments had been rejected on voice votes by overwhelming majorities. The result was a great personal tribute to Speaker Walker.

FRANCIS JOSEPH PAYS HIGH HONOR

Roosevelt Received In Emperor's Palace Like a King

Vienna, April 16.—Theodore Roosevelt was received at the Austrian capital in manner almost like that shown a reigning sovereign. The punctilious Austrian court, the most ceremonious of those in Europe, had arranged the program, and it left nothing undone which could emphasize the unprecedented honor which was being paid the visiting American.

As a special mark of his personal esteem, Emperor-King Francis Joseph received Roosevelt in his private apartments at the imposing Hofburg palace, instead of in the regular audience chamber.

The monarch was extremely gracious to the ex-president, and kept him in conversation for thirty-five minutes. What interesting subjects they found to discuss has not transpired.

RELIEF FOR EMPLOYES

Steel Corporation's New Plan Will Cost It Several Millions a Year

New York, April 16.—Following an announcement of an increase in pay for employes of the United States Steel corporation and its subsidiaries, estimated at $9,000,000 annually, Chairman Gary of the executive committee made public details of a plan for the relief of employes injured at work and the families of men killed.

The plan will be put in operation May 1 for a year's test, and if successful the company hopes to continue it with such modifications as experience may suggest. The cost will be several millions a year, and employes do not contribute.

KILLS CANINE COMPANION

Recluse Then Ends His Own Life by Shooting Self In Woods

Brockton, Mass., April 16.—The continued search for Herbert Paine, the recluse of Elmwood, a suburb of this city, who disappeared from home on Monday, resulted in the discovery of his dead body lying beside that of his dog, which had also been shot, in Leonard's woods.

The coroner who viewed the remains said that Paine had committed suicide and before his death he had killed his dog.

Little Louise Mellen who died of burns Thursday night, was kindly remembered by her schoolmates and friends with many beautiful flowers, including, spray of white pinks from her teacher and schoolmates, a spray from the S. of V. auxiliary, bouquets from Miss Florence Thayer, Miss Catherine Yule, Miss Mildred Gragg, Miss Jennie Taylor, Miss [illegible] Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Bruton, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jordan, Misses Fisher, and Reed, Mr. and Mrs. J. WITNESS ASSAULTED.

Mrs. Victor Cameron of 28 Newport avenue in the Rosedale district, Braintree was brutally assaulted by two women and a man yesterday forenoon.

Mrs. Cameron a few days ago testified against her assailants, in a liquor case at Dedham and this riled them. The three noticing her passing yesterday at once ran to attack her. Her hair was pulled out from the roots and she was bitten and terribly beaten over the head with a heavy iron pail. Her cries brought residents who scared away the assailants.

A hurried call brought Mrs. C .A. Sullivan and F. W. Brett who dressed her wounds. Officers Gallivan and Hunt were notified, and Camille Mazett was placed under arrest. After a thorough search of the Italian district the officers failed to find the women who it is rumored departed for parts unknown.

MRS. WARREN R. PAGE.

The passing away of Mrs. Warren R. Page of South Braintree early Friday morning is a loss which is felt personally in many homes in this vicinity. Lizzie W. Tileston the daughter of Thomas and Zibiah Tileston was born in Dorchester, August 4, 1855. She was educated in her native place and for years was employed as bookkeeper for A. Storrs & Bement Company.

The funeral will be held from her recent home on Crescent avenue Monday at 2 o'clock. It is desired that her many friends who may wish to pay their respects to her memory may visit the home earlier than the service hour as the house is too small to accommodate many at that time.

Venturesome Swimmer Establishes a Record In Niagara Rapids

Niagara Falls, N. Y., April 16.—By successfully executing a series of remarkably daring swimming dashes Everett Mason of this city succeeded in reaching the farthest midstream point in Niagara river ever attained by a human being excepting in case of suicide or accident.

A scow, which recently drifted down the river and became caught on a group of rocks between Goat island and the American shore, about fifty feet from shore and 150 feet above the falls, where the current is the swiftest, was his objective point.

He reached it after going under once, and planted on the scow an American flag. Mason first waded and swum to Ship island and, thence to Prig island and then to the scow, returning safely.

Boston Woman Found to Have Quite a Snug Bank Account

Boston, April 16.—Whatever else she may be, Annie Fahey is not a vagrant in the natural acceptance of the word, as she was charged when locked up in Station 16 by Policeman Carmichael.

The policeman followed the woman and he said he saw her stop ten people and go into three house. She asked for money and told a pitiful tale of poverty. When she was searched at the station house this was found:

Bankbooks on Boston and Brookline institutions showing deposits of $5500. Bills and coin aggregating $60.

The woman gave her address as No. 10 Chambers street. She is 60 years of age. She was freed after Judge Sullivan had severely rebuked her.

GERMAN HUMORIST WILL BE DEPORTED

"Captain Kopenick" Smiles When He Is Arrested

New York, April 16.—"Captain Koepenick," who owes his classic hold on fame to the fact that in October, 1906, he obtained a captain's uniform, and, going to an army post near Berlin, took charge of a squad of men of the kaiser's regiment of guards, marched them to Koepenick, placed the mayor under arrest and, after discharging his soldiers, made off with $1250, the contents of the town treasury, was arrested for deportation by the immigration inspector on a federal warrant issued in this city.

He is unofficially Wilhelm Voight, a cobbler, and his exploit so tickled the German sense of humor that the kaiser pardoned him. He had his little smile with him, in spite of his arrest, when the authorites found on him a ticket showing that he intended departing today abcard the Hamburg-American liner Kaiserin Auguste Victoria.

He remarked that he was perfectly willing to have his fare paid if the government insisted.

DATE OF END OF WORLD

Triune Immersionists Split on the All-Important Question

Duxbury, Mass., April 16.—A split developed in the ranks of the Triune Immersionists. The radicals insisted that the Lord was coming on Sunday, April 24, and that the world would come to an end then. The conservatives denied this and said that no time could be fixed for the end of all things.

Presiding Elder Swan of Providence at last succeeded in getting enough oil on the troubled waters to induce the radicals and the conservatives to worship together without further dispute. The elder made an address and exhorted all to be ready for the coming of the Lord whenever that should be.

MEAT STRIKERS OPEN SHOP

A Rushing Business and Promise of No Further Kosher Rioting

New York, April 16.—With the opening by meat boycotters at Bayonne, N. J., of a co-operative butcher shop, the rioting which has marked the attempt to force kosher shops to close came to an end. No more trouble is expected.

Prices were cut several cents a pound below the rates demanded by other butchers and the co-operative shop did a rushing business.

Grudge Against London Times

London, April 17.—Horace Davis called at the office of The Times and demanded to see the editor. When told that the editor did not come to the office until evening Davis hurled a brick through a window. He was arrested. "Every decent Irishman has a grudge against The Times," the prisoner said to the magistrate who remanded him.

Women Strikers Use Bricks

Louisville, April 16.—Woman tobacco stemmers who tried to return to work in the American Tobacco company's factory were attacked by women strikers and a pitched battle followed. Bricks were used as weapons and several combatants were injured before the police stopped the fight.

DEPOSITORS TO SHARE IN LOSS

Surplus of Cambridge Bank is Absolutely Wiped Out

WHAT RECEIVER HAS FOUND

Coleman's Shortage $309,000 Instead of $180,000, as Claimed by Former Bookkeeper of Wrecked Institution—Assessment of Extra $100,000 on Stockholders Fails to Meet Deficit—Accused Man Will Change Plea

Cambridge, Mass., April 16.—Further revelations of the thefts of George W. Coleman from the National City bank of Cambridge, made known in the first official statement of John L. Bates, the receiver, which was issued last night, show that $309,000 was taken instead of $180,000, claimed by the former bookkeeper, and that not only the stockholders but also the depositors will have to share in the loss.

When the stockholders were assessed $100 a share on April 8 it was believed that this extra $100,000 would be sufficient to pay the depositors dollar for dollar, but the statement indicates that this extra amount will be far from satisfying the legal claim of depositors, who must be content with considerably less than the amounts due them.

Just what percentage will have to be charged off it is not yet possible to announce, but the probabilities are that the loss to every depositor may prove large.

Rumors following the closing of a bank generally place the loss at a greater figure than actually exists, but in the case of the National City bank the first estimates, which were believed to be exaggerated, have fallen far short of the actual figures and each succeeding statement has shown a greater and greater loss.

Estimates of a loss of $140,000 were at first made, then $160,000, then $180,000, and recently $250,000. Coleman himself, in an interview, said that these last figures were too high and that the total amount of his defalcation would not go over $180,000.

Banking men who have followed the successive rises in the amounts taken by Coleman were astonished to learn that the total had reached $309,000 last night and expressed wonder that the bookkeeper had left anything at all in the institution which might be realized upon.

The $100,000 assessment upon the stockholders must be met by sixty-four people, among whom the 1000 shares of stock were distributed. Each share has been assessed its face value, $100.

The trial of the case has been set for May 10 in the United States circuit court before Judge Hale. Coleman, who pleaded not guilty when arraigned a month ago, will change his plea, it is understood.

Wilson W. Lockhart, Coleman's friend, who acted as bookkeeper while Coleman was away, intends to contest the case with the government, which charges him with aiding and abetting Coleman in misapplication of the bank's funds, and also with making false entries in Coleman's account at the bank.

CUSTOMS SERVICE PROBE

Unexpected Announcement of an Inquiry at Boston

Boston, April 16.—James F. Curtis, assistant secretary of the treasury, came to Boston hurriedly from Washington and went direct to the custom house, where he conferred with Collector of the Port Edwin U. Curtis and Surveyor of the Port McCarthy.

Secretary Curtis made the surprising and totally unexpected announcement that the treasury department at Washington has determined to start at once a complete investigation of the customs service in Boston.

For several years there has been dissatisfaction in the Boston custom service. It is believed that this investigation will uncover a great deal of incompetence and old-fashioned methods.

There has been constant friction between the office of collector and that of surveyor, as well as friction between other offices in the service. There have been constant rumors of undervaluation of imported goods.

HOFFSTOT BEFORE HUGHES

Steel Man Personally Fights Against His Extradition

Albany, April 16.—Frank N. Hoffstot, president of the Pressed Steel Car company, appeared in person before Governor Hughes to oppose extradition from this state under the warrant issued by Governor Stuart of Pennsylvania on the request of the Pittsburg authorities charging him with conspiracy and bribery of Pittsburg councilmen.

Hoffstot denied having been in Pennsylvania on June 3, 1908, and said he was in New York on that day. He admitted that he had attended a meeting of the board of directors of the German National bank of Pittsburg on May 28, 1908, and another meeting on June 29.

Alienist Defends Countess

WILLIAM J. BURNS
Ablest Man In Country as an Exposer of Graft

FIVE MILLIONS LOST IN GRAFT

Illinois Central Long Victimized by Swindlers

DETECTIVE BURNS CALLED ON

Noted Investigator Has Seventy-Five Men at Work to Trace Swindling Which Is Said to Have Reached Nearly Every City on the System—Bills of Various Offices and Manufacturing Plants Held Up

Chicago, April 16.—Although it has long been known that, through an alleged conspiracy, the Illinois Central railroad has been swindled out of a vast sum, the directors as well as the public were startled to learn that the amount will reach $5,000,000.

President Harahan himself has been quietly directing the investigation, using the National Detective agency to unearth the facts in the inquiry. It was at first thought the railroad would not lose more than $1,000,000, but now it is certain it will be five times that amount.

W. J. Burns, the San Francisco graft investigator, and seventy-five operatives under him are doing the work, which covers a period of four years and has reached nearly every city upon the system of the Illinois Central railroad. An interesting sidelight is that within the last year there has been almost, if not quite, an entire reorganization of the official family, the old officials having given way to new ones.

Out of the chaos and excitement stirred by the visit of detectives to the various offices and manufacturing plants of companies which had transactions with the road came some information showing the well defined plan which is being pursued. It was discovered that bills rendered by various companies for sums totalling millions of dollars are being held up. The companies have been notified that their bills will not be paid until after the investigation is ended.

The trip of Burns to Memphis which brought the investigation to light was discovered to have been for the purpose of making inquiries at the offices of the Memphis Car company, some of the officers and employes of which were expected to assist the detectives in their work.

HOTCHKISS ENDS INQUIRY

Further Probing Will Be Conducted by New York Assembly

New York, April 16.—The insurance investigation which Superintendent Hotchkiss of the state department has been conducting, in all probability, is at an end. Hotchkiss entered on the records a furmal adjournment until next Friday, and all witnesses under subpoena were excused.

"In view of the resolutions adopted by the senate at Albany for an investigation of legislative corruption," said Hotchkiss, "and in view of pending action by the assembly to that effect, I have decided to carry my inquiry no further."

Working on Murder Theory

Boston, April 16.—Police headquarters men who have been assigned to investigate the disappearance of George S. Densmore, a truckman, who dropped out of sight on March 15, are working on the theory that the missing man was lured into some place, robbed and then murdered and his body concealed.

Opposition to Postal Bank Bill

Washington, April 16.—Within a week or ten days the house committee on postoffice and post roads will report to he house a postal savings bank bill. It is anticipated that the Democrats in the house will be practically a unit in opposition to the bill now being prepared.

Explosion Starts Big Fire

Hamburg, April 16.—An explosion of a large quantity of oil wrecked three big warehouses on the waterfront and started a disastrous fire. Three persons are known to be dead. It is feared others were trapped and their bodies incinerated.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Now Comes the "Gentlewoman Farmer —A New Profession for College Girls—Hardy Fisher Folk from Canadian Provinces are Arriving in Hub—Art Museum Authorities Fear Solons May Require that all Nude Statues be Clothed or Secluded.

The swanboats are gliding majestically over the Public Garden pond, their new coating of red and white paint glistening against the soft green grass and budding willows. Equally brilliant in coloring are the daily increasing hosts of new hats whose white, red and green plumage adorn the heads of Boston's fairest.

The Hub, in which was made the latest discovery that Bacon wrote the plays once attributed to the bard of Avon, is nevertheless preparing to honor the anniversary of William Shakespear's birth on April 23 at the New Theatre. It is intended to make the occasion nearly equal in importance to the festivities which take place in England at Stratford-on-Avon. Performances of "Twelfth Night" and "The Winter's Tale" will be given in an Elizabethan stage setting, as in the poet's own day, while during the morning learned discussions on Shakespeare's works and their value, programmes of music popular in his time, and readings from his plays by the best known actors of the country, will carry out the spirit of the occasion. It is not understood that Mr. Booth will be present to explain his cryptograms.

More women than men, it is generally supposed, hate the country with its loneliness and isolation. Yet "back to the farm" has become the cry of even the ology-learned college girl. Two students at Wellesley College have created a sensation among their Boston friends by announcing their intention to take up farming as a profession upon their graduation this spring. One of the girls, possessed of a large income of her own, and of a serious and practical turn of mind, says that she intends to purchase several acres of land on Long Island, New York, and conduct a "gentlewoman's farm" which shall open the eyes of some of her friends and acquaintances. Artistic in temperament, she will combine landscape gardening with truck farming, and corn and potatoes will not be allowed to exclude shrubs and flowers from her attention. To her, at least, the cost of living will doubtless be materially reduced.

Boston is now the world's second fisheries centre. An indication of its importance, and of the importance of Gloucester, lies in the number of hardy fishermen from Nova Scotia, Cape Breton and Prince Edward Island who come to the Massachusetts seaports during the spring for the purpose of spending the season until early fall in pursuit of the finny tribes of the New England banks and the southern waters. Shortly before next Christmas they will return to their respective homes laden with the profits of their labors. Boston fish merchants are looking forward with anticipation to the day when the fishing industries of the city will be located on the big Commonwealth docks at South Boston, where the increased facilities will make it possible to increase the present business in many directions. The historic T Wharf has long furnished uncomfortably close quarters for the numerous interests housed thereon, and the negotiations for the new docks are being watched with keen interest.

"There comes Haughton," will continue to flutter in admiring tones along the lines of hero-worshipping sisters and sweethearts at Soldiers Field, next fall, as it has for the last two years, for the figure of the stalwart athlete is well known among the weaker sex. Football enthusiasts around Harvard are breathing sighs of satisfaction and wearing a look of "Now we'll show you," since the news has become public that Coach Percy Haughton will continue to guide the destinies of the Harvard eleven for the next three years. With both freshmen and varsity teams under his control for this length of time, and the splendid material at present on hand, the hopes of Harvard men and their enthusiastic sisters, cousins and aunts are high for another victory on Yale next November—only by a considerably larger score than the last one—and already glorified visions arise of doing the snakedance in Harvard's own Stadium the following year. Haughton's coaching means not only better results, it is believed, but good, clean, clever work, under the guidance of a sportsman who takes either victory or defeat in a manly way, but who, given a free hand, knows how to direct and win.

This theoretically proper and sedate old town of Boston is all worked up over a bill which is before the Legislature. Not since the expulsion of MacMonnies' Bacchante from the courtyard of the Public Library has there been so much trouble at the State House. The original bill was rejected and a substitute framed up calling for the rejection of all nude forms of art in the penny-in-the-slot machines, but the expectation is that this bill may be extended to include works of art of this nature in the art museums. In this event the little Cupids, Venuses, Apollo Belvideres and all their friends will be relegated to separate rooms to which young people may not be admitted, and exclusion from which will immediately arouse their curiosity. The courageous chairman of the committee which opposed the original bill has been waited upon by another committee requesting him to desist, since the state of public morals in Boston requires its passage. The chairman maintains that the nude in art has existed for centuries without being considered immoral, and does not attribute the deplorable wickedness of Puritanical Boston to the fine old sculptures in the Museum of Fine Arts. Marble statues by great artists never made a Sodom. Ethel Angier.

STILL FEELS YOUNG ON 90TH BIRTHDAY

Dr. Pearson Gives a Motto For Young Men to Follow

Chicago, April 16.—Dr. D. K. Pearson's ninetieth birthday was celebrated quietly at his Linsdale home.

"It might as well have been my fortieth," said the philanthropist when asked how he felt. "I never felt better in my life. How do I do it? Well, ever since I was a young man I have followed out a plan of life that I think is the best if you want to be happy.

"There's a well known German motto to which, literally translanted, means 'Man, do not fret.' I make it 'Fret not thy gizzard.' Be content. Make those around you happy and you will be happy as a matter of course. Every man should marry young and be contented.

"Mrs. Pearson, who died four years ago, married me when I was twenty-seven years old. We lived together fifty-nine years and I can say truthfully, that during all that time I never had opportunity or occasion to fret.

"Young men should remember to exercise a lot. Automobiles and horses are useful in their way, but your feet will prove your best friends if you walk them around enough."

HOME ENDORSEMENT

Hundreds of Quincy Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement the public expression of Quincy people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Quincy reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

W. Charlesworth, 33 Cranch street, Quincy, Mass., says: "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were very severe at times and cold or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew that my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give them a trial and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had taken the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Several of our citizens attended a meeting in Boston on Thursday afternoon, by invitation of the "Committee of 150 on a Saner Fourth." It is an effort in Boston of the 1915 movement, and is assured of success from the start. It is having not only the attention of the most thoughtful citizens of Boston, but has the support of the mayor and of the council to the extent of $10,000 of the city's money. The idea is not to abridge the rights and privileges of "Young America" by taking away the things they have, and leaving them nothing, but to give them other things of greater value and of real interest, in place of the dangerous and annoying features of the past.

☞ The date of the concert and sale under the auspices of the Murray club at the Universalist church vestry has been changed to Thursday night, April 21.

ANOTHER ATTEMPT

Made by Gordon to Break Jail in New Hampshire

Albert I. Gordon, who was arrested at Fitzwilliam, N. H., for the Quincy officers, was brought back to Quincy on Friday by Lieut. McKay. Gordon is the young man who broke out of the police station while waiting trial. Once out of the station he lost no time in shaking the dust of Quincy from his feet, and he was not again heard from until this week, when the police received a tip that he was in Fitzwilliam. A telephone message to the sheriff resulted in his arrest. No requisition papers were required to bring him back to Massachusetts, for the way they do in New Hampshire is to take the prisoner to the State line and push him across into Massachusetts, and say to the officer, "there is your man, grab him." This was done in Gordon's case.

It came near being a trip for nothing for Inspector McKay, however, for had Gordon been given a little more time he would have repeated his episode at Quincy. When arrested in Fitzwilliam he was locked up in the police station which is a brick building. It was supposed that he would be safe, but when the sheriff went to take him to the State line he found Gordon was trying to escape. He had succeeded in removing nine of the bricks in the wall that separated him from liberty and a few hours more would have seen him free.

In court this morning he was sent to the reformatory for the larceny of bush hammers. He was also indicted by the April grand jury for breaking and entering, and he will probably be brought before the superior court the present term.

WEYMOUTH.

Monday club holds its annual meeting on April 18 at 2.30 P. M. in Masonic hall. A social hour will follow the business.

The Old Colony club closes the season on April 28 with the annual business meeting, entertainment and tea.

Rev. Perry Bush a well known minister of Chelsea, will be the speaker Monday night at the meeting of the Men's club of the North Weymouth Universalist church.

Mrs. John H. Tower entertained the Crescent Whist club on Friday.

The annual meeting of the Universalist ladies' sewing circle of North Weymouth was held Wednesday afternoon. The officers elected for the coming year are as follows: President, Mrs. D. J. Sampson; vice president, Mrs. Samuel Drew; secretary, Mrs. Harry Stiles; treasuer, Mrs. John Taylor; assistant secretary, Mrs. E. R. Sampson; work committee, Mrs. E. J. Jordan, Mrs. D. A. Jones, and Mrs. R. F. Vining. All reports were good ones. The treasurer's report showed a balance of $100. Baked bean supper was served by Mrs. D. J. Sampson, Mrs. Ida Taylor and Mrs. E. R. Sampson.

AT THE STATE HOUSE.

The direct nomination bill was passed to a third reading in the House on Friday by a vote of 187 to 2. Speaker Walker took the floor in advocacy of the bill and the vote was surprisingly large.

The bill to relieve cities and towns of the cost of grade crossings was passed to be engrossed without debater.

The bar and bottle bill is in the hands of the committee on engrossed bills. It will come back to the House for enactment, and will then go to the Senate where a roll call will be demanded.

NEW WARD

4 inches. It is connected with the main building by an enclosed corridor 50 feet long built on an incline so that an invalid's carriage or chair can be easily moved from the main building to the new ward.

The first floor of the ward is to be used exclusively for women. At the extreme southerly end is the main ward room which is large enough for ten beds. This room is high studed and well lighted, and has an entrance leading to the sun room. From this sun room is an inclined run to the ground, so that patients can be readily wheeled to the lawn. At each bed there is a cord and push button. When a patient desires the attendance of a nurse all that is necessary is to press the button which lights a red light over the bed. This light cannot be extinguished by the nurse except by a visit to the bed where the button was pressed.

Leading to this room is a broad corridor, on either side of which are small rooms, namely the nurses' room, untility and linen room, doctors' room and toilet rooms, while on the opposite side are, a patients' clothing room, a toilet and bath room for patients, the latter so arranged that the bath tub sets in the centre of the room, that the attending nurse can go on all sides of the tub. There is also a diet kitchen where the food for patients is prepared, and a serving room, also a room known as an isolating room for patients.

On the second floor is what is known as the private ward. A wide corridor runs the whole length of the upper floor from which doors lead to the rooms, of which there are eleven, each being about 9 by 12 feet. Each room has one large window while the end rooms have two windows which open onto a sun balcony. From this balcony an iron fire escape stairway leads to the ground.

In addition to the private rooms for patients there are the toilet, bath, diet and linen rooms the same as on the first floor. Each of these private rooms will be simply furnished with a bureau, chair and table. There is also in each room a small closet.

In the basement is the kitchen with a sub corridor leading to the main hospital kitchen. Food is cooked in the main kitchen and taken by this sub passage to the kitchen in the new ward, where it is prepared and transported to the upper floors by a dumb waiter. There is also a large elevator running from the basement to the upper floor. This elevator is of sufficient size to accommodate a bed so that patients can be easily moved from one floor to another.

A very elaborate system of ventilation has been installed by which fresh air, heated to the right temperature, enters each room. Another very noticeable thing in the new ward is the absence of square corners. These square corners are said to be great dust catchers and to avoid this all corners are round. Ample light is furnished the upper corridor by a large sky light.

The ward will be heated from the new heating plant, erected some months ago, which is situated on the Whitwell street side of the hospital. It was the erection of this heating plant that occasioned in a great measure the debt of $7,000 which the hospital now has. It is the intention of the trustees another year to regrade the grounds and make them more attractive.

A NEW ATTRACTION.

Woolworth's new 5 and 10 cent store is certainly one of the big attractions of Quincy today. Yesterday afternoon the large store in the Adams building was thrown open for inspection, and crowds were there to enjoy the music and see the display. Again in the evening they saw a store brilliantly lighted by 50 Tungsten electric lights arranged in clusters of five.

But 8 A. M. today was the opening hour for sales, and long before that hour the crowd blocked the wide sidewalk and overflowed into City Square. Ten minutes after the doors were opened it was necessary to close them, as it was impossible to handle the crowd. All day the store has been thronged with buyers. The big half-page "ad" in the Daily Ledger has brought big returns.

TODAY'S COURT.

David M. Lodge of Newton was fined $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Joseph B. Fitzgerald was arraigned for larceny from Abbott & Millers express, and was sentenced to four months in the house of correction.

Albert I. Gordon was sent to the reformatory for larceny at Quincy.

Chief Burrell sent Inspector Goodhue and a squad of officers to South Quincy, but there was no trouble. The gang passed through Quincy shortly after 3 o'clock and made no attempt to create trouble

COERCION SAYS LABOR UNIONS

Adopt Resolutions in Favor of 8-Hour Clause

Rear Admiral Bowles, president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, was condemned Sunday says the Post, by the delegates of the Boston Central Labor Union for his efforts to have the employees of the company sign a petition to Congress asking that the eight-hour work day clause be eliminated from the naval appropriation bill now pending. This appropriation bill provided that all new battleships must be built under the eight-hour work day system.

The effort of Admiral Bowles to have his employees sign his petition, in the opinion of the Central Labor Union delegates, was un-American.

"It was an attempt to coerce his workmen. It aimed to misrepresent their and the public's sentiment in the matter. It aimed to mislead public officials a s to the real attitude of the workmen in the matter." was the opinion of the delegates and they did not mince words in their caustic criticism of President Bowles.

"Such methods are un-American, un-fair, and the rankest form of coercion, as it is well known at the shipbuilding yards that any man who dares to refuse to sign the protest given him by the company to sign will shortly, for some assumed reason, find that his services are no longer required at the ship yards," was one specific declaration in the resolutions which were adopted with a unanimous shout.

"The eight-hour work day is in accordance with the efforts of organized labor and for the best interest of the United States government and the whole American people," the resolutions further declared.

These resolutions will be sent to President Taft, Senators Lodge and Crane, and other national representatives, with the specific request of the 600 Boston labor unions that the U. S. Senators favor the clause, as adopted by the House of Representatives, and that they use every effort to have the clause continued in the bill.

While on the general eight-hour day question the meeting adopted a declaration on the bill now before Congress and also a resolution calling upon all the Masachusetts Senators and Congressmen to use every effort to secure the passage of the bill known as Senate Bill 5578 and House Bill 15, 441.

The 115 delegates at the quarterly convention of District Assembly 30 K of L. held on Sunday also voiced a protest against the effort of former Rear Admiral Bowles to establish the nine hour work day at the Fore River ship building yards. The delegates directed their secretary to write to United States Senator Lodge and Crane to urge that they exercise themselves to the end that the eight-hour work day obtain in the construction of all United States battleships.

In Faneuil hall, also, on Sunday, Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles, president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, was bitterly criticised for his opposition to the proposed eight-hour day provision in the naval appropriations bill at a mass meeting of machinists, both union and non-union.

—Secretary of the Navy Meyer has endorsed a former opinion of the navy department that the construction of naval vessels on the Great lakes would constitute a violation of the Rush-Bagot convention of 1817. THREE TOWNS FILE BRIEF

Asking That Government Rebuild Hingham Bridge

Mayor Shea and the city of Quincy approve the brief filed Saturday by Attorney Albert P. Worthen for Weymouth, and Attorney J. O. Burdett, for Hingham, with Lieut. Col. Edward Barr, local army engineer, which makes the request that the question of the Lincoln street or Hingham bridge be settled by the Massachusetts Legislature and Congress, that an extension of one year be permitted for making the changes contemplated by the war department, and protest vigorously against compelling the citizens of these towns to bear the expense of a new bridge when the navy department shall ask for it.

Colonel Burr will send his recommendations to Chief of Engineers Brig.-Gen. William B. Marshall this week, who will transmit them to Secretary of War Dickinson.

The officials of Hingham, Weymouth and Quincy are endeavoring to interest Congressmen Joseph F. O'Connell, John W. Weeks and Eugene Foss in the situation, so that they may bring a bill before Congress empowering the federal government to bear the expense of widening the draws from their present width of 24 feet to 50 feet, as the naval officials ask for.

It is understood that Colonel Burr will recommend a new structure and that time be granted in which to decide who shall bear the expense of building the bridge.

—The robbery of a New Jersey bank by a janitress who used her scrubbing pail to carry off the plunder excites interest only because of the obsolete methods employed. In the present developmnt of the art of bank robbery only burglars commit the impropriety of abstracting cash from the vaults by merely physical means. The proceeding is in violation of professional ethics and amounts to plain stealing. The looting should be done through the regular channels and the money received at the paying teller's window in the course of the day's business, or with the help of the clearing house, on presentation of a collateral or of a note or a check bearing the requisite indorsement. It is in the preparation of this collateral or negotiable paper that the art as at present practiced consists. For an outsider to enter the vaults disturbs the system and is contrary to the rules of the union, no members of which in good standing would report to this unusual method.—Roach's Financial Facts.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

The office of the Daily Ledger will be closed on Patriot's day, Tuesday, April 19, which is a legal holiday. The numerous attractions of the day will be reported in the Daily Ledger of Wednesday.

Thursday should be a flag day for Quincy, as on April 21, 1789, John Adams was seated as the FIRST Vice President of these United States.

It is encouraging to note the practical unanimity of the city in favor of supervised playgrounds and the improvement at the corner of Washington and Coddington streets. Appropriation orders for both are expected to pass the city Council this evening.

No one has advanced any good reasons why the city should recklessly order the wholesale metering of the water service of the city, and the City Council should hesitate tonight before it increases the burden of city debt, and the big interest account.

The advisability of separating the sexes in co-educational schools and colleges, is becoming more and more apparent, and in the East almost all such educational institutions have made the change, and are providing separate institutions for the educating of the young woman. Tufts college is one of the latest to separate to the general satisfaction of the students. There are those in our city who believe that two high schools are almost a necessity; that one for boys and one for girls would give better results.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The desirability of improving the outward appearance of the city is being realized in New Bedford, and as the first step toward a greater degree of attractiveness, a garden and yard contest has been inaugurated which is in part like the one under way in this city. Substantial prizes have been offered to encourage the cultivation of flowers and decorative vines and plants, but the promoters of the plan have gone a step further with the idea of meeting the needs of a densely-settled mill city, and will award prizes for faithfulness in eliminating refuse, ash heaps, tin cans and other unsightly objects from yards. The interest already shown in the matter among the owners of small homes indicates that the leaven is working and the success of the project seems assured.—Springfield Republican.

A MILTON VIEW.

It would be much more advantageous to Milton and Quincy to be allied with the rest of Norfolk county in congressional affairs, as they are in the choice of senator, than to continue along with Dorchester and South Boston. In a Norfolk county district, Milton and Quincy might expect once in a while to secure recognition, whereas in a Boston district they have practically no chance. Already the movement for a Norfolk county district to include Milton and Quincy is being agitated and it is being made an important issue in the senatorial campaign.—Milton Record.

SCHOOL PLAYGROUNDS.

To make the school lawns around the buildings in Melrose playgrounds is the plan of the school committee, which has authorized the committee on schoolhouses and Supt. John C. Anthony, formerly of Braintree, to lay out the grounds to the best advantage for the school children. Heretofore the pupils have been obliged to play in the streets about the buildings at recess and before and after school. It is now planned to place paraphernalia upon the grounds. Hedges will be planted about the borders of the yards. The High and Livermore school grounds on Main street will retain their lawns.

GROWTH OF THE CENSUS.

The first census taken in 1790, was a simple enumeration of the population of the United States. It filled in large type fifty-six pages of a thin pamphlet, with tables which two or three pages of the World Almanac would easily hold. Each copy of the Philadelphia issue was signed by Thomas Jefferson, secretary of state.

Some surprising changes have since occured. North Carolina was then more populous than Massachusetts, and Massachusetts more populous than New York, while Virginia led the list with 60 per cent more people than Pennsylvania. Brooklyn had fewer people than Newtown or North Hampstead.

The only mandate for a census in the Constitution is a provision for an "actual enumeration," to be made in such manner as Congress shall direct, to serve as a basis for apportioning "representatives and direct taxes." If the census now being taken, the thirteenth, were to be like the first, a mere enumeration of the people, the work could be done in a few months and printed in a single small column. Instead, we shall presumably have some twenty thousand or more large pages, containing not only an enumeration, but such an encyclopedia collection of facts concerning the country as no other nation quite parallels.

Nor could one of these pages well be spared. For while the registry of births, deaths and marriages, the enumeration of paupers and other statistical work is not yet done by all our states with such accuracy as in the chief European countries, the great decennial count does much to supply these omissions, while adding avast amount of detailed information upon industrial, social and educational progress.

A nation with nearly 110,000,000 people living under or outside of the Constitution, with 250,000 miles of railroad, 25,000 newspapers and other publications, with 20,000,000 children and youths in schools, with a public debt of only $11 per capita and national wealth of more than $1,000 for each person, which surpasses in total Britain and Germany combined, and with half the people living in their own homes on their own land—the country can easily "look pleasant" for this great decennial photograph of progress and prosperity.—Exchange.

ISLES OF SHOALS MEETINGS.

The Isles of Shoals summer meetings will be held this year the week beginning July 10, the Sunday School Institute meetings to come the week following. The morning sessions of the summer meetings will be devoted to a series of addresses on "The Essential Faiths of the Modern Man." It is understood that the Ocean House on Smutty Nose will be open this year. This house can accommodate thirty, and those who were there last year were all pleased with the board and general accommodations. It is stated also that persons desiring to pitch tents on Smutty Nose may obtain table board at reasonable rates at the Ocean house. Guests will be taken to morning services free, and for the evening meetings five cents each way. For accommodations at the Ocean House, address Mrs. C. Caswell 1 Newbury Street, Portsmouth, N. H., until May 1.

FOREIGNERS IN FLIGHT

Buildings Owned by Them In Chang Sha Are Burned by Rioters

Chang Sha, China, April 18.—All the foreign-owned building in Chang Sha have been destroyed by fire, with the exception of the British consulate. All the buildings rented by the foreigners have been looted.

The Chinese officials issued a proclamation that they were unable to protect the lives and property of foreigners, and thereupon all foreigners made haste to leave the city. So far as is known, no foreign resident lost his life.

The governor of Hu-Nan province, Wou Tchung-Siu, and his son were killed and several other government officials fled. The riots began on April 13, when the famine sufferers looted the rice shops.

BREAKS WORLD'S RECORD

Great Feat of Burgess Aeroplane In Its Initial Flight

Newburyport, Mass., April 18.—Three successive aeroplane flights by A. M. Herring of New York and W. S. Burgess at the Plum island aviation field Sunday created a record for heavier than air machines when the big machine started on each when the big machine started on each one of its three flights by its own power on skids while resting on the ground.

The successful flight is the culmination of three years' steady planning by the two inventors who made the flights, which marked the opening of the aeroplane era in New England.

OLD MAIDISM NO REPROACH

Spinsterhood In These Days Has Come to Be a Badge of Honor. Why Stigma Has Passed From the Term "Old Maid."

It is not so long ago that the term "old maid" was regarded as a sort of reproach. Not so today. The expression has almost dropped out of the vernacular, and when it is spoken it means nothing to be dreaded and carries no sting with it. In the days of our grandmothers spinsterhood was always classed among the awful possibilities, and it was the purpose of every girl's best endeavor to steer clear of it. Early marriages were the rule, and the woman who elected to live the single life was comparatively rare.

There are several reasons why the old time matrimonial limit has been extended. The most potent of these is the development of the business and self supporting woman. The college bred woman is another obstacle in the way of early matrimony. She does not in most cases succeed in getting her diploma until she is in her twenties, and should she go in for postgraduate honors she will not be ready to "settle down" until the quarter of a century mark is reached. The cost of living is playing its part in the prolongation of single blessedness, and the fact that the old ideals of simplicity in the home life are no more is also to be taken into consideration.

So the stigma has passed from the phrase "old maid." As an independent factor in our present social scheme she is indispensable and fits in everywhere most admirably. The time is actually come when we should find it embarrassing to do without her.

It is wonderful, too, how well these "bachelor maids" succeed in preserving their good looks and womanly charm. The old fashioned dogma that business knowledge or a too comprehensive education unfits a woman for living the life for which she was created is as dead as a doornail.

Aside from the merely material possibilities of a trade or profession, the woman so trained makes a better wife and mother. There are those who will carp at this, but as a proposition it will stand. It requires no new argument to prove that the married woman who has the broader outlook which comes from a business life is better qualified to understand her husband and to counsel him and sympathize with him in his plans to succeed in the battle with the world. She will be able to administer her household affairs in accordance with business principles. She will adjust her duties to a workable system, have fewer differences with her servants and be able to command a larger amount of self control.

TWENTIETH CENTURY OLD MAID.

A woman who learns how to do one thing well enough to keep her in bread and butter and the wherewithal to be clothed has added immensely to her value as a wife. It will give her a poise, a feeling of security and a point of view that will be of inestimable service to her in the management of her home.

Best of all, it may be said of the bachelor maid who is self supporting that she is emancipated from the fearful bondage of looking out for three meals a day. She may scan the matrimonial horizon with a critical eye and not be compelled to view each available suitor in the light of a breadwinner.

It is the brainy, capable "old maid" who has ennobled matrimony by freeing it from the dross of mere expediency.

PEN GETS HIM OUT OF PRISON

Young Poet Is Given His Freedom on His Birthday

EDITORS PLEADED FOR HIM

Had Been Tried Without an Attorney When He Stole Money Because He Was In Need of Food—To Seek Employment as Musician, but Has No Objection to Magazine Work, If Temptation Is Strong Enough

St. Louis, April 18.—The poet who is known on the prison books and to all but a few persons as "John Carter" was released from the Minnesota state prison today, the pardon board having voted to commute the sentence of ten years which was given to the 19-year-old boy nearly six years ago for stealing $24 when he was starving.

When commutation was decided upon the board set to work to calculate the time that might be allowed, under the regular procedure, for good behavior, and were at work at this when it was reported to them that Carter wuold be 24 years old on April 18. The members with quick unanimity voted to set the poet free then.

Judge Wills, whose interest in Carter's poetry in the Prison Mirror started the movement for the convict's release, retold the story of the prisoner's crime, his trial without an attorney, the refusal of the court to prove his statement that he was only 19 years old—he looked much older—of the development of his remarkable talent in writing and the interest taken in him by magazine editors and literary critics.

He read letters from several editors and a telegram which came only Saturday morning from Robert U. Johnson, editor of the Century Magazine, in which one of Carter's poems appeared this month. Johnson, who had written a letter to the board previously, said in his telegram:

"Comment of many newspapers and persons convinces me that public opinion will sustain your honorable body in releasing John Carter. My appeal is made, not because he is a poet, but because of his manly letters and because his youthful crime has already been grievously expiated."

It is Carter's intention to seek a position as a musician, but he would do magazine work "if tempted," he said.

His first thought, he said, was to get employment playing the piano or the clarinet. He does both well. He had no aversion to writing, he said, but he did not believe the remuneration very large.

"I'll go to England for a visit," he said, "but will return and make this country my home."

BRIBES ON "BOTTLE" BILL

Boston Minister Says That Several Senators Were Approached

Boston, April 18.—Rev. Herbert S. Johnson of the Warren avenue Baptist church made the startling statement that he has positive proof that not only one but several state senators had been approached improperly to influence legislation in regard to the bar and bottle bill in the senate.

Mr. Johnson declared that he knows the names of the senators who were approached, but declines to make them public at this time. He stated that it will probably all come out later, with the names of the senators approached and those of the parties who approached them.

In regard to whether money was offered to the senators Johnson declines to state. He is in possession of much important evidence in regard to the matter, he says, but will not openly declare that actual money was offered.

ROOSEVELT IN HUNGARY

He Is Warmly Welcomed as the Apostle of Liberty and Peace

Buda Pest, April 18.—Hungary received Theodore Roosevelt with open arms after he crossed the frontier, popular enthusiasm, according to the newspaper editors, exceeding anything since the days of Louis Kossuth.

The journey after Roosevelt left the train at Pressburg, to spend the afternoon with Count Apponyi, assumed almost the character of a triumphal procession.

The entire population of the ancient capital of Hungary turned out, the mayor and other city authorities greeting the ex-President of the United States as the apostle of liberty and peace.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Wollaston Churches Believe in Publicity

HALL PLACE M. E.

Rev. Carl H. Raupach, pastor of the Hall place M. E. Church, took for his subject for the morning service, "The Genius and message of the Ministry" his text being found in 2d Corinthians 13-1.

He spoke briefly of his return, by the conference to West Quincy, and thanked the people for their faithfulness during his work here, and spoke very encouragingly of the work of the coming year.

The Sunday school was held at 11.45 with a large attendance. Junior League was held at 3 P. M. Miss Ada Williams lead the Epworth League devotional service at 6.15.

The text for the evening service was taken from Psalm 132: 4th and 5th verses. "I will not give sleep to mine eyes, or slumber to mine eyelids, until I find out a place for the Lord."

The regular meeting of the Brotherhood will be held Monday evening, April 18, in the church vestry.

Prayer meeting will be held on Friday evening at 7.30. A session of the official board will be called at the close of the prayer meeting on Friday.

WOLLASTON M. E.

A good audience was present at the Sunday morning service of the Wollaston M. E. church. The pastor, Rev. Wesley Wiggin preached his first sermon of the new conference year from Matt. 4:19. His subject was—"The true christian Life."

The question of John the Baptist," was the topic of the Sunday School lesson. J. A. Sedgwick appointed the "Children's day" committee.

Mrs. E. Estes rendered two solos at the Epworth League.

At 7 o'clock the pastor preached on, "Service determines the life we live." It was announced that the Tuesday night class meeting will unite with the Friday night prayer-meeting on account of the holiday.

WOLLASTON CONGREGATIONal.

The pastor Rev. Edward A. Chase preached the first of a series of spring sermons Sunday morning. The text was from the song of Solomon, the 6th idyl, in which the bride won from the Lebanon vineyard, longs for the mountains and the high fields. "Let us go forth into the field; let us get up early to the vineyards; their will I give thee my love." He spoke of the spring-fret which makes us restless for the woods and the river. Then of the soul-fret which urges us away from the conventional things of religion, and sends us afield with Christ, to gain fresh visions of Him, His beauty and His truth. There to pledge Him anew our devotion.

The second sermon in the course will have for its subject: "Hard times and how love found a way."

Mr. Hemmenway who has been such an acceptable singer has gone to the large Baptist church in Malden. Mr. Manson who is taking his place sang most creditably on Sunday.

The first Sunday in May is to be a festival Sunday. Several are to be received into the church, and a musical vesper service held in the afternoon.

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S.

Sunday morning the Rev. Mr. Walker of Reading preached at St. Chrysostoms church and took for his text Colossians 3.15—"And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to which also ye are called in one body; and be ye thankful." He dwelt on the peace of God which passeth all understanding, and which keeps the hearts and minds of those who are faithful. The light of His holy spirit and peace granted to all those who are admitted. into the fellowship. Christ's religion keeps them from those things contrary to their profession. Almighty God who has given his only son to be a sacrifice for sin and an ensample of godly life; give us grace that each one may always thankfully receive his inestimable benefit, and daily endeavor to follow the blessed steps of his most holy life.

SOWING FLOWER SEEDS.

Get the Best and the Freshest—Firming the Soil.

To secure a good stand the first requisite is first class seed. Flower seeds are generally smaller and more delicate than farm seeds, and the purchase of poor grades at bargain rates is usually a waste of time and money. Plant only strong, fresh seed. Usually the highest priced is the cheapest.

The next step is the preparation of the seed bed. See that the soil is thoroughly mellowed. The first stage in germination is the absorption of water. The rate of absorption is determined by the number of points of contact between the seed coat and the soil particles. Firming the soil multiplies the number of points of contact; hence the wisdom of one famous authority's rule to put your foot on everything you sow. If the soil is wet this firming is inadvisable, but if dry it is quite necessary.

The depth of the covering is governed largely by the size of the seed. Generally seeds may be covered to a depth equal in thickness to the length of the seed. Very small seeds should not be covered at all, the better plan being to shade them for a few days with papers to hasten germination.

Each class of seeds has its own germinative temperature requirement. Some, like the sweet pea, sprout when the frost is hardly out of the ground, whereas other kinds require a good warm soil, and the seed will rot if planted too soon. The habitat of the plant will usually give one a clew in this regard. Plants from cool regions or high altitudes usually start early, and those from warmer regions should not be planted until later.

As the seeds begin to sprout it is well to go over the surface of the bed with a rake and break the crust for the purpose of assisting the young plantlet in getting through.

Competition should be eliminated by keeping the weeds down and by thinning out. Overcrowding means weak, spindly plants. Give plenty of room and sunlight if you want your plants to thrive.

SUCCESS WITH SWEET PEAS.

Plant Them In a Ditch—Let None Go to Seed.

To have the best success with this plant one must bear in mind the fact that it is a cool season crop. The pea produces its best crop before the hot, dry weather of summer comes on.

The seed should be sown in the fall or early in the spring. It is a good plan to sow the seed in the bottom of a trench four or five inches deep, cover with one inch of soil and gradually fill in later as the plants get large. The pea delights in a deep, rich, retentive, though well drained soil. The first sowing may be made on the south slope, followed by successive plantings. The bloom period may be extended by making the last sowing on a north slope or in some location where the pea will receive partial shade. The pea requires an abundant supply of water. If the season turns off dry the plants should be watered copiously, using the seed trench as an irrigation ditch.

As soon as the plants reach a height of six inches a support or trellis of some kind should be provided. Probably the most convenient material for this purpose is poultry netting. The netting can be had in any desired width and can be stored through the winter and used from year to year.

Never allow any seed pods to mature. The more flowers you cut the more you will have.

There are numerous varieties of the sweet pea and ample room for choice as to colors desired and also as to dwarf or tall flowering sorts.

THE PANSY BED.

It Should Be Shaded From the Noonday Sun—Rich Soil Needed.

The essential conditions for success with the pansy are a cool, half shaded place and a rich, friable soil. The pansy is a cool loving plant and does best where shaded from the noonday sun.

If the seed pods are kept cut away the plants may be carried through the summer and a good crop of flowers secured again in the fall.

To secure early flowers the seed should be sown in a cold frame or window box in November, or they may be started in September and transplanted to the permanent bed in time to reroot before winter. At the approach of winter the bed should be mulched with straw or pine needles to protect the plants from heaving and thawing.

The pansy has been greatly improved in recent years, and some of the present market strains are very fine.

ATTRACTIVE LILY BEDS.

Flowers Planted In Shady Place Need Little Attention.

No garden is complete without a bed of lilies of the valley. These fragrant flowers should be planted in a shady place and left there permanently. They need practically no attention and year after year appear on schedule time. Although their flowering period lasts only about a week, the bed containing them is an attractive spot of green for many weeks during the spring and summer. If left to themselves they will spread rapidly, and a small bed will soon be a bed of generous proportions. For outdoor planting clumps of lilies of the valley are generally used, the pips being for indoor forcing principally. When planted out of doors, however, the pips will give good satisfaction, for each one contains a flower.

HUNT FOR HUGE WOOD BISON.

How Harry V. Radford Killed America's Greatest Mammal.

FIRST SLAIN BY WHITE MAN.

The Creature Weighed Over Twenty-four Hundred Pounds and Was Almost Six Feet High—Its Skeleton, Hide and Head to Be Sent to a New York Museum.

That the wood bison is not a myth, but a gigantic reality, will be demonstrated beyond question early in May, when the skeleton, hide and horned head of the largest wild animal ever shot on the American continent is shipped from near Fort Smith, Northwest Territories, to be added to the collection in the Museum of Natural History at New York. Not only is it the greatest in bulk, but it is the first wood bison ever killed by a white man.

Harry V. Radford of New York, known a few years ago as "Adirondack Harry" because of his familiarity with the wilds of northern New York, was the successful hunter, and to prevent doubt being cast upon his claims he has made affidavit as to the circumstances, and this deposition, with the statements of his Indian guides and the five white men who assisted in skinning the creature, will be submitted to the American Bison society, which is collecting all available data concerning the nearly extinct mammal. It was under its auspices that he undertook the search.

Nearly Six Feet High.

The weight of the bison shot by Radford was 2,402 pounds; length of head and body to root of tail, 9 feet 7 inches; height at shoulder, 5 feet 10 inches; girth behind forelegs, 9 feet 9 inches; circumference of neck, 6 feet; circumference of muzzle behind nostrils, 2 feet 5 inches.

Mr. Radford started on the expedition in February, 1909, with the express purpose of determining whether it was identical with the bison that used to roam the prairies in Yellowstone park, a thousand miles south, or whether it was a distinct subspecies.

Arrived at Edmonton, Alberta, Mr. Radford remained until June 1 to study the habits of the rare animal he was seeking. He had made up his mind to devote at least a year to the quest. He obtained a special permit from the Canadian government after he had convinced the officials that his hunt was solely for scientific purposes.

The hunter reached the timbered country about the Great Slave river late in June, and from then until he attained his object he was cut off from civilization. He descended the Mackenzie river to its delta within the arctic circle, mapping and exploring the country as he went. He made a long search through the valley of the river, questioning Indians and making personal observations.

The hunt continued without intermission from June to the last day of November without success. No game except that actually used for food was shot. From June, 1909, to January, 1910, Mr. Radford walked more than 1,200 miles.

Looked as Big as an Elephant.

On the morning of Dec. 1, when about fifty miles southwest of the small Hudson Bay post on Slave river, the hunter came across a trail that indicated the proximity of an animal of extraordinary size. He and his guides were on snowshoes. The thermometer was 17 degrees below zero, and as the day advanced the mercury fell still lower. The chase led over uneven hummocks and was most exhausting. The quarry itself began to show fatigue and enabled the party to get close.

Mr. Radford was amazed when he got a good view of the immense bulk. In the gathering gloom it looked as big as an elephant. Carefully stealing to leeward, he got to a clearing where the view was unobstructed. He waited until he was within sixty yards before he sighted his rifle and fired. The bull turned as if to charge and then lumbered off toward a dip in the snow. Mr. Radford fired again and then a third and a fourth time with his steel lined shells. Each bullet took effect. The bison ran 150 yards and then lurched over dead.

The thermometer had been falling steadily, and it was necessary to make a very rapid inspection of the appearance of the mouth, nostrils, tongue and other soft parts, so that accurate notes could be made before they were stiffened by death. When the temperature reached 40 below zero Radford and his Indian helpers made for camp, six miles away, after covering the carcass with snow to keep it from freezing. By the light of the moon next morning at 3 o'clock the task of disemboweling and skinning the animal was resumed. This was done in a temperature of 37 degrees below and with the bare hands. Then the measurements and weights were recorded in the presence of five witnesses—all white men.

The largest buffalo ever measured by a naturalist was an old bull shot in 1886 on the Montana plains by William T. Hornaday. It was regarded as of abnormal weight, probably 2,100 pounds. This is 300 pounds less than the mammoth killed by Mr. Radford.

HER ANSWER IS YES

Mme. Cavalieri Will Be Bride of Chanler

HAS A DOUBLE REPUTATION

Lina Cavalieri Renowned as a Beauty and Songster

IS TO WED ARTIST CHANLER

Says She Likes Him, but Is Not Sentimentally In Love—Has No Idea of Divorce, but Would Not Marry Where Matrimonial Ties Could Not Be Severed If She So Desired—Will Continue on the Stage

Paris, April 18.—Lina Cavalieri, the prima donna, who has just announced her engagement to Robert Winthrop Chanler, the artist, declares that she does not love her fiance, and that love is unnecessary in marriage anyway.

"It has taken me four months to make up my mind to accept Mr. Chanler," she said. "I have not lost my head, and you can bet that I am not sentimentally in love with him.

"I do like him, and certainly hope that ours will be a happy union. I believe that love is unnecessary in marriage. There is nothing exciting about my engagement. My views on marriage have often been expressed, and I am merely living up to them.

"Mine is not by any means a romance. But although I am not marrying with the idea of divorce, I would not marry in Italy or any other place where divorce is impossible. It is comforting to feel the existence of an open-door of escape even while hoping there is nothing to flee from.

"I shall certainly continue singing. Marriage is no reason why I should sacrifice my career, for I love the stage. I shall not see Mr. Chanler again until my return to New York in November, when the wedding will take place almost immediately. I am now about to start an engagement at the opera house in St. Petersburg and then another in Buenos Ayres."

Lina Cavalieri has for many years held a double reputation as one of the most beautiful women and the sweetest singers of Europe or America.

Born in the slums of Rome, she grew up with the love of music in her heart, and at a youthful age was engaged as flower girl and vendor of programs in one of the Roman theatres.

There she won the attention of Carlo di Rudini, son of the Italian premier, who, discovering that she possessed the gift of song to a remarkable degree, had her given a thorough musical education by the best artists. She has had a career of triumphs since girlhood.

Chanler Won't Discuss Courtship

New York, April 18.—Robert W. Chanler celebrated strenuously the announcement of the beautiful Lina Cavalieri's acceptance of his proposal of marriage. He visited his studio in the Windsor Arcade, on Fifth avenue, for a few moments. Then he vanished.

Mr. Chanler could not be induced to reveal any details of his courtship. There was nothing for him to talk about, he intimated. It was just a glorious love affair.

WITH HUMAN "MATERIAL"

Doctors Have Made Experiments Which Are In Nature of Torture

Philadelphia, April 18.—As the result of investigations ordered in this city it has been revealed that 160 children, inmates of Blockley, the great Philadelphia hospital, and of St. Vincent's home for orphan children, mostly very young infants, and even babies less than a year old have been used as human "material" for purposes of experimental research by physicians of the William Pepper labratory of the University of Pennsylvania.

The experimenters admit that permanent disturbance of vision was sure to follow in one of the experiments they had practised upon an orphan, and that one test, if pursued, might lead even to the destruction of the eyesight.

The result of this campaign of experimentation on helpless, destitute and orphan babies was to bring about friction between the management of the hospital and the physicians in charge of the medical department, which has resulted in the resignation of the entire board of physicians.

FIRE STARTS IN JAIL

County Building, Church, Store and Thirteen Homes Are Burned

Hyde Park, Vt., April 18.—Driven by a strong wind, a fire that started in the county jail here spread until the jail, courthouse, town hall, Congregational church, one store and thirteen residences had been laid in ashes. Twenty families are homeless.

The fire started presumbaly from a defective stovepipe between the first and second stories of the jail, and gained headway so rapidly that efforts to save the building were soon seen to be useless and attention was directed to endangered neighboring structures.

The two prisoners, both minor offenders, whom the jail held, were released and turned to with a will to help fight the flames, which did damage estimated at $100,000. Neighboring towns sent their fire fighting forces to aid in subduing the flames.

FROM LABORER TO MAN OF AFFLUENCE

"Fresno Dan" to Receive Half of the Russell Estate

Melrose, Mass., April 18.—"Fresno Dan," who one short month ago was a poor fruit picker in the west, is now officially known by the members of the Russell family as Daniel Blake Russell of Melrose, estimated to be worth from $250,000 to $350,000 in his own name.

The metamorphosis from a laborer to a man of affluence took actual form yesterday during a visit of the Fresno man to the Russell home.

William C. Russell, who one week ago recognized in the seamed countenance of the claimant his long missing brother, made the announcement to the guests assembled that he had made up his mind to share equally with him the Russell estate.

The Russell estate is variously estimated to be worth from $500,000 to $700,000, so that "Fresno Dan," as he has been called, will become one of the wealthy citizens of Melrose.

AFTER TWENTY YEARS

Man Who Sued Northern Pacific Railroad Gets $100,000 Verdict

San Francisco, April 18.—Ending litigation which dragged through a dozen courts, from the superior court of Idaho through the federal tribunals and to the supreme court of the United States, during a period of twenty years, the United States circuit court of appeals for the Ninth district handed down a decision awarding $100,000 damages against the Northern Pacific railroad to Joseph H. Boyd of Spokane.

The claim, originally for $17,000, was for the payment of construction work for the Coeur d'Alene Railway and Navigation company. Interest and charges brought the sum up to the amount awarded to Boyd by the court.

BLIND GIRL'S SIGHT SUDDENLY RETURNS

Blind Man the Second Object That Meets Her View

Detroit, April 18.—Red tulips in a florist's window were the first objects to greet the eyes of 14-year-old Norma Bently after she had been totally blind since the day before last Thanksgiving day.

"I can see, mamma; I can see!" the child cried suddenly as she was being led along the street by her mother. And she removed the big goggles that had been shielding her eyes.

"What do you see, my child?" the mother asked doubtfully.

"Red tulips," laughed the little girl in delight. Then she became quiet and thoughtful as the second object that met her view was a blind man.

Doctors attribute the child's blindness to anaemia and say that the return of sight followed the building up of her constitution.

RIGHT TO CHANGE MIND

Not Conceded to Women Where Court Proceedings Are Concerned

New York, April 18.—The right of a woman to change her mind does not extend to proceedings in court, according to a ruling by Justice Blanchard of the supreme court. He denied the request of Mrs. Mabel C. Golding, wife of a millionaire real estate operator, to reopen a suit for separation which was dismissed at her own request. Blanchard said:

"The plaintiff moves to have the case restored on the calendar on the ground, as I gather from the papers, that she has changed her mind. That is a privilege claimed by the sex, and generally accorded to it, but not without exception. She seeks to undo without legal reason the solemn act of this court. The motion is denied."

Two Acres Leveled by Explosion

THE MISSING INGREDIENT.

An Inventor Left His Secret Guarded Well.

By EVELYN WITWOTH.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"Oh, father, I'm afraid that some day you'll blow yourself up."

"Never fear, sweetheart! There is but one thing combustible about these ingredients, and that I never put in till the last. And it must have been mixed with the others an hour before there can be an explosion."

This dialogue occurred in old Severance's laboratory between him and his daughter Fanny. She was his only child, and he had no wife, so that, being all he had to love in the world, she was his idol.

"Father," she said, changing the subject abruptly, "Will has spoken." She threw her arms about his neck and hid her face in his bosom."

"Has he, chick? I'm glad—for your sake, dearie—but for me"— He finished with a deep sigh.

"Oh, father, I will never leave you! We will always be together."

"Daughter," said the old man, "I, too, have something of importance to tell you. I have discovered a fulminate powder that will revolutionize warfare. It will treble the range of a cannon or a rifle. I have been offered $100,000 by the government for my secret. Now that Will has spoken you may tell him that you will have a fortune for a dowry. He is a fine fellow and deserves it and you."

Peter Gower, a man of thirty-five, whom Severance used for an assistant, was eavesdropping outside the door and heard every word of the conversation. Although he had worked with Severance, he did not know that his principal had succeeded in his effort. Severance had made the crowning discovery while working alone at night and had guarded his secret carefully even from his assistant. Gower, like Severance, was a chemist, but was employed simply as an assistant and not entitled to any interest in his inventions.

SHE READ IT AND STAGGERED.

From this time forward Severance was conscious that Gower was watching him in order to get the secret. The assistant knew the main ingredients of the composition, but the one substance without which the union was incomplete he did not know. One day while Severance was at work making the compound he saw reflected in a mirror before him Gower's face intent upon him. Severance put in all the ingredients, substituting for the uniting substance another than the correct one. An expression of joy came over the face in the mirror.

After this Severance conceived a dread of his assistant. One day he gave his daughter a bit of paper with a single word written on it and told her to put it away in a little trinket box she had and to be extremely careful as to its preservation.

One day Fanny Severance was startled by the sound of an explosion in the laboratory. Every drop of blood left her face instantly. Rushing into the laboratory, her worst fears were realized. Her father's body was lying on the floor so disfigured that he was scarcely recognizable. Gower followed her. He was pale and trembling.

"I've been fearing this for a long while," he said.

But the girl did not hear him. She had swooned. He carried her into the house and ministered to her till she came back to consciousness. Then he left her.

Fanny Severance and William Clarke, her fiance, found themselves thus unexpectedly cut off from the dowry they had expected at their wedding. But the young man showed no disappointment to the girl he loved, and they were married soon after her father's death.

Gower put the laboratory in order, shut it up and gave Fanny the key. She saw no more of him till soon after her wedding. Then he called ostensibly to learn of her welfare, but really to see if he could get from her a bit of secret information. He had put together the chemicals necessary to the compound Severance had invented, had put in the uniting substance he had seen Severance use, but notwithstanding that he had tried every known percussion substance he had never been able to get an explosion. Recognizing that he had been foiled and that a fortune had slipped through his fingers, he was about to accept the situation when it occurred to him that Severance might have left his secret with his daughter. After making formal inquiries he told her that her father had given him all the elements of his compound but one. If he had left her the name of this uniting chemical she might yet be rich, for he (Gower), having all the rest, with this could manufacture the powder.

When her husband came home that evening Fanny told him of Gower's call and what he had said. Later on, going to her trinket box, she noticed the paper her father had given her. Taking it to her husband, she told him of the circumstance attending her receiving it and asked him if he knew what it meant. The young man looked at the word written on the paper. It was a curious mixture of letters, spelling an almost unpronounceable word. Then suddenly an idea occurred to him. He told his wife that it might be the crowning chemical used by her father for his compound.

"Then," said Fanny excitedly, "all we have to do is to give it to Mr. Gower and we will yet be rich."

But William Clarke believed in the adage "Make haste slowly." He slept but little that night, thinking why, if this was the required substance, Severance had left it without the other ingredients of the compound. He must have had a reason for doing so. Clarke thought for hours upon this reason. Was it that Gower knew the other ingredients and in the event of the inventor's death could go on with the manufacture of the powder in case Fanny would give it to him. If so it meant that Fanny was the real possessor of the secret. But why had not Severance told her that what he had given her was the key and what she was to do with it in case of his death?

"Fanny," said the young husband the next morning, giving her the daily parting kiss, "go into the laboratory today and see what you can find there."

Fanny took the key to the building and, with a shudder, going into the laboratory, began to hunt—what for she did not know. There was a tiny safe in the wall that interested her. Remembering that she had father's keys in the house, she went for them and, picking out an odd looking one, slipped it into the lock. It fitted exactly, and, turning it, she opened the small door and took out several papers. Selecting one, she read it and staggered as if stricken. It read:

Suspecting that my assistant, Peter Gower, will murder me (he thinks he possesses my secret) I leave this paper in case anything happens to me. I dare not give the secret to any one, even to my daughter, now, but trust this action will insure it to her without the risk that would occur if it left my keeping.

On another paper was a list of the ingredients except one, which the writer said he had given to his daughter.

A horrible thought entered the young wife's mind. Her father had probably been murdered.

"Bless him!" she exclaimed, kissing the record he had made. "Had it not been for his care a murderer would have robbed me of my rights."

The hours dragged slowly till her husband came home, and she told him of her discovery. He read the paper and, taking his wife in his arms, said:

"Sweetheart, it is our duty to avenge your father."

"How?"

"There are ways in which Gower could have contrived an explosion. He might have mixed substances that would require a few minutes or a few hours to unite chemically. He might have run a wire underground to the outside of the laboratory and ignited some substance within by an electric spark. He might have tossed a bomb at his victim's feet. Whatever his means, he doubtless removed all evidences of its character, for you left him to lock up the laboratory."

"So I did," she said wonderingly. "But could I have done otherwise? I wouldn't have gone there myself on any account."

The next day Clarke took steps to renew the negotiations with the government broken off by his father-in-law's death. The matter dragged, as all matters connected with governments are bound to drag. But Clarke, who had more business ability than the inventor, started negotiations with another country and before long had two nations bidding against each other. The result was that he finally received five times as much as was offered Severance.

When payment was handed to Clarke it was in one check on the national treasury. He took it home and waved it triumphantly over his wife's head, exclaiming:

"There's your dowry!"

But the wife's joy was subdued by the sad memory of her father's death. "Alas, poor father!" she said, with tears in her eyes.

The next day Clarke did the more melancholy duty of handing the police the paper incriminating Peter Gower. A warrant was issued for his arrest, and as soon as he was taken an investigation of the laboratory was made. A tiny hole was found under a workbench through which a wire might have been passed to the cellar. To lead it from there to the outside of the building no other hole was needed since it could have been passed through a window. This single hole was the only evidence against the accused, and it was not sufficient to convict him. He was acquitted of the murder by the jury, but not by the public. When freed he disappeared and has never since been heard from.

REGISTERED MAIL STOLEN

Southern Pacific Train Held Up by Masked Men In California

Benecia, Cal., April 18.—The China-Japan mail, which left San Francisco over the Southern Pacific railway for the east Saturday night, was held up by two masked men at Sprig, two miles east of here, early Sunday and robbed of nine pouches of registered mail. After getting the mail sacks, the robbers cut the engine loose from the train and sent it wild, throttle open, down the main track to the east.

In the direct path of the engine was a section of passenger train No. 5, west bound, heavily loaded. But for the presence of mind of a telegraph operator at Suisun, a collision would have taken place. The engine was thrown into a ditch in the nick of time.

The train carried no express matter. Four of the pouches have been recovered, but the robbers rifled the others and now are hiding in the hills.

INVESTMENTS WIPED OUT

Cambridge Bank Stockholders Lose Heavily by Coleman's Thieving

Cambridge, Mass., April 18.—Except to express great surprise at the amount of the shortage which he declares is greatly in excess of the sum he expected it to be, William A. Morse, counsel for George W. Coleman, refuses to discuss the report of Receiver Bates that the liabilities of the defunct National bank of Cambridge will amount to $309,000. This sum, so much greater than the most liberal estimate had placed it, and $129,000 more than accounted for in the confession Coleman is said to have made, is a matter of general comment in court circles.

This unexpectedly large shortage means that the stockholders of the bank will lose every dollar invested, as well as a 100 percent assessment upon their holdings, and that the 800 depositors will get no more than 75 cents on the dollar for the face value of their accounts.

RICH WIDOW HAS BOY FOR HUSBAND

Former Spouse Was Seventy-Eight When He Departed Life

Paris, April 18.—Mrs. George Ovington, the wealthy widow of Edward J. Ovington of Ovington Brothers, bric-a-brac dealers, New York, startled Paris society by marrying "between two trains" a young musician, Reinhold Von Warlich, a boy whom she had educated for a musician.

Mrs. Ovington is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maeze of Louisville, and in spite of the fact that she is no longer a girl she has a great amount of the zeal of the native Kentuckian. With her late husband, who died last year at the age of 78, she has lived much in Europe. She has one son.

WORLD ENDS TOMORROW

At Least That Is the Prediction of Holy Rollers' Prophetess

Duxbury, Mass., April 18.—By the courtesy of Prophetess Eva Brown, the Holy Rollers learned that the end of the world will come at 15 minutes before noon on Tuesday, April 19.

To prepare for the end, sixteen converts waded out into the frigid water of the mill pond at Ashdod Sunday and were forced beneath the water in the triple baptism of the trimmersionists, while a rejoicing multitude stood upon the bank and sang.

Men and women of 55 went through the ordeal, as well as girls from 18 to 25 years of age, 15-year-old boys and one little girl only 8 years old.

WOOD'S BILL HELD UP

General Spent Nearly $100 For "Kitchen Courtesies" to Foreigners

Washington, April 18.—The treasury department has decided that if an American general invites military and naval attaches of foreign governments to look at government military maneuvers, with lunch thrown in, this government will not foot the bill.

The point was raised over the sum of $98.65, which was expended by General Wood for lunches and other kitchen courtesies for foreign military observers during the maneuvers in Massachusetts. As the money was undoubtedly spent, the question arises, who is to pay it? The government says it won't.

ALDRICH WON'T QUIT SENATE

Says Rumor That Ill Health Will Retire Him Is "Absurd"

BRAYTON VENTURES OPINION

Senator Will Run Again and Be Elected—Wife Has For Years Wanted Him to Retire, but Son Sees No Possibility of It Coming to Pass—Rumors Cause Excitement Among Politicians In Rhode Island

Providence, April 18.—The report, supposed to have emanated from Washington, that Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island intends to retire after March 3, 1911, created a hubbub of political excitement throughout Rhode Island. Republicans generally, though split on the question of the desirability of retaining "the general manager of the United States" in the senate, were of the undivided belief that Aldrich would not retire.

A prominent member of the state central committee, who would not permit his name to be used, ridiculed the idea of Aldrich retiring at the end of his term, saying the rumor was baseless and false, and adding: "But see General Brayton. He is in a position to deny it."

General Brayton, questioned upon the subject, said: "Senator Aldrich is not going to retire. My own opinion is that he will be a candidate for re-election. If he is, he will certainly be elected."

Senator Aldrich himself said: "My health is the best. I have no complaint to make on that score. Such a basis for retirement is absurd." When asked the direct question if he was going to retire, the senator answered: "That is a bridge we will have to cross when we come to it."

The statement of Aldrich was made at his home at Warwick, R. I. It was taken by all the Republican leaders of the state who were seen later as corroboration of their own opinions regarding the future policy of Aldrich.

Former Governor Brown declares that the senator's health is robust, and that there has not been a time for years when he was more desirous of completing a cherished work and therefore more certain of remaining in Washington.

A son of the senator said: "There is nothing much the matter with the senator, but when he went on that financial campaign out west his stomach went back on him just a little. That, however, will never put him out of the senate. Mrs. Aldrich has wanted him to retire for years. She very much wished that he would abandon politics and the senate, but it is my own private opinion that he will die wearing the toga."

Chairman Fitzsimmons of the Democratic committee said: "You couldn't drive Senator Aldrich out with a club. He's there to fight and die in the senate."

MEAT FROM AUSTRALIA

It Is Sold In New York Cheaper Than the Domestic Product

New York, April 18.—A good share of the available supply of Australian beef and mutton which reached New York was snapped up eagerly by housewives at prices said to range in most sales places from 3 to 6 cents below the prices asked for western meat of equal quality.

The importers who brought the meat to America declare that theis experiment is a complete success. "The Australian meat is as good as or better than the western product," said one of the importers.

LINE-UP FOR HOLIDAY

Quincy Vs. Bostons at Water Street Grounds

Everything is in readiness for a hot contest at the Old Colony league grounds tomorrow afternoon, when the Boston team of the "Salt and Pepper" league meet the Quincy Old Colony leaguers.

There are many familiar faces coming with the Bostons, and they will appear in spotless white suits for the first time.

At 3.30 tomorrow look to see the local grounds filled to overflowing.

Here is the probable batting order of both teams:

QUINCYS	BOSTONS
Duggan, LF	Magee RF
Lonergan, 3B	Dam, LF
Murray, C	O'Toole, CF
Bjorkland, CF	Mathews, 2B
Briggs, 1B	Butman, 1B
Hanson, RF	Mulvey, 3B
Todd, SS	Lyons, SS
Fritz, 2B	Sullivan, C
O'Connor, P	Burrows, P
	Howard P

LOCAL SPORTS.

Milton High 7, Dedham High 2.

Saturday ball games resulted as follows:

Milton Academy 4, Browne and Nichols 3.

Wakefield High 5, Weymouth High 1.

At Charlestown on Saturday the Fore River football team of Quincy defeated Charlestown 2 to 1.

Charles Francis Adams 2d's sonder class racer is completed at Lawley's except for a few minor details. The dead wood and keel down to the lead has been covered with bronze plates, and the workmanship in this shows a fine job of plating.

At least three Quincy men are entered for the big B. A. A. marathon run tomorrow, William Gover (No. 20) representing the Mohawk A. C., Walter Hackett, representing the Brookline gymnasium; and Frank Bruce, representing the Italian-American A. C.

In a practise game of baseball on Saturday afternoon at Merrymount Park the Ramblers, of Wollaston, defeated the Merrymounts by a score of 6 to 4. The regular season of the Ramblers opens on the afternoon of April 19th when they will meet the Mystic of Cambridge at Merrymount Park.

Bjorkland had his hopefuls out for a "trial spin" Saturday afternoon at the Old Colony league grounds and split up the candidates into two teams and had a fine workout . Bjorkland threw them over for the Yannigans and he was ably held by "Pete" Sullivan. "Al" got a fine line on several of the tryouts, and we may hear of some Quincyite booked for a place on the local outfit in the future.

—The success of the vacuum cleaner for indoor work has suggested to some inventive genius the vacuum idea for cleaning our streets, and a machine for that purpose is now, or soon will be, on the market. If a practical demonstration of the operation of this machine accomplishes what is claimed for it, its general adoption will be speedily assured. The spring winds carry with them clouds of dust, which finds lodgement not only in our houses and shops, but in our lungs as well, causing damage to property and endangering our health. New methods of road construction now include a surface of tar or some similar material which makes the vacuum cleaning plan more feasible than on the ordinary macadamized road. Any device that will operate to mitigate the dust nuisance will be heartily welcomed.—Milford Gazette.

A living of £100 a year will be given to a curate on condition that he marry the giver. He must be young, well recommended for morals and good temper and firmly attached to the present happy establishment. Answers may be left at the bar of the Union Coffee House, Strand, London, directed to Z. L. The utmost secrecy and honor is to be depended upon.

Gerard Wentworth, a young man of twenty-two, saw it and was attracted by it for the following reasons: He had barely completed his studies preliminary to taking orders when simultaneously a lawsuit involving the family property was decided adversely and Gerard's father died. This left the young clergyman on the threshold of life with two sisters and a mother to provide for. He was thinking of giving up his profession and accepting a clerkship in a mercantile house where he could earn more money than in the church when his eye fell on the advertisement.

"Is there not in this," he mused, "a chance for me to follow the career I love and am fitted for? If I should marry this woman I might eventually become a bishop."

So he left a note at the Union Coffee House stating that he would be happy to meet the holder of the living and in due time received an invitation to call at Twickenham, a suburban town a couple of hours' ride from London.

Mr. Wentworth alighted from the coach at an imposing gateway and walked up through attractive grounds to a manor house. Dreams of marrying a fortune were kindled in his brain, but they were soon put to flight by a housemaid who answered his knock, pointing to a dilapidated looking cottage in one corner of the inclosure and telling him he would find the advertiser there. With a sigh he turned and, walking over to the house in question, knocked again. A servant who had apparently left the washtub replied to the summons and showed him into a dingy living room, the blinds to which were all closed. Presently an angular woman of fifty entered and announced that it was she who had the disposal of the living.

Wentworth was too much of a gentleman to get up immediately and take his leave. He talked in a desultory way and among other things told the lady that his purpose in getting the living was to be able to continue in his career and provide for his mother and sisters, whereupon the woman told him curtly that his application would not be considered for a moment.

Wentworth rose to go, but the woman asked him to wait a few minutes. She then left the room and was gone some time. When she returned she said that, after all, his love for his mother and sisters had affected her favorably toward him and that she would think the matter over. Would he call again in a few days?

Wentworth said, "Thank you," which might mean anything or nothing and took his leave. As the door closed behind him a figure emerged from the manor house--a young girl dressed like a lady and withal comely. She and Wentworth met at the gate, and it seemed to him that she must know that he was an applicant for the living to be disposed of, for she looked amused. Wentworth, who had reached the little gate beside the driveway a few paces before her, paused to let her go through, taking off his hat politely.

"I wish you joy with your living and your bride," she said, a snap in her eye and a pair of dimples on each cheek flanking a smile.

"I have not yet been accepted, nor have I accepted," he replied, walking on beside her.

"Why should a young man of your age need to marry an old woman for a living of"— She hesitated.

"One hundred pounds," he supplied. He told her that he was bound by honor and affection to consider his mother and sisters.

The girl walking in the same direction as the curate, they continued together to the inn from which the coach started. When they parted she said to him:

"Come and see me. I have a friend who has at her disposal a living much better than the one you have applied for. You needn't marry her, but I can introduce you and will use my influence in your favor. I think when I tell her that you are ready to sacrifice yourself for your mother and sisters she will be disposed to help you. Our clergy, as you know, are chiefly interested in gambling and cockfighting. It's not easy to find a real true hearted man among them."

Wentworth, quite delighted with so fortunate an encounter, smiled a pleasant smile, and a day for the introduction was appointed.

Before the time for the introduction came round he received a note from the young lady—signed Alice Trelawney—saying that the person who had the living to dispose of desired to hear him preach. Would he do so in the church at Twickenham on the following Sunday, and would he be a guest at her house between Saturday and Monday?

Wentworth accepted with joy in his heart. If he succeeded in this case there need be no marriage with a venerable spinster. A roseate hope fluttered in his bosom that he might marry the girl who was endeavoring to benefit him.

The following Saturday the afternoon coach stopped at the Oaks, the curate alighted, and his portmanteau was set down from the boot. He was received by Miss Trelawney and introduced to her aunt, the head of the house, for Miss Trelawney was an orphan. He spent the rest of the day and the evening with her, and, being an open hearted, frank young man, Miss Trelawney within a few hours knew more about him than he knew himself. At any rate, she knew him to be a very lovable young man, a matter of which he was entirely ignorant.

But the next day when Wentworth stood in the pulpit to preach Miss Trelawney discovered something else in him. His heart was in what he said, and he had the gift of language to say what was in his heart. He spoke extemporaneously, his sermon being the first heard there in many years that had not been written, to say nothing of having been purchased by the incumbent from some more gifted person than the preacher. Indeed, the congregation was carried by storm.

When the curate, after the benediction, stepped down from the chancel many people advanced to encourage him by appreciative remarks. Miss Trelawney waited for him at the church door, and they walked to her home together.

"Was the person who has the living to dispose of in church?" he asked.

"She was."

"And how was she pleased with my effort?"

"Very much."

"Then I presume there need be no further delay to my meeting her?"

"None whatever."

They walked on to the house, dined and spent the rest of the day together, Wentworth expecting all the while to receive the promised introduction. To this, however, Miss Trelawney made no reference till he was about to depart on Monday morning, when she said:

"The introduction I promised you is not necessary. The lady having the living to give heard you preach and had a much better opportunity to judge of your merits than if she had met you, you knowing who she was. She has in this way met several young clergymen and has heard them preach. She has decided to invite them all to hand in a written sermon on Easter Sunday appropriate for that day. He whose sermon pleases her most will be invited to preach it and will receive the living."

Wentworth's face fell. "I am no writer," he said. "I shall lose the prize."

"Do your best and keep up a good heart. I shall do all in my power to turn the scale in your favor."

Easter fell two weeks from that day. Wentworth worked hard over his sermon, for his career depended upon his winning the prize. But he produced nothing that satisfied him. "If they would only let me tell them what I feel without tying me down to this miserable pen," he exclaimed, throwing it down testily on the table at which he wrote, "I could impress them, I'm sure. As it is, I am a sure loser and shall go from the church to the counting room."

However, a few days before Easter Sunday he dispatched his sermon, writing at the same time a lugubrious note to Miss Trelawney bewailing his inability to write instead of speaking what he had to say. Miss Trelawney had told him that the candidates must all be present, and he was to stay at the Oaks. He arrived late Saturday night and Sunday morning went to the church, where he dreaded to meet the other applicants for the vacant living. As he was ascending the steps the sexton handed him a note. Tearing it open, he saw that he had been chosen and, with "My hearty thanks to you for this inestimable favor," handed the note to Miss Trelawney. A pressure of the hand and a smile was her only response.

Wentworth expected to find his written sermon on the pulpit. Not finding it there, he could only begin to talk extemporaneously. His heart was full of joy and gratitude, and he preached delightfully. Then when it was over he joined his benefactor. As soon as they reached her home he said:

"And now do please introduce me to the person to whom I am to be indebted for being able to follow the career of my choice."

"You do not need an introduction. I have arranged it all for you."

"Yes; that I know. By your influence I have won. But she who makes the gift? I would seem an ingrate if I did not thank her."

She had sauntered to a window. He followed her as he spoke. She turned to him and said:

"I own the living. I wished to test the man to whom I should give it and advertised for one to fill it, coupled with the condition that he should marry the giver. When you interviewed our housekeeper I was in an adjoining room. I saw you and revered you for your high sense of duty. You were detained, and the housekeeper recalled by my order her refusal of you. I escaped and gave a signal to dismiss you, I leaving this house at the same moment as you. I have given you the living, knowing how well you deserve it."

Wentworth stood looking at her in astonishment. The first words he spoke were:

"The marriage condition? Was that"—

"That rests with the successful applicant," she replied, turning away.

Wentworth's mother and sisters did not live with his wife, but she provided for them.

OLD COLONY LEAGUE

Signing of Players, Salary Limit And Schedule

(By Rube)

A meeting of the directors of the Old Colony baseball league was held at Rockland April 17 and all clubs with the exception of Randolph were represented.

President Jerome F. Murphy presided in his usual capable manner and many things of interest to all of the clubs were brought before the meeting.

The subject of signing players brought out a lengthy discussion. many believing that the clubs should not require a college player to sign and endanger his future career by doing so. D. M. O'Brien, "the man behind," at Rockland did not believe it fair to ask college stars to sign and gave some fine seasons for it. It seemed the opinion of all the directors that while they would like to secure protection and receive money for the players taken by other leagues, they did not want to stand in the way of players who might go to other clubs and play every day in the week.

This subject brought out the fact that the Old Colony league directors are fair minded, and that they always look at both sides of a question before taking action.

Another important question discussed was the changing of the salary limit. This question is a vital one, and the final settlement means much to the success of this league. Randolph and Stoughton long ago asked for a salary limit and it was voted in February to place the limit at $50 per game. It was brought out that there are many ways "to do" this rule, and before the season is under way the old question of too much money will be again heard. Manager Bjorkland of the Quincy club wanted a flat rate, that is, to pay each man a stated sum for each game, expenses included in the amount. This seemed agreeable but a price could not be agreed upon and the matter was dropped.

At this point the schedule question came up. President Murphy stated he liked the old one and asked opinions of directors. This brought out plenty of suggestions from all quarters, each club looking after their interests. D. M. O'Brien, the man who is satisfied with anything they give him, worked overtime to satisfy Taunton and Quincy, who did not like the jumps they had to take. After an entire afternoon, which very much resembled an old time town meeting, the directors voted to let President Murphy, Secretary Alger and Treasurer Nash draw up a schedule and present their proposals April 30 at either Brockton or Rockland the place to be decided on later.

Among those present were J. F. Murphy and Mr. Dennison of Stoughton; Bjorkland and Ford of Quincy; Everett, Tirrell, Nash and Richardson of the Deweys; Alger, O'Brien, Sheldon and Mahar of Rockland; McCarthy of Taunton. Meeting adjourned at 5.45 P. M.

ARE THE BLEACHERS SAFE?

Bleachers are being built today at the Quincy base ball grounds, and it is important that they should be built strongly and safely, for the club will be liable for accidents.

Last week Charles Mitchell filed in the superior court his findings as auditor in the New Bedford suits familiarly known as the base ball cases, finding for the plaintiffs in the suits against the corporation and for the defendants in the suits against the individuals. James F. Smith and Joseph A. Burke. In finding against the New Bedford Base Ball and Athletic association, the auditor finds for the plaintiffs in the aggregate sum of $15,810. In four cases the amount of damages assessed is more than $1,500.

The New Bedford bleachers as they stood at the time of the accident were a structure without roof, containing twelve tiers or rows of seats of successive heights, each extending continuously the entire length of the structure. The seats were attached to stringers made of 2 inch by 8 inch timbers, the stringers being parallel to each other and about seven or eight feet apart. They extended upward in a slanting direction from the base of the lowest row of seats in front to the highest row of seats in the rear at a height of some twelve feet above the ground.

It appeared that the collapse began near the centre of the bleachers and the spectators were thrown forward and downward. After the accident several of the stringers and braces were found broken. The plaintiff contends that the collapse was due to several causes, among which were specified lack of proper bracing faulty construction, lack of proper inspection and overloading beyond their sustaining capacity.

LIVELY SCENES AT CITY COUNCIL

The Wollaston School Lot Location under Discussion

Order Passed to Buy Land for Montclair School.

A regular meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening and as has been the case with almost every meeting this year it was a lengthy one, being nearly 11 o'clock before an adjournment was reached, and even then a number of matters in the calendar were not reached.

In the absence of President Hobbs, Councilman Bryant called the meeting to order, and on roll call was elected President pro tem. Councillors Hobbs, Branch and McDevitt were absent the whole of the evening.

A venire was received for the drawing of six traverse jurors. The Mayor, City Clerk and Councilmen Loud drew the following: James P. McGovern, Eben Stocker, Elmer E. Gray, James R. Donahue, Michael McAuliff, James R. Allison.

A PRESENTATION.

Councilman Carey rose to a question of privilege, and called Councillor Flynn to the front of the President's desk. President Bryant then in a few well chosen words presented Councilman Flynn with a handsome box of silver as a wedding gift from the Council.

Councilman Flynn responded briefly thanking the members for their gift, and said that he hoped some time to be able to show his appreciation in another way.

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

A public hearing was held at 7.45, on petitions of the Telephone Co. for attachments and location for poles. There was no opposition.

At 8 o'clock there was a public hearing on the petition of the Citizens' Gas Co. to lay mains. Mr. Nichols appeared for the company and told why the locations were desired. He was asked a number of questions by Councilmen and the hearing closed.

At 8.30 a public hearing was held on the petition of the Street Railway Co. for the approval of its operating a trolley freight. Superintendent Conway appeared and told why the approval was desired. The approval

SOCIAL CLUB MINSTRELS

Some Clever Numbers Presented at Music Hall

The Quincy Point Social club gave its annual minstrel show at Music hall on the evening of the holiday with a large attendance. Dr. Daniel B. Reardon was interlocutor, and the ends were well taken by Miss Anna Goode, Miss Gertie Walker, Dennis S. Sweeney, Francis Sweeney, Fred Holbrook and Bernard McGee. Others to take part in the program were: George Francis, Miss Eva Jones, Walter Shea and Ray Abildegaard in solos in part one.

A base ball sketch was a hit in part two, the solo part "I want to go to the ball game" being sung by Miss Florence Farquhar, assisted by a chorus of nine girls. Bernard Burke was pitcher, Frank O'Brien, catcher, George Fallon umpire, Ernest Godfrey as "Willy boy." Another sketch "Loveland" was presented by Miss Vera Burke assisted by eight boys and eight girls in dances. The "Kelley" sketch in which Miss Walker took the solo part, assisted by sixteen boys was also popular.

A DRESS REHEARSAL.

Junior Alliance of First church gave a very successful performance of the operetta "A Dress Rehearsal" in the chapel Friday evening. The music was bright and catchy and the trio of Cinrerella and her spiteful sisters, especially, was enthusiastically encored.

The cast, composed entirely of young ladies, was as follows: Cinderella, Miss Minnie Hardwick; the Prince, Miss Beatrice Morrison; the spiteful sisters, Miss Ruth Packard and Miss Mary Harris; the fairy godmother, Miss Roberta Smith; Miss Jones, principal of the boarding school, Miss Lela Smith; Mlle. Epinard, Miss Dorothy Packard; Mrs. Jarvey, the elocution teacher, Miss Ella Packard; Miss Prudence Pinchbeck, Miss Ruth Penniman, school girls, Misses Catherine Saville, Nettie Pote, Ruth Bass and Minnie Packard.

The performance was under the direction of Miss Minnie Packard, with Mr. William Weston as accompanist. The operetta was so well received that it will be repeated some evening during the first week in May for the benefit of the Sunday school.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert Doucherty of Quincy, Robert D. McNeil, Nicholas Cassette and William B. Yuill o Weymouth, were arraigned for drunkness. Cases continued until July 1.

Newton R. Cass was fined $5 for building a fire on the Metropolitan Park reservation.

TRIAL OF STEAMER

Hart Gun Also an Effective Addition to Department

The new steam fire engine recently purchased by the city was given a try-out on Patriots' day, on Bradford street near Adams square. It is a first class Amoskeag and the makers claim it is the best engine they ever manufactured. First, two lines of hose of two lengths each were run by Combination 1, and soon two powerful fire streams were being thrown. Although the Hart gun or union was introduced by Chief Williams last year it was not given a good trial until this time. The two lines of hose were brought together into this union, which is attached to the Combination. George Williams was stationed on the wagon and handled alone this wonderful invention. A very powerful stream was played at any angle and whether horizontal or perpendicular it did great work. It is just what the city would need at a fire in a tall building or church spire, and there will be other times when a fire can be fought effectively from the wagon by this stream.

Among the spectators at the trial was Chief Whitmarsh of the Braintree fire department, who envies Quincy her new steamer, and also the Hart gun which has his endorsement.

ODD FELLOWS SERVICE.

The funeral of Joshua E. Hanson was held Monday afternoon from his late residence on Revere road, and attended by relatives, neighbors and friends, and a delegation from Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows. Rev. R. E. Armstrong of Christ church read the Episcopal service. Three selections were contributed by Mrs. Emma S. Moore, entitled, "Face to face," "There is a green hill far away" and "He giveth his beloved sleep." Prof. Frank Wrigley accompanied on piano. The Odd Fellows performed their service at the house. The tributes were numerous and included a large "gates ajar" from the Walker-Stetson Company of Boston, and and wreath from the Odd Fellows. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Howard Gannett, a long and well known resident of Wollaston, passed away quite suddenly at his home 108 Warren avenue Monday afternoon. Mr. Gannett had apparently been enjoying good health and no one had any intimation that the end was near. He was seized with a heart trouble about 4 o'clock and although medical aid was summoned he passed away two hours later. Mr. Gannett was about 69 years of age, and had been engaged in the insurance business for many years. He was one of the pioneers of Wollaston, coming there about 40 years ago. He was deeply interested in the Wollaston Baptist church, and was one of its founders. His wife died a few years ago, and since that time he has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Ward Ballard. He leaves three sons and two daughters, Howard, Edward H. and Gordon G. Gannett, Mrs. Ward Ballard and Mrs. James M. Nowland, wife of Councilman Nowland.

BASE BALL SEASON OPENED

Quincys of Old Colony League Lose to Bostons of U. S. League.

Quincy High Scores Victory in Tenth Inning.

(By Rube.)

The Quincy Old Colony league baseball team opened their playing season on the afternoon of Patriot's day, going down to defeat before "Gene" O'Connor's speedy Boston outfit of the newly formed United States league by a score of 3 to 1.

The gates were thrown open early in the afternoon, and it was a doubtful group of directors that watched for the coming of the fans. They soon began to arrive in groups of threes and fours, and smiles began to creep onto the faces of the ones at the helm as they saw both the old and new bleachers fill to overflowing. It is doubtful if a larger attendance could be had even if Paul Revere galloped out and announced it.

All eyes were on the gate and a cheer went up as Lonergan, Bill Duggan, Murray, Briggs and Manager Bjorkland put in an appearnce. The new players also got a fine reception as they trotted out for their warm-up. "Brodie" Bjorkland batted them around to the infield and some of the stops made by Lonergan and Todd were hair raisers. The Boston team here arrived and the fans directed their attention to them. They got out onto the diamond and soon got under way for practice.

It was just 3.30 P. M. when Jack King, the West Quincy umpire, called Bjorkland and O'Connor together and five minutes later in the presence of 2000 lovers of the great game, he called "play ball."

"Andy" O'Connor took a brand new ball and walked to the mound. Captain Murphy of the visitors was facing him. He hit a grounder which Todd gathered up and threw to first, O'Connell the next batter drove the marble over Hanson's dome in right and rested on second when the ball got back. Futz made a mess of a throw to him and this coupled with O'Toole's infield out resulted in O'Connell being the first man to score on these grounds in a game this year. In Quincys half, Murray singled but died at first.

Both sides went out in order in the second, and in the third Murphy's single went for nothing as two were out, and Duggan's fine catch of O'Connell's drive retired the side.

In the fourth O'Toole reached first on Todd's error, Greene singled to centre and two were on bases, Martin came up and drove a wicked grounder to Futz who made a perfect scoop, throwing to Todd who sent it on a line to Briggs completing a remarkable double play.

War Eagle set himself and met one for two sacks scoring O'Toole, White drove one towards second which Futz made his second error on and War Eagle made for home. He beat the throw, but Murray was alive and threw White out at second.

Both twirlers were now going in fine style, but five hits being made in all. "Skinny" Dunlap was having a shade the better of the argument, probably owing to the fact that Quincy had not had batting practice this season and their "lamps" were dimmed.

The fans got busy in the lucky seventh. Bjorkland drew a pass but was forced at second by Briggs. Briggs promptly stole second, taking third on Martin's erratic throw to the center lot. Here he was touched out on the moss covered, hidden ball played by Murphy, which did not go, as this play is not allowed this year. Hanson's best was an infield fly, but Todd came to time with a single and our first and only run came across.

Neither side scored during the rest of the game, although Quincy had a fine chance to tie it up in the eighth. O'Connor had paddled and Duggan had been thrown out, when Lonergan landed his second hit, Murray waited and drew a pass, and it was now up to Bjorkland to bring forth a two sacker. He was not equal to the occasion, for he struck out amid groans from the royal rooters.

Taken into consideration the fact that Boston have been under way for about a month, the showing Quincy made is a fine one. Murray caught two men stealing, another off of first and another stretching himself to get to second; not bad for a starter. Bjorkland and Duggan made fine catches in the outfield, while Lonergan at third proved a tower of strength. This boy is going to be a star here, for he is an expert at throwing while out of position just what is needed at the hot corner. Todd at short and Futz at second were a trifle nervous, and anxious to make good, which probably accounts for their errors.

If the boys are given encouragement there is no doubt they will make all teams go to trim them. That they

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Sunday, April 24, has been set aside as Tuberculosis Sunday and all pastors of the city have been asked to observe the day. Many are to devote their services to the campaign and assist in educating and instructing their parishioners. They will speak on its prevention and cure and how all can assist in the work in Quincy.

Before it is too late some provision should be made for a play ground at the Coddington school. The building is in too central a location for its front yard on Coddington street to be given over to a play ground as it now is. In place of a rough gravel yard there should be a lawn with broad walks; the whole in keeping with the surrounding property; the beautiful library grounds, the Morton, Arnold and Wales estates. Where can the children play?

Brockton girls have taken to walking, and are becoming such athlets that they can go several miles into adjoining towns. There is no more healthful exercise for man or woman. The majority of people do not walk enough or do it spasmodically, which is not beneficial. In the hurry and rush and with the convenience of electrics and autos, most people are forgetting how to walk. Business men, employed indoors during the day, would be benefitted by walking to their train instead of jumping on an electric car.

We do some things better here than in our neighbor city. We were in Ashmont last week and the dust was inches deep on some of the streets so that is was a discomfort to cross. A few days later we were there again, and the streets were being oiled. It was in the middle of the day, the dust was still there and the oily mixture was doing its best to hold it down. It was a nasty greasy mess, impossible to cross and pedestrians looked with disgust at their shoes. In contrast we watched with interest to see how it was done in Quincy. Take Washington street as an example, the road was carefully cleaned of all dust and the loose dirt carted off. To the smooth hard surface oil was applied without discomfort to any one. The road is now in good condition in dry or wet weather. This is another reason why Quincy des not want to be a part of Boston. Outlying villages get very little personal attention.

DRIFT OF OPINION

The moment a man adopts the policy of abuse in an altercation with an opponent, he loses standing with all who have good judgment. The old adage may answer among shysters—"When your witnesses fail you, then abuse the counsel on the other side"—but among well-poised folk that policy serves only to bring a reaction against the man who employs it. It is a good thing to let the fish-women alone use billingsgate; its employment brings those who indulge in it down to a low level. When a man is accused of something ill, either deservedly or unjustly, he will serve the ends of justice, and his own interests also, by keeping back the language of extravagance and abuse. If he proceeds to "avow and declare and asseverate that the man who makes this accusotion has told an unmitigated, an atrocious a malignant and an outrageous falsehood," he does little to mend the case. He would much better either call for proof, or else simply say, with composure, "This charge is wholly untrue." Or perhaps he may wisely pass it by without a word. But,however he may act, he weakens his cause by calling his adversary ill names, by using vituperative epithets, by "branding" the man on the other side as this or that sort of liar and scoundrel.—Zions Herald.

The way to be popular has been explained by one of the marshmallow magazines which inflates itself with the idea that it is directing modern life. "When you shake hands with a man" runs the recipe "grasp the hand as though you were glad to see the owner, look him in the eye and give him a smile from your heart." This is a good receipe and it has been used many millions of times since the beginning of the world. It has been worked too by some of the greatest frauds of Christendom to subserve their own ends. The man who is seeking popularity, posing for it, and angling for it usually doesn't deserve it. Keep your admiration for men who show you their real selves—who when they are worried or bothered or mad or glad, make it manifest by appropriate expression, and who are not constantly standing before the mirror.—Haverhill Gazette.

Rich American girls continue to marry without any sign of prejudice for "native sons," though those who risk their happiness in foreign alliances often find themselves the victims of unenviable complications which they never suspected. The recent decision that the Princess de Sagan, who was Anna Gould, must continue to pay an annunity to the father and mother of Count Bona de Castellane, her divorced husband, shows the comparative helplessness of a rich American woman before a French court in litigation turning upon the rights of married women. It would be well for American heiresses to study the laws of other nations regarding the rights of married women before they put themselves at the mercy of titled spendthrifts in foreign courts.—Haverhill Gazette.

The women who hissed the President are sorry they did it. They have so expressed themselves in a resolution, as well as in remarks that preceded its adoption. When Mrs. Shaw called for a rising vote it seemed that the expression was unanimous, but when she called for the negative, one lone woman arose. It was ascertained that she was not a delegate to the convention or a member of the association. It is now claimed that the hissing was started by outsiders, but the women are truly sorry that they were startled into following up the sibbilant demonstration. Mrs. Shaw the presiding officer, characterized the incident as unwise, ungracious, and one which had since inspired the keenest regret. The lesson will not be lost upon the women who compose the association.—Lynn Item.

DRAMA AND DANCE

Under Auspices of Quincy Base Ball Club

An entertainment and dance was held at Music hall Monday evening under the auspices of the Quincy base ball club and drew a crowded house. During the first part of the evening the drama "Uncle Silas" was presented by the San Souci dramatic club with the following cast:

Silas Bradford, president of bank — Alexander Cowie
Jim Bender, sheriff of the county — William L. Troupe
Lemuel Harrison, a man of the world — J. Ernest Collins
Andrew Cashman, a young farmer — James D. Stewart
Martin Murphy, a young Irish American — John Q. Giles
Sam Potter, a gentleman of color — Robert Mitchell
Jack Walker, who sees more than he should — Walter H. Murray
Lottie Bradford, the banker's daughter — Helen C. Troupe
Sadie Bradford, the banker's niece — Jennie G. Grassick
Gertrude Malvern, banker's housekeeper — Georgie Michael

The parts were well taken making the drama of great interest to the friends of the actors. Between the acts there were whistling solos by Mathew Fay and vocal solos by Master John Reynolds, also selections by the orchestra. A social dance followed the entertainment.

OUGHT TO BE SPANKED.

"I think those women ought to get a good spanking," said Miss Floretta Vining of Hull when asked her opinion of the remarks of President Taft at the Washington suffrage convention and the consequent hissing of the national chief executive. "The idea of their hissing the president of the United States. It simply disgusts me. When they conduct themselves in such a manner they show they do not deserve the right to vote."

NO AUTHORITY TO REBUILD

The Position of Quincy Relative to Hingham Bridge

City Solicitor McAnarney and Mayor Shea have filed an independent brief on the part of City of Quincy, relative to the order of the United States government that the draw in the public highway bridge over Weymouth Back river be widened.

They maintain that the Navy department has no authority to direct the city of Quincy to do the work. That Congress has no power. That the sole power is with the Legislature of Massachusetts. That Chapter 177 of the Acts of 1862 decreed that Hingham, Weymouth and Quincy should maintain the bridge, but that they had no authority to construct a new one.

Second, if Congres had the power it should bear the expense.

Third, there was no reason why Quincy should rebuild. All it was called upon to do was to pay 5-24th of the cost of maintenance. The city had no authority to rebuild.

PEACE DAY.

The State Federation of Women's Clubs has organized a new line of civics works to be done by the Saner Fourth and International Peace Department. There is a growing feeling among American citizens that the birthday of their national independence should be a day of general recreation and of instruction along historical lines rather than a day of danger and terror, such as it has become. The siginificance of the day has been lost in the excitement of noise and its accompanying danger. This enthusiasm and excitement can be so guided and directed as to become an element of strength in the promotion of a better patriotism and a stronger civic life.

International peace is a subject in which every woman in club work has vital interest. May 18 is Peace day and all clubs are to unite to secure as far as posible recognition of the day by schools and churches. The new department of the State Federation is to assist in planning for the day.

YOUNG WOMAN'S CLUB.

The annual meeting of the club will be held April 30. This is to be "gentlemen's night, and it is hoped to have a large attendance. A very pleasant entertainment is assured, and refreshments and dancing. Will all the girls who wish to join the club next year please purchase membership tickets before this last meeting from officers of the club. If dues are not paid before May 1st names will be dropped from membership.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

The April 26th meeting of the Quincy Women's club will be open to the public. It will be in charge of the Program committee and for entertainment Madame Amelie von Ende will bring to the club "The Message of Ellen Key." There will be a club tea and social.

The Exchange department of the Home Economics committee is to hold a candy sale the afternoon of the 26th as well as the usual food sale in the executive board room.

The club season closes May 10th with the anual meeting.

There are a few members who have not paid their dues or sent in their resignation. The treasurer, Mrs. Walter E. Blanchard, is anxious to hear from them as the next meeting is the last one before the annual and she wishes to make a complete report of the club finances at the annual meeting. Very few members are dropping out and the waiting list is steadily growing. Mrs. Blanchard will be prepared and glad to receive dues at the next meeting April 26.

BROCKTON WOMAN'S CLUB.

The Brockton Woman's club held its annual meeting Monday afternoon electing the following officers.—President, Mrs. C. S. Millett; first vice-president, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole; second vice-president, Mrs. Lillian W. Sherburne; recording secretary, Mrs. Annie F. Chaplin; coresponding secretary, Ms. Leila F. Richmond; treasurer, Mrs. Lillian M. Hall; auditor, Mrs. Eldora J. Merritt; diectors for three years, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Whitman and Mrs. Mary A. Kent.

Important features brought out in the annual reports were:

Receipts	$5,067.91
Expenditures	3,526.50
Reserve fund	1,177.20
Cash on hand	364.21
Active membership	600
Waiting list	361
Extra waiting list	87

All of which indicates active club work and progress.

Following the other reports Mrs. Lena I. Hoyt, who has been president for two years addressed the club and thanked them for their support. She said: "Last year we observed our 10th anniversary, and it seems that this two years of administration might well be called anniversary period. As no life should be lived for itself alone, so the life of a Woman's club should not be for its members alone, and it seems well at this time to glance at some of the work the club has done during its 12 years of life, especially that for the community.

"In the earlier years mothers' classes were held, with a question box as one of the features. They were open to all women of the city, and were well attended. Talks on sanitation, drainage, etc., were given. Parents' meetings to establish closer relation between home and school have been held. A protest against cutting down shade trees was made to the city government and proved effective in saving certain beautiful trees. The luncheon system of the high school was established, the club furnishing the entire outfit. The system of stamp savings in the public schools was established—and later merged into the Savings bank system, which we now conduct.

"Several pictures have been placed on the walls of our school rooms, a life-size statue given to the High school, and a relief to the children's room of the Public Library. An evening is devoted each year to entertaining the teachers of the city.

"A free summer kindergarten has been conducted in the Franklin school for four years, and constructive work for the boys, with sewing for the girls started last year—to be continued this also.

"This year the work will be extended to the Ashland school. The sewing school conducted on Saturday afternoons during the winter months has done much for the girls of the city.

"The work for the eyes, ears and throats of children whose parents are unable to provide that care, is work made possible by Ex-Gov. Douglas's generosity, and means much time and thought in management. The Visiting Nurse Association was started by our club—think what that means to the city. Art exhibitions have been held with large attendance from all over the city and towns about us.

"Two pictures have been presented to the city as beginnings of a municipal art gallery. We have contributed yearly to local organizations—the Boy's Club, Wales Home, Y. M. C. A. and Day Nursery. Contributions were made to the sufferers by the Chelsea fire and California earthquake and the Grover disaster. We may claim the honor of being the first to bring the members of the Symphony orchestra to the city, when at our annual musical all music lovers were admitted.

"Also again, when the great violinist Fritz Kreisler came to us we opened the gallery of City Theatre to music students at a nominal price, thus giving them an unusual opportunity.

"Other work we have done too—but is this not a good record? It has been my pleasure to serve as your presiding officer during the past two years, a service which has been a pleasure to me."

WHY FEDERATE.

Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, second vice president of the Quincy Women's club whose short concise statements at the last meeting of the club of a few reasons why the club should join the National Federation and which led many to favor the motion which was carried by a good vote, has handed the club editor the following which should be of interest to club women generally.

The General Federation sends greetings to federated and unfederated clubs and earnestly suggests that once again the ever-increasing value of federation be considered.

Club life for women, having evolved from the self-centered club to organized altruism, a mixture of both elements in due proportion produces the ideal club.

There was imminent danger at one time of presenting the saddest of all pictures, club women whose intellects were being cultivated, strengthened, enriched at the expense of the heart. Life cannot long continue when the head and the heart war against each other, for "a house divided against its self cannot stand." Hypertrophied head and atropheid heart are as dangerous to club life as to human life. Therefore the heart has taken its share of rightful leadership and taught the head the sense of the individual responsibility for the general welfare. The great heart of womanhood is warm and throbbing as never before. Never before in all the story of womankind, have women cared so much for other women.

The great beneficent movements for women and children today are being carried forward by women, en masse, not by the individual woman, for the crying need is so great that only the strength of union, power of cooperation, and oneness of federated purpose can hope to succeed.

It must be self-evident that the strongest club, led by the wisest, most brilliant and coolest-brained woman, is yet unable to cope with and carry forward any of these far reaching plans, as effectually as when allied with other clubs of like objects. The movements are going forward, and not to be a factor in them is to linger perhaps unconsciously, with the customs and traditions of the past,—to stand aside and let the world go by.

In becoming a factor for a dominant purpose, individuality is not lost. Each club is to be as clearly distinct as a star in a constellation—a part of it, yet a shining individual star. A club is subject to no master, save the master of its purpose, for which its life began. Clubs should hold to their individual purpose, but if the present purpose has not far outgrown the original one, there is lacking the growth of life, whatever other virtues may be possessed. To vitalize old purposes, new methods plans and views, must be acquired. And how is this to be accommplished if the club is self-centred and introspective? St. Paul's words apply to the woman's club today—"they measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves are not wise." "Iron sharpeneth iron, so a man sharpeneth the countenance of his friend." As nothing so stimulates intellectual and practical ideas, as for people of thought and action to meet and interchange views, we deem it invaluable that there should be this mental clearing-house of ideas and methods and accomplished purposes which shall stimulate and electrify into new activities.

With Federation comes not only a breadth of outlook, of purpose, of association, of work—which means growth, the thing supremely to be desired in the individual or the club, but there is that which cannot be put into cold words,—a broader charity, a more tolerant spirit, and a sweetness and strength of sympathy and co-operation among strong reserved women, widely separated, yet standing together in a concerted movement for common good. With it comes a reciprocity from lack of which, without realizing it, you may be suffering.

With Federation the developement of isolated clubs is no longer limited to the intellectual scope of their community, but brought in contact with clubs of higher purpose and broader work, the humblest club may find definite ideals above and beyond itself. The city club catches from the country club the originality and freshness of thought that comes from intimacy with Nature in her unspoiled "mothering" moods the country club in communion with its city sister feels the thrill of inspiration from the wonderous planning and mighty achievements of the busy world of men, the glamor and glitter of social life. The literary club, with its cold, calm, intellectual pulse, gathers warmth and throbbing life from the philanthropic club, bending all its womanly energies to lifting burdens from the souls and bodies of humanity.

Federation finds its true expression in Reciprocity an equation composed of "give" and "take." Having outlined the known quantity of "take," it may not be without profit to consider how "give" can best be accomplished through General Federation, which calls for closer relationship and united effort, hearty cooperation in enlarged opportunities, and unity of action with diversified methods.

The relation of the General Federation to the individual club is that of the rim to the wheel. The individual club is the hub, the various interests of clubdom the spokes. Perfect though the hub may be, the radiating spokes without a rim form a very imperfect wheel that would at best make but little progress. The General Federation is the strong tire, the band of steel uniting all interests, imparting strength at every point of contact, forming a wheel of symmetry and power to carry forward great movements.

The General Federation has the power to make effective national issues of questions which hitherto have been of only local interest. Through its Biennial Convention it fuses in the crucible of mutual acquaintanceship, the ideas of the clubs of marked originality and native independence of thought and readiness of action, and the clubs with more intimate knowledge of the intricate problems of social betterment, but hampered somewhat by tradition and precedent, blending the impetuous and the conservative, the strenuous and the gentle, this power and that wisdom into one amalgam of personality stronger, more durable and better than any one of its component elements.

The General Federation has brought together the mothers and homekeepers of the different sections of the United States and educated each and all in breadth of tolerance, humiliated them in the conciousness of lack of superior wisdom, developed the heart in affectionate regard for all, and strengthened faith in the sincerity of universal womanhood. It has furnished a great common platform where women of all shades of belief can mingle and work in the world's progress without a thought of religious difference.

Individual membership with the General Federation brings also its material benefits to the club. It sends directly to your club all committee reports, suggestions, and advise; it entitles you to a copy of the Biennial report which will furnish authentic information along all lines of club activity; you are sent the yeary directory, and the official magazine, all of which gives you a distinct advantage. But greater than these will come to you a sense of dignity and responsibility, with the knowledge that you are a part of the national organization, helping it with your numbers and support.—Open letter from General Federation to all Club Women.

SILVER WEDDING.

A pleasant occasion for many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pratt of Coddington street was the silver wedding anniversary on Tuesday afternoon and evening. The gathering included Rev. ad Mrs. E. N. Hardy and a number from Bethany Congregational church, also friends from Brockton, Bridgewater, Taunton, Boston and Lynn.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were married at Campello in 1885 by Rev. David D. Brigham, assisted by Rev. J. T. Blades of Campello. For 18 years they have been residents of Quincy, and prominent in the work of the Bethany church, Mr. Pratt being today a member of the finance committee. They have three daughters and two sons, and a grandson and granddaughter. Mr. Pratt, has for a number of years been employed by W. S. Butler & Co., of Boston, and is in charge of a department.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were assisted in receiving by Mr. Arthur L. Copeland and Miss Mary K. Packard of Campello, who were also best man and maid of honor 25 years ago.

Happy remarks were made by Rev. Dr. Hardy in presenting the gift of the church, by Mr. Pratt in accepting, and by Mr. Copeland who told of the wedding at his home.

The friends from the church presented the couple with a beautiful music cabinet, and quite a sum of money in silver. Other gifts included silver ware, French clock, pictures, cash, etc. Ice cream and cake were served.

LADIES' NIGHT.

The annual ladies night of St. Mary's C. T. A. was held Monday night at St. Mary's hall and was very largely attended. During the first part of the evening there was an entertainment that included vocal and instrumental music. Following the entertainment there was general dancing until 2 A. M. Refreshments were served during the evening in the lower hall. The affair was in charge of an efficient committee headed by John Joyce, president of the society. Mayor Shea arrived at the hall shortly before midnight, and was given an ovation.

PRESENTATION.

The Brooklyn club tendered a complimentary reception to J. Hardy Welsh, a well known resident of West Quincy, on Monday evening at Cohen's hall. The evening was passed in a social manner, during which refreshments were served. During the evening Hardy was presented with a handsomely framed Elks head, the presentation speech being made by Mayor Shea.

IS OFF FOR PARIS

Roosevelts Receive a Most Remarkable Welcome In Hungary

Buda Pest, April 20.—Theodore Roosevelt and his son Kermit left here last night by the Orient express for Paris. Instead of crossing Switzerland, the route runs north through the Austrian Alps and southern Germany, entering France at Avricourt.

Enthusiasm for Roosevelt increased to the moment of his departure. Hundreds cheered in front of the hotel, when he left for a visit to the government stock farm at Babolna, where the breeding of Arab horses is carried on, and thousands were massed about the station when he returned last night. They greeted him with Hungarian cries, equivalent to the American "Hurrah for Roosevelt."

The packed streets eschoed the cries as he passed, and this demonstration was thrice repeated later during the evening. A frantic multitude waited until midnight to see him off.

The same popular enthusiasm was displayed seventy miles from Buda Pest, on the drive from the railroad to Babolna. The party was conveyed through thatch-roofed villages, decorated with crude American flags, under hastily constructed triumphal arches, amid the shouts of the entire populace.

PLOT AGAINST CZAR'S COUSIN

Attempts Made to Destroy Train Upon Which He Was Traveling

St. Petersburg, April 20.—The czar's cousin, Grand Duke Nicholas, has just escaped a supposed revolutionary plot while on a trip from Sebastopol to this city.

Shortly after leaving the imperial capital fire was discovered under one of the coaches. The flames were extinguished, but again a blaze was seen under another car. All the cars had been impregnated with an inflammable liquid.

NOVA SCOTIA MAN WINS BIG MARATHON

Contest is Witnessed by Quarter of a Million People

Boston, April 20.—Cheered by fully 25,000 who gathered at and about the Boston Athletic club on Exeter street, Fred L. Cameron, the Nova Scotia long distance runner, won the Marathon race, making the third best record for the twenty-five-mile course. Charles H. De Mar of this city was second.

Cameron's time was 2:28:52 4-5. This is about twenty-five minutes better than that made last year by Henri Renaud, and about four minutes behind the record made by Longboat in 1907. Cameron finished in excellent condition.

Running a minute behind Cameron came De Mar. When the throng realized that he was a local contestant they gave him an extra send-off. His time was 2:29:52 4-5. He was apparently fresh and able to do several more miles.

James J. Cockery of Toronto was the game contestant to come in third. When he realized that the ordeal was over he dropped in collapse. His time was 2:34 4-5.

Great enthusiasm marked the whole course of the race and it was estimated that fully 250,000 people saw the contest at one point or another. There were 160 athletes in the getaway.

Washington, April 20.—William J. Bryan and President Taft spent more than an hour closeted together at the White House late yesterday. The two travelers exchanged reminiscences, it is said, and both commented upon how well the other was looking.

Mr. Bryan had previously called on Speaker Cannon and remained in the latter's office for fifteen minutes.

"We didn't talk politics at all," said the speaker afterwards. "Mr. Bryan is a busy man and we just exchanged a few words. We have known each other for a long time, you know."

Following a settlement of the suit, it was reported that Glover had received $100,000 from his mother.

FOSS SWEEP PARALLELED

Democrat Carries Republican Stronghold In New York

ALDRIDGE BEATEN BY HAVENS

Man Who Has For Twenty Years Been a Powerful Political Leader In Rochester Fails to Carry the City—Fight on Tariff Issue Lands His Opponent With Plurality of Nearly Six Thousand Votes

Rochester, N. Y., April 20.—The rock-ribbed Republican county of Monroe, which for the past twenty years has rolled up Republican majorities of all the way from 5000 to 12,000 was shaken by an earthquake that penertated and convulsed the deepest strata of Republicanism, and when the tremblings ceased with the close of the polls at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon one survey of the ruins disclosed the defeat of George W. Aldridge, candidate for congress to fill the vacancy in the Thirty-second district caused by the death of James B. Perkins, by a plurality of nearly 6000 votes.

The exact figures, which will be but slightly revised by the official canvass, shows that James S. Havens, the Democratic candidate, has been elected by 5831 votes. Havens carried the city by a plurality of 3746 and the towns by 2085.

The result of this election takes its place beside the Democratic victory in the Fourteenth Massachusetts district, where Eugene N. Foss was sent to congress from a district supposed to be as rock-ribbed Republican as this one.

Mr. Havens rode to victory on a platform advocating tariff revision of the duties on wool and woolen goods, removal of the tax on hides, lumber and iron ore, an income tax, and party independence of all political bosses.

Mr. Aldridge, his opponent, contented himself with general proclamations in favor of the policies of the Republican administration. On the tariff proposition he was regarded as a "stand patter."

Both candidates declared for reciprocity with Canada, an employes' compensation act, a parcels post and a postal savings bank, although Aldridge's position in these matters was less clearly defined than his opponent's.

The Republican candidate, in the city which he has virtually controlled for twenty years, carried but five out of the twenty-two wards, and of the nineteen towns where the ramifications of the Republican machine were supposed to be most firmly entrenched he carried but three.

The result of the election is a landslide, the magnitude of which the most sanguine Democratic leaders had not hoped for. In the closing hours of the campaign when reports of a roseate hue were carried to headquarters by the district leaders, indicating a decisive victory for the Democratic candidate, probably 3000 or 4000 of a plurality, the most conservative of the leaders were loath to believe it and advised a more conservative estimate.

MAKING COURAGEOUS FIGHT

"Mark Twain" Perfectly Conscious, but Steadily Growing Weaker

Danbury, Conn., April 20.—Still buoyant and cheerful, though perceptibly weakened by the illness that seems gradually to be carrying him toward the grave, Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) is making a courageous battle against uneven odds.

Mr. Clemens has been perfectly conscious and in possession of all his faculties throughout his illness, and, weak though he is, frequent flashes of wit appear in his conversations with his physicians and nurses.

The presence at Stormfield of his daughter, Clara, wife of Ossip Gabrilowitsh, the Russian pianist, who arrived at Stormfield after a hasty journey from Europe, is a great comfort to the humorist.

HALE OUT OF RACE FOR SENATE SEAT

Says It Seems Not Fitting to Make a Personal Contest

Augusta, Me., April 20.—The letter from Senator Eugene Hale to Byron Boyd, chairman of the Republican state committee, in which he declines to "engage in a conflict for the senatorship," was received received by Boyd last night.

Senator Hale did not once refer to the condition of his health, but instead called attention to the fact that he had been given what no man in Maine has received—five continuous terms in the senate—and it seemed not fitting for him " to make a personal contest for the succession."

This is taken as an admission that Hale did not feel confident of defeating Frederick Powers in the caucus. His term ends March 3, 1911.

WINS $15,000 AWARD

Miss Freeman Then Loses It Because Judge Says It Is Excessive

New York, April 20.—Damages in $15,000 were won, and then lost, by Miss Blanche B. Freeman of Philadelphia in the supreme court in her suit against Clifford B. Harmon, wealthy real estate operator, for his alleged failure to pay her $100 a month for life and to provide her a home, in settlement of a $100,000 breach of promise suit. The jury made the award, but it was immediately set aside by Justice Erlanger as excessive.

Miss Freeman claimed that Harmon jilted her to wed the daughter of E. C. Benedict, yachtsman and banker. She sued for $21,000.

JAMES H. STARK

Boston Writer, Man Who Attacked Revolutionary Heroes

STARK STICKS TO HIS GUNS

Fails to See Anything to Admire In American Colonists

DID NOT WIN INDEPENDENCE

Says It Was More or Less a Present From Holland, France, Spain and Maritime World.

Boston, April 20.—Aroused by the criticisms which James H. Stark has made upon American patriots in his recently published book and interviews, a citizen of Denver sent yesterday to Stark, through the Boston American, the following telegram:

"For Heaven's sake, tell us did the Americans win the war of the Revolution or not?"

Mr. Stark read the telegram, recalled that it was Patriots' day, but flinched not from his task and prepared the following reply, in which he declares that the Americans did not win the Revolutionary war, but that the powers of Europe forced England to let her colonies in America go. Here is what Stark says for himself:

"With the assistance of Holland, France, Spain and the whole maritime world, the colonists did achieve their independence—but that independence was not won by the colonists.

"The little uprising in the American colonies was only the bite of a mosquito compared with the gnawing of the European wolves that hung on Britain's throat.

"Had England been free to devote her attention to stamping out the uprising in the colonies, it would have been as easy as stepping on a bedbug.

"And if that uprising had been crushed at that time, the American schools would now be teaching that George Washington et al were misguided men who led their followers to useless deaths.

"Had the Confederate states been given one-fourth the assistance that the colonists received, there would not now be an undivided American nation. England was compelled by the powers to let her American colonies go.

"They achieved their independence, but that independence was more or less a present from the combined nations that fought England to make it possible."

ADMITS HE IS DAULBY

Further Seizures of Spurious Paintings From "Count De Gatigny"

Paris, April 20.—A further lot of pictures belonging to the so-called Count De Gatigny, charged by Mrs. Charles H. Paine, formerly of Boston, with having sold her husband spurious paintings, came into the hands of the authorities when, by order of the examining magistrate at Tours, paintings were seized at the De Gatigny chateau, signed by noted artists, which, it is asserted, De Gatigny admitted were copies.

During the course of De Gatigny's examination he declared before the magistrate that his real name was plain Daulby. He said he was born in London and that his father was a painter. He added that he was a naturalized Italian and that he received the pictures from his uncle.

ABBOT JANSSENS RESIGNS HIS OFFICE

Expresses Regret For "Blunder" In Commending Roosevelt

Rome, April 20.—Abbot Janssens of the Benedictines has sent to the pope his resignation as secretary of the Sacred Congregation, accompanying it with a letter apologizing for his call on Theodore Roosevelt while the latter was here, after his break with the Vatican.

In his letter of apology Janssens expresses sorrow for his "grave, inadvertent blunder" in writing a line of commendation to Roosevelt in the name of the Sacred Congregation, of which he was secretary.

Abbot Janssens is the most prominent ecclesiastic outside the college of cardinals, and his elevation to the cardinalate at the next consistory was considered certain. The Roosevelt incident has now made it impossible.

Worcester Street Railway Men Demand Increase In Scale of Wages

Worcester, Mass., April 20.—The Worcester street railway men voted, by a ratio of 7 to 1, in favor of a strike on all lines of the Consolidated Street Railway company centering in Worcester, unless the management of the company complies with the demands of the trolley men for a new wage scale.

The polling on the strike question was conducted Monday and Monday night, and the result of the vote was announced Tuesday afternoon. The men demand a wage scale ranging from 22½ cents to 27½ cents an hour.

BOOKS BEING EXAMINED

Treasurer of Boston Athletic House Kills Himself In Hotel

Boston, April 20.—Warren B. Call, treasurer of the Horace Partridge company, an athletic house in this city, shot and killed himself in a room at the Hotel Essex. Mystery surrounds the suicide.

Call was 50 years of age, and lived with his wife and an adopted child at Winchester.

He was supposed to be well-to-do. He had been connected with the Partridge concern over twenty years and was its treasurer since its reorganization five years ago.

His accounts are thought to be correct. In spite of this, an examination of the books is being made to see if they can shed any light on the reason why Call took his life.

When Call left his home, it was with the intention of meeting his wife at Bath. Instead of going to Maine, he went to the Hotel Essex, registered, and was shown to a room, where he killed himself.

IN FASHION'S REALM

Fashion and the women who are governed by it have an excessively gratifying way of going back to old friends with cordiality. It would not be feasible for fashion and its votaries to take up with new friends every season, for its reason for existence would be wiped out if this were the case.

Every now and then we return in a vigorous way to something we used to like and left behind. Cashmere is one of the old fabrics that has been steadily growing in favor for two years. bengaline, as we used to call it. Ottoman as it now is, has been given a high place, and the latest return to old friends is the absorbing fashion for foulard.

All who sit in the watch towers and gaze upon the horizon for the flicker of a sail which means a new fashion have been giving out the news that foulard was approaching. Every one hoped so, for the suple, durable fabric was always popular among women; but they scarcely believed that foulard would really land on this coast. It had often been seen in the distance. but the rumor of its return was never proved by fact.

Here and there one saw an especially smart gown of it, because certain women who had the courage of their convictions would never let a Summer go by without having one foulard frock. But a dozen frocks do not make a fashion, so foulard has not been as popular as it deserved for many seasons.

Just why the manufacturers made up their minds to introduce foulard as a leading fabric is one of the questions that possibly even they could not answer. It might have been the psychological moment for foulard. Whatever the impetus in the movement it has grown in strength and speed. Possibly even the shops were not aware what a demand they would have for it. It is surmised that even they were surprised with the instant success of the fabric during the last month when women had been planning their Spring clothes.

It is true that the shops supplied themselves with a vast amount of this material, and that they placed upon it quite a steep price. The last fact is the only disadvantage in this new weave of an old fabric. It may not be within the reach of the average woman unless the price is lowered by June. The buyer who asks for foulard is surprised to have it offered her at $2, $3 and $4 a yard, when she clearly remembers buying it from 75 cents to $1.50.

At first she is amazed, and then decides that she will not get a foulard until later. But she does not take into consideration three things; that the new foulard is a stronger weave than the old kind; that it is double width instead of single width, and that it has an ornate and handsome border which keeps one from having to buy trimming.

Therefore, if one gets eight yards of $3 foulard for $24, the only other expense is a bit of lace, net, or tulle for the neck and enough taffeta to make a body lining. It is better for its "hang" to have a foulard frock made over a princess slip of silk or satin, but there are a good number of women who will not tolerate the heat of a boned lining in this climate. They will not line foulard any more they would line lingerie, and if they are remaining in a moist and hot climate their decision is a wise one.

Their is something unendurable about a boned lining on our average Summer day with its temperature nearly 90 and its humidity more. Women have had experience in this line. They have found attractive frocks on their hands during Summer which they could not bear the touch of, because of the heat and discomfort of the lining. Therefore, there has been a wide change in the making of foulards. If there is a body lining it is of softer China silk or sheer muslin, and it is unboned. It is merely a support to the outer material to keep the strain off the back and waist.

The popularity of the separate princess slip has given women an opportunity to make up all manner of gowns without lining. This has been widely done with cloth all Winter, and some of the handsome afternoon gowns were unboned and dropped over a short, sleeveless princess slip.

The manufacturers certainly knew what they were about when they decided to tempt coin out of the purse by their offering of foulards this year. They changed the design, they satinized the surface, they used exquisite colorings and they attached artistic borders. All of these traits, in a sum total, have made the new foulard one of the fabrics to be desired. There is the radium weave, which is very lovely, and faconne foulard, and poplin foulard, and many others which have already been described bought and admired.

They are different from what we have had in this silk and then they are a good immitation of the satins that have preceded them. The border may be as vivid as one's taste suggetst.

The buyer has a wide choice in color and designs. There are half moons that sugguest Turkish designs, scroll and squares that suggest Russia, Walls of Troy that suggest Greece, and a close varied design that is original with the designer.

While it seems as though foulard would be used in a great measure just now for smart and fashionable afternoon frocks, the moderate-priced qualities will be widely taken up for comfortable morning frocks that will serve for the street, Summer hotels and for the country. There is quite an attracteive model often suggested by the dressmaker to a patron who wants something simple and effective. without a border.

It is made up in the polka-dot design without a border.

The comfort of the collarless neck in Summer is such a decided feature in clothes that few women care not to follow it. Since they have learned how to massage the neck and whiten the skin into some degree of beauty they do not protest so much against exposure.

Another old friend that fashion and its votaries have taken up with renewed warmth is the coat suit of white serge. It is really not white, for serge never gets that tone, but it is of ivory and quite becoming.

This serge has always been more or less in demand, and it has never been out of fashion, but it has not been strictly in first fashion or in popular demand for sometime . With the incoming of foulard was a widespread epidemic of serge for suits. The tailors are excessively busy with orders for these, and they are being made up in very degree of simplicity and ornateness. Some of the suits are braided from neck to hem and others touched up with bold designs of soutaching, and again others are made in strictly mannish fashion, a style that many women admire above all others.

The skirts of these serge suits are extra short and narrow. It is interesting to realize that one must emphasize that fact at every turn.

No matter how full the blouse is, and the skirt at waist and hips, the line continues to be narow at the hem. If one is honest, one must admit that it is growing narrower, which is against all the effort put out in the middle of the season. The only success that was made in regard to fullness was the undoubted use of it above the knees.

Skirts are frankly gathered and smocked and plaited, and waists do not pretend to fit or touch the figure, butbut the instan he frabic goes near he ankles it straightens, it narrows and resolves itself into severe simplicity.

Many of these serge skirts have an extra wide hem on the outside marked with stitching top and bottom to hold them close to the ankles. Nearly all the skirts fasten in front. It is a rare thing to see a skirt fasten at the back this season. One can use buttons of pearl, smoked or plain, fabric-covered ones, or heavy Irish crochet ones. There is no set rule and a wide variety is offered.

Many women prefer, rather wisely, not to have buttons on a serge suit that will be worn in the afternoon as well as the morning. They prefer hooks and eyes placed under an inch-wide stitched band that is mitered at the top and goes around the waist to make a belt. The fashion of having the belt attached to the skirt is quite pretty. Even with the epidemic of separate belts that has spread over the country, one sees as many, if not more, skirts with belts of their own than were seen last year. Possibly women will wear fancy leather belts over these.

The comforting feature of the latter which women have learned to appreciate, is that there is no danger of the skirt belt slipping, and no need of the ungainly and destructive safety pin.

The coats of these new serge suits are mainly short. While one hears of Norfolk jackets cut off at the hips, with the peasant yoke at top and the patent leather belt at waist, one does not see many of them.

The average coat which is popular is made to hang half way to the knees usually fastens down the front with three large buttons, is sloped away in front, and is spoonshaped at the back.

While the sleeves are not put in with plaits or gathers, they are rather wider than they have been. The new feature on these coats is the use of colored collar and cuffs. These are made of cretonne, of satin, of Ottoman silk, and of heavy linen. The latter, with the cretonne, is the one preferred.—Rittenhouse in the New York Times.

HOLIDAY YACHT RACE

Season Opened Early by Dartwell and Emeline

There was an interesting yacht race off the Quincy Yacht club house on Patriots day between the Emeline, owned by Commodor H. W. Robbins and the Dartwell owned by Vice Commodor Ira M. Whittemore. Last year there was a cup put up for these two boats and the Dartwell won. The course Tuesday was one of seven miles, starting from the club house to the new Red Spar buoy off Pigg rocks thence to Jackknife ledge buoy, and back to the starting line, twice around. There was a fresh southwesterly breeze which gave the yachts a reach, a beat and a run.

The Emeline led over the line and to the first mark. Then the Dartwell passed her, and from that time on she was never headed. The prize that the winners captured was a pair of cabin blankets. The Dartwell tried out a new sheet that ran higher at the peak, and the Emeline also carried a new sail. By a pre-arranged agreement both boats sailed under two reefs so as not to stretch the new sails too much.

DASH WON BY FLOYD.

The annual athletic event of the Y. M. C. A. a 440 yard dash was held Patriots day over the course from Adams street bridge to corner of Adams Academy, and was won by J. J. Floyd. Everett Prout was second, P. K. Griffin third. Time 52 2-5 seconds.

Edith Had Overheard.

One Philadelphia newspaper man has a little daughter with whom he sometimes finds it necessary to be a trifle severe. Particularly is this true when the hour for going to bed comes around each night.

Last night the clock struck 8, and the father watched his three-year-old play on in a conscious effort to appear unconcerned.

"Edith, do you know it is your bedtime?" he asked.

Edith dropped the playthings and walked over to her father with very sober mien.

"If this thing is to continue night after night I suppose I'll have to submit to it," she said.

The newspaper man waited until his offspring had climbed the stairs to be tucked away by her mother, and when the latter returned to the room where he was sitting he said:

"Let's have our little spats in private hereafter."

His wife agreed. — Philadelphia Times.

Cultivating Ginger.

Ginger is made a matter of scientific culture in Jamaica. It is propagated by cutting up small pieces of the root and, if possible, rich, cool soil from recently cleared woods is selected for it. It is a great impoverisher of the soil and grows so luxuriantly that in a short time a little piece of root will spread so as to produce nearly a pound of new roots. The sets are planted in March or April and get to their full growth about September. The roots are dug usually in Jamaica in January or February. They are washed, exposed to the sun until thoroughly dried and packed in parcels of about a hundred pounds each. In order to dry them more rapidly they are first scalded in a little copper pot in order to destroy life, of which the roots are very tenacious. White ginger and black ginger are from the same roots, the difference arising from methods of curing. Roots for sugar preserving are dug while quite young, before the stems are more than five or six inches high.

A Shot That Made Trouble.

An odd incident happened in the then Danish West Indies in the last century that nearly caused serious international complications. An American marksman, paying a visit to Charlotte Amalia, amused the governor by an exhibition of his skill with the rifle. Sitting on the veranda of the government house, he said that he could cut with a bullet the signal halyards on the flagstaff of the fort and lower the Danish standard to the ground. As the lines were almost invisible in the distance the governor was willing to bet that he could not do it. The shot rang out, and the flag fell. Presently a horseman dashed up, informing the governor that some one had fired on the flag. There was great excitement. The governor, none too popular, it seems, with the military, ruined his political future by admitting that the affair was a joke in which he connived. Report being sent to Copenhagen, highly colored, of course, by the commandant, his excellency was summarily removed.

WOLTER WINCES AT MURDER TALE

But Quickly Regains Composure When it Is Ended

TRIAL IS FAIRLY UNDER WAY

Prosecutor Says He Will Prove That Accused Youth Caused Girl's Death by Strangulation, but Will Depend Upon Circumstantial Evidence—Mrs. Wheeler and Man Who Found Her Daughter's Body Give Testimony

New York, April 20.—Albert Wolter sat in court yesterday afternoon and faced the mother of Ruth Wheeler, the 15-year-old stenographer, with whose murder he stands charged.

He did not wince, but his eyes evaded the mother's, and his glance roamed about the courtroom from jury box to press table, thence to the spectators; but at no time during Mrs. Wheeler's testimony did he openly evince emotion. Mrs. Wheeler was called as the third witness by the state.

The jury box had been filled shortly after the opening of the afternoon session, and Frank Moss, assistant district attorney, had delivered the opening address for the prosecution.

Mr. Moss spoke calmly, and in a low, even tone, which made more grewsome harrowing details of the murder.

He admitted that the state would depend largely on circumstantial evidence, "but," he said, "I shall show that her death was caused by strangulation. I shall show you the cord that was wound around her neck and sank into the tissue. I shall show you that strangulation and incineration were not the only injuries inflicted on that poor girl's body, and the person who killed her, I shall prove, is Albert Wolter."

During this recital Wolter showed some evidence of emotion. His breath came short and fast, and he intently scanned the faces of the jurymen as if noting the effect of the prosecutor's words. When Moss had closed, however, the prisoner quickly regained his composure.

Mrs. Wheeler testified after an architect had identified a diagram of Wolter's room, where the body was found, and after John Taggert, a waiter, who lived in an adjoining apartment, had described how he and his wife found the bundle in which the upper part of Ruth Wheeler's body was wrapped. This bundle was pushed from a fire escape, and subsequently opened in the yard below.

Taggert gave a horrifying description of the opening of the sack, but Wolter apparently was unconcerned.

Pearl and Adelaide Wheeler accompanied their mother to court. Moss announced that only two days more would be needed to complete the prosecution's case.

BARREL AND A SMILE

All That Was Worn by Victim of Mischievous Companions

Onset Bay, Mass., April 20.—Because some mischievous companions stole his clothing while he was enjoying the first swim of the season, Arthur Long, a Brockton high school athlete, was compelled to walk through the principal streets of this resort clad only in a barrel and an expansive smile.

When he reached his cottage, near Point Independence, he found his clothing nicely arranged in his room.

A Very Queer Custom.

A curious custom takes place in villages of the Luxembourg district, Belgium, in May. After Sunday service numbers of lads cluster round the church entrance and as the girls come out seize them one by one, one lad grasping a girl by the shoulders and the other by the heels, the two lifting her well up, while a third bumpkin passes under the human bridge thus formed. This is done in the presence of the parents, who themselves have passed through the same ordeal.

His Sole Resting Place.

A precise Boston teacher spent a quarter of an hour in impressing upon her class the right pronunciation of the word vase.

Next day, hoping to reap the fruits of her labor, she asked, "Now, Johnnie, tell me—what do you see on the mantelpiece at home?"

And Johnnie piped forth, "Father's feet, ma'am."—Harper's Bazar.

Proved.

Gibbs—What makes you think they had theaters in Pharaoh's time? Dibbs—Didn't Joseph's brethren remove him from the family circle and put him in the pit?

Candid.

Top (who has dined off hashed mutton)—Bill, waiter. Waiter—What did you have, sir? Top (sarcastically)—I haven't the faintest idea.—London Tit-Bits.

Thought He Was Smart.

Wife—Do you mean to insinuate that your judgment is superior to mine? Husband—Certainly not, my dear. Our choice of life partners proves it isn't.

BASEBALL

will receive fair play is evidenced by the large crowd present after last season's poor showing. It surely speaks well for Quincy as a baseball city. Mayor Shea and other dignitaries were interested spectators.

OPEN WITH VICTORY

Quincy High Win in Ten-Inning Contest

At Merrymount park on the morning of the holiday the Quincy High base ball team defeated South Boston High 4 to 3 in a fast and close game. Considering that this was Quincy's first game the boys played remarkably well. Quincy made twelve hits off Trottman, while South Boston made only four off Rice, the star Quincy southpaw. Rice was a little wild at times, giving seven passes in the game, but tightened up when there were men on bases.

In the first, Manning struck out, Murphy singled, Mill Chapman was passed, H. Chapman and Bates fanned. For South Boston Kane struck out, Grant and Thornton went out on flies.

In second, South Boston went out in order. For Quincy, Allen singled, Barry struck out, O'Connor and Rice singled, Manning went out on fly, Murphy drove in Allen and O'Connor, M. Chapma went out on a fly.

In the third both teams were blanked.

In the fourth South Boston went out in order. For Quincy, Barry Singled, O'Connor advanced Barry to third by a pretty single, but was caught napping off first, Manning single and Bary scored, Murphy went out on fly.

South Boston scored three runs in fifth, while Quincy went out in order and the score was 3 to 3.

Both teams were unsuccessful in the sixth, seventh and eighth.

In the ninth Rice pulled out of a hole, after allowing a single and two passes, by striking out the next two. Quincy failed to score and an extra inning was necessary.

In the tenth South Boston was blanked. For Quincy, Murphy went out at first M. Chapman singled and Russ Bates drove Chapman home by a three bagger to the road.

A Curious Painting.

In Japan there is a very famous painting which no amount of money could buy and which is the masterpiece of a famous artist who lived several centuries ago. Viewing the painting in the daytime, one is disappointed. It shows nothing more than a very commonplace landscape unrelieved by mountains or hills. As soon, however, as night falls one begins to realize the peculiar merit of the picture, for upon the canvas there appears a luminnous water buffalo (caribou) browsing upon the grass at its feet. The artist who painted this picture discovered a certain phosphorescent paint, which he obtained from the bodies of certain mollusks or fish, and with which he painted the buffalo that, invisible in daylight, is luminously brilliant in the dark. The secret of making this paint died with the artist. The picture, which hangs in a Buddhist temple, has proved a fertile source of superstition, the priests claiming that the buffalo hides away in the shade behind some trees in the picture during the heat of the day, coming out at night to graze.

MONTCLAIR DISTRICT TO HAVE SCHOOLHOUSE

Lot of Generous Proportions Secured By Vote Of the City Council

Residents of District Were Unanimous For It

The passage of the order by the City Council Monday evening, appropriating $7,700 for the purchase of the so called Holbrook lot at Montclair for a school lot, settles a perplexing question. The residents of that section were unanimous for the lot in question but last year the committee were unable to come to any satisfactory terms with the owner.

At that time it was contemplated to take but part of the lot. This left a wedge shaped piece of the lot that was practically useless. The price for the lot desired was considered more than the city could afford to pay and last year's committee decided to take the lot by right of eminent domain. It was late in the year before the decision was reached, however, and the matter went over to this year.

Early in January an order was offered to take the lot by right of eminent domain but such a procedure was not deemed best, it being argued that the expense of fighting the case in court where it was sure to go would bring the price per foot up to a higher figure than asked by the owners.

It was then decided to take the whole lot which contained something over 84,000 feet. It was found that this could be purchased for about nine cents per foot, and an order taking the whole lot was reported, and as noted above was passed by the council Monday evening.

The School Committee have been asked to procure plans for an eight-room school building to be erected on the lot. Such a building will relieve the Wollaston, Quincy and Massachusetts Fields districts as well as provide for the children in the so-called Montclair section.

Much of the credit for the final solution of the lot question has been due to the Montclair Improvement association, who while unanimous in favor of the Holbrook lot were willing to accept some other site if the one desired could not be obtained. There was no wrangling among themselves, as was the case when the Houghs Neck lot was purchased, which had much to do with the final solution of the problem.

The next question to be settled is the Wollaston problem. The School Committee have recommended that the Montclair and Wollaston questions be considered together and the Council seemed disposed to do so when it passed an order requesting the School Committee to procure plans for a twelve-room building to be located on the site of the present building.

But another snag has come to the front, however, by the action of the School Committee in sending a communication to the Council stating that the present lot is not suitable, and recommending the purchase of a new lot. This will have a tendency to hold back the Wollaston proposition for a time.

ANDERSON—COLE NUPTIALS.

A very pretty wedding took plaec Tuesday evening when Miss Florence Louise, daughter of Mr. John Cole of Center street, and Mr. Frank P. Anderson, Bath, Me., were united in marriage by Rev. Richard E. Armstrong of Christ church. The bride was attended by Miss Alice G. Feeley, and the groom by Mr. Arthur W. Sims of Medfield. A reception followed immediately at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Alex Black, Jackson street, being attended by both families and a few immediate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were the recipients of many beautiful presents. The happy couple left on a late train mid a shower of rice and confetti for a brief honeymoon and will be at home to their friends after June 1st, at Highland street, Bath, Me.

SENATOR HULTMAN

One of the Guests at Banquet At Braintree

Senator Hultman of Quincy and Senator Nash of Hanover were the speakers at the monthly meeting and banquet of the South Congregational church, South Braintree, Wednesday evening.

Representative Mellen introduced Senator Hultman as one of the most able senators that ever represented the district, and he simply voiced the sentiment of the club members by this introduction.

Senator Hultman spoke on "Men's clubs," and believed it to be one of the best movements in recent years to help the community. He urged the clubs to do all in their power to avert uprising conditions and to recognize responsibility. He was loudly applauded.

Rev. C. F. H. Crathern then introduced Senator Nash who announced his subject as "True Americanism." Senator Nash is a silver tongued orator and held his hearers spellbound with his brilliant address.

President W. A. Torrey of the club announced that the senators were willing to answer questions in regards to legislation. Senator Hultman was asked to describe the "Bar and Bottle Bill," so-called. He talked at length on this particular bill and said it would undoubtedly come to vote today or to-morrow. He also stated it was possible for the bill to be defeated as his side had recently lost a vote by death, and, opponents had gained one, a senator dealing in liquor having returned from the south to vote. There were also two membes who would not pledge themselves and the president. Despite these drawbacks he had hopes to pass the bill.

BRAINTREE COMMITTEE.

Benjamin H. Woodsum, J., Braintree's youthful moderator, this morning announced the following appointments on the appropriation committee for 1911:

George D. Willis, Gilbert V. Pennock, James W. Colbert, George O. MacDonald, Carrol A. Holbrook, George E. Williams, Henry F. Arnold, Walter O. Hastings, Horace R. Drinkwater, Frank W. Couillard, George F. Hussey, William P. Kelley, Chales O. Miller, Benjamin F. Hawes and Walter B. Skinner.

CLOSING DANCING PARTY.

Children of Miss Corlew's dancing school at Wollaston were given a closing reception on Wednesday evening at Alpha hall, and it was an unusually pretty affair. The matrons were Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. Clinton Jones, Mrs. Jesse I. Litchfield, Mrs. Charles Alden, Mrs. Arthur Homer and Mrs. Elisha Bird.

As the class marched into the hall, led by Robert Wetmore and Helen Alden, they were received by Miss Corlew, who was attended by two sweet little pages, Sylvia Litchfield and Emma Couch.

One of the pretty features was the confetti dance. The German favors were exceptionally pretty, especially in the lantern figure when Chinese lanterns were matched for partners.

At intermission ices were served by Hendrie. It was a happy occasion for the young people and equally pleasant for the parents who enjoyed looking on the pretty scene.

Whether your organization receives an invitation or not, however, it is requested to send three delegates to the meeting, and they will be welcomed. SURVEY OF BOYHOOD

Valuable Research Made by Y. M. C. A. Committee

At the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening there was held a meeting for the report of the Committee appointed in the winter to make a survey of the boyhood of Quincy.

The report has but recently been completed, as much of the matter contained in it took considerable time.

There were twenty-five men present, representing the clergymen, the School department, the City Council, the District court and business men both of Boston and of Quincy. J. A. Sedgwick presided.

After a reading of "The Survey," which consumed three-quarters of an hour, a general discussion was participated in by Judge A. E. Avery, Head Master Howlett, John L. Miller, T. B. Pollard, Rev. A. J. Thompson, W. F. Blake, E. W. Branch, W. H. Hull and others.

A series of recommendations were offered refering the various findings to conmissions. These commissions will be appointed at an early date.

So much interest was manifested that after a two-hour session it was voted to continue the discussion, and the meeting adjourned to Tuesday evening, May 3. A full report of the findings will be made public at a later date.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edward Thompson of Quincy was fined $10 and Daniel J. Mahoney of Randolph $15 for drunkenness.

Harry T. Rodman was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy; case continued until April 22.

Oliver M. Sheehan of Milton was fined $20 and Albert J. Hutchings of Boston $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

—The census taker is on the job, and Brockton will expect the returns to show that we have at least 55,000 people. If the list falls under that we shall all look harshly at the census takers and accuse them of missing somebody.—Brockton Enterprise.

FAVORABLE REPORT

On Bill for County Court House At Quincy

The proposed County court house for Quincy was advanced in the Legislature on Wednesday, when the Ways and Means committee of the Senate reported favorably on the bill for $80,000. This includes the site, plans and all expenses of construction. The Quincy Board of Trade, which inaugurated the movement, is elated over the success of the bill, but realize it is, too early yet to crow.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

West Chester, Pa., has adopted a novel idea to secure a more beautiful town. The ugly spots are to be photographed by a local photographer and the pictures exhibited and also published in the newspapers. Some towns starting on this work would soon have a good sized picture gallery on its hand.

Several cities and towns have voted to give up the graduation exercises in the grammar schools but we are glad Quincy is not in the list. There are many pupils in our city who cannot continue their education beyond the grammar school and all these should receive a diploma or some testimonial of their qualification to enter the business world.

DRIFT OF OPINION

The nude statue bill under the provisions of which certain such statues shall not be exhibited to children below the age of eighteen years, met its quietus at the hands of the Massachusetts house, on the proposition to substitute the bill for an adverse committee report, the motion being lost on a voice vote. In the brief discussion which preceded this action, one of the representatives presented a statue of Eve clad in a calico skirt, and he declared that such draping would be one result of the proposed enactment. This subject is often introduced on Beacon Hill; not so often, perhaps, as to cause listing among the so-called perennials, but altogether too frequently for the satisfaction of those people who seek the triumph of the "reform" to which they are committed. Although present legislation is about as much as can reasonably be expected, this conclusion will not prevent periodical movements designed to effect ends aimed at by the rejected bill. The workers, however, will have their labor for their pains.

Because of his confession, suggestion is made in a letter to a Springfield newspaper, that Spencer, the Springfield murderer, be executed without trial, thus saving time and expence. While time and expence are ordinarily worth saving, there are things which are still better worth saving. Among them are the orderly administration of justice and reverence for the law. What the newspaper correspondent proposes is essentially a lynching, made outwardly decorous by the presence of the communities' officials. Probably he has received his impulse to make this suggestion because he has seen too much of the perversion of justice by means of long drawn out murder trials and by numerous escapes of murderers by insistence on trivialities. These are to be deplored, but there is no occasion to go to the other extreme because the courts and their processes have been misused.

It will be no easy matter to destroy the common house fly. It is the most nearly ubiquitous of all insects. The proverb is a familiar one which declares that when a fly is killed a thousand others come to the funeral. Thus, if the United States and the Dominion of Canada should succeed in driving out these multitudinous pests the flies from foreign lands would come in on every ship. It was comparatively easy to guard against the mosquitoes that carried the germs of yellow fever and malaria, as soon as the discovery was made of their malignant characted. But flies will certainly be harder to deal with.

Yet every one will hope that the attack on flies will be successful. They are so persistently malicious that they are credited with having an infernal purpose all their own; namely, Beelzebub. They are laden with germs. They come right from sewers, stables and outhouses, and dable in the butter on the table, fall into the milk, travel over the sugar and they leave their filthy mark everywhere.

Unquestionably they carry disease from place to place, as they roam hither and thither. Nobody can guess how many ills would be obviated if flies were abolished. Screens could be laid aside and fly specks would become a hated memory instead of an ever vexatious reality. Every housekeeper would be glad, and the bald headed men would heave a vast sigh of relief as they settled themselves for their afternoon nap in the summer time. There are as many reasons why flies should be destroyed as there are flies, and some others besides.

If it be a feasible thing to banish the fly from North America it ought to be possible to get all nations to unite in the war against this pestiferous enemy of mankind. If the fly were once extirpated the battle would be won for all time, unless Beelzebub succeeded in creating the little torment anew. That the fly is capable of spontaneous generation is a superstition which cannot be credited. It is enough to know that it breeds in infinite numbers without the added horror of the thought that it might return at its own will.

Magnified to gigantic size, every part of the fly is to be subjected to universal inspection and execration. Its offenses against humanity are all to be catalogued and recited. Then the war is to begin. But nobody believes that the fly will yield tamely.—Beverly Times.

Judge William Cushing Wait of the superior court has been favorably and unfavorably criticised of late, especially for what he said in regard to labor unions preventing young men from learning a trade. More persons, however, will agree with one of his later observations when he says that "Most of the boys that come into the court—and there are a great many of them—are the sons of respectable parents. Only they've been loosely brought up. That is, thy get 'out with the gang,' and their parents—like many American parents—don't bring them round sharply. The boys get to drinking, and then into the courts. In a great many cases it is the respectable, but weak, parents who are really responsible for the downfall of their children."—Somerville Journal.

ANOTHER LAUNCHING.

The sister ship of the torpedo boat destroyer "Perkins," which was launched at the Fore River ship yard April 9 has been named the "Starrett. She will be launched at the Rore River works on Thursday, May 12. The Navy department has not as yet selected the sponsor for the vessel.

Too Cold For the Candle.

It is a cold climate in which a flame cannot keep itself warm. One of the scientists attached to the Peary expedition has personally told of the effect of intense cold on a wax candle that he tried to burn. The temperature was 35 degrees below zero, and its effects were felt not only by the members of the expedition, but even by the candle in question. It gave forth no cheery light such as might have been expected from it in other circumstances, and when it came to be examined it was found that the flame had all it could do to keep itself warm. The air was so cold that the flame was not powerful enough to melt all the wax of the candle, but was compelled to eat its way down, leaving a skeleton structure of wax in the form of a hollow cylinder. Inside this cylinder the wick burned with a tongue of yellow fire, and here and there the heat was sufficient to perforate the outer covering and leave holes of odd shapes which turned the cylinder into a tube of lacelike wax, through the holes in which the light shone with a strange, weird beauty.—St. Louis Republic.

Directions In London.

In London and throughout the tight little island the words "up" and "down" have a peculiar significance. In going to London from any part of England you go "up." In traveling in any direction from the capital you go "down." So in London itself everything goes "up" if it goes in the direction of the bank—that is, the Bank of England—and going from that center toward any of the points of the compass is to go "down."

The word bank, which is not only always spelled with a capital "B," but is always uttered with an impressiveness that suggests an initial letter of the largest type, may be said to be in a sense interchangeable with city, a term of equal dignity and value in the eyes of Englishmen and likewise invariably adorned with a capital "C."

The city does not mean London by any means. It means a certain limited section of London, the part where business is mainly carried on and where the great financial institutions stand.

RICHARD BROOKS, SCULPTOR

Richard Brooks our celebrated townsman who now makes his home in Paris and who has been in this country for some time executing work, especially in Seattle, is leaving Quincy the last of the week for New York from which port he sails next week for France.

RICHARD BROOKS.

The Week End of Seattle has had many complimentary articles from time to time concerning Mr. Brooks and we quote the following:

"American sculptor, born in 1865. Pupil of T. H. Bartlett in Boston, went to Paris in 1893 to complete his studies with Paul Aube and Injalbert. The following year he exhibited at the Salon des Artistes Francais the busts of Gov. William E. Russell and Col. Gardiner Taft, now in the Boston State House. Soon noticed on both continents for his qualities of interpretation and execution—by artists such as the late Saint-Gaudens a member of the institute, and by critics like Marcel Fouquier of the Journal—Richard Brooks could give the measure of his talent, being equally capable of creating works of small or large dimensions. To charm rather than to astonish, to discover the extraordinary in the normal rather than to assert the extraordinaries of the abnormal, appears to have been his underlying motive.

"In 1895 he won an honorable mention for his beautiful nude 'Chant de la Vague," a girl listening to the waves. He had exhibited in the Old Salon though his masters were associates of the rival salon—a proof of his faith in the merit of his work. Then, among the yearly productions which brought him medals and fame there are a bust of the poet, Oliver Wendell Holmes, for the library of the city of Boston, and "The Bather," a shapely boy swung against a shard of a cliff and gingerly touching a swashing wave with indrawn toes' (1896); a bust of Miss Goodwin (1897); a medallion of Miss Amy Porter and a chandelier (1898); the statue of Col. Thomas Cass for the Boston Public Gardens, awarded a gold medal at the Salon of 1899; a medallion of Miss Mignon Nevada Palmer (1901); the statues of Caarles Carroll of Carrollton, the signer of the Declaration of Independence, and John Hancock, first president of the Continental Congress (1903.) The two latter figures are now installed in the Statuary Hall, Washington, and a reproduction of them adorns office of the governor of Maryland at Annapolis."

Judging his manner of treatment of these two portrait statues which were shown at the Salon of 1903, Marcel Fouquier wrote: "A young American sculptor Mr. Richard Brooks, up to this time comparatively unknown, exhibits two statues of statesmen of his native land. These are of an equally remarkable simplicity and decorative style. Better treatment could hardly have been given to subjects which are seemingly so unpromising, but which, in this case are elevated and ennobled by dignified sentiment."

Other works by Mr. Brooks are: A bust of Mlle. Martin, another of General Francis A. Walker, placed in the court yard of the Boston Public Library and the statue of Robert Treat Paine, another signer of the Declaration of Independence, for the monument of Taunton, 1905. (Like the figures of John Hancock and of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, the Paine statue is a remarkable example of what may be called the reconstructive imagination); an eight-foot statue in marble of John Haynes, first governor of Connecticut, for the State Capitol at Hartford; busts of Mrs. Brooks, the artist's wife, and of the painter Alexander Harrison (1906); Messrs. William Brown Cogswell and Rowland Hazard, chemist and president of the Solway Process Company (1908); a bronze statue of General John M. Hood for the city of Baltimore; a statue in marble of Roger Ludlow, for the city hall of Hartford, and finally, that of William H. Seward for the city of Seattle (1909).

He is the author of numerous medallions, among which are those of twelve past mayors of Boston, to replace the miserable crayon and oil portraits by which the memory of those gentlemen was formerly dishonored.

MEDALLION PORTRAITURE.

Mr. Brooks is famous in France and America not alone for his beautiful pieces of statuary but is also greatly renowned for his revival of medallion portraiture.

"In picturing children Mr. Brooks is particularly able, catching and imprisoning in clay the fleeting bewitchment of babyhood and childhood that, while comparatively easy to render with paint on canvas, is a much more difficult problem for the sculptor.

"Many an amusing anecdote he can tell of the tricks he resorts to keep his little models interested and animated while he is working and of their different mental attitudes towards the occasion. The little girl, for instance, who was let into the secret that the medallion was for mamma's birthday, cooperated heartily; while the little boy, under the same circumstances, 'didn't care,' and wanted 'to go out and play.' Mr. Brooks enjoys his youthful sitters tremendously, which is, perhaps, no small factor in his successful interpretation of them.

"Two of his most fascinating child portraits are those of the little sisters, Katherine and Lucy, daughters of Mrs. Hutchinson of Boston. These two medallions, small as mere inches go, are of great breadth of workmanship, and express all the delicacy of immature girlish features. It is scarcely necessary to mention their ages—seven and nine. Of the original life-size plaster reliefs, small facsimiles have been made in bronze, and are among the most prized possessions of various members of the Hutchinson family.

"The possibility of reproducing a medallion portrait in gold, silver, bronze, etc., and reducing it to any size, is an advantage that cannot be claimed by any other form of portraiture. The delicately modeled profile of little baby Morrison, for instance, has been reduced in gold to the size of a quarter, and in this diminutive form is worn as a brooch by his proud young mother, a daughter of the late Daniel O'Day of the Standard Oil Company.

"Mr. O'Day was always one of the most enthusiastic admirers of Mr.

Brooks' work, and to his appreciation we owe one of the most beautiful and unique necklaces in existence. It was designed and executed for him by Mr. Brooks in 1900 and presented to Mrs. O'Day as a Christmas gift. The medallions (portraits of their six children, then unmarried) are in gold, the size of a dime, and the links joining the little gold discs with the O'D monogram attaching the pendant, show a sense of harmony and proportions that prove the thoroughness of Mr. Brooks' originality for, beautiful as the little portraits are, the effect would have been spoiled had the fashioning of them into a necklace been less skillful. So Mr. Brooks not only designed and modeled the exquisite links, but superintended their construction after they had passed into the goldsmith's hands. Cornelia of Rome referred to her children as her jewels and from a mother possessing a necklace such as that of Mrs. O'Day the statement would be literally as well as figuratively true.

"Among the beautiful women Mr. Brooks has portrayed are Mrs. Archibald Ashley Welch, who is well known in Hartford, and her artist friend, Miss Elizabeth Tyler Stevens.

Mrs. Welch is the sister of the American painter, Cerdney Bunce of whose delightful Venetian pictures Mr. Brooks owns several fine examples."

Richard Brooks has been highly honored in France and America. One of the distinctions he prizes most is that of having received several orders for medallions from French patrons, for such appreciation of an American artist from Parisians is rare.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

The baseball season began well Tuesday with the victory over South Boston High at Merrymount Park. The home team showed up especially well as this was the first game of the season, and many of the men were on the nine for the first time. The South Bostons had already played a number of games so had the advantage in this respect. The game was fast and had the close score of 4 to 3. From the fifth inning on there was a tie score so an extra inning had to be played to decide the game. Quincy rallied and Capt. Russ Bates sent Mil Chapman home by a classy hit to the road. High connected with twelve hits off the South Boston pitcher, which shows the home nine can use the stick to good advantage.

Phil Rice the Q. H. S. pitcher, although a little wild once in a while, held the visitors down to four hits. Before the season is over he ought to work into a good acquisition to the team. H. Chapman behind the bat was ready and sure to catch almost anything that came his way. Murphy at first made few misses, besides, he showed he knew how to bat. M. Chapman acquitted himself well at second, and also got two safe hits, making one a home run. Russ Bates the third baseman, pulled in one of the four home runs. Billy Manning the shortstop connected twice with the sphere. Allen, Barry, and O'Connor did good work at left, center and right field respectively. As to batting this trio made six of the twelve hits. Allen and O'Connor came in for a home run apiece. There is plenty of good material so the prospects for a successful season appear to be good.

The Dedham High School Athletic Association will hold a track meet at Stone Park on Saturday, April 23d, in which the various classes of the High School will be represented in the different events. The meet promises to be successful, and the results in points very close, as there has been a great deal of interest shown this spring in track athletics. The track men have been coached voluntarily by William Kappaun, the present holder of the world's professional high jumping record, with weights. His services have shown in the steady improvement of the candidates. The interest he has shown in the boys has worked into the boys themselves, and Dedham now has as good a squad of track men as the other high schools of this vicinity.

The speakers for the graduation day exercises of the Revere high school are Herbert Hagan, John R. Larrabee, Carl G. Lindstol, Mildred Holt, Florence G. Chisholm. The class numbers about 40. Exercises will be held in the Town hall on June 23.

It is better that the ideals of a teacher be high and scholarship low than that scholarship should be high and ideals low. I would make strong plea for the backward, dull and wayward pupil. It is more important to save the one hundredth than the ninety and nine who go not astray. To illustrate this point I recall the story of a rare old violin about to be sold at auction. In vain the auctioneer assured the people that this instrument was made hundreds of years ago by a master workman. They saw only the shabby and battered case. A mere pittance was offered, and, while bidding was in progress, an old man came to the front, lifted the violin lovingly, adjusted the strings, tested the bow and then began to play. The people listened breathlessly to the wonderful melody, and when it ceased, the bids ran to enormous figures. Under the hand of the master the despised old instrument had come to its own.—Hon. George Sackett, at Teachers' Institute, Los Angeles, Cal.

The Picture In the Watch.

The following anecdote is related of Jerome Bonaparte: He had been playing cards until he lost all his ready money, then pledged his rings and finally laid his watch on the table. It was a small gold one, the back of which opened with a spring. A lady overlooking the game admired the watch and took it up to examine it. On her attempting to open the back Jerome immediately clasped it and said that must not be done. His wife, who stood by, insisted upon knowing what was in it, grew angry, reproached him with having some keepsake of a favorite there and finally, bursting into tears, quit the room. Jerome then opened the watch and showed to all present that it contained a beautiful miniature of his first wife, Betsy Patterson, with the remark, "You see, I hope, that I could not with propriety let her see it." It was notorious that he remained deeply attached to his first wife long after their separation —Former United States Senator George Turner, who has returned to his home in Spokane from Washington, D. C., will sail from New York on May 21 for The Hague, where he will appear before the tribunal as one of the counsel for the United States in the famous fisheries case. This controversy involves fisheries rights on the Newfoundland and Laborador coasts and is of prime importance to this country. As it is the first of its kind involving these questions of rights it will furnish to some extent a precedent on the future conduct of the fisheries on the coasts. Mr. Turner said that all the testimony has been taken and that the arguments are to begin on June 1 and continue until early in August, the tribunal sitting four days a week and for about four hours each day. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, while president of the United States, appointed Mr. Turner as counsel for the government, and the latter has been at work on the case more than four months.

EMPLOY TACT IN VISITING

Shirley Breese Gives Advice on How Not to Be a Bore to Your Hostess---Always Time Visit to Suit Her Convenience.

If you are intending to visit a friend in the near future do not neglect to let her know it. It will add greatly to the warmth of your welcome, and it will make it more pleasant all around. Even should the person whom you are about to honor with your company be as closely related to you as a mother-in-law do not fail to send a notification of your intention.

It is never safe to take chances in this decidedly delicate matter. A thousand and one reasons make it so. There may be illness, physical or mental, in the household you contemplate entering on the familiar footing of a guest. There may be potent reasons which are not apparent and which should not be that would make your visit at the time a positive infliction, no matter how intimate you are with the family or some member of it. It is most likely that you would not be received with open arms should you appear unexpectedly at a house whose mistress had been thrown suddenly on her own resources by the desertion of her maid. It would be almost equally awkward should you arrive unheralded to find some other guest in full occupation of the only company bedroom.

In "the good old times" matters were different. Then it was the custom to make visits sometimes lengthened out into weeks and even months. There are parts of this great country of ours in which there is still time to carry on this wholesale hospitality, but for the most of us it is no longer practicable. Our American life has become too full and too exacting to admit of it. It is not regarded as good form nowadays to have anything indefinite about a visit.

If you wish to visit a friend and see no reason why you should wait until she takes the initiative it will not be at all out of the way for you to drop a line to your self elected hostess asking her if it will be agreeable and convenient for her to receive you as a guest on a certain day and hour. It will be well to be perfectly frank in this preliminary note, even to the extent of naming the length of your stay. There can be no possible reflection on her hospitality to state that your visit will terminate on such a day.

Too much stress cannot be laid on this matter of being entirely frank in the business. When you write to your friend it will be a good idea to make a point of your frankness and to ask her to be equally so. Then she will be free to give you the precise view of the situation and will make her reply with due regard to your comfort as well as to her own convenience.

The time and duration of your visit all settled, turn your attention to the most important part of all—are you going to "make good?" In other words, are you prepared to convince your hostess to be that she is the gainer from your initiative and that you will actually confer a favor on her by becoming an inmate of her household for a brief season?

Of course no inflexible rule can be made to regulate the manner of a guest, but it is safe to say that she who possesses the most tact will come nearest to success. Let that be your constant inspiration.

SHIRLEY BREESE.

THIS AMERICAN WOMAN HAS HELD COMMISSIONS IN TWO GREAT ARMIES

As they say in certain parts of Virginia, it is "right much" distinction for a woman to hold the only commission ever issued to a member of her sex as an officer in the United States army. Dr. Anita Newcomb McGee of Washington holds this unique distinction. For several years she was a first lieutenant in the army of the United States. Not only that, but she has been a commissioned officer in the Japanese army.

Lieutenant McGee did not fight soldiers, however. She fought disease. She is a physician. When disease was decimating the ranks of American soldiers more rapidly than Spanish bullets could do it Dr. McGee became a surgeon in the army with the rank of first lieutenant and was placed at the head of the Red Cross nurses. She organized and directed the nursing forces at the front. Wounded men and those suffering from typhoid fever, malaria and the other ailments incident to a war were under her care. The many nurses worked under her direction. After the Spanish war ended she continued her service, directing the Red Cross work in the Philippines during the insurrection and in China during the Boxer rebellion.

When Russia and Japan grappled in the bloodiest war of modern times Lieutenant McGee went to the far east with a corps of her trained nurses. She was honored with a commission in the Japanese army—the only woman who ever held such a commission. For a year she worked on the army transports and in the hospitals, succoring the wounded Japanese soldiers and ministering to those who were sick. For this service she received the thanks of the Japanese government and the individual blessings of many Japanese soldiers.

Lieutenant McGee is a daughter of the late Simon Newcomb, the noted astronomer. Her husband is Dr. WJ McGee, noted scientist. Dr. McGee always insists that his name be printed WJ McGee, declaring that the letters W and J are not initials, but constitute his entire "Christian" name as conferred by his parents. Both he and his wife have won wide distinction in their professions, and Mrs. McGee treasures her two army commissions as among her choicest souvenirs.

Ella Packard, High school '06, is to take the part of Rosalind in "As you like it" to be given at Boston University Friday afternoon and evening.

It is said some of the prettiest girls in Quincy are to be in the Living Picture entertainment next week.

There was a much larger attendance at the second night of the Quincy Point minstrel show than on the opening night. Dancing followed the drama.

Unless the City Council hold a special meeting next week there will be several days in May when expressmen will be without permits to transport liquid refreshments.

A sale of maybaskets and candy is to be held this afternoon and evening at the Universalist vestry . In the evening there will also be a concert on a Victor talking machine.

Charles H. Johnson, auctioneer is to sell at auction on Saturday afternoon a notable collection of household furniture, when all the effects, excepting books, of the late Dr. William Everett will be sold.

Miss Hazel Jennings, Miss Edith Fox, and Mrs. Lura Babcock of this city are to take part in the play "Clover Farm" to be given in the vestry of Pilgrim church North Weymouth on Tuesday evening. The entertainment is given for the benefit of the Athens school by the teachers of the school.

The annual party for the children of First Church Sunday school is to be held tomorrow afternoon, beginning at four o'clock when there will be an entertainment and supper in chapel. From seven until eight there will be dancing at Colonial hall for the younger children followed by dancing until eleven for the older ones.

Some idea of the damage done to the fire alarm and police signal wires by the severe winter's storms may be had when it is understood that $2,500 was required for the fire alarm wires and boxes, and $1,000 for the police signal system. The West Quincy police signal circuit has been out of commission ever since the storm for lack of funds to rebuild it, and the police have had to depend on telephones to reach headquarters.

WESTERLY WHISKY VICTIM

Wood Alcohol Is Found In the Stomach of Daniel Sullivan

Westerly, R. I., April 21.—Professor Whitney of the Harvard medical school, who examined the stomachs of Daniel L. Sullivan and William D. Perrin, two of the thirteen persons believed to have died from the effects of whisky containing wood alcohol, stated in a report received by Medical Examiner Moran that he found wood alcohol in Sullivan's stomach, but that there was no evidence of poison in Perrin's stomach.

Thomas J. Bannon, a local druggist, who was indicted by the grand jury at Kingston for a liquor unisance and who has been accused in sworn statements of having sold whisky which is believed to have caused the deaths of three persons, pleaded not guilty yesterday.

After a conference with Attorney General Greenough Coroner Kingsley sent out summonses for an inquest on the death of Sullivan.

MRS. SHAW GETS DIVORCE

Custody of Child and Question of Alimony to Be Settled Later

Salem, Mass., April 21.—Mrs. Nettie E. Shaw, the daughter of H. F. Eldredge, the millionaire brewer, who figured in the sensational kidnapping of her little son, whom she took to California, where she and their former chauffeur, H. K. Marble, were arrested, was granted a divorce from her husband, former Senator James F. Shaw. The evidence was heard in private.

By an arrangement between Shaw and his wife he withdrew his action against her and she changed her charges against him to "cruel and abusive treatment." Shaw did not contest the case. Mrs. Shaw said that her husband would not kiss her and that he swore at her.

The custody of the 12-year-old son of the couple, who is now with the father, is to be determined later, as will any money settlement that may be made.

Holt adjourned the hearing for argument in the writ of habeas corpus until Friday and fixed bail at $10,000.

AN ACCOMMODATING SPOUSE

Shoots Himself to Leave Wife Free to Marry Old Sweetheart

New York, April 21.—The happiness of his wife is more to John Kinosh than his own life, and so he shot himself that she might be free to marry another man whom he believed she loved.

Kinosh's wife had a sweetheart in Poland named Michael Solden before she came to America several years ago. Solden came to this country a few months ago and went to live with the Kinoshes. The husband thought he saw signs of renewed affection in his wife for her old sweetheart.

"I am in the way," said Kinosh. "I shot myself so you could marry Mike."

They carried him off to the hospital and the doctors say he is dying. Mrs. Kinosh says she loves only her husband and that his suspicions were groundless. Solden agrees with her.

RING WORN BY RUTH WHEELER

Found In Ashes In Fireplace of Wolter's Apartment

HARD BLOW TO THE DEFENSE

Expert Testifies That Girl Was Attacked and Was Alive When Body Was Soaked With Kerosene and Burned—Accused Youth Absolutely Unmoved by Display of Bones of His Alleged Victim

New York, April 21.—No prisoner on trial for his life in the New York courts is ever remembered to have faced such an array of facts and heart-rending testimony with such a stolid indifference as did Albert Wolter when confronted with the charred fragments of the body which once was Ruth Wheeler, whom he is charged with having lured to her death in his flat not a month ago.

Philip O'Calahan, a coroner's physician, testified that Ruth was attacked before she was murdered, and that there was still life in her body when it was soaked with kerosene, jammed up the chimney of Wolter's flat and set afire.

He found human hair not her own, he said, adhering to her fingers. There was soot in the lungs. A corpse does not breathe. Therefore he knew a living and still sentient body inhaled smoke and flame.

During this appalling testimony Wolter sat trim and listless, scanning indifferently the jurors, the grewsome exhibits themselves and his lawyer. He gave no sign of emotion when Adelaide Wheeler, 19 years old, and said to bear an extraordinary resemblance to her dead sister, took the stand.

With self-possession the girl identified a braid of artificial hair which was her sister's, the underclothing that she knew by its texture and jewelry that Ruth wore.

Nor did she falter when she told how she knew the dismembered body for her sister's, even though the arms and legs were missing, by the lines of the bust, the contour of the skull and the perfect teeth, which had never been touched by a dentist and were perfectly formed. It was too much for the mother, who fainted and had to be carried from the courtroom, but the sister went bravely on.

When a little gold ring, with the monogram "R. A. W." was produced and identified as having been worn by Ruth A. Wheeler when she left home for the last time, the counsel defending Wolter was taken competely by surprise. It was a surprise, even, to the police who had worked on the case.

Adelaide Wheeler was on the witness stand when Mr. Moss produced the ring. She identified it. It was learned that the attaches of the district attorney's office working on the case had taken the ashes from the fireplace in Wolter's abandoned flat, at 224 East Seventy-fifth street, and had sifted them, disclosing the ring.

As the defense has based its hope on failure to establish the identity of the body as that of Ruth Wheeler, the discovery was considered a staggering blow to the defense.

Emotionless, Wolter turned from studying photographs of his flat and viewing the unwrapping of bones alleged to be those of Ruth Wheeler as they were placed within five feet of him. After the last charred member had been taken from its bed of cotton batting and placed on the table, the youth calmly resumed his study of the photographs.

Objections from Wolter's counsel were constant and as constantly overruled. His cross-examinations were aggressive, but brief, and they shook none of the witnesses. There was no indication of what the defense will be.

CASSIDY IS PARDONED

Boston Lawyer Was Implicated In City Council Graft Case

Boston, April 21.—James T. Cassidy, the Boston attorney who was sentenced to Deer island for fraud in connection with the purchase of law books which were delivered to Leo F. "SILENT JIM" SMITH'S WIDOW SOON TO WED

Rich Woman to Become Bride of Bartow Van Voorhis

New York, April 21.—New York society is interested in a dispatch from London stating that Mrs. James H. Smith is soon to wed Bartow W. Van Voorhis.

Mrs. Smith is now in Paris and Van Voorhis is stopping at A. J. Drexel's house in Grosvenor square, London. His address is given as the Union club in New York. He spends most of his time abroad.

Mrs. Smith was Annie Armstrong, daughter of General John A. Armstrong of Baltimore. Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel of Philadelphia is her sister. In 1879 she was married to William R. Stewart, son of Lispenard Stewart, and heir to the great Rhinelander estate.

After Mrs. Stewart had divorced her first husband she married James H. Smith, known as "Silent Jim" Smith and "The Man of Mystery," in Scotland in 1906. Smith had inherited the $60,000,000 fortune of his uncle, George Smith, in 1899, and had been little heard of until Mrs. Stewart introduced him to New York society in 1901. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were on a yachting trip around the world when Smith died in Kioto, Japan, on March 26, 1907. He left his widow $3,000,000.

Anita Stewart, Mrs. Smith's daughter, was married last summer to Prince Miguel of Braganza, a pretender to the throne of Portugal.

Her Peace Offering

A Story Showing That Women Are Not All Alike.

By PETER G. TRASK.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"My dear," said Dr. Joe Bemerton as he threw off his coat and hat, tossing his heavy driving gloves into the latter, "I'll be hanged if I go out again tonight if I'm called by a multimillionaire."

"Oh, Joe, I'm so glad! You look awfully tired, and just think how long it is since we've had a quiet evening together."

"Right you are, Pol. I'll get on my velveteen jacket, put on my easy shoes, sit down before these blazing logs with you beside me, and we'll have a real old fashioned evening—like our courting days, eh, sweetheart?"

He tweaked her ear and gave her a kiss.

"Won't it be nice? You can sit in the big chair right before the flame, while I sit in my little working rocker beside you and darn the stockings."

"Oh, no; don't darn stockings! You didn't darn stockings in those days."

As soon as dinner was over the doctor pulled the big chair up to the fireplace and drew his wife down on his knee. She had weighed a hundred pounds when they courted. Now she weighed a hundred and fifty. Bemerton had had several obstinate cases during the day and was tired. It wasn't five minutes before he remarked that he had strained a muscle in his left leg when getting out of his auto, slipping on a bit of ice. He thought that they'd better sit side by side. So Mrs. Bemerton got off his knee and with an effort succeeded in squeezing in beside him. If she had gained fifty pounds he had gained more, so that instead of the aggregate bulk of 215 pounds between the two arms of the chair, as in their courting days, there were now 350. However, they managed to wedge themselves in, and Mrs. Bemerton leaned back on her husband's arm.

"Just as nice as ever it was," he said gallantly.

They sat chatting for awhile, but the topics they talked about as lovers did not seem to rise up with the spontaneity of former days. There were long gaps in the conversation. The doctor yawned.

"We don't need to talk all the while," she said drowsily. "Remember what a clatter we used to keep up?"

"I wonder how we did it."

"Did it! We didn't do it. It did itself."

There was a lull, during which the doctor's eyes closed, and he was beginning to draw the heavy breath of slumber when his wife started in anew.

"Do you know, Joe," she said, "that wretched butcher sent in the most abominable steak this morning—all bone and gristle?"

"Yes, dear, but my arm is cramped. If you'll raise a bit I'll move it."

He moved the arm and was sinking again to a snooze when the telephone bell rang.

"I'll go," said Mrs. Bemerton, starting up.

"No; you wouldn't understand." And the doctor went to the telephone.

"Yes; I'm Dr. Bemerton."

Reply.

"I'm pretty tired."

Reply.

"Is he?"

Reply.

"Suffering much?"

Reply.

"Well, I suppose I'll have to go."

Mrs. Bemerton, who was listening, sighed. The doctor came back into the room the picture of woe.

"Now, Joe, you said you wouldn't go out again tonight for a millionaire. You're tired out. In another moment you'd have been asleep. Why didn't you refuse?"

"How could I? If you were suffering and called for a physician to relieve you and he declined to go, what would you think of him?"

"Well, I suppose it can't be helped. Will you ride?"

"No; it's not far. I'll walk."

She helped the poor man on with his overcoat. He gave her a parting kiss and as he went out said:

"If I'm going to be delayed I'll telephone you, and you're not to sit up, but go to bed like a dear, good little woman, and I'll come in without disturbing you and sleep in my own room. Ta-ta, sweetheart!"

Mrs. Bemerton's regret was that her liege lord must go out after a hard day's work into a cold night to incur more responsibility. She was a practical woman and had discovered very soon that the return to courting days would not be a success. She was not therefore disturbed at the interruption on that account. Indeed, she was relieved.

As soon as the front door closed behind him Dr. Bemerton hastened his steps. A few blocks away was his club, and thither he went. Leaving his overcoat at the coat room, he went into the cafe and there found Drs. Nichols and Gilson, who hailed his entrance with shouts of satisfaction.

"What did you mean," exclaimed Bemerton to Nichols, with mock severity, "by telling me that the patient was suffering and I must come at once to relieve him?"

"I meant this," replied Nichols—"that Gilson is suffering for some one to split a bottle of ginger ale with him. As for me, I'm suffering for something of the same kind."

"Ha, ha!" laughed Bemerton. "You fellows will be the death of me some day. It doesn't seem as if one of us can have any fun without the other two or any two without the other one."

Dr. Bemerton sat down, and Nichols pushed the button, and when beverages had been ordered Bemerton said to the waiter:

"Peter, I wish you to telephone my wife that the case is very serious, there are three doctors in consultation, and I'll probably be detained till a late hour. Say I haven't even time to do the telephoning. Now, be careful, Peter. Don't give away where the message comes from."

"Ha, ha!" laughed Nichols. "Three doctors in consultation! Good! Very good!"

"Consulting as to which is preferable as a diluent—ginger ale or fizz water," laughed Gilson.

Peter had served twenty years at the club and knew how to send such telephone messages very well, but he was head waiter, and his responsibilities were multifarious. Being especially crowded tonight, he transferred the order to a greenhorn who had worn the club's button but a few days. This was the message sent to the doctor's wife:

"Dr. Bemerton is here at the club in consultation with two other doctors. He won't be home till late, mum."

"All right," came the response. "Tell the doctor not to hurry and that I think a Welsh rabbit or a stuffed crab will do him good."

Then the greenhorn goes to the three doctors in consultation and says to Dr. Bemerton:

"Docther, Mrs. Bamerthon says yer not to hurry, and she thinks a stuffed crab or a rabbit 'll do ye good."

Bemerton, who was raising his glass to his lips, stopped it on the way.

"Who phoned her?"

"I did, sor. Peter told me to. He was busy."

"And did you tell her I was at the club?"

"Shure, sor. Where else would I tell her?"

Nichols and Gilson leaned back in their leather covered chairs and roared.

"That'll do," said Bemerton to the waiter, who went off puzzled.

"Well, boys," said Bemerton, "I'm in for it." And he told the story of how he had started in for a return to courting days, accusing them of breaking in upon his and his wife's happiness.

"You must do something mighty nice," said Gilson, "to get out of this muddle. My wife would never forgive me for a thing like that."

"What can I do?" asked Bemerton.

"Give her a sealskin," suggested Nichols.

"She has one. Besides, that would require time. I've got to face her tonight when I go home."

"The only thing you can do," said Gilson, "that can be done tonight is to telephone to a flower shop and have them send you a fine mess of flowers to take home with you."

Bemerton was not favorably impressed with the plan. He said that he had forgotten every anniversary of his wedding day as it came round and the customary gift, his wife reminding him of it a month after it had passed. To take her flowers now seemed like giving her taffy. However, at that hour it was the only thing he could do; so, calling up a flower shop, he directed the proprietor to send the handsomest basket of flowers he could make up. Then he threw off care and, with his friends, spent a delightful evening, marred only by a telephone message from Dr. Gilson's better half to know if he was at the club and one from a patient of Dr. Nichols asking if the medicine he had ordered had better be taken at 11 o'clock or a quarter past 11.

But all good times must come to an end, and the trio at last separated. At the door of the club Bemerton's two friends admonished him to do a lot of petting when he got home, confessing himself a brute and relying on the floral gift to set matters right. Bemerton didn't say anything. He knew his wife and that she was not one to be coddled.

When the doctor opened his front door he found the lights turned down and the silence of oblivion. Excellent! Perhaps his wife was asleep. He would not have to face her till morning. Taking off his shoes and leaving the flowers in the hall, he crept upstairs.

"That you, dear?" came a voice from his wife's bedroom. "Had a good time? Hope you didn't eat anything to upset your stomach."

"Only stuffed crab, as you suggested. You're not angry with me, are you, dear?"

"Angry! Why should I be? I was well pleased when I learned you were at the club instead of being with sick people. Only you might as well have told me where you were going. It would have been a relief to me."

"By Jove, what a sensible woman you are! Both Gilson and Nichols said their wives would be furious. They suggested that I bring you a ten dollar basket of flowers to pacify you—ha, ha!"

"Flowers! Don't you bring me flowers when Billy needs a new overcoat and Jennie hasn't a decent dress to her name. If you had spent $10 for such worthless things I'd have sent them right back tomorrow to the shop you got them from."

Mrs. Bemerton didn't see her husband or his expression when she said this, and it is well she did not.

"I'll just go down and fix the furnace before turning in," he called. "It's going to be a cold night."

Mrs. Bemerton heard coal shoveled into the furnace, but she did not hear a beautiful ten dollar basket of flowers thrown in at the same time.

The next morning Dr. Bemerton made his first call at the flower shop where he paid for the penitential gift.

TEN TONS OF CANDY STOLEN

New York Factory Invaded by Women and Children

LOOTING PUZZLES THE POLICE

Only Clue They Have Is Epidemic of Stomach Ache and Besmeared Faces of Youngsters—12,000 Pounds of Sweets Left In Store by Manufacturer Speedily Reduced to Five Pounds During Absence of Owner

New York, April 21.—The amazing theft of 21,000 pounds of candy in one day under the noses of the police caused a chorus of laughs along Tenth and Eleventh avenues in the Fifties and Sixties. The only clue of consequence the bluecoats have found is an epidemic of tummy aches and many candy besmeared mouths among the children of the neighborhood.

When L. N. Hartog of Hartog & Co., candy manufacturers, locked up last Saturday night he had the ten tons of sweets neatly packed in his store, 540 West Fifty-eighth street.

The supply was to have been moved Monday into his new quarters at 301 East Twenty-first street. It was worth $6000, and consisted of sixty cases of sixty-five pounds each, 200 pails of thirty-seven pounds each, and 2000 boxes of five pounds each.

There were lemon and peppermint sticks, chocolate bonbons and enough gum drops to supply Arctic expeditions for several years. When Hartog opened the store on Monday morning about the only thing left to remind him that it was his was the office cat and one lonely five-pound box of candy.

Convincing himself there was nothing left to lose Hartog dragged himself to the West Forty-seventh street station. He had to tell his story to Captain Fennelly twice. Then Sergeant Rydell of the "bad boy squad" was sent out to reconnoitre. He discovered that the neighborhood was so flush with candy that it was strewn on the streets.

Every small boy and girl who didn't have aches and pains had a mouth discolored with candy. Every child they asked "crossed his heart" that somebody gave the candy to him. Some of the persons living in the vicinity of the factory said there was a steady stream of women and children all day Sunday leaving the back door of the factory. This was found to be unlocked.

The only conclusion reached by the dumfounded proprietor was that some one forced the basement door, took what he wanted and passed the word along. The others found entrance unhindered and made round trips from their homes until the supply was gone. Hartog is still unable to explain why the last five-pound box was not taken, too.

The police have been busy investigating the theft, however, and yesterday they discovered seven pails of candy in the tenement of Mrs. Mary Gargalio, 541 West Fifty-ninth street. Besides Mrs. Gargalio, who weighs about 300 pounds, a large number of children, boarders and neighbors surrounded those pails. When the policemen tried to take away the candy, all, with a yell of battle, rushed to the rescue. Clubs and rolling pins were used with telling effect.

In the height of the conflict Mrs. Gargalio hit Policeman Evans over the eye with a mop stick and laid him out. When he came to he and his comrades arrested Mrs. Gargalio but in the meantime all the others had disappeared, carrying away two pails of candy. The other five pails, together with Mrs. Gargalio, were taken to the West Forty-seventh street station. A doctor took several stitches in a wound over Evans' eye.

POLICE CHIEF UNDER FIRE

Beverly Aldermen to Make Inquiry Into Three Charges Against Him

Beverly, Mass., April 21.—Charges on three counts were brought against Chief of Police Ferguson by James A. O'Connell and the board of aldermen will hold a special meeting to hear the case.

Hildreth on May 12, 1909, when the latter was charged with improper conduct on the park; that he then attempted to influence the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children who were interested in the case, by a money payment, and that he committed perjury at the hearing given Hildreth.

Governor Pothier Is Not Seeking Aldrich's Seat In the Senate

Providence, April 21.—"I won't lift a finger in an effort to be elected senator to succeed Senator Aldrich," said Governor Pothier in an interview.

"The state has men of national size who are capable of representing us well in the senate," he continued, "and I don't see any reason why I should try to get it."

The governor declared that the thought of making an attempt to be elected senator was the last thing in his mind. This statement was given out following a report which has been in circulation since Aldrich announced that he would not be a candidate for re-election, that the governor would be the Republican candidate.

TRUSTEE OF BANK ADMITS NEGLIGENCE

Had Confidence In Treasurer Hall of Southbridge Bank

Boston, April 21.—Henry C. Cady, trustee of the Southbridge bank for some years, told the legislative committee probing the defalcation that he had been negligent, but said that he thought that the bank commissioner was looking after the safety of the bank. He thought that there were few people who could realize the confidence that the people of Southbridge had in Treasurer Hall.

Representative Washburn asked Cady what he conceived the duties of a trustee to be. Cady replied that he couldn't explain, but that there were other trustees who knew more about the bank than he.

He had thought that the bank was in proper hands with Hall and the investment committee.

FIRE VISITS POOR FARM

Aged Inmate Perishes as Buildings and Barns Are Destroyed

Rutland, Vt., April 21.—One man was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the county poor farm at West Rutland. The victim of the fire was Michael Moylan, who was over 70 years old and very deaf. He could not be awakened in time to escape from the burning building.

There ware fourteen men and women in the main building, of which eleven were inmates of the place and the rest employes. All fled in their night clothes. Many of the men and women are very old and infirm.

All of the barns and buildings of the farm were destroyed. The loss will be about $50,000. It is not known how the fire started.

Prominent Man Is Said to Have Resorted to Shoplifting

Boston, April 21.—Alfred E. Walker was arraigned in the municipal court, charged with ten counts of larceny. By agreement the case was put over until May 16. Walker furnished bonds to the extent of $200.

The police assert that Walker, who was secretary to Walter G. Garrett, vice president of the United States Leather company, resorted to shoplifting in order to maintain an automobile. Walker is well known in Wollaston, where he is quite prominent socially.

SENATE TO LOSE STRONG MEN

Aldrich and Hale Well Posted on Affairs of the Nation

TAFT REGRETS RETIREMENT

Has Looked to Rhode Island Senator to Put Party Measures Through In Shape Recommended by Administration—Maine Man Declines to Face a Scrimmage—Uncle Joe Cannon to Remain In the Ring

Washington, April 21.—Senator Aldrich called at the White House and personally acquainted President Taft with his determination to retire from politics March 3. It is said there was no attempt on Mr. Taft's part to disguise the genuine sorrow he feels over the retirement of the Rhode Island senator. The president has let it be known for some time past that he felt he had the genuine and sincere support of Aldrich, regardless of what his critics may have said or thought. He has looked to Mr. Aldrich therefore to put the party measures through the senate in the shape recommended by the administration.

While still far from voluble on the subject, Senator Hale talked with more freedom concerning his announced determination to retire from the senate. He admitted that he sent a letter to Chairman Boyd of the Maine committee informing him that he could not consent to make a personal contest for the senate. His principal reason was the unsettled condition of politics, and the fact that for the first time he has encountered opposition.

Seventy-four years of age and unused to opposition in his political aspirations, he says, he simply hesitated to enter upon a scrimmage which, while it probably would result in his triumph, would be injurious to his health and at the same time greatly disturb his peace of mind.

Mr. Hale also takes the position that already he has enjoyed all that can come to him as the result of election to the senate. He is especially proud of the fact that in none of his five full term elections to the senate has he encountered opposition in his party.

As is the case with Aldrich, Hale is a member of the monetary commission and will continue his services in that connection.

To his callers who spoke of the prospective retirement of Aldrich and Hale, President Taft had little to say. Each time he was approached on the subject, he seemed deeply serious. He believes the senate is losing the two men best acquainted with the government of the United States.

Mr. Taft does not think the announcement of the coming retirements will affect in any way his legislative program, or, as already stated, he hopes to get the pending bills enacted into laws before Aldrich and Hale pass into private life.

Speaker Cannon expects to live for twenty-five years longer, and is no political "quitter." He made both of these important announcements at the White House at the close of a conference with President Taft over pending legislation. When his attention was called to the retirement of Senators Aldrich and Hale and the approaching end of the alleged Cannon-Aldrich combination he said: "That combine exists only in the minds of the muckrakers and the would-be uplifters of the country."

Depew May Soon Leave Senate

Albany, April 21.—It is reported here that a close personal and political associate of United States Senator Depew has received word from him that he will follow the example of Senators Aldrich and Hale and decline to be a candidate for re-election.

Victoria, B. C., April 21.—Japanese sealers, reaching Vancouver, reported that motor boats are being used for seal hunting this year by some of the forty vessels sent from Japan to Behring sea.

International sealing regulations provide that only sail craft may be used for pelagic sealing, but Japan is not a party to the treaty and maintains that the regulations do not apply to Japanese sealers.

BRIEFS.

Business of late has been very quiet at the district court.

The excavating for the cellar of the new school lot at Houghs Neck has been completed, and work building the cement foundation will be commenced this week.

The case of Louis Grossman, for keeping a junk shop without a license at Quincy, which was to have come up in the Superior court this term has gone over to the September term. Grossman was found guilty in the Quincy court and appealed.

St. Margaret's Guild of Christ church at its meeting on Friday evening will be entertained by Mrs. L. H. Sturtevant, who will sing, Mr. Hull, accompanying at the piano, and by readings by Miss Marion Swazey of Beverly. The evening will be in charge of Mrs. Walter E. Burke.

MEN'S CLUB DEBATE.

The question under debate by the Men's club of Christ church Wednesday evening was: Resolved—That the growing power of the Federal government is a menace to State rights.

N. M. Spencer took the affirmative, and Archibald McLeod the negative. There were no seconds, but there was a general and spirited discussion on the subject from the floor. No vote was taken on the merits of the question, but by a large vote the club decided that the present government was all right.

The committee on the annual vaudeville show made the reports and while net proceeds are not known it wa sreported that it was a financial success and would probably net over $100.

After several requests from Quincy lovers of amusement the management of the vaudeville show at Quincy Music hall, have decided, with the permission of Manager King of the Quincy Real Estate Co., to give a big amateur show, tonight, as an added attraction. This will be good news to Quincy people as the amateurs that have been secured are able to give a fine evening's entertainment alone. A slack wire performer just starting out is on the list and it is rumored this act alone is enough to throw an audience into convulsions. Remember the amateurs tonight are at Quincy Music hall only. Come in, laugh and grow fat.

Seasonable Salad.

Cut some sweet oranges in small pieces and serve on crisp lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

Divide some medium sized tomatoes in half and remove all the seeds and hard portion. Cut the latter into small pieces and put it into a basin with some dice shaped pieces of cucumber and some finely shred crisp lettuce and dress the whole with mayonnaise sauce. Fill the halves of the tomatoes with the mixture and place a large olive in the middle of each.

Arrange lettuce hearts on individual plates and place in the center of each one tomato, cut into small pieces, and on top of this sprinkle French endive stalks, chopped very fine. Serve with French dressing of oil, vinegar and paprika.

Toasted educators can be served with salad for a change in place of cheese wafers.

Mock Chicken Pie.

In a certain vegetarian family a mock chicken pie is made which is popular among friends who still cling to meat in their diet. A pint of pecan meats is chopped fine and mixed with a cupful of pine nuts, one can of button mushrooms, half a dozen small onions that have been boiled whole and a can of corn. Three large potatoes are peeled, cut into dice, boiled half tender and drained. A sauce is made with two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour and two cupfuls of water or milk. The sauce, the potatoes and the first mixture seasoned with salt and pepper are put into a baking dish, covered with a biscuit or potato crust and baked about half an hour in a hot oven. It is not a cheap dish, but it is tasty and nutritious, and it outwits the butcher.

—It is said that there have been only one or two of the thousands of new proprietary medicine houses that have started in the past twenty years that have made any considerable money and only a very few more that have met with even moderate success. It is the general impression that the business is immensely profitable while the facts are that there is a larger percentage of failures than in any other line. The new concerns usually start with lots of confidence in the merit of their goods and advertising but soon exhaust their capital leaving dealers who have stocked their medicines with unsalable goods on their shelves. It is the experience of many publishers that have accepted this new business that they have been compelled to charge off their bills to profit and loss. There are many old and reliable medicine houses that continue to do a good or increasing business from year to year but the new ones are finding it more and more difficult to become established.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE

Important Matters Now Being Considered Daily

The Senate passed to a third reading on Wednesday the grade crossing bill by a vote of 20 to 14, Senator Hultman voting with the majority. It puts all the cost upon the railroads.

The Senate stood by its engrossment of House bill 1538, refusing reconsideration. The Quincy senator was in the minority. It provides: "No street railway company shall by rule or otherwise require passengers whom it permits to ride upon the platform to do so at their own risk, and no such passenger shall be prevented from recovering compensation in damages for any injury by reason of the fact that he is so riding."

The Senate refused to reconsider its rejection of the anti lobby bill, Mr. Hultman voting with the majority.

The House passed by a vote of 127 to 84 the eight hour bill vetoed by Gov. Draper last year; also the 54-hour bill.

By a vote of 91 to 110 the House refused to substitute the Heneberry bill to authorize local authorities, instead of the railroad commissioners, to license street railways to carry freight and express matter.

GRANITE CITY CLUB.

Seven tables competed in the whist tournament at the rooms of the Granite City club Wednesday evening. The best scores were recorded by S. T. MacQuarrie and John H. Johnson. The former won 36 points and lost 16, giving him 69.2 percent, and the latter won 35 points and lost 16 giving him 68.6 percent. After the whist a hot clam chowder was served.

The season's games will close next Wednesday evening, and the entertainment committee have planned an extra entertainment. An orchestra will be present during the entire evening, and will render all the popular airs to which members are requested to join in th chorus. After the whist a pleasing lunch will be served. The winners of the season's prizes will be announced as soon as possible after the close of the tournament.

Startled Their Host.

A New Yorker decided to give a dinner in recognition of hospitality showered upon him by his friends recently. He asked two women he knew to go to a jeweler's and pick out some little souvenirs for the women guests, says the New York Sun. The host did not know it, but a detective accompanied the gifts to the house. Each woman found at her place at the table a handsome box. When these were opened there were cries of admiration. One woman drew out a diamond ring, another an emerald brooch, another a diamond crescent, a fourth a necklace of pearls, another a diamond tiara, and so on, until the output of the boxes represented about $50,000. The host had forced a smile when the first box was opened. As each trinket revealed seemed more costly than the last his jaw fell. Perspiration began to trickle down his face, which got so red that the women became alarmed. Then they explained that the jewels were a joke and were borrowed for the occasion.

The Mule's Ears.

Evolutionists explain satisfactorily that the reason that the dog's ears lop is because for centuries the animal has been domesticated by man and has lain within the protecting influence of his hut and fire. The dog's ears are said to have originally stood upright, as do the wolf's today, but gradually as the necessity for keen hearing became less imperative the dog's ears began to lop. But how about the mule? It is the duty of somebody to explain why the mule's ears have not lopped down. There is no need for him to have stiff ears. The donkey, the horse and their progeny, the mule, have been under man's protecting influence for centuries and ages. The ass is the beast of burden of the Bible. His ears were stiff then, and they are stiff now. It would seem it was about time for them to begin to lop a little. —Indiana Farmer.

LOOK OUT FOR THE REDS.

Cincinnati Has Become Logical Factor In Pennant Race.

TEAM LOOKS FORMIDABLE.

Much Depends on Shortstop, as Team Is All to the Good In Other Places. Griffith's Pitching Staff Stronger Than Ever.

Look out for Clark Griffith and his band of Cincinnati Reds this season. Watch out for them from the very jump, and don't let your vigilance slacken anywhere along the route. A little carelessness, a little bullheadedness, a lack of precaution in dealing with this formidable baseball outfit, and the pennant will be floating over the park near the Ohio river. The Cincinnati aggregation lacks a few numbers of being of championship team caliber, and any slackness in fighting the Reds will mean a jolt that will make Pittsburg, Chicago and New York howl like lions.

Batting counts terribly nowadays, when there isn't much of it, and the Reds will come very near being the best batting team in the National league this season. A little money can be found, if need be, that they will outhit Pittsburg on the official averages when the count is taken. Base running? They are the best base running team in the National league right now, and they are not going to lose any of their speed. Fielding? They were not as good in the field work last season as they should have been, but this year they are going to be there with the stops and pickups almost as accurately as even the Cubs, who are the smoothest and flossiest machines in baseball. The pitching department of the Reds held them back last season and now Griffith thinks this has been corrected. Net result: The Cincinnati team comes pretty near being the one best bet in baseball today if anybody offers decent odds. While it is generally accepted as a solid proposition that Pittsburg and Chicago will fight it out, Cincinnati will be the dark horse.

The batting strength of the Cincinnati team, as Griffith has doped it out, is tremendous and is sure to be much better this season for several reasons.

Be it remembered also that both Lobert and Downey are great base runners naturally and that if they come back to their proper batting form this year they will also steal a heap of extra cushions.

Hoblitzel, on first, is a magnificent batsman, a mere boy, and likely to hit better as he gains muscle. Egan, on second, is a splendid hitter and one of the classiest base runners in the game. Lobert and Downey, as has been said, are almost certain to come back to form. These four men were new to one another last season and played the infield raggedly. All of them are natural fielders, and this year they will play infield ball of the machine pattern. Egan in particular will teach the ginger and speed and will mold them into a quartet of winners.

Mike Mitchell, in right, is a fine fielder, swell thrower and one of the best batsmen in the country. In center Griff has his choice among Paskert, Miller and McCabe. Paskert is a neat batsman and fast fielder. Miller is easily the master of the lot with the stick and the best base runner, but has had an almost useless throwing arm. If the wing gets well he will yet nail the regular job; if not, Paskert will take it at the start, as McCabe, though a fine hitter, is crude and also a slow runner for so young a man.

Another element of added power is found in left—Bob Bescher. This man, new to the big league, was the leading base runner of the circuit last season, though he hit lightly. Bescher is by rights a fine hitter and should return to form without fail.

It will be seen, therefore, that Griffith can count on all the batting and base running strength he had in 1909.

The catchers, McLean, Clark and a new man named Konnick, are all good. McLean is a corking catcher and swell hitter when in good condition. Konnick is touted as a sure comer, and Clark showed more than common quality last autumn.

Fromme, Spade, Gasper, Rowan, Beebe and Covaleski make up a pitching staff that is good enough to win with—and more than good enough with a team of sluggers back of them.

Give the Reds the least bit of luck, start them on a winning streak, and it will be almost impossible to choke them. Pin a deep tack right here: The Reds are going to be the heavy hitters of the league, and if Pittsburg or Chicago lets go the traces for even a little time that Red team is going to win the flag.

Steinfeldt In Great Shape.

Harry Steinfeldt, the Cubs' star third sacker, is faster than he was in 1909. Instead of going back he is displaying more ginger than ever. He attributes his fine condition to his workout at Marlin Springs. "Finest place in the world to train," he says.

Western Handicap Shoot.

The great western handicap shoot will be held in Des Moines, May 24 to 26.

A Poor Fit.

George Graham Vest once won a case for his client by a neat retort. To testify against Vest's client there was brought into court a certain witness whose ill favored countenance matched his unsavory reputation in the community. The man's testimony was most unfavorable to the defendant, and so, of course, Vest proceeded to discredit his story. As the witness was unkempt and poorly clad, his clothes hanging about him in innumerable folds and wrinkles, the counsel for the opposing side endeavored in their turn to make it appear that Vest was making capital of the poor appearance of the man. Mr. Vest, of course, denied this allegation in the course of his closing remarks, adding:

"Gentlemen of the jury, if that man's face fit him as well as his coat he would be a good looking man."

The jury returned a verdict for the defendant.

A SQUARE DEAL—QUINCY UNANIMOUSLY INVITES NEW COMERS. YELL IT—EVERYONE.

Vol. 24 No. 94 QUINCY, MASS., FRIDAY EVENING, APRIL 22, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

COMPLAINTS UNREASONABLE

No Houses Near the New Tuberculosis Camp

Some complaint has been made because the new tuberculosis camp is not to be connected with the public sewer and that a cesspool is to be used. The claim is made that houses are within thirty feet of this cesspool and that the matter would naturally percolate through the ground and would be a source of contagion.

The facts of the case are that there is no sewer in the street near the camp, and before it could be connected it would be necessary to lay the mains in the street. When the water mains were laid to the camp a sewer was laid in the same trench so that when the sewer was laid through the street it could readily be connected. In the meantime the camp will have to use a cesspool. This, however, will not be dangerous to public health, for instead of the cesspool being within thirty feet of houses on adjoining property it is over two hundred feet away.

The nearest building at the camp to adjoining houses is the cook house which is all of 200 feet away. The shacks to be occupied by patients are further back still and the cesspool is between the cook house and shacks. The Board of Health say that there is not the least danger from contagion and that the abutters are needlessly alarmed. It is only a question of time when the sewer is laid through the adjoining street and then the camp will be connected.

Some objection is made because both the sewer and water pipes are laid in the same trench, but this objection should also be thrown aside, for there is no posible way of the two coming in contact with each other so as to contaminate the water. The water pipes must necessarily be perfectly tight or there would be a leakage.

TALKING MACHINE

Gives a Concert at Universalist Vestry

The Murray club of the Universalist church were very successful in their May basket sale and concert held in the vestry of the church Thursday evening. The club is composed of the young firls of the Sunday school, and under the leadership of Mrs. Robert G. Reed have been doing good work.

Three long tables presided over by the young girls gowned in white displayed the May baskets of all kinds, colors and size, which found ready sale. Ice cream and home made candy were also on sale and were soon disposed of.

The concert was by a Victor talking machine, given through courtesy of M. Steinert & Son Co. of Boston. A wide range of selections were given, those from grand opera proving especially clear and pleasing. An hour's program was listened to with pleasure by an appreciative audience.

At the tables were:

May baskets—Miss Catherine Reed, Miss Bessie Grant, Miss Mildred Smith, Miss Annie Wright and Miss Elizabeth Reed.

Candy table—Miss Irene Howes and Miss Marion Wright.

Ice cream—Miss Harriet Lombard, Miss Edith Hyland, Miss Marie Higgins.

AT ATLANTIC BEACH.

The scene at the Atlantic Beach on the holiday was a very busy one. The perfect weather brought out everybody who owned or was interested in a boat, and all were busy sand-papering, painting and making the repairs necessary to tidy and ship shape a craft. An accident occured during the afternoon, when one of the workmen employed in the erection of a new house on the boulevard fell from the roof. Dr. Bruce was summoned, but reported that other than a broken arm the man suffered no serious injuries.

TWO FIRE ALARMS

But Both Were Unnecessary and Damage Slight

The alarm from Box 321 at 7.49 Thursday evening was for a slight fire in a double house on Liberty street owned by Michael Burns. A little girl had a can of oil near the kitchen stove when it took fire. The can was thrown out doors about the time the alarm was sounded. Fortunately the little girl escaped from being burned and there was no fire damage to the house. There was however considerable smoke.

At 3.40 this morning, while the rain was falling in torrents, an alarm was sounded from Box 136 located in the corner of Water street and Brook road. This was for a slight fire in a sawdust cuspidor in the six-tenement block of Louis Grossman. The fire had been smouldering all night and did not break out until a few minutes before the alarm sounded. The fire was quickly extenguished at a loss of not over $5.

ELOPERS IN QUINCY.

Le Grand Dutcher of Utica, N. Y., and Marion Wright of Syracuse ,the eloping couple who have been the talk of Boston for the past few days, and who were married Wednesday, were in Quincy Thursday. Were passengers from Boston on the electric car that arrived in City Square at 12.55 their destination is not known. The bride who is but 17 years of age had trouble in getting a marriage license. The groom is 22.

BETHEL BEACH.

The Brockton Enterprise reports that the semi-annual meeting of the Bethel Beach Land Association was held on the holiday at Quincy. The reports were encouraging, many new houses are to be built this season and stores and restaurants to be opened. The New England Swedish Baptist Sunday School Association will hold a two weeks' meeting, at which the principal speaker will be Dr. Arvid Gardh, principal of the Bethel Academy of Minneapolis, Minn.

GRANITE SHIPMENTS.

Returns from the two railroad terminals for the month of March show the total amount of rough and finished granite forwarded from Quincy that month to have been 17,303,356 pounds an increase of 6,389,412 pounds over the month of February. The West Quincy shipments were 10,606,425 pounds; from South Quincy, 6,696,931 pounds.

Y. M. C. A. COUNTY WORK.

The Norfolk county committee, in charge of Y. M. C. A. work in the smaller towns, together with the "volunteer workers," representing the associations in Wellesley, Needham, Medfield, Dover, Medway, Plainville, Foxboro, Sharon, Norwood, Randolph and South Weymouth, had an annual dinner and meeting at the Boston City club last evening. A committee of business men backing the association work in these towns elected the following officers: H. M. Plimpton of Norwood chairman, W. H. Rogers of Braintree vice chairman, J. Y. Noyes of Dedham clerk and H. B. Tucker of Mattapan treasurer.

OCEAN MAIL BILL.

The Boston Chamber of Commerce did not reach the "ocean mail bill" at the meeting on Thursday, so much time being given to the regulation of Boston drawbridges, and new harbor lines.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE

Senate Postpones Action on Bar and Bottle Bill

When the bar and bottle bill was reached in the Senate on Thursday, Senator Hultman of Quincy, in behalf of the friends of the bill spoke as follows:

"The action of the excise board of the city of Boston, which has been imitated in great measure by other cities and towns of the state, in granting licenses good until May 1911, has deferred the date at which this bill can take effect generally until that time, even should it be enacted and signed this very day. The supporters of the bill, desire that when it goes into effect it shall have a fair test, and do not desire that only a few small towns should be operating under it, while the majority of places are still under the double license system, as would be the case if the bill were enacted today, for this would seem relatively unfair as between the various communities involved.

"In order, therefore, to preserve equity between these communities and that the system promulgated by this bill may have a fair test when it does go into operation I move that further consideration be postponed until Monday, May 2, when all licenses for the year 1910 will have been granted."

Senator Doyle seconded the motion, and it prevailed on a voice vote.

The Senate by a tie vote of 18 to 18 defeated the 54-hour bill for women and children. Senator Turtle of Pittsfield refused to be recorded. Senator Hultman and President Treadway voted no.

The bill for a saner Fourth of July was again postponed to next Tuesday. The bill to put the burden of grade-crossing abolition on the railroads and the anti-injunction bill were also postponed. The bill to require the labelling of food products adulterated with cane sugar was postponed after the bill had once been declared rejected.

The senate killed the bill authorizing the state board of health to make suitable regulations concerning the production, transportation, delivering and sale of milk; also the bill to authorize the stocking of great ponds with good fish; referring both bills to the next legislature.

A new city charter for Lynn was reported with referendum attached.

In the House the initiative and referendum amendment to the constitution failed of adoption the vote being 112 to 102, with four pairs, not the two-thirds required for an amendment to the constitution. Both the Quincy men voted yes.

On roll-call the house refused, 62-119, to reconsider the enactment of the bar and bottle dill. This marks the final stage of the bill in the house and no more attempts can be made there to kill it.

VERY MUCH EXCITED

Over the Merits of Capital and Labor

The Wollaston Methodist club held its monthly meeting in the church vestries on Thursday evening. Following the secretary's report the sixth edition of the Wollaston Herald was read by the editor, S. N. Belcher.

A debate "Resolved that capital is a more valuable instrument of production than labor" was the evening's entertainment with H. A. Collett as judge.

For the affirmative Chester Cleveland mentioned the necessity of capital for all the great industries and as an aid to education and convenience.

Mr. Teed, for the negative, claimed that the greater number of inventions were but products of labor, and capital had but the second place in placing the articles before us. Capital is but a transient and uncertain possession while the market value of labor is at par or above.

In the case of strikes, said F. A. Sutermeister for the affirmative, the loss falls on labor, while capital merely rests.

S. N. Belcher closed the argument for the negative.

In summing up the question, the judge stated that as the question was such a close one it would be best to leave it undecided.

Refreshments served but the discussion continued informally and at last accounts the principals were still discussing the question.

Several attempts to appoint a nominating committee to select officers for the ensuing year were made by President Taylor, and were as frequently interrupted by some member of the club. Not until a sergeant-at arms was installed was the following committee appointed: E. H. Ewertz, F. G. Bennett and Rev. Wesley Wiggin.

In response to a letter from the new Civic League, the folowing were appointed to interest the members of the club; A. B. Cassidy, E. H. Ewertz and A. N. Murray.

A question box was a feature of the evening, and questions of the members were answered in a wise and witty manner by E. H. Ewertz.

Members of the Wollaston Congregational club were present and President C. J. Hogue spoke briefly. Remarks were also made by the pastor, Rev. Wesley Wiggin.

At its May meeting the club will observe ladies night when a spelling match will be one of the attractions.

TODAY'S COURT.

Harry T. Rodman was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Gustave Hystram of Boston was fined $10 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

SPECIAL MEETING

May Be Necessary to Act on Express Permits

Boston papers had considerable to say Thursday about the City of Quincy going dry, because the Committee on Licenses had neglected to act on permits to transport liquor. No one need worry much however. As a matter of fact it would have been useless to have passed any permits at the last meeting of the Council, for if it had been done the job would have to be done over again.

Under the law providing for common victuallers and other minor licenses, it is provided that licenses may be granted in April to take effect May 1. In the matter of liquor permits, however, there is no such provision and the City Solicitor has ruled that the Mayor can not sign them until May 1. If the permits had been passed last Monday it would have been necessary for the Mayor to approve, or disapprove them within ten days or they would become a law without his signature. As there were more than ten days intervening before May 1, it can readily be seen that the situation was a peculiar one.

A year ago the council met a few days before May 1, and passed the permits from which the Mayor withheld his signature until May 1. The same thing can readily be done this year if the Mayor calls a special meeting. The committee is ready to report.

GORDON SENTENCED.

In the Superior court at Dedham, on Thursday, Albert I. Gordon, 23, for breaking and entering the clothing store of Shirley F. Nutting at Quincy, March 7, and larceny, was sentenced to one year in the house of correction by Judge Hitchcock.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

It is from a city standpoint that the Daily Ledger considers the meter question, not from the point of the Metropolitan commission or even from that of the local water takers. The Daily Ledger claims that the general introduction of meters will materially reduce the gross water receipts and increase taxes. Some of the Councilmen who favor water meters expect that many who now pay but $6 per year for water may have to pay $10 or $15 or more, while those who are paying $16 may obtain all the water they want for $10 or $12. Hope they will not have the experience of some Boston water takers.

Many in Boston have come to a realization that meters are not a blessing as will be seen from a Transcript article this week reading as follows:

"A case without precedent in Boston in which a property owner calls upon the water department to shut off the water service in a dwelling house owing to excessive cost of that service has emphasized the seriousness of the situation which comes as a direct result of the installation of meters, according to law. The property owner in point is Eleanor Healy and the house is that of 7 Douglass avenue. Many other property owners have declared that they are unable to meet the increased cost of the water service and have threatened to go without the water.

The request of Eleanor Healy was so unusual that Commissioner Hannan immediately called upon Corporation Counsel Babson for advice. Mr. Babson ruled that the demand would have to be complied with as the city could not force any privilege of that kind on a citizen, but he found that the question would have to be considered by the Board of Health, as a house without water might present difficulties inimical to decent regulations of living.

"This case was communicated to Mayor Fitzgerald on Wednesday by Water Commissioner Hannan and the commissioner declared that complaints were coming in all the time. He advised all remonstrants to the meter system to study the conditions in their own houses thoroughly and guard against all leaks in pipes and other appliances of the service, saying that the trouble would be found there and not in the meters. The commissioner said that a leak as small as a pin hole would mean something like $15 a year added to the bill of the consumer. Two instances are cited by the commissioner as showing the difference in water charges. In one Charlestown house the bill for last year was $16.50, while for the first quarter this year with meter service the bill was $96. Over on Harrison avenue one property owner paid $57.60 for the first quarter this year and only $16.50 as the bill for last year."

It is just such cases as these that should be metered, for it is undoubtedly leakage that causes a greater consumption of water than actual usage, and nobody knows the situation at his own house until a meter is installed and he begins to make weekly, monthly or quarterly readings.

DRIFT OF OPINION

Dr. D. K. Parsons of Chicago was 90 years of age the other day. When asked how he reached such an advanced age and was so content and cheerful he replied that it was because early in life he had adopted, with a slight change, a German motto to which, in the doctor's vernacular, he translated to mean "Fret not thy gizzard." It is a great motto to follow if you can in this complicated world, and really, even with those of us who may fret a good deal, it is very evident that the fretting does no good, advances nothing and changes nothing that is working badly to make it work well. Sitting calmly back, viewing the proceedings in a peaceful way, making up your mind what to do, and having decided on a course of action "playing ball" and going right through with it and then letting the results take care of themselves—that is prety good busines and saves wear and tear of brains and nerves and heart and soul. Those who are able to avoid fretting live long as a rule, and live well, and look upon life's mysteries and sorrows and perplexities with a benign calm that enables them to get a lot of fun out of even the most nerve-racking situations. If you are of the kind that can do it, don't worry; and try to school yourself not to worry anyway.—Brockton Enterprise.

With the coming of longer, warmer days the boating season will speedily be in full swing all over the land,, on lake, river and along the coast. Coincidentally the daily papers, particularly the Monday issues, may be depended upon to resume the temporarily suspended first page arrays of stories of drowning accidents. Sailboats capsize, launches blow up, canoes overturn and folks who can't swim venture in too far and get over their depth. Not knowing how to swim is at the bottom of the tragedy nine times out of ten. Ordinarily sensible people will take chances on and in the water with a careless disregard for the consequences that is hard to understand.

Of 70 boys who were questioned the other day at the Brockton Y. M. C. A. only ten were able to swim. In a seaport town the percentage quite likely would be larger. There is practically no opportunity for a Brockton lad to make himself familiar with water outside the confines of a bath tub or in a gymnasium swimming tank, unless his summers take him to some shore resort, and so long as he sticks to his home city there will not be much occassion, as a matter of fact, for exercising his amphibious talents. But it is a wise precaution, just the same, for every boy and girl to master the trick of keeping afloat. Once learned it can never be forgotten and if the time ever chances to come in later life that peril of sea faces the man who learned in his youth to feel safe without something solid under his feet he will bless the day that he took his first swimming lessons and feel he never in his life did a wiser thing.—Brockton Enterprise.

The Board of Trade steps in and does a splendid piece of work for the town in securing the location of the Norris Piano Co. It is a good, solid concern that will add materially to the town's prosperity. The board pays $500 to move the concern to town and it is money well spent. This incident proves what a great thing it is to have a Board of Trade with money in the treasury ready to act decisively for the town's good. Without this organization and without the money on hand this opportunity would have been lost, for Norwood and other towns were bidding for their arriving.—Stoughton Sentinel.

MAY MAGAZINES.

Everybody's for May adds another to the list of really important articles on commercial subjects that have long been a feature of that honestly American magazine. Under the title "The Barred Gateway," John L. Mathews tells of the hapless incongruity between our liberal channel and harbor improvement policy, and our monopolized and obsolete dock systems. To spend countless millions for the betterment of ports, and then permit the railway-owned water fronts to forbid the landing of vessels seems too foolish to believe. But it is true. In the same number of Everybody's Judge Ben B. Lindsey concludes his inspiring story of the long fight against the System in Denver. With all its discouragements it is an optimistic story, and the victory that marks this instalment should be an inspiration to other men elsewhere. Seven stories ,including the third instalment of the striking serial "A Successful Wife," a naval story by Robert Dunn, a negro story by Elmore Elliott Peake ,an air-ship story, by Michael Williams, a "homey" story by B. Paul Neuman, a racing story by Elmer Blaney Harris, and a Pa Flickinger story by Bessie R. Hoover, make a generous gift of fiction. The various departments, "Straight Talk," "The Players," "A Row of Books," "Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree" and "With Everybody's Publishers" complete the number, which is lavishly illustrated and bound in a brilliant cover that for the first time does the lobster full justice.

The following is a list of leading articles in the May, Technical World: Alaska ,the Nation's Gold Mine by Governor Walter E. Clark; Wireless Telephone Wizarchy, Winston Farwell; How to Sleep Out Doors, Bailey Millard; Pneumonia to be Conquered, Chester Carton; Dwarf Trees as Decorations, Rene Bache; Those Arkansas Diamonds, Harry F. Kohr; Good-bye Trolley Car, Henry R. Jevons; Removing the Curse of Eve, F. G. Moorhead; Pure Milk at Last, C. F. Carter and The House-fly as a Crop Wrecker, Richard E. Benton.

MARK TWAIN'S INFINITE JEST

Some of the Many World Laughs Evoked by Tongue and Pen of America's Premier Humorist In Fifty Years of Fun.

He Explains Why He Is Greater Than Washington and Tells the Amazing Contents of the Practical Joker's Head.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

WHEN Mark Twain returned from a winter's health seeking sojourn in Bermuda, so ill that he had to be carried off the ship to his carriage and rolled in a wheel chair from carriage to train, the news of his serious condition carried sorrow to millions of hearts throughout the world—the hearts of those who for many years have laughed with but never at this "fellow of infinite jest."

"It's tough, isn't it?" was all he said to the newspaper men who awaited him at the pier. He referred to his illness, and verily it was tough to see him so enfeebled, not even able to smoke his favorite cigar. It is remembered that when he left for Bermuda shortly after the sudden death of his daughter Jean last Christmas eve he took a cigar from his pocket and remarked to a reporter:

"The only friend I have left."

There was more pathos in this remark than truth. Probably no man in the history of the world has had so many friends as Mark Twain. Millions who never saw him, never looked into his kindly countenance, never felt the warmth of his smile nor drank the melody of his voice have been his friends because his genial, jovial manner as evinced in his writing always made for friendship.

MARK TWAIN AT THE DOOR OF HIS BOYHOOD HOME, HANNIBAL, MO., IN JUNE, 1902.

Weeping at Adam's Grave.

As an all round funny man perhaps the world never knew his equal. Many of his quaint quips and turns have woven themselves into our common fund of imperishable material for mirth, such as his account of his visit to the grave of Adam, where he wept because his illustrious ancestor never lived to see him. Nobody else ever knew the location of Adam's grave, but Mark Twain not only found it—in his fertile imagination—but paid to the universal ancestor the filial tribute of tears.

Years ago, when a report was published to the effect that Mark Twain was dead, the person chiefly concerned issued a statement in denial. "The report of my death," he said, "has been greatly exaggerated." How many times since then, on similar occasions with relation to other persons, has somebody quoted Mark Twain's denial!

The Mark Twain definition of cauliflower—"cabbage with a college education"—is another old favorite, which reminds us of Mark Twain's indignation when the late Mrs. Astor, leader of "sassiety" in New York, remarked that a college education was a thing no gentleman could be without.

"Then Mrs. Astor as much as says I'm no gentleman," he said, "because I wasn't fortunate enough to have a rich father to send me to college. Well, I wonder if she thinks Andrew Carnegie isn't or Abraham Lincoln wasn't a gentleman."

On another occasion, when he was on a lecture tour, somebody asked him who in his opinion made the most responsive and sympathetic listeners. "College men," he replied after a moment's reflection—"college men and convicts."

Mark Twain's only scholastic education was acquired at the village school in Hannibal, Mo., the place where he grew up. Nevertheless he received in later life three doctoral degrees—one from Yale, one from the University of Missouri and one from Oxford, in England.

"Who would have supposed," he said, "that I needed so much doctoring?"

Hannibal seems to have been, like many other towns, a matter of fact place when the youth who had left there as Sam Clemens returned a few years later as Mark Twain and delivered a lecture in Brittingham hall, on the east side of the public square. It was in 1869, not long after his story of "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras" had started him on the path of fame. In Hannibal lived John Stavely, to whom a primrose by the river's brim was a yellow primrose, and nothing more. Stavely attended the lecture. Holliday's hill was about the biggest thing around Hannibal in the boyhood of the humorist. Old John Lennox, who drove a dray drawn by an ancient mule, had the loudest voice known to the townsfolk. When Mark Twain warmed up to his lecture he said, hoping to win applause from his old neighbors:

"In returning to Hannibal I do not feel that I am among strangers, for I played here as a boy. It seems to me as if I have known Hannibal from the remote beginning of things. Why, my dearly beloved fellow citizens, I can remember distinctly the time when Holliday's hill was no bigger than an ash pile and when old John Lennox couldn't speak above a whisper."

Two or three persons tittered, but for the rest it was silence. John Stavely's brow wrinkled in scorn. After the lecture he collected a crowd on a street corner and said:

"I've knowed this Sam Clemens ever sence he wuz a boy, and he alwuz wuz a liar, but he's a bigger liar than ever now. I was here in this very town before Sam Clemens ever seen it, and Holliday's hill then wuz as big as it is right now, and old John Lennox never seen the day when he could talk low enough to whisper."

Artemus Ward, who died shortly before Mark Twain began to get a reputation, had a similar trick of droll exaggeration on the platform, but the later humorist found the faculty of putting such things into writing in a manner that made them just as effective as the spoken word.

His Drawl Inherited.

Much has been said and written about the Mark Twain drawl. Captain Horace Bixby, who taught Sam Clemens the art of piloting a Mississippi river steamboat, once asked his pupil why he "puiled his words so."

"You'll have to ask my ma, cap'n," he replied. "She pulls 'em the same way."

Friends of the humorist are aware of his aversion to the telephone. One day at his home in Hartford he answered a telephone call. After many "hellos" he failed to get a response at the other end of the line. Finally he reversed the word. To his discomfiture an eminent clergyman, whose voice he recognized at once, disclosed his identity as the one who had called him up.

"Is that you, doctor?" asked the humorist innocently. "I didn't hear what you said. My butler has been at the phone, and he said he couldn't understand you."

Mr. Clemens always enjoyed a joke at the expense of one of his clergy friends. The Rev. Dr. Doane, later a bishop, was rector of an Episcopal church in Hartford. Clemens, after listening to one of his sermons, said to the preacher:

"I have enjoyed your sermon this morning, for I welcomed it as I would an old friend. I have a book in my library which contains every word of it."

"Impossible!" exclaimed the minister indignantly.

"It is true nevertheless."

"Then, sir, I shall trouble you to send me that book."

Next day Dr. Doane received, with Mark Twain's compliments, a dictionary.

As an Art Critic.

The late H. H. Rogers, a special friend of the humorist, was something of an art connoisseur. Once he showed Mr. Clemens at his home a beautiful marble bust—a young woman coiling her hair—and asked what he thought of it. The visitor glanced at it and said:

"It isn't true to nature."

"Why not?" asked the host.

"Because her mouth is not full of hairpins," said Mark Twain.

Here's another Twainism that sticks: "Honesty is the best policy. I know, for I have tried both."

As the original chronicler of this jest said, there are persons on earth who are grieved by such a remark, but—heaven rest their souls.

Though the early Hannibalite was emphatic as to the mendacity of Sam Clemens, we have the word of the illustrious accused himself in attestation of his truthfulness.

"I am a greater man than George Washington," he remarked once upon a time.

While his hearers were mentally observing that while he might be greater in some respects he should let others say it for him, Mark Twain continued:

"Yes; I'm greater than Washington. George could not tell a lie, while I could tell a lie—but I never do."

His Opinion of Practical Jokes.

It is highly gratifying to the upholders of humor as one of the refined arts to know that Mark Twain never has had any liking for the practical joke. His opinion of the practical joker the present writer once had the pleasure of hearing him express. One of the old stories in connection with his career is that about his pipe, nicknamed "the morgue." It was in Virginia City, Nev., when Clemens was a hardworking reporter on the Enterprise newspaper. His income in those days was not sufficient to permit him to purchase the long black cigars which in later years became almost a part of his personality. He smoked a pipe—an ancient one, too—that smelled dreadful, according to his coworkers. They had named it "the morgue" because of its odoriferous quality.

The other fellows in the Enterprise sanctum had dropped gentle hints and some hints not so gentle anent that pipe's absence being more desirable than its company, but Clemens continued to puff away at the old pipe every night when he sat down to write his copy. Finally the others fixed up a conspiracy. They pooled contributions and bought a pipe of highly showy appearance. When Clemens appeared the next night smoking "the morgue" the chairman of the committee thus addressed him:

"Uh—Mr. Clemens, your associates in this office, observing how much you love to smoke a pipe and holding you generally in high esteem, have contributed to a fund and purchased for you this fine new pipe, which, as you will see, is a much showier pipe than the one you now smoke. It occurred to us that you would appreciate, coming from your fellow workers, the gift of a new pipe. No pipe is too good for you, Sam, and we do not begrudge the money we have spent for this one. We only trust that you will smoke it from day to day and night to night and that beneath its curling smoke and enwrapped in its fragrant aroma you will continue to write for the Enterprise those valuable and interesting stories which have been gracing its columns ever since you became one of us. Now, old man, in behalf of your associates I take pleasure in presenting to you this costly—if we do say it ourselves—this costly and beautiful pipe, and long may it cheer you!"

Mr. Clemens was overcome with emotion. He arose, accepted the new pipe, went to the window and threw "the morgue" into the back yard of the office and in a broken voice thanked his fellow members of the staff for their kindness, which, he said, touched him deeply.

The other fellows were happy, having got rid of the evil smelling pipe, as they fondly believed. The next night Sam Clemens sauntered into the sanctum and sat down at his desk. In his mouth was "the morgue," resurrected, with great clouds of smoke issuing from it. He had discovered that his new pipe was a cheap affair, a thirty cent fraud, and he had gone down into the back yard and recovered his old one.

Several years ago I asked Mark Twain if this story was true. He did not make direct reply. He said slowly and with that deliberate drawl which helped to make him famous:

"A practical joker is a fool. He has no brains. His head is full of stewed oysters."

Query: Is the pipe story a true one?

Your Nerves

Your nerves must be fed with pure, rich blood, or there will be trouble. Poorly fed nerves are weak nerves; and weak nerves mean nervousness, neuralgia, headaches, debility. Weak nerves need good food, fresh air, and Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla.

Ask your doctor if alcoholic stimulants are not often very disastrous when given to nervous people. He will tell you why. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

WOMAN THE MODERN MARTYR

Corsets Worn That Discount Comfort, Heavy Hats and Tight Skirts—Blue Jewelry Is Smart This Season—When It's Not Becoming.

Dear Elsa—Have you a current event club in your town? Well, if you haven't, why don't you gather together the matrons and girls of the community, those who can rise above discussing the latest fashions or the domestic situation, both good topics in their place, and, say every two or three weeks, give them a little talk, a resume of the big happenings of the day—things doing in the political, economic, artistic and literary world? "We all read the papers and current magazines," you say. Yes, certainly you do. But how interesting it would be to come together and intelligently discuss the world's work!

I can picture the charming talks that might take place next summer on your delightfully roomy colonial porch. The girls could bring their sewing, and after the feast of reason abundantly supplied by their hostess, your clever self, there would be a flow of afternoon tea dainties, the sort you know so well how to make.

A current event talk I attended last week given under the auspices of the Daughters of 1812 has aroused my enthusiasm anew for this kind of get-information-quick entertainment. The clever speaker that morning—a woman, by the way—spoke very eloquently of the benefits of the proposed postal savings banks to people living in out of the way communities. The idea is to have Uncle Sam for the people's banker and to send small savings to him through the post, just as letters are sent. He would give a receipt for the money and 2 per cent interest. A spirit of thrift would be awakened in persons living far from towns and farther still from savings banks.

The bill has passed the senate, and let us hope the house will act upon it this session.

The Modern Martyr.

To drop the political outlook and dip into the forecast of spring and summer modes, the first thought after reviewing the styles designed for us this season is what true heroines are the women of today who wear clothes as they are ordained by the little tin goddess of fashion! These women go forth in tight, long corsets that discount comfort, enormous hats which won't allow them to lean back in a car or closed carriage and in high heels that are always catching in something or other, skirts which make it impossible for them to take a normal step, silly little wrist bags that must be clutched constantly or they will get lost, and heads weighed down with swirl turbans, extra braids and curls under their "Chantecler" or "airship" hats. And women wear all this toggery so smilingly that men think— But what does man think when he beholds a fashionably dressed woman? Perhaps he doesn't know that her clothes are uncomfortable, for he hasn't worn them, and no woman on earth would confess to him how she feels in them.

Yes; women of fashion or those who aspire to be such are braver than the martyrs of old, for the martyrs recanted sometimes. But what woman ever wavered in her smiles, no matter how her clothes were hurting her?

It seems to me if women accomplish great things in the future it will be because of their training in discomfort. But here is a comfortable corset hint worth noting. Instead of letting the strings dangle at the waist line to make a bump at the middle of the back, the lacers should be crossed, not tied, brought round to the front and fastened just within the top hook and the surplus ends tucked into the corset. This removes any strain around the waist line or hips and is a smoother and better tying than to draw lacers through the extra front hook. Fastened in this way, it is easy to draw in the hips and keep them so securely girded that the corset does not slip and slide on the figure.

The Soutane Frock.

And, while on dress hints intent, what do you think of this little soutane frock? It is one I have just had made and like extremely. The frock has the side fastening that is so fashionable this season and the girdle which appears on most dresses that are not provided with belts. Oh, yes; we've found our waist line this spring and are accentuating it with all kinds of pretty girdlings. You may be interested in knowing that the little costume is carried out in knitted silk, one of the new fabrics of the spring. And I wear with the dress my new set of lapis lazuli, including a stunning close dog collar of the blue stones. Never has blue jewelry been more in favor than at present, and lapis lazuli is considered very smart. It is being shown in charming cuff buttons and whole sets for the tailored shirt waist as well as in oriental looking necklaces and chains.

In wearing blue jewelry one's complexion must be taken into the reckoning. It is not safe to say that all blue eyed women can wear this popular color. Turquoises, for instance, bring depths of blue in certain azure eyes, while others turn green. Never go in for them extensively if they are to be worn close to the face without first testing them in every possible light. Lapis lazuli is distinctly for the brunette of blue-black hair and clear skin, though blonds also can wear it.

New Way of Serving Asparagus.

At a recent luncheon here in New York the asparagus was very daintily served. The vegetable came to the table in a bread boat. One of the long loaves of bread, with pointed ends, had been divested of its brown crust and scooped out to make room for the asparagus. It had been brushed with melted butter and placed in the oven to get a fine biscuit color. The asparagus from a can had been cut into short lengths and scalded. These were turned into the boat, and over them was poured a bechamel sauce made with a cupful of rich milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, a tablespoonful of flour, the yolks of three eggs and minced parsley and seasonings. The sauce was turned over the boat, and the dish was served very hot. My hostess sent me this recipe today, and I am passing along the good thing to you. Yours devotedly,

MABEL.

New York.

A Dainty Dessert.

One cupful of water, one cupful of flour, two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of almond extract and four eggs. Put the water and butter into a saucepan, bring to boiling point, then add the flour, salt and sugar, stir over the fire till the mixture leaves the sides of the pan, remove from the fire and add the almond extract and the eggs, beating each one in thoroughly. Set away in a cool place for one hour. Put on a baking tin in small rounds, brush over with beaten egg and bake in a hot oven for forty minutes. One-half this recipe will make a dozen small puffs. When cold split them open on one side and fill them with the following mixture: Boil together one cupful of sugar and one-third cupful of water until it forms a soft ball when tested in cold water. Pour this sirup slowly into the beaten white of one large egg; beat until cool. Add half a teaspoonful of almond extract, one well beaten egg, one cupful of chopped nuts, one-quarter cupful of sugar and one-quarter cupful of thick cream. Beat until thick and fill into the puffs. Sprinkle over with confectioners' sugar and serve in a silver cake basket decorated with roses.

An Artistic Easter Dessert.

Save the shells of your eggs for several days before Easter. This is done by making a hole about the size of a dime in the small end and pouring out the contents. Rinse in cold water and set the shells in the refrigerator.

Make a jelly of blancmange, coloring it with several harmless vegetable dyes. Divide the jelly into portions for different colorings.

Set the eggs, holes upward, in a pan of cornmeal or sawdust and fill the shells with the jelly. This should be done the day before the dessert is to be used.

Make a nest on a shallow glass dish of split lady fingers or strips of candied orange peel. Crack the shells from the eggs and arrange them artistically on the nest with a mound of whipped cream in the center.

A SMART HAT FOR SPRING WEAR.

THE tailored hat shown herewith is one of the smartest models shown this spring. Velvet and straw in combination are in great favor at the present moment, and there is every indication that we shall see much of the fad. The hat shown here, really a species of turban, has an under brim of leghorn, and the upper brim is covered with black velvet. The trimming is simple and consists of black velvet ribbon and a yellow pompon.

A MODISH VEIL.

The past season has been especially notable for the variety and picturesqueness of its face coverings, and the fad for distinctive veils still prevails. Figured net in an endless variety of designs, some of them, for instance, those of animals conspicuous to the verge of grotesqueness, is in almost universal use. The veil shown herewith has an elaborately ornate border and is regarded as the height of the present mode.

Decries Brickbat Suffragettes.

"One ounce of solid argument," says Miss Ethel Arnold, sister of Mrs. Humphry Ward, the British novelist, "is worth a ton of brickbats." She refers to the methods of the militant suffragettes who have been performing all sorts of cut-ups in England lately. Miss Arnold is lecturing in the United States. She declares that the breaking up of cabinet meetings, the attacking by women of memorial institutions and the other severe and sensational actions of the suffragettes have turned the men of England against the cause and have retarded its success indefinitely. "The suffragettes," she said recently in the course of a lecture under the auspices of the Limited Suffrage league, "are so much occupied with the sound of their own noise that they do not stop to listen to the comments of the country at large. Their much vaunted militancy has obsessed them, and they cannot realize that they are losing the fight. Violence will never win the women's movement, and so far its results have been disastrous." There was one dissenter in her audience, Miss Alice Paul of New Jersey, recently returned from England, where she served a prison term for militant suffragette tactics and refused to eat, being fed liquid food through the nostrils. Miss Arnold has no use whatever for that type of suffragist.

Helen the Most Popular Name.

Recently a curious investigator took the pains to look through the printed list of students in a young women's college to learn what given names are most popular nowadays. It was discovered that in the list of about 500 girls 102 were named Helen. Mary came next with ninety. Margaret was third, though considerably below Mary. Such names as Hope, Prudence and others usually deemed old fashioned were plentifully sprinkled through the list. Contrary to the expectation of the investigator, there were but few Geraldines, Edithas, Phyllises and other fancy names.

INSURGENTS STILL ACTIVE

Have Not Quit Fighting Cannon and Rules of House

A REVOLUTIONARY RESOLUTION

Fowler Asks For Appointment of Committee on Committees—Great Battle Will Come on May 2 and May Result In Deadlock Lasting Through a Summer—Uncle Joe May Be Deposed as Speaker During Melee

Washington, April 22.—Insurgency against Speaker Cannon and the rules of the house broke out afresh when Representative Fowler (N. J.), rising to a question of privilege, presented a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee on committees which shall have the power to appoint all standing and select committees. The resolution provided that it be the order of business on May 2, 1910.

Representative Payne (N. Y.) promptly made the point of order that the resolution was not privileged. Before the speaker could rule on the point Representative Hardwick (Ga.) made a point of no quorum. A call of the house was then ordered, during which there were hasty conferences between the insurgents and Democrats.

Conferences with the Democrats developed that they will vote solidly that the resolution is privileged. They will not vote for the passage of the resolution, however, as they do not approve of it in its present form. They will offer a substitute representing their ideas on the subject.

After a quorum of the house assembled and before Cannon had an opportunity to rule on the point of order made by Payne, Fowler announced that he withdrew the resolution from the house for consideration at this time and would put it in the basket to go through the ordinary routine. This anti-climax brought howls of derision on both sides of the house and Cannon with fine sarcasm remarked:

"Having consumed forty minutes of the time of the house at this stage of the session the gentleman from New Jersey now withdraws his resolution and puts it in the basket, as he has a right to do."

This action makes certain the information that the fight of the speaker's life and perhaps the greatest battle in the house of representatives will begin on May 2 and may result in a deadlock that will hold congress in session until late in the summer. During this melee the insurgents expect to depose Cannon.

MILK FAMINE THREATENED

Farmers Threaten to Cut Off Boston's Supply on First of May

Boston, April 22.—If the plans of the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' asociation do not miscarry, Boston will have a milkless May 1.

Reports show that the farmers all over New England are being organized, community by community, and as fast as they are organized, are agreeing to withdraw their milk from Boston market after April 30, when the winter price agreements with the group of contractors who control the milk of New England expire, in order to prevent the usual summer reduction and force a retention of the winter rates throughout the whole year.

The indications seem to be that the farmer is preparing to rise in his might as he has never risen before.

BRAKE ON WARSHIP

Stops Vessel In Half Its Own Length While Making Good Time

Philadelphia, April 22.—The battleship Indiana returned to the Philadelphia navy yard after a five-days' test at sea of a brake which is claimed will help in the quick stoppage of warships.

Captain Thomas, who came from Washington to observe the test, said that the brake worked successfully. With its use, he said, the Indiana could be stopped in half its own length when going at good speed.

The brake is attached to each side of a ship and is operated from the engine room.

Close Range Duels.

During the first fifty years of the old American navy, 1798-1848, the mortality of naval officers resulting from duels was two-thirds that resulting from naval wars. In the eighty-two duels listed by a recent writer thirty-six men were killed, all naval officers except three civilians. The per cent of mortality was 22, or five times the mortality of the federal army in the civil war. One-half of those not killed in these duels were wounded. The large number of casualties was undoubtedly due to the short distance between the combatants, which customarily was only ten paces, or thirty feet. In a few duels the distance was even less. In the Barron-Decatur duel it was twenty-four feet and only twelve in the Bainbridge-Cochrap duel.

ROOSEVELT IN PARIS

French Press Thinks His Tour In Europe Unparalleled In History

Paris, April 22.—No reigning sovereign ever received a more enthusiastic welcome to Paris than did Theodore Roosevelt.

He was greeted by the representatives of the president of the republic and the cabinet, American Ambassador Bacon, M. Jusserand and a great concourse of people, which the cordon of troops surrounding the railway station had difficulty in holding in check.

After luncheon at the American embassy, Roosevelt called upon President Fallieres and Foreign Minister Pinchon, who immediately afterward paid return visits to the embassy. Part of the afternoon was devoted to private engagements, and last evening Roosevelt was given an ovation at the Comedie Francaise.

The Temps fairly reflects the tone of the entire French press, declaring that Roosevelt's tour of Europe is unparalleled in history.

"No democratic chief of state," says the paper, "ever before enjoyed such popularity. We are accustomed to formal visits of kings and presidents, but Roosevelt is no longer president. It is the man, therefore, not the office, which is being honored. It is his vigor, his personality, his character, ideas and temperament, which appeals to European opinion."

CHURCH ABANDONS APOSTLES' CREED

More Simple Confession of Faith Is Adopted

New Haven, April 22.—A new confession of faith, which drops the Apostles' Creed and requires no formal expression as to the divinity of Christ, has been adopted by the deacons and will be presented for adoption by the Center Congregational church of this city.

The significance of this action is that the church has strictly held to Puritan orthodoxy for more than two and a half centuries, having been founded in 1638. New members will only have to pledge themselves to believe in a higher life and to moral purposes. The old confession of faith will be spread upon the records of the church as a historical relic.

As explained by the church officers, the purpose of the change is to make the confession of faith absolutely nontheological and to gather into membership these who have hitherto been debarred by slight theological scruples.

CAPTURED IN BULGARIA

Long Chase For Lynn Murder Suspect Is Ended at Last

Lynn, Mass., April 22.—The transcontinental chase for Vahan Nalbandian, charged with the murder of Minas K. Monjian, a fellow Armenian, whose body was found doubled up in a trunk in Nalbandian's abandoned lodgings in this city, last July, had "finis" written to it last night, when State Detective Wells and Inspector Burckes of the Lynn police placed Nalbandian in the Sutton street police station to await trial.

Nalbandian, after the murder, fled to Europe and was captured in a remote Bulgarian village through information given by a parish priest, who recognized the man from a description published in an Armenian paper.

After the county had once refused to incur the expense of sending officers to Europe to bring the suspect back Inspectors Wells and Burckes were dispatched to Bulgaria.

RECORD PRICE FOR A BULL

Animal Bought In Scotland For $3000 Brings $10,000 In Illinois

Aurora, Ills., April 22.—One short horn bull brought $10,000 in cold cash at the sale of Thomas Stanton's blooded herd of cattle at William George's Brookline Farm, near here. The bull, which is now 3 years old, was bought by George Sayer of Chicago.

The animal that brought the record-breaking price was bought in Scotland last year by Stanton for $3000. He is of the low-to-the-ground type, standing but thirteen hands. Every inch of the great animal is bone and sinew. His last time on the scales he tipped 2300 pounds. He is sired by Prince Gloster, his dam Imp. Helen, and his name is Prince Imperial.

Fifty-Four-Hour Bill Is Killed

Boston, April 22.—By casting the vote which resulted in a tie, 18 to 18, President Treadway of the senate killed the bill limiting to fifty-four hours a week the employment of women and minors in manufacturing establishments. The bill was one of the pet measures of organized labor.

HARVARD DEFEATS NAVAL ACADEMY

Three Lengths Ahead at Finish of Two-Mile Rowing Contest

Annapolis, April 22.—With Secretary Meyer looking on, the crew of the naval academy were humbled by the Harvard crew in the boat race. The Harvard eight had been favorites for the two-mile contest and won by three lengths in 11 minutes, 17 seconds. The midshipmen made the distance in 11 minutes, 26 seconds.

The time is not particularly good for the distance, but was in the teeth of both wind and tide and was not bad, considering the early season. The victors rowed with splendid power and reserve and after the first mile pulled steadily away from the navy boys.

The official weight of the oarsmen showed that the Harvard aggregation averaged just 3⅛ pounds heavier than the midshipmen, less than had been generally thought. Both crews were heavier than the average for a number of years.

RULES CAST TO THE WINDS

Chicago Association of Commerce Admits Jane Addams to Membership

Chicago, April 22.—A woman has for the first time been elected to membership in the Chicago Association of Commerce. The constitution and by-laws do not exactly provide for members from the fair sex, but the ways and means committee ignored such trifles and unanimously chose Miss Jane Addams of Hull House an honorary member, after she had delivered an address on the subject of social centers in schools.

President Stillwell of the association was somewhat perplexed over the situation and admitted that the proceeding may be irregular to some extent, but would not admit that the rules were more important than the membership of Miss Addams.

FLEET WILL BE ALWAYS READY

Battleships to Be Atlantic Coast's Constant Guard

MEYER ANNOUNCES NEW PLAN

"Home Ports" Organized, to Become Effective In July at Four Navy Yards, One For Each Squadron—Will Be One Battleship Usually Under Repair In Each Division, Leaving Four Always In Fighting Trim

Washington, April 22.—Following the annual docking of the American warships in May and June of this year, there will be a complete reorganization of the Atlantic fleet, which will give eventually, or by the beginning of 1911, twenty-nine battleships constantly off the eastern coast of the United States.

This is according to announcement just made by Secretary of the Navy Meyer. By this reorganization the destiny of the bigger ships is settled, barring accidents, up to 1912 and the reassignment of "home ports" for the various ships is most extensive.

Through the new arrangement the operations of the fleet will not be interrupted by the necessity for navy yard repairs, and the increasing strength and efficiency of the active fleet will be accomplished by keeping a larger number of battleships employed, with greatly increased opportunity for maneuvers and exercises.

The principal points of the reorganization are:

The Atlantic fleet will in July, 1911, comprise twenty-one battleships, four armored cruisers and auxiliaries.

The commander-in-chief will have five ships, four of which will always be ready for active serice, while the fifth will be at the division home port for necessary overhauling and repairs.

The fleet as a whole will visit the navy yards twice each year for docking only.

The ships of a division will visit its home yard in rotation, the order of rotation depending upon the relative condition of the ships. Thus each yard will usually have one battleship under repair, which will result in a practically uniform distribution of work throughout the year.

When the Atlantic fleet is dispersed in May and June to the home ports of the different vessels for repairs it will be the last occasion for that purpose. The only exception will be for perodic docking. In this way when the fleet is increased next year to twenty-one vessels, with one battleship at a time at the divisional home ports, the regulation of work on ships at navy yards will give a practically constant amount throughout the year.

Under the reassignment of home ports effective July 1 this year the home port of the first division, consisting of the Connecticut, the Delaware, the North Dakota and the Michigan, will be New York; the second division, the Louisiana, the South Carolina, the Kansas and the New Hampshire, Norfolk; the third division, the Georgia, the Nebraska, the Rhode Island and the Virginia, Boston, and the fourth division, the Minnesota, the Vermont, the Mississippi and the Idaho, Philadelphia.

INSURGENT NOT WANTED

Brayton Says Rhode Island's Senator Must Be of Aldrich Type

Providence, April 22.—"The logical candidate for United States senator to succeed Senator Aldrich is a Republican of the Aldrich type," said General Brayton, Rhode Island Republican national committeeman, in an interview.

"If Rhode Island should send an insurgent to Washington, the whole country would say that Aldrich retired because he had to. This is not the case, and his successor must be a man who will stand in the senate for the things which Aldrich has stood for."

WITH POSSE IN PURSUIT

Bay State Man Flees After Killing a Woman In New Jersey

Plainfield, N. J., Arpil 22.—Mrs. Frederick Clozely, a young married woman of North Plainfield, was shot and killed in the presence of her 4-year-old daughter by John Grant of Taunton, Mass., a boarder whose attentions she had spurned.

Grant fled in the direction of the Watchung mountains after the tragedy, and is being pursued by an armed posse. There is talk of lynching him if caught.

Man and Seventeen Horses Perish

Boston, April 22.—John Bowen, 7 years old, who shot and killed his playmate, Frank Gately, 4 years of age, while playing with a rifle, was discharged on the charge of murder by Judge Williams, who decided that the shooting was accidental.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

RAYMOND HITCHCOCK

TREMONT THEATRE.

Raymond Hitchcock and his merry band of comedians, comediennes, singers, dancers and show girls announce the last three weeks of their Boston engagement which closes on Saturday, May 7, at the Tremont. Boston theatre goers have found Hitchcock at his best in "The Man Who Owns Broadway" and they agree also that this musical play is quite the best thing yet credited to George M. Cohan. The rollicking piece gives Hitchcock and his able support abundant opportunity for "quips and cranks and wanton wiles, nods and becks and wreathed smiles" and all that sort of thing which goes to make folk leave the theatre thoroughly satisfied. It is not a serious show and Hitchcock never allows the pace to slacken. The chorus is trained to the minute and gowned to the moment. If you care for a regular West Point tornado of song and dance, music and patter, hasten to the Tremont during these last weeks. Cohan and Hitchcock are a happy combination.

BOSTON THEATRE.

"Three Twins," the musical adaptation of the time mellowed farce "Incog," returns to the Boston theatre Monday, the 25th instant. It has the backing of clever complications of the original plot ,a jolly imposter making up as an extra twin, and of the singing and dancing of a capable company. Heading the cast is Clifton Crawford, who keeps the fun in motion throughout the two acts of the beach at Sea View and at Doctor Hartman's sanitorium, and the monologue which is introduced hints at his lateral abilities as an actor outside the role of "Tom Stanhope." Brilliant Mayme Gehrue, of musical comedy fame, is the "Yama" girl. The music contributed by Karl Hoschna, is bright and tuneful, well suited to the hilarious mood of the piece. Arrangements have been made whereby the atches of the Boston theatre box office will have the opening performance of "Three Twins" on the 25th instant for their annual benefit. The trio of obliging young men who handle the great volume of tickets for the attraction at the Boston consists of William H. Lothrop, treasurer; Francis Ferguson ,ticket agent and John Kenefick, assistant ticket agent. Their uniform courtesy in dealing with the public has gained wide popularity and a host of friends for these young men and consequently there is every reason to anticipate that the testimonial will receive the heartiest endorsement from the theatre-going public of this section of the country.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The greatest of the legitimate stars to appear at Keith's is Mrs. Patrick Campbell ,the English emotional actress who comes to Keith's next week for an engagement that will probably mark the height of a remarkable season at this house. Never before in the history of vaudeville has there been so many big attractions offered as Mr. Keith has provided during the winter and now when the warm days are coming he is capping the climax with a world wide celebrity who has made one of the greatest hits of her career in a one-act play. It is is called "Expiation," and tells the story of a beautiful Russian woman whose husband has become associated with the Nihilists and is put to death. She, through her beauty, wins the confidence of a Russian officer and when the curtain rises she is seen in the house wheedling the truth out of the Russian. The entire play is thrilling from start to finish and affords Mrs. Campbell one of the best opportunities she has ever had to display her wonderful powers as an actress. She will be surrounded by an exceptionally strong bill, a comedy feature of which will be Bowers, Volters and Crooker, "The Three Rubes," Another is Warrer, Lyon and Myers, who will make their first appearance in Boston with their musical comedy sketch which has proved one of the hits of the season. Other features will be the Flying Banvards a big aerial acrobatic act; the three Vagrants, European street singers; Hilda Hawthorne ,the female ventriloquist; Brady and Mahoney in a comedy sketch; the Dalews in a roller skating specialty and others.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Everybody who saw "The Prisoner of Zenda" at the Castle Square this week will surely want to see "Rupert of Hentsau" next week. For it is a sequel to the famous play made from Anthony Hope's epoch-making romance, and it was written by Anthony Hope himself. It contains the characters that give diversity to "The Prisoner of Zenda" and its successive scenes continue its action with a variety of still more exciting and heart-appealing incidents. The events take place once more in the mythical European kingdom of Ruritania; Rudolf Rassendyll is as astute and as daring as ever, Queen Flavia as beautiful, Count Rupert and villainous and each and every one of the characters holds the attention of the audience continuously for four acts in one way or another. "Rupert of Hentzau" will be acted at the Castle Square by the John Craig Stock Company, and Mr. Craig will of course appear in the dual roles of Rudolf Rassendyll and King Rudolf the Fifth ,his success this week promising well for an equal triumph next. Mary Young will appear as Queen Flavia, giving distinction to that character by her personality. Mr. Hassell will be seen as Colonel Sapt, an old soldier, Bert Young as Fritz Von Tarlenheim and other important roles will be played by Mabel Colcord, Gertrude Binley, Donald Meek, Walter Walker, Al Roberts and Wilfred Young. The scenery will be especially fine, and the play will run only a single week.

BOSTON ARENA.

Boston skaters are immensely enthused over the new Boston Arena on St. Botolph street, which was so successfully opened last Saturday. Since then the afternoon and evening sessions have been crowded? During the week some of New England's foremost figure skaters have enjoyed the keen ice surface of 22,000 square feet. The great ice carnival for the benefit of the Sharon Sanatorium has been fixed for next Monday afternoon and evening, April 25, when all the original features will be on the programme. These will include exhibitions by Mr. Irving Brokaw, America's figure skating champion; two championship hockey matches, speed races, etc. Afternoon and evening will be replete with novel features. The speed skaters now have half an hour at the end of the afternoon sessions to prepare for the New England championships the last of the month The curlers have been having rare sport at the Arena. Two rinks have been laid out, the tees having been painted on the ice and frozen over. With music afternoon and evening the skaters and waltzers are enjoying to the full the delights of ice skating under perfect conditions.

"MARK TWAIN" CALLED HOME

Dean of American Humorists Dies of Broken Heart

LOSS OF HIS DEAR FRIENDS

They Weighed Heavily Upon Man to Whom Time Had Brought Full Measure of Honors, but Many Sorrows Which Were Borne With Silent Dignity—His Fame and Influence Will Remain as Legacy For Many Generations to Come

Redding, Conn., April 22.—Samuel Langhorne Clemens, "Mark Twain," died painlessly at his home here at 6:30 o'clock last night of angina pectoris. He lapsed into coma at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and never recovered consciousness. It was the end of a man worn out by grief and agony of body.

Wednesday was a bad day for the little knot of anxious watchers at the bedside. For hours the gray, aquiline features lay moulded in the inertia of death, while the pulse sank lower and lower, but late at night Twain passed from stupor into the first natural sleep he had known since he returned from Bermuda and yesterday morning he awoke refreshed, even faintly cheerful, and in full possession of all his faculties.

He recognized his daughter Clara, Mrs. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, spoke a word or two and feeling himself unequal to conversation, wrote out in pencil: "Give me my glasses." They were his last words.

Laying his glasses aside he sank first into reverie and later into final unconsciousness. There was no thought at the time, however, that the end was so near.

An Inveterate Smoker

Mark Twain was for more than fifty years an inveterate smoker, and the first conecture of the layman will be that he weakened his heart by overindulgence in tobacco, but Dr. Halsey said that he was unable to predict that the angina pectoris from which the humorist died was in any way a sequel of nicotine poisoning. Yet it is true that after his illness began the doctor cut down Mark Twain's daily allowance of twenty cigars and countless pipes to four cigars a day.

The last bit of literary work did was a chapter of his unfinished autobiography describing his daughter Jean's death. He sought diversion in Bermuda, where he was the guest of the American vice consul, William H. Allen, whose young daughter Helen acted as amanuensis for what few letters he cared to dictate.

His winter was gay but not happy. When he heard of the successive deaths of his two friends, William M. Laffan of The Sun and R. W. Gilder, editor of The Century, he said sadly: "How fortunate they are. No good fortune of that kind ever comes to me."

Life had no further allurements for him. Mr. Paine said last night that the book Mark Twain took up from the coverlet beside him when he asked for his glasses was Carlyle's "History of the French Revolution," his inseparable companion and greatest favorite.

The burial will be in the family plot at Elmira, N. Y., where lie already his wife, his two daughters, Susan and Jean, and his infant son, Langhorne. No date has yet been set, as the family is still undecided whether or not there shall be a public funeral first in New York city.

Through the lanes around Redding the Innocent at Home loved to wander in his white flannels for homely gossip with the neighbors. They remember him best as one who above all things loved a good listener, for Mark Twain was a mighty talker, stored with fairy tales for the little maids he adored, and ruder speech for masculine ears. It is a legend that he was vastly proud of his famous mop of white hair and is said to have spent the pains of a court lady in getting it to just the proper artistic disarray.

Last summer the walks began to falter; last fall they ceased for good. The death of H. H. Rogers, a close friend, was a severe blow. The death of his daughter, Jean, who was seized with an attack of epilepsy last fall while in her bath, was an added blow from which he never recovered. It was then that the stabbing pains in the heart began. Mark Twain died, as nearly as it can be said of any man, of a broken heart.

Loss to Fellow Countrymen

Samuel L. Clemens' countrymen have lost a guide, philosopher and friend; the world mourns a beloved sage. Wherever the printed page is turned his tales are read in a hundred tongues and in lands beyond the seas his writings cause tears to follow laughter and laughter to follow tears.

Like Victor Hugo, he sensed the life of all mankind; like Moliere, he was the foe of cant and sham; like Cervantes, he could invoke at will the muse of melancholy or summon the spirit of gay romance.

He was, more than all his contemporaries, the delineator of humanity. It was his sympathetic insight into the minds and lives of his fellow men that raised him to the highest rank in literature and caused his name to be inscribed on the tablets of enduring fame.

He revelled in the picturesque; he painted pictures of boy life which shall be vivid when the canvas limned by art has fallen into time worn shreds; he delighted by droll accounts of travel; he portrayed with striking vigor and truth new types and conditions for all the world to see. Humorist, essayist, novelist and poet, he was a universal genius whose loss will seem the greater with the lapse of years.

No Genealogical Tree

It may be that Samuel L. Clemens always was like the Vizier of the Two Horned Alexander of whom Frank R. Stockton so blithely told. Did he not weep at Adam's tomb? Did not he himself trace his forebears back to Noah, as he tells in his autobiography? Did not his ancestors while away their years in the sunny land of Spain?

The reasons for his not being more particular in tracing out his descent were, first, because he was indolent, and also that he had been so busy "polishing up this end of the line and making it showy," as he wrote, that the had no time for the diversions of genealogy.

He recalled vividly his first birthday on its seventieth anniversary, which was celebrated at Delmonico's in 1905, and told of the cradle not having been whitewashed and of being surrounded by persons green with jealousy.

"Feeling then and there that he was the only really moral person in all that community," he lifted up his voice and said so. This declaration of principles was made on Nov. 30, 1835, for this was the date on which he first saw the light in the little town of Florida, Mo.

A Tribute to His Wife

Between Mr. and Mrs. Clemens there was ever romantic sympathy, and she perhaps better than any one else understood the variant moods of his complex nature.

Her epitaph, which he wrote and caused to be placed on the simple marble headstone of her grave at Elmira, breathes the exquisite tenderness of his thought of her. It reads:

"Warm summer sun,
Shine kindly here!
Warm southern wind,
Blow softly here!
Green sod above,
Lie light, lie light!
Good night, dear heart!
Good night! good night!"

Mark Twain's permanent fame is a structure which is likely to rest upon the foundation of individual preference among his readers. There will always be those who will think there is no such human comedy as "The Innocents Abroad." Others will rest their admiration upon "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn," others upon "A Yankee in King Arthur's Court," "Roughing It" and "Pudd'nhead Wilson." Others will believe that the best thing he ever did is the biographical romance of "Joan of Arc."

The first of a series of Thursday evening amateur shows was held last evening at Quincy Music Hall before a large and enthusiastic audience. BEAUTIFYING NEW YORK

Notable Architecture by a Quincy Man

The Daily Ledger has received copies of New York papers which have illustrated articles highly complimentary to Charles P. Huntington, who formerly resided in this city on the estate now occupied by Henry M. Faxon on Whitwell street. Mr. Huntington is a graduate of the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris, and is architect of many familiar buildings in New York city, including the Hispanic Museum, the new home of the American Geographical Society, the new Spanish church of Our Lady of Guadaloupe, and the building of the Numismatic Society.

The Times says: "Although the buildings here grouped are devoted to such dissimilar purposes, the general effect of the group is harmonious. The general color scheme is carried out in light tones, ranging from the soft grayish white of the Geographical Society building to the darker color of the Hispanic Museum itself, which already begins to show the effect of exposure. The Church of Our Lady of Guadaloupe, also of Indiana limestone, is especially attractive. The dignity of the facade is maintained by imposing pillars of stone, while the general effect is lightened by the use of tiled brick introducing lighter shades. The future buildings which will complete the symmetry of the group will be of the same materials and of a harmonious architectural design.

"The buildings are all in the Italian Renaissance style, and have been inspired by classic models, adapted to the demands of the climate. A very successful treatment of the pillars in all the facades lends an air of stateliness and dignity in harmony with their purpose. In the case of the Hispanic Museum the interior is wholly Spanish in treatment, both as regards its design and color scheme."

Mr. Huntington was also one of the two successful competitors among 63 for the Fulton Memorial water gate between 114th and 116th streets, which may cost $2,500,000.

His plan provides for a large basin at the waterfront, with piers extending from the extreme north and south property lines of the gateway into the river. At the end of each pier is a large beacon, to mark the entrance, and at the sides are landing platforms reached by steps, gangplanks and floats.

A landing plaza extends the entire width from the bulkhead line to a wall at the railroad tracks, and it is bounded at the north and south by colonnades abutting into arched pavilions at their westerly limit. The plaza is accessible from the water by large floats and steps.

A wide central flight of steps above the plaza reaches a bridge over the railroad tracks, which, with its westerly extensions, forms a U shaped amphitheatre. This amphitheatre has been planned for the accommodation of crowds or grandstands for the witnessing of such water fetes as the recent Hudson-Fulton celebration.

Leading to the upper main plaza are monumental steps each side of the crypt, which reach a level with Riverside Drive. Here between two buildings is an entrance court 200 by 150 feet. The north building is intended for a naval museum, in which may be placed relics or portrayals of navigation before and after the invention of the steamboat and pictures of celebrated navigators and inventors. The south building is designed for the reception of distinguished guests and, like the north building, consists in plan of a domed vestibule with stairways to a basement of several rooms. On the main floor of the vestibule in each building is a long exhibition hall with galleries and rooms at the sides.

Around the buildings are wide terraces with a projecting terrace to the west surrounding the monument. The upper plaza is bounded by balustrades, decorative statues and vases.

HOUGHS NECK WANTS.

The Houghs Neck associates have several matters up their sleeve which they will present to the City Council. One of these is for a public playgrounds. The city already owns a piece of land off Sea street deeded to the city sometime ago for public use, but nothing has ever been done by the city toward equipping the ground. Now the land company have offered to give the city a strip of land along the shore front which the Associates will ask the Council to accept and then build a bulkhead along the water's edge so that the tide will not wash it away. The tides have already washed away considerable of the embankment along the shore front and unless something is done in the way of a bulkhead soon the banks will be washed away up to the house lots. Then the Associates want a new street built toward Quincy.

The Best Kiteflier In Town.

Some years ago there died in Nebraska a man named Walsh, who, as a boy, started a suspension bridge. When Walsh was about ten years old the first steps for the construction of the suspension bridge at Niagara were taken. The first thing necessary was the stretching of a single wire across the chasm. The engineer in charge had thought of a way to get it across. "What boy is the best kiteflier in town?" he asked.

The Walsh boy was named as the best kiteflier in the town of Niagara Falls, and the engineer accordingly asked that he be brought to him. He was made to understand that he must fly his kite across the Niagara river. He flew it across and allowed it to come down on the other side. Men were there to seize it. Then the engineer attached a wire to the string on his side, and the men on the other side detached the kite and by means of the string drew the wire across. By this, in turn, a cable was drawn across, and the bridge was well begun.—Harper's Weekly.

Antiquated Customs.

There is no court in Europe more tenacious of its etiquette—which was inaugurated several hundreds of years ago—than that of Spain. It is said that King Ferdinand VII. once made a minister resign because he had accidentally touched his hand. One of the quaintest ceremonies is the closing of the royal palace gates at Madrid every night. Electric light has been in use in the palace for quite a long while, but nevertheless every evening at 11 o'clock the officiating gentleman in waiting appears, accompanied by several servants, who carry ancient lanterns, to demand a huge key from a higher official to lock the doors of the palace. This is all the more amusing as the huge key does not fit the modern keyholes. The key is then returned to a third official, and every night gentlemen in waiting have to patrol the corridors of the palace, though sufficient guards are about, to watch over the slumbers of their royal master.

MACK SAYS BASEBALL HAS NOT CHANGED.

Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, knows as much about baseball as any man living and has a speaking acquaintance with every player of note, and he thinks the game has not revolutionized in recent years in any manner except in point of attendance.

"The evolution of the game in the last twenty years is more remarkable in point of patronage than in the way it is played," says Mack.

"There were marvelous players in the old days, and there are marvelous players now. It was a guessing contest between the pitcher and batter in the days of Radbourne and Anson. It is no less a guessing contest in these days of Mullin and Lajoie. It was a battle between the catcher and base runner in the days of Ewing and of Hamilton. It is still a battle in the days of Sullivan and Ty Cobb. The fan who believes there are no Clarksons or Kellys or Stoveys or Fergusons or Fogartys today is just as firmly set in his belief as is the fan who considers Lajoie, Mathewson, Joss, Kling, Cobb and Crawford greater players than were in the game back in the eighties."

PULLED OFF QUEER PLAY.

Ty Cobb Figured In Funny Stunt Against Doves Recently.

Playing with the Augusta (Ga.) team against the Boston Nationals recently, Ty Cobb figured in one of the most remarkable plays recorded in the annals of baseball.

Moran of Boston drove a long, low fly between center and left field. Coles of Augusta started for it, and Ty Cobb started also. The ball hit on Cobb's outstretched finger tips and bounded into the air.

Cobb stumbled and nearly fell, but Coles drove forward and knocked the ball into the air with his gloved hand as it fell again, and Cobb, making another reach for the ball, failed to clutch it securely. Coles again came to the rescue with a dive toward the ground, and he, too, failed to hold the ball a second time.

Cobb threw himself at full length as the ball flopped toward the earth again, and this time caught and held it with his bare hand three inches from the ground. The entire performance occupied nearly a full minute.

KONEY IN GRAND FORM.

Early Season Playing Indicates First Sacker Will Have Banner Year.

The ease and rapidity with which Ed Konetchy has rounded to form this season would indicate that the St. Louis Cardinals' big first baseman is to have another successful season.

He didn't slam the ball during the spring practice games as he did a year ago, when the fence boards suffered considerably from his bat blows. However, since home was reached he has begun to pick up in his hitting. In the field he is a marvel. Last season Koney was included in the first ten ball players doing everything. At fielding around first he has few if any equals and probably no superiors. Then his slugging was one of the redeeming features of the Cardinals' work a year ago. For a big fellow he is exceptionally fast, and his work on the bases also ranks with the best in that specialty.

Only twenty-four years old, Koney has a great future before him.

CHANGES IN LEAGUE

But Gridley Bryant Boys Are Still at the Top

The games in the Grammar school base ball league this week resulted in two victories for the John Hancock boys, and one each for Gridley Bryant, Willard and Quincy. The following lost one game each: Cranch, Lincoln, Coddington, Adams and Washington.

The Gridley Bryant has a good clinch on first place with three straight victories and no defeats. Cranch and Lincoln have both dropped 50 per cent in a week. The best rally was made by John Hancock, but the Willards are tied with them.

The standing of the teams in the league is given below. The future stars of the National game are growing more enthusiastic daily and the success is due to the hard work of Dr. J. G. Smith, the popular athletic instructor.

LESSONS FROM BASE BALL.

That baseball is the American spring tonic and that it teaches man that victory may often be snatched from defeat was the assertion made Sunday evening at the Warren Avenue Baptist church, Boston, by the pastor, Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, who also declared that he holds an annual pass to the big league grounds in that city. He goes to the games, too, he said ,and found more enjoyment in that form of sport than any other he has ever patronized.

"Athletics are good for all colleges," said the preacher, "because they require a man to train ,and a man who is training can neither drink nor indulge in other vices. The games may be rough, but all men are more or less rough. I go to the games, and I believe in football, even though they may sometimes be rough because they supply elements that make good character in a man.

"They teach a man that victory may often be snatched from defeat and a man who is familiar with games learns that even though the game is against you in almost every undertaking in life, if you persevere you will win out. Every minister and deacon of a church should go to at least one ball game a week."

Mr. Johnson said he was not preaching on baseball in order to draw the fans to his church, but he hoped they would come and find him as ardent a supporter of the game as any man of the cloth.

—Memorial day is only a few weeks off. The usual editorials will appear in papers stating that the day should be sacredly observed, given over to the memory of those who fought in our civil war. The News feels that the day should be as sacred as the Sabbath. Secular celebration should give way to a proper observance of what the day was meant for, a memorial to deceased soldiers. Citizens in common should join with those who are left of that great army and do honor to the dead. It should be a duty for all. It should be the only thought on the only day that the north is united in celebrating the memories of the dead.—Mansfield News.

HUNT'S COMPANION REVIEWS FATAL DAY

Tells of Visiting Saloon in Boston and Drinking Considerable

Conductor Eagan on Trial for Manslaughter

The case of Conductor Robert J. Eagan charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Rosco S. Hunt at Quincy, April 9, was heard before Judge Avery in the district court this morning.

The government was represented by Mr. Katzman of the district attorney's office. Damon E. Hall and Charles N. Davenport represented the defendant. Twenty-one witnesses were sworn for the government.

Officer Holloran testified that he first saw Hunt in the cell at 8 o'clock, lying on his back, seemingly all right and sleeping. At 9 o'clock he saw him and he looked funny. Lifted his arm and he did not seem to have much life. Called in Sergt. Barry and went into cell and lifted him up and saw that he was dying. He died a few minutes later. Then called Dr. Jones and Dr. Hallowell. It was about 9.05 when he died.

Sergt. David J. Barry first saw Hunt about 7 o'clock. Was then in the cell. Again at 9 o'clock saw him with Officer Holloran, and then called the doctors.

Cross-examined, Sergt. Barry said he examined the dress suit case of Hunt. There was a half pint whiskey bottle with about one drink left. Also one full half pint of whiskey.

Dr. F. E. Jones, medical examiner, testified to being called to police station April 9, by telephone. Got there at 9.08. Went to cell room. Saw man lying on his back in cell number one. Made superficial examination of Hunt. Found small laceration of scalp on back of the skull and a bump over it; also slight abrasion of left ear. This looked as though it had been caused by a glancing blow. There was also a little blood on the right ear, for which he could not account. Nothing at that time showed what the man had died of. Found his effects in desk room. Performed autopsy at 10 o'clock at Hall's undertaking rooms. The skull was opened and a fracture of the base of the skull found. Dr. Jones described in detail the wound on the back of Hunt's head. The cause of death was due to internal hemorrhage due to a wound on the back of the head causing a fracture of the skull due to a blow.

FORE RIVER CONTRACT

An Improved Spray of Greater Speed

The steam trawler Spray built by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy has proved such a success that the company has this week received the contract for a similar steamer and the contract to construct the vessel has been awarded the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, the vessel to be delivered ready for service in about six months.

When the Spray, modelled after trawlers much in vogue at Grimsby, Eng., was launched in 1906 at Quincy, T wharf was not altogether satisfied that the innovation would prove a pecuniary success. The Bay State Fishing Company, sponsors for the Spray, asserted that the venture was in the nature of an experiment, and the company, which is now building the second trawler, declares the Spray is making good, and the type is destined to be a money-winner.

For a year or more the Spray, under charge of Capt. Michael Green, has proved remunerative, the report to shareholders showing that she has earned money. Before Capt. Green was placed in command the vessel was not wholly a source of revenue. Recently, however, Capt. Green has brought in heavy fares. On April 19, for example, he landed 130,000 pounds o f fish at T wharf, the catch having been made in five days.

The new vessel will be 117 feet on the waterline, or about 10 feet shorter than her predecessor. She will have a triple-expansion engine of 450 indicated horsepower and a Scotch boiler, the power plant being identical with that of the Spray. The vessel will differ somewhat in model from the Spray, suggestions made by Capt. Green and others who have watched the performance of that vessel at sea being incorporated in the design. No changes in gear or method of operating the trawl will be made, so that machinery and nets may be interchangeable.

More speed is looked for in the new steamer than in the original craft. She will cost in the vicinity of $60,000 when ready for sea, and command of her will be given Capt. Green of the Spray. The crew, as in the case of the Spray, will number 19 all told.

PROBATE COURT.

At Probate court this week the will of Rev. A. A. Ellsworth late of Quincy was allowed, Angelina C. C. Ellsworth being named as executor. Administration on the estate of Araline J. Hall was granted to Chas. A. Hall, bond $500; on estate of Mary A. Keenan to Elizabeth M. Keenan, bond $2,000; and on estate of Louise Johnson to Annette Johnson, bond $800.

TODAY'S COURT.

Russell D. Moulton was fined $15, George Valleby $15, Geoffrey G. Whitney $15, and Frederick B. Kolb $10 for exceeding the automobile speed limit on the Blue Hills parkway.

Patrick Finnerly of Milton and Daniel J. Doran of Quincy were arraigned for drunkenness. Cases continued until July 1.

Gust Kanippili was fined $5, $10 and $15 on three complaints for drunkenness at Quincy.

John Wolkinsen was fined $25 for creating a disturbance on the steam cars at Quincy.

William G. Walsh was arraigned for taking clams from forbidden flats at Quincy, and was fined $10.

PARENTS INTERESTED

In the Betterment of Massachusetts Field School

Several new suggestions were offered at parent's day of the Massachusetts Fields school on Thursday by Supt. Barbour and Principal Goodspeed. About 75 mothers accepted the invitation t oattend the meeting, and these ladies appointed the following committee to consider plans for a parents and teachers association. Mrs. Larkin, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Hingston, and Mrs. Reynolds.

Supt. Barbour spoke of the advantages of a parents' association, and the new demands of education. He noted the waste in non promotions and the number of pupils retained in the first-year work at the High school. He said he was considering a plan to have sixteen grades rather than eight, that promotions might be made every six months instead of yearly; bright pupils would then have an opportunity to jump a grade, when now it is almost impossible. Pupils out by sickness would be required to lose only half a year instead of a year. He advised mothers not to send children to school too young.

Mr. Goodspeed congratulated mothers on the ideal surroundings of the school, with so much land. The pupils had plenty of opportunity to move around. He urged mothers, however, to consider the purchase of a permanent playground, and that they give more attention to various notification cards, relative to adenoids, enlarged tonsils, contagious diseases, ear and eye tests, monthly reports, etc. They should know why a boy does not receive a good mark in effort and deportment. He advised mothers to visit school often, and that all work together for the betterment of the school.

Boys and girls of the seventh and eighth grades held a sale of ice cream cake and candy, clearing $26.72, which will be devoted to athletics. The boys of the base ball team are to have blue jerseys with a white monogram.

ANNUAL PARTY SUNDAY SCHOOL

Festival and Supper followed By a Dance

The annual social party of the Sunday School of the First church was held Friday afternoon and evening, and aside from being largely attended was a very enjoyable affair.

The younger children of the school met in the chapel at 4 o'clock and from then until 6 o'clock played games of various kinds. Then they marched to the dining room, where a supper was served. After supper they adjourned to Colonial hall where from 7 to 8 o'clock they enjoyed dancing, Miss Minnie Hardwick presiding at the piano. Miss Elsie Turner and Miss Georgiana Waldron matronized the party. Many of the parents watched the scene from the platform.

From 8 to 10 o'clock the older pupils of the school also enjoyed a social dance. It was a most enjoyable affair in every way.

EIGHT-HOUR CLAUSE FAVORED.

The Central Labor Union of Quincy has adopted resolutions denouncing President Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company for urging his men to sign letters addressed to Senators Lodge and Crane remonstrating against the 8-hour clause in the Naval appropriation bill now before Congress. HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

A wag said the other day he did not see why the women minded the call of the census takers or the giving of their ages as many of them would be warranted in taking off a few years for depreciation.

The City Council of 1910 is inefficient if it is judged by what it fails to accomplish. Here it is almost the first of May and the City Council has not decided what streets shall be sprinkled this season, and no more regular meetings will be held until May. All the licenses granted by the city, both to expressmen for liquor permits, to common victuallers to innholders and to others, all expire May 1, but no report has been made by the committee to whom the petitions were referred. It is certainly time to get right down to business for the good of the city.

Those who have argued that the price of gas should be the same in Quincy as in Milton and Boston because the supply comes from the same source, will hardly know how to meet the water rate. All these municipalties have water from the same source, but Boston sells it by meter for 14 cents per 100 cubic feet while Milton charges 33 1-3. Those who claim that water meters will be more equitable for Quincy, have not perhaps considered the great variation in rates by meters. They do not realize that Quincy sells at different rates,—one consumer getting water as low as 8 cents per 1000 gallons, other manufacturers paying a little more, while houses are charged 23 cents per 100 cubic feet or 30 2-3 cents per 1000 gallons.

Boston's rate is equivalent to 18 2-3 cents per 1000 gallons, that of Malden and Somerville to 21 1-3, that of Arlington to 20, that of Nahant to 33 1-3, and that of Milton to 44 4-9 cents per 1000 gallons.

It was in 1908 that the Quincy rate was changed by the Mayor from 30 cents per 1000 galons, to 23 per 100 cubic feet, but if a fully plumbed house uses only $10 or $12 worth of water it must pay $16 per year, as that is the minimum rate. Aside from this minimum, why should houses of Quincy be required to pay nine cents more than Boston per 100 cubic feet? And seven cents more than Malden or Somerville? Fortunately Quincy is not getting soaked for water the same as Milton, with a rate of 33 1-3 cents per 100 cubic feet.

Rev. J. Adams Puffer of Needham, for many years connected with reform school work in Boston, recently gave a lecture upon, "Social Justice from the Standpoint of the Criminal" which was full of interest and showed a good understanding of boys. He said: "Three boys out of every four belong to a gang of some kind. One man out of ten belongs to a church. One man out of five belongs to a lodge or some benevolent organization, but three boys out of every four belong to a gang.

"Now I want to tell you of a boy who belonged to two gangs. He came to the reformatory after belonging to the second gang. If he had stayed with the first gang he would never have come there. The first was a tennis club. The second was a gang whose purpose was to steal. It stole apples fruit, chickens and anything possible. Stealing, laziness and aversion to work were characteristics.

"Boys are prodigious bundles of energy. One of their instincts is the instinct of play. When a boy is not allowed to play in the city streets and the policeman interferes and tell him to 'move on,' there is a tendency to mischief-making that means trouble for the policeman and the boy is receiving the worst possible education because people and circumstances are checking or trying to check the normal play instinct.

"Then there is the migratory instinct. I know of a boy who ran away five times. That boy wanted to learn and he learned more geography in his runaway trips than I did hiding behind the dog-eared leaves of my big geography. Nowadays sane education takes this instinct to account. Teachers take their classes for long walks into the country. The athletic instructor takes his boys for a cross country run.

"The third instinct is more serious. It is that of stealing. I never saw a bad boy come out of a good home—and that is a home where the two parents cooperate to set a standard of obedience and purity and honesty and industry."

HOW BOSTON USES WATER.

If there are many cases in Quincy like that discovered in Boston this week there should be no hesitancy in installing water meters, but the landlord should charge up water rates in addition to rent. A Boston paper says:

Complaints reached the inspector from a landlord that there was apparently a very large amount of water being used in a certain apartment house. The inspector went into the house and happened to find the housekeeper letting the water run freely on a case of beer. The inspector objected to this as a waste and the woman answered that she could not afford to purchase ice to keep the beer cool so was compelled to let the water run on it. In this case the water had been running on the beer for hours.

Water Commissioner Hannan states that his inspectors have found that bad plumbing and absolute ignorance of the value of water on the part of the average housekeeper are mostly responsible for the high water bills that property owners are compelled to pay since the installation of water meters.

Mr. Hannan says that the people of Boston have been so long accustomed to paying practically no attention to the amount of water used that they do not yet realize that every drop counts when a meter is put in.

NATURIZED RUBBER.

Many Citizens of Braintree accepted the invitation of Mr. J. H. Stedman to visit the Monatiquot Rubber works, South Braintree.

The house-warming at the mill of the Monatiquot Rubber Works Company in South Braintree on Patriots' day attracted a large number of visitors. The rubber reclaiming business has developed tremendously of late years and is now of first importance in the industrial world.

The Monatiquot Company purchased the old Hollingsworth & Whitney property some months ago and has expended much money and effort in transforming the plant into a rubber reclaiming mill, the capacity of which is 10,000 pounds a day.

Plans are already under way to extend the mill and every success awaits the new undertaking. Mr. James H. Stedman of Cedar street is the treasurer of the concern. He is in the scrap rubber business in Boston and familiar with every detail of the rubber business.

On Tuesday the office was decorated with cut carnations and everything was in apple-pie order for the inspection by guests.

Visitors were welcomed by the President, Robert C. Harlow and the Treasurer, James H. Stedman. The first point of interest was the engine room where the possibilities of the plant began with the engine which is of the tandem compound, high-pressure condensing type ,and rated at 400 horse power ,although capable of producing 600 horse power, manufactured by the McIntosh & Seymour Company of Auburn, N. Y., whose standing in the engine world is of the highest order. John E. Coughlin, for many years engineer at Williams & Kneeland, had the engine in charge.

From the engine room ,the visitors passed through a passageway to the cracker room. Here they say bunches of solid carriage tires reduced to small pieces by passing through the great steel rolls. The cracker weighs some six tons and requires 50 to 60 horse power to operate. Whole automoble tires yield to the rolls without any apparent effort.

The next machine of interest proved to be the fine grinder on which the rubber was reduced to powder hardly coarser than flour, having been shaken through a screen having forty openings to the square inch.

This powder is then taken and placed in pans which are put on trucks and rolled in to the devulcanizer, a long boiler-like affair, some twenty-two feet in length and six feet in diameter ,the door of which is then closed and huge bolts fastening same to the devulcanizer body; steam is then turned into the devulcanizer until a pressure of 100 pounds or more to the square inch is obtained. In this hot "Turkish Bath" the material remains for many hours and from it the stock emerges chemically shanged.

The vacuum dryer was the next point of interest, consisting of a great iron chamber with steam shelves on each of which are placed pans of the wet rubber; doors of the chamber are then closed and both heat to dry, and vacuum to extract the moisture, are applied. The wonderful efficiency of this machine can be better judged when it is realized that the rubber upon entrance into the vacuum dryer contains 40 percent to 50 percent of water and that in an hour's time this entirely disappears.

From the dryer the material is then taken to the finishing mills, where it is rolled and rolled and finally emerges in sheets of about one-quarter inch in thickness and two feet in width by four feet in length.

For certain kinds of work ,the rubber is still further refined by running through the tubing machine refiner, a machine like a very large meat chopper, during which process the plastic rubber passes through a screen having fifty openings to the square inch, which effectually strains the stock, keeping out all dirt, metal and foreign substances.

Stock when finally finished is packed in barrels which are carefully lined with wax paper ,that no wood may stick to the rubber, and is then shipped away. The whole process was one novel to most people and instructive in many ways. After inspecting the mill, visitors were entertained with refreshments and cigars at the house, which has been fitted into offices.

The officers of the company are:

Robert C. Harlow, of Plymouth, president.

J. Francis Merrill, of Quincy, vice president.

James H. Stedman, of Braintree, treasurer.

William F. Stark ,of Braintree, secretary.

Merton A. Turner, of Quincy, sales manager.

Frank E. Perkins, of South Braintree, superintendent.

—The mayor of New York has discovered private telephones in the houses of public officials. He has found that they are useless to the public, but that they cost the taxpayer $14,000 annually. In the list of these petty grafters on the public are judges, district attorneys and executive officers of all classes. It is small graft, but it counts up. Small graft appears in legislation where the members help themselves to postage stamps and stationery and in executive offices where officials accept minor favors that would not come to them as private citizens. A good place to begin with the suppression of large graft in with small graft. A self-denying ordinance passed by each elected officer in municipalities would work wonders.

CANNON HAS TO GO AND HE KNOWS IT

Remark Which Is Believed to Hit Nail on the Head

Washington, April 23.—The Republican regulars are reported to be convinced that Speaker Cannon is doomed. The withdrawal of the resolution introduced by Representative Fowler was a part of the insurgent program, the resolution being merely a notification that the war is on. The general view is that Representative Kitchin hit the nail on the head when he said: "Uncle Joe has got to go and he knows it."

Since the speaker's latest defiance of the insurgents, the latter have been figuring on a regular to succeed Cannon as speaker. Just as soon as a majority can be obtained, thus making it clear that there will be no deadlock over the election, the insurgents will act.

The program outlined by one of their leaders is to wait until several of the president's measures have been passed by the house and sent to the senate. When this has been done, the resolution to declare the speaker's chair vacant will be offered. There is no doubt on the part of the insurgents that such a resolution will carry.

WANTED---A COOK

Taft Family Find They Are Not Immune From Servant Problem

Washington, April 23.—Because a cook cannot be found to take the place of Miss Martha Peterson, the White House cook, who is to marry James M. Mulvey, a policeman of the White House squad, two families—one already existing and the other contemplated—are disrupted.

Miss Peterson wanted a spring wedding and asked that she be allowed to cook only for her own family as early as possible. The experience of less prominent families in Washington was repeated at the White House. No cook could be found.

Now the present guardian of the pantry has written to a friend in Sweden to come and take her place.

ROGERS LEFT $36,000,000

Oil Magnate's Fortune Much Smaller Than Accredited to Him

New York, April 23.—Instead of the fortune of $100,000,000 popularly accredited to H. H. Rogers, the former vice president of the Standard Oil company left an estate valued by his executors at less than $36,000,000 on which a preliminary inheritance tax has been paid, according to the New York World.

At the time of the panic of 1907 stories were circulated that Rogers had been obliged to dispose of securities at a loss and the statement that he left only one-third of the fortune he was supposed to possess is cited as giving color to the truth of these assertions.

Active Fight For Suffrage

London, April 23.—The campaign for woman suffrage is being actively pushed. There has been presented to parliament demanding legislation 226 petitions, bearing 268,195 names.

"LONG LOST BROTHER"

Returns After Absence of Many Years to Share Estate of Father

Pittsfield, Mass., April 23.—Franklin A. Smith of Fort Wayne, Ind., has been recognized as "the long lost brother" by John C. Smith of South Williamstown. This identification having been established, the Indiana man is now considered one of the rightful heirs to the estate of the late Hiram Smith of South Williamstown.

Franklin A. Smith arrived in Pittsfield this week from Fort Wayne. Last January, Judge Slocum, in the Central Berkshire probate court, declared that Franklin A. Smith was legally dead, and appointed an administrator for his estate.

The Indiana man left his home in South Williamstown more than twenty-five years ago, and none of his family had heard anything from him until he appeared in Pittsfield a few days ago.

Led by the Nose.

An analytical chemist was retained as a skilled witness some years ago where there were questions of analytical chemistry. There was one case where a farmer had bought some artificial manure, and he was being sued for the price of it. He resisted payment on the ground that the material had none of the qualities of manure at all. The expert chemist was one of the witnesses and had stated that, although the substance had the smell, it had none of the chemical qualities of manure. Under cross examination he was asked, if that was so, how did he account for hundreds of the best farmers having taken the manure for many years. "They must have been led by the nose," returned the witness. —Dundee Advertiser.

Advantages of Matrimony.

Depositor—Not a cent.

"Well, well! If you knew the thing was going up, why didn't you say so?"

"I didn't know. I had to go off on business, so I left my wife some blank checks. She went shopping."

JOHN H. EMERSON.

One of the best known men in Milton and one who was universally liked, John H. Emerson, died suddenly Tuesday forenoon at his home, 613 Adams street, East Milton. For eighteen years Mr. Emerson served the town as tax collector and he therefore became acquainted with almost every resident of the town. He resigned that office in February, 1907, because of ill health. Lately, however, his health had been good and he was active until only a few hours before his death.

Mr. Emerson was born in Salem, N. H., in 1840, son of John and Ruth Gardner Emerson. When a young man he came to Quincy to learn the granite cutter's trade. When the war broke out he enlisted in Co. B, 45th Massachusetts regiment and after his three months term expired he re-enlisted in Co. A, 56th Massachusetts regiment. He served all through the war and was at the fall of Richmond. He rose to the rank of first lieutenant and captain. During the war he received injuries that affected his hearing during the remainder of his life.

After the war he went to Colorado in search of gold and then was employed by the Granite Railway company as a superintendent of construction. In this work he visited many different places. He became tax collector of Milton in 1889. With the exception of a year or two the office was in the Emerson family about a half century. Simeon Emerson, uncle of John H., having been collector for many years. In June, 1891, Mr. Emerson married Josephine Clapp of Milton, sister of Mrs. C. Frank Hardwick of Quincy, who survives him.

Funeral services were held at his late home in East Milton Friday afternoon and were conducted by Col. Edward Anderson of Quincy, formerly pastor of the East Congregational church, which Mr. Emerson attended. At Milton cemetery the services were in charge of Huntington F. Wolcott Post, G. A. R., of which Mr. Emerson had long been a member.—Milton Record.

THEIR FIRST ANNIVERSARY

Gertrude A. Boyd Auxiliary Have Many Guests

Gertrude A. Boyd auxiliary to the United Spanish War Veterans celebrated its first anniversary last evening at Electa hall, the event was largely attended by the members of the auxiliary and kindred organizations.

The hall was very prettily decorated with red and yellow crepe paper, the colors of the Auxiliary, the combination of these colors serving to soften the effect of the electric lights. In one corner of the hall were the auxiliary colors, and numerous sofa pillows arranged on the settees. Here the receiving party stood. In the line were: Mrs. Annie Morrison, president of the Auxiliary; Commander Thompson B. Crane of the Spanish War Veterans; Commander George L. Phillips, of Paul Revere Post, Senior Vice Commander Frank Stoddard of the Sons of Veterans, Mrs. Cora Carmen, president of the Women's Relief corps; Mrs. Frank Stoddard, president of the Ladies Aid; Miss Margaret DeWitt department president of the Auxiliary; Dr. Laura Hughes, past department president, Miss Mary eKlley department secretary of Miss Dutton and Miss Kimble.

The ushers were George A. Wardwell, Past Commander of John A. Boyd camp; Mrs. Wardwell, Mrs. Michael Pitts, and Mrs. Belle Morton.

After the reception a pleasing program was rendered. This included: piano solos by Mrs. Frank Morton; solos by Mr. Sidney, Miss Sweetland, Herbert Morton and Mrs. Belle Morton; recitations by little Miss Madison, Mrs. Kate A. Blaisdell and Miss DeWitt; fancy dancing by Miss Zita Pitts; Monologues by Master Joe Beal, and a piano solo by Miss Humphrey.

Between these numbers there were remarks by Commander Crane of the Spanish War Veterans; Comander Phillips of the Grand Army; Senior Vice Commander Stoddard of the Sons of Veterans; Mrs. Cora Carmen, president of the Womens Relief corps; and Mrs. Frank Stoddard, president of the Ladies Aid.

Interesting remarks on the work, aims and objects of the ladies auxiliary were also made by Miss Margaret DeWitt, Dr. Laura Hughes and Miss Mary Kelley, the department officers.

Before the entertainment closed Mrs. Annie Morrison, president of the auxiliary, presented the Spanish War Veterans with a handsome altar cloth, as a slight token of appreciation for the material aid and encouragement which they had given the auxiliary during its first year of existence. The cloth was accepted with many thanks in behalf of John A. Boyd camp by Commander Crane, who assured the ladies that the members of the camp stood ready to a man to assist the auxiliary in every possible way. He also thanked them for the interest they had shown in the organization which he represented.

After the literary program had been concluded a buffet lunch was served and there was general dancing. As a whole the evening was a very pleasant one, for aside from bringing the members together in a social manner it served to cement more firmly together the bonds of friendship existing between the kindred organizations.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Willoby will be pleased to learn that their little daughter Elizabeth, who has been dangerously ill at the home of her grandparents on Hayward street, is more comfortable and hopes are now entertained for her recovery.

Mrs. Kate Pulsifer of Braintree, who was recently indicted for bigamy was given her liberty Thursday afternoon by Judge Hitchcock in the Superior court, upon the ground that, although she technically violated the law in marrying Dennis King, she did so under an honest mistake of fact. Her former husband had applied for a divorce nearly two years ago and she did not contest it. Supposing that the divorce had been granted, as she was informed, she married King last winter. The divorce case had lain on the docket without a hearing until two months ago. The probation officers reported these facts to the court, and the district attorney offered no objecions to having the defendant treated leniently.

BRIEFS

Sunday will be observed by most of the churches throughout the United States as Tuberculosis Sunday. In Christ church Sunday morning Dr. J. A. Gordon will make the address. The public are invited.

Wednesday, the Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's will hold its regular monthly missionary meeting at 2.30 in the parish rooms. A full attendance is requested to finish the sewing on hand. It is asked that the articles to be sent Mrs. Moort be brought in that day. This will also be "open table" day, orders and salable goods desired, as the treasury is very low.

Because of the holiday the regular meeting of the Atlantic Study club was postponed until the following week.

The regular meeting of the Quincy Hospital Aid association will be held on Thursday, April 28 at the home of Miss Etta M. Prescott, 41 Spear street. The time of meeting is half after two o'clock.

Whatsoever Circle, King's Daughters ,will hold their meeting April 25 at 8 P. M. with Mrs. F. E. Cleveland, Cheriton road.

The New England Associate Alliance meet in the First Unitarian church at Lowell, of which Rev. Charles T. Billings is minister, on Thursday, April 28. In the morning the conference will discuss co-operation among church organizations, and Mrs. Emily A. Fifield will speak on "Co-operation of the Branch and the National Alliance," to be followed by election of officers. At the afternoon session Dr. James De Normandie will give "Reminiscences of Dr. Hale."

The "circles of eight" still go merrily on and it is hoped they will be continued through the summer as the money is much needed for the tuberculosis camp Hospital Aid and Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary.

Home made candy is so much more wholesome for children to eat than the cheaper factory made candy, that the Education committee of the Woman's club is making an effort to have only the carefully prepared sweets sold to the children at the May festival on Saturday. With that thought in mind they are asking any woman who will prepare a box of wholesome candy to send the same to Music hall on the morning of April 30. May baskets may also be sent Friday afternoon and Saturday morning.

SANITY IS QUESTIONED

Bank Cashier Does Things of a Decidedly Eccentric Character

Lakewood, N. J., April 23.—After sending an eleven hundred word telegram to Blair & Co., bankers, New York, threatening to crucify members of the firm unless they paid him $75,000, Charles P. Rossman, formerly cashier for the banking house, was arrested at Harmony, seven miles from here, and will be held pending an inquiry into the question of his sanity.

Detectives came here. Before they arrived Rossman had telephoned to New York repeating his demands for money. Then he bought a revolver, cartridges and several long bladed knives. Flourishing his weapons, he got into a carriage and drove to Harmony. Stopping at the house of a farmer, he asked that his horse be permitted to sleep in the parlor. He said he himself would sleep in the kitchen.

The farmer telephoned to the police here and Constables Mason and Curtis went to Harmony in an automobile and arrested Rossman without difficulty. He was taken to the county jail.

HELD FOR CUSTOMS FRAUD

Chief Clerk For Former Deputy Surveyor Held In $5000 Bonds

New York, April 23.—George E. Bedell, who was chief clerk for James F. Vail, former deputy surveyor of the port, and who had charge of the weighing department, was arrested on an indictment charging conspiracy to defraud the government out of custom duties on sugar, macaroni, figs, cheese and other imported merchandise.

Bedell was held by Judge Hazel in the United States circuit court in $5000 bail for trial. Bedell was dismissed from the customs service last November, after having been reduced from a $2000 clerkship to a $5-a-day inspectorship the previous August, following Collector Loeb's investigation into customs frauds. He entered the customs service as a weigher in 1890.

KILLED HIS FRIEND; PUT BODY IN TRUNK

Nalbandian Was Showing New Gun When It Exploded

Salem, Mass., April 23.—Vahan Nalbandian, who was brought back from Bulgaria, pleaded not guilty in the Essex superior criminal court to the charge of murder in the first degree of Minas K. Momjian in Nalbandian's lodgings in Lynn, on July 22, 1909. He was held without bail and was taken to Salem jail.

Nalbandian's story as to the manner of Momjian's death is given out by the police as follows:

"Momjian, Ajamian and I were in my room. I was showing Momjian the new 38-calibre Colt's automatic I had. I unloaded the magazine. I did not know there was a cartridge in the chamber of the revolver. Momjian was sitting on the bed. Suddenly the gun exploded and Momjian fell on the floor dead.

"Ajamian ran from the room. I put Momjian's body in my steel trunk. I slept in the room that night. The next day I went to Boston, drew out my bank money, took the Fall River boat for New York and sailed from New York."

SUFFERS FROM THIRST

Youth Who Robbed Cathedral Is Finally Forced to Surrender

Moscow, April 23.—The populace is celebrating with Te Deums the recovery of the diamond ornament stolen Wednesday night from the image of the Virgin in the Uspenski cathedral in the Kremlin and the arrest of the thief. The thief turned out to be an 18-year-old peasant lad.

After stealing the ornament, which is valued at hundreds of thousands of rubles, the boy hid under an altar in the cathedral, hoping eventually to escape.

A cordon of soldiers has been kept about the cathedral since the crime was committed until the lad, finding it impossible to escape their vigilance, and suffering terribly from thirst, came out and surrendered.

Farmers and Villagers Gather to Pay Last Tribute to Clemens

DRESSED IN WHITE FLANNEL

Body Is Accompanied to New York by Daughter, Son-In-Law and Friends of Beloved Humorist—Simple Services In Old Brick Presbyterian Church to Be Followed by Services at the Place of Burial

Redding, Conn., April 23.—The little village of Redding is in mourning for its benefactor and friend, Mark Twain, who had endeared himself by his kindly good nature and generosity.

This morning, when the body was taken to the station for the train which took it to New York, where funeral services will be held, all business was suspended and the villagers and farmers from the surrounding hills assembled and paid their last tribute to the dead.

There has not been such a gathering in the vilage since Mr. Clemens gave his benefit for the library, to which he recently gave money for a new building.

Late yesterday the body was prepared for burial, and, dressed in the white flannel which he constantly wore in the latter years of his life, was placed in a plain mahogany casket which arrived here early this morning.

Many messages of comfort have been received by Mrs. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, Mark Twain's only living daughter.

Among them were a telegram from President Taft and a cablegram from former President Roosevelt.

The body was taken to the West Redding station at 10 o'clock this morning and placed on board the Pittsfield express. It was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gabrilowitsch, Albert Bigelow Paine and servants who have been in Clemens' service for many years. On the arrival of the body in New York it will be taken to the old brick Presbyterian church where services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, assisted by Rev. Joseph H. Twitchell of Harvard, the latter a life-long friend of Clemens.

F. A. Duneka of Harper and Brothers, Clemens' publishers, who has made the arrangements for the funeral, said that it was the wish of the family that the services be as brief as possible. Later on a public memorial service will be held in some large hall.

After the funeral the body will be taken to Elmira, where another service will be held. This service will be at the home of General Langdon, a relative of Clemens, and so far as known will consist simply of a short address by Joseph Twitchell of Hartford. From the Langdon home the body will be removed to the Elmira cemetery to be laid to rest.

Belgrade, April 23.—Servia's floods continue. The death list is already ninety-five, and $2,500,000 is the property loss. Two hundred persons are in hospitals, and several villages have been destroyed.

IN HONOR OF ROOSEVELT

French President Gives Gala Feast to Over a Hundred

Paris, April 23.—President and Mrs. Fallieres gave a gala dinner of 104 covers last night at the Elysee palace in honor of Theodore Roosevelt. The entire palace was brilliantly illuminated and the Republican Guard lined the stairways. The assemblage was a notable one.

President Fallieres took out Mrs. Roosevelt, while Roosevelt escorted Mme. Fallieres. Miss Ethel Roosevelt was escorted by M. Jusserand, the French ambassador to the United States.

In proposing Roosevelt's health, Fallieres said:

"I cannot allow this dinner to terminate without seizing the occasion to offer a toast to Theodore Roosevelt—an illustrious man, who is at the same time a great citizen, a great friend of France, a great friend of peace. I lift my glass also in honor of Mrs. Roosevelt, to whom goes out the homage of our respectful sympathy. I congratulate myself at being able to tell our guests how happy we are to receive and fete them."

Colonel Roosevelt replied in French, saying he was profoundly touched by the words of Fallieres.

MUST GO TO THE CHAIR

Albert Wolter Convicted of the Murder of Ruth Wheeler

New York, April 23.—Albert Wolter, the youth of 19 years, who was "crazy" about women, must die in the electric chair for the murder of Ruth Wheeler, a 15-year-old stenographer.

After only one hour and fifty minutes of deliberation, a jury found him guilty of murder in the first degree, bringing to a close a trial marked by swiftness and testimony of horror.

With the same show of indifference that he showed throughout the trial, Wolter evinced no emotion when the verdict was announced. With almost inhuman complacency he was asleep in his cell—and sleeping soundly—while the jury deliberated on his fate.

WAGE AGREEMENT WILL SOON EXPIRE

Fall River Operatives Awaiting Word From Manufacturers

Fall River, Mass., April 23.—At this week's regular meeting of the Textile Council the executive committee reported relative to the recent conference with the executive committee of the Cotton Manufacturers' association over the question of wages, and President Tansey presented his report of wage margins to date.

It was the opinion of the members present that the manufacturers' committee was gaining nothing by its delay in presenting its counter proposition for an amended wage agreement. This proposition must, before it can be accepted, be voted upon by the five operatives' associations comprising the Textile Council, and by the Textile Council.

There is only about five weeks in which to adopt a new agreement before the present agreement expires.

TAFT PROGRAM IS NOW TIED UP

Pet Legislation Appears to Have Come to a Halt

A WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE

Discussion of Plans For Hurrying Measures of the Administration—Postal Savings Bank Looms Up as Most Serious Problem the President Has to Face—Aldrich and Other Leaders Promise Their Support

Washington, April 23.—The conference of leading Republicans with President Taft over the postal savings bank bill was one of the most important yet held at the White House, in its probable effect upon the legislative program of President Taft.

The men attending were Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, Senators Aldrich, Carter, Root and Crane, Speaker Cannon and Representatives Weeks of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee on postoffices and post roads, to which the savings bank bill has been referred, and Representative Gardner of New Jersey, a member of that committee.

While the conference was called primarily to consider the legislative status of the postal bank bill, the discussion took a wide range and included a general consideration of the whole legislative situation.

The men attending the conference are not disclosing its results with great freedom, probably for strategical reasons, but it is known that a definite line of procedure was decided on, and that all the conferees pledged their hearty support to the president's measures, in so far as they could be got before congress in such form as would enable the president to approve them.

Senator Aldrich will stand by President Taft through thick and thin during the remainder of his term in the senate. The Rhode Island senator personally does not wholly approve the White House program, particularly the savings bank proposition, but he has been deeply hurt by the reiterated charges in the press that he is acting in bad faith toward the administration.

The postal savings bank bill presents the hardest problem the president has to face at the Capitol. It passed the senate against the judgment of the leaders and carrying an amendment forced into it by the insurgents designed to keep the postal funds in the communities where deposited and to prohibit the government from making any use of the funds for its own purposes except in case of war.

This amendment, which is wholly in the interest of local, chiefly state banks, is regarded by the administration as bad economics and bad finance. President Taft makes it no secret that he would not sign the bill if it contained this prohibition, and the Republican insurgents in the senate all supported the amendment with this knowledge, although professing sincere loyalty to the administration.

The same element favorable to the amendment exists in the house, where it threatens the defeat of the bill, regardless of the private opinions of members, if it is not retained. The amendment is openly opposed by conservative members, on the ground not only that it prevents the government from making any use of the enormous sums for whose safety it will be responsible, but that it offers overwhelming temptations to divert the money to all kinds of local improvement projects which would encourage an era of unbounded extravagance.

While these things are so, they add rather than detract from the political potency of the measure. Indeed, it is stated that many members who personally agree that the senate bill is doubtful finance will feel impelled to vote for it by the demands of their constituents.

The house has not yet been thoroughly canvassed to determine how the bill will stand when it reaches the floor, but unless a clear majority for the amended bill can be shown, a caucus of the Republicans to decide upon a plan of action will be necessary.

The railroad bill is still on the ways in the house, with little prospect of early action, hence nothing can be done until that is out of the way. The anti-injunction bill, another administration measure, already has been reported to the house, and a caucus to get that out of the way may and probably will be called before the decks will be free for the postal bank bill.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Massachusetts Mad Folk to be Investigated by a Safe and Sane Commission—New England Women Think Wrong and Look Unmotherly, Declares a German Professor—Marry here and Do it Now, instead of Waiting for a Foreign Count—The Aeroplane Glide is the Thing for Hub Femininity—New England Music Sounds Good to All the World

A divinity shapes our ends while wrong living misshapes our figures. Here is a German professor declaring: "Woman is losing her loveliness." And New England women seem to be in a straight line for his conclusions, for he says the chief cause of this catastrophe is the excessive indulgence in outdoor sports, of which our New England women are so fond. The same causes are at work in both Germany and the United States, says Professor Thilo, but a woman's beauty is fading faster in this country than across the water. A second cause is given as the craze for the slender figure. The estimable professor declares that the "robe collante" or dress glued on, simply falsifies lines and injures the health. Lastly, he claims that woman's way of thinking has changed, to the deterioration of her beauty, and that she no longer desires sincere love but encourages flirtation. He claims that the motherliness character of the best medieval statuary is disappearing from the features of American women. So, back to the hoopskirt and spinning-wheel, women of America, if you would escape the fate threatened.

And, right on the heels of the German professor's remarks, comes the mandate that women—and men, too by the way—in order to be quite correct must acquire the aeroplane figure and glide. One must float with a grace incarnate. Now, one occasionally sees on the streets of the Hub a young lady who seems to glide along with a perfect swan-like motion, but when it comes to exacting this from the masculine population—no, it is too much to expect. Respectable old Boston is neverless tapering its fingers, bandaging its face and chin to make them slender, and "rubbering" its neck to a swan-like curve and grace. A course in acquiring the figure is being given, which promises to those who faithfully follow instructions a "finishing" in less than six months. One would imagine that it would indeed be a finishing for the stout lady of five feet two, who attempts to get her 190 pounds down to the requisite airy proportions.

"Europe no more for the student of music who is short of funds. Conserve the talent in the United States where opportunities" are better. Such is a slogan which Bostonians hear with interest has been raised by an organization of 600 Chicago women, the Amateur Musical Club. This energetic association of the Middle West has found that the pitfalls and obstacles of life in European cities more than offset its advantages to a student, particularly for young women. Girls sent from home to a foreign city, as to Paris, Leipzig, or even London, are subjected to severe tests such as only the best balanced characters can withstand. There are loneliness, the difficulties with an alien language in a strange land, the temptations of youth and the considerable expense of board and lessons, many times greater than if the student had remained to study in an American city. Consequently the Amateur Musical club in Chicago has decided to give up sending students abroad. This decision must accord with the experience of thousands of New England parents, for the change that has taken place in people's conception of the kind of musical education needed for sons and daughters has been shown in the remarkable growth of Boston as a centre of musical education. New Englanders once were somewhat disloyal to the local institutions for muscial study. Today, a single institution, the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, entertains more than 2,000 young people from the six North Atlantic states, an indication that the advantages of the Hub with its school facilities, its opera and symphony, its concerts and recitals almost innumerable, are appreciated as never before in the history of New England.

Boston and Lexington enjoyed the distinction of Patriots' day on April 19, and the inhabitants thereof spent the holiday in riotous sportivities or restful excursions according to their bent, while their sisters and brothers in neighboring cities looked on, it is presumed with envious eyes. The chief patriotic exercises were held in Lexington, of course, but the Hub indulged in a long list of festivities, including the ball games, the marathon race—in which runners from other states and Canada were numerous—special matinees, band concerts and other features. The office boy finds Boston an ideal city about the 19th of April and the 17th of June, and feels very proud of its historic traditions—and its fireworks. But the old Dominion won the Marathon.

Beware, hatters and March hares, of the Bay State. Massachusetts is about to enter upon a thorough investigation of the causes of the increasing prevalence of insanity, the first step of which has already ben taken in the appointment of five experts to conduct the investigation. Representative John J. Conway, who introduced the bill for this undertaking, claims to have discovered that the number of epileptics, mental defectives, degenerates and criminals is increasing every day, though the cause of the evil is very elusive. "It is the strenuous, the abandoned, the sordid whirl of city life," argues Mr. Conway, "more than the humdrum life on the farm, whence many of our lunatics formerly came, that breeds the degenerate and the criminal." In line with his contentions come the impressions of "Rita," otherwise known as Mrs. Desmond Humphreys, the English novelist, who is visiting this country and who will make a study of maddest Boston. "Wastefulness seems to be the keynote," says Mrs. Humphreys. "You waste your energy and you waste your resources, and it looks to me as though a lot of you are wasting your time. This great hotel, with all its luxury, could not afford me a room with big windows and plenty of sunshine. And what shocking books you read, and what dreadful plays you go to see! I believe every woman in America has been married at least once, and most of those over 22 an indefinite number of times—it is most surprising." But then, Mrs. Humphreys had only seen New York when she said that.

"Marry here" may yet be a popular slogan. The Hub is naturally interested in the case of the Count and Countess de Gatigny who are under arrest as purveyors of fake masterpieces. The Countess before her marriage was a wealthy and highly esteemed Boston girl of fine family. She married her Count, who now seems to be of no account, and has since lived abroad in a magnificent chateau, entertaining lavishly. Their recent attempt to attach the estate of the late Charles Hamilton Paine to the amount of $200,000, claimed to be due on some paintings sold to Mr. Paine, has resulted in the counter-claim that the 81 canvases purchased were spurious. An expert who has visited the Paris mansion of Count de Gatigny, where his famous collection is housed, has declared, that the wonderful galleries contain merely fake Corots, Correggios, Murillos and Titians. This case emphasizes the point that a mere American man may be quite as desirable for a husband as a gold-laced title attached to a fake picture gallery.

Czarina's Sister Is to Devote Her Life to Hospital Work

Moscow, April 23.—Grand Duchess Elizabeth, who is the widow of Grand Duke Sergius and a sister of Empress Alexandria, took the veil of a nun yesterday. She will devote herself to the hospital of the Women's Refuge, which was founded after the assassination of her husband, Feb. 17, 1905, by a bomb.

The ceremonial of taking the Orders was impressive in its simplicity. There was no distinction made between the grand duchess and the eighteen other women of noble birth and peasants who simultaneously took the vows as Sisters of Mercy.

WOMAN'S STORY SHEDS LIGHT

Arrest In Connection With Looting of Cambridge Bank

"BIG BILL" KELIHER IN JAIL

Alleged Fake Faro Man Technically Charged With Being Coleman's Accessory, but Is Said to Be Regarded as Principal Defendant In Celebrated Case—Only Member of Faro Gang Who Returned to Boston

Boston, April 23.—William J. Keliher, known as "Big Bill," was arrested last evening by United States Deputy Marshals Waters, Ruhl and Young on a charge of aiding and abetting George W. Coleman in misapplying the funds of the National City bank of Cambridge.

Although Keliher appears technically only as an accessory, he is regarded by the government as the principal defendant in the case.

Laura M. Atwood, a young woman who resides at the Hotel Bellevue, who has been a close friend of Keliher, is credited with having brought about his arrest.

In consequence of her statements and of the statements of other women known to both Coleman and Keliher, the former is said to have made a clean breast of the whole affair to United States Attorney French. Wilson W. Lockhart, Coleman's chum and the other defendant in the case, has likewise changed his attitude of reserve, it is said, and told all he knows.

After being registered in the marshal's office as a prisoner, Keliher was taken to Charles street jail, to await arraignment and bail.

The charges against him, it is understood, were presented to the grand jury yesterday by French. The grand jury is the one that indicted Coleman and Lockhart. It will report to Judge Lowell in the United .States .circuit court on Tuesday next.

Both Coleman and Lockhart as well as Miss Atwood were in the district attorney's office yesterday for several hours.

The arrest of Keliher at his home in Winthrop was a big surprise to Keliher's friends, who have been maintaining right along that the government could not connect him with the bank case.

By reason of the delay on the part of the government in prosecuting him Keliher himself felt assured that the government would not proceed against him and returned home, having disappeared at the time of Coleman's arrest. The rest of the faro gang, Martin Walsh, Frank Draper and their associates, have all left the country.

Keliher's return is said to have been partially responsible for his undoing. His movements here were continually under surveillance and finally led to an investigation of his relations with Miss Atwood. This, it is said, resulted in connecting him with the bank case.

FALLS WITH AEROPLANE

Operator Strikes the Ground First, but Escapes Without Injury

Newburyport, Mass., April 23.—W. S. Burgess' new aeroplane was badly damaged in an unexpected plunge to the ground while in full flight, thirty feet from the ground.

As Mechanician Curtis, who was operating the aeroplane, started the engine, the aeroplane glided ahead on its skids for 100 yards across the Plum island marsh. Curtis elevated the front rudder. The aeroplane responded beautifully by rising to a height of thirty feet. Curtis flew to the end of the course, about 200 yards. Then he started to make a turn.

Suddenly the aeroplane pitched forward sharply and shot downward. Curtis fell out and beat the machine to the ground. The machine buried its nose into the sand, crumpling its forward gear. The machine stuck upright in the sand, saving Curtis from injury, and he squirmed out of the way.

Trenton, April 23.—Dr. Holmes Riddle, a Long Branch physician, who has been committed twice to the New Jersey state hospital for the insane, escaped from the institution by prying the iron bars from the window of his room and leaping two stories to the yard below.

His absence was not noticed until four hours after. Since then the guards of the asylum and the police of the city have been searching for him.

CUP GOES TO CLASS OF 1910

Won Rubber Contest by Score Of 12 to 6

An exciting and interesting game of basket ball was played in the gymnasium at the Woodward Institute Friday afternoon, between teams representing the classes of 1910 and 1912. It was the final game in the series for the cup offered by the class of 1906, and was won by the class of 1910 by a score of 12 to 6.

The first series of games was between the classes of 1910 and 1911, and was won by 1910. The second series was between the classes of 1912 and 1913, and was won by 1912.

Then 1910 and 1912 met for the final struggle for the best two out of three games. Each team won a game so that an unusual interest was taken in the rubber. Friends of both classes were out in large numbers to cheer their favorites on to victory, and 1912 was vanquished. The line up of the two teams was:

1910—Misses Halloranfi Murray Samuelson, Callahan, Bean and Baker.

1912—Hunter, Williams, Beckford, Dasha, Beale and Clark.

The cup was awarded 1910 with great cheering.

POVERTY PARTY.

The annual poverty party of the West End club was held last evening at St. Mary's hall and was very largely attended. Most of the participants appeared in costumes portraying poverty in the extreme, and they created much amusement. The march which opened the ball was led by Charles McCue, Joyce's orchestra furnished the music, and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Prizes aggregating $10 was given for the most poverty looking costumes.

THE STORY HOUR.

The Willard children of grades 5 to 8 were the ones invited to the story hour at the Public Library yesterday afternoon. Miss Hibbard told then the story of Joan of Arc, then read from the May St. Nicholas "Robin of the Loving Heart." This was followed by the telling of one of the Uncle Remus stories and the reciting of Little Orphant Annie closed the half hour's program.

APPALACHIAN CLUB.

One hundred and eighty members and guests of the Appalachian Mountain club of Boston passed through Braintree and Weymouth Tuesday in a special train bound for Greenbush on the South Shore. The special stopped at Braintree to take on a party of fifteen from this vicinity. Arriving at Greenbush there was a most delightful cross country walk to Third Cliff, Scituate, where, after a half hour's walk the party stopped for lunch on the beach. After lunch had been disposed of and the more strenuous members of the party had played ball to their hearts' content ,the walk was resumed along the shore to Second and First Cliffs. An ideal outing-day followed.

WHAT'S IN McCLURE'S.

Under the title of "The New American City Government "George Kibbe Turner tells in the May McClure's of the rapid spread of the commission form of government; Burton J. Hendrick has an article on "The Skulls of Our Imigrants" which upsets the belief so long held by scientists that the skull was the one thing that could not change; W. A. Du Puy and E. T. Brewster show what the rat has cost us in lives and money. Foremost in the fiction is an unusual detective story, "The Anthropologist at large" by Dr. R. A. Freeman, editor of the London Lancet. Other stories are "The Glamour" by Oscar Graeve; "The Blue Pearl" by Neith Boyce; "The Nineteenth Hat" by Arnold Bennett; "The Point of View" another war story by "Ole Luk-Oie;" and "The Education of King Peter" by Edgar Wallace.

—Why is it a careless seven-year-old kid can drop a half burned match in an alley and burn up all the barns in a block, while an able-bodied man has to use up a whole box of matches to get a wood fire started in a heater that has draft enough to draw all the furniture up the stove pipe?—Marlboro Times.

TRIAL

Cross examined Dr. Jones said that stomach was empty. Congested kidneys and evidences of diseases the man had had previously. He found no discoloration on the ear to indicate a heavy blow had been struck. Ordinarily a heavy blow would cause a black and blue spot.

Redirect. Would it be possible for Hunt to have received a blow on the ear of sufficient force to knock him down and the force not been such as to leave any mark? Answer Yes.

City Physician Hallowell testified to his visit to the Police station and the examination he made with Dr. Jones. His conclusions were the same as those of Dr. Jones.

Dr. C. W. Garey testified that he was called on the afternoon of April 9, in the corridor of the Hancock house. Found him sitting on the floor. Hair was wet. Saw the laceration of scalp. Could discover no depression. Was no swelling. No blood coming from the ear. Injuries not sufficient to require any dressing. He said his head felt bad. With help of companions he got onto his feet and walked unsteadily. Went out and sat down on the steps. There was apparently nothing to be done to help him. Could see no external condition to cause him to act as he did. Assumed he was under influence of liquor. His pulse was normal. Could smell liquor. He got up and made a run for a car then came back and sat down on the steps. He was then led across the street to the police box and the wagon came and took him away. He was present at the autopsy. His testimony of the autopsy agreed with Dr. Jones as to what was found.

Cross examined. Was evidently under influence of liquor. Nothing to show that he had a fracture of the skull.

Officer Cahill testifying to driving the patrol wagon on April 9 said he drove to the box in City Square and found Hunt leaning against a pole. Officer Farrell assisted in putting him in the wagon. He appeared like a man under the influence of liquor. Had a dress suit case and small bag with him. When he got out of the wagon he said his leg felt as though it was asleep. He helped him into the police station. About 5 o'clock when he came back from supper Hunt was shouting. "Open the door and let me out." Heard him cry out these words twice.

Cross examined. At all times when he saw Hunt before he died he had the appearance of being drunk.

Rodney L. Robbins who was with Hunt on the fatal day testified he was in Boston on that afternoon with Hunt. Visited a bar room was there about an hour. Saw him drink ale, three glasses. Left bar room a little after three o'clock and went to Neponset and then came to Quincy. Rode in the rear vestibule. In Quincy square he got off and went toward sidewalk. He had a dress suit case and bag. Witness went around other side of car. Next saw Hunt in the street. Conductor was talking to witness Rosco started toward me and the conductor started toward the sidewalk. As they met Hunt lifted his foot and kicked at the conductor and the conductor struck him. The blow struck back of left ear and Hunt fell striking on the back of his head. Could not say if his head struck the the cobble stone. Got Hunt a glass of water and then assisted in taking into the entrance of the Hancock house. Hunt was then unconscious but later came to. Wiped blood from his left ear. Witness also told of the examination made by Dr. Garey. Hunt asked witness to get an officer.

We then went to take a car but it was the wrong car. So went back to steps of Hancock house. An officer then came and took Hunt to the patrol box.

In reply to a question by the court the witness said he heard the conductor call him drunk. He heard no other talk.

Cross examined. Witness said Egan, the starter and witness had been talking together. Then Egan and the starter left and went toward the sidewalk. Hunt then came from across the street. Egan paid no attention to Hunt until the later kicked him. As they passed Egan was paying no attention to Hunt. Then saw Hunt turn and kick at Egan. Then Egan turned and made a sweep of the hand. We had passes to use on the car. Hunt had been drinking a number of times that week. His book shows a number of half days when Hunt was off. He had been drinking whiskey on the job that day. Hunt suggested going to Boston when he got job done. At 1 o'clock all but one window was done. We agreed to go to Boston and get some beer. Went to a bar room and stayed there an hour. While in his presence he had three glasses of ale. I was away from him about fifteen minutes. He bought half pint whiskey. Leaving here we took a car for Neponset. Hunt showed he had been drinking.

At Neponset witness stood on the rail of the bridge. On the way up heard the conductor say something about getting out of the way. Could not say whether Hunt was obnoxious or not. Did not notice him bump into any ladies. When car got into the square witness went around the car to save any more trouble. Was ashamed of what had taken place in the car. Eagan the starter and another man came around the car and Eagan pointed me out.

At this point the hearing closed for the day and the case was continued until next Saturday.

The sloping embankment has been seeded and when the fence is painted the station surroundings will be highly satisfactory.

WON BY BIG SCORE

Quincy High Find Rockland Boys Easy

The game with Rockland High yesterday, as with South Boston High on Patriots' day, resulted in a victory for the Quincy nine. The score was 13 to 2.

Quincy High outplayed Rockland High in nearly every position. The home players were given a number of bases because the visitors muffled the ball.

Rice is improving in pitching at every game. The men backed him up, so in the whole game hardly anyone got on base. One of the Rockland team, however, who scored, reached the home plate on a fumble by the Quincy men.

During the last part of the game when it was a sure victory, Holteen went in as pitcher while Barry caught. Holteen put up some good pitching. Anderson replaced O'Connor at right field and Scanlon took Murphy's place at first. Quincy is fortunate in having some good men to fall back on if perchance anything should happen to any of the regular men.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS

Anti Tuberculosis Camp Needs Over $3000

The finance committee of the Anti Tuberculosis association, Messrs. Wendell H. Hull, John L. Gow and Thomas R. Pollard, recognize the urgent need of funds and will this week issue the following appeal:

In the fall of 1908, the Quincy Women's Club gave the Anti-Tuberculosis exhibit in Quincy, arousing enthusiasm to such an extent that the physicians formed an Anti-Tuberculosis Association. Meetings were held officers elected, by-laws adopted, and the association began to fight the "Great White Plague" in Quincy. Through the kindness of Mr. Henry M. Faxon, the association secured free, a five year lease of a lot of land on Mount Pleasant, (opposite Faxon Park.) This land was selected after considering all other available property in the city.

An attractive camp has been erected at a cost of about $1700.00. It contains a large dining room, two lavatories, a physician's examining room and office a laboratory, a blanket room and a kitchen. About $500.00 will be expended in necessary working supplies and fitting. Patients will be cared for at the camp by night as well as in the day time. A nurse will be constantly in charge teaching patients how to care for themselves, how to get well, and how to protect others. That tuberculosis, especially in its early stages, can be cured under conditions existing at this camp, is the opinion of the leading physicians of the country.

Quincy, like other cities of its size, has an extremely large number of tuberculosis patients, and to carry on this work, is an expensive undertaking, but no undertaking is more worthy of assistance. The sum of $900.00 has been pledged for three shacks, now in process of construction. Another sleeping camp is urgently needed which will require an additional fund of $300.00. Funds must be raised, however, for running expenses, including a nurse, food, heat, light, etc. It is estimated that such expenses this year will be between $3000.00 and $4000.00, and any contribution, thereto (large or small) will be appreciated.

We trust all who can will contribute generously. Funds received will be duly acknowledged. Checks should be made payable to the Quincy Anti-Tuberculosis Association. It is earnestly hoped you can contribute towards stamping out this dread disease.

Complaints were made to Officer Bishop in City Square, Sunday evening, that a man under the influence of liquor was insulting young ladies. The officer located the man and placed him under arrest. He gave his name as Joseph Denarto. The young ladies insulted, however, refused to come to court and appear against him so that the only charge pressed against him was one for drunkenness, for which a fine of $15 was imposed.

After the man had been sent to the police station Officer Bishop found a wicked looking dirk knife in the grass near City Hall, which it is believed that Denarto had in his possession. As there was no way to prove that he had the dirk, and as he denied that it was his, a complaint for carrying a concealed weapon could not be pressed against the man.

SOCIETY BEYOND LAW

Says Brooks Adams in Addressing Schoolmasters

Our distinguished citizen, Brooks Adams, Esq., took rather a pessimist view of monopolies and society in general, in his address on Saturday before the Massachusetts Schoolmasters Club. He said in part:

"We have passed into a condition of servitude. Our civilization has thus passed above and beyond the law and there is no other power which can care for us. It is true we have a tribunal to care for any monopoly in railroad rates, but the vast mass of the commodities of life are controlled by monopolies. We have no redress and so we have passed above the law.

"Take the trade unions as another example. We have no tribunal which can enforce its will upon them or compel them to abide by any decision in a labor dispute. Obviously society has ceased to regulate and these matters are settled more or less by combat, as the Philadelphia car strike was settled by practically fighting it out in the streets. These are conditions which, if continued means the disintegration of society eventually.

"If you break up the trusts you break up our civilization. We must control them, as we cannot conduct our affairs on any other basis as we stand today.

"Take the progress of society toward the dissolution of the family. Woman has practically asserted her right to live with whom she pleases, when, where, and as long as she pleases. We may veil it behind the idea of divorce, if we will, but that is what it amounts to.

"The idea of authority and obedience which goes with the thought of the term family has in America practically broken down.

"Our criminal law is a disgrace to our civilization. Moorfield Storey has said so recently and it is a fact. Our society is really more uncivilized than in any other section of the world and the cause is the breaking down of family authority.

"That is my problem that I said I would present to you. What are we going to do about it? In less than a generation, unless we do something about it, our society is going to disintegrate and cease to cohere. Where there is no law there can be no coherence.

"It is a problem to create an authority to take the place of parental authority. It is a problem too vast for me, it fills me with terror and is too grave for me to even approach here. The problem of prices is simple. In the middle ages we did undertake to regulate prices as the guilds were monopolies. But in my judgment we cannot grapple with these problems until we produce minds that stand in relation to our times as Newton did to the 15th century."

"I find in my experience," he said, "that the men who do the best and most original work and have the greatest power of application are those who have to fight their way up. For instance, the man who had to sell newspapers in the street at seven years of age and fights his way up step by step is better than the ordinary graduate.

"It is this power which comes to a man from overcoming difficulties, and he does not get that by sitting in a class room, it's got to come from his life's blood. It does not come to him from any Sunday school business or looking at pictures.

"Men who have had to fight their way up are more apt to have intense intellectual application and concentration than those who do not have such a struggle.

IN TENTH DISTRICT

Mayor Shea Might Carry the Primaries

Boston papers continue to link the name of Quincy's Mayor with the Democratic Congressional nomination. In a two column review the Monitor says:

Mr. Galvin will in all probability be the Republican nominee again this year, but it is by no means certain that he will have the same opponent on the Democratic side.

If Quincy presents a candidate at the primaries he will be Mayor William T. Shea, one of the most popular men who has ever held office in the shipbuilding city. While Mayor Shea might be a winner in the Democratic primaries, it is not considered possible for him to carry the district at the election, and from a Republican viewpoint he would make an admirable candidate. The second choice of the Republicans for an opponent, if Mr. Galvin is their nominee, would be Congressman O'Connell.

It is claimed by the friends of Mr. Curley that his success depends very largely on the action of Mayor Shea. Should Mr. Shea enter the conflict he could carry Milton and Quincy, but would get little of the Boston vote, leaving the Boston wards to be split up between Messrs O'Connell and Curley. Should Mayor Shea keep out of the contest, Mr. Curley seems pretty sure of carrying the Quincy vote and his friends have no question of the outcome in the city wards.

James B. Connolly, the South Boston author, has announced that he will be a candidate for the nomination, and this fact has caused some enxiety in the O'Connell camp, as it is considered necessary for South Boston and Dorchester to agree on a candidate.

JOLLIFICATION NIGHT.

At the April meeting of the Wollaston Congregational club on Tuesday evening the annual election of officers will take place. Dr. John Mason Little, surgeon with Dr. Grenfeld, will deliver an illustrated talk on "Life on the Labrador." Owing to the success of the recent minstrel show, and as this is the last meeting of the season, it has been planned to make it into "jollification night." Songs of the show will be sung and every one is invited to take part in the jokes and story telling.

LICENSES EXPIRE SATURDAY NIGHT

Cannot Now Be Renewed for a Week or Two, as Mayor Will Take Time.

Committee of City Council Has Not Reported.

Those who neglect to order their junk and for common victuallers also supply of liquid refreshments this week will be singing, "How dry I am" next week, for unless something unforeseen happens Quincy will be dry for a few days at least next week. Why not try the experiment for a few weeks!

The permits to transport liquor held by Quincy expressmen all expire Saturday night April 30, and after that time no expressman will have a right to transport or deliver liquor until granted a permit. If he does so he will land in court, for the Mayor has instructed the police department to arrest any expressman who attempts it.

It was expected that the Mayor would call a special meeting of the City Council this week to act on the granting of permits, but this morning he informed the newspaper men that he did not intend to do so.

The Mayor said that he had received a communication from the License committee requesting that a special meeting be called for Thursday evening. He did not see, however, how this would help matters any.

Continuing, the Mayor said: "In the ordinary course of events orders passed at a meeting held Thursday evening would reach him Saturday morning, which would be only a few hours before the present permits expire." He supposed that he could be "Johnnie on the spot" and sign them immediately, but he did not intend to do so.

He did not intend to sign any man's license until he had looked up the applicant's record, and had a personal interview with him. The law allowed him ten days in which to approve or reject the orders, and he did not know why he should sit up nights to consider the orders.

Continuing, he said, if a meeting was held Thursday night and no orders had been signed by May 1, he would be blamed, when the fault was not his. The Council should have adjourned until tonight if it wanted to expediate matters.

It would seem, therefore, that as stated above, Quincy is likely to be a dry town for a few days at least. The temperance people will not object if the deadlock continues.

Aside from the permits to transport liquor, all licenses to collect

GENERAL MIX-UP

Arrests for Assault, Drunkenness, and Liquor

There was a general mixup in the lunch room of Phillipo Giardiano on Miller street, Sunday night, during which it is alleged that Danato Salvucci got a clip on the head, which it is said that Donato Marini had a hand in. It is also alleged that the gang of Italians present threw Salvucci out of the window. The affair happened just as Officers Curtin and Corbett were going on duty. Officer Curtin grabbed Mariani and placed him under arrest. The arrest of Mariani did not please Gussippi LaPertra and he attempted to rescue the prisoner. As a result all three of the men were placed under arrest for drunkenness.

In court the cases against the three men for drunkenness, and against LaPertra for assault on Officer Curtin, were continued until Friday. Among the spectators at the hearing was Phillipo Gardiano, the proprietor of the place, and before he could leave for home he was placed under arrest by Officer Goodhue on a complaint charging him with violation of the liquor law. This case was continued until May 4.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Remember the census man to treat him politely.

"What will we do with him?" inquires the Charlestown News and Courier, referring to Mr. Roosevelt. What, rather, will he do with us?

The House is getting right mean and spiteful. It even refuses to pay for the gasoline in Speaker Cannon's automobile.

Even if London society is to "spend $15,000,000 in entertaining Mr. Roosevelt," we should like to wager that it will get its money's worth.

What about supplying the umpire an aeroplane or a dirigible this season so that he can overlook the whole game from a safe point and get away with his decision if the crowd becomes belligerent.

DRIFT OF OPINION

When prices of fruit can not be kept up in New York and San Francisco, "commercialism takes the surplus," says the Norwich Bulletin, "and throws it into the bay—it is better for them than selling it cheap or distributing it among the poor." The commercialism here instanced has long been dominant in its special field. Grown arrogant through the power which comes from a strengthening of monopolistic policies, it is offensively exemplifying the odious principle of heaping upon the products it controls all the cost that combination can exact. If the plucked public would only rouse itself, and cut off fruit purchases, as one proportion has drawn the line at high-cost meats in seeking to teach the meat trust and greedy retailers a lesson, there is a likelihood that fruit would take a welcome drop in prices.—Salem News.

All clubs exist to make people comfortable and happy—they can have no other raison d'etre—but London has a new club which specializes in happiness, so to speak," says Chicago Record-Herald. None but the happy can belong to it; none but those who seek happiness will be permitted to "have a good cry" in order to realize happiness. The idea of such a club, it seems, was suggested by the splendid success of Maeterlinck's charming and beautiful poem-play, "The Blue Bird." This is a delicious fantasy for children and adults alike, and it teaches the truth that happiness lies near at hand, in one's home and immediate surroundings, rather than in distant unrealizable plans and ambitions. Those who deliberately and assidously seek happiness fail to find it ,or find it only when, after many disappointments and shattered illusions ,they return home—apparently empty-handed. It may seem at first that the moral of Maeterlinck's play bars the seeking of happiness in a club as well as in any oher external material thing, but we must not be too logical and too pedantic. There is no reason why people with the genius for happiness should not flock together and afford an example to those of us who worry and fret and take life too tragically or business to gloomily.—Framingham News.

In former days every boy was advised to learn a trade, and it was customary for him on reaching a suitable age to be bound apprentice. Some of the old indentures were very stringent. The applicant undertook for a period of seven years to "put himself apprentice to the master, serve him faithfully, keep secrets and obey his lawful commands." Instances were numerous where faithful service secured for the apprentice a share in the business and even the hand of the daughter of the house. All this had been changed by the marked advance made in methods of production. Machinery has very largely replaced handicraft. Trades have become sectional. Whereas years ago a mechanic was able to make a complete article, he is now generally employed in making but a single part of it, the finishers putting the various sections together into a composite whole. The lad no longer sits at the bench with his master, receiving instructions from him, but is handed over to the foreman of a department and gets but a smattering of a trade.

Another reason for the decline of apprenticeship is that the struggle for existence becomes daily keener and the earliest opportunity is taken after a boy leaves school of putting him into the wage-earning ranks. For a few years the boy is thrown from pillar to post, filling any occupation at hand and too often when he is so old that he can no longer be engaged as shop-boy or messenger he is undisciplined, unskilled and unemployable.

The problem is a serious one. In England a national institution of apprenticeship has been formed to aid in the apprenticing of boys and girls to trades in which skill is required. Something is needed to controvert the idea that the subdivision of labor has lessened the intelligent interest found in old craftsmen and that the monotony of machine work has a deteriorating effect. The question of what shall be done with our boys is important.—Christian Science Monitor.

Boston is said to be the only city in the world which has a vocational bureau for its school boys. It was founded with money given by a Boston woman, and the school board pays the salary of one official in it, who gives his entire time to public school pupils wishing employment. Glasgow has taken advantage of a new law in Scotland permitting school boards to combine with other agencies for the same purpose, and has created a committee to help pupils choose a vocation and secure work. Associations are being formed also in London to try and place children leaving school.

There is an increased effort on the part of our educational authorities to send out boys properly prepared for business life. It is frequently charged that they do not succeed in this. Supt. E. W. Weaver, principal of the Boys' High school in Brooklyn, in investigating a complaint of this nature sent to him, found that the writer of the letter hired any boys who came along in answer to an advertisement and then blamed the school for deficiencies.

Superintendent Weaver furnishes some interesting figures on the value of an education to a boy. He thinks that a man without an education who earns $1.50 a day for 300 days in a year does well as an average in this country, and if he keeps that up for forty years he will earn $18,000. He finds that among educated men a low average is $1000 a year. In forty years the total is $40,000. The difference between $18,000 and $40,000 or $22,000, is the value, he concludes, of aboy's time spent at school in getting an education. "Of course," says Superintendent Weaver, "it isn't the time spent at school that enable him to earn this difference in itself, but it is the time spent at school which makes it possible for him to rise to higher walks of employment."

While the importance of education is generally appreciated, this statement may present the matter in a more convincing form. What is aimed at today is to assist our young graduates to secure places where they may at once begin to profit by the instruction they have received.—Christian Science Monitor.

NEW HALL FOR ELKS.

Quincy lodge of Elks which has held its meetings in Greenleaf hall ever since its institution, will hereafter meet in Alpha hall. The first meeting in the new hall will be held Tuesday evening, and it is planned to make the occasion a memorable one. There are six candidates on the list awaiting initiation, and some of these are sure to be on hand to walk the carpet. In addition to the initiation a pleasing program for entertainment has been arranged to include an all star cast in the vaudeville and athletic line. These are enough to ensure a large attendance of members and visitors.

She had paused with her pen in the air.

"What's the matter?" asked the other girl; "can't you finish your letter?"

"Yes. But I don't feel quite sure whether I ought to say 'yours truly or 'yours respectfully' or 'yours sincerely.'"

She thought awhile longer ,and then exclaimed:

"I know what I'll do. I'll sign it 'yours in haste.'"—Washington Star.

MOUNT M'KINLEY ASCENT DOUBTED

Charles Sheldon Says Public Should Await More Details.

SOME POINTS INCREDIBLE.

New Yorker Familiar With Region About the Peak Points Out That Only One of Fairbanks Expedition Has Reported Its Success.

Charles Sheldon, a big game sportsman and explorer of New York city, who for years has known Tom Lloyd, Charles McGonnigle and W. R. Taylor, three of the four men who, according to Lloyd, reached the top of Mount McKinley on April 3, declared the other night that the public could well afford to await a fuller report of the details of the ascent before complete acceptance of the claim.

Mr. Sheldon has hunted big game and explored all through the Alaskan country about the base of Mount McKinley. He said he was thus fully acquainted with many of the difficulties which any party would have to surmount to reach the top of this tallest peak on the American continent.

"I think," said he, "it is due to Tom Lloyd and the three others with him to withhold judgment as to the partial statements transmitted from Fairbanks to the effect that they reached the summit of Mount McKinley. The press reports contain so many assertions that are not in accordance with the facts that little reliance can be placed on them. It is not reasonable to believe that the party had an aneroid barometer which would record an altitude of 20,500 feet with any degree of accuracy. It is ridiculous to suggest that a trail was established to the top of the mountain. It is ridiculous to say that snowshoes were used most of the way up the mountain.

Top of the Mountain a Double Summit.

"It is reported that the flag they left at the summit could be seen from the north side of the mountain, which would be an impossibility, since the top of Mount McKinley is a double summit, consisting of two ridges extending east and west. The south ridge, which is the culminating peak, cannot be seen from the north.

"The leader of the expedition, Tom Lloyd, and also Charlie McGonnigle and Billy Taylor, are personal friends of mine, but I do not know Patterson. Lloyd is perhaps sixty or more years old. McGonnigle and Taylor are very hardy young men, among the best dog "mushers" in the country and thoroughly familiar with winter travel, particularly in that district. None of the three, however, knows anything about technical mountain climbing. They have never seen an Alpine rope or an ice ax and are not familiar with technical mountaineering equipment.

"I have worked and traveled with these three men in winter. I feel quite certain that, although they had been within a distance of six or eight miles of the base of Mount McKinley, none of them had been on the slope before the alleged ascent. I believe that the method they adopted to investigate a route of ascent in the spring with dogs is the correct way to find a route to the summit, and particularly along the eastern ridges, where, the press reports imply, the ascent was made.

Difficulties of an Ascent Tremendous.

"The difficulties are tremendous, not so much the intense cold as the fact that even willows for fuel wood do not grow within five or six miles of the base of the mountain, and timber is at least six miles distant and probably even farther from an approach by the east ridges. This would necessitate on extra amount of material for fuel.

"The difficulties of an ascent are so great that, though McGonnigle and Taylor are courageous and capable of enduring the cold and physical work, a great deal of public skepticism, particularly among those who are familiar with the hardships of mountain climbing, is sure to exist.

"Therefore it is clearly the duty of the press, both to the public and to these men, not to encourage full credibility in the reports of the alleged ascent until the facts and details are authoritatively published, which will enable us to form an intelligent judgment. Only Tom Lloyd apparently brought out the report, the other members of the party having remained in the Kantishna district, 150 miles away, so we haven't their corroborative evidence."

Mr. Sheldon went to this region in 1906 for sport and exploration, spending some time at the base of Mount McKinley and on the slope. He went again in the summer of 1907 and spent a year there.

A Mayor's Bureau For "Kicks."

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston announced recently that he is going to establish a bureau for "kicks." It will be an office in city hall, where two officials will be stationed to listen to all complaints made by citizens about municipal service. Most of the complaints made at the city hall relate to tax and water bills, collection of garbage and condition of streets, and citizens who have kicks to register don't know where to go. The mayor says the valuable time of clerks is consumed in listening to recitals of grievances they can't remedy.

MERCHANTS' WEEK.

Quincy will be interested as to how Salem will observe Merchants' Week. On Tuesday ,says the News, the annual spring merchandise carnival of the Salem Merchants' association will begin and continue through the week. As has already been stated, there will be many attractive features, probably an illumination Tuesday night and a band concert in the square on that occasion. On certain days there will be free souvenir tickets to the Salem theatre performance ,given by the merchants. There will be the usual free return car fares, special individual souvenirs and last, but by no means least, there will be the great attraction in the shape of merchandise bargains ,the equal of which it will be almost impossible to find, quality considered. The general purpose of these carnivals is to impress upon the shopping public that there is no need to go elsewhere to purchase anything desired, for the Salem stores have assortment, quality and quantity, and to further demonstrate that in prices as well as in other qualifications ,the local store keepers are in the front rank.

CARE OF AUTO TIRES.

See that the brakes work correctly, evenly and easily. Never jam on the brakes too suddenly. Instant locking of the brakes not only destroys the tires but is likely to injure the car itself. A car can readily be stopped within a shorter distance by putting on the brakes gradually, yet firmly.

Do not round curves at too great speed. See that the wheels always run true.

Keep away from the curb. How often we see cars jammed against the curb, with the tires pushed out of alignment and the wheel itself strained in an unnatural position.

It is absolutely necessary that the tires be fitted correctly to the rim in the first place. If this is not done, blowouts will be frequent. With the new style detachable rims it is an easy matter to replace a tire quickly and safely.

You cannot expect long tire life if you constantly overload your machines. Tires will not stand up under a heavier load than they were made to carry.

Never allow oil and grease to come into contact with your tires. See that the garage floor is clean and wipe off all the oil that might find its way to the tires. It is a wise precaution to see that oil soaked waste, rags, etc., are kept away from inner tubes in the tonneau tool box.

Never expose your tires to too great a degree of warmth or cold for any length of time. It is a wise plan to stop on the shady side of the street on hot summer days.

Start your car in a straight line, if possible. Do not twist around on the steering wheel before you get under way; this imposes a heavy and unnecessary strain on your tires.

Do not persist in running your car along in street car tracks, as this grinds down one side of the casing.

Whenever possible choose the softest part of the road. Avoid all obstacles and irregularities, and cross car tracks at a wide angle whenever you can do so.

The most common cause for rim cutting except abuse by the operator, is rusty or bent rims. The best way to prevent rust is to paint the inside with some oil paint and that this precaution is important is evident when one considers that a rusty rim is largely responsible for the rotting of the fabric.

Demand For Free Leather

Washington, April 25.—The repeal of the duties on leather and all of its products, and all tanning extracts, is demanded in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Cox (Ind.). It calls for the repeal of those sections of the Payne act relating to those products.

Mortar Bed Saves a Life

Newton, Mass., April 25.—John Gavonia, 40 years old, a carpenter, while at work on the roof of the new theatre at Norumbega park, slipped and fell fifty feet to the ground. His plunge through space terminated in a bed of mortar, to which fact Gavonia owes his life. None of his bones were broken.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Tuberculosis Sunday not Generally Observed

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

In the absence of the pastor on Sunday, Rev. Henry S. Huntington of Milton delivered two able addresses at Bethany church. In the morning he took his text from Psalms 96: 1—"Oh sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord, all the earth." In the evening his address was on "Life and customs in Turkey." Having been a worker in that country for a year he was well qualified to speak, and very interesting. At this service the boys' vested choir sang.

WOLLASTON M. E.

"A good soldier of Jesus Christ" was the subject of Rev. Wesley Wiggin's sermon at the Wollaston Methodist church Sunday. He spoke of the need of courage, loyalty and determination. He said that duty, discipline and devotion were essential characteristics to every good soldier of Jesus Christ. He spoke of the need of devotion to Christ, to the church and the cause of truth. In closing he urged all to be thoroughly consecrated to the service of Christ, ready to obey t ehcall for service at any time, and anywhere.

The Sunday school was in charge of J. A. Sedgwick ,the superintendent, who reviewed the lesson at the close of the study hour by the use of the blackboard. His illustration and applications of the principal points were very impressive. The secretary's report showed a good attendance with a good collection.

The Junior League was in charge of Miss Rena M. Chamberlin, the superintendent assisted by Miss Sadie Teed. It was well attended and full of interest.

Walter Sutermeister led the Epworth League service at 6 o'clock. The subject was a missionary topic—Christian awakening in Korea. God's tender mercy for all his creatures. Miss Bertha Teed was the pianist.

At 7 o'clock Rev. Wesley Wiggin preached a sermon from the words, "Remember my bonds." He spoke of Paul's imprisonment and how men are held by their bonds today. He spoke of the necessity of seeing the overruling power of God in the different conditions of life in which men are placed, and to learn the deeper lessons of trust, submission and devotion, and in all the adverse experience of life to glorify God. Mr. Sutermeister had charge of the praise service ,and Mrs. Orivlle Estes sang a solo.

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S

At St. Chrysostom church Sunday, the Rev. George Walker of Reading was in charge and administered the holy communion at the 8 o'clock service. Mr. Walker preached at the 10.30 o'clock and the evening service, taking for his text in the morning St. Luke 10: 42 "But one thing is needful."

It was a strong sermon on the theme "The one thing needful" bringing out the necessity of regeneration, whereby they that receive baptism rightly are grafted into the church, obtaining the promises of the forgiveness of sin and of our adoption to be sons of God by the Holy Ghost, are visibly signed. Faith is confirmed and grace increased by virtue of prayer unto God.

AN APPRECIATION.

Death under any circumstances or conditions is lamentable, but how peculiarly sad it is when the Inexorable Reaper cuts down one in the very prime and vigor of young manhood and one who possessed all the characteristics that would fit him for a life of usefulness.

We, members of the Tuell Alumni association, mourn the loss of such a one in the death of our friend and associate, Dexter Emerson Wadsworth, who was called home on April 7, 1910.

To him more than to any other individual our organization owes its existence. He was our first president, and his continued enthusiasm and support have been an inspiration to us all. His genial and kindly disposition won him hosts of friends among old and young, influential and obscure alike. Although he was active in many interests, business, philanthropic and social, he was never too busy to give a helping hand when needed. He was the very embodiment of good citizenship and noble manhood.

To the devoted wife and mother, we tender our heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement. It is resolved that a copy of these minutes be sent to the family and that they also be placed on the records.

READY REFERENCE RECIPES.

Novelty Sandwiches.—Cut some thin slices of brown bread and butter, spread lightly with honey and then sprinkle with chopped Barcelona nuts or walnuts. Press the slices firmly together, cut into neat shapes and serve on a dessert paper.

Cracknels.—One pound of flour, six ounces of lard, half ounce of baking powder, a pinch of salt. Rub the lard, baking powder and salt into the flour, mix into a short, stiff paste with milk, make into round cakes and bake for ten minutes in a quick oven.

Apple Custard.—Half fill a pie dish with finely chopped apples. Pour over them a pint of custard made with a pint of milk, one egg and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Put a thin, short crust over all and bake in a moderate oven until a light brown. Do not boil the custard first or it will curdle.

Chestnuts as Vegetable.—Take two pounds of chestnuts, make a slit in the pointed end, throw into boiling salted water, cook for half an hour, strain and skin. Have some well seasoned and thickened gravy ready. Put in your peeled chestnuts and cook for three-quarters of an hour very slowly, so as not to break them. Served with chicken, turkey or any other fowl it will be found delicious.

Delicious Drop Scones.—Half a pound of flour, a teaspoonful of cream of tartar, an ounce of sugar, half a teaspoonful of carbonate of soda, an egg, half a pint of milk, a pinch of salt. Sift together the flour, cream of tartar, salt and carbonate of soda, beat up the egg, add the sugar and stir in the milk. Then add the flour by degrees, beat up into a smooth batter, grease the gridle when hot, drop in tablespoonfuls and turn over when a nice light brown.

Pancake Cutlets.—Have half a pound of cooked meat, chicken or rabbit, two tablespoonfuls of gravy mixed with a little catchup. Chop the meat up fine and mix with the gravy, seasoning well. To make the pancakes use two ounces of flour, a gill of milk, an egg, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and a little pepper. Mix flour, pepper and salt. Beat up egg and add milk, and pour this gradually among the flour, beating well. Melt a teaspoonful of dripping in a frying pan, pour in the pancake batter and brown on both sides. Turn out on a plate, let it cool a little, then spread the meat all over the pancake and roll up neatly. Cut with a sharp knife into half inch slices, egg and breadcrumb and fry in boiling fat.

An Excellent Boiled Pudding.—One breakfast cupful of flour, a pinch of salt, two ounces of sultanas, two ounces of currants, one ounce of brown sugar, a small tablespoonful of beef dripping, one tablespoonful of golden sirup, a small half teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda, the grated half of a nutmeg and a little shredded candied peel. Put the flour, salt, sugar and nutmeg into a bowl, mix thoroughly with the dripping, add the currants, raisins and peel, put in the sirup and mix to the usual consistency with a little cold water. Lastly add the soda, which has been dissolved in a very little cold milk. Put into a greased mold, leaving room for the pudding to swell. Steam for one hour. Serve with sweet sauce.

Hints For Making a Tie.

A pretty tie which may be made by an amateur without danger of failure and from scraps of material fit for nothing else is a box plaited affair of handkerchief linen or fine lawn trimmed with colored lace. The linen is cut about six inches long, and two inches from the bottom two rows of hemstitching run across it. The edges are rolled and finished on the sides and across the bottom with a half inch insertion of colored val lace. The tie is made up with a central box plait and three side plaits on either side. The top is finished with a narrow band of the material, which may have a buttonhole worked in the middle of it to slip over the collar button.

G. W. PERKINS ON GREAT TRUSTS

Favors National Control Accompanied by Publicity.

ONLY COURSE, SAYS BANKER.

Declares the People Have a Right to Know What Giant Corporations Are Doing—Why He Contends State Control Is Impossible.

An argument for national control of our great corporations was made by George W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan & Co. at the Graduate School of Administrative Science at Harvard university, in Cambridge, Mass., the other day. Mr. Perkins in his address referred to the talk that a few evil minded men had brought about conditions which in the end would pauperize the people. He admitted that there were great evils, but went on:

"I ask you to think seriously whether it has been so much the machinations of wicked men that have brought us where we are or the inventions and discoveries of the age—inventions which in themselves have been acclaimed and applauded as great achievements. Were these inventions simply to be laid away on a shelf or were they to be put to practical use? Was the long distance telephone to be a plaything or a practical instrument of commerce? Why applaud the inventor and berate the user?

"We would have no large business concerns and we would not be troubled with some of the business questions now engaging public attention if, with one sweep of the hand, the inventions and discoveries of the age could be wiped out of existence and we put back into the condition under which business had to be transacted about half a century ago.

"The attempt by humans to make laws that will nullify conditions that have come about through the conquest of the mysteries of nature will never succeed. One might just as well attempt to legislate against lightning. If this country does not want business done with the instruments that inventors and discoverers have placed in the hands of business men, then eradicate the causes, not the results. Begin by electrocuting Edison and Marconi; apprehend the Wright brothers and put them behind the bars.

Glaring Abuses In Business Methods.

"The people have witnessed abuses, glaring abuses, in business methods. They have suffered under many of these for years and have found no remedy. They have been told that these abuses came about largely because of the size to which certain business enterprises had grown. For want of a better reason and for lack of real thought many have accepted that one. How un-American to be afraid of a thing because it is large! Who has been afraid of the United States as it has grown from thirteen states to forty-six? Who has wanted a law restricting our population because it is approaching the 100,000,000 mark?

"The true American, he who thinks deeply, logically, has no such fear or belief. It isn't the size that he fears; it is the methods followed. He fears the management of a giant enterprise that is secretive, that does not respect public opinion, that does not realize that when its shares are owned by the public its managers are substantially public servants. He fears the methods of the blind pool—that is all. He wants to know, and he has a right to know from disinterested third parties, what is being done by a great business enterprise in which his money is invested or which is handling a commodity that affects his daily life.

"The officers of great corporations should realize that such concerns are more nearly public institutions than private property. I firmly believe that substantial progress in this direction is being made. While the agitation of the last few years has been unfair and harmful in many instances, on the other hand it has set business men thinking, has awakened the business conscience and has brought a new realization of the fact that it is as true of business as it is of the individual that there is no permanent success unless it be based upon integrity of character.

How Trusts Would Be a Benefit.

"Let those of us who are in business be fair with the people, and the people will be fair with us; let us see and accept the tendency of the times; let us realize our responsibilities, and our problems will be far easier of solution. If we believe that in our republic the people's word is law, let us believe it in all things, and if the people have decided that the time has come to take a hand in how business shall be conducted is it not plain business sense to meet the question at least half way rather than fight it all the way?

"Giant corporations would be not a menace, but a great public benefit, if managed under laws that would compel proper publicity and punish officers for improper methods.

"How can this be done? Here is the problem for us all to think about. For my part, out of the multitude of suggestions there seems to be but one possible course—viz, national control, accompanied by publicity. State control is impossible because steam and electricity have largely wiped out state lines in commercial undertakings."

Mrs. Laffan's Brotherhood of Dogs.

Mrs. De Courcy Laffan, wife of the rector of a busy London parish, has instituted what she calls the "brotherhood of hero dogs." Wherever she hears of a suffering dog it is sent for, if it is where it can be reached, and given a home. Out of this order have come some interesting incidents. One of the dogs has a charity box strapped on his back, and at certain hours he is sent to a railway station and walks up and down the platform soliciting alms for the sick dogs' fund. He seems to know his business, for he makes himself known to the people on the platform, and rarely does he approach one without having a bit of money dropped in the box. In the last twelve months this dog has collected over $1,000 for the brotherhood. Another dog of Mrs. Laffan, a Pomeranian, is one of the cleverest beggars in London. He is in much demand at all sorts of charity entertainments, where he trots around with his collection box. It is usually filled before the entertainment is over. Mrs. Laffan is quite a musician and a song writer, and the proceeds of her work are given to the brotherhood and to the poor

The Lesson She Learned.

A fair western co-ed and one of the male seniors fell violently in love and neglected their studies shamefully. Both were expelled. The fair co-ed therupon wrote this interesting reply to the faculty:

Gentlemen—You have expelled me for neglecting my studies, yet I have learned at your institution more than you will ever know. I have learned the meaning of love. What is the use of studying botany if I am not allowed to gather roses? Why should I devote myself to astronomy if I may not look at the stars? What does it profit me to spend years on mathematics and neglect my own figure? You have expelled my fiance also. Do you think he is unhappy? We were married last evening.

—Exchange.

—It is hoped that the Rockland merchants will do something about having a merchants' week display in this town this year. Brockton had one last year and it was so successful that plans are already underway in that city for another one this summer. Quincy is arranging for a merchants' week and in Stoughton the board of trade recently held a display which might be classed as a merchants' week. There are few towns in this section that can make as good a showing as Rockland. It has an attractive main street, good stores and everything to do with. It is the center for a large territory of tade and it would seem as though it would be an excellent plan to hold a merchants' week here.—Rockland Standard.

REIGN OF FILLETS.

Fashions of Greece For the Easter Girl.

Greek and Roman fashions reappear in the hair ornaments of today, but with a difference. Hairdressers hold that few American faces can stand the severity of purely classic adornments. A woman may be ever so charming, but unless she has Juno's perfect features she had better not assume Juno's fillet. Fillets and wreaths, though, American women will have, and some go so far as to crown their pompadours with two and even three bands. But they are bands such as the maids of Athens never had—fillets with attachments of spangled, sequined and jeweled wings and cabochons. Then there are wreaths of grape leaves, with the fabric made of a lustrous tinsel fabric, exquisitely light, with a sort of moonlight on the frost effect. Hairdressers aver that if the women of old Greece and Rome, with their several fillets, could see these wreaths they would be green with envy, and as they aren't here to deny the statement it will have to be accepted.

CLASSIC TOILET MODERNIZED.

Debutantes with loads of fluffy hair can venture on wearing the simpler fillets of gold or silver, jewels, rhinestones or sequins made without adornments of feathers or bows. A beautiful fillet is of pearls—simple bands confined at either side with cabochons of the same gems—but only a very lovely woman can wear this—ought to wear it, at least. The debutante nowadays is given to lovelocks, careful little ringlets and floating wisps of hair, which are charming when they are artistically done.

For the younger girl, who is not supposed to require many embellishments, are ribbon bowknots and loops and twists of silk to stick in her fluffy hair. Only for her older sisters are the gold and silver poinsettias, the winged insects, the clusters of golden fruit and the filmy birds. One favorite ornament for older girls is a tuft of frosted silver wheat mixed with the misty feathers of an aigret and caught to the hair with a silver white butterfly.

The beauty of these ornaments depends much on the quality of the tinsel. "There's an awful difference in tinsel," remarked one dealer in hair ornaments as she laid out two specimens, one most exquisite, the other gaudy and inartistic just because of the cheap tinsel used in making it.

Two kinds of gold are fashionable in making up hair ornaments. One sort is termed pale gold and the other old gold. Neither has the decided yellow to be found in Frenchy side combs and mountings for broad and narrow rhinestone bandeaus.

—The Mansfield Board of Trade has adopted a very pleasant and original slogan for its 1915 movement. It is: "A better Mansfield to look at, a better Mansfield to live in." The idea of town planning was suggested to the Executive Committee of the Board by a communication which appeared in the Mansfield News several weeks ago under the caption "Town Planning," written by Rev. E. F. Snell, the local Congregational minister. Let us hope the work done from now until 1915 will result in all the slogan implies.

BRIEFS

Rather cool today.

The last week of April.

The comet is still in hiding.

The days are nearly fourteen hours long.

The full moon of Sunday brought a cold storm.

Washington street has been treated to a coat of oil dust preventative.

Boston police arrested two men on Saturday evening while attempting to pick the pockets of Charles Charnoff of 60 Quincy avenue, Quincy.

The street railway commenced work this morning building its new turnout on Washington street extending from Union street to Mill street. The location for this turnout was granted in 1907.

No Council meeting tonight. The next regular meeting is scheduled for Monday, May 2, and unless a special meeting is held during the coming week that session will doubtless be a long one, as there is a large amount of business pending.

Miss Mabel E. Lovejoy of Butler road entertained about twenty-five of her most intimate girl friends at a birthday party on Saturday. During the evening many new and interesting games were introduced which caused much merriment. The successful winners of prizes were Misses Murial Rogers, Miriam A. Rhodes and Olive Houston. At the close ices were served. Miss Lovejoy was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts, besides being showered with congratulations.

HIS ROLL GONE.

John Wolkinson, hailing from New York, spent last Friday night in the police station, having been arrested for creating a disturbance on the steam cars. Aside from paying a fine of $25, he will have cause to remember his first visit to Boston, and forming a friendship with a stranger who got his roll of $105. He told the court that he came to Boston to get a job. Arriving about 5 o'clock Friday he visited a bar room and restaurant near the depot, where he had lunch and liquid refreshments. There he met a new found friend to whom he he told the story of his life and of his roll. The friend offered to take him to his home in Neponset for the night and find him a job in the morning. They took a train at the depot, and the next thing he knew he came to in the police station with a heavy feeling head and his roll gone.

BAKED RHUBARB.

Prepare the stalks as for pies; place a layer in the bottom of baking pan, sprinkle with sugar and bits of butter, then another layer and more sugar and butter, until all is used. Set in oven until thoroughly cooked. Do not use any water and you will find this an excellent sauce.—Rural New Yorker.

GODDESS VISITS BOWERY

She Is Valued at $1500 and Was "Hocked" For Fifty Cents

New York, April 25.—The Egyptian goddess Neith, whose disappearance from the galleries of the Metropolitan Museum of Art so agitated the museum authorities, turned up on the Bowery. She had suffered the indignity of being pawned for 50 cents.

The goddess' form was embodied in a statuette 9¾ inches tall, of great artistic value and worth approximately $1500 on a commercial basis. The statuette dates from about the seventh century B. C.

When the connoisseurs of the museum were informed that the goddess had been located on the Bowery they could hardly be convinced that even on that plebeian thoroughfare the Egyptian deity had been appraised at a bare half dollar.

The pawnbroker with whom the statuette was pledged gave the detectives a description of the poorly-clad man who brought it to him.

TRYING TO DODGE CHAIR

Wolter's Case to Be Taken Before New York Court of Appeals

New York, April 25.—An appeal to save Albert Wolter from the electric chair, following his conviction of the murder of Ruth Wheeler, will be made to the state court of appeals by Wallace D. Scott, his attorney.

Mr. Scott is not ready to say definitely upon what the appeal will be based, but he hints that one ground will be the contention that Judge Foster erred in refusing his request that the jury be charged that if reasonable doubt as to Wolter's guilt existed, the prisoner should receive the benefit of it.

Wolter retains his indifference. At no time has he manifested any emotion over the prospect of facing sentence on Wednesday.

PLACED IN GRAVE AT HIS WIFE'S SIDE

No Music or Honorary Bearers at Clemens' Funeral

Elmira, N. Y., April 25.—Under a tent on the Langdon plot in Woodlawn cemetery, with rain beating fiercely against the canvas cover, a little group silently watched as the body of Samuel L. Clemens was lowered into a grave beside the bodies of his wife and children.

Rev. Samuel E. Eastman, a close friend of the late humorist, conducted a brief and simple service, and Mark Twain's final pilgrimage was at an end.

At the grave were only members of the family party who came from New York with the body, a former governess of the Clemens family, two of her friends, the sexton and half a dozen newspaper men.

Services had previously been held at the residence of General Charles J. Langdon, where forty years ago, Mark Twain married the general's sister. In keeping with Mr. Clemens' wish, the ceremony was simple. There was no music, no honorary pallbearers—just the brief address and prayer by Dr. Eastman.

FOR OVERTIME WORK

Nearly $300,000 to Be Paid Letter Carriers In New England

Washington, April 25.—Many letter carriers in New England will benefit by a bill passed by the house, which has already passed the senate, providing for the distribution of nearly $300,000 as pay for work by carriers in excess of eight hours a day under a ruling of twenty years ago.

Many similar claims have already been paid, but those covered by the bill just passed were barred by the statute of limitations, which is now removed. The amounts due the men range from $13,915 in Boston down to $26.60 to be paid the Northampton carriers.

HEINZE TRIAL BEGINS

Violation of National Banking Laws Charged Against New Yorker

New York, April 25.—After a long series of demurrers, reindictments and other legal red tape, F. A. Heinze was placed on trial today before Judge Martin and a jury in the criminal branch of the United States circuit court.

He is charged, as was Charles W. Morse, with violations of the national banking laws, specifically with overcertification of the checks of Otto Heinze & Co. and misappropriation of the funds of the Mercantile National bank, of which he was the former head.

Aviators Fly Over Sea

MRS. GLOVER'S CLAIM UPHELD

Court Declares Husband's Will Was Legally Executed

BROTHERS TO MAKE APPEAL

Four Who Were Disinherited Will Ask For Jury Trial Before Supreme Court—Probate Court Decree Gives Three-Fourths of Estate to Widow and Balance to Seymour Glover—Undue Influence Was Alleged

Cambridge, Mass., April 25.—The Clarence F. Glover will case, bitterly contested in the Middlesex probate court for more than two months, was decided in favor of Mrs. Lillian Glover, widow of the murdered laundryman, and against Glover's four disinherited brothers.

The legal battle, however, is not ended. On the announcement of the decision, Jesse M. Gove, counsel for the contesting brothers, immediately declared that an appeal will be filed, asking for a trial by jury before the supreme court.

The weaving in of the murder charge and the sensational declarations of the counsel for the contestant brothers stamped the case as one of the most unique of its kind ever to be tried in Middlesex county.

Judge McIntire, in making the decision, declared that Glover's will was legally executed, while the testator was of sound mind and memory.

"I am obliged to find," the decision reads, "that the contestants have failed to prove that the instrument presented for probate was procured by the improper and undue influence of Lillian Glover, and to find, further, that it is the last will and testament of Clarence F. Glover."

The contestants had sought to prove that Glover was induced to make certain provisions in the will through fear of bodily harm at the hands of his wife.

In this decision sustaining the will, which provides for the wife with three-fourths of the estate, the remaining fourth going to Seymour Glover, McIntire says:

"In the somewhat vague expressions of his fear of her, testified to have been made by Glover to several persons at various times; and of his belief that some day she would shoot him; and his statements, if made, of the fact that he was about to make, or had made, a will different in its provisions from what his brothers might expect, and further testimony of that nature, I am unable to find sufficient indications that he was compelled irresistibly to make a will against his conscience or desire.

"Such provision for a wife does not seem excessive or unnatural, or contrary to what might be expected of any husband in providing for his wife after his decease; but if in this case there can be a doubt whether Glover was forced by his wife to make this instrument, containing his intention and desire, then we should remember that a will is not irrevocable, and that while Glover was free and had ample opportunity to have destroyed, revoked or annulled this instrument, and to have made another more to his liking at any time during the seven remaining months of his life, he failed to do so. Failing to do so is one of the strongest arguments that the instrument expresses his own wishes."

BABY FALLS THREE STORIES

Seems to Enjoy It as He Falls Into the Arms of Policeman

New York, April 25.—That he is proficient in catching babies who fall from high windows was proved by Policeman John J. Buckley, who made the neatest recovery of little Willie Brown, who was enticed over the edge of a third story fire escape by the melodies of a street piano, that has ever been known here.

The baby received a scratch from one of Buckley's brass buttons, but he was otherwise uninjured. He hugged the policeman and laughed just as though it was part of the game.

HAS NOT YET DECIDED

Hughes Has Been Asked to Consider Supreme Court Appointment

Washington, April 25.—President Taft has written directly to Governor Hughes asking him if he will consider an appointment to the supreme court bench in the place made vacant by Justice Brewer. Hughes has not yet replied. This, it is said, is as far as the matter has gone.

Those close to the president believe that Hughes will finally accept the offer.

IT MEANS HIGHER PRICES

Damage by Storm In Middle West Reaches More Than $30,000,000

Chicago, April 25.—In the most disastrous and far-reaching storm experienced in a generation, damage amounting to more than $30,000,000 has been wrought in the middle west to budding crops, fruits and vegetables.

The Michigan fruit belt—the backbone of the fruit district—is described as almost wiped out for the season.

Freezing temperature in Illinois and Iowa not only has killed buds, flowers and fruits, but threatened to ruin oats.

Commission men agree that the middle west will suffer the greatest loss it has ever experienced because of the storm. They also say that high prices automatically will begin at once.

IMPENDING REVOLT NIPPED IN BUD

Race War Agitators In Cuba Are Placed Under Arrest

Havana, April 25.—The culmination of the recent agitation of the race question in various parts of the island was reached when General Estenoz, the leader of the Independent Party of Color, and four of his associates were arrested.

This was followed by the arrest of twenty-four negroes in Havana, three in Oriente and two in Santa Clara.

Among the negroes arrested some are said to belong to secret societies which are fanatically hostile to the whites, and which have been practising drills in anticipation of a general uprising of the blacks.

The vigorous action of the government is generally commended as calculated to nip in the bud a dangerous movement if permitted to gain headway. There is much excitement among the negroes, but no outward manifestations, and it is believed that they have been overawed by the sudden action of the authorities.

CRUCIFIED ON A CROSS

Crown of Thorns Placed on Head of Spy by Drunken Miners

Washington, Pa., April 25.—George Rabish, a foreign coal miner, is in a critical condition as a result of an outrage perpetrated upon him by a crowd of drunken countrymen, who twice crucified him after crowning him with thorns.

Rabish incurred the enmity of other miners employed at the Avella mines of the Pittsburg and Washington Coal company by playing spy, and had reported several miners for breaches of the mining rules.

Rabish was rescued by officers the second time in an exhausted condition. Four men were arrested.

STOMACH BOTHERS HIM

But Weston Is Greatly Refreshed by Long Rest During Sunday

Utica, N. Y., April 25.—After a breakfast of pancakes, broth and bread, Edward P. Weston went to bed at Vernon, sixteen miles west of Utica, at 8 o'clock Sunday morning after giving orders that he should not be disturbed. He awoke about 7 o'clock last evening greatly refreshed and resumed his tramp to the east at 12:05 this morning.

Weston has suffered considerably with indigestion and even now experiences sharp pains in his stomach.

WOMAN GIVES IMPORTANT TIP

Heard Coleman Say That He Had $100,000 Planted

BANK LOOTER'S PLANS AWRY

Expected to Live Well After Doing Five-Year Term In Prison—Bank Never Missed $8000 He Stole Some Time Ago—Paid It Back and Held Job—"Big Bill" Finds Jail Life Somewhat Irksome

Boston, April 25.—The Post says: If George W. Coleman, the self-confessed looter of the National City bank of Cambridge, does not with extreme haste "dig up" $100,000 or give some satisfactory evidence of where it is the federal officials will make him sweat for it.

To their surprise and humiliation after the young man had expressed complete contrition for his act they now find themselves confronted with this statement made by the bank looter:

"Nobody need worry about George Coleman. I have $100,000 planted safely away where no one can get it. I'll do my five years and come back and live like a gentleman. Five years at $20,000 looks soft to me."

This was Coleman's statement to Miss Mamie Hightower, his fiancee, and Miss Laura Atwood, her friend, and he added: "I'll take care of both you girls for the rest of your lives."

This evidence was given to the federal authorities and because Miss Atwood decided to be good and to tell what she knew she is occupying an expensive room at the Hotel Bellevue.

Miss Atwood has "thrown down" her former champions and will be a witness for the government any time she is wanted. She fears that George Coleman will get too long a term at Atlanta to redeem his promise.

One morning nearly two years ago while the directors were in session the youthful bookkeeper walked into the room and in solemn tones said: "Gentlemen, I have a confession to make. I have stolen $8000 of the bank's money and spent it. I am sorry for it. But my father will make good the loss to you, and the bank will be made whole."

The directors stared at him in amazement. Not a hint of the fact that any one in the bank was short had reached them. Coleman had concealed it effectually. They conferred together and decided to accept the offer of Coleman's father to make good the loss.

The money was paid to the bank and then the president told Coleman he had learned a lesson and had barely escaped prison. In view, however, of his having seen the error of his ways they were going to be extremely magnanimous and give him his job back. And they did so.

It did not take Coleman long to forget his good intentions and proceed to do a thorough an dskillful job of bank looting. The directors, however, were no more shrewd than they were before, and that is how he got away with it a second time.

William J. Keliher, better known as "Big Bill," charged by the United States authorities with aiding and abetting Coleman in separating the National City bank of Cambridge from some $309,000, is experiencing considerable difficulty in raising a bond of $23,000 to secure his release on bail from the Charles street jail.

"Big Bill" passed a very unhappy Sunday in cell 9. It was bad enough to be deprived of his expensive imported cigars, his automobile rides, the congenial society of his late associates, but the last straw was the jail cuisine.

BONDS VALUED AT $6000

Stolen by Unknown Thief and Returned by Special Delivery

Concord, N. H., April 25.—Negotiable securities to the value of more than $6000, which were stolen eight days ago from the office of Miss Grace E. Blanchard, the city librarian, were returned to her in a mysterious manner.

The bonds were mailed at the Boston and Maine depot at 8 o'clock Saturday night in a plain envelope which bore a special delivery stamp. There was nothing with the papers to indicate the identity of the thief, and the police have no clue.

Ben Lomond, Cal., April 25.—In the presence of a crowd of critical fight followers, Jeffries gave a physical culture exhibition Sunday that more than satisfied the visitors. CHILDREN DIE WITH THEIR GRANDMOTHER

Asphyxiated When Baby Turns on Gas In Their Home

Pawtucket, R. I., April 25.—A triple asphyxiation as the result, it is believed, of a child accidentally opening a gas cock, occurred in this city.

The bodies of Mrs. Virgina Soyette, 60 years of age; Leona Hubert, 22 months old, and Leopold Hubert, 10 months old, were found by Mrs. Dominico Hubert at her home, 905 Main street.

Mrs. Soyette, who was the grandmother of the two children, was caring for them while their mother, Mrs. Hubert, was absent. As Mrs. Soyette was troubled with catarrh, it is thought that she did not smell the escaping gas until too weak to make her escape or summon assistance.

When Mrs. Hubert returned to her home she found the three bodies lying in a heap in the pantry, and the rooms full of gas.

Wilks.

Among the few persons in close touch with Mrs. Green it is understood that for years she has been quietly training her daughter to successfully manage her immense fortune. Mrs. Green is 73 years old.

CITIZENSHIP IN A REPUBLIC

Roosevelt Delivers Long-Anticipated Lecture In Paris

MAN'S RIGHTS COME FIRST

Those of Property a Secondary Consideration, Though Both Are Identical In the Long Run—Has Poor Opinion of Man Who Does Nothing—Greatest of All Curses Declared to Be the Curse of Sterility

Paris, April 25.—Theodore Roosevelt's distinctive literary day in Paris was a triumph. He has taken his seat as a member of the institute, and every one is talking of the lcture on "Citizenship in a Republic," which the ex-president delivered in the vast ampitheathre of the University of Paris.

To use Roosevelt's own words, the day marked the crowning of his career as a man of letters.

In the course of his Sorbonne address Mr. Roosevelt made reference to the subject of human rights and property rights as follows:

"My position as regards the moneyed interests can be put in a few words. In every civilized society property rights must be carefully safeguarded; ordinarily and in the great majority of cases, human rights and property rights are fundamentally and in the long run, identical; but when it clearly appears that there is a real conflict between them, human rights must have the upper hand; for property belongs to man and not man to property."

Epigrams in the lecture which have attracted attention follow:

The main source of national power and national greatness is found in the average citizenship.

The poorest way to face life is to face it with a sneer.

The man who does nothing cuts the same sordid figure in the pages of history, whether he be cynic, or fop, or voluptuary.

The average man must earn his own livelihood * * * and should be trained to feel he occupies a contemptible position if he does not do so.

The choice must ever be in favor of righteousness and this whether the alternative be peace or whether the alternative be war. No self-respecting individual can * * * or ought to submit to wrong.

I pay all homage to intellect and to elaborate and specialized training of the intellect, but more important still are the commonplace, every-day qualities and virtues.

Such ordinary, every-day qualities include the will and the power to work, to fight at need, and to have plenty of healthy children.

The greatest of all curses is the curse of sterility, and the severest of all condemnation should be that visited on wilful sterility. The first essential in any civilization is that the man and the woman should be the father and mother of healthy children, so that the race shall increase and not decrease.

If we of the great republics bring down upon our heads the curse that comes upon the wilfully barren, then it will be an idle waste of breath to prattle of our achievements.

I believe a man must be a good patriot before he can be * * * a good citizen of the world.

The good citizen will demand liberty for himself, and as a matter of pride he will see to it that others receive the liberty which he thus claims as his own. Probably the best test of true love of liberty in any country is the way in which minorities are treated in that country. Not only should there be complete liberty in matters of religion and opinion, but complete liberty for each man to lead his life as he desires, provided only that in so doing he does not wrong his neighbor.

Anna Held Says She Has "Nerves" and Needs a Rest

New York, April 25.—Anna Held needs a rest and therefore left the stage Saturday night by way of Fourteenth street.

"After this week I shall be a plain woman," she said with wide-eyed seriousness. "I need a rest; for fourteen years now I've been on the stage and I am tired. You see I 'ave nerves. And then, too, I 'ave a dollar or two. I shall live on my income; I shall not touch my capital. Some day I may need that for something per-r'aps."

BUTTER AT FORTY CENTS.

A tramp who visited a house in Weymouth last week, in search of food, deserves the banner for being cheeky. The lady of the house where he had called for food had given him some bread and a plate of butter with which to spread the bread. The tramp was spreading the butter on rather thick which caused the lady to remark. "Do you realize that butter cost forty cents a pound." Never stopping in his work of putting on the butter the tramp looked up and quietly remarked, "Well it is worth it."

WHY KITCHENER NEVER WED

Famous Soldier Who Favors a West Point Academy In Australia.

Field Marshal Lord Horatio Herbert Kitchener, who recently visited West Point, is one of the foremost soldiers in the world of today and is known to his brother officers as "K. of K." (Kitchener of Khartum).

The establishment of an institution in Australia similar to West Point is a pet scheme of his lordship, and in company with Colonel Scott he was taken through the cadet barracks and the various academic departments, where everything was fully explained.

The noted soldier has explained to some of his friends in New York that he has been wrongfully classed as a woman hater. He has never married chiefly because of his firm conviction that a man can't be a very good husband and soldier at the same time.

During his first campaigns in Egypt as sirdar, 1892 to 1896, when there was continuous fighting on the Sudan frontier, he had frequent occasion to dispatch officers from Cairo hurriedly to the front. Many of them lived with their wives at Shepheard's or the Continental hotel. The women came with tearful pleading to request the commander in chief to send any one to be killed by the dervishes except their husbands.

The sirdar finally decided to send back all the married British officers to the imperial forces and keep only the bachelors in the Egyptian service. Since that period he has made a point of getting rid of his staff officers directly they became husbands.

When Captain Fred Jones returned to St. John, N. B., from the Boer war he was asked by his friends if he had seen Lord Kitchener. He replied that he had, but that their chat was somewhat brief.

"It was like this," said the captain. "I had received my marching orders from home and did not wish to leave until I had seen the commander in chief, of whom I had heard so much. I asked a horse gunner if he could direct me to 'K.'s' tent, and he told me where to go.

"I followed the instructions and, looking through an opening in the canvas, saw a tall man, who badly needed a shave, sitting at a small table smoking a short clay pipe and writing dispatches. He wore riding boots, khaki breeches and a gray flannel shirt.

"I went back to the horse gunner and accused him of jesting, as I felt sure that the man I had seen could not be Lord Kitchener. He swore that he was, however, and I went back to the tent and walked in. When the tall man looked up from his writing I said, 'Lord Kitchener, I presume?' He replied tersely: 'Yes. Who are you?' I answered, 'I am Captain Fred Jones of the Canadian militia.' He said, 'Well, get out of here,' and I came away."

When Lord Roberts was commander in chief in South Africa, with Lord Kitchener as chief of staff, a colonel of the Royal engineers was sent for to find out how long it would take him to build a bridge across the Modder river. After leaving Lord Roberts' tent the colonel was stopped by Kitchener, who inquired when the bridge would be ready. The colonel replied airily that he thought it might be done in three weeks.

"If we don't have that bridge ready in seven days, colonel," said Lord Kitchener quietly, "we shall have to send you home." The bridge was built.

FORTUNE IN WALL PAPER.

Man Who Decorated Room With Mine Certificates Finds Them Valuable.

Ten years ago Henry Brink of Melrose, Cal., purchased a few thousand shares of stock in an Arizona gold mine. In return for several hundred dollars he received a great bundle of beautiful green certificates handsomely engraved.

After waiting in vain for the mine to become productive and finally deciding that as an investor he was as green as his certificates Brink papered his room with the souvenirs of his folly. As a mural decoration the stock was worth par.

He was informed a few days ago that porcelain clay of rare quality had been discovered on the mine site and that his certificates in consequence are worth a fortune. Brink promptly watered his stock—that is, he soaked it—and the certificates peeled off nicely.

Memorial to Penobscot Indians.

Members of the tribe of Penobscot Indians who fought in the colonial army during the Revolutionary war are to be honored by a statue that will be erected in their memory in the cemetery on Indian island, in Maine. In this graveyard lie the remains of nearly all the red men of Maine who fought with the colonists. Plans are under way to place a block of Maine granite with a tablet on it relating how the Penobscot tribe aided the American forces.

It is thought that the goods of the late Dr. William Everett, sold on Saturday, aggregated from $4,000 to $5,000. Some lots of silver ware sold for over $200, and some pieces of furniture over $100. A large mirror sold for $72, and some autograph pictures for $20 to $50. Previous to the sale three heavily loaded two-horse teams and a single horse team took most of his books to Boston.

STORIES OF THE DIAMOND.

Jack Doyle Says Old Orioles Were Greatest Ball Team.

PULLED OFF MANY STUNTS.

Tricks and Schemes of Baltimore Club Way Back In Nineties Would Almost Fill Book—How Single Was Forced Into Home Run.

No. III.

By JACK DOYLE.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Every now and then one will read of or see a daring, sensational or brainy piece of headwork pulled off on the diamond. To the average fan this or that stunt may appear wonderful, but to the player himself it is only part of his work. I do not want to be egotistical, but it is a fact. When I was a member of the old Baltimore Orioles I managed to pull off many clever stunts and helped engineer several sensational plays which were very successful and thought nothing of it. It was part of my daily work. I've always said and still think that the old Baltimore team was the brainiest aggregation of ball tossers ever brought together. The tricks and schemes they worked successfully on the diamond would come pretty near filling a book.

For instance, here is one they pulled off and what I consider the greatest I ever saw. It was made by Willie Keeler and Johnny McGraw in a game with Washington away back in the nineties. Unlike most plays, this wasn't a fielding stunt, but a piece of base running. Willie was on first and McGraw at the bat. The latter shot a neat single into left field, and Al Selbach loafed a bit on it, seeing that Keeler was sure to make third with ease, but expecting him to pull up there. Willie instead of pulling up went full steam ahead for home plate, and before Bill Joyce had received the ball was virtually over the plate. McGraw never stopped at first, but kept on to second to draw a throw that would enable Keeler to score. McGraw recognized Selbach's loaf, and like a flash he guessed that Keeler was going home. He never hesitated at second, but dashed for third, arriving just as Joyce was gathering in Selbach's throw out of the grass. Here McGraw did some very quick thinking. He remembered that Joyce had a bad arm and thought that the catcher would not be expecting a throw. Without pulling up at third at all he scooted for the plate. His quick thinking turned out to be right. The dust from Keeler's slide was just lifting as McGraw dived for the home plate and beat in the throw with a close decision. There two runs scored on what should have been only a single, though the scorer had to give McGraw credit for a home run. This is just a sample of what won three pennants for Baltimore.

Recently a manager of a prominent club in the American league was quoted as saying that he had a long list of code signals that could not be beat. This fellow's ideas are all wrong. No team should have a long list of signals. It is not always the ball club with the most signals that wins games. The old Baltimore club, of which I was a member for several seasons, had very few signals, and what they did have were very simple ones at that. Still, the team managed to win three banners in a row and came very near capturing the fourth. Here is another instance. When Jimmy Collins managed the Boston Americans and won three flags no signs were used at all excepting, of course, those necessary between the two ends of the batteries. The most complicated system of baseball, while theoretically astounding, has never been a practical success.

A short time ago I had quite a little chat with Amos Rusie, the famous old New York pitcher. Amos is now a hardworking lumberman in Muncie Ind., and not a pearl diver at $1.50 a day, as has been reported many times, and the big fellow is contented with his environments. In his day Rusie was the greatest twirler doing slab duty. He had everything that a twirler needed—control, speed and good curve—and well I know it, for I caught him in many games. I'll never forget my first trip with Rusie on the road. The members of the team told him that every trip they made on a Pullman a number of pairs of shoes were stolen. They said that suspicion pointed to the porter, and Amos was asked to sit up and watch for the midnight raider. Rusie selected a seat in the smoker prepared to do detective duty and a little bouncing duty on the side. He dosed off after awhile and wasn't awakened until about 3 in the morning, when the porter walked into the smoker with several pairs of shoes that he intended shining in order to get a morning tip. Rusie at once decided that he had found his victim and jumped from his seat and grabbed the porter. In less than three minutes he had the colored man in worse condition than Wolgast had Nelson.

The porter spent a week or so in the hospital as a result of the mixup, and it cost the New York club several hundred dollars to square things.

An Egg Worth Cackling Over.

Charles Ellis of North Plainfield, N. J., has a hen that laid a freak egg the other day, the like of which has never been seen in North Plainfield before. The egg was of the shape of a dumbbell. The two bulbs were connected by a solid part. Each bulb was soft shelled. In one was the yolk, and in the other was the white.

Palace of Stone Resembling Amber.

The czar's new palace at Livadia, in the Crimea, Russia, will be a wonderfully beautiful building. It will be built entirely of Balaklava stone, which when polished resembles pure amber, giving buildings of which it is constructed a fairy-like appearance. The palace will be completed in 1912.

—It has been discovered that the maternity ward in the Malden hospital is really in Medford. That makes the babies, who were born in the hospital, natives of the city of Medford. This comes from putting the building too near the boundary line, together with neglect in properly locating the line.—Lynn Item.

Vol. 24 No. 97 QUINCY, MASS., TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 26, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

WHAT WILL THEY DO WITH CITY OF QUINCY?

Will It Remain in Tenth District or Go Into the Twelfth or Fourteenth?

Not Impossible That It Will Be in Foss District

JOHN WINGATE WEEKS.

EUGENE N. FOSS.

A Boston paper comments on Congressional districts as follows: "When the Legislature redistricts the Tenth, it is expected that Wards 20 and 24 of Boston, Republican strongholds will be placed in the Eleventh district to make that solidly Republican, and Wards 18 and 19, Democratic, will be taken from the Eleventh and put in the Tenth."

But there is more to be considered. Such a transposition would separate Quincy and Milton from the balance of the Tenth district. Quincy would not object, because then the city would be placed in some other district, but how would the Tenth district be made up?

The facts are that Boston was not large enough in itself to be entitled to three Congressman, so that Winthrop was added to the Ninth district and Quincy and Milton to the Tenth district, while the Eleventh district is made up wholly of Boston wards. Boston's percentage of gain is not as fast as the balance of the State, so that more cities and towns must in 1911 be added to the Boston districts.

Quincy and Milton, however, should be dropped because they have nothing in common with Dorchester or South Boston. The first additions to the Boston districts should be the cities and towns of Suffolk county—Chelsea Winthrop and Revere. If these are not enough then include Brookline which is surrounded by Boston wards, or Cambridge and Somerville which are almost under the State House dome. Three districts of about the right size could be made up from the cities of Boston and Cambridge; then it would not be difficult to place the suburban cities and towns. Quincy and Milton would go into the Twelfth district, and Winthrop into the Seventh. Some of Norfolk county may be needed in the Plymouth or Bristol districts, the Fourteenth and Thirteenth.

At the apportionment in 1901 the average population of the districts was 200,382. The population by Congressional districts follows:

Dist.	Congressman	Population
No. 1,	Lawrence	201,378
No. 2,	Gillett	199,888
No. 3,	Washburn	199,064
No. 4,	Tirrell	200,801
No. 5,	Ames	200,552
No. 6,	Gardner	200,266
No. 7,	Roberts	205,665
No. 8,	McCall	205,807
No. 9,	Kelliher	199,718
No. 10,	O'Connell	199,202
No. 11,	Peters	198,507
No. 12,	Weeks	197,585
No. 13,	Greene	200,712
No. 14,	Foss	196,201

It will be observed that the three Boston districts are shy on population about 3,719 in the aggregate. With Quincy, Milton and Winthrop out they would have been 45,883 short. Brookline has a population of 23,436, Revere 12,669, Chelsea 37,289, Cambridge 97,434, Somerville 69,272.

It will also be observed that the Fourteenth district which extends from Hingham to Provincetown is also short, and that it may be necessary to add Weymouth, Holbrook and Braintree, and possibly Randolph, Quincy and Milton. The new population by the census of 1910 will of course be an important factor.

—Lower prices for potatoes, flour and many varieties of canned goods delighted housewives of New York City on their visits to grocery stores last week, and many bakers cheerfully anounced to their customers that loaves of bread are one and two ounces heavier than for the last year. Moreover, grocers predicted lower prices all along the line, especially in vegetables. The drop in retail prices, the grocers declare, is likely to be sensensational. Prices of meats, however, remained stubbornly at the top mark, but even the representatives of some of the Western packers for the first time in months were willing to admit that falling off in prices is possible within a short time.

THE LOGICAL CANDIDATE

J. Mitchell Galvin Will Have Hearty Support

J. Mitchell Galvin of Dorchester, Boston's former city clerk, who was the Republican candidate against Congressman O'Connell two years ago, and was defeated by only four votes throughout the entire district, regards himself as the logical candidate on the Republican side, says the Boston Herald which adds: As far as he knows up to the present time, he will be unopposed for the Republican nomination, and with that he is confident of defeating either Congressman O'Connell or Councilman James M. Curley.

With Congressman O'Connell and Candidate Galvin in the fight was Gen. Hazard Stevens, who ran as an independent candidate. He did not try for a nomination, but went out to defeat both O'Connell and Galvin, and he secured many votes which would have gone to Candidate Galvin if there were only two in the contest.

When the result of the election was announced, Candidate Galvin charged that he was unfairly beaten and secured a recount. The recount did not change the result as far as the election department of this city, Quincy and Milton were concerned, and Congressman O'Connell's election was protested at Washington by Mr. Galvin in an attempt to unseat the congressman. A hearing was given upon the matter by the congressional committee on elections. Though the committee gave an extended hearing upon the matter, it has thus far failed to report.

That he was unfairly beaten and that he has suffered a wrong which the people of the 10th district want remedied, is Mr. Galvin's contention.

Says He was Beaten Unfairly.

"I claim that I was fairly and squarely elected to represent the 10th congressional district at the last national election," Mr. Galvin said yesterday. "Consequently, I believe that I have suffered a wrong which the people of the district want to see righted.

"I will be a candidate next fall provided that my friends in the Republican party desire it. The whole matter is in their hands. If they have anybody else, who, in their opinion, can make a better run than I can, then I will cheerfully withdraw. I have nothing to say regarding the coming fight until the campaign for the nomination opens. Then I will define my position."

Practically all the recognized Republican leaders are of the opinion that Mr. Galvin is the one man who can win the election. He is a close friend of Senator Lodge and it is understood that the word has been passed about the district already that the senior United States senator and the national Republican committee, as well as the officials of the Republican state committee want to see Mr. Galvin nominated. As a result of Mr. Galvin's close run two years ago they feel that a Republican can win if his campaign is properly conducted and everything will be done to wage a winning fight.

Chairman Hatfield of the Republican state committee is one of several who belives that J. Mitchell Galvin is the logical candidate to oppose the Democratic nominee and win.

"The Republicans lost the 10th congressional district two years ago by only four votes, J. Mitchell Galvin, the Republican candidate, making an extraordinary run," Mr. Hatfield said yesterday. "Surely no one will contend the Republicans are any weaker now than they were at that time, or that the district is not debatable ground. In the Dorchester end of the district, in Quincy and in Milton, there are large normal Republican pluralities, and I believe the Republicans will stand as solidly behind the Republican nominee this year as they did two years ago."

TODAY'S COURT.

Fred S. Tobey of Wakefield and Otto Hallberg of Boston were fined $15 each for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

WEDDING AT WOLLASTON

Lillian M. Smith the Bride of Walter H. Nichols

Surrounded by relatives and a few close friends Miss Lillian Mae Smith, daughter of Mrs. Anna Carter Smith of NewYork City, and Walter Hinckley Nichols son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Nichols of Wollaston were united in marriage on Monday evening at 407 Newport avenue, Wollaston. The house was prettily decorated with daffodils, white lilacs and lilies of the valley by Patterson of Wollaston.

The ceremony was solemnized at eight o'clock by Rev. Edward A. Chase of the Wollaston Congregational church. A ladies orchestra played the wedding march, the bridal party entering the parlor as follows: the four ushers, William W. Nichols of Wollaston, Edward C. Blossum of Hingham, Andrew B. Sides of Boston. Joseph F. Wogan of Dorchester; the groom and best man Franklin S. Nichols of Boston; the bridesmaids Miss Ethel Macmillan of Worcester and Miss Lena M. Wilkins of North Woburn; the maid of honor, Miss Iva B. Mabie of Somerville, and lastly the bride and her mother.

After the impressive service that made the happy couple one, an informal reception was held, the groom's parents, the bride's mother and grandmother Mrs. Emeline H. Carter assisting in receiving.

The bride was most attractive in her bridal robe of charmeuse with tunic of chiffon and duchesse lace. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and her only jewelry was a beautiful necklace with pearl pendant a gift from the groom.

The maid of honor wore a mais-messaline and the brides maids white mull, also pretty gold crescent pins gifts of the bride.

A scarf pin to the best man and cuff links to the ushers were gifts from the groom.

Numerous and beautiful gifts testified to the popularity of the bridal couple.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes Mr. and Mrs. Nichols left on a wedding trip to Washington. They will make their future home in Wollaston where they will be at home to their friends after October first. Mr. Nichols has a responsible position with the Old Colony Trust Company of Boston, and a large delegation from the bank was present.

—An advertisement appears in the New York Herald advertising rates for the tour "by airship" from Munich to Oberammergau, where the "Passion Play" will be presented about the middle of May, as it is every 10 years. The distance is 45 miles, over mountain, crag, forest, stream and canon. A few decades ago the trip was made in chaises and diligenses; later the automobile carried the tourists to their destination. The round-trip fare on the good airship "Perseval" is $137.50. The advertisement makes no provision for damages, nor does it say anything about rebates in case of a rapid and unlooked-for descent.

—The Malden Y. M. C. A. campaign ended Monday, the $60,000 desired being raised.

ACCIDENT AT DEPOT

Margaret Murphy Run Over at Braintree Last Night

Margaret Murphy, the 16 year old daughter of James Murphy of Elm place, Braintree, met with a serious injury at the Braintre depot shortly after 7 o'clock Monday night. She and her younger sister had gone to the depot to accompany a Mrs. Fraser of South Braintree to Boston. Mrs Fraser was to come on the train which the two girls intended to board at Braintree.

An inward express train came along and it is supposed that the girl mistook this for the local. She got too near the train and was drawn beneath the cars, the wheels of which passed over her right leg nearly severing it at the ankle. The train was stopped and the girl placed aboard it and hurried to Boston, where she was taken to the City Hospital. Her leg was so badly injured that it was thought that it would have to be amputated to save her life.

When the girl felt herself drawn under the cars she uttered a piercing shriek, and bystanders pulled her from beneath the train before all the cars passed over her. First aid was given by a local physician before she was put aboard the train. Her little sister, who was to accompany her, fainted dead away on the depot platform, when she saw the accident. She was taken to the depot and after being revived was sent to her home.

ANOTHER FIREMAN.

Another fireman has been added to the Combination No. 2 company. He will not be able to respond to bell alarms for some time as yet, but Faxon Billings, the father of the 12-pound boy says that the youngster will doubtless send in many still alarms during the nights he is at home which he will have to respond to. The boy was born early this morning; both he and his mother are doing well.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The Window Glass Trust has received a shattering blow.

Municipal grafters sometimes do as much towards making living expenses as the trusts.

How would Quincy like to be in the Foss district at the next election? It is not impossible.

Just now it would appear that Nick Longworth is more in fear of the Cincinnatti machine than of pa-in-law.

Mr. Payne is confident that the tariff is one of those institutions that improve on acquaintance.

It is quite likely that the moving picture man's excuse for following so closely on the heels of the colonel is that there's no telling what moment he may take a notion to charge another San Juan Hill?

Mr. Gaynors presidential boom seems to rest on the theory that a man who can hold down iniquity in New York city, even temporarily, is competent to grapple with the affairs of a hemisphere.

The Woman's club of Brockton has decided to cooperate with the men's organizations of that city for a saner Fourth of July. Date of deaths and accidents of the past few years are to be looked up. A more patriotic celebration and less noise and rowdyism will be the watchword this year.

The world does move at a swift pace surely. That is what the superintendent of buildings at Worcester though the other day when a man applied to him for a permit to build an aeroplane garage. We have hardly become accustomed to auto garages when here comes along one for a flying machine.

A rather novel and pretty way of raising money for tuberculosis work in Lynn has worked out successfully. Saturday May 14 is to be observed as "Carnation day." Flower venders will visit stores, factories and houses ladened with carnations which they will seek to exchange for a small or even a large sum of money. All the funds so raised on this day will be devoted to the support of the camp for tuberculosis patients which was started in Swampscott last summer under the auspices of the Lynn Tuberculosis association. The establishment of this camp was made possible through the success of last year's carnation day.

A jonquil, rose, or flower day in Quincy might be of material help with its new tuberculosis camp.

For some years there have been on the statue books of Massachusetts, two excellent laws, one for the placing of proper signboards on the highways, another for preventing the defacement of natural scenery by providing that any person who places advertising alongside the highway on private property without the consent of the owner, or within the limits of the highway, shall be liable to a fine, and that any such sign on the public highway may be removed, obliterated or otherwise abated as a public nuisance by a private person. These are both excellent laws, and the second has resulted in making the beautiful scenery of our Commonwealth more free from defacement than that of any other State, and has furnished the model for proposed legislation in other States.

During the present session of the Massachusetts Legislature, on petition of Dennis Morrissey, proprietor of a garage adjoining Heaton hall in Stockbridge, a bill to amend this second law was introduced by Senator Treadway, President of the Senate, and proprietor of the Red Lion inn and of Heaton hall, Stockbridge. Signs advertising this garage and these hotels had been removed from the highway in Berkshire County, but some still remain and are likely to be abated by public spirited citizens unless prevented by the modification of the law as proposed in the Morrissey-Treadway bill.

The proposed amendment provides that boards of aldermen in cities, and selectmen in towns, may grant authority for placing signs containing directions to the public, but not private advertising, and preventing a private person from abating them as a public nuisance unless by authority of the city or town officials. It is not impossible that advertising of hotels and garages might be construed by friendly officials, under political or other influence, as directions to the public. In any event a private person may not act in taking down a sign without permission from the local authorities, which in many cases, for evident reasons, would be difficult to obtain.

The present law has worked exceedingly well and as a result our beautiful State of Massachusetts has been freed from many obnoxious advertising signs. We therefore believe it is a mistake to alter the law in any manner which will so bind the subject up with red tape that it will be difficult for lovers of Massachusetts to abate such blots upon the beauty of our State. A careful reading of the statutes will show that the laws are good as they stand, and there has been no difficulty in placing on or near the highways, warnings supplied by automobile associations against dangerous hills or curves, or directions erected by trolley companies and local improvement associations to places of scenic beauty or of historic interest.

The following is an extract from the present law of Massachusetts, which has been in successful operation for over eight years:

"Chapter 208, Section 115. Whoever paints or puts upon or in any manner affixes to, any fence, structure, pole, rock or other object which is the property of another, whether within or without the limits of the highway, any words, device, trademark, advertisement or notice which is not required by law to be posted thereon, without first obtaining the written consent of the owner or tenant of such property, shall, upon complaint of such owner, or of his tenant or any municipal or public officer, be punished by a fine of not more than ten dollars. Any word, device, trade-mark, advertisement or notice which has been painted, up or affixed within the limits of a highway in violation of the provisions of this section, shall be considered a public nuisance, and may be forthwith removed or obliterated and abated by any person."

Section 1. Whoever paints or puts upon or in any manner affixes to any fence, structure, pole, rock or other object which is the property of another without the limit of the highway, any words, device, trade-mark, advertisement or notice wich is not required by law to be posted thereon, without first obtaining the written consent of the owner or tenant of such property, shall, upon complaint of such owner, or of his tenant or a proper municipal or public officer, be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than five hundred dollars.

Section 2. Whoever paints or puts upon or in any manner affixes to any fence, structure, pole rock or other object within the limits of the highway, any words, device, trade-mark, advertisement or notice which is not required by law to be posted thereon, without first obtaining written permission as hereinafter provided in this act, shall, upon complaint of any proper municipal or public officer or the abutting property holder, be considered as guilty of a misdemeanor and may be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, and be compelled by the proper local officer to remove any words, device, trademark, advertisement or notice so placed; and any such words, device, trade-mark, advertisement or notice unlawfully erected shall be considered a public nuisance; provided, however, that nothing in this act shall prevent the Massachusetts highway commission from granting, within the boundaries of a state highway, permission, upon application in writing, to interested parties the right to erect signs furnishing information to the travelling public relative to distance and directions to cities or towns or other information of a public nature, and designating thereon by whom such signs are erected; and provided, further, that similar authority may be exercised by the mayor of cities or selectmen of towns in a similar manner upon ways not state highways.

Saved From a Madhouse

How a Girl Discovered a Plot and Defeated It.

By DAISY WINSLOW.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

How I saved Herbert and brought him out with a strong brain and in every way physically sound is so strange a case that it should be placed in writing before I forget any of the details. I do not mean that I did the thinking and the planning that saved him, but that had it not been for me no thinking or planning would ever have been done and Herbert would have died under the strain or lived a lifetime in a madhouse.

Herbert and I were first playmates, then schoolmates; then the status between us was that of a strong friendship between a very young man and a very young woman. His mother, a rich widow, from the first disapproved of our intimacy, for her son would inherit her vast estate, while I had nothing. But neither Herbert nor I at that time thought of marriage. When he was eighteen his mother died, leaving him all her property to be paid to him when he became of age. His brother, Edgar Holt, was appointed executor of the estate and Herbert's guardian. There were other features of the will which had we known earlier would have saved Herbert a deal of suffering. Not knowing them, we were working in the dark.

Mr. Holt, an old bachelor, on the death of his sister went to live with his ward, taking personal care of him. I could not see any necessity for this, for Herbert was at an age when he should have been at college. Yet this uncle kept him at home, doing nothing. I asked Herbert why he assented to this, and he said it was better for him not to antagonize his uncle till after he had attained his majority.

Some time after Mrs. Torry's death Herbert sent me a note asking me to come and see him. He gave no reason for the request; but, thinking he might be ill, I went at once. I was taken by the housekeeper to a suit of rooms he occupied and found him lying on a lounge, the picture of despondency.

"Why, Herbert," I exclaimed, "what is the matter?"

"I don't know," he said mournfully.

Never had I seen such a change in any one in so short a space of time. I had been with him a week before, and he was then perfectly well. Now he seemed to have gone far on the way to become a nervous wreck.

"What a singularly decorated room!" I said to him after he had told me about himself. The wall paper was purple, and the shades and curtains to the windows were red. There was something in the colors or combination of colors that made me feel a strange nervousness.

"Uncle Edgar had my rooms redecorated while I was away recently. How do you like the paper?"

"I don't like it at all," I replied.

I encouraged Herbert as well as I could and when I left promised to return soon. I went straight to our own family physician, Dr. Millard, and told him all about Herbert's case. Incidentally I mentioned the decoration of his rooms.

"Get him out of that at once," said the doctor.

"Why so?"

"Because if he lives surrounded with those colors and none other for a month he'll be a maniac."

I sent a note to Herbert the same evening telling him that the doctor had recommended other rooms for him, and the next afternoon I went to see him. I found him where I had left him the day before. I asked him why he had not moved, and he said his uncle had declared Dr. Millard's statement to be nonsense. I begged Herbert to do as I asked him, but he did not seem to have the power to resist his uncle.

I was very much distressed when I left him, not knowing what to do. On the stairs I met Mr. Holt. He stopped me and said:

"My nephew is under my guardianship till he comes of age. You will oblige me by not coming here again to make him dissatisfied with arrangements I have made for him. His mother warned me against your designs to get him and his property."

In a rage I went out of the house rowing never to enter it again. But I had not been gone ten minutes before a suspicion came into my head that the man was trying to kill Herbert by keeping him under the influence of these colors. Going to Dr. Millard, I told him of what had happened.

"Go to the inheritance court," he said, "and ask them to show you Mrs. Torry's will. Then we will know what to do next."

I did as he advised, was shown the will and discovered that in the event of Herbert's death his estate would all go to Edgar Holt.

The discovery filled me with horror. But now since I knew that the executor had a motive for getting his nephew out of his way I hoped that I might defeat his purpose. I saw his plan. There was no necessity for him to murder Herbert with the risk of discovery. His object was to make a hopeless lunatic of him, which would give the executor continued control of the estate till his ward's death, when he would inherit it. I returned to Dr. Millard, who, after I had told him of my discovery, sat thinking for a time before he spoke.

"It's a very plain case to us," he said at last, "but a very difficult one to handle. I have never heard or read of so wily a plan to rob an heir of an estate. While the damage is being done there is no way to get the boy out of his uncle's hands. After it is done there is no way of convincing a jury of the perpetrator's guilt."

I was in agony at hearing the doctor say this and begged him to try to think of some way of preventing poor Herbert from being made a maniac.

"I'll try," he said, "but can't as yet see any method likely to succeed. Heirs have been kept in lunatic asylums before this who have been in perfect mental condition. That's an old story. Here is a case where a man is to be made really mad without any one being able to get him out of his persecutor's clutches. The law is slow, and it will require but a month to drive the subject hopelessly insane. Besides, I understand that nearly one-half of that time has been spent."

"Great heavens!" I exclaimed. "We have only a fortnight."

"Less than that. In a fortnight the case will be hopeless. Even now we can get no help from the patient himself. He is too far gone. I see but one chance, and that is to kidnap him."

I left the doctor, plan after plan running through my brain whereby to carry out his suggestion. I thought many hours before I decided what to do. When I made up my mind it seemed to me that my method was very simple, though this was no reason why it should succeed. I resolved not to take any one into my confidence to help me, fearing to complicate matters, and believed that I could do all myself.

My plan was to put on a bold front, call for Herbert with an automobile, ask him to go for a ride, take him away and conceal him. All depended upon his being permitted to come with me. Had it not been for certain happenings he would not have been so permitted, these being first that his uncle had gone to his office, and the housekeeper who had charge of Herbert in his absence had left it for ten minutes to buy a spool of thread. It is singular that Herbert's sanity should have depended on a spool of cotton, but it did. I drove up to the house two minutes after the housekeeper had left it and was driven away with Herbert just as she approached the house on her return. I can see her look of consternation now. But before she could do anything we were spinning away from her.

I said nothing to Herbert as to my intention till we had been out two hours. I supposed Mrs. Bugle would telephone Mr. Holt as to what had occurred, but he had no reason to suppose that I was doing more with his nephew than giving him a ride, and he would probably wait a reasonable time for my return. Nevertheless I followed a torturous course to throw him off the track if he followed me. The change in Herbert after his removal from the noxious colors and partaking of plenty of fresh air was marvelous. He was not by any means himself, but he was near enough himself for me to tell him what his uncle was trying to do and that I was kidnaping him in order to save him from hopeless lunacy.

There was some response—more than I could have expected in so short a time—and after awhile he grew eager to escape what he was now beginning to realize, urging me to go faster and faster till, in order not to oppose him, I had on full speed, though I knew of no pursuit.

We had started on our ride at 10 o'clock. At 1 we stopped at a roadhouse for luncheon and by 2 were again under way. By this time Herbert was so far restored that I left our future course to him.

"Have you arranged for any place to take me?" he asked.

"No."

"Very well; we will go to B. I know a place there kept by one I can depend upon not to betray me, a quiet place in which to hide, though now that I am myself and my own master all will be different."

Nevertheless he seemed to dread getting back under the horrible spell that had enthralled him. To draw his mind away from it I told him that I did not fear pursuit, for his uncle would not know on what road to follow.

"That's not the situation at all," he replied. "He can telephone to different places along the road, describing us, and order us held till he can get on with papers for our arrest."

This appalled me.

"As my guardian," Herbert went on hurriedly, "he has a legal right to my care—that is, if he can prove me ill or of unsound mind. You must assume the position of my legal custodian."

"Certainly. But how?"

"We must be married as soon as we can find any one to tie the knot."

"Oh, Herbert!"

"It's the only way to save me."

"But I have never thought of you in that way."

"No, matter. Either I must go back to my uncle to be driven mad by him or made away with by some other means or my legal guardianship must be transferred. There's a church."

With a fluttering heart I slowed up at a small house, evidently the parsonage. We went inside, and ten minutes from the time Herbert proposed to me I was his wife.

"Now," he exclaimed, with a sigh of relief, "the law is all on our side."

"Herbert," I said as we were merrily spinning along after the ceremony, "I never thought to take a wedding trip in an automobile."

"Nor I."

"Herbert," I said again after considerable time, "I'm glad we're married."

"Are you? Why?"

"That old villain said I was trying to get you. He'll think that's the reason I outwitted him."

"Spoken like a woman."

PLACING WIRES UNDERGROUND

Almost Necessary Because of Heavy Storms

Some idea of the extent of damage done to the fire and police signal wires of the city by the storm of December 26 may be had when it is understood that a special appropriation of $3,500 was necessary to cover the expense of putting them back into condition. In some cases the entire fire alarm circuit had to be rebuilt, even to replacing the boxes, which were rendered useless by the fire alarm wires becoming crossed with wires carrying a heavy current.

What was true of the fire alarm was also true of the police signal wires, all of the circuits being knocked out. The worst police circuit was that through West Quincy, which is not yet in full working condition.

Storms like that of December are a good argument in favor of placing all wires underground. All wire companies readily understand this, and the only thing that prevents their going underground immediately is the expense. The telephone company however are gradually getting their wires underground, and in Quincy already have many of them there. They have underground conduits extending from the Quincy Point bridge to the Neponset bridge and from the Quincy Adams depot along Water, Franklin, School and Hancock streets to City Square, and some side streets.

There is also now pending before the City Council an order granting them permission to lay underground conduits on Standish avenue, Beale street and Granite street.

LADIES AID SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Ladies Aid society was held in the parsonage of the Wollaston Methodist church on Monday evening, when the following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. George Taylor.
Vice President—Mrs. S. A. Kay.
Secretary—Mrs. Dimmick.
Treasurer—Mrs. W. A. Lupton.
Sewing committee—Mrs. Carrie M. Given, Mrs. W. C. Sanders, Mrs. Louis E. Crosscup, Mrs. Pease and Miss Aurilla Merrill.

The ladies have enjoyed a most prosperous year, having raised the the amount of $532, and at present have a balance in the treasury.

A most hearty vote of thanks was tendered the retiring president, Mrs. W. C. Sanders, who has served for the past fourteen years in a most efficient and faithful manner. The ladies have a unique plan for the finances of the next year, which they refuse to devulge at the present time. Mrs. W. C. Sanders presided and prayer was offered by Mrs. George Crothers.

TERRA COTTA R. R. STATIONS.

Three terra cotta railroad stations have been built by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, and plans for a fourth are now being considered. The structural material is the hollow tile block of the kind used for fireproofing "skyscrapers" in New York and other cities. The exterior surface of the walls is covered with stucco, so that the terra cotta tile iself is not visible when once a building is complete. Tests of the material have shown that it is strong enough to stand any strain put upon it and will be as serviceable as stone or brick.

The new-style stations of the Lehigh Valley are at Honeyoye Falls, Freeville and Interlaken, N. Y.; the one at Interaken is not finished yet. In addition to being fireproof, the stations have the advantage of being warmer in winter and cooler in summer than stations of the ordinary type. This is due to the hollow spaces—the "dead air" spaces—which make the blocks non-conductors of heat.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad recently built a hollow tile station at Rowayton, Conn. Another of the lines running into New York, the Lackawanna, has been making investigations with a view toward using the material in some of the company's new stations.

"Which do you think is the safer side of the stock market," said Spatts to Bloobumper, "the long side or the short side?"

"There is a third side, which I consider much safer than either you have named," replied Bloobumper.

"What side is that?"

"The outside."

LADIES' NIGHT

Walther Men's Class Give Entertainment and Supper

The Walther Men's class observed their annual ladies night in the chapel of the Wollaston Baptist church on Monday evening.

J. Arthur Sparrow the president of the class, opened the meeting with a brief but hearty word of welcome, following which a program of music and readings was enjoyed.

William E. Weston rendered several piano solos, and E. E. Bullock a pleasing group of songs.

Edward H. Frye gave a number of readings which were humorous to say the least. The Newton Seminary quartette, composed of Messrs. Holt, Bassett, Thomas and Des Jardines contributed much to the evening's enjoyment.

The refreshments served by the men were the equal of those served by a ladies organization. In charge of the affair was the social committee of the class, composed of Kendall F. Harriman, C. B. Hall, Dr. Wellington Record, Charles Bailey, Professor Marceau, Louis F. Cleves and H. L. Wilson.

COLLEGE MEN AND NEWSPAPERS.

College graduates make the best newspaper workers, so editors say, because of their broader education and the mental discipline they have received. Editors are disinclined, however, to take them on their staffs because they lack the vital part of newspaper training,—a mastery of the technic of securing and writing a news story, editing "cop," building headlines, etc. Editors are too busy to train raw recruits, and it is practically useless for an untrained college graduate to apply for a position on a daily paper.

This condition has existed for such a long time that it has resulted in an urgent demand for trained newspaper workers, with no adequate means of increase in the supply, due to the fact that the courses of "Journalism" in the colleges have given students only a slight theoretical knowledge of the profession, instead of a practical, working knowledge of its technic.

This phase of the subject has been met by Bay Path Institute of Springfield, Mass., in establishing a practical training school for newspaper work. The course covers a period of ten months, and students are taught practical newspaper work by assignments, with criticisms and explanations. Copy reading, headline writing, editorial work, advertisement writing, and all branches of newspaper management, including the reportorial, advertising, business, circulation and mechanical departments are included in the course. The instruction is entirely individual and students may enter at any time or take any portion of the course. Students in the newspaper course have also the advantages of the shorthand, typewriting, English and Commercial Law departments of the Institute.

—Oh dear to our hearts are the sad days of springtime, when the annual house-cleaning recurs to our view, when we sleep on the sofa and eat off the mantle, in an atmosphere strongly suggestive of glue; we think of the stove pipe, the soot that came with it and sweet expressions so fluent and fine, but the saddest and most bitter of all recollections is the dusty old carpet that hung on the line. Oh, that dusty old carpet, that rusty old carpet, that musty old carpet that hung on the line. We remember how, armed with a lithe flagelator, in the morning we blithely advanced to the fray, in the muscular pride of our heart, little dreaming that cleaning that carpet would take the whole day; we sweat and we kicked and our hand badly blistered, while the sun lent his countenance warmly benign, but the harder we pounded ,the more it was needed, that dusty old carpet that hung on the line. Oh, that dusty old carpet, that rusty old carpet, that musty old carpet that hung on the line.—Mansfield News.

UP to date in every respect is the Twentieth Century club of Washington, the biggest organization of women at the national capital. Up to date also is Mrs. John E. Wilkie, who has been elected president of the club. She is the wife of the chief of the United States secret service and lived in Chicago until ten years ago. The Twentieth Century club as first organized was an adjunct of All Souls' Unitarian church, which President Taft attends, but it is nonsectarian and includes adherents of nearly all religious sects in its membership. The objects of the club are to promote liberal thought, education and philanthropic work. The membership is divided into sections, each section pursuing a definite aim. All the sections work harmoniously under the leadership of Mrs. Wilkie, who is said to be a skillful executive with advanced ideas. Mrs. Wilkie has been prominent socially as well as sociologically ever since she became a Washingtonian.

Eating Hay Cakes In Kansas.

Time was, we are told, when certain learned professors ate grasshopper soup in Kansas. That was when the state was overrun with grasshoppers that had eaten up every green thing. The professors said the soup was delicious, yet the new brand never got into the cookbooks. Now comes Miss Ruth Ingham of Topeka, recently graduated from the Kansas Agricultural college, department of domestic science. Miss Ingham has been experimenting with alfalfa hay as a food material for human beings. Heretofore cows and other live stock have found alfalfa palatable and profitable, but there the line has been drawn. Miss Ingham has appeared before a club and lectured on her alfalfa food experiments. She took with her a supply of cakes, bread loaves and tea made from alfalfa. The cakes, which contained nuts and raisins to overcome the hay flavor, were said to be the most palatable of the three kinds of products. The tea had an unpalatable flavor, and the bread, made from alfalfa flour or meal, had a greenish hue. Green bread does not promise to become popular, so the discoverer of this new food possibility is trying to experiment the greenness out of the flour. Miss Ingham declares she expects to prove that alfalfa is capable of being turned into human food that is palatable and nutritive. She says it will be much cheaper than the materials used now and also much more healthful. Katrina, kindly pass the alfalfa biscuits this way!

Public Good Society Formed.

A club called the Public Good society has been organized and incorporated in New York, Mrs. Alma Webster Powell of Brooklyn being the president and chief promoter. Mrs. Powell belonged to the fashionable Mozart club. At one of the meetings a member spoke sarcastically of her because she had taken an interest in working girls and had introduced two of them dressed in fashionable gowns which she supplied at one of her receptions. Mrs. Powell promptly resigned, saying: "I don't believe in this so called society anyway. I think one man or woman is as good as another if honest." Then she organized the Public Good society, which proposes to have the rich and the poor meet on equal terms. The plan is to bring the two classes together in social gatherings at a hired hall, where there will be lectures, music and dancing. Fashionable society people and those who work hard to earn their livelihood will dance together and fraternize. Mrs. Powell is enthusiastic over her plan. FRANCES WARD.

BAINBRIDGE FOUNTAIN

Our Commissioner Invents One for the Schools

A recent order passed by the City Council and approved by the Mayor, appropriated funds for the installation of drinking fountains in the public schools. The installation of these fountains will do away with the deadly drinking cup in whose depths the germs of many diseases lurk.

There are many drinking fountains on the market, all of which are good but expensive. Commissioner Bainbridge who is somewhat of a genius, has devised a fountain which can be installed for something like $5 each. These fountains are nothing more or less than a little bulk from the center of which a tiny stream of water gushes forth. When a child desires a drink he approaches the fountain, and holding his mouth over the stream gets the refresing water. The beauty of the fountain is that in no case does the hand or mouth come in contact with the fountain, so that no germs can accumulate about it to be given to some other child.

STRIKERS CLUB OFFICERS

Greenville, R. I., April 26.—Six deputy sheriffs who were on guard at the mill of the Stillwater Worsted company were attacked by a crowd of striking weavers. The sheriffs were stoned and clubbed and were obliged to retreat before the rioters.

When the officers began to use their revolvers the crowd quickly dispersed. No one was shot, though the sheriffs fired forty shots.

"Dean of Swindlers" Caught

Chicago, April 26.—Charles Moran, alleged by Postoffice Inspector Stuart of Chicago and Inspector Cortelyou of Philadelphia to be the dean of American swindlers, is under arrest, awaiting removal to Philadelphia. In the last twenty years Moran's alleged illegal gains are said to have aggregated close to $1,000,000.

COMMANDER STERRETT

To Be Honored After One Hundred Years

The torpedo boat destroyer Sterrett to be launched at the Fore River shipyard Thursday, May 12, will be named for Commodore Andrew Sterrett, who was executive officer of the frigate Constitution when she captured the French frigate L'Armour de la Patre. He was born in Baltimore in 1760, and joined the navy in 1798. He was also commander of the Enterprise, when it won a brilliant victory over a Tripolitan cruiser, killing fifty of the latter's crew without losing a man. Commodore Sterrett received a vote of thanks from Congress, and on Feb. 3, 1802, was presented a sword by vote of Congress. He died while on a cruise to South America, Jan. 9, 1807, and his body was buried at Lima, Peru.

—Total depravity is well illustrated by the case of Spencer, who confesses to committing crimes simply for the excitement it afforded him. Insanity will perhaps be his final plea, but the extreme punishment would seem none too severe for his atrocious crimes.

Norsemen Landed on Labrador Coast In 1002

BLOW AT BOSTON TRADITION

Lief Erikson Statue Lacks Local Significance If Statement of Professor Fernald of Harvard Is Correct—Scholars' Error In Mistaking Cranberry For a Grape Responsible For Delusion of Hundreds of Years

Boston, April 26.—Still another of Boston's traditions is dispelled under the cold light of scientific investigation, and now Professor Fernald, a Harvard savant, has decided that because less careful experts have for several centuries mistaken a cranberry for a grape the visit of the Norsemen to the shores of America was in no way connected with Massachusetts bay, Newport, or any other point south of Labrador.

Such is the opinion of Merrit L. Fernald, assistant professor of botany at Harvard. If this statement should prove true the famous statue of Lief Erikson, in Commonwealth avenue, has no logical significance whatever more than to perpetuate a historical error.

The chief point of Fernald's discovery is that the great mistake has been due to the fact that scholars supposed that when the Norsemen called the new country "Wineland (or Vinland) the Good" they named it such because it was rich in wild grapes. This has led historians to try to identify the place where Lief Erikson landed as some country answering such a description, and this preconceived idea in connection with descriptions in the Norse sagas has caused certain persons to try to place Vinland settlement in Massachusetts bay, or even at the mouth of the Charles river itself.

"The fact appears to be, however," says Fernald, "that the Norse did not mean grapes at all in referring to the new land, but that instead they had in mind either the mountain cranberry or red or black currant, such as is found plentifully in Labrador. In the sagas the word 'vinber,' translated 'wine berry,' has been taken to mean a grape, but unquestionably the early Norsemen in their European homes used it not to refer to the true grape of southern climates, but to mean currants or mountain cranberries.

"In determining the exact species of 'vinber' which was gathered by the Norsemen in Vinland, we have a clue in the statement of one of the sagas that 'Their after boat was filled with vinberjum. A cargo of wood sufficient for the ship was cut and when the spring came they made their ship ready and sailed away.'

"The inclination of some students has been to discredit the accuracy of this saga on the ground that it would be impossible to gather vinber in the spring. It is certainly true that if vinber in this case were taken to mean the grape alone, or even the currant, such an account should be discredited. But, as those who are intimate with conditions in Labrador will inform us, spring is the very season of the year when the fruit of the mountain or rock cranberry is in its prime."

Such is the manner in which Fernald discredits the most important point made by those who believe or who wish for the poetical associations to believe that 500 years before Columbus crossed the Atlantic the Norsemen coasted along the shores of New England.

According to the sagas on which this interpretation is based, a fleet of longboats filled with mailed and bearded sea kings, led by the young Lief Erikson, son of the mighty Erik the Red, set sail from Greenland in the year 1002 and discovered in succession during their progress south Helluland, the land of flat stones; Markland, the land of trees, and Vinland the Good, or the land of grapes.

It has been supposed by many that these places referred to Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, and finally the New England coast as far south as Vineyard sound.

"BIG BILL" MAY SOON TALK

Becoming Angry Over His Prolonged Waiting For Release

Boston, April 26.—"Big Bill" Keliher is becoming discontented and angry. He expected the protection that was promised if he stood and covered the faro gang, and it is now hurrying to his release.

Staying in jail, disconsolate and sadly without those pastimes, entertainments and good eating that have made life worth living, has made an earthquake of his good nature and may shake him into disclosures more or less uncomfortable for many Boston citizens.

"Big Bill" has been in jail since Saturday. He didn't expect to be in jail more than three hours. He doesn't like the treatment. He may talk, and then the greatest sensation of the whole faro deal is confidently expected.

GUEST OF CITY OF PARIS

Roosevelt Receives Glowing Tributes From Officials and at Opera

Paris, April 26.—As the guest of the city of Paris Theodore Roosevelt was received by the city fathers in the Hotel de Ville, and was the subject of glowing tributes pronounced by M. Caron, president of the municipal council; M. Lampuo, president of the general council of the Seine, and M. Lepine, prefect of police.

Speaking in French, Mr. Roosevelt expressed his deepest gratitude, and added: "You make of me an ideal which I can only try to realize in the future."

At the opera last night, when the curtain fell at the end of the second act of "Sampson and Delilah," the applause for the artists swelled into an uproar for Roosevelt, who arose and twice bowed his acknowledgements.

WESTON HAS WALKED OFF TWENTY POUNDS

He Is In Fine Condition, However, as He Nears His Goal

Little Falls, N. Y., April 26.—Edward P. Weston left here at 6 a. m., today, refreshed by a good night's sleep. He is in fine condition and expects to reach Schenectady, fifty-seven miles distant, tonight, on his transcontinental tramp.

Notwithstanding a severe east wind which he faced yesterday Weston made forty-two miles over Mohawk valley roads, arriving here at 6 o'clock last night.

Weston is noticeably thin in flesh, having lost about twenty pounds since starting on his journey. He is setting a fast pace and will reach New York late Friday night or early Saturday if all goes well.

BOOKS SHOW SHORTAGE

Friends of a Town Treasurer Who Recently Died Receive a Shock

Newburyport, Mass., April 26.—The friends of the late Samuel F. Coffin, town treasurer of West Newbury, were shocked when it was reported that an examination of his books showed an apparent shortage in his accounts of between $5000 and $6000.

The selectmen of the town have taken steps to get an expert to go over the books carefully to see how much the shortage is and how the funds were used, if possible.

Coffin had been treasurer of the town for a dozen years and stood high in this section of the state, being elected to the legislature as a Democrat in a strong Republican district for three years.

MENTION OF STRIKES

Must Be Made In "Help Wanted" Ads When Occasion Warrants It

Boston, April 26.—The first piece of socialistic legislation ever signed by a Massachusetts governor received the approval of Governor Draper yesterday. The act, which becomes law May 25, 1910, makes it obligatory on the employers of labor, in advertising for employes during labor disputes, to explicitly mention in such advertisement that a strike, lockout or other labor disturbance exists.

The original bill was introduced on the petition of Representative Morrill of Haverhill, the lone Socialist member of the present legislature. The new law carries with it the provision of a penalty of $100 maximum for each violation of its provisions.

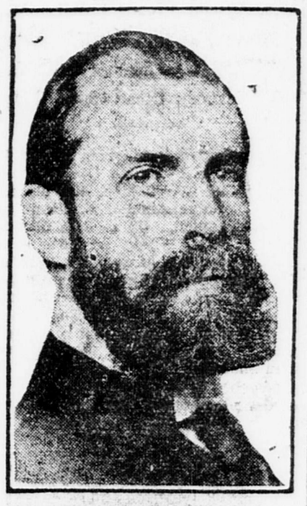
CHARLES E. HUGHES

He Has Long Been Prominent In the Public Eye



APPOINTMENT IS ACCEPTED

Governor Hughes Will Become Member of Supreme Court

TO SUCCEED JUSTICE BREWER

Will Remain Chief Executive of Empire State Until Next October, After Which Time He Will Be Out of Politics—Record Shows Him to Be Without Prejudices In Regard to Trusts and Big Corporations

Washington, April 26.—Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York has accepted the appointment of justice of the supreme court of the United States, to succeed the late Justice David J. Brewer.

Five minutes after the letter was handed to the president, the nomination of Governor Hughes was on its way to the senate, but that body had adjourned for the day.

While it is expected that Hughes will be confirmed with little or no delay, it is understood here that he will remain the chief executive of the state of New York until next October.

President Taft has been anxious to obtain the best man he could for the supreme court vacancy and he feels that he had done so. He was much elated over the success of his offer to Hughes and he said:

"I am very much delighted to secure Governor Hughes for the bench. He is a man of wide experience and marked ability, and it is a mighty valuable thing to have on the great bench of the supreme court a man of affairs. Governor Hughes is 48 years of age, I think, and even if he should retire at 70, he will have had twenty-two years of solid usefulness on the bench."

The appointment of Hughes was received throughout Washington with the greatest satisfaction.

The general opinion is that the appointment of Hughes will eliminate him from the state campaign this fall. The campaign will be only fairly under way at the time the governor will be called upon to take the oath of office and enter upon his judicial duties.

About the first question heard after the announcement of the selection was concerning the attitude of the new member of the court on the trust problems, as involved in the dissolution suits against the Standard Oil and the Tobacco corporations. The general conclusions were that the record of the New York man showed he came to the court without prejudices, having fought corporations where he thought them guilty of wrongdoing, and protected their rights where he considered them persecuted.

Planning the Home Grounds

How to Lay Out the Flower Beds and Secure Attractive Landscape Gardening Effects ☙ Good and Bad Planting

By A. T. Erwin

Associate Professor Department of Horticulture and Forestry, Iowa State College

THERE are two important problems which confront one who is interested in the improvement of the home grounds, the one being what to plant and the other where to plant. Of the two the second should be considered first, since the most commonplace things if properly placed will give a good effect, and, on the other hand, no matter how choice or rare a shrub may be, unless it is rightly located and given a proper setting the result is only discord.

The most common mistake made by the amateur is at this point. The one who builds wisely must first develop a plan to work by. Similarly the improvement of the home grounds demands a well developed scheme, and the smaller the lawn the more important it is to have a plan in order that the limited space may be profitably utilized.

Lawn planting may serve a threefold purpose. It may be used as a screen to hide unsightly sheds and outbuildings from the front; second, to assist in the development of a landscape picture of the home as a whole, and, third, to provide a supply of cut flowers. All planting should be done with the ultimate purpose of forming a picture. The home itself should stand out as the distinctive and fundamental feature of this picture, and the trees, shrubbery and grass should serve as the framework and background to set it off.

To secure this effect there are certain simple suggestions which may be followed. First of all, we should have an open front. For the area immediately in front of the buildings there is nothing so appropriate as a well kept piece of lawn, and this area should be kept entirely free of flower beds, shrubbery or other planting.

The major portion of the planting of either trees or shrubbery should be along the sides or what is termed "flank planting." The nooks and corners about the base of the buildings serve as excellent places for low growing shrubs such as the bridal wreath. The shrubbery and plants along the border should be set about two and one-half feet apart so as to form a thick, compact mass. In this way the effect is much better than where they are scattered so that each one stands out as a distinct individual and, on the other hand, is much more convenient at mowing time, being grouped into a solid clump. In the planting of shrubbery avoid any stiff geometrical arrangement. Place some of the shrubs farther out than others, so that the front line is prominent at certain points and recedes at others. You can also secure variation by giving some regard to the height of the different kinds, arranging so that the bed will be low in some places and higher at others, thus giving a wavy sky line.

In selecting a list of flowering shrubbery one must be guided largely by local conditions, as the varieties which are perfectly hardy in one section may prove worthless in another. There are two points, however, which should be observed for all sections. Select only hardy, vigorous varieties. Tender and half sickly plants always detract from the appearance of a place and are not worth worrying with. The second point to observe is to select varieties which will provide successive bloom periods. Some shrubs, such as the Siberian almond and the June berry, blossom before the snows are scarcely past, so that one may have a continuation of bloom or floral calendar from then to the first frosts of autumn. Even for the winter period there are certain kinds which are especially desirable for their winter effects. The bright red bark of the Siberian dogwood or red hips or berries of the Japanese rose and the fruit of the wahoos are excellent examples of this class.

On the small lawn there is not room for many trees. It is usually desirable to have shade from the hot afternoon sun in summer, so that one or two trees located at the southwest side of the house will add shade and comfort. If possible a few trees should also be planted to the rear of the house to serve as a background, as the effect is much better in this case than where the buildings stand out against the bare sky line. It is a mistake to plant many evergreens on a small lawn, as they are broad at the base and narrow upward; hence they naturally obstruct the view. The beauty of an evergreen lies in its symmetry, and every branch, from the one next to the grass to the youngest at the top, should be in place. The oldest and largest branches are those nearest the ground, and the pruning off of the lower branches, which is frequently done to open up the view, seriously mars the specimen. In the majority of such cases the mistake was made in selecting an evergreen for this location. Some deciduous tree which is rather open beneath, such as the white elm, should have been planted instead.

The location of the walk is also an important feature of the landscape. Walks are to be considered purely as a matter of necessity and convenience. They do not in any way add to the attractiveness of the landscape. Since they exist for the convenience of the public they should lead primarily in the direction that people wish to travel. If the house is less than fifty feet from the street it is generally best to run the walk straight out from the building, as any curve introduced in this short distance is apt to appear forced and unnatural. On the other hand, if the house is set farther back a more satisfactory effect can often be secured by introducing a curve and leading the walk in more along one side. This also has the effect of keeping the front lawn in one piece, whereas a walk through the center bisects it, making it appear smaller than it would otherwise. If a curve is introduced the inside of the curve is a very logical place for a clump of low growing shrubbery or for a flower bed. By grouping the shrubbery along the border there is provided an excellent background for a flower border. This is a strip two and one-half or three feet in width along the front of the shrubbery. Here may be located early spring flowering tulips, with geraniums and scarlet sage. In fact, this is a very appropriate place for all kinds of bedding plants.

The philosophy of the spring flowering bulb is that of "making hay while the sun shines." The preceding year the new flower is formed, and for its nourishment there is stored up a liberal supply of food; consequently with the first warm days of spring the blossoms are ready to expand to their full grandeur and beauty.

This fact also conveys a suggestion to the planter. The time to prepare for spring bulbs is in the fall. The latter half of October is a good time for the planting, the idea being to get them in sufficiently early to secure root development before winter sets in.

The next step is that of mulching. The essential idea of a mulch is not to keep plants warm, but rather to keep them cold. Frequent variations in temperature are destructive to plant life. The cover is applied after the ground has frozen, its purpose being to keep it frozen until danger from late frosts is past. The removal of the mulch should be delayed until growth begins under it. Pine needles make an ideal mulch. Straw may be used.

In arranging the varieties care should be exercised to secure color harmony on the one hand and contrast on the other. Color combinations are largely a matter of individual taste. Some prefer the entire bed of one color.

Early in June the tops turn yellow and die down. This indicates that the plant has completed its cycle and that the new bulb for next year's crop has been formed. The bed may now be given over to summer bedding plants, the bulbs being stored in layers of sand in a cool cellar until fall.

ZEPPELIN II MEETS DISASTER IN GALE

Wrecked After Tearing From Its Moorings

Berlin, April 26.—Torn from its moorings by a gale, the dirigible Zeppelin II was sent derelict through the air at a speed of a mile a minute from Limburg to the vicinity of Wellburg, where it was dashed to the ground and wrecked. One man was fatally hurt.

The Zeppelin II, which was built by popular subscription after its predecessor was wrecked, was the foremost dirigible in the world. Within a short time after it was driven away from Limburg, searching parties of soldiers were ordered out. News of its being wrecked came from Wellberg, thirty miles away. That distance had been covered in half an hour.

RESIGNED BY REQUEST

Janssens Received Official Notice From Papal Secretary of State

Brussels, April 26.—The circumstances surrounding the retirement of Abbot Janssens from the post of secretary of the Congregation of Religious Affairs are given a somewhat different color in reports received here, where much interest has been excited because of the fact that the abbot is a Belgian.

According to these reports from Rome the secretary did not willingly resign his office, but was summoned by Cardinal Merry Del Val, the papal secretary of state, by whom he was threatened with dismissal if he did not resign at once.

The offense of the abbot is said to have been found in the call which he made upon Mr. Roosevelt following the latter's decision not to visit the pope.

BOY HAD NO DOCTOR

Became Victim of His Parents' Religious Belief, Says Coroner

Bridgeport, Conn., April 26.—Edwin Jordan, Jr., of Stamford, who died of scarlet fever without medical attendance, was the victim of the religious belief of his parents, according to the finding of Coroner Wilson.

The coroner says the boy was carefully attended by the parents. They, however, believed in the efficacy of the treatment which they gave him and, being honest in their convictions, they did whatever they could for the boy in the way of following their belief, and as long as they were honest in what they did, they cannot be held criminally responsible.

The boy had scarlet fever and upon his death the coroner was called to Stamford to investigate.

ANOTHER WHISKY VICTIM

Michael Riley Dies After Indulging In Rhode Island Brand

Westerly, R. I., April 26.—Not content with the thirteen victims it is alleged to have seized in its fatal grasp during the past few weeks, the beverage which has been masquerading under the name of whisky is believed to have been responsible for the death of Michael Riley, 45 years of age, of Niantic.

Riley is said to have sent a neighbor to a place in Niantic to buy a pint of whisky for him. After drinking the liquor, Riley went to bed. When he awoke he complained of severe pains. Shortly afterward he lapsed into a state of coma. Dr. A. B. Briggs, who was summoned, stated that the symptoms indicated wood alcohol poisoning. A little later Riley died.

IS NOT A MURDERER

Man's Conscience Is Relieved After He Confesses to Killing

Pittsburg, April 26.—For seven years Oliver McKinley has imagined himself a murderer, say the police, but he is not. The St. Louis police have him under arrest and have reported here that he has confessed to killing a man in a Pittsburg saloon on Aug. 31, 1903.

On the date named McKinley stabbed a man in a saloon here, according to the police records, and fled, leaving the man for dead. The victim pulled through, however. McKinley has roamed the country, but the police never got definite track of him and had long ago given up the search.

Jail Sentence For Policeman

Cambridge, Mass., April 26.—John F. Greene, for seven years a Cambridge patrolman, was sentenced to ten days in the house of correction on a charge of drunkenness. Green appealed and was held in $100. He made no defense.

British Military Airship Wrecked

London, April 26.—British aerial forces suffered a heavy loss when the military airship, while preparing for a trial trip at Farnborough, was caught by a gale and overturned. The gas bags were split and the framework smashed.

Wrestler Breaks His Neck

BAY STATE IN "REGULAR" LIST

According to Republican Leader In the Legislature

HUB FREE PORT PROPOSITION

Memorial Sent to Congress as Result of Over-Courtesy Toward Mayor of Boston—Advocates Elimination of All Customs Duties Between United States and Canada—No Doubt of Lodge's Re-election to Senate

Washington, April 26.—Representative Charles L. Underhill of Somerville, floor leader of the Massachusetts house of representatives, is in Washington, where he has business at the Capitol. Mr. Underhill is emphatic in his opinion that Massachusetts is not an insurgent state, and that when congress and the legislature have adjourned and the people have had time to think twice over the political situation they will not show any eccentricities in voting or in speech.

With reference to the action of the Massachusetts legislature in forwarding to Washington a somewhat embarrassing memorial requesting the Massachusetts delegation to work for the establishment of a free port in Boston, Underhill says that however desirable such an institution might be, the memorial went through the legislature without debate and without anyone giving special thought to the awkward situation which it might create here.

"Speaking for the committee on rules," said Underhill, "I am inclined to think that the passage of the resolution, which was introduced on petition of Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston, should be regarded rather as evidence of a desire to treat the mayor fairly than a result of deep thought. The mayor had said before his inauguration that he expected to see his requests ignored by a Republican legislature, and possibly we were a little over-courteous in our desire to show that his recommendations would receive fair treatment as any. Personally, I understood that Boston could not be made a free port unless all other ports of entry were, as the constitution is expressed upon his point."

"What of the tariff situation in Massachusetts?"

"I have always advocated the entire elimination of all customs duties between Canada and the United States," replied Underhill, "and believe thoroughly that all food products should be admitted free of duty. I believe this policy would work no injury to the western food producers. Prices would take care of themselves, but would be regulated, as they should be, in accordance with supply and demand and become more independent of trust conditions.

"I believe Canada should be brought into the closest possible relations with the United States. We have just avoided a disastrous trade war with Canada. The incident was useful, I think, in showing our people the business risk both countries run in erecting tariff walls against each other and also that it is possible to bring about more amicable trade relations provided we go at the matter in the right spirit."

"How about Senator Lodge?"

"There is no doubt whatever of his re-election. Although I reserve my right to differ from him on certain public questions, I believe he is one of the ablest and most useful men in the United States senate."

PLAN TO CUT OUT COMMERCE COURT

Democrats Claim to Have Aid of Twenty-Five Republicans

Washington, April 26.—Democratic members of the house express themselves as confident of their ability to eliminate from the administration railroad bill the provision creating a court of commerce. The bill will be read for amendment today and if the court of commerce is reached the first split in the house will occur.

President Taft has heretofore been under the impression that the hardest fight on this section of the bill would be made in the senate. The Democrats in the house, however, have been canvassing the situation carefully and declare that twenty-five Republicans are prepared to vote with them to knock out the court of commerce.

With such a number of Republicans breaking away the provision seems certain to go out unless the administration can win over enough Democrats to offset the Republican defection.

SEVEN COUNTS DISMISSED

But Heinze Still Has Serious Charges to Answer To

New York, April 26.—Judge Hough in the United States circuit court dismissed seven of fourteen counts in the third of three indictments against F. A. Heinze when the copper man, after a delay of 2½ years, was brought to trial. The counts dismissed charge over-certification and misapplication of the funds of the Mercantile National bank.

In commenting on the seven remaining counts in the third indictment, Hough said said they showed that Heinze knew money belonging to the bank was to be loaned to Otto Heinze & Co. for "speculative ventures of the most hazardous sort."

Miss Virginia Hunter of Fulton, New York and Miss Vera Colton of Pittsfield, Mass., Wellesley 1911, were week end guests of Miss Ethel Hersey.

Ladies of Union chapel Houghs Neck are disappointed to have rainy weather for the opening night of their two days' fair but there are so many interested in its success that a large patronage is sure rain or shine.

The Mohawk A. C. held a hurdy gurdy dance at Plummers hall Monday evening, which was largely attended. A hurdy gurdy furnished music for the dancing which was from 8 to 2 o'clock.

Harry Barr of Billings street has accepted a position with Harry T. Stirling, the Atlantic druggist. Mr. Stirling is to be congratulated on being able to secure the services of Mr. Burr, as a clerk, as he is a popular man in this vicinity. Mr. Burr is devoting his spare time to the work during school and will give the whole of his time during the summer vacation.

Something will have to be done at an early date toward repairing the bridge on Merrymount road over Butler pond. The bridge which is a wooden one is in bad condition and sadly in need of repairs. One of stringers has rotted away and dropped, so that some day a heavily loaded team passing over it may go down through.

The school children are not complaining of the stormy weather for they feel quite sure it will clear up for the annual May festival on Saturday afternoon at Music hall. Quantities of maybaskets have been made and mothers and friends are planning on making so much wholesome homemade candy that it surely will be a sweet time.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Popular Election of Senators Debated in House

The election of United States senators by popular vote was under debate in the House on Monday, but no vote was reached. It came up on a motion to substitute a resolution for an adverse report.

The House refused to reconsider adverse action on the bill to prohibit women under 21 entering Chinese restaurants.

It was voted to leave the number of bridges over the Cape Cod Canal to the county commissioners and State board of harbor and land commissioners.

Several reports were offered.

The committee on rules refused to admit the two proposed new charters for the city of Marlboro, and the bill to give cities and towns supervision over billboards and other forms of outdoor advertising.

The Senate was in session only 30 minutes on Monday and there was little of local interest.

BRIEFS

The M. S. Girls hold their first dance tomorrow evening in Alpha hall.

Ground has been broken for a new house on the corner of Billings street near Atlantic street.

Mrs. Charles A. Hall of Atlantic street, who has been spending a week in New York, returned Monday.

Miss Helen Grant Holbrook has been acting principal of the Weston school for girls in Roxbury, for the past two weeks.

Mrs. F. W. Loring has rented her house on Willow street for the summer to the family of Charles Tuttle of Boston.

Daughters of the Revolution and the Junior Sons and Daughters of the Revolution are making up parties to attend an illustrated historic lecture to be given at hotel Vendome, Boston, on Saturday afternoon by Mrs. John B. Clapp. The lecture is given under the auspices of Dorothy Q. chapter and is an especially attractive one.

There is a movement on foot to stop the Sunday sports in Belleview Park and that vicinity. An officer now patrols that district. Those people who have been accustomed to walk through those grounds will appreciate the quiet. For the past year this has been the regular Sunday resort of the base ball players and crap shooters.

The city of Quincy is fixing Squantum street at the hill near Montclair avenue. The rains wash out the stones and make bad gulleys, and as nothing has been done on it for a number of years, the place was in a bad condition. It is said that one of the Park Commissioners passed through there in his automobile and broke down on the hill which caused him to decide that the city must fix it.

DOCK IN HULL BAY.

Edward L. Burwell presents an elaborate plan for mammoth free port docks in Hull bay. He would extend Crow point toward Peddocks island about two miles to include both Grape and Sheep islands and beyond. He would provide a direct railroad connection by a grand trunk line direct from Palmer ,and another from South Framingham. The dock would have the advantage of being surrounded by deep water even at low tide.

Shaw Gets His Son

Salem, Mass., April 22.—When the decree giving Mrs. James F. Shaw a divorce was filed in the superior court here it was learned that the custody of the only child, a son, was given to Shaw. The mother will be permitted to see the boy every two weeks and to have him with her during one-half of his vacation.

A Great Thinker.

"Bliggins puts a great deal of thought into his work."

"Yes; he works ten minutes and then thinks about it for an hour and a quarter."

—"Yes," said the sentimentalist, "I often long for my boyhood days."

"I don't," replied the practical person.

"I don't feel any more like reciting 'Bingen on the Rhine' or watching the company eat all the desert than I did 30 years ago."

SUNDAY SERVICES

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther preached morning and evening on Sunday. Morning subject,—"The Angels' rebuke and promise," Acts 1-11—"Why stand ye here gazing up into Heaven." Evening subject,—"In the time of old age," Psa. 71-9—"Cast me not off in the time of old age." Both were very earnest and helpful sermons.

Miss Abbie Penley rendered two solos at the C. E. service which added much to the meeting.

A great interest is being shown in the work of the church largely because of the earnest efforts of the pastor.

HALL PLACE M. E.

Rev. Carl H. Raupach, pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church, took for his morning subject on Sunday, "Responsibilities of stewardship," Sunday School was held at the close of the morning service.

The Junior League was held at 3. P. M., when the following new officers were elected: President, Bertha Harvey; Vice president, Addie Newcomb; Secretary, Ardis Raupach; Treasurer, Hannah Roberts. There was a very good attendance.

The Epworth League was held at 6.15 with Mr. J. M. Francis as leader.

The pastor took for his evening subject "The unity that unites," his text being taken from Matt. 18:20.

Surprised Her.

A gentleman who had spent the greater portion of his life in Canada relates an amusing experience which befell him.

He had been on a hunting expedition for several days in the backwoods, roughing it rather severely, and on taking a seat in a railway train returning homeward he looked as begrimed and weather beaten a trapper as ever brought his skins into a settlement.

He happened to find a seat next to a young lady, evidently belonging to Boston, who, after taking stock of him for a few minutes, remarked:

"Don't you find an utterly passionful sympathy with nature's mountains and the dim aisles of the horizon touching forests, my good man?"

"Oh, yes," replied the apparent backwoodsman, "and also I am frequently drawn into an exaltation of rapt soulfulness and beatific incandescent infinity of abstract contiguity when my horse stumbles."

"Indeed!" said the young lady, much surprised. "I had no idea the lower classes felt like that."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Night Blindness.

Inability to see by day is matched by the commoner night blindness which most of us have known in friend or relative. This defect, which includes an inability to see even by artificial light, is congenital with some people and never overcome. It is often hereditary. It may also be caused, however, by long exposure to an overbright light, coupled with fatigue. A strange story is told concerning a ship's crew two centuries ago which were overcome by night blindness so extreme that their captain was obliged to force a fight with a Spanish privateer during the day, knowing that by night his men would be helpless. In order to obviate this difficulty for future occasions he ordered each sailor to keep one eye bound during the daytime, discovering, to his gratification, that this eye, having rested, was then free of the defect. The sailors were very amusing in their efforts to retain the bandage well over the eye that must be ready for night duty, and so a method of modifying this trouble was discovered.—London Strand Magazine.

Sand Swept Asia.

In the arid lands of central Asia the air is reported as often laden with fine detritus, which drifts like snow around conspicuous objects and tends to bury them in a dust drift. Even when there is no apparent wind the air is described as thick with fine dust, and a yellow sediment covers everything. In Khotan this dust sometimes so obscures the sun that at midday one cannot see to read fine print without a lamp.

☞ The May number of Suburban Life is a special summer-home number, and contains a great amount of information in regard to the construction of inexpensive vacation homes in the country, at the seashore and in the woods. Not only are many summer cottages pictured and described, but the furnishing of summer homes is treated in detail. The third instalment of Mrs. Mabel Osgood Wright's new "Barabara "story also appears in this number ,and among the other interesting and valuable contributions are "How to Conduct a Garden Contest, "by R. H. Rogers; "Up-to-Date Poultry Houses," "Planning and Planting the Home Grounds," "A College Man and Four Acres of Hillside," "A Productive Vegetable Garden." An unusual article, which will be welcomed by people interested in children's gardens and summer playgrounds, is entitled "Swimming on Dry Land," and is written by Dr. H. Shindle Wingert, of the University of Ohio.

FORE RIVER PROTEST

Claim Boston Rovers Played a Professional

The manager of the Fore River Association Football club, which lost its game on Saturday with the Boston Rovers, has forwarded a protest to secretary William McLochlan of the Williamson cup committee, claiming that the Rovers were not entitled to the victory in that their list of players included George Elliott, a professional, who has been a member of the Fall River Rovers and received pay for his services. Elliott played centre forward on Saturday and scored the first goal. Manager McLearie of the Boston team claims that Elliott is not a professional and that no professionals played on his teams. He supports his argument by the fact that the Pilgrim team of England played the Fall Rivers twice during their recent visit, thereby classing them as amateurs.

"Pop" Mahar has been re-engaged to captain and manage Rockland Old Colony League club the coming season. "Pop" certainly is up against it for his star slab artist Martin will wear a Milford suit in the Bay State league this summer. Did you notice what the Bigelows did to the White Sox of Braintree Saturday? Beat them 9 to 3. That Bigelow nine looks good to me, and more so since Saturday. I understand there is an effort being made to bring the Bigelows and Copelands together. I predict that the former can give the latter a good go if "Lefty" Ford is in good form, for on the holiday the Copelands had to work hard to defeat the White Sox by a score of 8 to 7.

Where are those wise ones who predicted the Grammar School league would not play three games? It begins to loom up as a fixture, and well it may, for with such an able group of head-masters of the schools interested, and Dr. Smith doing his part, I fail to see a weak spot.

KLAUS TO MEET PAPKE.

Pittsburger and "Illinois Thunderbolt" Will Travel Over Long Route May 14.

With the understanding that the winner will be matched to meet Stanley Ketchel for the middleweight championship of the world, Frank Klaus of Pittsburg and Billy Papke of Kewanee, Ill., will exchange jabs and uppercuts before Jimmy Coffroth's club at Colma, Cal., May 14, in a battle that will be practically to a finish, as the men have agreed to battle forty-five rounds.

The coming meeting between Papke and Klaus will be their second, but the previous bout was merely a trial spin, as neither man could show what he possessed in a six round journey. In that bout, however, critics gave the Pittsburger an even break with the one time conqueror of Ketchel, and friends of the new contender for the middleweight crown are inclined to believe that he has a good chance to defeat Papke and get a meeting with Ketchel over a longer route.

Klaus never has been asked to go more than ten rounds, and for that reason it is a matter of conjecture whether he will be able to stand the grind of a battle over the derby route Most of his work has been confined to the six round game around Pittsburg As yet he has not shown the public that he possesses the ability to assimilate the grueling administered to the campaigners in the vicinity of the Golden Gate.

Papke has all the necessary experience after years of hard work in California, and this probably more than any one thing will win for him. Some will argue that "youth will be served," with the youth on Klaus' side, but no one can deny that Papke is still a young man in years, with the added advantage of living a clean life. Giving Klaus all due credit, it looks from here as though Mr. Klaus had been rather hasty in matching with a bruiser of the Papke type, and for his folly he may pay the penalty if the dope runs to form. However, the short ender in the betting gave the dopesters a jolting just recently in the Wolgast-Nelson fight, and the same thing may happen again. But until after the fight Papke will have to be conceded the best chance.

OVERALL ANXIOUS TO CATCH.

One of Cubs' Star Twirlers Begs For Chance Behind Bat.

Orval Overall, the Chicago Nationals' giant pitcher, wants to become a backstop. So overwhelming has the desire become that he actually begged Manager Chance for an opportunity to work behind the bat this season.

During his college days at the University of California Overall had some experience as a catcher, and his ambition is said to date from those days. He and Nick Williams, now with the ORVIE OVERALL, CUBS' GIANT PITCHER.

San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league, composed an interchangeable battery that was the despair of all the other "rah-rah" nines and half the professional clubs on the coast.

Overall never misses an opportunity to don a big mitt in practice and never is so happy as when receiving the speedy slants of Mordecai Brown. Although Chance turned down the application without consideration, Overall declared that when his useful days as a pitcher were over it would be the mitt and mask for him.

MOVEMENT FOR NEW PARISH HOUSE

Committee Appointed by Wollaston Congregational Club Last Night

Jollification Night with a Varied Program

A most varied program closed the year of the Wollaston Congregational club at its meeting on Tuesday night. The following officers proposed by the nominating committee were unanimously elected for the ensuing year: President—Chester N. Dolbeer; vice president—Edward S. Tenney; treasurer—Fred L. Eastman; secretary—Robert B. Locke; chairman benevolent committee—Amos T. Leavitt.

Rev. Edward A. Chase, pastor of the church, sounded a note of progress in presenting a motion for a committee to look into the building of a parish house and bring it before the church in the fall. This said Mr. Chase was an opportune time for the promotion of something that had such large possibilities in a social way. As a result the following committee was appointed: R. B. Locke, Rev. E. A. Chase, R. B. Tolley, E. S. Tenney, C. T. Campbell, C. N. Godfry and C. J. Hogue.

Upon motion of C. F. West the following committee to circulate petitions for the improvement of train service at Wollaston was appointed: C. F. West, C. P. Hutchins and A. T. Leavitt.

C. J. Hogue the retiring president made an interesting farewell speech, and mentioned the recent club show which was such a success and had an attendance of over 450 in the two nights it was produced.

Owing to its success this meeting was turned into a jollification night, and memories of the show renewed. The members of the cast were present and indulged in humorous crossfire, impromptu and otherwise. The choruses which were sung by everybody certainly did "go with a swing."

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and as a result of the show a very favorable balance was shown.

Ex-President Wendall H. Hull told of the work the Civic League intended doing, and asked for the support of the club members.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered president C. J. Hogue for his efficient administration the past two years.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Quincy Men Divide on Direct Nomination Resolve

Representative Langelier voted yes and Representative Thomas no Tuesday on substituting the Riley resolve for direct election of United States senators in Masachusetts. The resolve was substituted 199 to 98.

The House engrossed by a vote of 135 to 45 the bill making Columbus day a legal holiday.

The Senate elevator bill was rejected 86 to 99.

A favorable report was made on the resolve of Mayor Fitzgerald for a constitutional amendment to allow the city of Boston to acquire for highway purposes additional land in connection with the proposed cross-town tunnel.

The Senate reverse action on the grade crossing bill on Tuesday voting 19 to 12 to throw it out. Senator Hultman was absent at the time.

The motion to reconsider the rejection of the 54-hour bill was defeated 17 to 17, defeating the measure for this year.

Gov. Draper has signed the appropriation bill of $360,142.96 for Metropolitan parks and parkway which carries with it $5000 for a sanitary station at Quincy Shore parkway, and probably money for the connection of the two parkways in Quincy.

The committee on metropolitan affairs report a bill requiring the transit commission to report a complete bill, with route, etc., to the next legislature, for a subway from Park street, to South station, and also report a bill calling on the same commision to report plans for a subway in continuation of the Park street-South station line to Dorchester with provision for extension to So. Boston; but the practical difference is that actual building of the first will begin a year sooner.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. William N. Ferguson of Newton street observed their fifth wedding anniversary Monday evening. Fifty relatives and friends including several from Braintree, Melrose and Malden, coming to offer their congratulations, besides members of the Dorothy Q. lodge, of which Mrs. Ferguson is a charter member. During the evening Miss Ruth Cahill of Berlin street and Miss Irma M. Douglas of Old Colony avenue rendered several pleasing duets. John V. Leland of Safford street read an original poem, which proved amusing, and presented Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson with a beautiful china dinner set in behalf of those present, for which they were heartily thanked. Refreshments of ice cream cake and punch were served.

Competition Not Favored in Submitting Plans for New Schoolhouses

Children Must be Six Years Old To Enter School

The special committee appointed to consider the question of whether it would be advisable to employ one architect to prepare school plans or open the preparation of plans to competition, reported as being against open competition, and in favor of inviting not more than two architects to send plans. The committee, however, asked for further time which was granted.

RESIGNATIONS.

The resignations of Isabel W. Joy of the Cranch school and Lucy L. Hennigan of the Wilard school were received and accepted.

It was voted to employ an additional teacher at the High school, a part of whose duties shall be the supervision of the girls in physical training.

The chairman was instructed to consult with the chairman of the supervisors Adams School fund to see if any arrangements can be made so that the Adams Academy building may be used by the School department for a manual training school.

"The members of the School Committee wish to put on record their high appreciation of Mr. Dexter E. Wadsworth as a member and as a man. As a member of the committee he was always prompt, and attentive to all its duties—earnest and careful in all his deliberations. As a man he was a good citizen—a true and loyal friend—thoughtful and helpful to others—giving always the best that was in him to whatever he undertook. The schools and the city are distinctly poorer from the loss of a character of such strength and promise. Our most sincere sympathy is extended to the wife and mother at this time of their great affliction.

"Resolved: that this memorial be spread upon the records of the School Committee and copy be sent to the family of Mr. Wadsworth."

ELKS MEET IN NEW HALL

Boxing Bouts on the Entertainment Program

Quincy lodge of Elks held its first meeting in Alpha hall, Kincaide block, Tuesday evening. The meeting was very largely attended by members including a number of visiting Elks. The change in meeting place from the Greenleaf hall was very noticable, and many favorable comments were heard on the wisdom that had prompted the officers to make the change. Alpha hall makes an ideal lodge room for a large number can readily be accommodated.

A brief business session was held, during which candidates were voted upon. The lodge then adjourned and the meeting was turned over to the entertainment committee headed by Edward L. Bean. The program arranged was a novel one, and was confined to members of the order. It included six boxing matches between well known athletes from Boston and Quincy. Each of the matches were of three rounds and were friendly exhibition contests. Some of the boxers were very clever and their efforts were well applauded. Between these matches there were vaudeville numbers which included solos, clog dancing and a character sketch.

At the conclusion of the entertainment an adjournment was made to the club rooms where refreshments were served.

GRAND FAIR AT HOUGHS NECK

Pleasing Entertainment on the Opening Night

A two days' fair in aid of the Union chapel at Houghs Neck was successfully opened in the chapel on Bay View avenue Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid society of the chapel. Crepe paper in abundance had been used about the chapel, which with apple blossoms transformed the interior of the chapel into a scene of beauty. Around the sides of the chapel were several booths for the sale of useful and fancy articles, confectionery, ice cream and cake, all of which was attractively arranged. The attendance was such as to tax the capacity of the chapel and the ladies at the several booths were kept busy attending to the wants of the many purchasers.

In addition to the booths, there was an entertainment during the first part of the evening, which opened with a piano and cornet duet by Miss Ella Acorn and E. D. West. Other numbers on the program were: a solo by Wallace Higgins; piano solo by Harry Farnham; reading Mrs. Susie A. Furnald; cornet, violin and piano trio by E. D. West, Miss Acorn and Mr. Pearley; solo by Miss Adelaide Figenbam; piano solo by Harry Farnham; reading by Mrs. Furnald; solo by Miss Edith Higgins; duet by Miss Smith and Miss Foster; song by Wallace Acorn, and selections by the chapel choir. The entertainment closed with a cornet, violin and piano trio by Mr. West, Miss Acorn and Mr. Pearley.

It is needless to say that all of the numbers on the program received generous applause and encores were given.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Oh, for the graft that is never found out!

Thanks to the Reublican of Indiana, we are still to have our Beveridge.

Remember, fellow-statesmen, the first-page puff of today may be used in the obituary of tomorrow.

The meanest man in Pittsburg is the banker briber, who falsely made oath that his father, now dead, started him as a grafter.

Delaware has refused to pardon one of the "Gas" Addicks bribe givers, which goes to show that she is determined that the passing of Addickism shall stay passed.

Some Somerville residents were set to a hand task the other evening the S. of V., holding a mum supper during which every one speaking was fined a cent. Needless to say it was an impossible task and a tidy sum was realized for the Sons of Veterans treasury.

Each state is entitled to but two members of the United States Senate but five were born in Massachusetts, including Messrs. Crane and Lodge, and one each from California, Oregon and Wyoming. Seven, however, were born in Mississippi and six in both Ohio and Kentucky.

Did you ever stop to think when you were paying your taxes just what you were really paying for? For city, county, state and national improvements yes, but also for the cost of crime. One-tenth of the tax in Massachusetts is expended on the punishment of criminals a sum almost equal to that spent for education. This is not the whole cost of crime either for there is the indirect cost of loss to trade, loss of property and vast sums expended by individuals and charitable organizations.

An occasional period for the discussion of civic beauty and how to help make the city more attractive might be of benefit in the public schools. If nothing more was accomplished than to make them see their own responsibility it would be worth while. For instance if the High school pupils will be brought to see that it was their duty to walk on the gravel walks instead of on the grass edge wouldn't their yard look more attractive? After all very little time is saved by cutting off the corners and it is much better to have green lawns. It is almost impossible to keep people from cutting off the corners unless shrubs or other obstructions are placed in their path. Why is it?

Speaking at Worcester, Monday evening, Governor Draper made a frank statement of his personal intentions as to continuance in office, to the effect that he should follow the wish of the party. If there has been a notion in any quarter that the Governor would display a white flag for the satisfaction of his Democratic friends it is now dispelled. It was never indulged by those who have any knowledge of the characteristics of the vigorous and courageous man now in the Governor's chair. No quality is more marked in him than fearlessness, and it shows itself alike in the discharge of his duties and in the way he proceeds in a campaign. With more difficulties presented to him than have come in the path of any other recent Governor, with a constant and vicious opposition making the most of every opportunity to prepare pitfalls for him, and with the lack of corresponding courage among members of the legislature of his own party to shoulder their share of responsibility, he has carried himself through the difficulties of nearly three years in office with unchanging purpose and unfaltering resolution. Where a weak man would have exposed himself to ridicule, or a time-serving man would have compromised to his own advantage, it is the testimony of every close observer of his course, let the truth be told, that Mr. Draper has met the duties of an exacting office with perfect self-possession, unwavering courage and a clear sense of the interests of the commonwealth.

DRIFT OF OPINION

Samuel Gompers says he opposed prohibition because it doesn't prohibit. The same argument would apply to the Ten Commandments and the city ordinances.—Minneapolis Journal.

Hhe plans to boom New England can be most effectively gotten under way by starting right at home and pushing the business of your own city or town. If everybody does that the business of all New England would leap and boom in a way that would require no further assistance for a long time to come. If we bought the goods made in New England, boomed the cities and towns of New England, were interested mainly in what might be happening in New England, felt confidence all the while that New England could get there in the race with any section, and yet didn't feel so confident that we didn't work for New England at the same time that we believe in her, all would be well with every section of this portion of the land. And don't try to boom all New England all at once; boom your own section, and boom it hard, and rest easy in the thought that perhaps the other fellows in the other sections will be taking care of their parts of New England too.—Brockton Enterprise.

April 20 members of the executive board of the Chelsea Woman's club appeared before the board of control and requested that an ordinance be passed prohibiting hawkers and peddlers from crying their goods through the streets of the city, the purpose being to put a stop to the annoyance in the residenial sections and to place this city in line with other progressive cities where peddlers are not permitted to indulge in lung power stunts every day in the year except Sundays.

One of the opponents of the desired ordinance, whose voice has been trained by long experience took occasion to remark that the women had a hobby of interesting themselves in the affairs of other people and intimated that they ought to mind their own business. This is the claim that is usually put forth by those who want the privilege of doing as they please. If anybody makes an effort to improve civic conditions or asks for any new laws or ordinances for the betterment of the community they are told to mind their own business.

It is fortunate for Chelsea that the women who appeared before the board of control yesterday have not always minded their own business. If they had attended strictly to their own affairs they would have done less hard work for the various philanthropies in which they have been, and are today interested, and enjoyed more of the comforts of their pleasant home life. On the other hand they have given of their ability, time and money to help worthy institutions and to advance the best interests of the community in which they live.

The women who appeared before the board were authorized to do so by the Women's club, which consists of about 450 members, and in opposing the continuance of what they believe to be a street hawking nuisance they represented the views of the large and influential organization of which they are members and officers.—Chelsea Record.

Training of young men and women for marriage and parenthood and instructions in the social conventions should be inaugurated at once by American colleges, according to theories advanced by Miss Marion Talbot, dean of women and professor of household administration at the University of Chicago, in a book on "The Education of Women," issued recently from the University Press. Race suicide and divorce can be diminished by proper social education, Miss Talbot declares. She urges the cultivation of a high level of social life in the colleges, while condemning "amusement in the form of dissipation," and deplores the fact that some colleges prohibit dancing. Miss Talbot seems to be getting far afield. The plain, old-fashioned people of New England still hold to the belief that home is woman's sphere and always will be for most women. It may be true that the art of old-time hospitality is disappearing before the wave of expensive enertainment. But, here in Massachusetts at least, there still exists an imperative social demand that girls should be trained to be wives and mothers and boys to be husbands and fathers.—Haverhill Gazette.

OCTOROONS NOT IN NEGRO CLASS

Louisiana Supreme Court Makes an Important Ruling

New Orleans, April 27.—That a large part of the legislation in Louisiana directed toward the separation of the races does not apply to octoroons or quadroons is the gist of a decision handed down by the state supreme court, which holds that where the text of the law merely says "negroes" it cannot be applied to octoroons or other persons of mixed blood.

All Louisiana has been waiting with anxiety for this decision as to the relative efficiency of white and black blood in determining the racial status of a person who possesses a share of both strains. Local opinion, custom and law have hitherto agreed in holding that the black, and not the white, blood settled the question, and the octoroon, no less than the quadroon and the mulatto, has been considered a negro. But Judge Chretien of the Louisiana district court recently took the ground that one Josephine Lightelf, an octoroon, had so little negro blood that in the eyes of the law she was a white woman.

If the affirmatory decision of the supreme court stands it will open many doors now closed to the "colored" people, and will break down not a few of the barriers that have been laboriously erected between the two races.

ASSAULTED IN CAFE

Woman Pianist Recovers $5000 Damages From Proprietor of Place

Boston, April 27.—Anna H. Bird was awarded $5000 by the jury which has been hearing her case against Dennis J. O'Brien, the proprietor of a Cambridge street cafe, where she was employed as a pianist.

Mrs. Bird claimed to have been seriously injured by being assaulted by Sandy Ferguson, the prize fighter, who had thrown her to the floor of the cafe after she had refused to play a particular piece which, at the moment, he was very desirous of hearing.

MOVEMENT FOR NEW PARISH HOUSE

The speaker of the evening was Dr. John Mason Little, surgeon with Dr. Grenfell, who delivered a stereopticon lecture on "Life on the Labrador." Many interesting slides were shown, depicting the life and customs of the country in general and the work of Dr. Grenfell in particular.

The lecture closed with a picture of the "Wollaston cot" in one of the hospitals which the Congregational club has of recent years supported, and some views of Dr. Grenfell at work. These were loudly applauded.

Among those present was W. E. Sheldon a friend of Dr. Little, who was an interested guest of the club. Mr. Sheldon was a former Wollaston resident and is interested in the lumber industry in Labrador. He is said to have been the first to greet Commander Peary upon his return.

Members of Wollaston Methodist club were present and President George Taylor responded to a request for a speech.

A delectable supper was served, begining with roast beef and ending with strawberry shortcake. The boys who have been waiters during the year sat at a table this time and were waited upon.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Owing to the rainy weather and to not knowing just what the entertainment was to be only about a hundred were present Tuesday afternoon at the meeting of the Quincy Women's club, Mrs. Gurney president was in the chair and called for the reports.

Mrs. Tenney for the Arts and Crafts committee said there would be an unique exhibition at the next meeting. Also today there was an exhibition in their rooms of 50 photographs, the work of W. G. Corthell of Wollaston who took very fine pictures in his travels through Europe.

Mrs. Wade for the Home Economics committee announced the usual exchange and also a supplementary table of candy in the hall which she hoped would be patronized. The Saturday afternoon sales at W. G. Shaw's would be continued a few weeks longer.

Mrs. Blanchard said with the three dollars dues which she was now receiving she had also received two unique amounts, one of $100 for the tuberculosis camp, the other 10 cents for general federation dues both from Mrs. Morton.

Following the vote of the last meeting to join the General Federation it was decided to join after Jan. 1st.

Mrs. Mackay for the Education committee said: "Our committee is hard at work upon the two entertainments which take place this week. Mrs. Kitson's pictures on Friday evening, at Alpha hall, with Williams Ward Whitcher to introduce them, Emery L. Crane as stage manager and Miss Georgiana Lane to assist Mrs. Kitson arange and pose the pictures, bespeaks a first class entertainment, add to this chorous singing by thirty well-trained voices, fancy dancing and an exhibition of fencing and we can only say that we are sorry for those who no not avail themselves of this evening's pleasure. The arrangements for the May Festival are complete. The program this year is the sort of one which gives children enjoyment and the committee feels sure that it has provided well. There will be exhibitions by Y. M. C. A. boys, by a class of girls, fancy dancing, fencing and music. Miss Johnson again contributes a hurdy gurdy. May baskets may be left at Music hall Friday afternoon. We would like to give the children only home-made candy if possible. If you ladies will make some candy and leave it at the hall Friday afternoon or drop a card to me, if you can't do that, I will collect it. The Education committee has received a gift of $5.00 from a club member for the children's gardens. It was indeed welcome.

Mrs. Doble for the Music committee announced the date of the operetta "Pinafore" as Saturday afternoon May 21, for ladies only and hoped all club members would attend and bring their cousins and aunts.

Miss Turner, chairman of the Philanthropy committee said when her committee organized last spring it had no funds to draw on. A case needing immediate help was brought to the attention of the committee and an appeal for funds was made through the Quincy Patriot, which was generously responded to. The woman was cared for through sickness and death and of the funds over a hundred dollars was left. Through the kindness of doners this money was to be given to help build the tugerculosis shack which the club had voted to build. Miss Turner asked club members to contribute cake for the meeting of the young Women's club on Saturday evening. It was to be the last social meeting and a gentlemen's night.

This closed the business and Mrs. Gurney introduced Mrs. Park, of the Program committee, who in turn introduced Miss Anna H. Ellis of Braintree, soloist of the afternoon, who accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Chandler W. Smith sang a group of three songs, The Rosy Morn, Absence and The Little Dutch Garden. Miss Ellis has a rich contralto voice and sang with ease and most pleasing effect.

The speaker of the afternoon was Madame Amelie Von Ende and her subject "The Message of Ellen Key."

Ellen Key brought up in a home with pleasant environments, well educated, left the home to become a teacher and then a social worker. She set about helping humanity. Cooperation of men and women was essential for best work. Evolution meant development. Fathers and mothers were physically and mentally responsible for their children. The future of life was the child whose rearing should not be destructive but constructive and in harmony. Home training should be for individuality. In the ideal school there should be no examinations or rewards or merits. It was best to specialize early each child having its own personality. Education should harmonize theory and practice. Opposed religious training in the school because its teaching was violated on every hand. Would teach reverence. Ellen Key's creed was faith in life the development of mankind to higher life, lofty ideals. Every generation grows strong as it lives strongly in the soul. Have ideals and formulate principles to put them into use. Work and progress in unison. In all her writings Ellen Key applies her theories. She criticises the modern way of entertaining, deplores the monotony of formalism and lack of individualty. Would reform social life, get away from old traditions and make a concrete individual stand with equal rights for all. In all her books the thought brought out is the humanism of humanity. Her reading of life is wholesome, not as a theorist and shows faith in the goodness of humanity to bring harmony out of chaos.

A social tea followed the program the hostesses being Mrs. Joh n L.

MR. IRWIN AS PRINCIPAL

Atlantic Man Selected for East Greenwich Academy

At the recent session of the New England Southern conference, Rev. Samuel W. Irwin, who spent the past two summers in Atlantic and made a host of friends in Quincy, was selected as the new principal of East Greenwich academy, Rhode Island. The revival of interest in the academy, and the enthusiastic outlook of those officially concerned, could not have been more strongly illustrated than in the selection of their new head. To those who know Mr. Irwin intimately any word of appreciation is unnecessary. As will be seen, he is a young man. Thoroughly furnished and equipped as a scholar, he is so wholly mastered and swayed by the mind, spirit and passion for service manifested by Jesus Christ, that his career has been noteworthy. He demonstrates in a striking degree the fundamental saying of Jesus: "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it." He is a man of very attractive personality, intellectual vigor, and marked pulpit ability.

Mr. Irwin's varied experience has been such as to excellently fit him for this responsibility. Coming originally from Ontario, where he received his academic training, he took his university course in Michigan. During his stay in the latter state he occupied the pulpit very satisfactorily of the First Methodist Episcopal church in Kalamazoo. The following few years he spent in teaching, after which he entered Boston University School of Theology, from which he graduated in 1907. He has spent two years in the University Graduate School of Arts and Sciences under the late Dr. Bowne. We do not wonder that the friends of East Greenwich are feeling that they have been providentially led into securing just the man for the present exigency.

All concerned are to be congratulated upon this new administration; the trustees, upon their bright outlook in Mr. Irwin's appointment; the church, upon its opportunity to make East Greenwich a great success; and the students, upon having as their principal a man in whose companionable and sympathetic good will their best interests will be subserved.

JOLLY SIXTEEN.

Monday evening the Jolly Sixteen met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stoddard, Baxter street. Before beginning to play whist, each member was handed a card by the hostess, on which was a copied picture from the Boston American and a letter of the club's name, the letters were then matched so that the gentleman who had the letter J played with the lady whose card had O on it, thus forming the club name, Jolly Sixteen. At the end of two hours, souvenirs were given to Mr. F. Smith for highest score, followed by Mr. Gragg, Mrs. Merritt and Mrs. Hannon, and consolation t oMr. Merritt and Miss Howes, after which the hostess served ice cream, cake, fruits and candy.

CAMPAIGN IN EMPIRE STATE

Viewed With Considerable Alarm by Republican Leaders

HUGHES WAS VALUABLE ASSET

Even Opponents of the Executive Figured on Compelling Him to Take the Stump, Which Is Now Prevented by His Acceptance of Judgeship —No Strong Man to Take His Place Appears to Be In Sight

Albany, April 27.—With Governor Hughes absolutely eliminated from the political situation by his acceptance of a supreme court judgeship, who is to be Republican candidate for governor this fall? That question has already begun to loom large here.

While even Hughes' enemies will not allege that he has run away from a losing fight, it is the general belief at the capitol that there is little hope now of preventing the Democrats from electing the next governor of the state. Hughes' acceptance of a place on the supreme court bench means that he will be taken out of the state campaign this fall. The Republicans who know the desperate straits of the party here had been relying on the governor to turn the anti-Republican tide in the campaign that will open within a few months.

They seem well nigh hopeless today. There is no doubt that the governor would like to that seen Mr. Hotchkiss, the state superintendent of insurance, named as the gubernatorial candidate. With the governor eliminated as a potent force in the political situation, however, there is little likelihood that his protege has any chance of securing the nomination.

Otto Bannard of New York is regarded in many quarters as the best man to put forward for the governorship. There is some talk, however, of Herbert Parsons, recently chairman of the New York county Republican committee. Representative William S. Bennett, who is an associate of Parsons in congress, is known to be an aspirant for the nomination. Among machine men there is still some talk of naming James S. Wadsworth, speaker of the assembly, as a candidate to succeed Hughes as governor. Experienced Republican leaders, however, have little or no faith in the talk that any of these men could be elected.

It was the plan of the old time leaders in the Republican organization to force Hughes either to agree to accept a renomination or to compel him to take the stump this fall in defense of his policies and the state and congressional tickets as the price for passing the Hinman-Green direct nominations bill and other Hughes measures. The governor's acceptance of a supreme court judgeship, however, has caused something akin to a panic in the camp of the machine Republicans here.

FINDS $50,000 MINE

Negro Who Was Penniless Last Week Now Has Snug Bank Account

Los Angeles, Cal., April 27.—John Thompson, a negro, who last Wednesday was penniless, today has $50,000 to his account in a bank and left as a Pullman passenger for Louisville. He made a lucky strike at Blodgetts Tanks, in Riverside county.

Thompson came to Southern California as a Santa Fe Pullman porter. Contracting the gold fever he struck out six weeks ago, and with the luck of a tenderfoot stumbled across a rich gold bearing ledge at Blodgetts Tanks.

Mining experts made a number of tests and offered him $100 cash for his locations. He refused to consider less than $50,000. The experts communicated with their principals at New York, shipped east 1000 pounds of ore and received a telegram to close the deal at $50,000 cash.

SIX ON KELIHER'S BAIL

Alleged Accomplice of Coleman Released on Bond of $25,000

Boston, April 27.—William J. Kelliher, known as "Big Bill," was released from Charles street jail on $25,000 surety furnished by the Massachusetts Bonding and Insurance company for his appearance in court next Saturday to answer to the charge of aiding and abetting George W. Coleman in the wrecking of the National City bank of Cambridge.

Although the bail was furnished, the risk was taken by six friends of Keliher who have pledged an equal amount of real estate and cash to secure the bonding company, which they have used as a screen to conceal their identity from the government and the public.

GREAT JEWELRY SWINDLE

Half a Million Dollars Said to Have Been Lost by Manufacturers

Providence, April 27.—A conspiracy, far-reaching in its effects, has just been unearthed, and developments up to date indicate that through this great swindle manufacturing jewelers throughout the country have been robbed of goods valued at $500,000 at least. Ten arrests have already been made in Alabama and Texas, and one of the alleged conspirators was on the Mexican border ready to cross the line when the officials took him into custody.

The scheme was to buy jewelry thoughout the country and ship it to Montgomery, Ala., which was the fountain head of the conspiracy. After that, the reports say, dummy packages were sent from the Montgomery house to other stores controlled by the firm. These were there credited as real shipments of valuable goods and so listed. The stores were then set on fire, it is alleged, and the dummy packages were listed as lost assets by the firm in bankruptcy proceedings.

CITY CLUB IS TWISTED

Does Not Appear to Be Posted on Rebel Lineup In Congress

Washington, April 27.—Boston's famous City club, through an innocent member thereof, has got its political wires crossed. Representative Denby of Michigan is in receipt of a cordial invitation to visit Boston and make to the City club a "defense of the position of the insurgents." The case of the regulars already has been outlined, he is informed, by Representative Prince of Illinois.

His correspondent suggests that the club is seeking light on the other side of the controversy, and would be delighted to hear either from him or his fellow conspirators, Murdock of Kansas or Norris of Nebraska.

Mr. Denby is highly appreciative of the compliment and especially of his association with such famous company. He is, however, as "regular" as John Dalzell, hence the City club must look elsewhere for insurgent orators.

USES AXE ON WIFE, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Concord Man Believed to Have Suddenly Become Insane

Concord, N. H., April 27.—Heran W. Clough brained his wife with an axe and then cut his own throat with a butcher knife.

The tragedy occurred in their home here. Mrs. Clough was ill in bed, attended by her daughter and a nurse, when she was murdered by her husband. It is believed that Clough was insane. He worked as night switchman in the Boston and Maine railroad yard in this city. He was 50 years old and his wife was several years his junior. He has been brooding over her illness.

Clough came home yesterday after his night's work and went to bed as usual. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon he leaped from his bed and seized an axe.

He drove his daughter and the nurse from the house with this weapon. Then he killed his helpless wife.

The screams of his daughter and the nurse brought to the scene two men. They found Clough outside the house and beating his head against the doorstep. The men seized him, but he had such maniacal strength he broke away and rushed back into the house. There he took a butcher knife and slashed his own throat.

TEN THOUSAND TURN OUT

Citizens of Amsterdam Give Royal Greeting to Pedestrian Weston

Amsterdam, N. Y., April 27.—Ten thousand people went out from this city last night to welcome Edward P. Weston, while church bells clanged out a riotous greeting and blazing fireworks illuminated the countryside.

Delayed by the drenching rains of early morning, Weston made only forty-three miles yesterday. He is 202 miles from New York, and he will finish his 3500-mile journey on Saturday, fifteen days ahead of schedule time.

His welcome last night was the most enthusiastic which he has received on his trip east. During the past two days hundreds of people have walked miles to catch a passing glimpse of the 71-year-old pedestrian.

Boston, April 27.—Arrangements have been completed whereby 1250 locomotive engineers on the Boston and Maine railroad will be granted a substantial increase in wages, to go into effect immediately.

BJORNSTJERNE BJORNSON

His Name Was Foremost In Scandinavian Literature

WAS NORWAY'S GRAND OLD MAN

Bjornson Dies In France After Long and Serious Illness

WAS NOTED AS A DRAMATIST

Best Known In America as Poet and Novelist, but at Home Was a Force In Politics—Once Fled to America After Being Condemned For Treason—Found Inspiration For Writings In His Mountain Home

Paris, April 27.—Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the Norwegian poet, novelist and dramatist, reformer and advocate of universal peace, died here last night, surrounded by his family. His end was peaceful.

The last serious illness of the novelist extended over nearly a year. He was brought to Paris in the early part of last November for special treatment. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter, a physician and nurses.

Bjornstjerne Bjornson was born at Kvikne, Osterdalem, Norway, Dec. 8, 1832. His father was a clergyman. He completed his education at the universities of Christiania and Copenhagen, and first became known in consequence of some articles and stories which he contributed to newspapers. In 1857 he returned from abroad, and was first director of the theatre in Vergen, and afterwards for a short time editor of the journal Aftenbladet in Christiania.

As a journalist Bjornson expressed strong Republican opinions, which aroused considerable public excitement. Finally he was condemned to a year's imprisonment for treason, but escaped to Germany, and afterwards to America, and did not return to Christiania until 1882, when he once more began the work of agitation against the government and the union of the two Scandinavian kingdoms.

His occupation was directly that of a writer of plays and director of dramatic productions. As such he had charge of the national theatre in Christiania and control throughout Denmark. Moreover, he was a citizen of the world, and in England, Germany, Italy and the United States he has moulded and directed in great degree the dramatic purpose of today.

As a lyric poet Bjornson took high rank, even attempting the composition of epic verse. He was a voluminous writer and dramatist, and in all his work strove to become a vehicle of national feeling, seeking to give expression to the Norwegian spirit. He was looked upon as one of the most stimulating influences for the revival of Scandinavian literature.

Bjornstjerne Bjornson was for many years an incessant traveler and lived many years abroad—in France, Italy and the Tyrol. He had a natural fondness for the country and especially for the peasant classes of the mountains. It was to satisfy this fondness that he built the beautiful mountain home at Aulestad in the Norwegian hills. It was here he found inspiration for many of his later works.

Roosevelt Sees Aviator Fall

AN UP-TO-DATE STOVE
Do you realize there is no longer any reason why you should use a coal range? Oil is cheaper than coal; it is lighter and easier to handle, and gives an intense heat. Provided you have the right stove, oil is more economical, cleaner and less trouble. Have you seen the
New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME
Oil Cook-stove
The accompanying illustration gives you only a rough idea of its appearance. You really can't appreciate it until you either use it yourself, or talk to someone who has used it. It does everything that a coal range will do—except heat the room. The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove will do anything, from heating a kettle of water to cooking a course dinner, but it won't heat a room. It doesn't "smell," it doesn't smoke. It can't get out of order. Light it and it is ready. Turn it down and it is out. Only a woman who knows the trouble of carrying coal and cooking in a hot kitchen can appreciate what it means to have a clean, perfect stove that will cook anything, boil, bake or roast, and yet won't heat the kitchen. How is it done? The flame is controlled in turquoise-blue enamel chimneys, and directed against the bottom of pot, pan, kettle or oven, and only there. The flame operates exactly where it is needed —and nowhere else. With this stove your kitchen is cool.
The nickel finish with the bright blue of the chimneys makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Pattee's History Tells How Our Ancestors Lived

(Historical Paper No. 15)

How did our Pilgrim and Puritan ancestors live? Pattee's History of Quincy says: We answer, in the plainest and most simple and econmical names. When they arrived in this inhospital land they found it a barren wilderness; the fields or open spaces were not covered with the green carpet of verdure, as at present. No grass was to be found suitable to nourish their cattle, excepting salt grass. This barrenness obliged them to wait until they could send home to England and procure grass seed to sow the land with. This condition of matters made salt meadows for the time being, quite valuable, as one acre of salt meadow was worth two of upland, and upon this basis the division of land was made.

The dwellings of the earlier settlers were constructed of logs and called block or log houses. The better class of them had their chinks filled up with mud to protect them from the cold, chilly blasts of winter. A chimney was erected from the centre of the building, through the roof. The enclosed top of the structure was thatched, and so important did the Colonists consider the preservation of this material for the protection of these log houses from the inclemency of the weather, that every town was ordered to construct a house in which to secure the long, beach grass for this purpose.

In these rudely-constructed log cabins some of the first town meetings were held, by a few neighbors assembling together for the transaction of town business. They were a sort of travelling institution,—sometimes being held at Mr. Saunder's and at other times at Col. Quincy's Mr. Brackett's etc., or in neighborhoods where the principal business of that meeting was to be acted upon.

Their culinary untensils were few and simple; pewter dishes and plates, and a limited number of pots and kettles, were all they had. No knives or forks,—fingers and napkins were the popular etiquette of the table in the management of their humble repasts. Knives and forks were not much known in England before 1650, and did not come into common use in the Colonies until a much later period, as we are not able to find them enumerated in the earlier inventories of estates of the first settlers of the town.

The morning and evening meals, for over a century were hasty pudding, milk and hominy, broth or porridge, as it was called, flavored by salt pork being boiled in it. Meat was rarely used, as their oxen were preserved for draught, cows for their milk and butter, and sheep for their wool to clothe themselves; also, to make their flock beds. Those who could spare time from their farm labor could procure wild fowl and fish near the shores, and a few wild turkeys by huting them in the woods.

Their substitute for tea and coffee, was home made beer. The malt for making their beer was procured at Mr. Joseph Adams' malt house, or at Mr. Bass'. After their orchards of apple trees were established, the social mug of old cider became a favorite beverage. Why tea and coffee were so long deferred from coming into the Provinces, we are not able to state, unless it was the high prices asked for these articles of luxury.

Tea was very rarely used in England before 1657, and was sold from six to ten pounds per pound. Pepys, the noted connoisseur and great lover of good cheer, does not record his first cup of tea until Sept. 25th, 1660. Coffee was not brought into England until 1641. The first coffee house was opened by a Jew in Oxford, in 1650. A Greek opened the first house of this nature in London, on Lombard street, in 1652. It was about a century after this period, before tea began to be commonly used in the Provinces, and it was a century before coffee was familiarly known, or in common use by our ancestors.

Subsequently, baked beans, the New Englander's favorite dish for Sunday meals came into use, and on Saturdays, minced cod-fish and potatoes, and rye and Indian bread, was the fashionable meal, not on Friday, as that would be popish, and whoever used it on that day would be eternally damned, and all the prayers of Cotton Mather and his saintly elders could not have saved him from perdition.

Here is the inventory of the estate, goods and chattels of Lient. Col. Edmund Quincy of Braintree (now Quincy) deceased, taken March 15, 1697-8 by Samuel Penniman and Nathaniel Wales. Mr. Quincy was one of the wealthy and opulent farmers of the town:

Gow and Mrs. S. E. Ames and the pourers Mrs. George W. Morton, Mrs. Albert G. Olney and Mrs . A. M. Jameson, assisted by members whose names commence with J. K. L. M. and N.

The next meeting Tuesday May 10 will be the annual and the closing one of the season. Mrs. W. E. Blanchard, treasurer desires all members wishing to retain their membership in the club another year to send her their dues within 10 days that she may make complete returns in her annual report. Members whose dues remain unpaid will be dropped from the club at the close of the pear. Remittances by mail should be accompanied by addressed stamped envelope for return of membership ticket.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

Dull weather kept many away from the annual meeting of Quincy Alliance held Monday afternoon in the parlor of First church but those attending were much interested in the work of the year as brought out in the reports.

Mrs. Edward B. Marsh president was in the chair and called the meeting to order for the usual devotional service and reports. Delegates were appointed to attend Alliance meetings at First church, Roxbury and the Hall Street church, South Boston. Mrs. Christiansen brought back an interesting account of the meeting at Christ church, Dorchester, which she attended.

Members were unanimous in feeling that the neighborhood meeting had been a great success in every way.

Mrs. Saville spoke for the Appropriation committee. She said a new idea was to be carried out "anniversary week," visitors would be entertained at Commonwealth hotel, Boston, instead of in the various homes of greater Boston. This would cost more and she asked a liberal donation from the Alliance. A report of the finances was given by the treasurer after which various sums were appropriated. After reserving $15.00 for an emergency fund the balance was donated to the cheerful letter work.

It was voted to send a letter of condolence to Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Pratt whose little son was recently killed in an accident.

Mrs. Edward B. Marsh, Mrs. Buckingham and Christiansen were appointed delegates to the annual meeting of the National Alliance on May 24th at Dr. Cummings church, Boston.

The annual reports showed considerable work accomplished through the year and sustained interest of members the meetings being well attended. Mrs. William B. Nichols as secretary and for the Cheerful Letter work gave good reports. The cheerful letter work was very encouraging, books, magazines and letters were brightening the lives of many shutins.

The Post Office mission Mrs. Hodgkinson reported as answering several appeals for Unitarian literature.

Miss Underwood told of the music furnished in the year's program, it having been of a high order. She also told of the work of Morgan Memorial, Boston, and asked for jellies, etc., to be sent to her by the 3d Monday in September for its use. Quincy Alliance besides its usual donation of $5 also contributed $5 to Morgan Memorial for its summer camp at Athol.

Mrs. Magee reported a few things remaining in Alliance basket. It was suggested that members make up some new and pretty articles, perhaps sew at one of the regular Alliance meetings.

Mrs. H. W. Tirrell for the hospitality committee suggested a larger committee and the directors were made a part of the committee.

The program for next year was all made out. It was suggested for the Sunday school meeting when Dr. Horton would speak that an evening meeting be held and it was so voted and all church organizations to be invited.

Mrs. Marsh in bringihg the meeting to a close thanked all for their support during her first year as president.

The meeting closed with a social tea the hostesses being Mrs. Christiansen and Mrs. Pfaffmann. Jonquils adorned the tables.

FOR DIRECT ELECTIONS

Bay State Solons' Action May Mean Ultimate Defeat of Lodge

Boston, April 27.—By a roll-call vote of 109 to 98, the house of representatives overturned an adverse report from its committee on federal relations and substituted the resolutions of Representative Riley demanding that congress call a constitutional convention to amend the federal constitution so that United States senators shall be elected by direct vote of the people.

Twenty-eight states have passed a similar demand. If Massachusetts passes the resolutions through house and senate, only two more states of the necessary two-thirds will be needed to bring about action by congress.

Nearly fifty Republican legislators jumped over the party traces and voted for the Riley resolutions. Their action created consternation at Republican state headquarters and the remark "This is Lodge's doom" was heard at gathering places for legislators, politicians and persons interested in public affairs.

A STRENUOUS INITIATION

Sends Bridgeport High School Girl to Retreat to Recover Health

Bridgeport, Conn., April 27.—Macaroni cooked in soap and labelled "angle worms" had to be eaten, and a cocktail of vinegar, molasses, salt, pepper and the white of an egg had to be gulped down before a girl could join the Alpha Sorority in the high school here, according to testimony offered to the board of education.

Hot wax from a melting candle was dropped on her bare arm and a piece of ice applied. The effect of burning flesh was supplied by putting a hot poker into a piece of beefsteak.

Loraine Clark was the victim. Her nerves shattered, she is now in a retreat at Linden Lodge, Brattleboro, Vt., recruiting her health.

A score of witnesses testified. Miss Ethel Havens gave a graphic description of the ceremonies attendant upon Miss Clark's initiation, which she said were practically the same in every initiation.

SHOE TROUBLE MAY BECOME SERIOUS

Likely to Affect Many Thousand Workers at Lynn

Lynn, Mass., April 27.—The demands of less than 100 employes in four of the largest shoe factories in Lynn for an increase in wages resulted in a strike which may before long result in the shutting down of all the shoe factories here, and the throwing out of work of many thousand hands.

"Affairs have got to such a state," said one of the most prominent shoe manufacturers, "that there are only three things for us to do—fight, move somewhere else or quit business altogether. It has cost me at least $10,000 more to carry on my business this year, due to increased wages paid to employes, and with a constantly increasing dissatisfaction on the part of the men with what we are paying them at present there will be no alternative but for us to close up shop."

The strike was declared by the stock-fitters in four factories who refused to work unless they received a raise of $1 to $3.50 a week. The factories employ 1200 hands.

MISSING GEMS FOUND

Accident Reveals $100,000 Worth Hidden In Moss Home

New York, April 27.—The disappearance of $100,000 worth of jewels of the late Mrs. Theodore O. Moss, widow of the late theatrical manager, has been cleared up by a freak of chance. The missing jewel collection was revealed by the accidental striking of a foot on a secret spring which released a door in a pedestal in the home of Mrs. Moss on Madison avenue.

Beverly Kator, a grandson of Mrs. Moss, happened to stumble against a pedestal that supported a work of art. Instantly a secret door in the pedestal flew open. There, in the recess, was a dazzling array of gems—all the trinkets and jewels that had been famous during the life of his grandmother. Enough of the sparkling hoard was revealed to stock a modest jewelry store.

No Stock Market Inquiry

Albany, April 27.—By a vote of 16 to 92, the assembly refused to withdraw from the ways and means committee the resolution for the appointment to investigate the New York stock and consolidated exchanges and all other exchanges throughout the state. This kills the measure.

MILK DEALERS IN A COMBINE

Attorney General's Report on New York Situation

SOME SORT OF "AGREEMENT"

Understanding Exists to Raise and Keep Up Prices Is the Conclusion Reached After Long Probe—Investigation Fails to Justify Rise In Price—Industrial Court to Issue Licenses Is Recommended

Albany, April 27.—According to the findings of Attorney General O'Malley's court inquiry into the milk business of New York city, which have just been made public, there exists in the city of New York a combination of the large dealers that forces a retailer to sell milk at a certain price or have his supply cut off. That the producer has no say in fixing this rate is another important finding of the commission.

Mr. O'Malley recommends an industrial court to license corporations trafficking or dealing in articles of common necessity, with general powers to investigate, regulate and control such business and with power to determine the price or profits which may be charged over and above the price paid to the producer, together with regulating the price paid to producer.

Mr. O'Malley sent in his report to both branches of the legislature at once. In accordance with the anti-monopoly law, says O'Malley, and upon the application of the attorney general, William Brown was appointed referee by Judge Seabury, and hearings were held from Dec. 6, 1909, up to and including March 3, 1910. Officers and directors of the Consolidated Milk Exchange, Borden's Condensed Milk company, the Sheffield Farms, Slawson-Decker company, the Mutual Milk and Cream company and the Alexander Campbell Milk company were examined, and in addition an expert accountant, Marvin Scudder, examined the books of all the corporations named. Some thirty producers were also examined.

In elaborating the findings as to a milk combine the report says: The Consolidated Milk Exchange, through its committee on values, monthly fixed the price or "value" which it would pay for the succeeding month; that Borden's Condensed Milk company, the largest milk dairy in New York city, every six months arbitrarily fixed the price to the producer for the ensuing six months, and that the Sheffield Farms, Slawson-Decker company did the same thing; that these prices on an average the year round were substantially the same, and that all the dealers in milk in New York city bought milk at this price.

Three other findings are:

Second—That these prices paid to the producers were unreasonable and unprofitable.

Third—That although there was no legal evidence adduced showing a combination or agreement to advance the price of milk on Nov. 1, 1909, some kind of agreement, "gentlemen's agreement," or otherwise, was made to a moral certainty.

Fourth—That the raise in the price of bottled milk from 8 to 9 cents a quart on Nov. 1, 1909, was not justified.

RAFFLES ARE ILLEGAL

Court Places Ban on Method Common In Church Fairs

Boston, April 27.—"Drawings" for watches and other objects and church fair lotteries have been placed under the ban by a decision given in the superior criminal court by Judge Wait, who fined Luigi Mansolilli $50 for selling chances on a watch.

It was claimed by the defendant, who is an artist, that the raffle was held to obtain money for a church. Wait held that the raffle was illegal whether the money was desired for a church or not.

This method of raising money has been very common in church fairs and has been used by all sorts of organizations to raise funds. The ruling will throw a different light on these schemes, which have been considered safe if not strictly legal.

RECEIVERS ARE APPOINTED

New England Investment Company Enjoined by Federal Court

Boston, April 27.—Judge Colt in the United States circuit court appointed Michael N. Cartier of Rhode Island and Burns P. Hodgman of New Hampshire ancillary receivers in Massachusetts for the New England Investment company, doing business in several states. Each is to qualify in a bond of $5000.

The court also enjoins the New England investment company from doing business until further order of the court.

Child's Death Accidental

Boston, April 27.—In the East Boston court Frank J. Babbin, an employe of a coal company, was exonerated on the charge of causing the death of Peter Rosenberg, 5 years old, who was killed by the team that Babbin was driving.

LIGHT ON DUAL TARIFF

House Wants Copies of Correspondence Relating to Negotiations

Washington, April 27.—Tariff relations between the United States and foreign countries under the terms of the maximum and minimum clauses of the Payne-Aldrich tariff will be disclosed if the house adopts a resolution which was favorably reported from the ways and means committee.

The resolution calls upon the president to transmit to the house, if not incompatible with the public interest, copies of all correspondence, papers and treaties received by the department relating to the granting to foreign governments of the minimum tariff and to inform the house what countries have been afforded the benefits of the minimum rates and the terms under which such action was taken by the president.

The resolution also demands information as to what discriminations were made by foreign countries who have been accorded the benefits of the minimum tariff rates before they were accorded such privileges and what concessions were made by these countries in order to obtain such rates.

NOTED MEN TAKE PART

Dedication of Building of Bureau of American Republics

Washington, April 27.—Two years to a day after the laying the cornerstone by President Roosevelt, the new international bureau of American republics building, which has been completed at an expense of $1,000,000, was dedicated Tuesday.

Representatives of twenty-one republics were present at the dedication. Among those who spoke were President Taft, Secretary of State Knox, the Mexican ambassador, Cardinal Gibbons, Senator Root, Andrew Carnegie, Bishop Harding and John Barrett.

Part of the ceremony consisted of the planting of a "peace tree" by the president and Carnegie. In the evening a reception was tendered to Taft and Carnegie in the reception hall of the new building. Carnegie is largely responsible for the construction of the building.

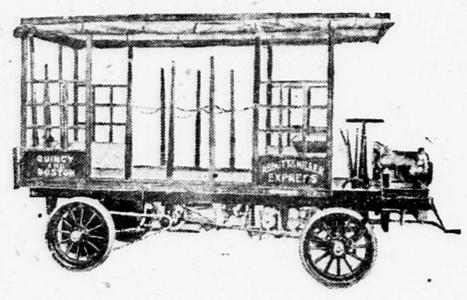
MILLER EXPRESS AUTO STRUCK BY TRAIN

Driver Burgess and Another Man Taken to Hospital in Boston

Accident Occurred Near Popes Hill Station



About 12.25 o'clock this noon the large express auto of Abbott & Miller of this city while en route to Boston, was struck by an express train near the Pope's Hill station.

One report says that Joseph Burgess and other man on the truck at the time were severely injured, and were taken to the hospital, This was the word telephoned by William Bean who left Quincy on the truck.

The police station at Field's Corner reports that there were two men on the truck and one was killed and the other severely injured.

A few weeks ago the bridge over track near Pope's Hill station was discontinued, preparatory to elevating the railroad tracks, and a new street was opened up at grade between the old street and the depot, there being no gates to protect teams.

Evidently the truck almost got across the tracks as the wreck is on the east or ocean side of the street.

Willard Bean, one of the three men who was on the auto truck at the time of the accident, arrived back in Quincy at 2 o'clock and tells the following story of the accident.

I was riding on the seat with the Driver Burgess, and a young man named Frank Bruce of Quincy Point was riding on the rear of the truck.

When we approached the crossing there was nothing to warn us of an approaching train. Burgess started to cross the tracks and when part way over the flag man rushed out and waved his flag in a frantic manner. It was then too late to go back or stop, and the only thing was to go ahead.

The train was then almost upon them. The truck was almost across when the train struck the rear of it.

Bean says that he must have been thrown fully fifty feet as he landed on Prospect street.

Burgess was also thrown and landed on a side track where he lay badly bruised.

As for Bruce he does not know. He says he saw a man lying on the track and that probably that was Bruce. Whether he was killed or not he does not know.

Bean says that he was bruised somewhat and feels rather sore. He did not stop long, but after telephoning to the Quincy office came home.

He thinks that the train which struck them was that which left Quincy at 12.12, and runs express to Boston from Atlantic. The impact was terrific, and the large auto truck was completely demolished.

Just how bad Burgess was injured Bean does not know, as he says he was taken to the hospital in an ambulance.

There was but little on the auto at the time, as it was on the way to Boston for a load.

He also knows but little about Bruce. First, he said he knew nothing about a third man, but later said that Bruce was on the team. Evidently he was unnerved by the great shock.

Frank Bruce who it is believed may have been killed, is the Marathon runner, and lives at Quincy Point. Bean also lives on Madison street, Quincy Point.

At Police station Two no detailed report had been received of the accident up to 2 o'clock, other than one man was killed and a second had gone to the hospital.

Mr. Miller left immediately for the scene of the accident.

WHIST PARTY.

At the whist party held in Protection hall Tuesday afternoon by Paul Revere W. R. C. Memorial hall committee. Several tables were in play and a very enjoyable time was had. Those receiving souvenirs were: Mrs. J. Higgs, Mrs. G. Sprague, Mrs. Barah, Mrs. A. T. Morrison, Mrs. I. Davidson, Mrs. Berman, Mrs. Bellows, Mrs. A. T. Jones, Mrs. A. Glover, Mrs. Laura Holt, Mrs. J. Keniley, Mrs. M. E. Powers and Mrs. G. A. Blaisdell. The proceeds are to go toward assisting the G. A. R. boys in attending the G. A. R. convention in September.

CAPE COD REUNION.

There was a notable gathering on Tuesday evening at the sixth annual reunion of Boston Cape Codders at the Trinity Congregational church at Neponset. Among the guests were Lieut. Gov. Frothingham, President Treadway of the Senate, Senator White and several representatives from Cape Cod. Much of the success of the good time was due to Rev. Charles H. Washburn, the pastor.

—Questions about the religious opinions of candidates for office should never be asked in the United States, and no objections should be considered which are based upon religious prejudices. Personal and social morality should be demanded of all who invite the suffrages of their fellow-citizens. To vote for or against a man because he is a Baptist, a Methodist, a Unitarian, or a Roman Catholic is to set up a standard of judgment not sanctioned by the Constitution of the United States, and not justified by the mutual relations and obligations of citizens of our common country. In all ecclesiasticism there are dangers, but there are no dangers in our country that cannot easily be matched and managed by the exercise of fidelity, vigilance, hospitality, and an impartial administration of justice.—Christian Register.

—J. Mitchell Galvin is now mentioned in connection with the appointment as surveyor of the port of Boston.

CONDUCTOR MISSING.

Michael O'Brien a conductor on the Brockton and Quincy electric car line, is missing from his home on Common street, Braintree, where he lived with his mother, Mrs. Michael O'Brien, says the Enterprise. When last seen, Saturday morning, he was dressed in his best clothes and was going to Boston for the day, according to his mother. He had a night run from Quincy to Brockton. Mrs. O'Brien states that he had gone to the bank and drawn out in the vicinity of $200 during the past week.

EXPRESSMEN NOTIFIED.

Chief of Police Burrell has notified all expressmen holding permits to transport liquor into or in the city of Quincy that said permits expire at midnight Saturday, April 30, and that it will be unlawful to transport liquor in Quincy after that time until a new permit has been granted. Any person violating the law will be prosecuted.

LARGE HAUL OF FISH.

The steam trawler Spray, built at Quincy, brought into Boston on Tuesday 55,000 pounds of haddock, 1,500 pounds of cod, 5,000 pounds of pollock, 1,500 pounds of flounders, 9,000 pounds of scrod haddock. Less than four cents per pound was realized.

PARENTS RESPONSIBLE.

State Treasurer Elmer A. Stevens spoke at Brockton this week on "How the State spends its money in caring for its charitable and penal institutions. In conclusion he emphasized prevailing evil of allowing children of tender ages ot wander abroad on the highways and city squares at night in no uncertain terms.

"Parents who allow their boys on the city streets and squares between 7 and 9 at night are just as surely bringing them up to become criminals as that the world stands," he said. "No one who knows these institutions as I know them can dispute this for a moment. Yet go to the streets and squares and see how many of these little fellows are growing up among these bad influences. The parents are more responsible than the boys. They are more sinned against than sinning. We are making men of these boys. It costs money to do it. But we must do it or be dereiict in our duty."

GRAND WIND-UP.

The weekly whist tournaments that have been held at the rooms of the Granite City club during the past winter will close tonight, and the entertainment committee have planned for a grand closing number. Morris orchestra of Milton will be present during the entire evening and will render all the popular airs during the tournament, after which there will be solos by several well known vocalists as well as selections in the vocal line by some of the club members. These members have been in constant practice for this event for some time and a rare treat is assured when they render their numbers. Refreshments will be served as usual. These will include besides the usual hot coffee, ice cream, strawberries and cake.

A GOOD CATCH.

In the Superior court at Dedham, on Tuesday, Edward B. Howard of New York, alias Edward Kelley, alias "Big Nose Browe," for the larceny of $18 in money from the person of Walter J. Barry at Quincy, March 6, was sentenced by Judge Hitchcock to a term in state prison of not less than two and a half years, nor more than four years. Howard, in an address to the court before sentence, claimed he was innocent and was being persecuted rather than prosecuted. "I haven't any record," he asserted. "I have been arrested 100 or 200 times in New York city, but they always let me go."

WATER METERS IN BOSTON.

Boston has not yet commenced to install water meters in single or double houses. When the water department began in February, 1909, to install meters in accordance with the new law the saloons were the first places attended to. At the same time work was begun on the large buildings, and when all those had been covered the department began on three-family houses and apartment blocks, as well as attending to all new buildings.

In general the commissioner says, of the bills sent out one-third call for larger payments than the owners had been accustomed to under the old faucet arrangement, one-third show that the owners are paying practically the same and one-third show an actual reduction.

—Last year the Malden aldermen refused to issue "express permits" to transport liquor, but this week voted to grant nine permits this year.

CROSSING NOT PROPERLY PROTECTED

Gates Necessary at Pope's Hill and Also Flagmen on Each Side of Tracks

Two Killed and Four Others Have Narrow Escape

KILLED.

Thomas Hughes of Pleasant street.
John W. White of Elm street.

INJURED.

Joseph C. Burgess of Madison street.
Frank Bruce of Canal street.
John Foy of Quincy street.
Willard Bean of East Boston.

The fatal accident at the Popes Hill station Wednesday noon when one of the large auto trucks of Abbott & Miller's express was hit by an express train struck Quincy a hard blow as two of its young men were killed and two others are now at the hospital suffering from injuries received.

The two men killed were: Thomas Hughs, aged 37 years of 92 Pleasant street, and John W. White aged 24 years, of 33 Elm street. Both young men were unmarried and resided with their parents.

The injured Quincy men are Joseph C. Burgess of Madison avenue the driver of the truck; Frank Bruce of Canal street, John Foy of 13 Quincy street, and Willard Bean of Conder street, East Boston.

Foy and Bruce, it is said, jumped from the car when they saw the train bearing down upon them and escaped with more or less bruises. Foy was so badly shaken up that he had to go to bed when he arrived home, and owing to the illness of his mother, with whom he lived, she was not told of the accident. He is suffering from palpitation of the heart. Bruce soon recovered from the shock.

Burgess was taken to the Boston City Hospital relief station, and after his injuries were dressed he came home. He is stiff and sore and is suffering from a severe nervous shock.

Willard Bean who was on the seat with Burgess escaped with a general shaking up, and he came to Quincy soon after telephoning the news of the acident to the Quincy office of Abbott & Miller.

Hughes and White were near the centre of the truck and had no time to escape. White was thrown into the air and coming down struck on the cowcatcher of the engine and was carried some distance until the train stopped. His skull was fractured and he died almost instantly. Hughes was thrown some distance and was picked up unconscious. He was put aboard the train and hurried to the hospital but died on the way.

According to Burgess and Bean, they were not aware that there were any men riding on the rear of the truck other than Bruce. There is a heavy curtain between the drivers seat and the rear of the truck which hid that from view and the other men boarded the auto after it left the office in Quincy to ride to Boston.

Aside from those on the truck, David Turner, a son of the station agent at the Popes Hill station is seriously ill from a paralytic fit. He was at the depot when the accident happened, and the shock to his nervous system on seeing the accident caused the paralytic shock.

The automobile left Quincy shortly before noon with a small load of goods. The overhead crossing on Freeport street near the Pope's Hill station has been taken away as a step toward elevating the railroad tracks and a temporary grade crossing had been made north of the old bridge. The detour of the street and the high abutments of the old bridge completely hid inward trains from persons on the temporary street. The crossing was protected by a solitary flagman who depends on hearing the whistle of approaching trains. Burgess who was operating the truck says that he had no warning of the approaching train from the flagman until too late.

Edward Tully the flagman at the crossing is reported as saying that when he heard the warning of the approaching train he went out as usual but did not see or hear the approaching auto on account of the noise of the train until too late. The truck was struck squarely just front of the rear wheel.

It was the Cape train leaving Brockton at 12.19 and due in Boston at 12.52 that struck the truck about 12.40. It was then running about forty miles an hour. The crash was heard nearly half a mile. The truck was lifted bodily from the ground and carried along some distance before the locomotive shook it free. The wheel part was thrown into the ditch on the east side about 100 feet from the street. The body part was carried 100 feet further on the same side of the tracks. The rubber tire of the rear wheel was caught on the engine and was not thrown off until the train stopped at the creek. The truck was a complete wreck and is worth obout $5 for old junk.

Neither Burgess or Bean can explain just how they were fortunate enough to escape, but for their landing on soft ground.

Burgess who drove the auto truck has been in the employ of Abbott & Miller's express for the past three years. He was considered by the company as a careful and competant driver.

The truck was a heavy affair and weighed when empty 550 pounds. It was loaded with an assortment of bundles which did not add greatly to the weight.

When news of the accident first came to Quincy there was much mystery as to how many were on the truck at the time, and just who the injured persons were. The police at station No. 11 reported that one man was dead and another had gone to the hospital, and even then did not know the names of the parties. As it was known that Bruce was on the truck, and nothing being known about the other men, it was at first supposed that the man killed was Bruce.

It is expecting too much of an inexperienced old man like Mr. Tully to properly protect a crossing like this. He has been on the job less than five weeks. As he sits between his shanty and the railroad he can see neither the approaching inward trains or approaching teams either from the east or the west of the track. Then his hours on duty are too long, from 6.30 A. M. to 6.30 P. M. He lives in Charlestown and is away from home about fifteen hours a day. A crossing like this needs gates, and even with gates there should be two alert flagmen.

J. G. Miller, when asked this morning as to who was to blame for the accident, said that there was no question but what the railroad was. The flagman, he said, gave no warning of the approaching train until too late. This flagman, he says, is not in a good position at any time to see approaching inward trains.

Continuing he said that the car was a total wreck. It was valued at $3,500 and the load which consisted of two mattresses and some small parcels would perhaps total $200.

He spoke very highly of Burgess. He was one of their oldest employes. He was strictly temperate and never drank anything, not even a glass of beer, and was considered a thoroughly competent man in every way.

OUR AUNT ROBERTINA

One of the Attractions of the Loyal Ladies

The Loyal Ladies of Clan MacGregor celebrated their nineteenth anniversary with a concert and dance at Music hall on Wednesday evening. The program was composed entirely of local talent and the manner in which the large audience showed its approval of each song and act of the participants in the entertainment, is conclusive evidence that we have some very clever entertainers in our city.

The first number on the program was rendered by the Norfolk quartette composed of Miss Margaret Michael, Mrs. Margaret Gammons; Messrs. Adolph Restilli and George Davey; a very capable number of singers who added greatly to their reputation by their singing.

Mrs. Isabelle Pierce in her own inimitable maner, sang her way into the good graces of the audience.

Miss Phylis Smith gave several readings, and it is needless to state, that this clever little lady gave a very finished performance.

Master John Reynolds sang in a delightful manner.

The entertainment closed with a farce entitled "Our Aunt Robertina," and it gave the audience something uproarious for about twenty minutes. The plot deals with a young man and an elderly lady, whose names are almost identical, getting their trunks mixed up in a train wreck. The young man goes into a pond to bathe and incidently wash away the dust and cinders which had accumulated as a result of the wreck; a tramp happens along, who steals the young fellow's clothes; and on opening his supposed trunk the young man finds it contains feminine garments. He has to wear something so he has no choice but to put some of the garments on, which leads to some remarkably funny incidents.

The cast was:

Mr. Aspen, a retired genleman — Eliot C. Johnson
Gladys, his daughter — Miss Sarah Summers
Emily, maid — Miss Margaret Craig
Phibbs, coachman — Jame's Ross
Aunt Robertina, spinster — Miss Georgie Michael Tramp — Ernest Collins
Robert Aspen, nephew to Mr. Aspen — Alex W. Russell

All deserve great credit for the clever manner in which each part was rendered. Mr. Johnson gave a remarkable performance. Miss Michael and Miss Craig acted up to their past performances, and Miss Sarah Summers deserves great credit for her clever rendition of a very trying part. Mr. Ross could not be improved on as a coachman and Messrs Collins and Russell did well as the "tramp" and "nephew" respectively.

The floor was cleared for dancing about 10.30, and about one hundred couples took part in the grand march, which was led by Floor directress Christina Booth and Mr. Gilbert Booth.

The order of dances aws enjoyed by everyone present and the pretty gowns of the ladies added variety to the scene.

President Margaret Gammon and her committee deserve great credit for the excellent entertainment produced and for the remarkable smoothness of the entire affair.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

"Insurgent, spare that tariff!" Touch not a single grab! exclaims Father Sereno Payne.

Magazine editors are queer. There was a poet in jail in Minnesota, and they kept trying until they got him out.

Now that "what is whisky" has been settled by President Taft, how about a commission headed by Prof. Rose, and composed wholly of persons with no newspaper experience, to decide what is news?

The Daily Ledger is willing to be judged by what it prints, but prays to be delivered from misrepresentations of what it says by other papers. The Ledger does not "fear" a booze famine. It would be pleased if no permits were issued to expressmen, which is possible.

Another of the grand old elm trees that have made City Square so attractive has succumbed to the elements this winter and is being cut down. It will be missed for already the place has a bare look. Of the row on either side of Hancock street only a few opposite the Hancock cemetery and about the First church remain and some of those are not very thrifty.

Senator Hale and Aldrich have signified their intentions of retiring from the Senate next March at the expiration of their present terms. These two Senators have dominated the Senate for several years, but it is thought that Cummins, of Iowa, La Follette, of Wisconsin and Beveridge, of Indiana, will be the trio to direct the future actions of the Senate. The Senate will therefore be in the hands of the Republican insurgents, to a large extent.

CIVIL WAR PENSIONS.

In reply to a letter from a Civil War pensioner inquiring whether his pension would be forfeted in case he took up a residence in a foreign country ,the Pension Commissioner of course answered in the negative. The Government does not concern itself as to the residence of those who have earned pensions in its service. All it wants to know is where they are in order that their checks may reach them promptly. A pensioner living in a foreign country would not lose his pension even by the outbreak of war between that country and ours. Payments might be interrupted, but there would be no forfeiture.

The Government pays out large sums of money every year to pensioners who have established homes in other lands. In 1909, for instance, $451,540 of pension money went to Canada, $99,540 to Germany, $78,951 to Ireland, $63,685 to England, $27,461 to Mexico, $12,360 to Scotland and $10,470 to Switzerland. In the course of the year a total of $863,607 was paid to 5,047 pensioners in sixty-four foreign countries.

The lesson is that Uncle Sam looks after his defenders, no matter where they may be.—New York Mail.

Lights His Pipe In a Gale.

I write as one who has smoked in his time more matches than most people, and it will be understood how I regard the bus driver's ability in lighting a pipe. A gale may be blowing, the horses requiring special attention, his left eye engaged on the reflection of the omnibus in shop windows, a passenger inquiring who won the Derby in 1884, constables issuing directions with the right arm, a fare hailing him from the pavement, and amid all these distractions he can strike one wooden match, hold it in the curve of his hand and the tobacco is well alight. Also while hats are blowing about the streets in the manner of leaves in autumn his headgear never goes from its place, rarely moves from the angle decided on the first journey. I have always assumed that he takes it off at night before retiring to rest, but to part with it must mean a terrible wrench.—London Express.

Spontini's Decorations.

Casparo Spontini, the composer, regarded himself in the light of a demigod, and when inspirations crowded upon him he donned a wide, togalike gown of white silk with a border of gold and a fez of white silk embroidered in gold from which a heavy tassel hung down. With great dignity he sat down before his desk, and if a grain of dust was visible on the paper on which he penned his music he rang the bell impatiently for his servant to remove the obstacle. Spontini owned so many medals and decorations that they could no longer be accommodated on his breast. At a grand musical reunion at Halle an old musician remarked to a comrade, "See how many decorations Spontini has, while Mozart has not one." Spontini, who overheard it, replied quickly, "Mozart, my dear friend, does not need them."

A South African Animal.

There is a curious looking animal in South Africa that looks for all the world like a piece of toast with four legs, a head and a tail. It resembles a pussy cat about the forehead and ears, but its nose is distinctly that of a rat, while its tail is not very dissimilar to that of a fox. This strange animal is called the aard wolf and doubtless dwells in South Africa because, judged by his looks, he would not be admitted into good animal society anywhere else.

Why He Desired a Cannon.

It is related that an Indian chief once approached General Crook and wanted to borrow a cannon.

"Do you expect me to loan you a cannon with which to kill my soldiers?" the old veteran inquired.

"No," the chief replied; "kill soldiers with a club. Want cannon to kill cowboys."

—One of the citizens of Austin, who formerly resided in both the New England and Middle states, says that the ladies' village improvement societies, which have been formed in almost every town and village, have accompished more than any other effort for the beautifying of towns, communities, cemeteries and public roads and road sides. 'Tis true that when the ladies can be induced to take hold of and cooperate in any public work, that things have to move and move lively, for who can resist them, especially the Texas women. God bless 'em—and the sooner they are let in, or rather invited in to cooperate in the great work of road improvement, and beautifying of roadsides ,and villages, just so much sooner will the work be accomplished. Texas has prided itself on being a state able to get along without woman suffrage, but it cannot get along without women nohow.

The Cedar House

Around It Grew the Love Story of Dorinda and Gilbert.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The house stood in a grove of red cedars that reared their conical tops above the low roof.

Once when she was quite a little girl Dorinda Rodman had asked her mother a question: "Why did grandfather plant such black trees? They hide the sun."

Mrs. Rodman tapped Dorinda's golden head with her thimble and frowned. "Grandfather planted the trees because he wanted them to grow there. You should be thankful that there is such a pleasant shade during the hot weather, child."

"But they are so black," protested Dorinda.

"They are very beautiful," returned Mrs. Rodman, with an air of decision.

Dorinda grew up to womanhood believing that the cedar trees that grew about her home and shadowed it from dawn till sunset were beautiful because Grandfather Rodman had planted them sixty years ago when he made a home in the wilderness for his little family.

Inside the house Dorinda cared for two old, old men, brothers of her grandfather.

"You should put them away in some institution, Dorinda," said a neighbor one day when the girl had hurried past on her daily trip to the village. "You'll die taking care of those two old men. You're young, and you ought to be having a good time."

"They are all the relatives I have in the world," said Dorinda quietly. "I could not let them go to strangers as long as I have a roof over my head."

Her golden hair began to lose its luster and her gray eyes to grow sad and troubled with care, but Gilbert Fane continued to make his weekly call upon her. Once every year he asked her to marry him, to leave the Cedar House and make her home with him in some brighter, happier spot. At last he even besought Dorinda to bring the two uncles and they would manage somehow.

But Dorinda always shook her head decidedly. "They love the old place, Gilbert, and they want to live and die here. As for me, I shall not marry any one. Do not wait for me. When I am left alone I shall go away."

"When you are left alone you shall marry me," declared Gilbert hotly. "You have lived so long in the shadow of this dark house that you do not know how happy you may be some day. Let me cut down the trees, Dorinda, and let some sunshine into the windows."

"I love the red cedars," interrupted Dorinda coldly. "My grandfather planted them."

"When your grandfather planted those trees the hillside was a wilderness and there was no protection against the sweep of the northwest wind. The tall growing woods on the other side of the river form a windbreak now, and you can well dispense with the cedars."

"They shall remain here as long as I do," said Dorinda obstinately.

After that Gilbert Fane stayed away from the Cedar House, and Dorinda nursed her two uncles in solitude. At last they died in the late winter.

Perhaps the kindly neighbors did not know that now, with her labor torn away from her hands, she was quite lost and very much frightened at her own loneliness. One quiet woman stayed with her and helped her dismantle the old house and store the furniture in the large barn. Everybody knew now that the place was mortgaged to its full value and that the interest had not been paid. The last expenses attendant upon the two uncles had made Dorinda almost penniless. The man who held the mortgage had waited patiently for his money. Now the place must be sold. Dorinda wanted to go away before it happened.

Early one March morning she climbed into the stage and saw her one trunk tumbled into the seat beside the driver. The woman who had stayed with her locked the door of the house and walked along the path beside the rumbling stage and talked to Dorinda.

As they passed Gilbert Fane's big lot next to the Cedar House Dorinda saw a gang of men digging into the brown turf. "What are they doing?" she asked.

"That's the foundation for Gil Fane's new house," interpolated the stage driver.

As they rolled through the village toward the railroad station Dorinda waved her hand to the few friends she cared for and a little later was whirling away in the train toward the city.

Dorinda did not seek employment in the shops or factories, nor did she attempt any work that she did not thoroughly understand. She found a position as domestic in a small household and thus immediately was in possession of a home and good wages. To her surprised mistress she explained the situation: "I have no time to learn a new trade. I must earn money and buy back my old home. Being your cook cannot harm me. I shall always be what I am," said Dorinda proudly.

The neighbor who had stayed with Dorinda after the old uncles died wrote to her occasionally, and after awhile she told, as if reluctantly, of a certain piece of news.

"It is said that Gilbert Fane is soon to be married. Nobody knows just who the girl is, but they say she is from Middle Village. He has built a fine house on his lot. It is called the Maples."

Dorinda laid the letter aside and went about her household tasks with a strange pressure on her heart.

The Maples—how bright and sunshiny that sounded! She knew how strong and vigorous the maples grew in Gilbert's new dooryard—just like Gilbert himself—protecting and shielding, letting the warmth of the sunshine filter through upon her starved existence.

As the spring advanced Dorinda grew restless under the close confinement of city life, and she thought wistfully of the budding countryside where she had always lived.

When she could no longer withstand the call Dorinda begged a holiday and took a late afternoon train for Little River. Dusk was falling when the train drew into the familiar station, and, pulling her veil closely about her face that she need not be recognized by old acquaintances, Dorinda hurried down the long yellow road toward the Cedar House. If some one was living there she might stay among the trees for a few minutes, inhale their fragrance and listen to the throbbing call of the whippoorwill back on the hillside. After that she could catch the evening train to town.

If the house was vacant she would steal inside and spend one night among the old familiar rooms, now empty and untenanted save by memories.

Dorinda uttered a stifled sob as she came near the house and saw the cedar trees pointing black against the evening sky. She passed Gilbert Fane's new house without noting the bright lights in the windows. Home was before her, the only home she had ever known.

Up the familiar path under the cedars and then—nothing! Dorinda stared with unbelieving eyes at the empty hole in the ground vaguely outlined in the semidarkness. Where was the Cedar House? What had become of her home?

The barn in the rear was intact. She could see the black vertical line of the weather vane on the cupola, but the house was gone, probably burned to the ground. She might never buy back the home now.

She threw herself down on the dry needles under the cedars and cried bitterly. The trees seemed to bend protectingly over her, and she clung to a gnarled trunk with passionate affection.

A strong hand lifted Dorinda to her feet and drew her from under the shadow of the trees into an open space flooded with the pale radiance of a rising moon.

"Dorinda—Dorinda," Gilbert Fane's voice was very tender as he looked into her tear wet face; "you must have known I wanted you. I have been to the city to bring you home and found you had gone an hour before. I have just got back again and came here first. I knew I would find you here."

The color flooded Dorinda's pale face as recollection returned, and she shrank away from Gilbert's embrace. "You must not! Let me go away, please! First tell me when the house was burned. I did not know!"

Gilbert held her closer in spite of protest. "The house did not burn, Dorinda, sweetheart. Come with me, and I will show it to you."

Wondering, she went with him across the yard and through the fence into his own large domain. A house crowned a little eminence, a larger house than her old home, yet with strangely familiar outlines. Soft turf starred with dandelions was underfoot, and a little breeze stirred the thick leaved maples. Every window sent forth a welcoming light.

"There is your home," said Gilbert Fane.

"It is yours," faltered Dorinda. "Where is the Cedar House?"

"It is here. I have bought the old place and moved the house up here and added a wing on either side. We will need more room some day. All your furniture is in the house, dear, and today I went to the city determined to marry you and bring you home tonight. This is home for us both—to me, it is nothing without you, Dorinda. Will you stay? I will send for the minister." He paused and took Dorinda's answer from her tremulous lips.

As they moved toward the lighted house Dorinda looked back toward the dark cedars that had always marked her home. "I am glad you did not cut them down, Gilbert," she said softly.

"I shall never do that," the man replied gravely. "When a tree has stood for sixty years and sheltered a score of human lives from cold and heat, who am I to lay it low from pure wantonness or caprice? I am ashamed that I ever considered doing so. The cedar grove shall always stand there, Dorinda, to mark your old home. The birds will haunt the branches as they ever did, and you shall go there and sit whenever you wish. The hole is being filled up, and I will make a summer house for you—a veritable Cedar House. But here, among the maples, in the sunshine, you will live, Dorinda, and grow strong and sweet and beautiful and forget the gloom of the house under the trees."

Gilbert paused and looked up at the thick foliage of the maples. "I planted those maples when I was a boy, Dorinda, and I've been trying to live up to them all these years. Their noble proportions make me feel very small and mean."

Then as they reached the house that was to be their home Dorinda spoke softly. "I have always likened you to a tree, Gilbert."

"Thank you, sweetheart," he said.

BECOMING HAT FOR GIRLS.

One of the most becoming of the new spring hats for girls is shown in the illustration. It is of Neapolitan straw, canary colored, and is trimmed with wheat and chiffon of the same shade. For girls in the neighborhood of sweet sixteen there is, of course, a wide choice in spring headgear, but this hat may supply a long felt want to mothers who are "wondering what in the world they'll buy for Edith" in the millinery line this season.

The Attorney In England.

The use of the word attorney denotes a belated mind. Since Nov. 1, 1875, attorneys have ceased to exist, their title merged by law into that of solicitor of the supreme court of judicature, says a writer in the London Mail. The name had long been used as a term of abuse. Johnson observed of an acquaintance that "he did not care to speak ill of any man behind his back, but he believed the gentleman was an attorney."

Archbishop Trench, in 1859, noted that the word attorney was going out of favor and that the lower branch of the legal profession preferred to be called solicitors. So when the judicature act of 1873 was before parliament a clause was inserted abolishing the obnoxious title. But with our delightful conservatism we still honor the "attorney general."

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

A school meeting was held in the hall on Friday last to present "Q's" to the relay and basketball teams as recognization for their excellent work on the athletic field. First the relay team, composed of Franz Marceau, William Cranshaw, William Manning and Everett Prout, marched across the platform and received Q's. Soon the members of the basketball team, lead by Capt. Russ Bates, with Leslie Arthur, Harold Chapman, Millard Chapman, Frank Harmon, William Manning, and Harold Prout followed each receiving a "Q" while crossing the platform amid continued clapping. In presenting the Q's, Mr. Howlett told of his pride in the men and that the battles won on the athletic field are simply omens of the larger and better battles that some will win in the larger world. The excellent work of the baseball team was referred to during the talk. It is planned to have an outside speaker for the Memorial Day exercises.

THE COLLEGE COURSE.

What is the most valuable thing in the college course

President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton: "In reply to your letter, I would say that the most valuable thing a man can get in college is a thorough mastery of his faculties. Friends can be got elsewhere. Self help it not peculiar to college, but the college should yield him, if anything, the power to use his mind effectively upon every problem that presents itself. This is not a matter of instruction, but of training."

H. B. Hutchins, president of the University of Michigan: "College study in my judgment is valuable not principally for the technical learning that the student gains, but because if he does his duty, he acquires thereby the ability to control himself, to meet men in a manly way, and, if he has been thoroughly true to himself in all of his work, to concentrate his powers for the solution of the practical problems of life."

To Widen Draw in Point Bridge to 125 Feet

At the State House on Wednesday a hearing was given by the Committee on Roads and Bridges, on a bill of Mayor Shea ,that the county commissioners of the County of Norfolk, be authorized and directed within one year from the passage of the act to make such repairs in the present bridge over Weymouth Fore River in Quincy and Weymouth as said county commisioners shall, with the approval of the Harbor and Land Commissioners, deem reasonably necessary and proper ,and to widen the draw so that it shall have an opening of not less than 125 feet.

The Transcript reports the arguments as follows:

Senator Hultman, who opened the hearing, stated that the draw span now is in such a condition that considerable repairs are necessary to enable large vessels to pass through Mayor Shea and the bridge commissioners have decided that it is absolutely necessary to expend $18,000 this spring in repairing the bridge. It has been thought wise, as repairs are to be made, that the draw opening, now a little under 100 feet wide should be made 125 feet. Through this draw pass some of the largest ships in the world. If any of the big ships of the Fore River Company should hit the piers—and there is only an average of seven feet each side their beam— the whole structure might be carried away. In the case of the battleship North Dakota there was but five feet in the clear each side of the huge hull in the draw. Under the apportionment by the act of 1900 Quincy pays 3 per cent of the cost of this bridge, and Weymouth and Hingham pay 15 per cent each.

Mayor Shea urged the importance of widening the draw and repairing the bridge. The centre pier supporting the swing draw is built wholly of concrete. It was originally intended that it should be supported by masonry abutments and piers, but to avoid expense the masonry was cut out. Now by the action of the water the concrete centre pier is badly disintegrated and requires constant patching.

Frank F. Crane, harbor and dock commissioner of Quincy, said that 1,000 vessels go through the Fore River draw annually and the centre pier is in such condition that a slight blow would endanger the lives of the draw tenders and might bring the whole structure in to the river.

Frederick E. Tupper, civil engineer said that he had examined the draw and found the centre pier badly pitted. To rebuild and reinforce the centre pier with masonry abutments would cost approximately $50,000. The expense would be borne by the county commissioners in the first instance and then aportioned between the cities and towns.

Representative Langelier desired to be recorded in favor of this bill.

Senator Nason thought that here should be some amount named in the bill ,and Senator Hultman said that if the committee should provide an appropriation not exceeding $50,000 that would be an outside figure that would cover everything. The bridge itself cost only $140,000 and was built ten years ago.

There was no opposition.

WILD ANIMAL TRAINING.

Lion taming and wild animal training, illustrated with original stereopticon pictures by Allen S. Williams of New York city, is the special attraction at the Y. M. C. A. on Friday evening. Mr. Williams has been here twice this season and has proved so popular that this lecture was arranged. These lectures on lion taming and the general subject of training all wild animals are a result of years of observation and investigation, close acquaintance with the principal trainers of the last twenty-five years and their methods and of personal experiences. Every boy in Quincy that has heard Mr. Williams, wants to hear him again, and every fellow that hasn't had the privilege, surely will be on hand tomorrow evening.

THE SCHOOL AGE.

There is disappointment among many mothers whose children are already five years of age that the limit will be raised to six years by the School Committee on Sept. 1. They suggest as a compromise that all born since Jan. 1, 1905, be admitted. Some of these would be five years and eight months old.

—Somerville has set an example for some of the other municipalities by appropriating $100 for the purpose of exterminating mosquitoes on stagnant pools.

SOME WOMEN OF INTEREST

Best Dressed Ones In Washington. Only One Girl Among 600 College Men---Kentucky's Oil Queen Was a Stenographer.

WASHINGTON, the nation's capital, naturally has many women who vie one with another for superiority in dress. There are gathered representative women from every state and territory of our own land and from all the nations of the earth which send diplomatic agents to the United States. It would be unfair to several other "congressional ladies," perhaps, to say that Mrs. Edwin Y. Webb, wife of one of the congressmen from North Carolina, is the best dressed woman in Washington. Yet there are those who do say it. Mrs. Webb is shown in the illustration garbed in a gown made in the Philippines from pineapple fiber. She is a handsome young woman and attracts much attention in society. Another well dressed woman of the congressional set is Mrs. Politte Elvins, wife of the Missourian who is next to the youngest member of the house. Mrs. Elvins is described as a spirituelle beauty, dainty as a dream. She comes from the great lead mining region in southeast Missouri, her home town being named for her husband's own family.

One Co-ed Among 600 Men.

How would you like to be the only girl student among 600 men? That is the distinction enjoyed—yes, and really enjoyed, it is said—by Miss Helen Cook, who is the first girl to matriculate in William Jewell college at Liberty, Mo., since 1896. It is a Baptist institution, founded in 1849, but the co-educational idea seems never to have been popular there. Next June Miss Cook will be graduated. Then she will sail for Europe, where she intends to continue her French and German linguistic studies. The college professors say she easily leads her classes in the recitation rooms, and the college boys are said to fall over themselves for the honor of being her escort at local functions. Miss Cook is called "the college divinity." Her friends say she is compelled to exercise much tact in order to get sufficient time away from her admirers, her fellow students, to pursue her own studies.

Stenographer Is Oil Queen.

Thirteen years ago a stenographer at $10 a week, today one of the richest women in Kentucky and known as "the oil queen"—that is the brief story of the rapid rise of Ora Hood Whan. She was eighteen years of age she worked as a lawyer's stenographer, then became amanuensis to a minister who was writing books. She met an oil operator named Russell, whom she married. The match was unhappy, and they separated, but Mrs. Russell had learned something about oil as well as matrimony. She had become an oil "spotter." Down in Venezuela she saw oodles of oil land, and she tried to interest American capital without avail. But on a trip to Kentucky she discovered traces of oil and took leases of many thousands of acres. The first "shot" developed oil of amazing richness and flow. Mrs. Russell now lives on the shady side of Easy street. She hails from Bloomington, Ill.

"Marrying Judge" a Woman.

There's a woman in Kansas, Mrs. Mary H. Cooper of Beloit, who performs more marriage ceremonies than any other probate judge within a hundred miles. In Kansas the probate judge is empowered to tie the nuptial knot. Mrs. Cooper serves in that office for her county. Couples from other counties often engage her services. She leaves out the word "obey," for she declares it's a relic of the times when a woman was a chattel. "Nowadays," says Mrs. Judge Cooper, "the word is puerile in the marriage vow. If a woman loves a man she will obey him; if not, no silly vow will alter the sad and grim condition."

FRANCES WARD.

HERE'S THE WOMAN WHO CAN BEAT ANY MERE MAN AT POOL PLAYING.

WOMEN can play pool too. Witness the triumphs of Mrs. W. W. King, now traveling about the country with her husband, giving exhibitions in fancy pool playing and meeting any local expert, man or woman, who is willing to risk a game with her. The contest always means defeat for the local expert, for Mrs. King never yet has lost a game. She is the "lady pool champion of the universe," her admirers say, and among those admirers are many "gentlemen ex-champions" whom she has vanquished.

Before her marriage Mrs. King never saw a pool table. Mr. King is the world's "fifteen or no count" champion. His bride became interested in the game because he was so fond of it, and he began coaching her. Now, it is said, Mrs. King can beat her husband at pool. In fact, she can spot him a few and still win out.

Seven years ago, in Chicago, Mrs. King made her debut as an amateur championship candidate. She readily defeated all comers. She has given exhibitions and won contests in many cities. When she played in San

MRS. W. W. KING, POOL EXPERT.

Francisco one of the spectators was Jake Schaefer, the old time billiard champion, who died recently in Colorado. Schaefer told Mrs. King it was a pity she hadn't taken up billiards.

One of the most difficult fights for her championship title that Mrs. King has experienced was in Seattle, where there are many expert women pool players. She met all comers, however, and won. Once in Pasadena Mrs. King made seven bank shots in a seventy-five point game. At another time she made two bank shots in a fifteen point game. [N. B.—Ladies who don't understand these plays should ask their husbands.]

"Women," says Mrs. King, "take to the game even more readily than the men when they are interested. My hardest matches have been with women players."

Mr. and Mrs. King always insist upon highly respectable environment and high class spectators when they give their exhibitions. They say pool playing is an art and should not be cheapened by vulgar surroundings.

Danderine

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

The Great DANDERINE Never Fails to Produce the Desired Results.

IT enlivens and invigorates the hair glands and tissues of the scalp, resulting in a continuous and increasing growth of the hair.

Letters of praise are continually coming in from nearly all parts of the country stating that Danderine has renewed the growth of hair in cases that were considered absolutely hopeless.

A lady from Brooklyn writes: "After a severe illness my hair stopped falling, and I now have a lovely head of hair, very heavy and over one and a quarter yards long."

Danderine stimulates the scalp, makes it healthy and keeps it so. It is the greatest scalp invigorator known. It is a wholesome medicine for both the hair and scalp. Even a small bottle of it will put more genuine life in your hair than a gallon of any other hair tonic ever made. It shows results from the very start.

The initiatory work upon nine candidates was performed by the degree staff of Avon lodge in a most impressive and commendable manner Loyal lodge has a membership of 260 members.

PAINTING NEEDED.

Now that spring is here, and cleaning up and repainting buildings is in order, it would not be a bad idea to give the fire station at Houghs Neck a little paint. The building has not been painted since it was built, and it sadly needs it just at present. With a new school building in the same vicinity the engine house will not match the surroundings. As the painting would probably come under the Commissioner of Public Works it is up to him to attend to the job.

EYES OF AGED FISH ARE POLISHED UP

Something New In Line of Cold Storage Investigation

Washington, April 28.—Senator Heyburn, whose committee on manufactures is investigating cold storage practises, is on the trail of a new line of investigation which promises to be the novelty of the series of hearings. He declares that a man has told him that fish dealers polish the eyes of cold storage fish in order to give a better appearance to the commodity when it appears in the fish stalls. He expects a witness to appear to relate how this is done.

The committee has already heard how left-over holiday turkeys are brought out for sale a year later; how eggs eighteen months of age are masqueraded as "strictly fresh;" how beef livers, black as coal and almost as hard as stone from long preservation, are "improved" by soaking, and how the bills of old fish and the bills of aged chickens are freshened.

DUE TO NERVOUS ATTACKS

Girl's Explanation of Irresistible Impulse to Set Fires

Newport, R. I., April 28.—An abnormal twist in the psychological processes of Anna Foy, 16 years old, is indicated by parts of the confession which she made to the local police, in which she admits her identity as the "firebug" who by setting three fires in almost as many days has terrorized the household of George W. Ritchie in this city.

The girl, who was employed as a maid in the Ritchie house, explained her attempts at arson by saying, the police assert, that she was subject to violent nervous attacks, during which she experienced an irresistible desire to put something aflame.

Washington, April 28.—Theodore Roosevelt for the United States senate as successor to Chauncey M. Depew; this is the way the political prophets and wiseacres in Washington have the situation in New York state figured out.

New York, April 28.—After a scathing opening address by United States District Attorney Wise, the government began in earnest the prosecution of its case against F. A. Paul the Tyrant.

Paul I. of Russia was very deaf and also very tyrannical. One day an aid-de-camp, intending to please him, approached and cried in his ear, "I am glad to see, your majesty, that your hearing is much improved!"

Raising his voice, the aid-de-camp said, "I am glad that your majesty's hearing is so much improved!"

"Ah, that's it, eh?" chuckled the czar and then added, "Say it once more."

The aid-de-camp repeated the words, whereupon Paul I. thundered: "So you dare to make fun of me, do you? Just wait awhile."

Next day the aid-de-camp was on his way to the mines of Siberia.

SENTENCED TO DEATH CHAIR

Wolter Must Die During the Week Beginning June 6

SHOWS NO SIGN OF REMORSE

Keepers In New York Tombs Say Only Interset of Slayer of Ruth Wheeer Is In His Food—Judge Says He Has Detected Nothing to Indicate That Murderer Is Not Sane

New York, April 28.—The record-breaking speed that marked the trial of Albert Wolter, the youth of 19 convicted of murdering 15-year-old Ruth Wheeler, has been maintained.

The prisoner was sentenced to death in the electric chair in Sing Sing in the week beginning June 6, by Judge Foster in the court of general sessions.

On March 24 Miss Wheeler, who was seeking employment that she might aid her mother and sisters, was killed in Wolter's rooms at 224 East Seventy-fifth street, where she had been lured by prospects of getting a position.

Counsel for Wolter has indicated that he will carry the case to the court of appeals, which would act as a stay of execution.

No sign of remorse has been exhibited by Wolter, who will be the youngest criminal ever executed in this state. His only interest, according to the keepers in the Tombs, is in his food.

When Judge Foster began to speak, Wolter gazed at him intently, but with no show of feeling, as the fateful words were pronounced.

"Albert W. Wolter," said the judge, "you have had a fair trial, in which you have been ably defended. The crime of which you have been convicted attracted the attention of the whole world by its very enormity and caused many to doubt your sanity. I have carefully observed your conduct in court during the whole week of your trial, and I have detected nothing to indicate that you are not sane under the law."

Wolter was taken to police headquarters, where he was photographed and measured, and then to Sing Sing prison.

After he had boarded the train for Sing Sing, Wolter lighted a cigar and sat next the window smoking. His air of bravado never once deserted him, and he seemed to enjoy the attention he was attracting.

WESTON'S GREAT PLUCK

Will Finish His Trip Saturday Despite a Badly Strained Ankle

Castleton, N. Y., April 28.—An automobile, running too close to Edward P. Weston, struck a small boy and hurled him violently into the pedestrian as he was finishing his fifty-third mile of Wednesday's tramp.

The force of the blow threw Weston to the ground, straining his ankle. He was hurried to a nearby farmhouse and placed under medical assistance.

Despite the pain and the nervous strain Weston will not listen to the pleadings of those who urge him to finish his 3500-mile journey on Sunday.

"I will finish Saturday afternoon," is his only reply to their entreaties. He is 150 miles from New York.

COWLES IS FINED $100

Pleads Guilty to Practising Medicine In Violation of Law

Boston, April 28.—Pleading guilty to practicing medicine in this commonwealth without being lawfully registered, Edward S. Cowles, who figured as the injured party in the Adid-Robnett court martial, was fined $100 in the superior criminal court by Judge Watt.

Cowles was indicted by the grand jury on two counts. The first charged him with falsely holding himself out as a registered practitioner on Dec. 1, 1909, and the second with practising medicine without registration for three months prior to that date. It was to the second count that Cowles pleaded guilty and the first was placed on file. The fine was paid at once.

FIRE LOSS OF $530,000

Streets About St. Louis Brewery Plant Literally Flooded With Beer

St. Louis, April 28.—Fire caused a loss of $530,000 in the plant of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing association. Five hundred thousand bottles of beer were destroyed and millions of burning corks made such a dense smoke that the firemen fought the flames in a black smudge.

The streets about the plant flowed with beer for more than an hour, with smoking corks bobbing up and down in the stream. The bottling and storage house were destroyed.

Rare Gift For Roosevelt

Copenhagen, April 28.—During Mr. Roosevelt's visit here the grandchildren of the late M. De Scholten, once governor of the Danish West Indies, will present to him a collection of Washington relics, including an eyeglass, stick and snuffbox, which De Scholten bought at an auction at St. Croix some hundred years ago.

GOVERNOR MARSHALL

He Predicts Beveridge Will Join Democrats

OLD-FASHIONED ECONOMY

Marshall Says It Is About Time For Us to Return to It

Indianapolis, April 28.—Governor Marshall, as temporary chairman of the Democratic state convention, made the prophecy that Senator Beveridge (Republican) will be lined up with the Democratic party in Indiana two years hence.

The speaker urged the wiping out of special privileges. "We have exploited this republic until exploitation will soon become explosion," he declared. "We must get business out of politics, and must take politics out of business. This must be done quietly, soberly, discreetly at the ballot box, or there will come an hour when the toiling millions of America, not willing to wait for an election, will accomplish by force that which should be accomplished by law.

"In the midst of a period of marvellous beneficence on the part of the Creator, we find all classes except the pampered few complaining of the enormous cost of living. This is partly the fault of the way in which we live. We need to return not only to old-fashioned honesty, but to old-fashioned economy."

COUPLE ARRESTED FOR WHISKY DEATH

Italian and His Wife Are Charged With Manslaughter

Westerly, R. I., April 8.—The first warrants directly charging responsibility for the death of any of the fourteen supposed victims of wood alcohol in this vicinity recently were served on John Cisco, an Italian, and his wife.

The two were arrested at their home in White Rock, a village in Westerly, charged with manslaughter in selling whisky containing wood alcohol to Daniel T. Sullivan of the same village, from the alleged effects of which he died.

Taken before Clerk Cundall of the third district court, Cisco and his wife pleaded not guilty and were held without bail for a hearing on May 6. They were taken to the Washington county jail at Kingston. The arrests were made at the direction of Coroner Kingsley.

There is an Italian settlement at White Rock, and Cisco, who is a laborer, is alleged to have conducted a "kitchen barroom" for some time past.

FIVE BAREFOOTED NUNS

First of Passionist Order to Arrive In the United States

New York, April 28.—Five barefooted Passionist nuns, the first of their order to visit this country, arrived here from Cuveto, Italy, on their way to Pittsburg, where they will establish a foundation. They were taken to a convent in Hoboken, where they will rest before resuming their journey.

The Passionist order has been represented in this country by the Passionist fathers for more than fifty years. It was founded in the early part of the eighteenth century.

Enthusiasm Dulled.

"Don't you feel as if you would like to leave footprints in the sands of time?" asked the ambitious citizen.

"No," answered Mr. Crosslots gloomily; "out where I live the mud is eighteen inches deep, and I don't feel as if I wanted to see another footprint as long as I live."—Washington Star.

ROOSEVELT AT LAKE NAIVASHA

Exciting Experience of the Former President While Hunting Hippopotamuses In the Wilds of Africa.

Ravages of the Hideous Baboons, Which Are a Dangerous Pest to Animals and to the Timid Natives.

WHILE traveling in Africa Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, had several thrilling experiences on Lake Naivasha hunting hippopotamuses. A steam launch and a big rowboat were used in these trips. One day while hunting with Mr. Cuninghame, Mr. Roosevelt, who wanted to get a big bull hippo for the Smithsonian museum, fired at a huge head of a hippo that rose up out of the waters close to his boat. The beast sank out of sight without a splash, but when its body was raised it was found to be that of a big cow. Soon afterward Mr. Roosevelt succeeded in his quest. In Scribner's Magazine for May, in his article on "African Game Trails" he describes as follows how he killed a big bull hippopotamus:

"So I left Cuninghame to cut off the head for the museum and started off by myself in the boat with two rowers, neither of whom spoke a word of English. For an hour we saw only the teeming bird life. Then in a broad, shallow lagoon we made out a dozen hippo, two or three very big. Cautiously we approached them, and when seventy yards off I fired at the base of the ear of one of the largest. Down went every head, and utter calm succeeded. I had marked the spot where the one at which I shot had disappeared, and thither we rowed. When we reached the place I told one of the rowers to thrust a pole down and see if he could touch the dead body. He thrust according and at once shouted that he had found the hippo. In another moment his face altered, and he shouted much more loudly that the hippo was alive.

Lively Time With Bumping Hippos.

"Sure enough, bump went the hippo against the bottom of the boat, the jar caused us all to sit suddenly down, for we were standing. Another bump showed that we had again been struck, and the shallow, muddy water boiled as the huge beasts, above and below the surface, scattered every which way. Their eyes starting, the two rowers began to back water out of the dangerous neighborhood, while I shot at an animal whose head appeared to my left as it made off with frantic haste, for I took it for granted that the hippo at which I had first fired (and which was really dead) had escaped. This one disappeared as usual, and I had not the slightest idea whether or not I had killed it. I had small opportunity to ponder the subject, for twenty feet away the water bubbled, and a huge head shot out facing me, the jaws wide open. There was no time to guess at its intentions, and I fired on the instant. Down went the head, and I felt the boat quiver as the hippo passed underneath. Just here the lily pads were thick, so I marked its course, fired as it rose and down it went. But on the other quarter of the boat a beast, evidently of great size—it proved to be a big bull—now appeared, well above water, and I put a bullet into its brain."

About an hour afterward four dead hippos were found by the hunters on the surface of the water, one huge bull and three big cows.

Even Kill Children and Women.

During his encampment on the shores of Lake Naivasha Mr. Roosevelt saw many baboons, and in the same article he describes their depredations as follows:

"The baboons were numerous around this camp, living both among the rocks and in the treetops. They are hideous creatures. They ravage the crops and tear open newborn lambs to get at the milk inside them, and where the natives are timid and unable to harm them they become wantonly savage and aggressive and attack and even kill women and children. In Uganda, Cuninghame had once been asked by a native chief to come to his village and shoot the baboons, as they had just killed two women, badly bitten several children and caused such a reign of terror that the village would be abandoned if they were not killed or intimidated. He himself saw the torn and mutilated bodies of the dead women, and he stayed in the village a week, shooting so many baboons that the remainder were thoroughly cowed."

Mr. Roosevelt also killed a cow rhinoceros which had peculiar horns. The rear one, which proved to be two feet in length, was a little bit longer than the stouter front one.

Various beasts were trapped by Mr. Heller, a member of Mr. Roosevelt's party. But in a steel trap set for much smaller animals his most remarkable catch was made, that of a large male leopard which had been caught firmly by only one toe. How the beast was tracked to a thicket and there killed is interestingly described in the same article, as well as the preceding incident about the rhinoceros.

HOW TO GROW CANNAS.

Planning the Bed—Some Famous Types—To Secure Early Flowers.

On account of their free flowering habit and ease of culture the cannas are general favorites for summer bedding purposes. There are two types, the green leaved and the red leaved. The green leaved varieties are cultivated for their flowers, while the red leaved type is grown primarily for the broad, richly colored leaves. The canna is useful as a bedding plant rather than as a cut flower, as the flowers are fragile and soon perish when cut.

One type known as the orchid flowering produces unusually large blossoms. The Austria and Italia are good examples.

In color the canna ranges from cardinal to yellow, including every stage of intergradation. In some varieties, as the Florence Vaughan, the body color of the petals is a deep red, scattered through which are bright orange dots.

The canna was developed and improved by a Frenchman of the name of Crozy. One of the most widely known varieties is the Mme. Crozy, introduced by him and named in honor of his wife. The canna ranges from two to six feet in height. In arranging a bed care should be taken to have the taller kinds in the center, tapering down toward the border. Sam Trelease is one of the dwarfest forms and an excellent variety for the outside row. For a large bed a single plant of the red leaved castor bean may be used for the center. Next to this place the taller variety of cannas, next by a row of the red leaved canna, such as Black Beauty. Follow the last row of cannas with the scarlet sage. Salvia splendens, and for the border next to grass there is nothing superior to the candytuft or the variegated leaved geranium, Mme. Sellerio. The size of the bed should be proportionate to the area of the lawn.

The canna requires a rich, moist, well drained soil. This may be secured by the application of well rotted manure or nitrate of soda.

The propagation of the canna is very simple. When the frosts come on the tops are cut back and the clumps lifted with as much soil as will conveniently adhere. These clumps are closely packed on shelves or in boxes and stored in the cellar at about the temperature required for the potato. The next spring the clumps are subdivided into pieces three-fourths of an inch long and having one or two strong eyes to each piece. To secure early flowers the eyes should be started in a hotbed or window box; otherwise they may be planted directly in the bed. Aside from cultivating and watering, the one point of importance is to keep the seed pods cut away. As with all flowering plants, the one purpose of the flower is that of reproduction. If the seed pods are cut away as soon as the flowers wither they continue this effort indefinitely; otherwise flowering ceases with the maturing of the first crop of seed. The new flower stalk appears at the last joint; hence in removing the old stalk the cut should be made above the joint.

GARDEN OF WILD FLOWERS.

This May Be Made Attractive Feature of the Home Garden.

A very attractive feature of the home garden is the so called wild garden, in which are planted the various species of local wild flowers that will grow in captivity, such as the maidenhair fern, the tiger lily, Solomon's seal, jack in the pulpit, dog's tooth violet, hepaticas, columbine, pink and yellow lady slippers and others too numerous to mention. This garden may occupy a partly shady place along one side of the house or it may be merely a strip two feet wide, extending from the front walk half the depth of the lot and serving as a very beautiful and unconventional fence line between the home and the adjoining property. When the long strip scheme is utilized the wild flowers may be re-enforced with cultivated flowers, such as poppies, cosmos, zinnias and asters, with an occasional rosebush to break the monotony. To the possessor of such a wild garden one of the joys of spring is to watch for the first hepaticas and later see the dog's tooth violet and the jack in the pulpit appear. An occasional trip to the woods will replenish the wild garden in case some of the transplanted plants succumb to their new environment.

HOW TO GROW DAHLIAS.

Plant In Full Exposure to the Sun In Enriched Soil.

There are so many new and rare dahlias in addition to the old varieties that no home garden is complete without these beautiful flowers. They should be planted in full exposure to the sun. The soil should be thoroughly and deeply worked and should be well enriched. The bulbs should be planted from six to eight inches deep and from two to three feet apart. During a very dry period it may be beneficial to give the plants water, but many authorities believe artificial watering of dahlias and other plants to be more harmful than helpful, for the reason that as a general proposition it is insufficiently done. Dahlias should be thoroughly watered or not at all. When the first shoots make their appearance cut off all but the strongest one and pinch off the top of that. This will cause the dahlia to branch at the surface of the ground, will concentrate the strength of the root in this shoot and remove all of the first imperfect flowers which are so common to some varieties.

"BILL" KELIHER IS INDICTED

Charged With Misapplication of Cambridge Bank Funds

COLEMAN UNDER SAME CHARGE

Fifteen Counts Cover Case Considered by Grand Jury—Secret Bill Is Also Reported—Amount of Cash Stolen Between Dec. 6 and Feb. 5 Is Placed at $49,000—Miss Hightower's Bank Account

Boston, April 28.—George W. Coleman and William J. Keliher were indicted by the federal grand jury for the misapplication of $49,000 of the funds of the National City bank of Cambridge, during a period of sixty-eight days. A secret indictment was also returned.

The joint indictment of Coleman and Keliher came as a surprise, for it was expected that "Big Bill" Keliher would have been charged with an offense of lesser gravity than that of which Coleman is accused. Both are charged with aiding in the wrongful conversion of the bank's funds.

A State street broker is mentioned as having been the medium through which the missing funds were negotiated after the manipulation of the accounts of the bank had made the wholesale looting possible.

Two indictments were reported, one in ten counts and the other in five, all charging both with the misapplication of funds of the bank.

In the first indictment both men are charged with having converted and aided and abetted in the conversion of $3500 on Dec. 6, 1909, and of having misapplied the following amounts thereafter: Dec. 9, $3500; Dec. 13, $4000; Dec. 15, $4000; Dec. 16, $4000; Dec. 17, $3000; Dec. 20, $3000; Dec. 22, $3000; Dec. 27, $3000, and the wrongful use of $3000 on Dec. 31.

The second indictment contains five counts. The first offense charged was on Jan. 3, 1910, when both are accused of the conversion of $3000. A like amount is mentioned in the indictment as having been misapplied on Jan. 4, 8 and 18, and the final offense alleged is set at Feb. 5, when the same amount is alleged to have been taken from the funds of the bank.

Following the surprising developments in the case it was learned that an attempt is being made by District Attorney French to find out what the two bank accounts of Mamie Hightower are worth and to trace, if possible, the source of funds which she admits she has in her possession.

Miss Hightower says that she has two bank books, one in her home town, Kansas City, and the other in New York.

She says that the institution in which she banks in Kansas City is the Pioneer Trust company. She declines to say in what bank her New York funds are deposited. She also says that all of this money was accumulated by her before she met Coleman or Keliher.

Asked if the funds were the result of her labor as an expert seamstress, which is her reputed occupation, Miss Hightower declined to further discuss this phase of the story.

GENERAL MILES IS INJURED

Sustains Broken Rib and Scalp Wound In Fall From a Horse

Washington, April 28.—Nelson A. Miles, lieutenant general of the United States army, retired, was seriously injured by being thrown from a new horse he was riding in Potomac park.

He sustained one broken rib and a severe scalp wound, both of which are occasioning his physicians considerable anxiety on account of the general's advanced age.

Since 1903, when he was retired, Miles has withdrawn from active affairs, and has made his residence in Washington. His horseback ride is one of his daily recreations.

FIRE CHIEF IS FIRED

Mayor Thinks He Made a Mistake In Appointing Him

Lawrence, Mass., April 28.—Fire Chief James A. Hamilton was last night suspended from further duty by Mayor White at a meeting of the board of aldermen. White's action was not confirmed by the board of aldermen, as they demanded the deposed chief be given a hearing.

Chief Hamilton was appointed by White last May. The mayor has repeatedly threatened to remove his appointee, saying he never should have appointed him had it not been for the insistance of his supporters. When Hamilton was confirmed last May, White was the most surprised man in the council chamber, he being sure that the aldermen would not confirm the appointment. White will charge Hamilton with incompetency and extravagance.

FARMERS TO HOLD BACK MILK SUPPLY

Insist Upon Receiving Winter Prices For Their Product

Boston, April 28.—Without a dissenting vote the Boston Co-operative Milk Producers' association decided to inaugurate such a milk war as Boston has never before known, unless the distributing contractors meet the demand of the farmers before May 1.

The farmers claim to control 40,000 of the 50,000 cans sent into Boston daily, and they say they have already been pledged the support of the producers of 30,000 cans and expect the entire production of the association will be withheld.

The contention is over the price to be paid after May 1, when new contracts are in order. The producers want 33½ cents per can of 8½ quarts, which is the winter price; the contractors declare that they will pay only the usual summer price, or 25½ cents.

The contractors are confident that no famine can result. They have been negotiating for new sources of supply, and claim that they are in a position to maintain an interrupted service.

Gardner of the Sixth Massachusetts district, one of the leading house insurgents and the son-in-law of Senator Lodge, is in a serious condition as the result of a nervous breakdown following his exertions at the time of the revolt in the house, when Speaker Cannon was removed from the rules committee.

He arose from a sick bed to participate in the voting on the roll in the railroad bill. He will submit to an operation by physicians. His heart is said to be affected.

LAST OF WHIST TOURNAMENTS

Granite City Club Have a Grand Wind-Up

The whist tournaments that have been held weekly during the past winter at the rooms of the Granite City club came to a glorious end with Wednesday evening's game. The attendance at the rooms on this evening was unusually large and a good time was enpoyed by all. Morris orchestra of Milton was present and furnished music during the entire evening. The whist tournament commenced at 8.30 with nine tables in play. The contest was a keen one and some good scores resulted. During the game the air was full of music as the members sang the popular airs played by the orchesra.

After the play delicious strawberries and ice cream were served. Then there was more music, which included vocal solos by Dr. J. P. Thayer and a selection by the pool table quartette entitled "We are always on deck when the food is served."

The high scores of the evening were secured by Dr. H. A. Jones, who secured 73 percent and Prof. Clarence Fouche who secured 71 percent. The monthly and seasons prize winners have not been figured out, but will be announced latter.

GREAT FLIGHT IN AEROPLANE

Paulhan Wins Most Exciting Sporting Contest in England

CARRIES OFF $50,000 PRIZE

Outwits White, His English Rival, and Starts Ahead of Him In Journey of 186 Miles From London to Manchester—Both Had to Land Before Reaching Destination Because It Was So Cold High In Air

Manchester, April 28.—Paulhan reached Manchester at an early morning hour, thereby winning the $50,000 prize. He made only one stop in his remarkable flight of 186 miles, the greatest aeroplane flight on record.

London, April 28.—The struggle for the coveted aviation prize of $50,000 for a flight from London to Manchester, donated by Lord Northcliffe, took a dramatic and unexpected turn last evening by reason of the Frenchman, Louis Paulhan, stealing a march on his English rival, Graham White, which placed him fifty-seven miles ahead in the race when darkness compelled both to alight for the night.

Paulhan's machine only arrived in London at 6 o'clock in the morning, and both he and White were busily engaged all forenoon in fitting up their aeroplanes and perfecting arrangements for the start.

The weather was favorable, but owing to the heavy work involved in preparing the machines it was supposed that the start would be deferred until today.

The two aviators had met early in the morning and discussed plans, expressing the hope that they would meet each other in Manchester. During the day constantly increasing crowds gathered at Park Royal and Hendon, the respective headquarters of the two men, in the hope of witnessing the trial flights. Late in the afternoon, White, tired out, returned to his hotel and went to sleep, intending to start this morning. Meanwhile the spectators at Hendon were surprised to see Paulhan, after trying his machine, take a farewell of his wife, who tied a large map of the route around his waist.

Paulhan kissed his wife and took his seat in the aeroplane. After a brief trial spin, which he made with the object of finding out if the motor was working well, Paulhan picked out the London and Northwestern railroad, above which he flew northward at a fine speed, despite a smart head wind. Prior to his departure Paulhan announced his intention of trying to reach the goal without a stop.

Word that the Frenchman had started quickly reached Park Royal. Rushing into White's room his friends awakened him. White flew down stairs, jumped into a motor car and made for the garage at full speed, and within twenty minutes was sailing around the gasometer at Kensal Green, in the first stage of the most exciting sporting contest ever held in Great Britain.

White passed over Bletchingley eighteen minutes behind Paulhan. He was flying considerably higher than the Frenchman and seemed to be making faster time and a straighter course.

The news of the race spread like magic in the towns and villages along the railway, which the aviators followed closely, Paulhan being guided by a special train steaming rapidly northward. The people gathered everywhere to get a view of the novel sight.

The machines appeared sometimes to be swaying dangerously as they met the varying air currents, but still the daring aeroplanists held their course until approaching darkness compelled them to seek a safe descent.

Towards 8 o'clock streams of automobiles and other vehicles brought thousands of people to the outskirts of Lichfield. Suddenly a shout went up: "There he is," and half frozen and almost exhausted by his effort, Paulhan safely descended in a field close to the Trent railway station amid frantic cheers of 8000 people.

Speaking of his flight, he said: "I came down because it was too cold to trust myself longer in the machine. It seemed foo dangerous. My hands were benumbed, the wind was very gusty and I was hardly able to descend without an accident."

Paulhan went to a hotel and immediately retired to sleep, asking to be called at 2:30 a. m., and ordering breakfast for 3 o'clock. Almost at the same hour White came within sight of Northampton, where he sought vainly in the gathering darkness for a safe landing place. This he was unable to find and he turned back, making a descent in a grass field, where a small crowd soon assembled. White said:

"It was too dark to continue the flight in safety. I suffered from the intense cold and wasn't quite sure of my location."

BIG PURSES FOR GRAND CIRCUIT

Fortunes Offered For Trotters and Pacers.

BIG ENTRY LIST EXPECTED.

Indications Are That Large and Small Breeders Will Nominate Many Fast Ones For the Different Events—Large Purses at Detroit and Cleveland.

The stake programs for the four western meetings of the grand circuit —Kalamazoo, Detroit, Cleveland and Columbus—have been announced and total up in the neighborhood of $100,000. There have been few changes in the stake events from those of last year, the most material one being the change of the $10,000 trotting stake in Kalamazoo from the 2:14 to the 2:11 class, which will let in a lot of horses which have previously campaigned and taken in records on the mile tracks.

All of the talk about a radical change in the conditions of the Chamber of Commerce $5,000 stake, which is the pacing feature of the Detroit blue ribbon meeting, came to naught. Back in the middle nineties, when D. J. Campau was the controlling spirit of the Detroit meeting, as he was of the entire grand circuit, he inaugurated this stake, making it, like the trotting classic, the M. and M. for the 2:24 class, which practically means an event for green horses. A lot of pressure was brought to bear on Campau to change the class of both events, letting in faster record horses, but as far as the M and M. was concerned the Detroit executive turned a deaf ear to his advisers.

The M. and M. was his pet stake. It was he who first announced it in 1889, in the days of the high wheel sulky, and it has become the classic stake of harness horse turf. Campau has now passed, and new hands are governing the destinies of the organization.

Last season a strong effort was made to induce the managers of the meeting to change the class of the Chamber of Commerce stake to a slower class in order to bar out the little stallion George Gano, who had shown that he would walk away with first money if he got to the post fit. Although it cost them many entries, the Detroit people stood by their guns and refused to put George Gano outside the breastworks. As was expected, he came to the post as fit as a fiddle and won off the reel, as he did in all but one of his starts on the grand circuit.

When the anti-hobble agitation was at its height early in the winter it was semiofficially announced that the class of the Chamber of Commerce would be changed back to the time honored 2:24 and also that horses wearing the "submarine harness" would not find the welcome sign on the mat when the entries were being made—in other words, that the hobblers would be barred. Then Secretary Moone arrived on the scene, and there was immediately a change in sentiment, the New England man persuading the Detroit management that barring the hobbles was not the thing for the Chamber of Commerce, so there was no surprise at the recent announcement that the event would, as usual, be for the 2:13 class and that the number of harnesses which a pacer wore would not affect his social standing as far as a try at the $5,000 stake money was concerned. This means a larger field and an old fashioned horse race, but the opponents of the hobble will tell you that it will not tend to improve the breed of horses.

As usual, the M. and M. is a $10,000 event for 2:24 trotters. There is no other feature of the harness horse game ,which does as much to keep up the price of green trotters as the M. and M., and it is a testimonial to the wisdom of Campau in refusing to allow it to be changed to a class for faster record horses.

The other two early closing events for the Detroit meeting are for $3,000 each and are for 2:11 and four-year-old trotters. In addition to these there will be the three futurities promoted by the Horseman, events for three and two year old trotters and three-year-old pacers, which aggregate $18,000 in purse money.

The cry raised in Detroit at the time of the assignment of dates by the grand circuit stewards that the fact that the $10,000 stake at Kalamazoo would be raced the week before the M. and M. would rob the latter event of a lot of interest seems to be without grounds. If there was any real danger of this the Kalamazoo management has dispelled it by changing the class of the event to 2:11. A big share of the M. and M. trotters will not be starters in an event where they will have to meet, right at the start of the grand circuit, old and tried campaigners.

The Celery City association offers a $3,000 event for 2:15 trotters, and this will be liable to catch more of the M. and M. candidates than the richer event. In any event it will serve to split them up. The $5,000 pacing stake at Kalamazoo is for the same class as the Chamber of Commerce, but there is also a $2,000 event for a slower class, and again this will serve to split the fields up, playing into the hands of the Detroit people.

REFERENDUM FAVORED

In Granting Franchises to Corporations

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the West Quincy Improvment association was held Thursday evening, President S. B. Little presiding.

The committee appointed to attend the public hearing by the City Council on the trolley freight petition reported the result of the hearing.

Their report was followed by a general discussion on the granting by the city of important franchises to corporations. During the discussion quotations were read from an article from the pen of ex-Governor Joseph W. Folk, of Missouri on "The Hope of the city" published in a recent edition of the Saturday Evening Post.

The article in question dwelt largely on the recent election in Boston and the government of cities by commission. It also dwelt upon the importance of the referendum in the granting of franchises to large cooperations. It pointed out that many large cities like Chicago and Kansas City had already adopted this method in granting franchises, and that St. Louis was coming into line.

Gov. Folk also makes the startling statement, that for 25 years, previous to 1901, scarcely a franchise was granted in St. Louis without being bribed through. In 1899 alone $250,000 were paid to the municipal as-

COST OF BATTLESHIPS

Figures of President Bowles Quoted in House of Commons

The comparison of the respective cost of construction of American and British battleships made by Rear Admiral Bowles, president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy which showed that the former was considerably less, formed the subject of a question put to Reginald McKenna in the House of Commons on Thursday, says a London dispatch to the Herald.

The first lord of the admiralty replied that he was unable to say why the cost was lower in the protected country than in free trade England, as he had no detailed information as to the exact proportions of the vessels and equipments in the computation.

"In this comparison of the cost of battleships," continued McKenna, "there is no standard of quality, but speaking of mercantile ships, in which presumably a certain standard of excellence would be demanded, Rear Admiral Bowles admitted that the United States could not compete with the British and German firms."

Mr. McKenna was invited to say whether the standard of efficiency in the equipment of the United States navy was 25 per cent less than in the British navy, but replied that he had no knowledge as to the standard of efficiency in the United States navy and could make no comparison.

NEW ROUTE TO BOSTON.

It is probable that a new line of street cars will soon be opened in Dorchester which will shorten the time between Quincy and the Dudley street terminal. It is proposed to lay rails on Geneva avenue to Grove Hall, a distance of about three-quarters of a mile, so that cars can run from Fields corner via Geneva avenue and Grove Hall to Dudley street. It is claimed that this route would be several minutes shorter than the Dorchester avenue route. An extension of the Elevated to Fields Corner wil soon be demanded.

THE CHASE ESTATE

Largest Account Ever Before Norfolk Probate Court

The largest account ever filed in Norfolk county probate court was presented at Brookline this week by Salome B. Chase, Charles D. Sias, Benjamin S. Palmer and William T. Rich, executors of the will of Caleb Chase of Brookline. The account is for the period from Dec. 16, 1908, to Nov. 30, 1909 and the receipts were $2,221,492, and the payments $1,948,696. Mr. Chase was the senior partner of the firm of Chase & Sanborn of Boston.

At the same session of the court the will of Salome B. Chase, Mr. Chase's widow, who died after the account had been made up, was allowed. She left an estate of $161,000 personal property and $71,500 real estate. Two codicils were probated also. Bonds of $300,000 each were given by the three executors, F. Warren Kimball of Chelsea, James H. Stetson of Quincy and Frank C. Hendy of Boston.

HOSPITAL AID ASSOCIATION.

A largely attended meeting of the Hospital Aid association was held at the home of Miss Etta Prescott Spear street on Thursday. Since the last meeting a quantity of blankets, linen and cotton supplies in general had been purchased for the new ward, by the association and plenty of sewing was found piled on the tables ready for willing helpers who did not abate their zeal until the pause came for a refreshing cup of afternoon tea.

This first installment has cost upwards of $200 and from $200 to $300 more will necessarily be spent before this department in the new ward furnishing is complete.

Some idea can thus be gained of the good work being done by the Hospital aid association and how earnestly it is desired that all the ladies of Quincy cooperate, giving their aid by becoming members if not always able to attend the meetings.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Mud represents 0, and macadam $$. Which will you take?

Uncle Sam's purse is taking on flesh very fast.

Perhaps all this bribery has something to do with the high cost of living.

Like true forestry enthusiasts, Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Roosevelt took to the woods for their first interview.

Statesmen find a peculiar relaxation in base ball. The umpire frequently enables a man to forget all his enemies.

English suffragettes are not as energetic as might have been expected in suggesting a house of ladies as a substitute for the house of lords.

WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGNS.

Three whirlwind campaigns, to raise $210,000 for semi-public work, are in progress in Spokane and the leaders of the movements say there is every indication that the full amount required will be pledged before the end of the first week in May. The money, payable upon condition that the total fund is subscribed, is for the following purposes:

Spokane Young Men's Christian Association—$90,000 to cancel a mortgage and pay floating indebtedness; the amounts subscribed to be paid in 12 quartery instalments, beginning June 30.

Greater Spokane committee—$70,000, to carry on the work of the Spokane chamber of commerce during 1910, organize an association of commercial clubs in the Inland Empire and guarantee the national apple show and the dry farming congress and international dry farming exposition the coming autumn.

Spokane college—$50,000, for new buildings and beautifying the grounds and extension of the work of the institution.

Two hundred business and professional men, including railroad builders, bankers, mine and sawmill operators, bonanza wheat farmers and orchardists and merchants, engaged in the canvass for funds, report they are meeting with hearty cooperation and support on all sides. The subscriptions, range from $2,000 to $12.

Canvassers in the finish-the-job campaign for the Young Men's Christian association received $33,000 in pledges at their opening noon-day luncheon, while the Greater Spokane committee reported between $31,000 and $32,000 in subscriptions at a public banquet in the Hall of the Doges, where Charles M. Fassett, president of the chamber of commerce, presided. Several substantial subscriptions have also been received for Spokane college.

GRAND OFFICERS PRESENT.

John Adams commandery, K. of M., at their last regular convocation in Greenleaf hall on Tuesday evening was called to order promptly at 8 o'clock, and after the regular business was transacted the commandery was inspected by Grand Captain General George W. Watterman, who expressed himself as well pleased with the progress of the commandery. He gave a very interesting talk on fraternity. The Malta degree team rehearsed in full uniform. The grand deputy was also present, and gave some instructions on degree work.

BOSTON FLOATING HOSPITAL.

Another, in fact, the sixteenth consecutive season of the Boston Floating Hospital is well under way. It long ago passed the experimental stage. Today it stands unique in the whole history of charitable endeavor, a veritable floating hospital, perfect in detail and having its system in every branch reduced to the necessities consistent with efficient service. It is an established philanthropy doing a work that is heralded to the four corners of the world and annually receiving visitors from all parts of this country and from foreign countries as well. They come oftentimes to be enlightened as to its methods that something similar may be started in the interests of poor and sick babies who are everywhere needing attention.

The Boston Floating Hospital appeals to me because it is primarily a poor babies' hospital. Race or color, or creed enter not at all into its tender mercies. Neither do clothes, cleanliness nor culture carry weight or procure favor. The poorer and sicker the baby the greater his claim upon the healing and life-saving powers housed in the various departments of the white ship that rides at anchor the whole summer through where the winds blow cool and fresh.

You only have to see the long line of mothers with their children in arms eagerly pushing forward to the examination tables on a hot summer morning long before sailing time to have its need indelibly impressed, or to see them disembark in the late afternoon with the drooping, pallid baby of the morning a changed creature, to be convinced of its benefits. You do not, it is true, often see the type of baby that you are accustomed to in your home or neighborhood, though never is a sick baby turned away. But it is the child of the tenement and untoward environment who benefits most by this healing charity and it is all the more blessed and deserving because it is so conscientiously confined to the poor.

Now our Floating Hospital, in which every Bostonian should take a personal interest and pride, is in constant need of funds and food supplies and old linen. It costs $40,000 each year to conduct this great charity. Every day during the season they feed on an average 250 at the noon-day meal and of course the force of doctors and nurses and ship's officers and crew have to be fed three times daily. Every day, too, they use quantities of old clean linen and cotton rags, such as worn-out table cloths, napkins, towels,white underclothing, sheets, pillow-cases, etc. If you can do no more you can contribute your share of these principal necessities and be doing something to aid the work.

The results that accrue each season are so far-reaching and widespread that it is impossible to set them down in round numbers. Hundreds of children who would become permanent invalids and dependent on the State are established in health through this summer hospital. Hundreds are saved from death, and mothers by the scores are taught simple laws of health and hygiene, which makes them better mothers, therefore of more value to the community. The nurses who come from all over the United States to receive the training and instruction in the care of the young, which is acknowledged unequaled, go back in the fall to various posts of duty with experience that is invaluable in nursing sick children, whether it be the offspring of a millionaire or babies just as poor as those which the Boston Foating Hospital does its utmost to coaxe to health.

The Boston Floating Hospital thus firmly established in the confidence of the people and doing a tremendous work for good deserves hearty support. It should be made self-upporting by endowments. Surely there are enough men and women of ample fortune thus charitably inclined to need no urging to make it a beneficiary of their wealth and charity.

Last winter the Floating Hospital was made richer by a bequest of $10,000. Such a bequest is very encouraging to those whose interest is all wrapped up in this project. But it will take many such bequests before the interest from the endowment fund will half-way support this great work of mercy. Ten thousand dollars put at interest at 4 per cent, a conservative and safe investment, yields only a return of $400 a year.

An established charity ought to receive half of its income from its endowment fund. At that rate $500,000 at 4 per cent would furnish $20,000, or half the amount necessary to the support of the Boston Floating Hospital. It reads like a lot of money, but with people willing and even eager to help the poor and unfortunate with the vast fortunes at their command it is not too much to hope that the Floating Hospital will attain to an endowment of $500,000, and very soon, too.—Peggy Quincy in the Boston Journal.

The Rope and the Ring

How an Escaped Convict Accomplished a Heroic Deed.

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The steamer Tecumseh was moving along at a ten knot gait off Norfolk, Va., when the lookout called:

"Boat ahead on the port bow."

With his glass the captain swept the quarter of the ocean indicated and saw a cockleshell skiff pulled by a single man. He was alone in the boat and beyond sight of land.

"Put her off three points to westward," said the captain to the helmsman.

The ship was steered in the direction of the man in the boat, and as it drew near him broad stripes revealed themselves on the garments he wore.

"Escaped jailbird!" exclaimed the captain in disgust at having to rescue such a man.

A rope was lowered, and the convict was pulled aboard. He walked aft to where the captain stood waiting for him and said:

"You see by my garb, captain, that I am an escaped prisoner. I broke away last night, made my way to the coast before morning, seized a boat and pulled out, where I hoped to be picked up by a passing ship. I must throw myself on your mercy not to put me back where I came from. If you intend doing so I beg you rather to toss me overboard, for I prefer to die rather than return to that horrible life."

"It wouldn't do for me," replied the captain, "to assist a prisoner regularly convicted under the law to obtain his freedom. You may work with the crew while you are on board my ship, but when we reach port I'll have to turn you over to the authorities."

There was a look of agony in the man's eyes as he turned away in company with the mate to take his place among the crew. He was young—not more than twenty-seven—vigorous and refined looking. He had eaten nothing since the day before. Food was given him; but, though he needed it, he had not the heart to eat more than he absolutely required.

Bad weather set in that night from the northeast, blowing a cold blast. The ship was riding obliquely across the waves which dashed up against her bows, now raising skyward and now pointing toward the bottom.

It was about midnight that, while the stern was raised high in the air, an enormous wave struck it with terrific force. There was a sharp report, and the helmsman found that the wheel turned without assistance. Something had happened to free the rudder and render it useless. The ship was at the mercy of the waves.

When the captain, who was on deck, learned of the trouble he blanched. He was not more than thirty miles from the Virginia coast, and with a northeast wind blowing his ship southwestward it would go ashore by daylight.

While this flashed into his mind the vessel was turning and in a few moments was rolling in the trough of the sea. Orders were issued to get up such sails as would be of service in steering. With the help of these, though the ship steadily lost ground, those aboard of her gained time. Morning came, and there was the shore like a faint cloud resting on the horizon, and with a powerful glass a white line could be seen breaking against it. Some steering gear must be rigged or within a few hours the ship would be breaking up under the waves rolling on that coast.

An investigation was made, and the rudder itself was found to be sound, though the stock was shattered, leaving the huge steel mass, weighing three tons, swinging from side to side with every wave and threatening to stave a hole in the vessel's stern. To save the ship and the lives of those aboard of her it was necessary that the rudder should not only be secured, but that it be again converted into a means of steering the ship. In other words, there were two dangers of equal importance—the breaking of the ship's plates and being driven ashore.

The captain conceived a plan, but owing to the rolling of the ship did not consider its execution feasible. It was to make fast two chains, one on each side of the stern, to a ring on the outer edge of the rudder. Had the vessel remained on an even keel this ring would have been about four feet under water. As she pitched sometimes it was high in the air, sometimes far down below the surface. At the rudder's rise a man could be lowered on to it in the hope that he might put the chains through the ring, but before he could do so he would be buried many feet in the brine.

The captain lined the crew up on deck, told them of his plan, admitting that several men might be lost in the attempt, and called for volunteers. Half a minute passed before a man moved; then the convict stepped forward and said:

"I'd rather be drowned down there than go back to prison. I'll make an attempt."

"If you succeed," said the captain, "you'll never return to your stripes if I can help you."

One end of a rope was attached to the end of the mizzen boom, the other end being looped under the convict's shoulders. Just before he was lowered he said:

"Tell the world that I, Arnold Turner, convicted of a bank defalcation, about to die, declare my innocence. I know the guilty person, but decline, as I have always declined, to tell."

Turner stood on the gunwale and as the stern rose was quickly lowered with a wire rope and, perching himself on the rudder, endeavored to pass it through the ring. Before he could do so the stern descended, bearing him with it. Necks were craned over the rail to see, when the rudder rose again if he would still be there. Few believed that he would. But as the stern came up there he was, his knees pressing the vessel's sides, his hands clutching the ring.

A wave swung the rudder to starboard, and the man on it would have been dashed against the side of the ship had he not saved himself by throwing himself on the other side. Before it was swung in the reverse direction down he went again toward the bottom of the ocean. When he came up, holding the ring by one hand, he tried to pass the rope through it, but the rudder was not still long enough for him to do so. He was not only becoming benumbed with the cold bath, but must be ever watchful to avoid being banged against the side of the vessel, which would, to say the least, have dislodged him.

And so he continued to fight for the lives of the fifty or more people slowly drifting toward the breakers, whose distant roar could now be faintly heard above that of the wind. Every time he was carried down he came up with shorter breath and more exhausted. But every time he renewed his attempt to put the rope through the ring of the swaying rudder. Then, when he had failed and gone down again, on rising he let go the ring to rest, swinging, soaked with ice water and pierced by the cold wind.

At last, watching his opportunity when the ship plunged and the stern rose, swinging with the ring, he grasped at it, caught it and this time passed the rope through it.

Half his work had been done.

Another wire rope was given him, but how could he hope, having lost so much of his strength and benumbed by the cold, to succeed when it had taken so long to attach the first rope? It was a period of terrible suspense for those drawing near those dreadful breakers, whose roar was now every moment growing louder. Again he made his dives; again he clung to the rudder, watching to avoid being dashed against the ship, trying to put the second rope in place.

And so, sometimes swinging at the end of his rope and sometimes taking his cold baths, he kept on trying. The knowledge that lives depended upon his success gave him strength, but whenever he felt that he could not endure another swing in the blast or another dive in the ocean he would think of that life behind bars which was dethroning his reason and he would persevere.

At last a feeble call from below announced to those above that the second wire rope had been passed through the ring. To the ends of these ropes those on deck passed heavy chains, which the convict shackled in place, and when this was done he was drawn up.

As he appeared above the taffrail a shout was raised. But he did not hear it. The moment his work was done he fainted. Liquor was poured down his throat, and he was hurried below. There he was stripped of his soaked clothing and put into hot blankets.

While he had been at his work men on deck had lashed a boom across the poop, projecting on each side. The rudder chains were passed through pulley blocks at each end of the beam and around a drum made by boarding over the stearing gear. The moment the ends of the chains were attached to the ring the rudder was made serviceable, and the ship was turned from the white line where now, but a mile away, the mad waves were tossing their heads as if disappointed at losing their prey.

When Turner came on deck again he was dressed in a suit of the first mate's clothes, and every one pushed forward to grasp his hand and shower blessings upon him. Each and every person vowed not to betray him, and some suggested means of obtaining a pardon. But Turner told them that he preferred to remain aboard the ship, which, after touching at New York, was to sail for a foreign land. So great was his dread of a return to prison that he determined to lose himself in a country where he would not be known.

Under the improvised steering gear the ship weathered the gale and made her way to Philadelphia, where she put in for repairs, and her passengers, going ashore, took a land route to their different destinations. Before leaving the ship they held a meeting and collected a considerable sum to be paid the man who had saved their lives. But when they came to turn the gift over to him he declined it, saying that he did not need money beyond what he might be supplied with from friends who knew him to be innocent of any crime and who would gladly furnish him with all his necessities.

Turner remained aboard the vessel during her stay at Philadelphia and while she touched at New York. He occupied a cabin of one of the mates, where he kept himself hidden while the ship was in port. Then when her prow was turned eastward he came out and rejoiced in being once more a free man.

Years after the convict's escape the person who had perpetrated the crime for which Turner had been imprisoned, on promise of indemnity, owned himself to be the guilty party. Then Turner accepted a pardon.

The Old Fashioned Woman.

"What caused your sudden blowing in?" asked a veteran in Shade Land of a woman who just arrived. The woman gave a sigh that blew over a tombstone as she replied: "I am an old fashioned woman, and I did my work in a kitchen with a six hole range, a big sink, three long tables, two pantries and a dishpan large enough to wash a turkey in. Two days ago I went to visit my daughter in a big city and found her cooking for her family in a chafing dish, doing her dishes in a washbowl and keeping them stored in the lower part of the washstand. When I saw her get the bread out of a big bowl on the piano called a jardiniere and reach for the butter out of the window I felt a cold chill come over me, and when she made soup by opening a tin can and pouring out a mess to which she added water from the wash pitcher I knew no more." Then the old fashioned woman gave such a sniff of disgust it blew all the shades over into the next county.—Atchison Globe.

NATIVE AND FOREIGN BORN

Parcentage of Native Born Growing Smaller

The number and percentage of native born residents of Quincy as shown by recent censuses will be of interest. In 30 years there has been an increase of 11,678 in native born and 7,243 in foreign born. The percentage of native born has decreased some in 30 years but is a little larger than in 1895, as will be seen below:

Year.	Native Born.	Per-Centage
1875	6,778	74.04
1880	7,715	72.99
1885	8,460	69.66
1890	10,867	64.98
1895	13,582	65.58
1900	16,237	67.94
1905	18,456	65.74

Another summary shows the foreign born at each census, and the number of foreign born to each 1000 of native born:

Year.	Foreign Born	To Each 1000 Native Born
1875	2377	351
1880	2855	370
1885	3685	436
1890	5856	539
1895	7130	525
1900	7662	472
1905	9620	521

The number of foreign born to each 1000 native born was not as large in 1905 as in 1885 or 1890.

sembly for a street railroad franchise, seven members of the council obtaining from $7,500 to $50,000 in bribes, and 25 of the 28 members of the house of delegates received bribes of $2,000 each.

A discussion followed the reading of the article during which it was the sentiment that Quincy had been free from bribery in the granting of franchises, yet it would be the proper thing and safeguard, if in Quincy all grants of franchises to corporations had the referendum clause attached.

BLUE HILL BILL.

Several of the members stated that they were much pleased to read in Thursdays Daily Ledger that he bill of Representative Carr, which sought to prevent any further building of roads through Blue Hills reservation had been killed.

It was then voted that the thanks of the association be extended to the Daily Ledger for its work in placing before the public the objects of the bill in question, and also for the full and accurate reports of the meetings of the association which the Daily Ledger had published.

FOURTH OF JULY.

A committee of three consisting of Joseph Walker, George F. Elcock and John Evans was appointed to represent the Association at the Fourth of July celebration meeting to be held Saturday evening.

The remainder of the evening was taken up in a general discussion of improvement of the city and ward, and the members of the association recorded themselves as approving of a general street and yard cleaning day.

—This being the centennial year of the independence of various South American republics, the people of the United States will have ample opportunity for demonstrating sympathy and goodwill. Chile has invited our government to participate in a celebration to be held next September, and the authorities at Washington have accepted. A division of the Pacific fleet, including several of the finest ships of the navy will rendezvous on the Chilean coast and will take part in the display on the occasion. As arrangements have already been made to have our government represented at a similar observance in Argentina to take place earlier, the United States delegation may go to Chile to give further proof of interest in the latter demonstration. All these exercises are full of promise as tending to strengthen the good relations between the United States and the Latin-American nations.—Framingham News.

REDISTRICTING THE STATE

Number of Congressmen and Basis Unknown

When the army of census enumerators has started out on the undertaking of counting noses in the state, politicians are prognosticating as to the probable make-up of the congressional districts after this census work is a thing of the past.

It may have escaped general observation but it is nevertheless a fact, that each time the federal census is taken the readjusting of the congressional districts follows. In the first place the members of congress are supposed to represent constituencies of the same size, or practically so, and of course a readjustment has to follow when it is found just how many people live in every community. The national house of congress has the whole say as to the size of its membership. When, therefore, the director of the census report to congress the total population of the country, that body will decide how large a constituency it is proper for each member to represent. Having decided upon this basis, which may mean an increase in the number of members, it is apportioned among the states.

Then the governor of this state is notified just how many Massachusetts is to send and from that time on the matter is in the hands of the legislature.

The presiding officers of the two branches appoint a redistricting committee, which works out a plan. Ten years ago this committee was made up of five senators and 14 representatives, one at large and one from each of the thirteen districts into which the state was divided. Norfolk county had but one member of the committee, Benjamin C. Dean of Brookline, which accounts for Quincy being thrown into the Boston district instead of Brookline.

The committee will immediately be beseiged with plans from different people who are only interested in one particular district and who are apt not to look any further than their own section of the state. It will have to hear all these pleas. In the end, however, it will give careful ear to any suggestions made by an organization like the Republican state committee, which is likely to view the matter from the state wide view point.

Naturally the membership of the state legislature next year is to be strongly Republican, and naturally the redistricting committee will have a good majority of that political belief. With these facts for a basis, it is easy to understand that even without any pressure from Washington it would be likely to make every district that it could safely Republican.

While individual politicians might be willing to submit plans for one district, it will take a man like a state committee man, who has followed the game for some years, and who knows the whole state, to suggest a plan that will cover the whole of Massachusetts. Such a plan, when presented, will be welcomed by the committee and will be quite likely to be adopted.

As it is now, however, one is all at sea, for a starting basis even. He does not even know how many congressmen the state is to have or how large a constituency each is to represent. When the last apportionment was made fourteen congressmen were allowed and each was supposed to represent 200,382 population. Ten years before with thirteen congressmen, the basis of representation was 170,000. Ten years before that it was only 150,000. Then basis of representation and the number of congressmen have no proportionate relationship apparently.

—We are all talking brotherhood now; some day we shall be living it. We are all speculating as to just what it means, and trying to bring everyone else up to our definition, when there is no definition big enough to hold so great a thing. We can only hope to gather in our mind and heart some of the great underlying principles which are to be adapted to the conditions under which we live. Perhaps Charles Wagner has come near to a working definition which we all can apply when he says: "To love others, to grow in gentleness and strength to despise our fellows less, to have less fear of those great in a worldly sense ,and less disdain for those of humble appearances, this is the task of brotherhood, kindliness and faith.—Universalist Leader.

Prayer Meeting In the Commons.

For many years a prayer meeting has been held in the house of commons once a week during every parliamentary session. No one knows who originated the idea, but the records of the proceedings, which are faithfully noted each week, show that in the year 1833 the well known Quaker Mr T. Fowell Buxton and the evangelicals Sir George Grey and Mr. Zachary Macauley were in constant attendance. The prayer meeting is held in a room granted for the purpose by the sergeant-at-arms and is restricted to twenty minutes. The proceedings are very simple. At each weekly meeting a president for the following week is chosen. On the day of assembling—Tuesday, at 5 o'clock—the president for the day opens the meeting, reads a portion of the Scriptures and either offers an extempore prayer or calls on one of the members to pray. Two or three others offer short prayers, and the meeting closes with the benediction.—London News.

He Begs Pardon No More.

Jones had just trod on the toe of an old gentleman while getting into the tram car.

"I beg your pardon," he said.

"Hey? Speak louder. I'm a trifle deaf."

"I beg your pardon," repeated Jones.

"H'm! Peggy starving? Well, I'm sorry. Who's Peggy?"

Jones was red in the face now.

"You misunderstand, sir!" he shouted.

"Hey?"

"You misunderstood!"

"Miss Underwood, is she? Peggy, who is starving, is Miss Underwood? Well?"

"I didn't say anything about Miss Underwood!" screamed Jones. "I begged your pardon, and you misunderstood."

"Oh, now I see!" said the old man sympathetically. "It is your Aunt Peggy who is starving Miss Underwood. Well, why don't you report the case to the police?"—Pearson's.

Not In Her Class.

While delivering an address at a woman's club an actress told the story of a young woman prominent in New York society who desired to achieve histrionic honors.

The manager to whom she confided her desire pointed out the inadvisability of the step she contemplated and added that even were he disposed to give her the chance she coveted he would still be in doubt whether her talents were such as to justify such action on his part.

"What is particularly desired by us at the present time," he said, "is the service of people who know the mechanics of the stage."

"Merciful heavens!" exclaimed the young woman, throwing up her hands "You don't mean to tell me that it is necessary I should be on terms of intimacy with those dreadful stage hands?"—Lippincott's.

Louis Pierre was one of a number of Canadian immigrants who settled at Fitzgerald, Ga. As he spoke both French and English he rapidly became a man of importance and was successively elected to the offices of city marshal, coroner and justice of the peace. A dispute arose between the French and English settlers as to the superiority of the United States over the Canadian provinces. They finally agreed to leave the decision to Judge Pierre, who handed down this decision:

Wild honey as a change is an agreeable sweetmeal, but after a few days constantly partaking of it the European palate rejects it as nauseous and almost disgusting. Ancient Oath Taking.

A method of taking the oath far more hygienic than kissing the book was that observed at the Forest of Dean Mine court for about 500 years, beginning in the thirteenth century It was not for any hygienic reasons, but to prevent soiling the book that the miners before giving evidence touched the four gospels with a stick of holly. The witnesses wore their hats to show that they were free miners.—London Chronicle.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE

Bill Relative to Meals for School Children Defeated

In the Senate on Thursday Senator Hultman of Quincy was successful in defeating the resolve to provide for an investigation as to the advisability of authorizing cities and towns to furnish meals to school children. Mr. Hultman explained that a member of the state board of education had appeared before the senate ways and means committee and had stated that the board has now the power to investigate, and will investigate under the general provision regarding the health of school children. Nason of Haverhill moved to postpone to Friday, as he wished to obtain some information upon the matter, but he was defeated 7 to 13.

Representatives Thomas and Langelier were not recorded on Thursday on roll call which rejected the bill to prohibit the sale of liquor to women in saloons, by a vote of 80 to 98.

On a voice vote, by a large majority the house killed the bill to allow the keeping in cold storage, after the shooting season had closed, for six and a half months, and the sale from cold storage of game birds.

The House enacted the bill to make Oct. 12 a legal holiday under the name of Columbus day.

The bill to require street cars to be equipped with lifting jacks was rejected 85 to 107.

READY TO COMPROMISE.

Gov. Draper has offered to compromise with the labor men on the eight-hour bill. He has made it knoyn that he will sign the bill if it is passed minus the "prima facie evidence" clause. This is the clause in the bill which says that if any employe shall work over eight hours in any one day, it shall be considered prima facie evidence of a violation of the law.

NEW LAWS.

Gov. Draper has signed the bill to prevent street railways from evading responsibility in case of accidents to passengers on the platform; also the bill for the registration of nurses; also the bill to give the whole of the domestic business corporation franchise tax to the communities where the business is done.

Wonderful Victoria Falls.

"It is well nigh impossible to describe a scene of such wonder, such wildness," says Lady Sarah Wilson in her "South African Memories" of the Victoria falls. But she gives this graphic description: "Standing on a point flush with the river before it makes its headlong leap, we gazed first on the swirling water losing itself in snowy spray which beat relentlessly on face and clothes while the great volume was noisily disappearing to unknown and terrifying depths. The sightseer tries to look across, to strain his eyes and to see beyond that white mist which obscures everything, but it is an impossible task, and he can but guess the width of the falls, slightly horseshoe in shape, from the green trees which seem so far away on the opposite bank and are only caught sight of now and then as the wind causes the spray to lift. At the same time his attention is fixed by a new wonder—the much talked of rainbows Never varying, never changing, that perfect shaped arc is surely more typical of eternity there than anywhere else."

Birds and Lightning.

Birds are sometimes struck by lightning. Darwin records the case of a wild duck that he saw struck by a bolt while flying. It was killed instantly and fell to the ground. But birds seem to know instinctively that lightning is to be feared. That perhaps is why they seek shelter in thunderstorms. The sudden disappearance of the birds is, indeed, in the country one of the surest signs of an approaching tempest.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Big Cargo, Little Ship.

An old official of the navy tells the following story of a conversation he heard between two old sailors:

"It was a rat ship I was sailin' in that trip," said one of the shellbacks. "one of the dingdest rat ships I ever knew. They was rats in it from bow to stern, rats in the hold, in the galley, in the steerage, in the fo'castle, in the old man's room—everywhere rats, nothin' but.

"Bimeby it got so bad we had to put in an' get them off. So we hooked up to a dock an' fumigated. I was on deck, an' I saw them rats leavin'. I counted 'em. They was 15,000,000 of 'em."

"Fifteen million?" asked the other. "Ain't that a lot o' rats? Are you sure?"

"Sure! Yes, I'm sure. They was 15,000,000 rats, and I counted 'em. More than that, every rat weighed half a pound. They was big, fat, sassy ones, I'm tellin'."

"Fifteen million rats, and every one weighed half a pound, and they all came off your ship. That's 7,500,000 pounds of rats. Say, Jim, what was the tonnage of that ship?"

"Oh, about a hundred and fifty tons."—Judge.

His Sarcastic Apology.

A well known New Yorker figured in a quaint encounter with a "panhandler" not long ago. The fellow had asked him for a dime, when the following conversation took place:

"You're a positive nuisance! Tuesday you struck me for a dime, Thursday I gave you another, and now you have the nerve to ask for a third!"

"Excuse me, but are you the gent that gave me a dime on this corner the day before yesterday?"

"Yes."

"And now I've tackled you for the third dime?"

"Yes."

"Waal," said the hobo contritely, "I sincerely beg your pardon, old man. That's too much gall even for me. The only excuse I have to offer is that you have improved so much in your personal appearance that I didn't recognize you."—Cleveland Leader.

Both Stung.

Some time ago an eminent London physician requested an equally eminent surgeon to accompany him to see a distinguished but slippery patient. The patient was exceedingly polite to both the medical gentlemen, shaking hands with them and bowing them out of the room in the most affable manner. Soon after this professional visit the same physician called again on the surgeon, requesting him to accompany him to see another patient. On their way thither the surgeon observed, "I hope this patient will behave more liberally than the last did."

"Why?" said the M. D. "Did he not give you a fee?"

"Not a shilling," was the reply.

"Indeed!" said the eminent physician, with a toss of the head. "Why, he borrowed 2 guineas from me to give to you!"—Tit-Bits.

Inertia of the Nerves.

The researches and experiments of a French scientist have led him to the conclusion that the cerebral nervous system is incapable of perceiving more than an average of ten separate impressions per second. After each excitation of the nerves a period of inertia follows, lasting about one-tenth of a second, and during this period a new impression cannot be made. According to the investigations of this scientist a person cannot make more than ten or at the most a dozen separate voluntary movements of any kind in a second, although the muscles, independently of the will, are capable of making as many as thirty or forty.

A Romantic Career.

The romantic career of a very remarkable man, John Gully, who seconded Cribb in his battle with Molineaux, is thus summed up in the "Dictionary of National Biography:" "Prizefighter, horse racer, legislator and colliery proprietor." Gully fought his first fight just before Trafalgar. He fought his last and retired from the prize ring in a blaze of triumph seven years before Waterloo. Gully rose to be a rich man and a member of parliament. He won the Derby three times and was the owner of a large and prosperous colliery. He died in 1863, the father of twenty-four children.

—Francis A. Bicknell of Weymouth was on Wednesday nominated by Gov. Draper as commissioner of state aid and pensions, vice Charles W. Hastings, retired. Everett C. Benton of Belmont was reappointed on the Metropolitan Park Commission.

The City Council Committee on Licenses met Thursday evening, and the Committee on Streets will meet tonight.

The submarine Salmon, which was launched at the Fore River March 12, is at Provincetown undergoing a series of builder's and government trials.

Considerable interest seems to be taken in the proposed Fourth of July celebration and the meeting at City Hall Saturday evening will be well attended.

In the superior court at Dedham this week Alfred Knights who was indicted by the grand jury for perjury in making oath to a false statement in a civil service application pleaded guilty and was placed on probation.

Although the street watering or oiling order is still pending before the City Council, the Commissioner has begun the work of sprinkling the streets named in the schedule. The paving on Hancock street is being treated with a special preparation, which will be used instead of water.

It is reported that the Assessors who are now at work in the Wollaston ward have found a large amount of new property this year. During the past year there has been a great building boom in this section, and the new realty amounts to many thousands of dollars. The assistant assessors who have been taking the list of polls have about completed their work.

ROW STIRRED UP IN ALASKA

President Removes a Marshal and District Attorney

HOT PROTESTS FORTHCOMING

Chief Executive Said to Have Acted at Behest of Guggenheim Interests—Borah Promises to Take Up Matter In Congress—Bitter and Flaming Controversy Over Removals Bound to Rage—Lodge Is Much Interested

Washington, April 29.—Daniel A. Sutherland, United States marshal at Juneau, Alaska, formerly of Salem, Mass., has been summarily removed from office by President Taft along with United States District Attorney John J. Boyce, on the recommendation of Governor Clark.

The case presented is full of mystery and suggestions and is greatly puzzling Senator Lodge, who is keeping the wires hot trying to learn the nature of the charges against Sutherland, and apparently getting a little further into the dark with each fresh bit of information. Herbert L. Faulkner of Newton, Mass., has been nominated to succeed Sutherland and John Rustgard as Boyce's successor, but the nominations will be held up by Senator Borah of Idaho, pending a better knowledge of the facts.

Sutherland is well known in Washington, where he has spent much time. He was appointed on the recommendation of Senator Lodge. Years ago he went to Alaska and there made a fortune. He is of irreproachable character and a man of ability, in the opinion of his friends here, who are astonished to learn that the charges are of incompetency in the conduct of his office.

The attorney general's office is pursuing its customary policy of concealing all but the outlines of the case, hence the only official information available alleges incompetency; charges that the marshal upheld the scandalous conduct of two of his deputies in certain assault cases against the protest of Governor Clark, and otherwise accuses the marshal and the district attorney of prostituting their offices for the benefit of certain private interests.

Partisans of the ex-officials in Juneau, Skagway, Hains, Kethipau and the southern section generally have already held meetings, and as a result it is stated that protest against the action of the department of justice will soon pour into Washington.

The surmise of the opposition here is that the removal of the two men is desired by the Guggenheim interests, for their activity in the prosecution of "prominent citizens" whom the interests wanted let alone.

The information that reaches Judge Wickersham, the Alaskan delegate, is that in the trial of the two men in whom the enemies of Boyce and Sutherland were interested, Sutherland was requested to "fix" the jury, but he declined to do this, and pushed the prosecution harder than ever. It is intimated from Alaskan sources that the attack upon Boyce and Sutherland is due to a lobby which has operated all winter in Washington, headed by a lawyer and of which ex-Governor Hoggatt is a member.

As long ago as Jan. 11, Sutherland wrote to Washington demanding that a special agent be sent to Alaska to investigate his official conduct and either condemn him or vindicate him, and thus leave him free to conduct his office properly. The charges of both sides are exceedingly serious and bitter and a flaming controversy over the removals is bound to rage.

The friends of Sutherland, while in ignorance of the actual charges against him, are mystified by the attorney general's intimation of his "utter incompetency." From his record in Alaska and from knowledge of his personal character, Sutherland was regarded as possessing ideal qualifications for a United States marshal.

Boston, April 29.—William H. Two others, Philip J. Hayes and Jacob Davis, who were arraigned with Curley on the same charge, were also found guilty. The crime is a state prison offense.

AN EXTRAORDINARY HONOR

King Albert Hunts Up Roosevelt and Takes Him to Palace

Brussels, April 29.—King Albert unexpectedly greeted Theodore Roosevelt here and paid him an extraordinary honor. The meeting between Roosevelt and the king occurred at the exposition, to which the ex-president was motored. The king learned of this and went there also.

King Albert appeared delighted to meet the man who has aroused all Europe to excitement. He insisted on taking Roosevelt along with him to the Laekin palace, on the outskirts of Brussels. The rest of the Roosevelt family remained at the hotel overnight.

The elite of Brussels had the opportunity to meet Roosevelt at a reception to which all the cabinet as well as many other distinguished government officials were invited. Kermit Roosevelt was invited to the palace for dinner last night. As the court is still in mourning for the late King Leopold the guests were compelled to appear in black.

FOUGHT POSSE FIVE HOURS

Boy Bandit Finally Kills Himself Rather Than Surrender

New York, April 29.—To prevent capture after a vicious attack on Miss Anna Kipp, the 17-year-old daughter of a bank cashier, Clarence Wood, 19 years old, of Rutherford, N. J., barricaded himself in the Rutherford Boat club and with a repeating rifle for five hours fought off a posse of police and deputy sheriffs.

With his stronghold surrounded and riddled with bullets, and surrender the only alternative, Wood ended the struggle by firing a bullet into his head, dying almost instantly.

During the fusillade Charles Smith, chief of police of Carlstadt, was shot three times and is reported dying. The girl was painfully, though not seriously hurt. During the fight 1500 persons were attracted to the scene.

SEVERE TEST FOR PAULHAN'S AIRSHIP

Aviator Had a Hard Battle Against Strong and Cold Wind

Manchester, April 29.—Cheered by 100,000 persons, Louis Paulhan, winner of the greatest air race in history, entrained for London. At the station he was carried on the shoulders of the crowd.

On examination it was found that his aeroplane, which was taken apart for shipment to London, was badly battered in the 186-mile flight to this city. The light framework was put to a severe test.

Graham White, the Englishman, who was beaten, was among the first to congratulate Paulhan. He telegraphed to the Frenchman:

"I take the earliest opportunity of offering you my heartiest congratulation on your splendid performance. The better man has won."

Paulhan, on his arrival here, told of a hard battle against the wind. When he landed in exactly the spot he had designated he was on the verge of collapse.

"I'm cold, but happy," he murmured. He was hurried by friends to a hotel, and after a short sleep appeared again fit and trim. The actual time of the flight was four hours and five minutes.

PUT UP STATE TICKET

There Are Just 410 Socialists In the Granite State

Manchester, N. H., April 29.—One person in every 1098 in New Hampshire is a regularly enrolled Socialist, according to figures presented by Louis Arnstein at the New Hampshire state convention of the Socialist party. Altogether there are 410 Socialists in the state.

The following ticket was nominated: For governor, Asa W. Drew of Ashland; for congressman, First district, A. J. Marvin of Exeter; Second district, Rev. R. A. Bateman of East Jaffrey.

A platform almost identical with that adopted recently by the Massachusetts branch of the party was adopted.

STOLE TO SUPPORT A MAN

Lynn Girl Who Robbed Her Father Is Placed on Probation

Lynn, Mass., April 29.—Jessie A. Taylor, 17 years old, who admitted she stole a gold watch and between $400 and $500 from her father to support the man she loved, was placed upon probation by Judge Lummus. She was sent to the Welcome Home at Boston.

The girl named the man and the police are searching for him. It is known that he has not worked since he met the girl.

EXPLOSION IN SCHOOLROOM

Leads to Discovery of Dangerous State of Affairs

PICKS CARTRIDGE WITH PEN

Boy Who Wanted to Discover Its Composition Finds Out When He Loses Thumb and Finger—Nearly Every Boy In His Class Found to Have Been Supplied With Similar Dangerous Dynamite Explosives

Somerville, Mass., April 29.—Investigation started by the explosion of a dynamite cartridge in a schoolroom in the Morse building revealed that practically every boy in the class had dynamite cartridges in his pockets, which had been given them by the son of a Somerville contractor, and which they had been carrying freely about in classrooms and at home, while some even had been sliding to bases in baseball games with their pockets filled with dangerous explosives.

The investigation, which was conducted by the school officials, started over the explosion of a cartridge which blew off the right thumb and forefinger of Harold Elwin, 13 years old, who had been trying to discover the exact composition of a dynamite cartridge by picking it with a pen.

Classes were being conducted by Mrs. Caroline Ball, the teacher, when the explosion came. Shrieks of pain from the boy, who had fallen bleeding to the floor, came almost simultaneously with the report, and in a moment boys and girls were rushing for the nearest doors. Mrs. Ball quieted them and then gave her attention to the boy as soon as she had prevented a panic.

Besides having both the thumb and finger completely severed from his hand, there were many cuts on his face, and his left eye and hand were badly burned and scarred by the powder.

Young Elwin was sent to the Somerville hospital in an ambulance. Doctors at first believed that recovery was doubtful, but he has since improved and the doctors said last night that he would probably soon be well except for the permanent disfigurement of his right hand.

It was supposed at first that Elwin had happened to find the cartridge which nearly cost him his life, but an examination of the pupils showed that practically all the boys in the class had been carrying cartridges about loosely in their pockets.

Young Elwin's father and mother are dead and he has been living at the home of J. S. Bennett.

MAN AND WIFE KILLED

Caught In Fire Which Destroys Manchester Odd Fellows' Building

Manchester, N. H., April 29.—Janitor George E. Putney and his wife were burned to death in a fire that completely destroyed the Odd Fellows' building, a five-story structure. The loss is over $100,000.

A gale blew sparks in every direction. The entire fire department of the city, an engine from the Amoskeag works and an engine and hose wagon from Concord, which came here on a special train, fought the flames. Six firemen received minor injuries.

The fire started when a pot of fat boiled over in the kitchen of a bakery in the basement of the building.

MUST HAVE COMPLETE REST

Gardner to Leave Washington For His Home In Massachusetts

Washington, April 9.—Representative Augustus P. Gardner of Massachusetts will close his home and office in Washington next Tuesday and return to his home in Hamilton, where he will remain permanently.

Mr. Gardner, because of a slight affection of the heart, has been compelled to take extraordinary care of himself the last few years. During the exciting fight to reorganize the rules committee, he suffered a severe strain and since has spent most of the time in the south.

Charlie Taft Gets a Ducking

Waterbury, Conn., April 29.—"Charlie" Taft, son of the president, who is a pupil at the Taft school here, was dumped into the river during the hazing of the upper class men. "Charlie" was kept floundering in the water until he was thoroughly soaked, while his captors danced with great glee on the bank.

AT THE BOSTON THEATRES

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Aside from the fact that Mr. Keith is playing at his Boston theatre a number of unusually important headline features such as Mrs. Patrick Campbell; Gertrude Hoffmann; Denman Thompson; and others who have made the season a memorable one, the bills have really been noteworthy for the excellence of the all round vaudeville and it is remarkable that during the entire season not more than two or three acts have been repeated and these only because of the great demand for them on the part of the public. The principal feature of the show for the coming week is not yet announced, but the surrounding bill is one that in itself would attract attention. It will include Mary Norman, when whom there is no more accomplished society entertainer in America and Tom Waters, a newcomer whose piano solos and songs have been making a tremendous hit in other cities.

BOSTON THEATRE.

A glorious welcome was given to Joseph M. Gaites' musical comedy offering, "The Twins," which on last Monday night came back to Boston beginning the second engagement of the season at the Boston theatre where last fall it gained such a huge measure of success during its first presentation in this city. Since the departure of this production from this vicinity it has been overwhelmingly successful in its tour of the larger cities of the east increasing its records for big business in the many theatres visited. The company is the same that came here originally and that played an entire year on Broadway. The chorus is as large as ever and as pretty and dances and sings with vim and effect. Of the musical numbers, "The Goodnight Serenade," "The Hypnotic Dance," "The Fifth Avenue Brigade," "Cuddle Closer" "The Yama Yama Man" and "The Girl Up There" receive dozens of encores. Matinees are being given on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

It was in "The County Fair" that Neil Burgess made his greatest success as a female impersonator, and John Craig may be expected to make no less a hit with that play when he produces it at the Castle Square next Monday. "The County Fair" is the work of Charles Barnard, a well known journalist and writer of books and into it he has put an ingenius plot and a collection of quaint and eccentric rural New England characters. The first act shows the interior of Aunt Abby's home in winter, with every detail minutely and realistically carried out, while the acts that follow show the exterior of the farmhouse, the third act the interior of a barn, and the fourth the county fair that gives the play its name, with the famous horse-race scene.

In Mr. Craig's production of "The County Fair," the role of Aunt Abby will be played by Donald Meek, than whom there is no more versatile comedian known to Boston theatregoers. Aunt Abby is an old maid, sharp of tongue and shrewd of speech, and with the kind and generous heart that is possessed by many other sort in rural New England. The play itself is homely and entertaining, it is wholesome and pure throughout, and it gives opportunity for amusing acting on the part of every member of the John Craig Stock Company. Not the least amusing episode is the courting of Aunt Abby by Otis Tucker the most bashful of lovers.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

Next week wil lmark the return to the American Music hall of that greatest of all portrayers of feminine characters, Julian Eltinge. Mr. Eltinge, as everybody knows, is a Boston boy who has won a success on the vaudeville stage second only to that of the great Harry Lauder. Critics the country over have pronounced Mr. Eltinge a master in his line and absolutely incapable of being improved upon. During his engagement he will offer an entirely new program. He will make use of new songs and new costumes many of the latter being sufficient to excite the envy of any woman. Another act which will quickly launch into favor is that of Emmet Devoy & Company presenting a screamingly funny farce "The Saintly Mr. Billings." As an actor, Mr. Devoy has long since been recognized among the leaders of the profession. His supoprting company will be thoroughly capable. The announcement that Al Fields and Dave Lewis will be held over for another week will please every theatregoer who is fond of a good hearty laugh. This pair of comedians are a scream from they enter the stage until their exit. They handle a bunch of nonsense which in the hands of other artists would prove far less effective.

If you want a hard case there is the case of a man who late at night bought a bottle of whisky at a public house—price, 3s. 6d.—says the London Globe. He handed over a five pound note, and the publican would not change it. "All right," said the customer. "Give me the whisky and 16s. 6d. and keep my five pound note." Next morning the customer came in, planked down four sovereigns and said, "Give me back my five pound note and we shall be straight." The publican and the sinner looked at each other. Can you tell at a glance which got the better of the bargain when the customer went away with his five pound note in his pocket?

The question puzzled a whole office full of literary, financial, sporting, philosophical and editorial men—until it reached a girl of eighteen who is engaged in dealing with cash. All the rest were calculating on paper and reaching the result by devious ways. The cash girl saw it in a flash of the eye. Do you? Shut your eyes and do it in five seconds if you wish to beat the cash girl.

Holland.

Holland, known as North and South Holland, forms part of the northern part of the Netherlands. These provinces are composed of land rescued from the sea and defended by immense dikes. Holland was inhabited by the Batvi in the time of Caesar, who made a league with them. It became part of Gallia Belgica and afterward of the kingdom of Austria. From the tenth to the fifteenth century it was governed by counts under the German emperors. Holland was at one time a Dutch republic. It was created a kingdom in 1806, and Louis Bonaparte, father of Napoleon III., was declared king.

Not Troubled.

Irate Tenant—I asked you when I rented this place if you had ever been troubled by chicken thieves, and you said no. Every one of my chickens was stolen last night, and I am told that the neighborhood has been infested with chicken thieves for years. Suburban Agent—I never keep chickens.

No Teadying.

Among the good old ways of "merrie England" is the tendency to democracy prevailing in her boys' schools. Parents can be assured, it is said, that no pampering will fall to the lot of their sons, however exalted may be their rank or great their possessions. An English paper tells the story of an Indian official of high rank calling upon the house master in a famous public school, where a young prince, son of a rajah, was being educated. This official brought a special message from his master, the rajah, to the effect that he wanted no favors or exceptional treatment of any sort extended to his son on account of his exalted birth.

"You may set the mind of the rajah at rest on that score," said the house master, struggling to keep back his smile before the dignified anxiety of the Indian official. "If the authorities were inclined to discriminate in the prince's favor, the boys of the school would set the matter right. Among them generally the rajah's son answers to the name of 'Nigger,' and I understand that with his intimates he is familiarly known as 'Coal Scuttle.'"

The Battle of Chalons.

There have been so many bloody battles it is perhaps impossible to say with absolute certainty which of them all was the bloodiest, but the balance of the evidence seems to be in favor of the battle of Chalons, France, fought A. D. 451 between the Huns, under Attila, and the Romans, Goths and Franks, under the command of Aetius, the most renowned captain of his day. At the head of his 500,000 of savages Attila was having everything his own way, and it looked as if Aryan civilization was destined to fall before the Tartar despotism, when suddenly, like the bolt out of the blue, Aetius fell upon the barbaric hordes and Europe was saved. It is estimated that 400,000 of the barbarians were left dead on the field.

A Narrow Escape.

"What! You a widow, dear cousin?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's a lucky escape for me. Do you know, I nearly married you once."—Bon Vivant.

Your Boy

No stimulation. No alcohol habit. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a tonic for the young. J.C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a strong tonic, entirely free from alcohol.

WIDOW IS PROSTRATED

Scandal Connected With Smith's Death Greatly Shocks Town of Lee

Lee, Mass., April 29.—On every street corner little groups of citizens discuss the sudden death in a boarding house in New York's West Side of Wellington Smith, Lee's most prominent citizen.

Mrs. Smith is prostrated with grief over the death and the disclosure that her husband was accompanied by another woman at the time of his passing away, and is confined to her bed. The news was a distinct shock to the town, in which he was a friend to everyone.

Besides being the leading citizen of the town at whose town meetings he had for years acted as moderator, Smith was also well connected with Lenox society. He entertained lavishly and was a consistent contributor to all good causes that came to his attention.

The funeral will be private. All the stores in the town are to close for the day, as will the mills of the Smith Paper company, of which he was president.

BOOM FOR LONGWORTH

"The Man Who Could Defeat Harmon" Is the Word From Ohio

Washington, April 29.—The boom for Nicholas Longworth as the Republican nominee for governor of Ohio is looming up large. That was the news brought from Ohio by Representative Taylor of the Columbus district.

"There is a strong sentiment in my district and other parts of the state for Mr. Longworth," said Taylor. "The newspapers are taking the matter up and commending him as the man who could most likely defeat Governor Harmon, who will receive the Democratic nomination. Mr. Longworth is from Hamilton county, the home of Governor Harmon, and could carry that county."

According to information, the Longworth boom is proceeding without the sanction of the Cincinnati representative. Unless he definitely puts a quietus to the talk, though, the popular demand for him may force him into the campaign.

MILK FARMERS GAIN A PARTIAL VICTORY

One Contractor to Pay Winter Prices Two Months More

Boston, April 29.—H. P. Hood & Sons, one of the three big contractors who control the milk distribution of Boston, have conceded in part the demands of the farmers. They decided to give the winter price for milk, 33½ cents, for the months of May and June.

In this the Hood people have broken with the other big milk contractors, who are insisting on 25½ cents a can for the summer months. This concession has caused the farmers and producers to insist on the winter price for the entire summer.

The business relations existing between D. Whiting & Sons and C. Brigham company and the Hood people are such that a concession on the part of one would be very sure to be conceded by the others.

WESTON FALLS BEHIND

Bad Ankle Causes Him Trouble as He Nears Journey's End

Hudson, N. Y., April 29.—Sustained by his indomitable nerve, Edward P. Weston succeeded in covering twenty-four miles yesterday in spite of a strained and bruised ankle which caused him to limp noticeably.

He has given up all hope of reaching New York on Saturday, but will enter that city some time Monday afternoon, fifteen actual and thirteen walking days ahead of his schedule.

Although vast crowds have greeted him on every hand Weston complains that he is in a heartless country. The malefactors of great wealth who ride joyously and carelessly in automobiles are the persons who have aroused his ire.

OPERATIVES TO DECIDE

Two Wage Schedules Submitted to Fall River Mill Workers

Fall River, Mass., April 29.—The Textile Council has voted to refer to the five subsidiary unions the wage agreement submitted by the manufacturers and also the agreement drawn up by the council and rejected by the manufacturers recently. The unions are to indicate which agreement they prefer.

Neither of the new agreements suggested would reduce the wages of the operatives at present. The council schedule, however, offers more opportunity for an advance as the margin fluctuates, its advocates say.

JOHN W. KERN

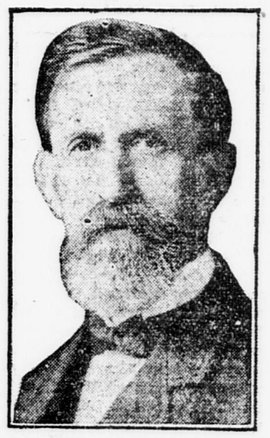
Was Bryan's Running Mate In Last Presidential Campaign

KERN AGAINST BEVERIDGE

Nominated For Senator by Democrats of Hoosier State

MARSHALL PLAN SUCCESSFUL

Bryan's Former Running Mate Wins Contest After Lamb Withdraws—Latter Scores Taggart, Who Also Sought Senatorial Honors—Resolutions Declare Payne-Aldrich Tariff a Masterpiece of Injustice



Indianapolis, April 29.—John W. Kern, Bryan's running mate, was nominated for senator by the Democratic state convention.

Kern won on the third ballot, defeating Tom Taggart after one of the most exciting battles in the state's history. Kern's victory came when another opponent, John E. Lamb, withdrew. Kern got 995 votes on the last ballot. He will oppose Senator Beveridge, insurgent Republican, who is seeking re-election.

The convention began voting on a candidate after half an hour devoted to the wildest scenes ever witnessed on any convention floor in the history of Indiana.

With the announcement of the defeat of Taggart and the victory for the Marshall plan of senatorial nomination, Governor Marshall was greeted with a tremendous ovation.

Governor Marshall's proposition providing for the endorsement of a United States senatorial candidate by the state convention was carried by a vote of 888 to 858.

J. E. McCullough was the first to open the forty-five minutes' debate allotted to each side. He spoke affirmatively for the Marshall plan.

John E. Lamb threw the convention into an uproar of cheers, hissing and catcalls when he launched into scathing denunciation of Taggartism and the domination of Crawford Fairbanks, the "multi-millionaire brewer."

Great disorder reigned, and for five minutes Lamb was not permitted to proceed and then only by jerks, each utterance being interrupted by cheers from supporters and hisses from the Taggart faction. Cries of "Taggart, Taggart!" were loud and prolonged.

Lamb declared "he had no personal quarrel with Taggart, but was personally opposed to Taggartism in Indiana." The conclusion of his sentence was drowned in another uproar of mingled cheers, hisses and jeers.

The resolutions adopted denounce the Payne-Aldrich bill as a masterpiece of injustice, involving remorseless exactions from the many to enrich the few; favor taxation for public purposes only. They condemn the cowardice of the Republican party in Indiana, which commends Taft, approves the Payne-Aldrich tariff act, and in the same resolutions approves Beveridge, who voted against it.

The report favors an income tax; it condemns the ship subsidy bill and indiscriminate use of injunctions; it commends Senator Shively and Governor Marshall.

HYDE'S BOND REVOKED

Doctor Stays In Prison Until Acquitted or Court Allows New Bond

Kansas City, April 29.—Owing to the evidence lately presented in the trial of Dr. Hyde for the murder by poison of Thomas H. Swope, Hyde's bond of $100,000 was revoked and the physician was placed in jail by order of Judge Latshaw.

Hyde must remain in prison until he is declared innocent by a jury, or is permitted by the court to furnish a new bond.

Stolen Kisses Appraised at $5 Each

Boston, April 29.—Kisses in Charlestown, if obtained against the express desire of the kissee, cost $5 per. That was the tariff imposed by Judge Bragg in the district court when he fined Joseph McGachie $10 for kissing Miss Elizabeth Harrower twice against her will.

KICKS A MAN TO DEATH

Crazed Racing Mare Creates Havoc In the Streets of Hartford

Hartford, April 29.—Sheldon Simpson was kicked to death by Grace Larraby, a famous racing mare, which ran amuck through the suburbs and business centre of Hartford, leaving a trail of injured people and damaged property, while thousands of terror-stricken people fled into strange houses and into stores to escape the frightened animal.

Simpson was 58 years old and a night watchman at a local bank. The mare, crazed with fright after running several miles, crashed into him and kicked him savagely as he fell to the ground. He died from concussion of the brain.

WOMEN HAVE RIGHT TO ROB HUSBANDS

That Is If Money Can Be Obtained In No Other Way

Chicago, April 29.—A wife has a right to rob her husband, according to a decision of Judge Gemmell in the municipal court. Gustave H. DeKolkey had his wife arrested for taking his money by force.

"She got a boarder and her brother to help hold me. Then she went through my pockets and got $11."

Mrs. DeKolkey admitted that she robbed her husband. "There was no other way to get money out of him," she said. "He hasn't given me a cent for over a year, so I decided to rob him. I called my brother and we held him and I got what was in his pockets."

"This is a plain case of robbery, but it was perfectly justifiable under the circumstances," said the court. "The defendant is discharged. A wife has the right to hold up her husband when he squanders his wages and does not give her enough for her support."

NEGRO DESERTED WIFE

Is Arrested With Young White Girl With Whim He Eloped

Rochester, N. Y., April 29.—Daniel Linzey, a negro, aged 40, and Bessie Bristol, aged 18, white, who eloped from Brattleboro, Vt., were arrested here.

Linzey deserted his wife to flee with the girl, who is a daughter of a prominent merchant in Brattleboro. She is infatuated with him and says he has married her. They were traced here from Buffalo.

Sinister Motives.

Two men—William Jones and John Smith—were neighbors and deadly enemies. They often crossed swords in court and out of it, and Jones, being what might be called more clever than Smith, invariably got the better of the encounter. In the end so cowed was Smith that the slightest move on the part of Jones made him nervous and suspicious, and with the remark, "I wonder what object he has in this?" he called up all his reserve faculties to combat the fresh attack which poor Jones never contemplated.

One day a friend called on Smith and greeted him with:

"Well, old man, have you heard the news?"

"No," said Smith. "What news?"

"Jones is dead. He died last night at midnight," replied the other.

Smith paused, drew a hard breath, raised his hand to his forehead and thought, then blurted out:

"Dead, did you say—Jones dead? Great heavens! I wonder what object he has in this?"

His Emancipation.

Away back in 1771 Josiah Woodbury of Beverly, Mass., thus published his happy emancipation from matrimonial woes:

Beverly, Sept. 16, 1771.

Ran away from Josiah Woodbury, cooper, his house plague for seven long years, Masury Old Moll, alias Trial of Vengeance. He that lost will never seek her; he that shall keep her I will give two Bushel of Beans. I forewarn all Persons in Town or County from trusting said Trial of Vengeance. I have hove all the old (shoe) I can find for joy, and all my neighbors rejoice with me. A good Riddance of bad Ware. Amen!

Living pictures tonight at Alpha hall.

The large tree in front of the market of Berry Bros. has been removed.

The Men's club of Bethany church will elect officers Monday evening, and other important business is anticipated.

Great interest is being shown in the breach of promise case which is to be tried at Atlantic Music hall May 12.

Some of the Quincy census enumerators have already completed their calls and all are expected to finish Saturday night.

A meeting of the Managers of the Woodward Fund and Property was held in the office of Mayor Shea this morning. Some loans were approved.

Senator Hultman and the other members of the State Senate were the guests on Thursday night of President A. T. Treadway at the Boston City Club.

H. G. Pratt of Edwards street has not forgotten how to do a good piece of carpenter work, and is now building a large piazza at one of his houses on Bigelow street.

Mr. and Mrs. William V. Hayward of Chestnut street started early this morning behind a spirited horse to visit Mr. Hayward's brother at Scituate. He said few automobiles would be able to pass him on the road.

The annual sale of May baskets, candies, etc., held at the Memorial Congregational church, Thursday afternoon, proved as great an attraction as usual to the little people. Quite a sum was realized as a result of the ladies' work.

Ninety degree temperature may be expected some day in May. It has been recorded three times in May in fourteen years: May 27, 1908 the mercury touched 90, also on May 19, 1903, and May 15, 1900. High mark for May is 93 on May 10, 1896. One year however there was no 80 degree days in May.

The indications are that there will be a large audience tonight for the Living picture entertainment at Alpha hall. A great deal of time and thought has been given these pictures and those attending the rehearals say that they are very artistic and beautiful. The pictures will be introduced by Williams Ward Whitcher with Emery L. Crane as stage manager. The chorous singing will also give pleasure for the music of "The Chimes of Normundy" is always delightful. The entertainment is for the benefit of vacation schools. etc.

Wrecked Auto Remains Near Railroad Tracks

It now seems that Frank Bruce, the Marathon runner, was not on the auto truck of Abbott & Miller when it was struck by the train at Pope's Hill Wednesday noon. On the day of the accident he was reported as being one of the men on the team, and it was said at the office of Abbott & Miller that he had gone on the truck. It is said now, however, that he was not on the team. Foy, one of the men who escaped serious injury by jumping, says that there were but two besides himself on the rear of the truck Hughes and White.

At the office of Abbott & Miller this noon, it was learned that Burgess was still confined to his home, and would be for a week or two. That he was badly shaken up and bruised and sore from the effects of the accident. Bean and Foy have practically recovered from the effects of the accident.

The smashed auto is still near the railroad tracks at Popes Hill where it landed after being struck, a silent witness to the accident. No attempt has been made to move it, and none will until the responsibility for the accident has been placed. As far as Abbott & Miller are concerned they have ceased doing anything about the matter, as the case is now up to the insurance company to settle.

WEST QUINCY CASES.

Practically an all-day session of the district court is being held today, trying out the cases of the Italians concerned in the mix-up at West Quincy on Sunday night, when Officer Curtin had his thumb bitten by one of the men. The government had a large number of witnesses, and three lawyers represented the defendants. Donato Marini is charged with drunkenness and assault, Gussippe La Pertra with drunkenness and disturbing the peace, and Donato Salvicci and Donato Salucci with assault.

Two Smart Actors.

In a popular historic drama the actor who takes the part of Napoleon is required to read aloud a document of considerable length which is brought to him by General Berthier. This, being written at length, is seldom committed to memory. A short time ago, however, the property master at an English theater mislaid the document, and Napoleon, who was new to the part, received instead a blank sheet of paper. For a moment he was aghast; then, eager to escape from his predicament even at the expense of a fellow actor, he handed the paper to General Berthier, saying, "Read it to me."

The other actor was not in the least confused. "Your majesty," he said, handing it back, "I am only a poor soldier of fortune, and you must excuse me. I do not know how to read!"

A Master Tactician.

"Why," expostulated the lady in the brown dress when the artist who had painted a portrait of her little daughter said the price of the picture was $100, "you charged Mrs. Crawford only $68 for the picture you painted of her Lucy."

"I am aware of that fact, my dear madam," the suave and politic artist hastened to explain, "but you must consider the great difference in the costs of the paints used for the hair of the two children. The scant, drab colored hair of the Crawford child required just a touch of the cheapest kind of pigment, but the wonderfully beautiful and luxuriant curls of your lovely daughter required a large quantity of the best paints on the market."

Then the lady in the brown dress smiled, took out her purse and begged the artist's pardon for having spoken rudely to him.—Chicago News.

RUBE'S SPORTING CHAT

It is a safe bet that the baseball players of Weymouth High school will scratch "Rice" from their bill of fare hereafter. The reason is that it reminds them of the defeat at the hands of Quincy High.

* * *

There are many in our midst who are still talking about the wonderful performance of the handtub Hancock of Brockton, which threw a stream of 263 ft., 8 1-2 in, on April 19, at Highland park. Oh! for the return of this sport to Quincy.

* * *

There are three games scheduled tomorrow that should stir up the local baseball enthusiasts. The Makarias play the Boston Y. M. C. A. nine at Merrymount park, while the Fore River Apprentices tackle the Mohawk Athletic club representatives at Ward Three playground, South Quincy. While these teams are battling, the strong Bigelows will cross bats with the North Cambridge lads. Take your pick but attend one, anyway.

* * *

Frank Bruce, the Marathon runner, dropped in to see me this morning and informed me that he was not on the automobile that was struck at Popes Hill, Wednesday afternoon. He also states he was engaged in a game of baseball at the time, on Canal street. and cannot understand how his name got linked with the sad affair.

* * *

I got a tip yesterday morning that our ever popular Mayor was learning the mysteries of curve pitching so as to toss over a few "foolers" on Memorial Day at the opening of the league season. When I informed Mayor Shea of this he strenuously denied that such was the case. As I cannot prove it I must await the arrival of the opening but in the meantime I am going to keep my ears open for more news.

* * *

President Jerome F. Murphy of the Old Colony baseball league informed me over the phone this morning that "Bill" McCarthy had practically decided to drop out of baseball entirely this season, and will return his franchise at the league meeting on Sunday. He also states Lincoln wants to get into this league badly and will pay any reasonable amount for Taunton's franchise. As Lincoln is so far out of the way for the other clubs I fail to see where we would gain much by admitting them. It looks as though the schedule will again be held up on Sunday for it is impossible to draw up a schedule unless there are six clubs already to put their shoulder to the wheel and push. It is indeed discouraging to learn this, but there may be something unexpected turn up before the meeting. I hope so, anyway.

"Rube."

GAME TOMORROW.

Makaria will line up against the strong Boston Y. M. C. A. team at Merrymount park Saturday at 3 P. M. Batters for Makaria—Bates and Michael with Troupe catching; for Boston—Benson and Bear will do the heavy work. "Red Moorehouse" of South Quincy will officiate as Umpire.

TRIANGULAR ATHLETIC MEET.

At a meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening a committee from the Mohawk Athletic Club and the Fore River Apprentices met with the physical director. The Mohawk club men were very anxious to enter into such a meet as had been planned, and everything seemed fine until it was stated that Mr. Neary did not favor a meet so early in the season, stating that there were several crack school boy stars about Boston who will enter the employ of the Fore River Co., at the close of the school season.

The Y. M. C. A. athletic committee suggested a tryout meet to take place May 28, and are willing as are the Mohawk club to run bonified members. They did not think for a moment of getting in crack athletes before entering into the affair. The idea was to hold a friendly athletic meet to draw out new men. Mr. Trask, the newly elected athletic manager of the Mohawks, had planned a ten-mile invitation race as a special attraction.

GRAMMAR LEAGUE.

Two games in the grammar school league were played Thursday afternoon resulting as follows:

Cranch, 7; Massachusetts Fields 3.
Wollaston, 16; Adams 6.

This afternoon two of the postponed games will be played. Namely that between Cranch and Gridley Bryant, and between the Massachusetts Fields and Washington.

QUINCY HIGH VICTORY

Score With Weymouth was Seven to Three

Quincy High baseball team was victorious in the game Thursday afternoon with Weymouth High, winning by a score of 7 to 3.

For a number of years there has been a bit of rivalry between the schools. Reports of the good playing of the Weymouth team had spread to the school so the result of this game was awaited with much interest and a sharp struggle was expected. Weymouth indeed put up a good game but was unable to keep up to the pace set by the home nine.

Quincy's battery, Harold Chapman and Phil Rice, worked well together. Rice from the start sent the ball over the plate in a way that often puzzled the visitors and tempted them to strike for the ball but not the sphere itself. His tryout of a drop worked successfully. This pitcher is improving in every game. Nine strike-outs is good work for any twirler. He is also strong in batting.

Harold Chapman who completes the battery knows a thing or two about catching and few of the balls pass him. Murphy at first is the man for the place. He is quick and sure. Mel Chapman and Bily Manning exchanged places. In the previous games they have been at short stop and second base respectively, but Mel covered second and Billy Manning took to short stop work without any trouble. The "little midget" is versatile enough to go into almost any position on the diamond and do credit to the school. Capt. Russ Bates at third can handle any player who is lucky enough to reach third. O'Connor, the right fielder, although few flies came his way, batted well when he was at the plate. Allen and Barry fielded in a fine manner, and showed they had not forgotten how to use the stick when their turn came, securing three of the seven runs scored.

As to the visitors Wall did some pretty work at the bat. It is said he was the catcher of the Deweys last season. Humphrey at third and Alvord in the field helped make up a fast triumvirate. Cate pitched well but did not seem to come near Rice in skill.

There were quite a few close situations during the innings, but Quincy usually seemed to come out on top. Some clever double plays were worked by Rice and Bates, M. Chapfan to Murphy, and Loud to Dyer. The Quincy men were ever ready to steal bases, and a number were stolen successfully, although once or twice they got caught.

While it was almost a certain victory for Quincy from the start, it was a good game.

FIRST SACKERS IN GREAT DEMAND

Several Big Teams Hot After Crack Initial Bag Holder.

PITTSBURG COULD USE ONE

Pirates Seem to Be Up Against It For Man Who Answers All Requirements—Chicago White Sox and Boston Nationals Are In Same Boat.

Good first basemen have the call this season. Several major league teams are all to the bad without them, and you can't extract one of the live ones from his present employers for any money. Among the clubs that need a first bagger are New York and Pittsburg, and there are others.

While the New Yorks have two professional first basemen and some eager young subs, the team is nevertheless up against it proper. Fred Tenney, once one of the greatest players that ever drew on the first bagman's glove, is about through. Merkle has been subbing on the station for two years or so, but he has not even yet shown that he classes with the masters of the job.

Brooklyn has big Tim Jordan, who is all O. K. when right, but his knees are bothering him. Still, the Superbas have a good minor leaguer named Daubert. Daub, old hoss, is not a chicken, having first based for many years, but he is said to have the goods and to be ready to deliver them.

The Boston Nationals don't eve know yet just what they will do for a first baseman and are crying aloud for one. They need a lot of other players on that Boston team, but they surely do need a first bagger.

The erudite and foxy leader Frank Chance of Chicago isn't shy on first basemen, though. He is all there himself, of course.

Cincinnati is all right. Dick Hoblitzell is the real walloping kid and can play the base besides. Philadelphia is fairly well off with Bransfield.

The champion Pirates are in trouble. They fired their first bagger, and now they don't know whether Flynn, the man they are trying out, will do or will prove a flivver. The St. Louis Nationals are all to the good, for Eddie Konetchy is a star both on the bag and at whanging the leather on the heavy pedal.

The New York Americans are all right, for Hal Chase is right in the zenith of his playing powers.

Boston's Red Sox are well off with Jake Stahl. The big boy can cover the bag superbly and seems to be getting better all the time as a slugger. Connie Mack still relies on Harry Davis, a most artistic and capable player, but one who is beginning to grow old.

McAleer, at Washington, is perplexed. Bob Unglaub is a pretty good first baseman, but is also useful in other places, and Jimmy would be delighted to land a fresh and ambitious juvenile.

Comiskey's two great first basemen, Isbell and Donohue, are both gone now, and he is trying to train a new star from a bunch of candidates, with only problematical success. At Cleveland McGuire, although owning a good first baseman, Stovall, has put Lajoie on the base so that Turner can work on second.

The champion Detroit Tigers are worried, inasmuch as Tom Jones is slowing up and getting a little listless. Jennings would be glad to hear from a lively kid with first base ability.

St. Louis will try a National league discard, Abstein, and may make good with him—or may fail. O'Connor wouldn't mind having a sturdy youngster in reserve.

Great chances for young first basemen these days if there were only a few such to be found.

—What wonder that grocers have to charge more for goods now than they did 20 years ago, leaving out of consideration the fact that wholesale prices are higher. Several Mansfield grocers have from $1,000 to $2,000 tied up in horses, harness and wagons; wages are higher; they must have expensive show cases; improved scales and grinding machines; must advertise extensively else a competitor will outrun them; must carry a wide assortment; must necessarily do considerable credit business. All things considered, the groceryman must do a large and conservative business before he has any profits. Don't blame the cost of high living on him. He would gladly reduce prices, but he must live.—Mansfield News.

Foreign, Ancient and Modern Pictures Shown

Society turned out in large numbers last evening to witness the living pictures shown at Alpha hall. The entertainment was a unique one and was given under the auspices of the Educational committee of the Quincy Womens club for the benefit of the summer school. The hall was none too large to accommodate the number who desired to attend, and seats were at a premium. That the entertainment was appreciated was shown by the well deserved applause that was accorded each number.

Emery L. Crane had charge of the stage arrangements and the pictures shown were arranged by Mrs. Henry Hudson Kitson and Miss Georgiana C. Lane. Most of the costumes worn by the posers were loaned by Mrs. Kitson, while the Egyptian and Greek costumes were loaned by Miss Clara Thayer. While the audience was arriving music was furnished by an orchestra, and there was music during the exhibition of the several pictures.

The pictures shown were:

Egyptians, Miss Day, Miss Fay and Miss Lacey.

Greeks—Misses Brown, Miss Sprague and Miss N. Lacey.

Barbarians—Miss Lovejoy, Mr. Grasdick.

St. Bernard Monk and dog by Mr. Kitson.

Flemish—Mr. Breslyn, Miss Bass.

Tenth Century Court, Mr. Loring and Miss Saville.

Puritan—Mr. Page and Miss R. Bass.

Continental—Mr. King, Miss C. Saville.

Nicodeon—Mr. Elwell and Miss Ward.

Dutch—Mr. Ryder, Mr. Mager, Miss Kitson and Miss Davis.

Roumanian—Mr. Saville and Miss Packard.

Scottish—Mrs. Homer.

Japanese—Mrs. Evans, Miss E. Lovejoy.

Modern—Mr. Wetherell, Mrs. Wetherell.

In addition to the several pictures shown there were two dances by Miss Grace Adams Richardson. The first number was the Frost dance and the second the Persian dance. There was also an exhibition of dancing by the Saturday gymnasium class who gave the Beauty dance, and a fencing bout between William MacPherson of Newton and C. M. Gifford of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. Four bouts were given, and at the conclusion Mr. Whitcher the referee awarded the match to Mr. McPherson.

The closing number was selections by the chorus of the Knights of Columbus club, who recently presented the Chimes of Normandy. Their number was the finale from Act. 1, and included a quintet "He's looking somewhat pale." by Miss Mary R. Lyons, Miss Helen Gavin, Edward Sullivan, Marcus Mahon and Dr. J. P. Thayer; a chorus by the maids and men servants "Come farmer Small "and the "Silent Heroes" chorus with Edward Sullivan as soloist.

Of the pictures shown too much can not be said in praise. The pose was perfect and the costumes correct in every particular, and it would have required but a little stretch of imagination to have believed that they were oil paintings.

The ushers for the evening were from the girls club, and included Miss Rebecca Warshaw, Miss Mary Birnie, Miss Helen Lincoln, Miss Robena Hall and Miss Cora Barnes.

The members of the Educational committee under whose direction the entertainment was given were: Mrs. John D. Mackay, Mrs. George L. Badger, Mrs. Stanley Bone, Mrs. Charles M. Bryant, Mrs. William Cummings, Mrs. Percy Holman, Mrs. H. H. Kitson, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Mrs. James M. Nowland, Mrs. Albert M. Parker, Miss Helen O'Rielly, Mrs. Charles R. Safford, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Miss Eliza Sheahan, Miss Clara Thayer and Miss Clara Thompson.

EVIDENCE ALL IN

Judge Avery Con'inues Egan Case for Judgment

The continued case of Conductor Robert J. Egan charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Rosco E. Hunt at Quincy came up in the district court this morning, but no verdict was reached.

The first witness was Miss Helma Mattson of 10 Hillside street, Quincy. She testified that she boarded Egan's car at Beach street at 4.15. She saw the two men one, of whom was Rollins, the companion of Hunt. When car reached Quincy she got off and went to the sidewalk. Saw the three men in front of the car. The starter, conductor and Hunt. Hunt spoke to the conductor. The conductor then started toward sidewalk. Hunt went after him and gave conductor a kick. Was sure Hunt kicked Egan in the back. Then saw Egan turn round and thought he gave the old man, a kick. Hunt fell. Think he fell across the track, but was not sure. Then saw them take him into the hotel.

Cross examined witness said, in the car she sat near the back door. The two men were on rear platform. Saw old fellow Hunt push the conductor, who told him to behave himself. The old man was talking all the time. The men stood there when he got off the car. Did not hear the conductor make any reply to Hunt when the latter spoke to him just before he kicked the conductor. The conductor turned quick and Hunt went down. The conductor was walking away when Hunt kicked him.

Albert L. Taber said: Boarded the Egan car at Beale and Beach streets. Did not notice Hunt or Rollins. There were persons on the rear platform. Got off forward end of car and went to the sidewalk and purchased a paper, and then started for home across the tracks in front of the car. First saw Egan and Rollins talking. Egan started to go toward the sidewalk. As he turned Hunt ran after him and attempted to kick him. Did not see the kick land. Egan was two feet away from Hunt. Egan then turned round and struck Hunt with his closed hand on the jaw. Hunt then fell over backwards and struck on the back of his head. His head struck the paving stone. No additional facts were brought out in the cross examination.

Charles H. Austin, the starter, testified: When the car arrived Egan reported that he had two drunks on the car and they had been creating a disturbance and were employes of the road. He pointed them out to me. Talked with Rollins. Saw Hunt start toward Egan, who was going toward the sidewalk. After Egan passed, Hunt raised his foot and kicked him. Egan turned and struck Hunt a glancing blow. Hunt went down in a sitting position, and then fell over and struck his head on a flagstone. Was within three feet of Hunt when the kick was made. Was positive the kick landed over the left hip.

Cross examined: Knew that Egan had been away from work on account of ill health.

Chief of Police Burrell testified: Was at the police station when Hunt was brought in at 5 o'clock. Booked Hunt for drunkenness. The Chief read the records of booking as given by Hunt when he was booked. Was searched by George A. McKay. He told of the articles found in the bag, one of which was a half pint whiskey bottle partly full. Also that a full half pint of whiskey was taken from his person. He was put in number one cell. The Chief visited the cell room several times, and Hunt was talking all the time. He complained of his foot. As a result of what he learned at the autopsy, Egan was arrested.

Cross examined: Chief said Hunt struggled when placed in the cell. He was conscious to his personal knowledge up to 6.45. He rattled the door and kept shouting "Open the door." "Let me out." Had known Egan personally since 1903. Had seen him many times. His reputation as a peaceful citizen was the best.

This closed the government case.

Robert J. Egan, the defendant, was the first witness for the government. He testified he was married and had a wife and three children. Had been employed by street railway for nine years. During the past winter had a sore back caused by a strain the result of a fall a year ago, and again on Christmas he injured it again while jacking up a car. Was treated at the Hospital seven or eight times. The X ray was used on his spine, and he wore a plaster cast, and now wore a belt. His back still troubled him. On the day in question his attention was first called to the men earlier in the day when they boarded his car for Neponset. The men came back at 4 o'clock from Neponset. They rode on teh rear platform and took up much room. Asked Hunt to move the suit case so could have more room. Rollius made all the talk and told about how drunk he was and how drunk Hunt was. Rollins threatened to throw me off the car, and Hunt said he would help him. While passengers were getting on, Hunt hit me several times with his elbow and when a lady got on Hunt butted up against her. Told them they were free passengers and should get inside of the car. When we reached thesquare I reported the matter to the starter. Pointed out Rollins. Left them and started for his sign stick on a pole at the sidewalk. As he got opposite car saw Hunt coming toward me. He said something. As he passed he hit me with dress suit case on the knee. He then kicked me in the back that felt like a shock. I wheeled instantly. Did not know what he was doing. Seemed as though he had scratched him on the ear. I asked someone to get a doctor.

On cross examination Egan testified he lost some time last winter by the injury to his back. Takes a day off every week to rest up. Rollins was

SILVER WEDDING

Dr. and Mrs. Fred C. Merrill Entertain Friends

Dr. and Mrs. Fred C. Merrill of Fayette street, Wollaston observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage last evening entertaining a large circle of friends including several from Danvers, Salem, Beverly, Medford, Pawtucket and other places as well as Quincy.

The spacious rooms had been transformed by Luard, the florist, into a scene of beauty. In the hall apple boughs in blossom were used with good effect and in the receiving room were orange plants in fruit, also daisies, roses, pinks and other flowers.

Dr. and Mrs. Merrill received in the parlor unassisted, the ushers being students at Tufts college,, including Raymond Derbyshire, Carl Allen, J. Herman Haines, Dr. H. G. Metters, C. O. Doubleday and Dr. C. S. Spencer.

During the evening there were selections by Merrill's orchestra, made up of sons of Dr. Merrill and others, also pleasing vocal numbers by Miss Florence Hurd of Salem and Dr. Arthur Gould. Ices were served by Sparrow.

Early in the day Dr. Merrill was surprised at Tufts College, where he is a professor, when a large number of the students assembled and entered a protest against him. It was not until the Class of 1911 brought forth a beautiful loving cup and presented it to him that he realized what was up. The cup and other presents were displayed in one of the upper rooms and included many pieces of silverware, spoons in variety, chafing dishes, pictures, books, etc.

Dr. and Mrs. Merrill have been residents of Wollaston for about fifteen years. They were married in Danversport in 1885 by Rev. James Wilson, late of Salem. They went abroad in 1886 and lived about five years in Germany, five years in Italy and one year in Switzerland, returning to Quincy in 1895. Mrs. Merrill's maiden name was Miss Hattie H. Lummus, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lummus of Danvers. They have three sons, one of whom is a graduate of Tufts college, and another a student there.

The couple received hearty congratulations and good wishes.

FUNERAL OF VICTIMS.

The funeral of Thomas Hughes, one of the victims of the auto truck accident at Pope's Hill on Wednesday, was held from his home 92 Pleasant street on Friday. Services were connucted by Dr. Edwin N. Hardy. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The funeral of John W. White, another victim, was held this morning from St. John's church. Mass was celebrated by Rev. Patrick Scannell. During the mass at the offertory, Miss Mary Burns sang "Pie Jesu" and after the mass, Miss Josephine McCarty sang "Liebra." The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

NEW BASIS FOR STATE AND COUNTY TAXES

County Raises More This Year But Quincy's Part is Smaller Than in 1909

State Assessment Will Also Be Smaller

Although Norfolk county levies this year a tax of $5000 more than last year, the assessment upon Quincy and several of the towns will be smaller. Quincys assessment is $21,927.04 against $22,051.79 in 1909. There are fifteen towns where the assessments are larger, including: Braintree, Cohasset, Dedham, Dover, Hyde Park, Millis, Needham, Norfolk, Norwood, Plainville, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, Weymouth and Wrentham. With the exception of Hyde Park it is largely the small towns where increases have been made because of newly discovered taxable property.

The assessment of 1910 is compared below with the tax of 1909, and the towns to pay more are marked with an asterisk:

	1910	1909

In the summary below the Daily Ledger has attempted to compare the apportionment of 1910 with that of 1909, but that for 1910 is on a percentage basis, while that for 1909 is the proportion which each city and town pays of the $72.79 per $1000 assessed in Norfolk county.

In making a comparison, the figures in the 1909 column should be increased about one-third, to bring the 72 per cent up to a 100 per cent. For example, Quincys "percentage in 1909 was really 10.156 plus against 10.441 plus in 1910, a little less.

	Percentage of Tax Assessed 1910	Proportion of Every $72.79 Assessed 1909

Wrentham	.43616	.30
	100.	$72.79

The difference in basis shows in the assesments above for 1909 and 1910. Quincy is called upon to pay a little over ten percent of the county tax, and also ten per cent of Norfolk county's portion of the State tax.

The State tax is divided among the counties by the new basis adopted April 8, 1910, as follows:

County	Per Cent
Suffolk	35.562
Middlesex	17.266
Essex	10.374
Worcester	8.445
Norfolk	7.566
Bristol	6.755
Hampden	5.552
Plymouth	3.199
Berkshire	2.193
Hampshire	1.143
Franklin	.865
Barnstable	.839
Dukes	.154
Nantucket	.087

Quincys proportion of the State tax is less than one per cent.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Maybaskets are with us.

A rainy Arbor day, rather damp for planting but good growing weather for the trees. How many have you set out?

If all else fails, Boston will have to live on the milk of human kindness. As the city has the name of being very charitable probably there will be plenty of kindness but it will hardly be as satisfying as milkman's milk.

Quincy shoppers are not waiting for Merchants' week to get into the habit of trading at home. On pleasant days the sidewalks in City square are lined with people and the packages and bundles carried when they come out of the stores indicate brisk trade for the local merchants. Keep it up and Quincy will prosper. Money spent in Quincy benefits Quincy and is helpful to buyer and seller.

Children and their parents should be warned against the little people's habit of racing out of school. There have been several very narrow escapes when the children dashed blindly out into the street in front of automobiles and teams. There is something about the escape from the confines of school that fills the youthful mind with an exuberence of feeling that seems to compel the little legs to take small bodies as far and as fast as they can, but sometime one of those small bodies is going to come to grief in spite of all the care of drivers on the streets in front of the school house.

A Brockton paper reports that the only newspaper in Randolph has suspended publication and no papers have been issued the past two weeks. The Randolph Register covered three towns. Randolph. Holbrook and Avon. It was owned and edited by Editor Daniel H Huxford for many years until his death some five years ago. Since that time the paper was conducted by Miss M. K. Hill of Randolph and later by George H. Brewster formerly of Gloucester and now of New London, Conn., under whose ownership and management the suspension took place Editor Huxford made a good living out of the Register but was never able to acquire a large circulation on account of poor support given by the citizens who seemed to care more for Brockton and Boston papers than for their home paper

Baltimore hit upon a novel way to raise money for playgrounds. Before 9 o'clock Wednesday morning the city was invaded by an army of girls and boys, women and a few men, selling souvenir stock for the benefit of the Children's Playground Association. They covered every part of the city, working until 6 P. M. They held up pedestrians and beseiged offices, stores and homes. They did not refuse the humble 1-cent piece, but one of them rejoiced in securing $200 from a single individual. At 10 o'clock Wednesday night the returns indicated that the total amount obtained would be $20,000. This, with $25,000 already in hand and expected future contributions, will be expended in permanent amusement facilities for the children of the city.

BRIEFS

Officers and tetachers of First Church Sunday school hold their monthly meeting in the church parlor on Monday evening.

So successful was the "penny-a-day" collection inaugurated last year by the Women's Guild of Christ church in raising their annual fund that it will be tried again this season. It is considered less burdensome to raise funds this way than by the fair which has been an annual feature for many years. Members are asked to put by a penny a day during May, June, July, August and September so that by October there will be a goodly sum.

A new train is announced to leave Boston on Saturdays at 12.45 reaching Quincy at 1.02 and Braintree at 1.07, and making all stops to Cohasset, arriving at 1.40. The train now leaving Boston at 1.10 on Saturdays will run express to Hingham.

James Smith, who for the past nine years has been employed at the National Sailors home, has severed his connection with the home and will take up gardening.

A public reception is to be tendered the Rev. William Bingham Ayres, recently installed pastor of the Park and Downs Congregational church, on Wednesday evening at half past seven. It will be an especially happy occasion as the old mortgage will be publicly burned and the new church movement formally launched. Addresses will be made by Dr. Asher Anderson, national councilman and others. There will be special music. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend the reception.

Rev. E. C. Butler of First church is to conduct the noon service in King's chapel, Boston, on Wednesday.

It is a busy week at Christ church with services and social gatherings as follows: Monday at 8 P. M., Men's club; Tuesday 3.45 P. M., Junior Auxiliary; Wednesday 2.30 P. M., Women's Guild and 8 P. M., Galahad Brotherhood social; Thursday 10 A. M., Ascension Day service and 7.30 P. M. Galahad club; Friday 7.30 P. M., St. Margaret's Guild and 7.45 Reaper's circle.

Galahad Brotherhood of Christ church is to hold one of their popular socials in the parish house on Wednesday evening. There will be for entertainment a program of dancing, reading and music and refreshments will be served.

The next regular meeting of Quincy W. C. T. U. will be held on Thursday afternoon at three o'clock in Protection hall.

The Men's club of St. Chrysostoms holds its regular meeting on Monday evening in the Parish rooms.

Frederick A. Torrey and family have given up their residence on Davis street and taken apartments on Blake street.

Rev. Edward A. Horton well known to Quincy Unitarians, by the advice of his physician is to take a thorough rest and has resigned as the executive head of the Unitarian Sunday School society after twenty-five years' service.

An article appears in this week's Patriot by Mrs. F. C. Babcock. It is entitled "A Book Talk" and is intended to be helpful to those asking "What shall I read next?" All the books mentioned are in the Crane Memorial Library.

SAYS GLAVIS LIED

Ballinger Defends His Action In Connection With Coal Cases

Washington, April 30.—Indignantly denying that he was guilty of any wrong-doing, Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, bitterly attacked his critics while a witness before the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee and characterized many of the sworn statements of his principal accuser, L. R. Glavis, as "wilful and deliberate lies."

He referred with apparent pride to Theodore Roosevelt's high estimate of him, particularly the former president's statement when he was commissioner of the land office, that he had "secured a $25,000 man for $5000."

He defended his conduct in connection with the Cunningham coal cases and said emphatically that he would take the same action today as he did when at the head of the land office if he had the same case before him.

ENGLAND ADDS TERRITORY

Island Discovered by American In 1853 Is Formally Annexed

Durban, Africa, April 30.—Heard's island, in the South Indian ocean, which was discovered by Captain Heard, an American, was annexed on behalf of Great Britain by a party aboard the Durban whaler Mangora. A cairn was erected supporting the Union Jack, under which the declaration of annexation was signed.

Heard's island is a desolate spot, t covered for the greater part with ice and glaciers. It is about twenty-five miles in length and nine miles in width and is the largest of a group visited first by Captain Heard of the American ship Oriental in 1853. The British warship Challenger called at the island in 1873 and found its inhabitants to consist of forty sealers. Since then sealing in the vicinity has ceased and it has been supposed that the island was deserted.

KILLS GIRL WHOM HE WAS TO MARRY

Negro Trooper Became Jealous of His Fellow Soldiers

Burlington, Vt., April 30.—Jealous because Jessie Le Barr, the young octoroon to whom he was to be married, was receiving attentions from his companions in arms, William West, first sergeant of K Troop, Tenth United States cavalry, the negro regiment stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, shot and killed the young woman at her boarding place in Winooski, then rode back to the fort and gave himself up to the garrison authorities. He was turned over to the civil authorities and locked up there, charged with murder.

West has been in the army more than twelve years and had a good record.

Miss Le Barr was of such light complexion as to pass for a white woman. She was 22 years old.

M'HALE GOES TO PRISON

Two Years and Three Months For Padding His Expense Account

Los Angeles, Cal., April 30.—For having padded an expense account to the extent of $27.50 while in the government service here, James P. McHale, a former deputy United States marshal, was sentenced to serve two years and three months in prison. This penalty comes to McHale after spending two years in jail at Culican, Mex., fighting extradition.

McHale was engaged to the daughter of Governor Camedec of Sinaica, Mex., and had the support of powerful personages in Mexico during his struggle to remain on the other side of the border.

When arraigned before Judge Wellborn McHale made a plea for mercy, saying he was willing to repay the money, but the petition was disregarded.

She was rescued by Drawtender Buckley and William West, and taken unconscious to the Cambridge relief hospital, where she later revived and was found to be suffering from an unbalanced mind.

During her stay in China Miss De Long is said to have tried to commit suicide by drowning. She returned to this country about five years ago, and has been recently employed as a dressmaker.

TO MARRY ENGLISHMAN

Ruth Bryan Leavitt and Her Children

WILL INVOKE AID OF COURT

Divorced Husband of Ruth Bryan to Demand His Children

WOMAN IS ENGAGED TO MARRY

Leavitt Says He Should Not Hesitate to Stop Wedding of Former Wife and Officer In British Army If Necessary to Secure Possession of His Offspring—Going to Fairview Unless He Hears From Nebraska

Columbus, O., April 30.—"I want those children, and if there is any law in God's world to help me get them I will have them. If no other means will avail I will take legal steps and invoke the aid of the court to try to prevent the marriage of Ruth Bryan Leavitt to Reginald Owen," said William H. Leavitt, divorced husband of Ruth Bryan.

The notice in the newspapers of the approaching marriage of his former wife to Lieutenant R. A. Owen, a British army officer, came as a surprise to him, he declared. He said the only information he ever had of a divorce was such as he had seen in the public prints.

He declared that all during his absence he has sent her money and clothes and has her receipts for them. He said Bryan practically asked him to marry Ruth.

He said his marital troubles started soon after their marriage when she met the man she now plans to marry. He charged her alleged peculiar actions to strange mentality and nervousness.

"We had two children," he said. "Since I have been in Columbus Mrs. Leavitt has sent word that she and the children were comfortably settled in Hanover, Germany, and that the children were in a kindergarten."

In case he received no direct word from Nebraska, Leavitt said he would leave here in time to reach Fairview before the marriage took place.

"I should not hesitate to try to stop the ceremony, if that were the only way to get possession of my children," he said.

Bryan Has Nothing to Say

Lincoln, Neb., April 30.—William J. Bryan refused to discuss the threat of William H. Leavitt to come to Lincoln to stop the marriage of Bryan's daughter to Lieutenant Owen, which is to take place Tuesday. Mrs. Leavitt is expected in Lincoln Sunday evening. Owen is also expected Sunday evening.

Mrs. Leavitt, who has been in Germany with her two children for the past four months, landed in New York Thursday. The ceremony will be a quiet one, with only a few friends present.

Ruth Bryan Confirms Announcement

Jacksonville, Ills., April 30.—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, is a guest at the home of M. F. Dunlap of Jacksonville. She confirmed the announcement of her engagement to Lieutenant R. A. Owen, Royal Engineers, of Jamaica.

Thaw Must Stay In Matteawan

New York, April 30.—Harry K. Thaw, who killed Stanford White, must remain in the Matteawan insane asylum. The appellate division of the supreme court in Brooklyn handed down a decision which defeats the efforts of Mrs. Mary C. Thaw to have her son transferred to another asylum.

Castro Buys a Hotel

Madrid, April 30.—A correspondent at Teneriffe, Canary islands, states the Cipriano Castro, the former President of Venezuela, has purchased the Grand Hotel at Battenberg and proposes to transform it into a private residence.

WESTON NEARS HIS GOAL

Plans to Arrive at New York City Hall on Monday Morning

Wappinger Falls., N. Y., April 30.—Edward P. Weston, with an ankle badly swollen from his accident of Wednesday, rose at midnight and limped fifty-one miles yesterday in order that he might be sure of arriving in New York on Monday without fail.

He is only seventy-four miles from city hall, New York. He plans to make fifty-four miles tomorrow, so that he can spend Sunday at Yonkers and march down Broadway after a four-hour jaunt the following morning.

Weston informed those who were to accompany him on his journey that they would do well to avoid him as much as possible on account of his extreme irritation. Constant meditation on the excellent time he would have made had he not attended a banquet in Syracuse was the cause of his irritation.

"GOLD MINE" SHUTS DOWN

Superintendent Is Arrested For Alleged Non-Payment of Board Bill

Lebanon, N. H., April 30.—Charles A. Clouch of Ware, Mass., part proprietor and superintendent of the local gold mine, was placed under arrest by Sheriff Peck of White River Junction, Vt., on a body writ for a debt of $500, $380 of which is alleged to be due to the proprietor of the Williamson house for board and rooms since Dec. 4, 1909.

As a result of the the arrest and incarceration of Clouch in the Vermont lockup, Lebanon's gold mine is closed and its twelve hands thrown out of employment.

Three doctors examined Clouch as to his sanity last night, and it is expected that an appeal will be made to the judge of probate court for the appointment of a guardian to look after the man and his tangled affairs.

POLICE ARE HUNTING FOR STOLEN GEMS

Drexel-Gould Wedding Guest Said to Have Been Robbed

New York, April 30.—Rare jewels that are supposed to have been stolen from a person of prominence in the social world that attended the Drexel-Gould wedding are being searched for by the police, who are under strict orders to keep the identity of the owner a secret and to conceal the facts of the robbery as much as possible.

Five of the best detectives on Inspector Russell's staff are working on the case. The police would not tell whether the theft had been committed while the owner was at the Drexel-Gould wedding or after it.

The jewels are said to be a brooch containing a Hungarian opal surrounded by eight diamonds, valued at $5000, and a pair of earrings, each containing two steel white diamonds, the two diamonds in each earring being enclosed in a box setting surrounded by smaller diamonds, the pair of earrings being valued at $3000.

POISON PLOT CLEARED UP

Austrian Officer Sent Poison Capsules to Men Who Were Promoted

Vienna, April 30.—The mystery of the origin of the wholesale poisoning plot directed against recently promoted officers of the Austrian army has been cleared by the confession of Lieutenant Adolf Hofrichter.

The lieutenant admits that he sent capsules containing prussic acid to ten members of the general staff with the object of poisoning them. The capsules were accompanied with a circular recommending their use for ill health.

Captain Mader, one of the officers addressed, took the preparation and died almost immediately. Hofrichter's wife is suspected of complicity in the conspiracy and is undergoing an examination by the magistrate.

BRIAND GIVES WARNING

Force, If Necessary, to Preserve Peace In Paris on May Day

Paris, April 30.—Premier Briand has appealed to the working men to discountenance the dangerous and revolutionary element whose words in announcing a May day manifestation in the Bois de Bologne were defiant and a menace to the peace.

In his public appeal the premier adds that if these dangerous characters attempt to parade on the Bois de Boulogne or through the streets of Paris that they will be dispersed by force.

Hard to attend to household duties

A woman should not have a bad back.
And she wouldn't if the kidneys were well.
Doan's Kidney Pills make well Kidneys.
Here is a Quincy woman who endorses this claim:
Mrs. Deborah Prouty, 39 Quincy avenue, Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement or an attempt to stoop, sent sharp pains through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I had known so many people who had used them with benefit, that I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. The use of three boxes convinced me that they were the best kidney remedy to be had. I am now in good health."

PAULHAN GETS $50,000 PRIZE

White to Be Given Valuable Cup Donated by Friends

GIVEN OVATIONS IN LONDON

Daredevil Frenchman Gives Details of His Flight From London to Manchester, During Which He Had to Fight Wind and Cold All the Way—Had But a Second to Decide Upon Spot to Make a Landing

London, April 30.—Conquerer and vanquished, Louis Paulhan and Graham White, are the heroes of London. The daredevil Frenchman at a luncheon at the Hotel Savoy today received the $50,000 prize offered by Lord Northcliffe, which he won by his great 186-mile flight from London to Manchester.

White at the same time received the 100 guinea ($4525) cup donated as a consolation prize because of his magnificent attempts to wrest victory from defeat.

Both men on their appearance on the streets were given ovations that a Caesar might envy. The love that England holds for White is proven by the rapid growth of the public subscriptions opened by the Aero club in his behalf. The fund will go for the purpose of another consolation testimonial.

Louis Paulhan, who but a few years ago was a penniless clown in a little provincial show—half circus, half vaudeville—appeared before a gathering of the foremost sportsmen and scientists as the man who accomplished the most daring flight in the history of aviation.

In the course of a graphic description in The Daily Mail of his flight from London to Manchester, Paulhan says:

"I had to fight the wind all the way from London. Not a moment's rest came to me in my battle against the gusts. I made rises and dips of as much as 320 feet, always with the object of flying in the steadiest and most level air current I could find.

"It was cold, very cold indeed, and the wind bit into my face. Fortunately for me, my eyes do not suffer while I am flying, thought they begin to burn terribly when I come down to earth again.

"All I could see was that things were going well. The wind whistled, and so did I. I shouted and sang. I do not think my voice is particularly fascinating, but nobody seems to mind that in the upper air.

"A pelting rainstorm lashed me for twenty minutes while I was in the neighborhood of Rugby, but fornately I am not unused to flying in the rain.

"I came down rapidly from 300 metres to 100, so that I could be more certain of my direction. Then came the most exciting moment of my flight. Darkness had fallen, but before me I saw the lights of Lichfield. I decided to alight in some convenient meadow before reaching town, and to do this sank down to 150 feet.

"I was immediately above what looked like a large factory, with a tall chimney. I am now told it was a brewery, and so, to alight safely in the field, and without damage, I made a fishhook turn. My machine was not pointing toward London. Suddenly my motor stopped. Every drop of petrol had been exhausted, and the machine swooped downward almost like a stone dropping.

"What should I do? Beneath me was the brewery and a certain smash, behind me was a narrow field, almost like a spider's web, with a mesh of telegraph wires.

"I had the imperceptible fraction of a second in which to make up my mind, and I decided to risk the telegraph wires. As I sank I made a sharp twist to the right, back on the line of my course, and was lucky enough to lift myself over the wires."

DIES IN POPE'S ARMS

Parish Priest of Vatican Had Served Under Popes For Fifty Years

Rome, April 30.—A typical figure of the Vatican passed with the death of Mgr. Guglielmo Pifferi, who has been the sacrista or parish priest of the Apostolic palace since the time of Pius IX.

The aged ecclesiastic died in the arms of the pope, who had gone to the bedside upon learning that the end was near. The monsignor had served fifty years under three popes and had been the pope's confessor.

The post of sacrista has existed for six centuries and is always conferred upon an Augustinian.

Student's Body Found In Canal

Princeton, N. J., April 30.—Badly decomposed by the action of the water since last Sunday morning, the body of Linden C. L. D'Zilva, the missing student of the Princeton Theological seminary, was found floating in the Raritan canal near here.

Woman Suffrage Knocked Out

Albany, April 30.—The senate judiciary committee refused to report favorably the constitutional amendment which would remove the prohibition against woman suffrage.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Hub's Summer Season of Ice Skating Has Begun—Wives of Tightwads Would Welcome "Woman's Charter"—Members of Excuse Club Become Letteramatic—Brothers of the Suffrage Movement Announce Their Debut—How Senator Lodge Held the Petition—Progress and Prosperity to Band in Band.

The family were at breakfast. "Guess that rain last night put a stop to the game today," said father from behind his newspaper. "The grounds will be a regular mud-hole."

"I don't see," remarked daughter, "why they couldn't cover the baseball field with hay or straw the night before the game when the weather looks threatening, just as they do the football field."

Father allowed a glance of pitying scorn to emerge from be-hind his paper. "My dear child, if you would stop to think a minute you would realize that it is much easier to lose a baseball in the hay than a football." And then he wondered why they all laughed at him.

Boston women wedded to tight wads, and perhaps other Boston women, are wishing all success to the backers of the so-called "Woman's Charter" now before the House of Commons in London. This is a series of eight bills, chief among them being one to provide that wives who devote their time to housekeeping and the care of children shall have a claim on their husbands for housekeepers' wages, provided they have no other personal allowance. This project arouses particular interest on this side of the water at a time when the government census takers have been putting down the housewife as having "no occupation." The bills in England also provide for wives who work jointly in the same businesses as their husbands being regarded as partners; for mothers to have joint guardianship with fathers over the children, and several other provisions for the betterment of women's conditions of life.

Prosperty for the progressive. Take notice, you trustees of Bay State savings banks. The Boston girl, who cherishes her combination life insurance and old age pension policy in the Whitman savings bank, is delighted to learn that the pioneer "savings and insurance" institution, the first to avail itself of the privilege of the Savings Insurance Act of 1910, reports a gain of $175,000 deposit in a year and of $66,000 in three months. Many people presumably are following the example of a young woman in this city who having a monthly premium of something less than two dollars to send to Whitman, regularly remits a check for five dollars, the balance being applied toward building up a savings account. The two departments of the bank are mutually helpful.

Preparatory to the most up to date form of midsummer madness the Hubs new arena was opened amidst a throng of fashionable skating enthusiasts and the glare of lights on April 25. From now on Bostonians and their friends may enjoy ice skating, hockey and allied sports while the baseball players swelter in the sun within distance of a ball toss. The opening day was marked by the presence of society matrons and maids from Boston and Brookline, nearly all of whom tried the smooth surface of the ice. Special events, races, fancy ice dancing, childrens races, a hockey game between Harvard and Newton High in the afternoon and between Harvard and the Crescents in the evening made the time pass rapidly. Society girls acted as ushers and served tea in the foyer, occasionally leaving their posts to enjoy the novelty of ice skating in the warm spring weather. The proceeds of the first day's festivities went to the Sharon sanatorium for consumptives in which many Back Bay people are interested.

The suffrage brothers of the Bay State are now due for their turn. Preliminary steps were taken some weeks ago for forming a "Massachusetts Men's League for Woman Suffrage," similar to the leagues in New York and other states which have done much to spread what they believe to be ideas of justice toward the disfranchised sex. A long list of distinguished men of the Commonwealth consented to the use of their names as members. The first meeting, for purposes of definite organization, was called for Friday, April 29, by a committee consisting of former secretary of the Navy, John D. Long, Francis J. Garison, son of the great liberator, and Edwin D. Mead, prominent in the movement for international peace. This committee secured as spokesman for the needs of the new association Max Eastman, of Columbia University, secretary of the New York Men's League for Woman Suffrage. The part to be played by the League will doubtless soon appear.

Back from the battle field at Washington women suffragists of the Bay State tell animatedly with what dainty delicacy Senator Lodge fingered their portion of the mammonth petition to congress; with what feminine coquettishness the spokeswoman of the "antis," dressed in the height of fashion, made gallant senators and representatives open and close windows for her and otherwise dance attendance, willy nilly; with what evident amusement one member of the congressional committee, after listening for an hour and a half to the presentation of the opposition's "case" advised the suffragists to follow the example of the other side "in offering no argument;" with what rotund clearness and sincerity Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin spoke briefly in favor of justice to the other sex. The Boston group deplore the newspaper stories of a factional fight in the ranks of the suffragists, and they are all extremely pleased at the promotion of a Massachusetts woman, Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett to a secrtaryship in the national association, even while they regret Mrs. Dennett's removal to the metropolis.

The latest public utility to be grasped immediately by an appreciative populace is the lettergram. According to reports its popularity bids fair to become a menace to the nerves and constitutions of the operators. Incidentally, it has already increased the membership of the Excuse Club by several thousands. Some fair ladies on receiving the fifty word missive from their husband or sweetheart have figured up how much that "telegram" must have cost him, and have straightway prepared a curtain lecture or been secretly delighted—according to the case—at his reckless extravagance, until reminded of the new rule whereby a person may send fifty words for twenty-five cents during the evening hours. The new service is surely a boon to lovers, and many a belated husband has hailed its advent with a keen sense of relief. Explanations at long distance are infinitely easier than when made to the face of an irate spouse.

Ethel Angier.

Boston, April 29, 1910.

Fingers Valued at $120 Each

Worcester, Mass., April 30.—In the Worcester county superior court, John Laitinen, who brought an action in court against the John A. Dunn company of Gardner, for $5000 for the loss of three fingers on his left hand in a planing machine, was given a verdict of $360.

Ten Persons Perish In Fire

Cornwall, Ont., April 30.—Ten persons were burned to death and several injured in a fire which destroyed the Rossmore hotel and a number of stores. The property loss is $250,000.

Trapped.

The man was neither neatly nor well dressed. He was plainly a tramp, begging, and had just turned away from one passerby when he saw a young man walking briskly toward him. "Please, mister," said the tramp, "can you give me a dime to get something to eat?"

The young man stopped. "What's the matter?" he asked.

"Can't get work," said the other glibly. "I haven't had a bite to eat since yesterday morning. Pawned all my clothes 'cepting these. Slept under a wharf for a week, and I don't know anybody in the whole city—honest, I don't."

The young man looked at the tramp's smooth face, over which a razor had evidently passed very recently.

"Who shaved you this morning?" he asked, and as the beggar faded away the young man grinned and walked on down the street.—Youth's Companion.

Compensation.

"I felt so sorry when I heard your house was burned down, Mrs. Jones," said Mrs. Hawkins.

"It was too bad," said Mrs. Jones, "but it had its bright side. John and I were both afraid to discharge our cook, but now that the house is gone of course we don't have to."—Harper's Weekly.

DRAPER URGES ARBITRATION

But Milk Farmers and Contractors Will Not Agree to Plan

A SURPLUS STOCK IN BOSTON

It May Ward Off Actual Milk Famine For a Few Days—Producers Do Not Expect Boycott to Last Long, While Contractors Say They Can Supply Demand—Farmers Notified That Siege Begins at Midnight Tonight

Boston, April 30.—The milk war begins at midnight tonight. This means that 240,000 quarts of milk, or more than one-half of the city's entire supply, will be withheld daily until the war is settled.

All efforts to make peace yesterday failed. Realizing the seriousness of a possible milkless Boston, Governor Draper urged arbitration.

"Nothing to arbitrate," was the answer of the contractors, and a similar position was taken by the farmers.

Boston may not feel the full effect of a milk shortage for days. The contractors have been anticipating the milk boycott and have been stocking up. They have a surplus stock of 20,000 cans. But by the end of the week the producers think that Boston will begin to miss the 60,000 gallons that are to be daily held back.

Boston or no other big city has ever experienced a milk famine in times of peace. No other food product is more essential for the babies and young children of the city. Both parties having spurned the governor's good offices will result in evoking the law in dealing with combination formed to restrain the milk trade if the boycott drags on for a long period of time.

The producers do not expect the milk boycott to last many days after the real milk famine begins. They say they know the people will not stand it. On the other hand the contractors say cheeringly that there will be no milk scarcity.

From the leaders of the milk producers, making their headquarters for the time being in Boston, word was sent out last night to farmers all over New England, giving the signal that the milk siege would begin at midnight tonight.

"Not only," said W. A. Hunter of the milk producers' organization last night, "will this affect Boston, but it will directly affect all the smaller cities in the eastern part of the state. This because the farmers' price to them is regulated by their price to Boston, and when we settle this matter, successfully, we hope, the price to these other cities will be forced to correspond to the Boston price. We will produce for the other cities at the former summer price only until we win in Boston."

HOUSE AMENDMENT TO RAILROAD BILL

Calls For Valuation of All Lines In the United States

Washington, April 30.—Physical valuation of all railroads in the United States is called for in an amendment to the administration bill adopted by the house. The amendment was offered by Mr. Madden (Ills.) and was adopted by the house by 130 to 67. In favor of this amendment the Democrats voted as a unit, while the Republican "insurgents" and many others of the majority joined them. Mr. Mains (Ills.), in charge of the bill, pleaded with the regulars to defeat the amendment, but without avail.

The significance of the vote by which the Madden amendment was adopted lies in the fact that it was supported by many of the regular Republicans. Madden is a close friend of Speaker Cannon and one of his active workers on the floor. Other regulars who voted for the amendment were Crumpacker (Ind.), McKinney (Ills), Anthony (Kan), and a number of others who have been standing with Mann in fighting off insurgent amendments.
